100,000 Rumanian Iron Guards Pledge Fight for Transylvania

Antonescu Tells Rally Axis 'Understands' Desire to Regain Region Hungary Holds; Budapest Reports Slaying of Gigurtu and Bratianu

By The Associated Press

BUCHAREST, Dec. 1.—A hundred thousand cheering Iron Guardists pledged themselves tonight to fight for reunion with Rumania of Hungarian-occupied Transylvania, after Premier Gen. Ion Antonescu had assured them Germany and Italy had showed "understanding" for Rumania's desire.

"I went to Berlin and Rome for Transylvanians," Antonescu, who recently returned from those Axis capitals, told the green-shirted Guardists. He said Adolf Hitler's message for the Rumanian Army was: "On your shoulders rests the duty to repair and correct any injustice Rumania suffered."

The occasion for Antonescu's speech, delivered at the mountain town of Alba Julia, was a commemoration of the twenty-second anniversary of Rumania's acquisition of Transylvania.

[In Budapest official Hungarian quarters spoke scornfully of the speech. "What is being said in Rumania is of no importance and of no interest to us," they declared. "Our only concern is that order be maintained there and that our nationals be properly treated."

[Diplomats in Budapest, The United Press said, heard reports that Field Marshal Keitel, chief of German armed forces, had been sent to Rumania, ostensibly to crush internal disorders. Hungarian newspapers, The United Press added, reported fresh rioting during the week end in Rumania and the slaying of two former political leaders, ex-Premier Ion Gigurtu and George Bratianu.

[The United Press reported from Bucharest an official statement denying that any of the Iron Guardists who staged the Jaliva prison assassinations had taken his life or had been arrested. It said also that a high Soviet Legation spokesman at Bucharest, after making telephone calls to Moscow, called reports of a revolt in Soviet Bessarabia "too fantastic for words."]

Antonescu, who has been confronted with a revolt by Iron Guard extremists taking assassins' revenge on many officials of the former regime of abdicated King Carol II, pleaded with the guard that he had the right to give it orders on the grounds that he, too, had been "persecuted" by its foes.

He urged members of the guard to "submit yourselves unquestioningly to the laws of the country," to maintain perfect order and to "work in harmony with all Rumanians" for internal peace.

Declaring that the day was one of "sorrow, suffering and reproaches" because of the loss to Hungary last summer of half of Transylvania, he vaguely referred to some new Axis plan.

"I went to Rome and Berlin for the Transylvanians," Antonescu said. "I pointed out all their sufferings and ours at this time. I found understanding. Rumania is no longer alone. I can say no more now, for I am a soldier and a politician. But the day will come when you will know what I did at Rome and Berlin. We must work and make sacrifices to regain our rights."

Neither "face nor arrogance" ever will be able to drive Rumania from Transylvania, the Premier said.

Rumania's recent signing of the Axis military alliance will be celebrated here tomorrow with a military parade in which an entire motorized division of the German Army is to participate. Antonescu as well as young King Michael also are expected to take part.

Reports reaching the Hungarian-Rumanian border Friday when the struggle between Antonescu and Iron Guard terrorist-assassins was at its height said that 18-year-old King Mihai had left Bucharest. He was said to be either en route to the Yugoslav border or just outside the city awaiting restoration of order.

Croats Protest With Bombs as Serbs Celebrate

Extremists, Clamoring for Independence, Mar Day of Union in Yugoslavia

BELGRADE, Dec. 1 (AP).—Small but noisy protest bombs set off by Croat extremists marred today Yugoslavia's celebration of the Day of Union—the twenty-second anniversary of the proclamation of the union of Serbs, Croats and Slovenes.

Other bombs burst in front of the residence of an army commandant and the Banovina Palace, Peasant party headquarters. Windows were broken, but no casualties were reported. Union day services in some churches were interrupted by bombs.

[The Swiss radio quoted the Yugoslav telegraph agency as saying that attempts had been made at Zagreb on the lives of the chief of the province, his deputy, and Vice-Premier Matchek. No arrests were reported.]

Croat extremists demand the separation of Croatia from the rest of Yugoslavia, a kingdom created after the World War. Croatia formerly was part of Austria-Hungary, and since its incorporation into Yugoslavia has been the scene of much disaffection with what the Croats called the "dominance" of the Serbs.

The anniversary was observed throughout the country with church services and patriotic exercises stressing the solidarity of the Yugoslav people in a common determination to defend the country.

Decorations were bestowed, including the Yugoslav Crown, first class, on members of committees which, during the World War, worked abroad for a military victory and the establishment of the present enlarged kingdom. These included Nako Grskovic, New York publisher, and Ivan Jager, Minneapolis engineer.

GREEKS CLAIM GAIN ON CENTRAL FRONT

Report Capture Of Strategic Points North Of Konitza Sector

Italian Army Declared Retreating Along Entire Line In Albania

[By the Associated Press]

Athens, Dec. 1—The capture of strategic operating points in the region of Premet, about twenty-five miles north of Konitza, Greece, was reported tonight by the Greek high command and a spokesman declared the Greek advance was continuing along the entire Albanian front.

The high command declared 150 prisoners and much material had been captured in the day's fighting.

Whole Line In Retreat

He pictured the entire Italian line from the Strait of Otranto, between the Adriatic and Ionian seas, to Lake Ochrid, on the Yugoslav frontier, as in retreat, including the fresh shock troops recently thrown into the fighting.

The Greeks were said to have captured at bayonet point several mountain heights which were reinforced with concrete bastions.

"The booty we have captured (around Pogradetz) is very important and exceeds figures given in the official communique," the spokesman said.

Fresh Troops Futile

"More to the south, the fresh, select Italian troops which had been rushed to reinforce the enemy have contributed nothing. On the contrary, they suffered the effect of the contagions.

"The retreating enemy is leaving guns, machine guns, prisoners—officers and men.

"From the right the left wing to the sea coast, the news also is good. Italian resistance was crushed by our troops when they captured strategical positions."

Italian Attack Claimed Beaten Off By Greeks

Belgrade, Yugoslavia, Dec. 1 (AP)—Advices from the Yugoslav border near the Albanian war zone said tonight that Greek forces had repulsed several Italian attacks in the Leskovia region but that land and air operations were hampered by snow and fog.

The Greeks, after speeding through Pogradetz, were said to have taken positions on heights of the Kamia and Mokra mountains in an effort to cut off retreating Italians.

Italians, these reports said, were falling back on a strongly fortified line from the north bank of Lake Ochrid across the mountains to Kamia.

Story Of Greek Capture Of Pogradetz Related

With the Greek Army, Dec. 1 (AP)—The Greek practice of forestalling an immediate counter-attack by cleaning up around a town before its capture is claimed, accounts for any delay in the high command's announcement of the fall of the fortified Albanian city of Pogradetz.

The Greeks arrived at this important Italian inland base a week ago and took over the rocky heights to the south. Some of the Greeks drove on past the city.

The Italians had withdrawn almost all of their troops from Pogradetz itself by last Tuesday and were defending strong mountain positions west and north of the town with fresh reinforcements, who had been sped to the front to prop up the badly sagging lines.

On Thursday the Greeks opened their main attack, charging the Italians with bayonets and hand grenades and finally crushing the last important resistance.

Pogradetz was in their hands then, but there was still a job of mopping up the area before Pogradetz could be counted safe. Therefore only advance units entered the city at first. The larger forces followed after the Italians had been pushed well back of the immediate area.

Follows Usual Practice

In announcing the capture of Pogradetz, then, the high command was simply following the practice established at the start of the war nearly five weeks ago.

Many towns and villages are said to have fallen into Greek hands which have not yet been mentioned in official communiques.

In the central sector especially the Greeks have made important gains and are still advancing daily. The countryside is wild and mountainous and there is little concerted resistance.

The Greeks in this sector are finding the Italians elusive. Correspondents with the Greek army have been told that Greeks pursued three Italian battalions through the mountains for days before they sighted them. Three times they caught up with them and engaged the rear guard, but each time the Italians speedily resumed their retreat.

Albania Penetrated

Some Greek units, officers say, have penetrated a three or four-day journey by mule into Albania.

The weather, snowy and rainy and freezing, is brutal and both sides suffer extremely.

In the southern sector the Italian resistance is still strong although the fighting there appears to be confined largely to cleaning up isolated Italian detachments holding to heights.

Correspondents watched Greek troops trying to capture an Italian battalion surrounded on one of these rugged hills.

Italian Force Shelled

It was just inside of the Albanian frontier, and all day the battalion lay hidden behind trees and bushes while the Greeks dropped shells all around them.

The rain and mist hid the Italians, but now and then there were red stabs of machine gun and rifle fire. When dusk came the Italians tried to break through. The dark hill was covered with pin pricks of red fire and ruddy daubs where hand grenades were bursting.

The fighting lasted until late at night, but it was impossible to tell where the Italians and the Greeks were. Towards midnight the firing stopped and the soldiers lay down on the cold wet ground to rest before starting up again at dawn.

"Worthless" Bayonet Termed Decisive Factor In Greece

Cold Steel In Macedonian Hands Credited With Chasing Italians Out Of Pogradetz And Koritza

[By the Associated Press]

Salonika, Greece, Dec. 1—The use of bayonets which many military observers predicted would be discarded as worthless in modern warfare is proving a decisive factor in the Greek army's drive into Albania against Italy's mechanized legions.

Wounded soldiers and neutral observers returning from the northern fighting front have declared unanimously that the capture of Pogradetz and Koritza was achieved mainly at the point of the bayonet in the hands of Greece's fierce Macedonian shock troops.

Especially was this true at Pogradetz, wounded infantrymen said. After five days of artillery and machine-gun fighting, the hard-fighting Evzone Mountain troops stormed a dominating hill sector with their bayonets.

The Greek newspaper Progref answered what it called an Italian radio assertion that Greek bayonet fighting is "a barbarous form of warfare which shows a nation is uncivilized" by declaring that "bayonet fighting certainly is less barbarous than using Italian bombing planes against noncombatants.

"It is not our fault if the enemy lacks the courage of soul against these bayonet charges. . . . Greek bayonets will continue to do good work in Albania."

Italians Let Newsmen See Five Warships After Battle

Seek To Refute British Claims Of Damage—None Visible On Vessels Inspected, Reporter Says

[By the Associated Press]

Somewhere in the Mediterranean, Dec. 1—On the invitation of the Italian Government, anxious to refute British reports of damage to an Italian battleship, cruiser and two destroyers in a sea battle last Wednesday, foreign correspondents today inspected five Fascist first-line ships.

The 35,000-ton battleship Vittorio Veneto and 23,622-ton battleship Giulio Cesare were taking on fuel and munitions after what their officers described as an attack on a British naval force escorting a convoy off Cape Teulada, south of Sardinia, in the western Mediterranean.

The only scars of battle either dreadnaught showed were a few bare patches where, it was explained, fire from their own 15-inch batteries peeled paint off their gun turrets.

Neither was there seen the slightest trace of damage on the three 10,000-ton sister cruisers Fiume, Pola and Goritzia which the Italians said also took part in the battle.

They repeatedly have contended that only the destroyer Lanciere was damaged. Three admirals who commanded the Fascist squadrons in the battle said their forces included the two battleships, six cruisers and several flotillas of destroyers.

Correspondents inspected five of the eight large ships from bridge to engine room today and are to visit others tomorrow.

The naval encounter between the Sardinian and North African coasts has been a subject of claim and counter-claim between Italy and Britain.

A British Admiralty communique last Thursday listed these results:

A battleship of the Littorio class seen to have been hit by a torpedo; (Stefani news agency said the Vittorio Veneto "dodged" a British torpedo.)

An aerial torpedo hit "almost certainly obtained" on a 10,000-ton Bolzano-class cruiser.

A dive-bomber attack on three six-inch gun cruisers, with one apparently damaged and two "near misses" scored.

A destroyer of the Grecale class down by the stern, listing heavily and stopping and another destroyer listing slightly and losing way.

Four battleships make up the Littorio class, Italy's newest and mightiest dreadnaughts. Besides the Vittorio Veneto, there are the Roma and Impero, which are not known to have been commissioned yet, and the Littorio, which the British have declared was crippled in the Armistice Day aerial-torpedo attack on the Italian naval base at Taranto.

ROME REPORTS SUCCESSES

British Said to Have Been Defeated in East Africa Encounters

ROME, Dec. 1 (AP)—Two Italian successes in East Africa against the British were reported today by the High Command.

At much-contested Gallabat, an attack was said to have been repulsed, and at Iregri, west of Lake Rudolf, the daily communiqué said, a six-hour fight ended with the British put to flight, leaving seventy-two dead, some wounded and material including "three trucks loaded with supplies and munitions."

GAS-PROPELLED PLANE CLAIMED BY ITALIANS

Press Says Mystery Craft Will Revolutionize Air Warfare

ROME, Dec. 1 (AP)—Italy's air force either has adopted or is ready to introduce a new type of plane, the Italian press indicated today, and the Turin newspaper Gazetta de Popolo said it would "bring a revolution" in air fighting.

The Popolo di Roma described it as a motorless, propellerless craft shot through the air by gas.

For testing the new mystery plane Colonel Mario de Bernardi, 1927 Schneider Cup and Harmon Trophy winner, received a gold medal last September.

Popolo di Roma pictured it as an "all-metal machine with retractable carriage, moving only by internal reaction."

Others said it was driven by compressed gas which would lift as well as propel it. Otherwise, the plane was said to retain other characteristics of modern aircraft, such as wings, rudders and fuselage.

It was not clearly indicated whether the plane could be expected to be developed for mass use.

THE MILA NEWSPAPER CORRIERE DELLA SERA SAID, "IT IS NOT POSSIBLE JUST NOW TO GIVE MANY DETAILS ON THE NEW MACHINE, WHICH OPENS A NEW ERA TO AVIATION, ESPECIALLY FOR STRATOSPHERIC FLIGHTS AND WHICH, CONSTRUCTED IN THE CAPRONI FACTORIES, IS ENTIRELY DUE TO THE ABILITY OF ITALIAN TECHNICIANS AND WORKSHOPS."

"THE NEW ARM WHICH WILL RENDER OUR VICTORY MORE CRUSHING HAS NOT STAYED IN THE EXPERIMENTAL STAGE PHASE BUT HAS PASSED INTO THE VASTER ONE OF REALIZATION AS SHOWN BY THE DATE OF MOTIVATION."

NAZIS RESUME 'TOTAL' RAID ON SOUTHAMPTON

Planes Cut Loose With Bombs Of All Types, Berlin Says

Smoke From City's Fires Declared Visible Across Channel

[By the Associated Press]

Berlin, December 1—The British port of Southampton again was singled out tonight for violent aerial attacks by the German air force, DNB reported.

Since nightfall squadrons of German airplanes have been bombarding harbor facilities, drydocks, industrial plants and other war-essential objects with bombs of all caliber, the German news agency said.

It also stated rail connection between Southampton and London was interrupted.

The German air force gave Southampton a heavy bombing last night and early today.

Smoke Visible 70 Miles

Other bomber detachments were en route to London, DNB said, to "continue the work of destruction" against British supply lines.

It was said the weather favored the German actions. The sky was partly covered with clouds, facilitating the raiders' approach and permitting enough visibility for aiming.

Germany claimed in last night's attack her night raiders left such an inferno that clouds of smoke hanging over the British port could be seen across the English Channel in Cherbourg, seventy miles away.

The high command said merely that the Luftwaffe had made "a large-scale attack on a vital harbor on the Channel coast."

Seventy Fires Counted

DNB, however, identified the bombed city as Southampton and said Nazi flyers returning from the raid last night counted seventy fires—including twenty large ones—after what it called "one of the most effective attacks of recent days."

The bombers emptied their racks unhampered by British fighter planes, according to the high command, which said the R. A. F. failed to put in an appearance.

Air force leaders, however, reported numerous clashes between individual planes over southern England in today's air operations. Early evening reports listed thirteen British planes shot down and two German craft missing.

Town In South England Singled Out For Blitz

London, Dec. 1 (AP)—German warplanes carrying out a systematic attack along the lines by which they devastated Coventry, began an assault on a south coast town tonight after giving Southampton, famous transatlantic shipping port, a heavy overnight aerial bombardment.

The raiders also fanned out over England at nightfall. During the day they fought British Spitfires over the English Channel and the southeast coast. One locality was reported machine gunned with tracer bullets.

The British said eight German aircraft were destroyed in the day's fighting while five British planes were missing. All British pilots are safe, however, the Air Ministry reported.

Flares Dropped

Flares first were dropped on the south coast town. Then incendiaries followed and then the raiders dumped high explosives on the town.

Many planes were reported to have passed over the coast.

London had two air-raid alarms during the early evening after going through three daylight alerts. Only a few bombs were dropped in the southern outskirts of the capital, however.

A Midland town, a southwest town and the important port of Liverpool also reported German aircraft.

Explosions In France Heard

A rumble of explosions coming from the French coast indicated that the Royal Air Force was answering with renewed attacks on German "invasion ports." Heavy fog prevented watchers on the English side from observing definitely whether Nazi targets were being attacked.

The first daylight alarm in London today came in mid-morning, several hours after the all clear from the night's last raid had sounded. The alarm was brief. The second came a little later, and then the third.

British bombers, the Air Ministry said, were kept inactive last night by the weather.

3,006 Planes Shot Down

The Press Association meanwhile, declared the R. A. F. and anti-aircraft guns have shot down 3,006 planes over Britain and the coastal waters since the start of the war. Twenty of them were Italian, the rest German, it said.

The Royal Air Force, official sources said, destroyed 221 Axis planes over Britain and British waters during November, exclusive of planes destroyed by anti-aircraft fire from ships or by the fleet air arm.

These sources said 201 of the planes were Nazi and twenty Italian, and that in addition eight German planes were destroyed over Axis or Axis-occupied territory or waters.

British losses over Britain and British waters in November were fifty-three planes, but twenty-eight of the pilots were saved, according to these sources.

In the Middle East and the Mediterranean area the Italians lost fifty-eight aircraft in November, against eighteen British planes.

Nazis Claim Successes In Naval Operations

Berlin, Dec. 1 (AP)—Reports of three successful naval operations against the British were published here today.

1. The high command's report that a surface raider has sunk 79,000 tons of shipping not including "successes as a result of the cruiser's mine-laying activity."
2. Its assertion that British speedboats hit but failed to sink a German steamer at the mouth of the Scheldt river, off the coast of Holland, with three of the little raiders damaged—two probably fatally—in the attempt.
3. DNB's report that damage to the British navy in the English Channel battle of destroyers reported Friday by the high command appears to be heavier than the previous claim of two destroyers and four merchantmen sunk.

[Associated Press Editor's Note—The latter two are disputed by the British. According to their version, torpedo boats damaged a large German supply ship off the Scheldt and came off unscathed except for slight damage and two casualties on one of the "mosquito" warships. It has admitted damage only to H. M. S. Javelin in the destroyer battle.]

Oil Patches Noted

The German news agency said air observers flying over the region of the Friday naval clash south of Plymouth reported finding two wide oil patches with much wreckage in the midst of one and British detroyers clustered about many lifeboats in the other.

At another spot, it said, Nazi flyers spotted two burning destroyers which other ships were escorting to port and, directly south of Plymouth, still another British destroyer "in sinking condition."

gether in numerous engagements since the evacuation of Dunkerque, flew to battle together again.

An R. A. F. source said the pilots used no special equipment for fighting at terrific heights, except oxygen apparatus, commonly used above 15,000 feet.

Fights at high altitudes are not rare in this war and this one was said to be no record. The Spitfire's ceiling is a military secret.

The ministry news service said the plane was the six hundredth claimed to have been destroyed by squadrons operating from a single fighter command station.

The two pilots shared a prize made up by the station's personnel for the pilot boosting its plane mark to the 600 total.

The pilots were credited with a half-plane each. One is a 22-year-old flight commander holding the Distinguished Flying Cross whose personal bag is eleven and one half Nazis shot down. The other is a 26-year-old pilot officer with the Distinguished Flying Cross and bar, who worked on a London evening newspaper before the war. He claims nineteen and one half planes.

Briton Suggests Duce "Double-Crossed" Hitler

Amery Says Greek Success Has Opened 'Vista Of Opportunity' For Britain

London, Dec. 1 (AP)—Greek success against Italy opens for Britain "a vista of opportunity which, if we can turn it to full account, may be of decisive influence on the whole future course of the struggle," L. S. Amery, Secretary of State for India, told a Newmarket audience today.

He suggested that Italy's attack on Greece might have been a "double-cross" on Germany, Italy's Axis partner, and added:

"If we can enable Greece to hold her own until we have disposed of the Italians in Egypt we shall have secured for our armies a foothold from which we might threaten the flank of any German attack on Turkey."

Britain Hard Pressed To Provide Home Army With Winter Quarters

London, Dec. 1 (AP)—The British are confronted with the "heavy burden" of providing winter quarters for an army which six months ago was expected to be serving overseas by winter, a War Office statement disclosed tonight.

The public was told that the process of changing from summer to winter quarters would be attended with "some discomfort and inconvenience."

Vacant buildings and private homes must be used for 1,000,000 men, it was said. It was estimated one soldier in every 2,000 still is under canvas.

British Girls Reduce Cosmetic Use in War

LONDON, Dec. 1 (AP).—The shiny nose became today a sign of war sacrifice in Great Britain.

Restriction on the sale of cosmetics, now effective, cuts the volume to 25 per cent of last year's figure, which means about two lipsticks and two boxes of powder a year each girl and a cut in the manufacturers' business from about £40,000,000 ($116,000,000) annually to £10,000,000.

Total Enemy Loss Put at 3,006

LONDON, Dec. 1 (AP)—The Press Association declared today that the Royal Air Force and anti-aircraft guns had shot down 3,006 planes over Britain and the coastal waters since the start of the war. Twenty of these were Italian, the rest German, it said.

London Not Surprised That Kennedy Resigned

London, Monday, Dec. 2 (AP)—Joseph P. Kennedy's resignation as Ambassador to Great Britain was generally expected here. It evoked no immediate comment because of the early hour the announcement was received today.

It was recalled Kennedy went to unusual pains to make a series of official farewells when he left for the United States last month, calling on King George and Queen Elizabeth and Prime Minister Churchill.

The London press then bade him farewell with columns of praise and the press association said he was not expected to return as Ambassador.

BULLETIN MATTER

WASHINGTON-1ST ADD FIRST LEAD KENNEDY XXX TO LONDON.

"ON NOVEMBER 6 I TENDERED TO THE PRESIDENT MY RESIGNATION AS HIS AMBASSADOR TO THE COURT OF ST.JAMES'S.

"TODAY THE PRESIDENT WAS GOOD ENOUGH TO EXPRESS REGRET OVER MY DECISION, BUT TO SAY THAT, NOT YET BEING PREPARED TO APPOINT MY SUCCESSOR, HE WISHES ME TO RETAIN MY DESIGNATION AS AMBASSADOR UNTIL HE IS. BUT I SHALL NOT RETURN TO LONDON IN THAT CAPACITY.

"MY PLAN IS, AFTER A SHORT HOLIDAY, TO DEVOTE MY EFFORTS TO WHAT SEEMS TO ME THE GREATEST CAUSE IN THE WORLD TODAY, AND MEANS, IF SUCCESSFUL, THE PRESERVATION OF THE AMERICAN FORM OF DEMOCRACY. THAT CAUSE IS TO HELP THE PRESIDENT KEEP THE UNITED STATES OUT OF WAR."

HE SAID ON ONE OCCASION, HOWEVER, THAT HE WAS READY "TO BE IN LONDON WITHIN 48 HOURS IF AN EMERGENCY ARISES THAT REQUIRES ME THERE."

SPECULATION ABOUT A POSSIBLE SUCCESSOR TO KENNEDY AT THE COURT OF ST.JAMES'S HAS CENTERED ABOUT WILLIAM C.BULLITT, FORMER AMBASSADOR TO FRANCE, AND MARSHALL FIELD. THERE ALSO HAS BEEN TALK THAT A CAREER DIPLOMAT MIGHT BE GIVEN THE ASSIGNMENT.

IN THAT CONNECTION THERE HAS BEEN FREQUENT MENTION OF RAY ATHERTON, NOW ACTING CHIEF OF THE EUROPEAN DIVISION OF THE STATE DEPARTMENT. ATHERTON WAS COUNSELOR OF THE LONDON EMBASSY FOR SEVERAL YEARS.

THERE WAS NO AMPLIFICATION OF KENNEDY'S STATEMENT THAT AFTER A HOLIDAY HE WOULD DEVOTE HIMSELF TO THE CAUSE OF HELPING "THE PRESIDENT KEEP THE UNITED STATES OUT OF WAR."

DEC 2-1940

IN SOME QUARTERS, IT WAS BELIEVED THAT THIS MEANT HE INTENDED TO GIVE A MAJOR PART OF HIS TIME TO SPEAKING AND WRITING IN AN EFFORT TO SWAY PUBLIC OPINION TO HIS FREQUENTLY EXPRESSED VIEW THAT THE UNITED STATES SHOULD UNDER NO CIRCUMSTANCES ENTER THE WAR.

THERE HAVE BEEN REPORTS, HOWEVER, THAT HE WOULD BE PROFERRED SOME HIGH GOVERNMENT POST, PERHAPS THE CHAIRMANSHIP OF THE NATIONAL DEFENSE COMMISSION, AND HIS STATEMENT DID NOT SEEM TO RULE OUT THIS POSSIBILITY.

New British Submarine, Long Overdue, Is Presumed Lost

LONDON, Dec. 1 (AP).—The British submarine Triad is overdue and must be considered lost, the Admiralty announced tonight, giving no details.

The Triad penetrated Oslo Fjord and torpedoed and sank a 4,000-ton supply ship on April 2. Nine days later she attacked a convoy, and two torpedoes found their mark.

Launched in May, 1939, the Triad, one of Great Britain's Triton class, displaced 1,090 tons on the surface and carried a normal complement of fifty-three men. Officially described as a "patrol type" for general service, the Triad was a sister ship of the Thetis, which foundered during a trial dive on June 1, 1939.

'PEACE' TREATY FOLLOWED BY JAPANESE RAID

Nipponese Flyers Bomb Chungking Area For First Time In Month

U. S. Credit To Chiang's Regime "Unfriendly," Says Wang's Aide

[By the Associated Press]

Hongkong, Monday, Dec. 2—The Central (Chinese) news agency reported today that a much-publicized Japanese offensive in Hupeh province had been shattered by Chinese counter-attacks.

The agency said the Japanese now are beating a general retreat toward their original bases.

[By the Associated Press]

Chungking, China, Dec. 1—The Japanese today followed up their pact of collaboration with the puppet Nanking Government with the first raid on the Chungking area in more than a month.

Japanese planes unloaded about ten bombs on a single objective down the Yangtze river from this capital. Chungking itself was not touched.

Signed Pact With Wang

The Japanese signed their pact yesterday with Wang Ching-wei, head of the Nanking Government. The Central Government of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek has offered a reward of 100,000 Chinese dollars ($6,000) for anyone "bringing the arch-traitor to book."

A Foreign Office spokesman declared that the new $100,000,000 United States credit, announced yesterday, would give China "fresh impetus against the disturber of the peace in th Pacific."

Will Help Materially

Its size, he said, will help materially in the fight against Japan and its intrinsic value is enhanced by the fact that it came immediately after the Nanking treaty signing.

Taking that as of political significance, Chinese sources said they were particularly pleased that the United States gave what they called the first international reaction to Japan's recognition of the Nanking regime.

They said it proved that "China's democratic support is stronger than Japan's Axis support, although the latter had formal status.

Wang's Aide Denounces U. S. Credit To Chungking

Shanghai, Dec. 1 (AP)—Wang Ching-wei's publicity minister, P. S. Lin, declared today that the new United States credit of $100,000,000 to the Chungking Government was "an unfriendly and unjust reply by a government to the friendly peace concluded between China and Japan."

Japan and the Wang Government of Nanking signed treaties of collaboration and "peace" yesterday at Nanking about the time that the White House announced the credit.

Extended 'Out Of Spite'

The credit, Lin declared, was extended "out of spite and for the sole purpose of enabling Chungking to exhaust China's strength in useless conflict with Japan while simultaneously weakening Japan's position."

Meanwhile, the entire city of Peiping and a large area of Shanghai were blockaded tonight by the Japanese as they carried on an intense but fruitless search for persons who attacked two Japanese in the cities.

20,000 Affected

At least 20,000 Chinese and several hundred foreigners were affected in Shanghai.

An unidentified gunman shot and wounded a man reported to be a Japanese gendarme in a western border settlement here while a Japanese lieutenant colonel was assassinated in Peiping.

The Japanese miltary, meanwhile, in a statement issued through Domei news agency, declared two of three "Chungking agents" responsible for wrecking a train near Soochow Friday had been killed by Japanese soldiers.

It was officially reported seventy-three Chinese and one Japanese were killed in the wreck and seventy persons seriously injured.

FRENCH, THAILAND PLANES IN BATTLE

Aerial Fight Rages For 20 Minutes Over Indo-China Frontier

Land Clashes Also Reported As Vichy Forces Exact 'Reprisals'

[By the Associated Press]

Hanoi, French Indo-China, Monday, Dec. 2—French and Thailand warplanes fought for twenty minutes above the border town of Thakhek yesterday, it was reported here today, but the result of the battle was not announced.

At the same time, fighting on the Thai-Indo-China border appeared to be expanding as the French exacted "reprisals" for two attacks on Thakhek and Savannakhet last Thursday and yesterday.

Details of the operations along the border, where the French have been reported concentrating forces, were not made known, however.

Cities Blacked Out

The principal cities of southern Indo-China are taking blackout precautions against possible Thai bombing raids, while all French women and children have been removed from the border regions. Thus far there have been no French or foreign casualties.

Hanoi officials said there still was some slight hope of settlement because the French Minister to Bangkok and the consul were remaining at their posts.

Relations Tense

Relations between Thai and Indo-China have been tense since the Bangkok Government early in September formally asked Vichy to return two small areas in Laos, western Indo-China state, which France took from Siam by force in 1907. Vichy rejected the claim.

Colonial officers here said they would retaliate with their entire strength against any major attacks by Thailand along the troubled border.

They said the border situation had been "grave" since last Thursday, when, they charged, Thai planes bombed Savannakhet and Thakhek and killed three persons.

The French said they retaliated by shelling Kahon and that similar retaliations would be taken in the future, although Indo-China was avoiding any provocation toward Thai and was not taking the initiative in military action.

[Associated Press Editor's Note—The Thai high command Saturday reported the occupation of three Indo-Chinese districts by its forces. It also said the raids of the two border towns followed an alleged French bombing of Thai.]

Sailor Killed

The latest border incident announced at a press conference was the killing of a sailor on the Mekong river by Thai rifle fire.

Other isolated cases of unrest in various parts of Indo-China were reported. These included a disturbance in the Saigon area, where it was said at least ten native civil guards and one French planter were killed in native uprisings.

Some 2,000 bandits were reported pillaging the country northward of Hanoi, near Langson, between Japanese and French troop positions.

Mission Sails To Tokyo

Meanwhile, a large French economic mission and a Japanese financial mission to Indo-China sailed today for Tokyo in another step in negotiations for a commercial accord between Japan and this French colony.

Seven French officials and four native representatives made up the French mission.

The Japanese mission was understood to have made no material advance while in Hanoi because Japan is seeking Indo-China raw materials, but is unable to supply the products Indo-China needs, especially metallurgic and chemical goods.

LAVAL'S TRIP REPORTED PUT OFF BY PETAIN

Marshal Said To Fear Pledges Vice-Premier Might Give Berlin

Plans First State Visit To Paris Within Few Weeks, Bern Hears

[By the Associated Press]

Bern, Switzerland, Dec. 1—The expected visit of Vice-Premier Pierre Laval of France to Berlin was reported tonight to have been postponed by the personal orders of France's Chief of State, Marshal Henri Philippe Petain.

A diplomatic report said the Marshal was reluctant to have Laval go to Berlin for the present because of fear that the Vice-Premier might return with promises given on plans which Petain himself could not approve.

Plans Paris "Inspection Trip"

On the other hand, Marshal Petain himself was reported planning his first state visit to Paris on an official "inspection trip" within the next few weeks.

Diplomatic reports from Vichy said the Marshal was anxious to see whether it would be possible for the Vichy Government to go to Paris or whether, as he is reported to fear, the German grip on the capital is too strong to permit his Government even the partial freedom it enjoys in Vichy.

Laval, it was said, has been ordered to prepare for the marshal's trip during his talks with German and French authorities in Paris and then return to Vichy instead of continuing to Berlin.

Bomb Explodes Near Norway's Nazi Leader, But He Is Not Hurt

STOCKHOLM, Dec. 1 (AP).—A bomb exploded near Maj. Vidkun Quisling, the Norwegian Nazi leader, but did not injure him, during a recent visit to Frederikstad, in southern Norway, the newspaper "Dagens Nyheters" reported from Oslo today. Quisling is the leader of the sole political party permitted since the German occupation. Whether any one was injured was not stated.

Fighting between political opponents in the Norwegian town of Soarsborg in which four persons were arrested and several injured, also was reported.

100 Arrested In India For Civil Disobedience

Four Former Prime Ministers Of Provinces Accused Of Parts In Gandhi's Campaign

Bombay, Dec. 1 (AP)—The first fortnight of extended "individual" civil disobedience under the guidance of Mohandas K. Gandhi has brought the arrest of about one hundred persons under Defense of India regulations.

These include four former Prime Ministers of Indian provinces, eleven former Ministers, five speakers or presidents of provincial legislatures, seven members of the Congress (Nationalist party) Working Committee, several members of the All-India Congress Committee and members of legislatures throughout India.

Thousands Are Stranded by Limited Shipping Facilities

LISBON, Dec. 1 (AP).—Lisbon, almost Europe's last gateway to the new world, still is crowded with refugees more than a half year after the German advance started an exodus from the Low Countries and France.

Shipping circles said liners plying between Portugal and the United States were all too few to accommodate the thousands seeking passage and said that prospects for the future held little promise of improvement.

Further possibilities for refugees, many of whom have been stranded here for weeks or even months, are clippers and freighters. The weather keeps Pan American's westbound flying lists curtailed and the freighters operating have only limited passenger space.

Thirty-seven French, German and Czech children ranging in age from three to fifteen years, many of them orphaned by war, reached Lisbon yesterday on their way to the United States to live with American families.

Richthofen Flyers' Chief Lost in Raid on Britain

Maj. Wick Downed 56th Foe on Last Flight With Squadron

BERLIN, Dec. 1 (AP).—Maj. Helmuth Wick, commander of the Richthofen Squadron, failed to return from a flight last Thursday over British territory, it was announced tonight. Comrades said Maj. Wick shot down his fifty-sixth opponent during his last flight.

Only twenty-five years old, he was one of Germany's air heroes of this war. On Oct. 9, after he had been credited with shooting down forty planes, he was decorated by Fuehrer Adolf Hitler personally with oak leaves added to the Iron Cross.

Says in World Broadcast "Hour Will Come When England Will Fall"

BERLIN, Dec. 1 (AP).—Dr. Paul Joseph Goebels, the Nazi Minister of Propaganda, speaking today in a world radio broadcast, declared that Germany had no doubt of Great Britain's ultimate defeat.

"The hour will come when the last of our enemies, England, will fall," he said. "Till then, fight and work; steel your spiritual and intellectual powers."

Goebels, speaking in Norway last week, reminded those impatient at the delay in defeating Britain that an empire like Britain's did not collapse overnight.

Ban on Port of Boston For British Ships Ends

Dockers Cut Size of Gangs to Get Trade Back

BOSTON, Dec. 1 (AP).—"The Post" says the British Ministry of Shipping has lifted a ban on the use of the Port of Boston by ships under its control, since longshoremen have agreed to reduce loading expenses by using seventeen-man instead of twenty-one-man gangs. The paper says the ministry had diverted vessels to other ports south of New York because it felt loading costs here were excessive.

The longshoremen agreed to use smaller crews, it adds, after the Boston Port Authority pointed out to them that an increase in shipping resulting from the return of the British ships here would benefit all dock workers.

Man Who Bought British Yacht To Get Home Crosses in 60 Days

MIAMI, Fla., Dec. 1 (AP).—"The Herald" said in a special dispatch from Nassau today that Henry B. Clarke, of Roslyn, L. I., and a crew of six were without food for the last three days of a stormy sixty-day crossing from England in a racing yacht.

The story quoted Mr. Clarke, identified as the owner of English aircraft factories, as saying the schooner was machine-gunned by German planes before sailing. Mr. Clarke said the worst experience of the voyage, however, was crossing the German submarine patrol stretching from Brest, France, to Ireland.

Mr. Clarke, "The Herald" said, arranged to sail the yacht when he was unable to reserve passage to the United States before February. The schooner arrived on Oct. 27 at the Madeira Islands, where Mr. Clarke cabled his wife. She did not know his whereabouts afterward until he telephoned her from Nassua.

Lashed by gale winds and a surging sea, the schooner sailed on to the Bahamas, with its larder empty at the trip's end.

Bought Yacht of Beatty's Son

Henry B. Clarke is a director of Clarke Aircraft Products, Ltd., aeronautical engineers of Derby, England. Unable to book passage on the Pan American Clipper from Lisbon, he purchased the 160-ton racing yacht Noroit from Earl Beatty, son of Britain's naval hero of the World War, and sailed from Dartmouth, England, for the United States on Sept. 26.

The Noroit was powered by an eighty-horsepower Diesel auxiliary engine. As a precaution against possible torpedoing Mr. Clarke painted an American flag and the letters "U. S. A." on both sides of the hull.

sailed from Tampico, Mexico on Friday with another German merchantman, the Idarwald, had radioed urgent calls to a station at the Mexican port for some time and then had become silent about 12:45 a. m.

The operator said he also picked up a remark from an unidentified station saying: "Rhein being followed by warships." Whether that comment was on the basis of authentic information or, merely an interpretation or guess by another station, the Tropical operator was unable to say.

The Rhein, Tropical said, had asked all stations to relay its calls to Merida, Venezuela, and interspersed German talk among the calls. The Tropical operator said he did not understand German.

Instead of following the usual procedure of broadcasting three calls and then waiting fifteen minutes for an answer, Tropical said the Rhein operator had repeated urgently: "Have a message."

Tropical Radio said similar calls were heard when these craft, with two others, made a dash for the sea two weeks ago and one, the Phrygia, was scuttled when unidentified warships, which later turned out to be American destroyers, were sighted At that time the 6,031-ton Rhein dashed back into port.

Ordinarily, in wartime, vessels of belligerent powers remain silent while at sea.

Captain Protests Seizure of Germans; Trinidad Detains Another Vessel

RIO DE JANEIRO, Dec. 1 (AP).—A British auxiliary cruiser was reported tonight to have halted the Brazilian coastal passenger ship Itape eighteen miles off Brazil early today and to have removed twenty-two passengers, whom the British said were Germans.

It was reported the captain of the Itape had protested to the British captain, declaring his vessel was well within the American neutrality zone and was making a coastal run.

The passengers removed with their baggage were understood to have embarked at Porto Alegre, Santos and Rio de Janeiro for Bahia and Belem (Para).

The 4,970-ton ship left Rio de Janeiro yesterday and was reported halted off Cape St. Thomas. It was understood to have arrived in Victoria today.

British and Brazilian officials and officers of the ship's company said they knew nothing of the reported incident.

Brazilian Craft Held at Trinidad

CARACAS, Venezuela, Dec. 1 (AP).—The newspaper "Universal" said today the Brazilian ship Buarque, 5,152 tons, was being detained at the British island of Trinidad by customs and contraband control officials in order to unload sixty packages of Brazilian merchandise consigned to such Venezuelan firms as Blohm & Co., Gustavo Zingg & Co. and Adolfo Melchert & Co.

The paper said none of these firms was on the list of those with whom the British forbid trade.

BULLETIN

New York, Dec. 1 (AP)—Mackay Radio tonight intercepted reports indicating that two British ships were being torpedoed by submarines almost simultaneously about 600 miles west of the north coast of Ireland.

A report from the Valencia radio station said a British ship giving the call letters GKIF was being attacked by a submarine at 55.03 north and 18.40 west at 11.53 P. M.

At 10.15 P. M. the Portishead radio station said the British steamship Lady Glanely, 5,497 tons, had been torpedoed at 55 north and 20 west.

Mackay Radio said that they could not identify the ship by the call letters GKIF and surmised that it was a new ship, probably on her maiden voyage.

one point of which the only bombs reported today were dropped.

These did little damage, but a few persons were injured. Reports show that two enemy aircraft have been shot down during the day.

Further particulars are now available of the enemy's attack on Southampton last night which was carried out by a considerable force of enemy aircraft. As on several recent raids on other cities, the center of the town was deliberately attacked and much damage was done there to shops and house property.

From reports so far received it still appears probable that casualties will not be unduly heavy.

In the city all the services concellent co-operation between them proved adequate to deal with very heavy calls and in particular all fires are under control and alternative accommodation and food have been forthcoming for those whose homes have been destroyed.

An earlier communique of the Ministries of Air and Home Security:

Enemy air activity (last night) was mainly directed on and near the south coast.

In an attack on one town a number of fires, some of which were serious, were caused by incendiary bombs and considerable ramage was done to ships, houses and other buildings. Full reports are not yet available but it is feared a number of people have been killed and others injured.

Bombs dropped at three points in the course of small raids. These slightly injured a few people and did very little damage.

An Air Ministry communique:

Owing to weather conditions our bomber operations last night were canceled.

Last Friday a coastal command aircraft successfully torpedoed an enemy supply ship off the Duoch coast.

It is now known that two more enemy aircraft were shot down in engagements near our coasts yesterday. (Making a total of five.)

A German auxiliary cruiser overseas reports a total of 79,000 tons of enemy merchant shipping so far sunk. This amount does not include successes as a result of the cruiser's mine-laying activity.

On the night of Nov. 29-30, the German air force undtook a new large scale [illegible] on London. Wave after wave flew over the city and dropped bombs of the heaviest caliber, among others, on Paddington, Kensington and Battersea.

Great blazes lighted the city and pointed out the way for attacking planes.

Other war important objectives such as Liverpool, Birmingham and Plymouth were attacked with success.

During the day of Nov. 30 activity of German planes was restricted to armed reconnaissance. Scouts determined that fires, especially in oil tank regions, still were ablaze at Plymouth. During these flights London again was bombed.

During one of the repeated enemy attempts to disturb German sea supply lines, English speedboats attacked a German steamer off the mouth of the Scheldt. An accompanying outpost (patrol) boat engaged the enemy craft and damaged two speedboats so severely that their loss must be reckoned with. A third was heavily damaged. Still floating, the German steamer could be towed back to port.

During the night of Nov. 30-Dec. 1 the German air force undertook a large scale attack on a vital harbor on the Channel coast. The British air force did not put in an appearance this night. During air fights yesterday six enemy planes were shot down. Four of our own planes are missing.

ADVANCE BASES EMPHASIZED BY ADMIRAL STARK

Report Calls For Them Wherever Need Exists In U. S. Possessions

Present Fleet Is Strong But Not Strong Enough, He Declares

[By the Associated Press]

Washington, Dec. 1—Admiral Harold R. Stark, chief of naval operations, called today for advance naval bases in "our own overseas possessions wherever they may be needed, be it in Puerto Rico, Hawaii or Guam," to permit operations in the areas where national interests are liable to attack.

In his annual report covering the fiscal year 1940, Admiral Stark also said that "the experiment of disarmament" from 1921 to 1935 "cost us dearly in relative naval strength—but the greatest loss is time."

"Dollars cannot buy yesterday," his report continued. "Our present fleet is strong, but it is not strong enough. The navy should always be in a position to uphold national policies and interests, and to guard the United States and its continental and overseas possessions."

Warning On Future

"Hazards brought about by changes in the international situation may arise rapidly. Years are required to build a strong navy. We must, in the future, be on guard against peacetime reduction of our naval strength below safe levels. We must be prepared to rely only on ourselves.

"We are faced with the demonstrated fact that force is now the only safe insurance of national survival. Unpreparedness has suddenly cost the independence of thirteen nations abroad.

"The manifest threat against the future security of this hemisphere has aroused the people of the United States. Practical efforts are being made to augment the present strength of our armed forces so as to meet any eventuality."

Air Corps Hears Of New Devices To Balk Raids

Data Brought From Britain Fails to Mention Strange Blue Ray Seen at London

WASHINGTON, Dec. 1 (AP).—High-ranking Army Air Corps officers who recently returned from London brought back data on a number of new British and German weapons, it was learned today, to guide this country in perfecting its defenses against air attack.

Maj. Gen. Barton K. Yount, commander of the newly created Southeast Air District, and Brig. Gen. James E. Chaney, head of the Air Defense Command, described the results of their special mission in recent talks to groups of officers at the War Department, but most of the information was carefully withheld from the public.

Officers who heard them said, however, that the discussions contained no explanation of the mysterious bluish light ray reported by London observers in recent days and mentioned as a possible weapon being used by the British against German night bombers.

The ray, described as narrower than the ordinary searchlight beam, is seen at elevations of 10,000 and 20,000 feet. Unlike the familiar beam from ground searchlights which stab upward, the strange new light was horizontal in the sky. In some quarters, it was suggested the horizontal beam was designed to help pilots of night fighter planes detect the whereabouts of German bombers by illuminating them as they crossed the path of the beam.

British censors have passed stories concerning Blenheim bomber planes which the Royal Air Force has converted into fighters equipped with "an ear" for the interception of night raiders.

Because sound travels relatively slowly, the report aroused conjecture here as to whether the British were experimenting with a device for planes similar to that on which the United States Army is working as a substitute for the old-type sound detectors. Details of this American device are carefully guarded.

"Protection against night bombing is one of Britain's major problems," one army spokesman said, "and undoubtedly many weapons will be tried."

About the only German innovation which the American observers reported was a parachute bomb. It was described as a particularly powerful explosive which detonates about ten seconds after reaching the ground and which is capable of leveling a whole block. Some sources suggested it was lowered by parachute to prevent it from burying itself in the earth and thus decreasing its demolition potential.

The observations made by Gens. Yount and Chaney of the technique and tactics of modern aerial warfare are expected to influence this country's defense plans.

As commander of the Southeast Air District, with headquarters at Tampa, Fla., Gen. Yount will have charge of fighter squadrons charged with responsibility for repelling any air attack from the Caribbean area. Gen. Chaney, head of the Air Defense Command, has control of anti-aircraft units, squadrons of pursuit planes and the air-raid warning service. His headquarters are at Mitchel Field, L. I.

Report New Victory Threatening To Cut Off Italians In South

Success On Coast Follows Surrender Of 5,000 Fascists In North

[By the Associated Press]

Athens, Tuesday, Dec. 3.—Collapse of Italy's central defense line in Albania with the mass surrender of 5,000 Fascist troops was combined with new strategic gains in the south near the coast to precipitate another disorganized Italian retreat on a one hundred-mile front, a Greek Government spokesman said early today.

Greek mountain troops hurled Italian defenders back to new heights near Delvino, about twenty-five miles northeast of the seaport of Santi Quaranta (Porto Edda).

This southern success threatened further to cut off Italian troops in that seaport area, the Greeks said.

Road Under Greek Fire

The Greek high command in its latest communique today said the road from Santi Quaranta to the main southern Italian base at Argirocastro already was under Greek fire.

Besides the 5,000 reported in military dispatches from the central front, the Government spokesman said another 150 prisoners were captured by Greeks advancing in the Aoos river region near Premet.

Additional Italian equipment also was taken.

The Greek spokesman made this summary of the latest military action:

"In the course of today, the Italians continued to retreat.

Retreat On Left Wing

"The most important retreat was on our left wing, where the enemy retreated to the heights around Delvino and has passed in depth Santi Quaranta.

"More to the north in the River Aoos region our troops are fighting with the same courage as that which enabled them to capture Pogradetz, and have captured a summit 2,145 meters high (about 7,000 feet) on Politzani Mountain. There the Italians were strongly established and hoped to remain.

"In the region of Premet the enemy retreated to villages and heights to the northeast and left 150 prisoners in the hands of our troops.

"In the Pogradetz region the enemy tried to cover his retreat by defending himself in the northeastern heights, but we hope to dislodge the enemy from these heights also. During these operations our troops captured ten guns, fifty machine guns, trench mortars and all sorts of war material which will be useful to us."

Italians Have Enough

The Italian commander on the central front sent word over that he had had enough, the Greeks reported, adding that their troops, fearing a trap, warily encircled the Fascists.

Then began the roundup and the march of 5,000 to the rear to join more than 8,000 Italians the Greeks previously have reported captured in the thirty-six-day-old war.

"The victory, without exaggeration, is of exceptional importance," the account from the front said, "for the enemy line in this sector has been destroyed and all danger eliminated for us.

"The psychological effect of the surrender was such that it broke enemy resistance in the area and led to a hasty, precipitous retreat. One after another the Italian columns abandoned their positions, leaving behind all sorts of equipment in large quantities.

"Seventeen captured Italian officers disclosed that elite Italian legions, which had taken part in the Spanish civil war, had taken part in the defense of this area and were retreating in disorder."

Front Swings Like Door

Prior to the reported break in the center of the line the Greeks pictured the battle front as swinging like a barn door toward the Adriatic from a hinge on the Adriatic coast of Albania, just north of the Greek frontier, to Lake Ochrida, on the Yugoslav border.

In the north, the Italians were said to be retreating through the snow-carpeted mountains toward Elbasani, about twenty miles southeast of Tirana, Albanian capital.

On the lower segment of the now broken line, the Italians were reported putting up their stiffest resistance around Argirocastro, which, with Greek-captured Koritza, provided the major bases for the Italian invasion of Greece.

Greek Troops Reported On Way To Elbasani

Ochrida, on the Albanian-Yugoslavian Frontier, Dec. 2 (AP) — Two columns of the northern Greek army were reported tonight to have fought their way into strategic valleys leading to Elbasani, the next Albanian objective of the Greek commanders.

One column was said to have smashed its way into the upper Skumbi river valley, which leads to Elbasani, while the second, operating to the south, pushed through the Devol river valley northwest of Moskopolis.

There was a furious artillery engagement as the Greeks sought to dislodge the Italians from the village of Mamuliste, the Fascists' last foothold on the western shore of Lake Ochrida near the Yugoslavian frontier.

The village is north of Pogradetz and about forty-five miles from Elbasani by the only highway in the entire area.

In most sectors the Italians were reported continuing a slow retreat amid snow which in some places was more than four feet.

Small shipping was wrecked by severe storms in the Adriatic and the transport of Italian reinforcements and supplies from Italy to Albania was reported severely hampered

Heavy Losses Inflicted On Greeks, Rome Says

Rome, Dec. 2—Counter-attacking Italians inflicted heavy losses on the Greeks after standing off violent, artillery-protected Greek charges on the Albanian battlefront, the high command reported today.

The Greeks were declared to have thrown an entire army corps against the Fascist Ninth Army, but the high command said they wound up in their original positions after the Fascists themselves lashed out with a fierce counter-thrust.

Two Battalions Praised

The high command said two battalions of the Puseteria and Ferrara divisions especially distinguished themselves. These divisions are a part of the Eleventh Army, organized three weeks ago and rushed to the front.

Greek cavalry detachments surprised by Fascist Alpine scouts were declared "annihilated."

British planes bombed several islands in Italy's strongly-fortified Dodecanese Islands, but the high command said they did no damage.

In Africa, the British bombed Kassala and Metemma, in the Sudan; Burao, Somaliland, and Assab, Eritrea, killing five persons and wounding twenty-three, the communique reported.

Center of Line Then Breaks And General Retreat Follows

Re-enforcements Rushed Up to Stem Advance Also Are Hurled Back and Athens Claims Gains All Along Front.

ATHENS, Dec. 2 (A. P.).—Capture of 5,000 Italians, the largest mass of prisoners yet taken by the Greek Army, was announced today from the northern front.

Their surrender, dispatches said, was the signal for a general retreat of other Italian forces in the area, leaving a huge gap in the Fascist center.

Fresh Italian troops rushed to bolster sagging defense lines earlier had been reported being smashed back with the regiments they came to re-enforce, and the Greeks claimed important new advances all along the Albanian battle front.

Mention of the exact place where the front was reported smashed was forbidden by military authorities. They permitted mention merely that it was in the north.

One frontline report said "the victory, without exaggeration, is of exceptional importance, for the enemy line in this sector has been destroyed and all danger eliminated for us."

The capture of the Italians, this report said, came after the Fascist commander sent a message to the Greek line that he was ready to surrender.

Italians in Hasty Retreat.

The Greeks, fearing a trap, cautiously surrounded the Italians with heavy detachments, this account went on.

"The psychological effect of the surrender was such that it broke enemy resistance in the area and led to a hasty, precipitous retreat," it said.

"One after another of the Italian column abandoned their positions, leaving behind all sorts of equipment in large quantities.

"Seventeen captured Italian officers disclosed that elite Italian legions which had fought in Spain's civil war had taken part in defense of this area and were retreating in disorder."

Before this report was received, advices from the front described the fighting line at the start of the sixth week of war as swinging like a barn door toward the Adriatic coast, from a coastal area just north of the Greek frontier, to Lake Ochrida, on the Yugoslav frontier.

With this break, the arching battlefront appeared to have been cut into two segments, with the heaviest fighting still raging in the south around Argyrokastron, the last remaining Fascist invasion base in southern Albania.

In the central sector the Greek High Command announced the capture of points of special importance for the development of operations around Premet, eighteen miles north of the Greek frontier.

Near Lake Ochrida the Italians were said to be retreating through ice and snow toward Elbasson, forty miles northwest of fallen Pogradetz on the road to the Albanian capital Tirana.

Claims Important Advances.

The High Command said last night that the Greeks made "important advances on the entire front" and took 150 more prisoners.

A spokesman added that the Italian retreat was general from Lake Ochrida to the sea, and that Greek bayonet charges had won new fortified heights.

"The booty we have captured (around Pogradetz) is very important and exceeds figures given in the official communique," he said. "More to the south, the fresh, select Italian troops which had been rushed to re-enforce the enemy have contributed nothing. On the contrary, they suffered the effect of the contagions."

Answers Italian Radio.

The Greek newspaper Progref answered what it said was an Italian radio assertion that Greek bayonet fighting was "a barbarous form of warfare" by commenting:

"Bayonet fighting certainly is less barbarous than using Italian bombing planes against non-combatants. . . . It is not our fault if the enemy lacks the courage of soul against these bayonet charges."

Battlefront dispatches yesterday laid delay in the High Command's announcement of the fall of Pogradetz last week to a policy of completely mopping up around captured positions—to forestall counter-attacks—before reporting their fall.

The Greeks were said to have driven most of the Italians from Pogradetz by last Tuesday and to have taken the town after a fierce assault Thursday, although the fall of the town was not claimed until Saturday when Italian forces had been pushed out of the area near by.

R. A. F. Bombs Road.

A communique from the Royal Air Force operating in Greece said Italian aerial operations had been restricted because of unfavorable flying conditions but British planes bombed a road used to bring up Italian re-enforcements in southwestern Albania.

An "important bridge" was reported damaged in low flying attacks through heavy anti-aircraft fire. The communique also reported British bombers damaged "military buildings" in the Telepini area.

Heavy Snow Hampers Italians.

SALONIKA, Dec. 2 (A. P.).—Heavy snows in the Albanian Mountains today were reported causing severe hardship to the harassed Italian forces (fifteen words censored).

Hardy Macedonian peasant troops were little bothered by the intense cold and snow, but the Italians were said to be suffering in much the same manner as the Russians in the Finnish war. Only a small percentage of the Italian forces—the Alpinists—are used to mountain fighting, according to Greek dispatches (six words censored).

Greek officials returning from Pogradetz, fallen Italian stronghold thirty miles inside Albania, said that Greek soldiers charging a machine-gun nest on a snowy mountain peak found the Italian crew huddled in a dugout while they operated the gun above their heads with a string attached to the trigger.

There was little news from the front other than that the Greeks were pushing ahead as fast as possible under difficult conditions (fifty-five words censored).

Reports Greeks Beaten Back.

ROME, Dec. 2 (A. P.).—Violent attacks by an entire Greek Army Corps, preceded by artillery fire, were beaten back by Fascist troops holding defense lines in Albania, the Italian High Command reported today.

Its communique said that during the fighting an Italian colonel was killed leading his regiment into battle.

British planes were said to have bombed several islands in the Italian Dodecanese group in the eastern Mediterranean. No damage was reported.

The communique said the Greek losses were particularly heavy "on the right flank of the (Italian) Ninth Army where the (Greek) attack, preceded by intense artillery preparation, was carried out by a complete army corps."

It added that "on the front of the (Italian) Eleventh Army two battalions of the Puseteria and Ferra divisions especially distinguished themselves. Leading the Forty-seventh Infantry Regiment, Col Trizo perished gloriously."

R.A.F. Trio Safe In Athens After Being Given Up

Bomb Crew Forced Down on Island Saved by Greek With American Accent

ATHENS, Dec. 2 (AP).—Three members of a British bomber struck by Italian anti-aircraft shells during a low-dive attack two days ago on an Albanian port returned to their officers' mess here tonight and wearily read the official poster about them: "Missing, feared dead."

Here is their story as told by the squadron leader who piloted the bomber:

"We got a direct hit just as we released our bombs. One fragment ripped a large hole in the port engine cowling, but the motor continued to go. The other quit on us.

"I could still fly her and none of us was injured, even though a notebook in the air gunner's pocket was torn in half by shrapnel and the explosion threw the plane on its back.

"I thought we'd pass out from gas fumes before I spotted a small island. The island only had a landing strip on beach which looked about twenty yards wide.

"I gave the mates a chance to jump but they preferred to stand by me. Well, I got her down all right in a belly landing. But that was just the beginning of more trouble.

"A peasant near by on seeing us ran away screaming. Then a man appeared with a rifle and looked tough. We raised our hands and yelled 'English! English!'

"This fellow looked very, very surprised and, with a definite American accent, yelled 'Are you guys English?'

"By this time, several hundred locals had arrived and they looked very dangerous, but our American friend talked fast and kept them back."

The pilot said an automobile was then borrowed by the three Royal Air Force men, told how they were bombed by Italian planes and lost the car, finally found a fishing boat and crossed to the Greek mainland—twenty hours on a rough sea.

"But the reception we got on landing was worth it," the pilot grinned.

"Those in the small town showered us with flowers, brought out bottles of local wine and finally the Mayor led me to the balcony of the Town Hall for a speech. Since it was in English I know they didn't understand it, but every time I said 'Mussolini' and made signs I brought the house down."

Britain On Greece

[By the Associated Press]

London, Dec. 2 — British military circles expressed the opinion today that the Greek advance against Italian forces in Albania henceforth must be slower.

They gave these reasons:

1. The Greeks are operating in a very difficult country which is new to them.

2. Their lines of communication are longer and they have not had time to organize them.

3. The Italians have brought in fresh troops and are making a determinined effort to hold their pursuers.

Reviewing the first month of the fighting, these sources said, the war which started as an invasion of Greece had become a counter-attack in Albania with no Italians remaining in Greece.

At the same time an official informant asserted that the retreat of the Italians had never become a rout.

He said the Italian soldiers had found themselves let down by bad and inefficient plans of their leaders, but "fought as well as they have been allowed to fight."

Military sources called the capture of Koritza the key to Allied success in the north and expressed belief that it ended the land threat to Salonika, except from an Axis thrust through Yugoslavia or Bulgaria.

They declined to say how many British troops were sent to Greece, but indicated the number was not large.

PREDICT BRITISH DRIVE IN GREECE

Observers in Egypt Expect Attack on Axis.

ITALY SEEN IN NEED OF HELP

London Believed Ready to Dispatch Troops to Halt Any Nazi Aid.

CAIRO, Dec. 2 (A. P.).—Increased British operations in the Grecian war sector were predicted today by observers in Egypt who expressed the belief that Great Britain's armies would carry the fight to the Axis in southeastern Europe.

These observers said they believed Adolf Hitler would have to come to Premier Mussolini's aid within the next week or two if Italian reinforcements pouring into Albania failed to turn the tide of battle with the Greeks and regain the prestige the Italians lost when their attempted invasion of Greece backfired.

While whatever plans the British may have for moving more forces into Greece are kept secret, it was regarded as certain that any move by the Axis would bring a counter move by the British and that certain advance moves in anticipation of Axis action also were likely.

Would Fight on Mainland.

Opinion here seemed to be that—even in case Germany joins the Italian battle with Greece—the British believed it would be better to meet German troops on the mainland than to permit them to break through to Mediterranean bases.

The feeling in the British middle east was that, since the Axis has not brought the fight to dislodge the British from the Suez Canal, the British must carry the fight to the Axis.

When the Italians first struck at Greece there was considerable caution on the part of the British lest the Axis might be trying to ensnare British Near East forces while preparing a major drive elsewhere. Too, even many Greek officers expressed doubts that the Greeks could hold the mainland long.

No Sign of Quick Collapse.

Since then developments have dissipated both these views. Little likelihood is seen of a quick collapse in Greece, which would leave British forces stranded there and the Italians in the western Egyptian desert have shown no signs of being ready to try a main offensive against the British lines.

Gen. Georges Catroux, who has assumed leadership of the "free French" forces in the Near East has declared that Italian reverses in the Greek campaign produced a deep effect among French troops in Africa and Syria.

He expressed the belief that any German or Italian attempt to occupy the regions these troops were holding would meet with their resistance.

NAZI BOMBERS BLAST BRISTOL AGAIN.

Industries And Harbor Facilities Subjected To Overnight Attack

Port In Southwest Hit, But Most Of England Has Respite From Bombs

[By the Associated Press]

Berlin, Tuesday, Dec. 3—Industries and harbor facilities at Bristol were subjected t another "destructive attack" by German bombers overnight, informed German sources reported early today.

Since early last night, they said, strong forces of German aircraft had been en route to "conclude the work of destruction" of Bristol within a short period, the same as with Coventry and Southampton.

[By the Associated Press]

London, Tuesday, Dec. 3—German bombers concentrated overnight on a town in the west of England, which has been repeatedly raided in recent nights, but most the rest of Britain enjoyed comparative quiet.

A southwest town underwent its seventh successive attack, and raiders also were over Liverpool, East Anglia, Wales and the south coast area.

Bombs hurled by a single plane on an east Anglian town caused a number of casualties and entombments in a workers' district. For the second time in a week London had no pre-midnight alarm.

The southwest town (which might be Southampton, Bristol or Plymouth, since all have been raided heavily of late) reported that strong anti-aircraft fire drove the raiders back out to sea before they reached the town.

Flares, Fire Bombs, Explosives

But in the western city apparently chosen for the night's assault, the Germans followed their usual procedure of hurling flares, then fire bombs, and then high explosives. Damage was reported from several districts.

Just before this new assault got under wav the Air and Home Security ministries issued the first official estimate of the human loss in the heavy Nazi raids on Southampton Saturday and Sunday nights, saying:

". . . Casualties were not large taking into account the scale of operations. For the two raids . . . there are known to be about 370, which include both killed and seriously wounded."

Mission Of Frightfulness

That port city of 175,000 population was struck Sunday night by about 200 planes in what the British Press Association called a "mission of frightfulness." Thousands were left without homes; whole areas were left in ruins. Feeding and redistributing the homeless victims was declared a major problem.

From a community underground shelter hit squarely by a heavy bomb bodies still were being brought forth late in the day.

Not alone the town in the southwest but Liverpool and areas in the south coast and South Wales as well were reported under attack tonight. Bombed, too, was an East Anglian town.

Day Of Relative Peace

The day had been one of relative peace. Along an old, accustomed aerial battle front over the coast of Kent British pilots fought off German squadrons in a defense officially declared so successful that from dawn to dusk not a single heavy raid was reported in all of Britain.

So far as was known, said the Air Ministry, not a bomb fell upon the islands during that daylight period, and two German raiders were reported sent to destruction in fights over the Channel without loss to the British.

British Claim Successful Raids At Wilhelmshaven

London, Dec. 2 (AP)—Successful overnight British raids upon the German navy's shipbuilding yards at the Wilhelmshaven naval base and on other separated objectives in Nazi territory were announced today by the Air Ministry.

A great fire was declared left at Wilhelmshaven well within the shipyards, where the Ministry said a large number of submarines were under construction.

Hit, too, it was announced, were the submarine base and naval docks at Lorient, France; the power station, jetty and drydocks at Brest, France; barracks and other buildings at a Nazi military camp in Kristiansand, Norway; the gas works in Asbjerg, Denmark, where "flames covered the whole area."

Nazi Bombers Continue To Hammer Southampton

Berlin, Dec. 2 (AP)—German bombers pounded today at Southampton, important British south coast port, with the same strength as in fierce attacks of Saturday and last night, said DNB, quoting information furnished by the Nazi high command.

Heavy blows continued with "still burning fires systematically enlarged," the German news agency said, and explosions in the warehouse area were visible in northern France.

It declared that the weakness of the British defense permitted excellent aiming.

Other Cities Attacked

At the time of the overnight attacks on Southampton, the agency said, other Nazi formations were smashing also at London, Liverpool and Birmingham. Aerial mine-laying continued, it declared.

A new series of fires were started at London and supply facilities were hit, the agency said.

German bombers returned to the assault on Southampton, manufacturing-shipping center, which possesses one of England's finest harbors, on the heels of reports of flying scouts that they had seen tongues of flames frequently leaping through smoke clouds over the harbor.

Docks Damaged

Informed sources asserted that docks, rail lines and industrial areas were badly damaged.

They reported eleven British planes downed and two Germans missing.

Military sources said the war in the air was developing strictly according to plan.

They expressed belief raids such as those that wrought severe damage at Coventry, Birmingham and Bristol could be carried on indefinitely and held that Germany was taking little punishment in return.

R. A. F. Raid Belittled

The few British planes which visited Germany last night, they said, did no military damage.

In the diplomatic sphere, authorized sources said Germany would adhere to the Vienna settlement of Rumania-Hungarian difficulties in which Hungary received part of Transylvania from Rumania, and that German recognition of the Japanese-approved Nanking Government in China might not come for some time.

Germany also issued an official denial that the R. A. F. had successfully bombed Wilhelmshaven Sunday night. Not a single British plane appeared over Wilhelmshaven, therefore not a single British bomb was dropped on the naval yards, factory buildings or the city itself, the Germans asserted.

...nal underground shelter was ... hit by one heavy bomb. Res... parties were still extricating the bodies of victims today.

Thousands Homeless

Thousands were homeless as a result of the raid, wherein a procession of German bombers flew over the town and "continued their mission of frightfulness until early morning," the British Press Association said. It declared the "damage was considerable" and "areas of the town are in ruins."

The business section was the main target, as on Saturday night, but the suburbs also were attacked and many homes were demolished.

Some Streets Impassable

Emergency measures were taken to minimize the dislocation of normal services, and food and temporary accommodation were provided for the homeless.

Hundreds of workers arrived at their offices and stores today to find them in ruins.

Hundreds of steel-helmeted soldiers wrestled with a big demolition job in the center of the city, and some streets were impassable.

prime targets of Nazi night raiders.]

Nazi planes also were over a south coast town, where they ran into a heavy anti-aircraft barrage, and over towns in East Anglia and southern Wales.

Axis aircraft were reported in the vicinity of Liverpool this afternoon.

The British Press Association reported that at least two German raiders were shot down today in air battles above the channel. The battle raged over the channel and along the southeast coast after British fighters intercepted squadrons of Messerschmitt 109's.

One raider was shot almost to pieces by Spitfires, with wreckage splattering into the sea a few miles off Folkestone, on the southeast coast.

London had two alerts during the night, the first all clear coming fairly early and the second soon after midnight. The alert periods were marked by heavy anti-aircraft barrages.

Claims Made by Berlin.

BERLIN, Dec. 2 (A. P.).—While bombs of all sizes were being dumped on Southampton overnight, DNB, the official German news agency, said today that other Nazi air formations were smashing at London, Liverpool and Birmingham.

In London, the agency said, supply facilities were hit and a new series of fires was observed.

Aerial mine-laying also continued, it declared.

Southampton, south coast manufacturing-shipping center and one of England's finest harbors, was for the second successive night the major objective.

In a report to emphasize that a staggering blow had been struck there, DNB said that Nazi scouting planes in clear weather over the southern harbor today had observed a constant bellowing of smoke clouds with tongues of flame often leaping through. The type of smoke, it said, indicated heavy damage to oil reservoirs.

Squadrons of planes hammered harbor facilities, drydocks and industrial plants in the port and also interrupted rail service between Southampton and London, the official German news agency said.

Informed quarters reported that docks, rail lines and industrial areas were badly damaged in the attack and German pilots observed vast yellow smoke clouds over the city.

They reported eleven British planes downed and two Germans missing.

Fires Visible 70 Miles.

Returning Nazi flyers said raging fires in Southampton—some said there were as many as seventy—could be seen in Cherbourg, seventy miles away, after the Saturday night attack.

Germans said raids such as the devastating attacks aimed at Coventry, Birmingham and Bristol could be carried on indefinitely without extending the Luftwaffe to the utmost and also asserted that Germany herself was taking little punishment in return.

German military commentators studying reports of successive intense air bombardments of English cities radiated confidence and said the war in the air was developing strictly according to plan.

They commented on a High Command reference to weakening British defenses, asserting that German bombers were able to fly low over Southampton in the Saturday night raid, and speculated whether this meant weariness of British flyers or a husbanding of strength for some future action.

R. A. F. PILOTS BOMB WIDESPREAD AREAS

Attack Objectives in France, Norway and Denmark.

LONDON, Dec. 2 (A. P.).—British bombers attacked objectives in Lorient and Brest, in France, and also in German-occupied Norway and Denmark yesterday and last night, the Air Ministry announced today.

The submarine base and naval docks at Lorient and the power station, jetty and drydocks at Brest were reported attacked, as well as a military camp at Kristiansand, Norway, where bombs were said to have fallen "among the barracks buildings and warehouses on the quayside."

"Another aircraft of the coastal command made a successful attack on the gas works at Asbjerg, in Denmark," a communique said. "An explosion followed the bombing and flames covered the whole area."

British bombers also raided the German Navy's shipbuilding yards at Wilhelmshaven last night, the Air Ministry announced.

Germany's shipyards, especially those in which submarines are believed to be under construction, have been the targets for several British raids recently.

The Air Ministry News Service said a large number of submarines were under construction at the Marinewerft yard, a Wilhelmshaven plant which it describes as having six drydocks.

Although visibility was not good, the R. A. F. flyers were said to have observed "a large fire . . . well within the limits of the shipbuilding yards where a shower of incendiaries fell."

The service said the pilots reported also seeing five bursts on factory buildings between Kanal Hafen and Tirpitz Haven "when high explosive bombs went down."

BERLIN, Dec. 2 (A. P.).—The German High Command reported several British planes roared across the North Sea into Germany at dawn today and bombed residential quarters in a city in the coastal region, wounding several civilians.

ROME, Dec. 2 (A. P.).—The Italian High Command said today that British flyers had bombed Kassala and Metemma in the Sudan; Burao, Somaliland, and Assab, Eritrea. The bombings were reported to have killed five persons and wounded twenty-three.

U-BOATS TORPEDO EIGHT BRITISH SHIPS

Convoy Of Merchant Craft Is Attacked Only 500 Miles Off Ireland

Two Others Are Bombed From Air—One Sunk, Fate Of Others Unknown

[By the Associated Press]

New York, Dec. 2—Underseas raiders struck at a convoy of merchant vessels about 500 miles west of Ireland today, torpedoing at least eight ships, while two others—one of them only twenty-five miles from Ireland—were bombed from the air.

Distress signals were heard here by Mackay Radio over a fourteen-hour period until silence veiled the convoy's fate. At least one ship was sunk, as indicated by the presence of survivors aboard another torpedoed vessel.

During that time, planes bombed the 276-ton British trawler Kilgerran Castle, twenty-five miles southwest of Insalehead, Ireland, and the 56-year-old Yugoslavian freighter Cetvrti, 1,937 tons, 150 miles to the south.

Tenth Vessel Signals

Then at 3.37 P. M., a distress signal from another vessel, the tenth of the day, was heard by Mackay. The 4,360-ton British freighter W. Hendrik said she had been torpedoed at latitude 55 north, longitude 15.40 west.

This would place her 200 miles east of the earlier attack on the convoy, whether or not the W. Hendrik was a ship caught fleeing the danger area could not be ascertained.

First S S S At Midnight

It was midnight in the new "graveyard of the North Atlantic" when Mackay heard the first SSS, indicating a submarine attack, flashed by an unidentified vessel.

Later calls indicated this was but the first blow on a convoy. Those ships identified all trade with the Caribbean or pass through the Panama Canal to the West United States Coast and Far Eastern ports.

Just before dawn, a second ship, the new 5,497-ton British freighter Lady Clanely, messaged she had been torpedoed about thirty miles northeast of the first call.

Next Call Two Hours Later

The powerful Valencia (Ireland) radio station relayed the next word of the attack, almost two hours later, that the British ship, call letters GKIF, was "being attacked by submarine" at 55.03 north 18.40 west. Mackay Radio could not identify the ship, but said she probably was one newly constructed or recently taken over by the British.

An hour later, from almost the same position on the edge of the declared German blockade around the British Isles, the Goodleigh, sister ship of the Lady Clanely, radioed she had been torpedoed.

A second submarine then evidently joined the attack seventy miles to the north as the convoy scattered to avoid destruction.

Probably Same Ship

Mackay heard an indistinct call from a torpedoed ship first believed to be the Victoria. A later message from the Valencia station, which Mackay said could hear the call more distinctly and obtain the correct name and position, said that the Victor Ross had been torpedoed.

Mackay operators said this was probably the same ship. The Victor Ross, 12,247-ton British molasses tanker, trades between England and the Caribbean and Port Everglades, Florida.

Within twenty-five minutes another unidentified ship said she had been torpedoed and required immediate assistance. Her position indicated the submarine which struck the first blow was still attacking.

The final call, at 8 A. M., came from the Loch Ranza, 4,958-ton British freighter, torpedoed and "sinking in 54.37 north 18.54 west, and has shipwrecked crew of another vessel aboard."

British Destroyer Lost Aground Off Scotland

London, Dec. 2 (AP).—The British destroyer Sturdy was lost when she ran aground off the Scottish coast in bad weather, it was announced officially tonight.

The announcement said five men were lost. The Sturdy was a 905-ton vessel and carried a normal complement of ninety-eight men.

Built in the World War emergency program, she mounted three four-inch guns, two pairs of 21-inch torpedo tubes and five smaller guns. Most of that class has been sold or scrapped and the others fitted for mine-laying.

Crew Of Greek Ship Saved

St. Johns, Newfoundland, Dec. 2 (AP). The entire crew of the Greek steamer Eugenia Cabanis, which called for help from a position off the Newfoundland coast last week, was landed here today by a rescue ship.

Canadians Going East?

[By the Associated Press]

London, Dec. 2—Canadian forces may soon be thrown into Britain's increasingly important campaign in the Near East, military observers predicted today.

The Dominion troops are rated among the hardest striking in the Allied armies and these observers expressed the belief they would be concentrated in the Mediterranean sector in an effort to knock out Italy.

A final decision on disposition of the Canadians is expected at the conclusion of the current visit to the United Kingdom by Canadian Defense Minister J. L. Ralston and Maj. Gen. H D. G. Crerar, chief of the Canadian general staff.

High Canadian officers were understood for a time to have opposed moving the Canadian troops to the Mediterranean from the British home front, on the grounds the war would be won or lost when Germany attempted an invasion of England or when Britain aimed an offensive at the heart of Germany.

These views now have been altered, it was reported reliably, by the recent change in the Mediterranean picture through Greek successes against Italy and Britain's reported crippling of Mussolini's seapower.

Second Southampton Pounding Rivals First

[By the Associated Press]

London, Dec. 2—Southampton, Britain's vital south coast port, again was singled out by German air raiders last night as the "main objective" of their attacks on England.

A Government communique, affirming a German report that Southampton, once the main port of call for transatlantic liners, was the principal target for the second successive night, said "a number of fires were caused, but they were all under control by daybreak."

Earlier, censors had refused to permit identification of the city except as a "south coast town." The British said casualties were expected to be lighter than on Saturday night, when the port got its worst raking of the war.

One Shelter Directly Hit

Reports reaching London this morning said, however, that last night's raid was almost as bad as Saturday's. It lasted several hours.

Some 200 planes took part, coming over singly and in small waves.

Casualties had not been calculated.

British Put Toll at 370.

LONDON, Dec. 2 (A. P.).—Southampton's casualties in two nights of heavy German air raids numbered 370, including dead and seriously injured, the Government declared tonight.

"During recent air attacks on Southampton, casualties were not large taking into account the scale of operations," a communique said.

"For the two raids, Saturday and Sunday, there are known to be about 370, which includes both killed and seriously injured."

Raiders were reported again tonight over a southwest town recently attacked several times and there was fear that another intensive attack might be developing as bombs began falling in various parts of the area.

Queen Mother Visits Bristol

London, Dec. 2 (AP)—Queen Mother Mary and her daughter, Princess Mary, accompanied by the Duke of Beaufort, visited the southwest port of Bristol Sunday to inspect damage caused by the recent German air raid, it was announced tonight.

Fresh Fruit Imports Are Barred by Britain

LONDON, Dec. 2 (A. P.).—Imports of all fresh fruit except oranges were barred for Great Britain today in order to conserve shipping space for the war effort.

Lord Woolton, the Food Minister, announced the ban in a speech at Manchester, in which he also forecast a shortening of bacon rations. The fruit restrictions will not affect canned fruit.

"Hitler's Only Hope"

It said the "dominating fact of this war" was that "Hitler's only hope of victory resides in his power to hold America out of the ring when he gets us in a corner and pummels us to pieces with his existing superior resources of metal."

"Hitler knows that," the Evening Standard said, adding that instead of giving up when President Roosevelt was reelected, "he set to work to turn the President's proud promises to naught by striking at our supply lines on the Atlantic by submarine, raider and long-range bomber.

"He still hopes—it is his only hope—to smash our cities and factories to rubble before Britain's blockade squeezes the juice from his war economy, before America has mustered her immense industrial strength for action."

Hitler's Outpost

Hitler's "empire" has outposts "even in the American hemisphere," the Standard said, and a "few ships . . . still deal with America and sail into American ports, hoping, perhaps, to pick up a cargo destined for Germany in the end, and, worse still, carrying in their holds gold or materials with which to buy dollars."

The newspaper said Britons "lost one battle for Europe" and, with "invaluable" aid from the Greeks, were "holding our own in the battles for Asia and Africa, but victory will depend on one other battle—the battle for America."

U. S. Aid Sought In 'Battle For America'

[By the Associated Press]

London, Dec. 2—The Evening Standard, published by Lord Beaverbrook, Minister of Aircraft Production, urged "the people of the United States" today to consider giving Britain credits and "further help" in the Atlantic.

The paper asked the recruiting of unused resources of the automobile industry for aircraft manufacture and for "specific measures of assistance in the operation of our blockade." Victory it said, depends on the "battle for America."

Weygand's Course

[By the Associated Press]

London, Dec. 2—The French fleet which the British Navy battered into temporary eclipse at Oran July 4 may now hold the key to Mediterranean Problem No. 1—whether Gen. Maxime Weygand may one day swing French North Africa back to the Allied cause.

He is chief of French military and political affairs in Africa.

"Weygand might revolt," explained a spokesman at headquarters of Gen. Charles de Gaulle's Free French forces here, "but French warships could bombard Algiers, Oran, Tunis and Moroccan ports, forcing him to submission. So the real power lies with Admiral Darlan (Jean Darlan, French Navy Minister). We need to be sure the French fleet would not act for Vichy."

Pro-British Sentiment

Reports reaching London tell of growing pro-British sentiment in those parts of the French empire which have not capitulated to the Free French forces and close attention is being paid to Weygand's tours of Algeria and Morocco, where he has been addressing officers, reviewing troops and receiving Arab chieftains in audience.

"Made A Mistake"

General Weygand is regarded by some observers here as a man who made a mistake at the time of the French armistice with Germany and now does not know quite how to climb around it.

They believe it is possible that the general, who was commander in chief of the French armies when they fell to Germany, is waiting for the Vichy Government to commit itself to some further scheme for "collaboration" with the Axis powers before he openly repudiates it. In this, these observers point out, Vice-Premier Pierre Laval, who has been conducting "collaboration" negotiations with Berlin, may unconsciously be playing Weygand's game.

Problem For London

General Weygand's adherence to the "Free French" cause, however, would create a delicate problem in London. As a much older man with a name which still carries immense prestige in France, he presumably would expect to lead the movement, causing de Gaulle, who was little known in France before the war, to take a subordinate post in the campaign which he himself created after the armistice.

In fact, de Gaulle has no high opinion of the veteran Weygand's capabilities.

"There is nothing to hope for from men who signed an armistice," he told an interviewer recently. "These men are impotent to rebel against Hitler."

Allies Outnumbered

Gen. Sir Archibald P. Wavell, British commander in the middle east, faced a hazardous situation through the defection of French colonial armies in June when France dropped out of the war.

Instead of having an Allied army outnumbering the Italians, he suddenly found himself outnumbered by them. Although reinforcements were rushed from Britain, Australia, New Zealand and India, he had to allow the Italians to advance in the western desert across the Egyptian frontier.

But Weygand would bring to General Wavell a well-equipped, partly mechanized army of upwards of 500,000 men, composed of native troops, the French Foreign Legion, and others.

Pincer Movement

That army could press down from the heights of Tunis eastward into Italian Libya.

Marshal Rudolfo Graziani's Italian army could thus be squeezed in a British-French pincer, say military commentators.

General Le Gentilhomme, former Governor of French Somaliland, now with General De Gaulle in London, says he is convinced that the last has not been heard from that colony.

Supply Obstacle

The biggest problem of bringing North Africa into the war with Britain would be that of supplies. There are no heavy war industries in North Africa, and available stocks of munitions may have been depleted following the visits of various armistice commissions.

Economic collaboration between Britain and the free French colonies and the Belgian Congo might go far to remedy supply difficulties, it is judged here.

The fact that the Axis is fully aware of the danger of some change in North Africa's position is evidenced by reports of activity by German agents in Morocco and Italians in Tunis.

Nazi Agents Active

Free French headquarters here have received reports of incidents between agents posing as traders and French officers in Casa Blanca and other towns.

"The Germans try to start trouble among the Arabs by stirring up anti-Jewish demonstrations," said a spokesman. "Native soldiers joined one of the demonstrations and it became anti-French after the military had interferred."

But the French believe they have the native population fully under control and do not doubt the loyalty of the Sultan of Morocco and other native chiefs.

Syria Sympathetic

Gen. Georges Catroux, expert on Syria who formerly was Governor General of French Indo-China and now is de Gaulle's delegate general in the Middle East, said in Cairo last week he estimated about eighty per cent. of Frechmen in Syria sympathize with the British cause.

Most French army reservists in Syria sailed for home under the demobilization scheme, and those who remain are professional soldiers, not citizen soldiers. They will do what their officers tell them, and many of those officers would like to join de Gaulle, a free French spokesman said.

If Syria openly joined the "Free French," the Allies would possess a solid block of friendly countries — Syria, Palestine, Trans-Jordan, the Arab states, Egypt and Iraq—to back up Turkey in resisting any attempted Axis thrust toward the oil fields of Iraq or Iran. All these countries are considered by London as mainly pro-British, or at least anti-German and anti-Italian.

"Somehow I think Hitler may find himself fighting on another front next spring," a "Free French" spokesman said, smilingly.

BOMBER FLIES TO CANADA

$200,000 Consolidated Ship Earmarked For R. A. F.

New York, Dec. 2 (AP)—A Consolidated bomber, flown here from the West Coast, took off today for Halifax, Nova Scotia. En route to the "Royal Air Force, British Air Ministry, London."

Whether the $200,000 plane, which carried an American crew of five, would be flown from Canada to England, could not be learned. The plane arrived Saturday at Port Washington, Long Island.

British Army Casualties

[By the Associated Press]

London, Dec. 2—The War Office issued today its one hundredth casualty list of the war, bringing to 55,363 the total of officially listed British army losses.

In the one hundred lists these casualties have been given, by name:

Prisoners	32,219
Killed in action	4,749
Wounded	15,225
Missing	1,502
Died	1,668

Apparently, the names of all prisoners have not been obtained. Anthony Eden, War Secretary, announced recently that 44,000 British soldiers had been taken prisoner.

Today's list included 960 prisoners, 38 killed, 39 wounded, 45 died.

Nazis Rush Troops to Rumania

Four More Divisions Numbering 60,000 Men Sent to Put Down Anarchy There.

ON THE HUNGARIAN-RUMANIAN FRONTIER, Dec. 2 (A. P.).—Four fresh German divisions were moving through Hungary en route to Rumania today as reports trickling across the border told of increasing anarchy throughout that country.

Unconfirmed reports from Bucharest said these additional German troops would attempt to restore order there and in other large Rumanian cities where Iron Guard extremists have taken bloody revenge on officials of the ousted regime of former King Carol II.

The German divisions, moving by rail through Slovakia and thence through Hungary, will bolster many Nazi detachments already guarding Rumania's oil fields and pipelines.

[Four divisions mean approximately 60,000 men. German strength in Rumania previously has been estimated as high as 500,000.]

Guard Split Three Ways.

Over the frontier came a picture of Rumania's embattled Iron Guard split now into three factions and the Rumanian Army apparently wavering over what course to take.

One section of the green-shirted Guardsmen was said to be supporting the guard leader, Vice-Premier Horia Sima, who has besought discipline.

A second was reported behind Ion Codreanu, father of Corneliu Zelea Codreanu, slain founder of the guard, whose death during the Carol regime it has been avenging with a blood purge.

A third section, and by far the biggest, was reported to be out of control.

This last section was reported to be looting and satisfying personal vengeances under the protection of hastily donned green shirts.

200,000 in Green Shirts.

Wearers of the green shirt, who numbered 6,000 two months ago, number more than 200,000, with a greater part of the sudden increase made by indiscriminate recruiting and self-appointment of members, including most of the underworld of Bucharest and other large cities and inmates of hastily emptied prisons.

Confusion as to who was following whom, with the army unable to decide whom to support or how to distinguish between green shirts, made it probable, reports said, that the German armed forces would take an even stronger stand.

Indeed, a parade in Bucharest of a German motorized division was interpreted in Hungary as a warning that German legions are prepared to restore order in strife-ridden Rumania, unless the Rumanians do it themselves.

King Michael in Parade.

BUCHAREST, Dec. 2 (A. P.).—A German motorized division paraded through the streets of Bucharest today with King Michael bringing up the rear.

More than fifty German warplanes flew over a reviewing stand occupied by German generals surrounding Premier Gen. Ion Antonescu and the Iron Guard chieftain Horia Sima.

Crowds which stood silent as the Nazis passed cheered lustily when Michael was driven by in an automobile.

[Michael was reported last week to have fled Bucharest as a result of Iron Guard disorders there.]

Pledge by Iron Guard.

The Iron Guard has pledged itself to fight for the return of Hungarian-occupied Transylvania to Rumania.

Gen. Antonescu, speaking at the mountain town of Alba Julia in commemoration of the twenty-second anniversary of Rumania's acquisition of Transylvania, assured 100,000 cheering members of the Iron Guard last night that Germany and Italy had displayed "understanding" for Rumania's desire.

Hungary, with Rumania a recent signatory of the German-Italian-Japanese military and economic pact, received about half the province of Transylvania on August 30 in an Axis-dictated settlement. Rumania had gained it from Hungary at the close of the world war in the dissolution of the Austro-Hungarian Empire.

"I went to Berlin and Rome for the Transylvanians," the Premier cried. "I pointed out all their sufferings and ours at this time. I found understanding."

Signed for Rumania.

Gen. Antonescu returned only recently from his visit to the Axis capitals. In Berlin he affixed Rumania's signature to the tri-Power pact.

Adolf Hitler, Gen. Antonescu said, gave him a message for the Rumanian army: "On your shoulders rests the duty to repair and correct any injustice Rumania suffered."

Official Hungarian quarters in Bucharest looked with scorn on Gen. Antonescu's references to Transylvania, declaring that "what is being said in Rumania is of no importance and of no interest to us; our only concern is that order be maintained there and that our nationals be properly treated."

Gen. Antonescu, in an apparent reference to last week's disorders, urged Guardists to "work in harmony with all Rumanians" for internal peace and to maintain perfect order.

Nazi Standpoint Unchanged.

BERLIN, Dec. 2 (A. P.).—Germany will adhere to the Vienna settlement of Rumanian-Hungarian difficulties, in which Hungary received part of Transylvania from Rumania, no matter what counter currents develop, authorized Germans declared today.

Commenting on speeches by Rumanian leaders not in accord with the award reached last August 8, these spokesmen said:

"Our standpoint remains unchanged and unchangeable, and contrary opinions will go unheeded so far as we are concerned."

People Stand Silent Until King Mihai's Auto Passes

[By the Associated Press]

Budapest, Hungary, Dec. 2—Ion Alexianu, who served as royal governor of the Bucharest district of Rumania in the regime of the deposed King Carol, was reported officially tonight to have "committed suicide."

The Iron Guard, which has been carrying out bloody reprisals for the killing in Carol's regime of the founder of their organization, Corneliu Zelea Codreanu, had blamed Alexianu as chiefly responsible.

DEC 3—1940

[By the Associated Press]

Maros Vasarhely (Targul Mures), Hungary, at the Rumanian Border, Dec. 2—Troop trains bearing four fresh German divisions to Rumania sped through Hungary today under circumstances suggesting that Germany was preparing to halt the disorders sweeping parts of that country unless the Rumanians themselves acted effectively.

These Nazi fighting men—numbering perhaps 60,000—entered Hungary by way of Slovakia. They will supplement heavy German forces already quartered in Rumania and guarding the Rumanian pipelines and oil fields which are so vital to the German war machine.

These forces have been estimated as high as 500,000.

Panzer Unit Parades

A German motorized division paraded today through Bucharest streets, with young King Mihai of Rumania following along behind.

Over the stand from which Premier Ion Antonescu, Iron Guard Chieftain Horia Sima and German generals reviewed the parade there swept more than fifty German warplanes in show maneuvers.

The people of the city stood silent before the German companies, but cheered loudly when the King's automobile passed.

To this frontier watching post came reports that the Iron Guard—whose bloody revenge upon the old school politicians of the deposed King Carol's regime had precipitated the country's current crisis—was itself now split into three factions.

Supporting Sima

One faction was understood to be supporting Horia Sima, who has called for discipline. Another was said to be following Ion Codreanu, father of the slain founder of the Guard for whose death in Carol's regime so much avenging blood-letting already has occurred.

The third faction, and vastly the largest, was reported simply out of control, looting and paying off personal scores under the present protection of the green shirt.

The Rumanian army itself was pictured as indecisive.

Guardists Increasing

The green-shirted Guardists, meanwhile, aggregated more than 200,000, where two months ago they were 6,000, and this increase was attributed in part at least to indiscriminate recruiting and self-appointment of members—including most of the underworld of Bucharest and other large cities.

One of the demands now being pressed by the Iron Guard is the return of northern Transylvania, which only last August 30 was given to Hungary under an Axis-dictated settlement.

In a speech last night Premier Antonescu told 100,000 Guardists that Germany and Italy had shown "understandings" of this Rumanian desire.

Carol's Friends Fear Iron Guard Plots Death

LISBON, Dec. 2.—Lisbon friends of former King Carol of Rumania said today that they were now more than ever anxious for him to leave Spain for Portugal, because the Iron Guard, in purging its political enemies, may also have designs against his life.

Carol's friends said that they communicate daily with him by telephone.

The latest letter he received from King Michael was dated September 30.

"It was only an affectionate letter from son to father and did not deal with political questions," friends said. "Whatever happens, we hope King Michael remains in Rumania for the sake of the dynasty and the monarchy."

YUGOSLAV DISORDERS

Bomb Exploded Near Homes of Party Leaders.

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia, Dec. 2 (A. P.).—Yugoslavia's celebration of her day of union—twenty-second anniversary of the proclamation uniting the Serbs, Croats and Slovenes—was marred yesterday by bombs set off at many points apparently by Croat extremists who demand separation of Croatia from the remainder of the kingdom.

Noisy but undestructive bombs exploded in front of the homes of Premier Dr. Vladimir Macek, leader of the Croat Peasant party, and Juraj Krnjevici, party secretary, both moderates, in Zagreb. Other bombs burst at Peasant party headquarters and Union Day church services were interrupted by bombs in some churches.

Hungary Gets Report of Secret Conference.

BUDAPEST, Dec. 2 (A. P.).—Authoritative diplomatic informants here said today that a secret week end conference between Adolf Hitler and Yugoslav Foreign Minister Aleksander Cincar-Markovic in Berlin had prepared the way for Yugoslavia to join the tripartite treaty.

The meeting was said to have ironed out details for Yugoslavia to follow Hungary, Rumania and Slovakia, who already have been added to the German-Italian-Japanese ten-year military and economic accord.

BERLIN, Dec. 2 (A. P.).—A report that Adolf Hitler and Yugoslav Foreign Minister Aleksander Cincar Cincar-Markovic had met here secretly over the week end was described by a Foreign Office spokesman today as "absolutely new to me. I have heard nothing about it."

The usually reliably informed news service, Dienst Aus Deutschland, however, stated October 29 that there was a possibility of a visit to Germany by a Yugoslav statesman.

SPAIN AND BRITAIN SIGN FISCAL PACT

Agreement Designed To "Unfreeze" Spanish Funds Blocked In London

Deal Regarded As Significant In Light Of Franco's Uncertain Position

[By the Associated Press]

Madrid, Dec. 2—Great Britain and neutral Spain signed an agreement today designed to "unfreeze" Spanish funds blocked in London and finance increased purchases of British products by Generalissimo Francisco Franco's Government.

The accord was signed in a noon ceremony by Ramon Serrano Suner and Sir Samuel Hoare, British ambassador, following conclusion of negotiations here among British and Spanish financial authorities.

Special System Set Up

An official announcement said the agreement established a "special account system" covering payments between the two countries, except those falling within the scope of the British-Spanish clearing accord reached March 18.

Under the March agreement Britain agreed to loan Spain £2,000,000 ($8,000,000) to be spent on goods, including raw materials, originating in nations linked with the pound sterling.

At that time the two countries also signed a separate agreement including "special provisions regarding war trade" whereby Spain would prohibit the re-export of certain goods.

Pact Held Significant

Today's agreement was considered especially significant in view of Spain's uncertain position in warring Europe. Although Spain was declared to have cast her lot "spiritually" with the Rome-Berlin Axis after Serrano Suner's recent visit to Rome and Berlin and Franco's October 23 meeting with Adolf Hitler, she still has not formally aligned herself with the Axis.

At the time of Serrano Suner's visit to the Axis capitals reports were current that Adolf Hitler was seeking Spanish authorization for the movement of troops through Spain for an attack on Gibraltar, Britain's guardian sentinel at the gateway to the Mediterranean.

Pushing Own Negotiations

Since then Britain has been pushing her own diplomatic negotiations with Spain, with Sir Samuel Hoare taking an active part.

Early this month a Spanish air mission flew to London on the British Government's invitation to "watch England under German attacks."

In mid-November informed diplomatic quarters in Washington reported Spain had requested a $100,000,000 loan from the United States to feed and rehabilitate a hungry and impoverished Spain. Some Administration officials were understood to have looked with disfavor on the request, particularly in view of attacks by the Government-controlled Spanish press on the United States.

BRITAIN CURBS TRADE FURTHER

Survey in Argentina Shows Increased Restrictions.

EXPERTS WATCH SHIPMENTS

England Moves to Keep Neutrals From Supplying Axis.

BUENOS AIRES, Dec. 2 (A. P.).—A survey of Argentine commercial and agricultural sources indicated today that Great Britain quietly is tightening her restrictions on ocean trade in an effort to keep vital supplies from reaching her Axis foes through nations not in the war.

It was said in well informed quarters that British economic experts were watching closely the shipments of cotton, meats, fats and hides, and were checking on purchases in Argentina for Spain, Soviet Russia, Sweden, Finland and also conquered France.

These sources held that the British already had killed a plan to sell 100,000 tons of Argentine cotton to Spain by declaring that navicerts for such a shipment would not be available.

The navicerts are certificates of British advance approval of cargo in ships heading through the British naval blockade.

Three months ago navicerts were granted for shipments of 50,000 tons of cotton to Spain and persons close to the cotton trade said they understood Great Britain approved the first shipments as normal Spanish imports but turned thumbs down on the later 100,000 tons as beyond Spain's present needs.

Halts Meat for France.

Negotiations were started recently to purchase Argentine meats and fats for shipment to France, but again indication that the British would not approve, regardless of what boats were used, was said to have spoiled the deal.

Heavy Russian purchases of hides and fats also have attracted the attention of the British. So far there have been no actual restrictions placed in the form of refusing navicerts, but exporters concerned with such shipments to Russia have been given hints that "it would be unwise for you fellows to invest too much money in that business."

Swedish and Finnish buyers have been especially active in Argentine markets recently and the British were reported to be watching these transactions carefully.

Swiss Store Purchases.

Several Swiss firms, anxious to import from Argentina, are continuing to make purchases of essential products, storing them in this country in the hope the war will end soon.

One famous Swiss manufacturer of soups already has a full year's supply of meat extract in storage in Argentina.

Meanwhile, Argentine packing firms which found the French Government owing them more than 20,000,000 francs at the time of France's collapse as the uncollected 10 per cent on meat shipments which was payable when the meat arrived at French ports have asked the Argentine Government to help them collect. They suggested that the Government help negotiate an arrangement to collect the debt from French funds frozen in the United States. They said the French Government had acknowledged the debt.

Brazilian Ships Stopped.

From other parts of South America there were reports last night of British ships stopping Brazilian vessels.

At Rio de Janeiro a British auxiliary cruiser was reported to have halted the Brazilian coastal passenger ship Itape 18 miles off Brazil and removed twenty-two passengers whom the British said were Germans.

At Caracas, Venezuela, the newspaper Universal said the Brazilian ship Buarque had been detained at the British island of Trinidad where customs officials were said to have ordered sixty packages unloaded. The packages were reported consigned to such Venezuelan firms as Blohm & Co., Gustavo Zingg & Co., and Adolfo Melchert & Co.

NEW ITALIAN PLANE

Inventor Corrects Report on Speed Craft.

MILAN, Dec. 2 (A. P.).—New high-altitude planes which the Fascist press says will revolutionize air fighting are being turned out by airplane factories throughout Italy, Secondo Campini, the inventor, said today.

In an interview in the newspaper Corriere Della Sera, he corrected a report published yesterday by Il Popolo di Roma, which described his work as a motorless, propellerless craft shot through the air by gas.

The plane takes off with an ordinary motor and an ordinary propeller, he said, but in flight its power is increased four times by a new gas chamber developing its power from air heated and compressed by the regular motors.

The explanation seemed to indicate the new invention takes hold at heights and speeds at which the propeller loses its pulling power due to thin air.

Campini has been working on the invention for ten years. Premier Mussolini ordered the nation's airplane manufacturers to back him to the limit.

Giovanni Caproni, world-famed manufacturer of planes, was quoted as saying the new plane confirmed Italian air supremacy.

Spaghetti Is Placed On Italy's Ration List

ROME, Dec. 2 (A. P.).—Spaghetti, flour and rice were added to Italy's list of rationed food products, effective today.

Consumers will be permitted to buy a total of two kilograms (about four and a half pounds) of these products monthly.

Restaurants were forbidden to serve spaghetti or rice Tuesdays and Saturdays. Other days these dishes may be served only at one meal.

VERSAILLES PICKED

May Be Headquarters for Petain Government.

VICHY, Dec. 2 (A. P.).—A Government announcement today indicated that the headquarters of Marshal Philippe Petain, Chief of State, will be moved to Versailles, near Paris.

This communique was issued after a Cabinet meeting:

"The Council of Ministers dealt with various material questions relating to the forthcoming establishment of the Chief of State at Versailles."

Versailles is in the German-occupied portion of France.

The communique was the first official announcement that any such move was contemplated. It was not stated whether any other parts of the Government would be transferred to the occupied zone.

Spain Checks Diplomatic Rolls

MADRID, Dec. 2 (AP).—The government tonight ordered all heads of Spanish diplomatic missions abroad to report immediately on personnel, with the idea, the press said, of eventually filling all jobs with Falangists (Spanish Fascists) and veterans of the Nationalist Army. The order applies to all employees, including typists and servants, and particularly asks for reasons why any foreigners should be retained.

Winter's Worst Day Hits Spain's Early-Rising Plan

By The Associated Press.

MADRID, Dec. 2—Spaniards, under early-to-bed-early-to-rise orders of the government arose at unaccustomed hours today to discover that they had to cope with the coldest weather of the Winter.

Required to be at work anywhere from 6:30 to 9:30 A. M., an average of an hour and a half earlier than usual, they found the temperature below freezing and a chill wind blowing.

The new regulations, intended to change the old Spanish custom of leisurely business activity and late hours, coincided with the plato unico or "single plate" day, restaurants being required on Mondays to serve only one course. Households are supposed to observe the same rule.

The restaurants, which usually do not serve luncheon until about 2:30 P. M., were doing a rush business long before that time, and the dinner hour was in full swing by 9:30 P. M.

Theatres were required to close at midnight instead of 1 A. M., and cafes at 1 A. M. instead of 3 A. M.

GERMAN ACE KILLED

Wick—Richthofen Leader, Shot Down by British.

BERLIN, Dec. 2 (A. P.).—Bursts from the guns of a British plane ended the career of Major Helmuth Wick, twenty-five-year-old German air ace, just at the moment he bagged his fifty-sixth opponent, informed persons said today.

They reported that a comrade said that he saw Wick bail out and descend to the water off the Isle of Wight and, although returning flyers mobilized the German rescue service, rescue attempts proved unsuccessful.

Wick's group was said to have been engaged in a fierce dogfight with a superior number of British Hurricanes at the time.

Wick, promoted to command of the famous Richtofen Squadron October 25, was decorated by Adolf Hitler on October 9 with Oak Leaves added to the Knight's Cross of the Iron Cross.

GERMAN LINER APPEARS READY FOR SEA DASH

Passenger - Cargo Ship Lacks Papers For Clearance At Tampico

Orinoco Recently Turned Back Upon Developing Engine Trouble

[By the Associated Press]

Tampico, Mexico, Dec. 2—The 9,660-ton German passenger-cargo ship Orinoco, which developed engine trouble last month when she and three other Nazi vessels attempted to leave this harbor, appeared ready tonight to sail, but lacked clearance papers.

Papers cannot be obtained before tomorrow and if the vessel left without papers she would be guilty of a violation of Mexican maritime law.

The Orinoco, Rhein, Idarwald and Phrygia made an unsuccessful dash for the sea November 15.

Experienced Engine Trouble

The Orinoco's engine trouble forced her back before she reached open water. The Rhein and Idarwald scurried back after sighting warships and the Phrygia was scuttled.

The Rhein and Idarwald again left port in a second sally last week. Whether they successfully reached the ocean or another port has not been reported.

Permitted To Leave Callao

Callao, Peru, Dec. 2 (AP)—The 4,844-ton German steamer Hermonthis, in refuge in this port since August 30, 1939, has been granted permission to leave for Hamburg, but still had not departed tonight.

Shipping circles pointed out that the British naval transport Prince Robert called at Callao a week ago and said it was likely that she still was in the neighborhood of the Peruvian coast.

Brazil Studies Seizure Of Germans By British

Rio de Janeiro, Dec. 2 (AP)—Brazilian authorities tonight studied the third recent case of British action against Brazilian shipping—the removal yesterday of twenty-two passengers from the steamer Itape which was halted by a British auxiliary cruiser eighteen miles off the coast.

The Itape's captain messaged that officers from the unidentified British warship dismantled the Brazilian vessel's radio, rendering it useless for two hours. The twenty-two passengers whom the British said were Germans were removed after having embarked for Bahia and Belem.

The Brazilian captain said he had written a protest that the British action occurred within the American security zone. The British captain, he said, had signed it as evidence that he had witnessed the protest, but declared he recognized only the three-mile neutrality zone.

Another German Ship Quits Refuge Harbor

COQUIMBO, Chile, Dec. 2 (A. P.).—The German merchant ship Portland, which has been in the harbor here since the outbreak of the European war, sailed last night for an unannounced destination.

Sailing of the 7,132-ton vessel, a Hamburg-American Line ship built in 1928, followed closely the departure of two German vessels from Tampico, Mexico, on Friday in an apparent attempt to run the British naval blockade.

Brazil Bars German Air Link

RIO DE JANEIRO, Dec. 2 (AP).—The Brazilian government notified Condor, German-sponsored Brazilian air transport company, today that "the time is not opportune" for a trans-Atlantic service it sought permission to open.

Italian Sailors Seized For Tearing British Flag

SAN JOSE, Costa Rica, Dec. 2 (A. P.).—Costa Rican police intervened today to quell a disturbance reported to have arisen when sailors from the Italian freighter Fella hauled down and tore a British flag standing in front of a building where a dance had been held for a British fund.

Sailors responsible for the incident were arrested and an indignant crowd was dispersed. The Fella is anchored in Punta Arenas.

Argentina to Train 5000 Pilots.

BUENOS AIRES, Dec. 2 (A. P.).—Argentina began a nation-wide campaign today to raise funds for training 5,000 civil pilots intended to build up an aviation reserve corps. At the same time 2,660 local commissions began issuing bonds for a home security fund.

SYDNEY, Dec. 2 (A. P.).—The 1,870-ton destroyer Arunta, first of a tribal class to be built in Australia and the largest naval vessel built here since the seaplane carrier Albatros in 1928, was launched today by Lady Gowrie, wife of the Governor-General.

Two more destroyers of the type will be built, all armed with eight 4.7-inch guns, eight smaller guns and four 21-inch torpedo tubes. The ships cost 1,000,000 Australian pounds ($3,230,000).

Raided Ships Crew Rescued

MELBOURNE, Dec. 2 (AP).—E. W. Pringle, second officer of the British cargo ship Port Brisbane, told today how members of the crew had strung lifeboats together after their ship had been sunk by a German raider, an armed merchantman, in the Indian Ocean the night of Nov. 21, and rowed until 6 p. m. the next day, when they were picked up by an Australian warship. Twenty-seven of the crew of ninety-two were rescued.

Pringle said one of the lifeboats was lowered by the air of a signal lamp, since the noise of the escaping steam and the roar of burning timber made it impossible to hear orders. After their ship had disappeared, he said, the men found two empty lifeboats amid the wreckage, put some men in each, tied them together, and with a few cases of raisins and some mailbags containing food, also found in the floating wreckage, they headed for the island of Mauritius.

The warship which rescued them, they learned, had received distress signals from the Maimoa, believed to be another of the raider's victims.

CANADIANS REDUCE IMPORTS FROM U. S.

Passenger Cars and Sports Goods Are Barred.

OTTAWA, Dec. 2 (A. P.).—Drastic curtailment of luxury imports, mainly from the United States; increased excise taxes on domestic and personal conveniences and lower custom duties on United Kingdom commodities were announced in the Canadian House of Commons today by Finance Minister J. L. Ilsley.

This was another step in the Government's efforts to conserve foreign exchange for war purposes.

Under total ban as from today are imports of passenger automobiles, sports goods, clothing and processed foods from countries, except Newfoundland, which are not part of the British currency system.

Another wide list, including motor vehicles other than passenger automobiles and all petroleum products, hereafter will be imported from non-sterling countries only under license and these licenses gradually will be decreased as other sources of supply are provided.

SHIP IS LOST, CREW SAVED

Personnel of Greek Craft Sunk in Storm Taken to St. John's

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld., Dec. 2 (AP)—The entire crew of the Greek steamer Eugena Cabanis, which called for help from a position off the Newfoundland coast last week, was landed here today by a rescue ship.

They came ashore with only one casualty, Captain Economidis, who suffered back injuries when the deck cargo broke loose at the height of an Atlantic gale.

The captain of the rescue craft, which was unidentified because of war restrictions, said he stood by for hours, hoping it would be possible for a ship sent out from St. John's to get the foundering Greek vessel in tow. This, however, was impossible.

RITES HONOR JERVIS BAY

Memorial Service on Warship Held Near Scene of Exploit

AN EAST COAST CANADIAN PORT, Dec. 2 (AP)—A service in memory of the Jervis Bay and her captain and crew has been held at the approximate spot in the Atlantic where the British armed merchant cruiser made her suicide stand on Nov. 5 to protect a convoy from a German raider.

A naval man said today that on Sunday, Nov. 24, a British war vessel was in the vicinity of the scene of the fight, and nearly 200 men of the crew joined in prayer and hymns.

When the vessel reached the position where the Jervis Bay opened fire, engines were reduced to half speed, the ensign was lowered to half mast and a cross of poppies splashed into the sea. Bugles sounded the Last Post and Reveille and three volleys were fired for the dead of the sunken cruiser.

NEW CLASHES IN INDO-CHINA

French and Thai Forces in Fight Near Thakhek.

NAVAL VESSEL IS ATTACKED

Border Town Is Bombed and Casualties Are Reported.

HANOI, French Indo-China, Dec. 2 (A. P.).—Sharp hostilities on French Indo-China's border with Thailand (Siam) apparently were continuing today, but colonial officials said that they had no details of the fighting, evidently centered around the border town of Thakhek.

[Radio reports received in Vichy, also indicated that fighting between Thailand and Indo-China had taken a serious turn, but officials there, too, said they had no definite information.]

A communique issued today said that the 500-ton Indo-Chinese naval vessel Beryle had been attacked by Thai planes yesterday in the Gulf of Siam, on which both Indo-China and Thailand have coasts.

In a first attack, it said, nine bombs fell harmlessly and in a second attack the Beryle's anti-aircraft guns drove off the bombers, damaging one.

Thai Forces Take Island.

Unprotected Bandong Island, forty miles below Vientiane, was occupied by Thai forces without a fight, the communique added.

All communication with Bangkok, capital of Thailand, remained broken.

French officials reiterate that the situation is grave.

Native uprisings continued also in southern Indo-China. Officials said they were taking strong action to suppress them.

[A Domei news agency wireless report heard in New York said that planes had dropped about ten bombs in a low-altitude raid on Thakhek on Saturday. It quoted Indo-Chinese authorities as saying that two persons had been killed and two injured. Skirmishes and artillery fire also were reported by Domei at several places along the Mekong River.]

Torture in Cage Reported.

A twenty-minute battle between French and Thai warplanes over Thakhek was reported here today as French colonial officers said their forces were ready to retaliate against any major attacks along the frontier.

Results of the air fight, which occurred yesterday, were not disclosed. It followed the reported bombing by Thai planes of Thakhek and Savannakhet, another border town, last Thursday and Saturday. Reports reaching here said that thirteen persons were killed and thirty injured in the bombings.

Reports reaching Hanoi told of continued outbreaks of fighting between patrols along the frontier where Thailand has demanded territorial concessions.

Reports were received that Mgr. Gouin, widely known French bishop, and an Ursuline nun, who reached Thakhek from Thailand, alleged they had been held and tortured for several hours in an iron cage before being permitted by Thai authorities to cross the border into Indo-China.

Japan Report Victory In Central China Drive

Report Offensive Operations "Successfully Concluded"

SHANGHAI, Dec. 2 (AP).—A Japanese military spokesman reported today an offensive "successfully concluded" in Hupen Province, in central China, and declared Chinese forces were scattered with heavy losses.

Denying Chinese reports that Japanese withdrawals from Ichang, Yangtse River port in Hupen, and from Shansi Province farther north, were immiment, the spokesman declared that "no Japanese soldier is leaving central China until Chiang-shek is crushed, even if it takes 100 years."

CLASHES CONTINUE ON THAI'S BORDER

Fighting Said To Be Centered On Frontier Town Of Thakhek.

Siamese Aerial Attack On Indo-Chinese Naval Vessel Reported

[By the Associated Press]

Hanoi, French Indo-China, Dec. 2—Fighting on the border between Thailand (Siam) and French Indo-China persisted without letup tonight.

Thai planes were reported to have twice attacked the 500-ton Indo-Chinese naval vessel Beryle in the Gulf of Siam.

Nine bombs were dropped without damage, a communique said, and the ship's anti-aircraft guns eventually drove off the squadron with damage to one bomber.

Border Town Bombed

Fighting apparently centered on the border town of Thakhek, reported bombed twice by Thai planes.

The Indo-Chinese communique reporting the Beryle attack also said Thai troops took over Bandong Island, in the Mekong river forty miles below Vientiane, in northern Indo-China.

Bangkok, Thai's capital, still is out of communication with Hanoi.

[Associated Press Editor's Note—Domei reported skirmishes and artillery fire at several places along the Mekong river. In a wireless report heard in New York, it also said Thai planes dropped about ten bombs in a raid on Thakhek Saturday.]

Details Of Fight Hid.

Poor communications, censorship and the natural fastnesses of jungle and mountains on the border hid details of the fighting in what the French admitted was a grave situation.

[Associated Press Editor's Note—Radio reports in Vichy, France, indicated the fighting was becoming serious. A French Government spokesman said the colony's troubles with Thai in the last two months have been due to pressure by Nationalist elements on the Premier of Thailand, who was forced to give satisfaction by at least "tokens" of warlike action.

[This official declared Thai planes started the aerial attacks which have been made on both sides of the border. He declared "completely baseless," however, foreign reports that the troubles had reached a veritable state of war.]

LOAN TO CHINA GETS APPROVAL OF COMMITTEES

Senate and House Groups Unanimously Indorse $100,000,000 Aid.

HEAR HULL AND MORGENTHAU

Latter to Close Deal at Once—Senator Adams Is Opposed Transaction.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 2 (A. P.).—Members of the Senate Banking and House Coinage committees gave a unanimous vote of approval today to a transaction by which the United States will advance the Chinese Chungking Government $100,000,000.

Of the total credit, $50,000,000 would come from the Treasury's stabilization fund and a like amount from the Export-Import Bank.

After hearing, Secretary Hull outline a general policy of aid to Chiang Kai-shek's Government and Secretary Morgenthau explain details of the proposed agreement, the group, including twelve Senators and six House members, gave Secretaries Hull and Morgenthau a vote of confidence.

Senator Wagner explained that the congressional group was concerned only with proposed operation of the $2,000,000,000 stabilization fund to support the Chinese currency.

Morgenthau to Close Deal.

Up to $50,000,000 of this fund is expected to be used to give China exchange to purchase war supplies in this country. The $50,000,000 to be advanced through the Export-Import Bank is expected to go for general Chinese Government uses.

Mr. Morgenthau told reporters that "I got what I came after—a vote of confidence—" and would proceed immediately to close the deal with China.

"Now we are going to go downtown and do business as fast as the lawyers will let us," he declared.

Secretary Hull said he considered the Chinese agreement a "vital matter," adding:

"Under the circumstances it is the least we can do for the job that China is doing." He did not amplify this statement.

Secretary Morgenthau explained that he had asked the congressional committeemen to assemble in today's closed session so that he might comply with a promise made more than eighteen months ago not to expand the operation of the stabilization fund without first notifying Congress.

"We have complied with that promise and we have been given a vote of confidence," he said.

Senator Adams in Opposition.

Before the meeting there was one note of congressional sentiment struck against the loan from the stabilization fund.

Senator Adams, Democrat, of Colorado, told reporters that if the proposal were as represented, he would oppose it on the ground that the stabilization fund was not the proper source to supply the money.

Plans for the $100,000,000 "helping hand" to Chungking were announced during the week end, giving pointed new emphases to the administration's policy regarding Japanese activities in China.

Prior to the committee session, Senator Adams said. "I think the stabilization fund operations should be kept within the bounds for which it was created by Congress.

"Most of us thought that this fund was to be used to maintain the parity of the American dollar and I don't think it was ever intended to serve as a reservoir for loans.

"I don't doubt that China needs money, but there must be other Government agencies from which it can obtain funds."

BLOCKADE IN SHANGHAI

U. S. Phone Firm Sends Aid Through to Employees.

SHANGHAI, Dec. 2 (A. P.).—The American-owned Shanghai Telephone Company sent food and clothing through a Japanese blockade of Shanghai's Badlands today to six foreign supervisors, seventy Chinese women operators and a number of linemen held within the area while the Japanese sought a gunman who wounded a Japanese on Saturday.

Americans generally were permitted to enter or leave the blockaded zone afoot but were forced to leave their cars at the barriers inclosing a large area of the city.

The United States consulate arranged for supplies to go to the telephone company employees but failed to gain permission for the staff to leave and re-enter the blockaded area.

Eiping also was blockaded by the Japanese while they sought the assassin of a Japanese lieutenant-colonel.

REFUSE IS THROWN AT U. S. EMBASSY

Tokio Incident Believed to Be Act of Individual.

TOKIO, Dec. 2 (A. P.).—An unidentified Japanese spattered the gate posts of the Untied States embassy with two buckets of refuse this afternoon and then threw the empty buckets into the embassy compound.

William Turner, embassy secretary, saw the man and informed police in a sentry box outside the gates, but the man escaped.

Detectives were assigned to hunt the perpetrator while special police went to the embassy and cleaned the posts.

United States Ambassador Joseph C. Grew indicated he would take up the matter at the Foreign Office, but it was said that as far as could be determined the incident represented the isolated action of an individual.

Meanwhile Yakichiro Suma, spokesman for the Foreign Office, said today that Japan had no reaction to the United States non-recognition of the Nanking regime of China and to the United States extension of $100,000,000 credit to the Nationalist Government of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek, since both had been expected.

He acknowledged that the Japanese might benefit from stabilization of Chinese currency, but added that "psychological factors of the loan are much more important. The effects of non-recognition will be felt mainly in Nanking, where some steps may be taken as a result of the Washington declaration." He declined to elaborate.

INDO-CHINA (WITH BUDGET-NEW)

BY C.YATES MCDANIEL

HANOI, FRENCH INDO-CHINA--(CORRESPONDENCE OF THE ASSOCIATED PRESS) --THE FRENCH ARE DETERMINED TO REMAIN MASTERS OF INDO-CHINA.

THE LENGTHENING SHADOW OF JAPANESE EXPANSION AND THE HOSTILITY OF NEIGHBORING CHINA AND THAILAND (SIAM) DO NOT ALTER THIS. NEITHER DOES INDO-CHINA'S SUBMISSION TO THE REMOTE CONTROL OF VICHY, WHICH HAS STRAINED ITS ONCE FRIENDLY RELATIONS WITH BRITAIN IN THE FAR EAST.

(SMOULDERING ISSUES WITH THAILAND OVER DISPUTED TERRITORY AND CHARGES AND COUNTER-CHARGES OF BORDER VIOLATIONS HAVE FLARED INTO VIRTUAL OPEN WAR. REPORTS IN HANOI TODAY SAID THAT THAI FORCES, BESIDES ENGAGING IN A 20-MINUTE AIR BATTLE SATURDAY WITH INDO-CHINA PLANES, HAD ATTEMPTED TO BOMB AN INDO-CHINESE WARSHIP AND HAD SEIZED AN UNDEFENDED ISLAND WITHIN THE COLONIAL FRONTIER.)

MANY FRENCHMEN FEARED THAT THE END OF THEIR 60-YEAR DOMINATION OF THIS EAST ASIAN COLONY WAS ONLY A QUESTION OF DAYS WHEN THE JAPANESE BLUSTERED, NEGOTIATED AND FOUGHT THEIR WAY INTO TONKIN LAST SEPTEMBER.

FROM THE WINDOWS OF HIS PALACE HERE, GOVERNOR-GENERAL JEAN DECOUX ALMOST ANY DAY CAN SEE SINGLE FORMATIONS OF JAPANESE WARPLANES MORE FORMIDABLE THAN THE WHOLE COLONIAL AIR FORCE AT HIS COMMAND.

GARRISONED AT HAIPHONG, COASTAL GATEWAY TO NORTHERN INDO-CHINA, IN HANOI AT THE SEAT OF FRENCH ADMINISTRATION AND AT OTHER MILITARY AND COMMUNICATIONS CENTERS ARE MORE JAPANESE SOLDIERS THAN THE TOTAL OF WHITE FRENCH EFFECTIVES, REGULARS AND MOBILIZED CIVILIANS, AVAILABLE FOR THE DEFENSE OF ALL INDO-CHINA.

THE FRENCH WELL KNOW THAT THIS POWER MIGHT BE TURNED ON THEM AT ANY HOUR AND FOR ITS RESTRAINT THEY THANK WASHINGTON MORE THAN TOKYO.

THEIR HOPE FOR RETAINING THEIR HOLD IS BASED LARGELY ON A GROWING BELIEF THAT JAPAN, AT LEAST FOR THE PRESENT, WILL AVOID ANYTHING WHICH MIGHT AROUSE THE UNITED STATES' ALREADY STRONGLY EXPRESSED CONCERN

OVER MAINTENANCE OF THE STATUS QUO IN EAST ASIA.

OFF THE RECORD, FRENCH OFFICIALS ALSO PIN PART OF THEIR OPTIMISM TO CHINESE RESISTANCE AGAINST JAPAN.

THE FRENCH HAVE BEEN FORCED TO PROVIDE INDO-CHINESE MILITARY BASES AND FACILITIES FOR JAPAN'S DECLARED PURPOSE OF CRUSHING CHINA'S CHIANG KAI-SHEK GOVERNMENT.

BUT THEY BELIEVE THAT AFTER HER UNHAPPY ATTEMPTS TO SUBJUGATE AND CONTROL AREAS IN CHINA OCCUPIED BY HER ARMY, JAPAN WILL WANT TO LEAVE TO THE EXPERIENCED FRENCH COLONIAL ADMINISTRATION THE FORMIDABLE TASK OF GOVERNING AN AREA GREATER THAN CONTINENTAL FRANCE AND WITH 26,000,000 PEOPLE OF HALF A DOZEN RACES AND LANGUAGES.

THE APPOINTMENT, THESE OFFICIALS SAID, APPARENTLY INDICATED THE BANGKOK GOVERNMENT STILL HAD HOPES OF A DIPLOMATIC SETTLEMENT OF TERRITORIAL DISPUTES WITH FRENCH AUTHORITIES.

(SHARP FIGHTING BETWEEN THAI AND INDO-CHINA TROOPS AT SEVERAL BORDER POINTS HAS BEEN REPORTED FROM HANOI, INDO-CHINA CAPITAL.)

PRESIDENTIAL TRAIN SPEEDS TOWARD MIAMI

Roosevelt Will Board Warship Today For Undisclosed Cruise

May Visit Islands Guarding Panama Canal And New Base Sites

[By the Associated Press]

Aboard Roosevelt Train, En Route to Miami, Fla., Dec. 2—His plans surrounded with unusual secrecy, President Roosevelt sped southward toward Florida today, apparently to embark on a Caribbean cruise combining recreation with an inspection of insular defense fortifications.

When his special train left Washington around mid-day, his destination was unannounced. Several hours later, Maj. Gen. E. M. Watson, White House secretary, said that Mr. Roosevelt would board the cruiser Tuscaloosa at Miami tomorrow afternoon for a cruise the details of which were secret.

Presumably, the Chief Executive will visit some of the island defense works protecting the Panama Canal and possibly base sites recently leased from Great Britain. Watson indicated that the President might give further details of his plans at a press conference tomorrow afternoon.

Duration Of Trip

Before departure of the Presidential special, Stephen Early, White House press secretary, announced that the President planned to be away from the capital until the week beginning December 16, unless official business brought him back sooner.

Early added that Mr. Roosevelt would "work directly with Washington" while away rather than have a field headquarters set up at some point near him. The secretary said that direct communication with the White House would keep Mr. Roosevelt in touch with official matters.

If the journey runs its full planned course it will keep the President away from his Washington desk for the longest period since his Caribbean cruise of last winter. At that time, he left Washington February 13 and returned March 2 after inspecting the Panama Canal.

Campaign Declaration

The current journey also will be Mr. Roosevelt's longest since he said during the recent Presidential campaign that world conditions necessitated his staying within twelve hours travel of the capital.

Figuring distance by train speeds, this trip will take him much farther away than twelve hours, but he has said he will fly back to Washington if necessary.

Important official documents and the like, as usual, will be shuttled back and forth between the White House and the President by military aircraft.

ROOSEVELT GIVES LEAHY HIS ORDERS

New Envoy to Vichy Talks Over French Problems.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 2 (A. P.).—Admiral William D. Leahy said today that he had heard from President Roosevelt an account of the "general world situation in its application to France" preparatory to taking over his new post as Ambassador to the Vichy Government. The Admiral, who is leaving as Governor of Puerto Rico, declined to disclose any details of his morning conference with the President.

The discussion lasted more than two hours and was the only major business transacted by Mr. Roosevelt before his departure on a trip south. Asked for comment on reports that he might be shifted from the Vichy post to London, succeeding Joseph P. Kennedy, resigned, Admiral Leahy replied: "The President didn't say anything about it."

He said that after conferences with Secretary Hull and other State Department officials and the winding up of Puerto Rican business that he expected to leave soon on his ambassadorial assignment.

Admiral Leahy arrived in New York early today from Puerto Rico on the liner Borinquen, and went immediately to LaGuardia Field to fly to Washington. He would not discuss his plans with reporters, explaining that this was really because he could not.

A Coast Guard cutter took him from the liner to the Battery, whence he motored to the air field, Mrs. Leahy remaining on the ship. She will go to Washington by train. The Admiral expressed regret at having to leave Puerto Rico, where he said he had many good friends, and ventured the opinion that there are several natives there who could do the work well as his successor. He said that when bases have been established as planned, our Caribbean defense will be strong. He declined to discuss international affairs.

'OFF PAYROLL NOW,' KENNEDY FLIES SOUTH

Retiring Envoy Takes Leave of State Department

WASHINGTON, Dec. 2 (AP)—Joseph P. Kennedy, retiring Ambassador to Great Britain, paid farewell calls at the State Department today and said:

"I'm out of a job now and off the payroll here."

Mr. Kennedy, who announced his resignation last night, said that he had wound up his business at the State Department and was going at once by plane to Palm Beach, Fla., for a vacation.

Although he said the President had asked him to retain the title of Ambassador until a successor was appointed, Mr. Kennedy explained that he would no longer function unless the State Department needed his services in connection with British relations.

Stephen Early, Presidential press secretary, was asked at his press conference whether another government job was in prospect for Mr. Kennedy.

"I don't see anything like that in the picture right now," he replied.

PALM BEACH, Fla., Dec. 2 (AP)—Joseph P. Kennedy, arriving here tonight by airliner, said that he expected his wife within a day or so and that their children would join them for the Christmas holidays.

New Device Turns Night Into 'Daylight' for Mapping Enemy Territory in Raids

WASHINGTON, Dec. 2 (AP).—The Army Air Corps disclosed today that it had released to the British Royal Air Force a device to map an enemy country from the air at night.

The device, developed during fifteen years of research, was described as a magnesium light for taking night photographs.

No details were given. Among those who had worked on the problem, it was said, was Maj. A. W. Stevens, of stratosphere flight fame.

The disclosure followed by about a week the announcement that the Sperry bomb sight, described officially as the American government's "second best" sight, had been made available to the British.

Experts expressed the belief that the United States photographic technique would prove of value to the R. A. F. in detecting military targets and in checking damage inflicted during bombinb attacks upon those targets.

Flash Bomb Tested

ROCHESTER, Dec. 2 (AP).—The United States Army tested over Rochester last Oct. 9 a night aerial "flash bomb" whose illumination was termed "equivalent to that which you get when the sun is on the horizon" by Maj. George W. Goddard, photographic research chief.

Maj. Goddard was assisted in the experiment by Dr. Walter Clark, Eastman Kodak Company research expert, who over the week end in Toronto revealed that a recently developed "flash bomb" for aerial night photography had been released to Great Britain by the United States Army Air Corps.

The explosive bombs, filled with secret chemicals, were released at a hieght of 5,000 feet, the loud explosion lasted one-sixth of a second, and caused illumination "in the billions" of candlepower over a wide area.

The Army bomber which droned over the city carried an aerial camera equipped with a photo-electric cell which automatically tripped the camera shutter when the flash was at maximum height. The light bombs were so blinding that their illumination concealed the plane's position from the view of persons on the ground.

"There have beeen times in the history of the world when an hour more of daylight would have changed the tide of battle," Maj. Goddard said. "We have that with the 'daylight' in this light bomb."

SAYS ZINC SHIPMENTS TO JAPAN HIT DEFENSE

Copper Man Reports 'Serious Delay' in Brass Is Result

ROME, N. Y., Dec. 2 (AP)—C. Donald Dallas, president of Revere Copper and Brass, Inc., said today that shipments of zinc to Japan were "seriously delaying" manufacture of brass for defense needs of the United States and Great Britain.

"The same zinc which we allowed to be delivered to Japan," Dallas asserted in a statement, "was so badly needed at the time by our brass manufacturers that fabricating plants all over the country are being forced to curtail production schedules when they should be increasing.

"This country shipped 3,775 tons of zinc to Japan in October, bringing the total of 12,042 tons for the first ten months of 1940, every pound of which was badly needed by domestic fabricators engaged in supplying our own and British defense needs.

"You can't make cartridge brass without zinc. Brass is used not only for cartridges and shell cases but also for the production of detonation caps, rotating bands, fuse caps and many other parts in the armament and munition fields."

Dallas suggested either finding some new supply of refined zinc or diverting zinc which goes into production of die-cast decorative automobile trim, radiator grilles and refrigerator hardware to defense needs.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 2 (AP)—Federal officials said today the question of whether zinc exports should be placed under government control in the interest of national defense had been under study here for some time, but that a report on the study was not yet available.

Discussing a statement by C. Donald Dallas at Rome, N. Y., that zinc shipments to Japan were seriously delaying the fulfillment of domestic brass needs, one informed person said that if the official report reached a similar conclusion the chances were that zinc would be added before long to the list of materials requiring export licenses.

The situation regarding zinc, as well as other metals, is under study by the Army and Navy munitions board and the defense commission.

Day's Communiques of Belligerent Powers

Greek

ATHENS, Dec. 2 (AP).—A Greek high command communique:

On the left wing of our front our troops advanced and have placed under their fire the Argyrokastron and Santi Quaranta (Porto Edda) Roads.

Near Premet our sections occupied new positions. A considerable number of prisoners and various kinds of material have fallen into their hands. Among them were four guns.

On the Ostrovitza Mountains successful attacks by our troops dispersed enemy sections. Officers and men were taken prisoners.

North of Pogradetz the fighting continues in our favor.

British

LONDON, Dec. 2 (AP).—Tonight's Air Ministry-Home Security Ministry communique:

There has been only slight enemy aircraft activity in this country today. During the morning hours a number of enemy fighters and fighter bombers flew in over the coast but were turned back by our fighters while still over Kent. No bombs have so far been reported.

Two enemy fighters have been shot down by the R. A. F. without loss to ourselves.

An earlier Air and Home Security Ministries communique:

Southampton was again the main objective in last night's raids. A number of fires were caused, but they were all well under control by daybreak. A further statement will be issued later in the day.

Another communique of the Air and Home Security Ministries:

Raids during the night were mainly concentrated on southern England. Buildings were damaged by high explosive bombs and by fire. Some persons were killed and others injured. Full reports are not yet available but it is believed the number of casualties is not large.

Bombs were also dropped in London and the Home Counties and at few places elsewhere in the country, but reports so far received indicate that they did little damage and caused few casualties.

Eight enemy aircraft were destroyed in attacks on this country yesterday. Five of our fighters were lost but all the pilots are safe.

An Air Ministry communique:

Last night our bombers made attacks on the naval shipbuilding yards at Wilhelmshaven. All our aircraft returned safely.

Another Air Ministry communique:

Yesterday morning aircraft of the Coastal Command made an attack on the submarine base and naval docks at Lorient. In the evening the power station, jetty and drydocks at Brest were bombed.

A Coastal Command aircraft also attacked a military camp at Kristiansand (Norway) yesterday. Bombs fell among the barracks and buildings and others damaged warehouses on the quayside.

Another aircraft of the Coastal Command made a successful attack on the gas works at Asbjerg, in Denmark. An explosion followed the bombing and flames covered the whole area.

In these operations none of our aircraft was lost.

An Admiralty communique:

The Board of the Admiralty regret to announce the loss of H. M. destroyer Sturdy (Lieut. Comdr. G. T. Cooper, R. N.). The Sturdy ran ashore on the Scottish coast in thick weather and has since become a total loss. Five ratings (seamen) were lost, and next of kin have been notified.

CAIRO, Egypt, Dec. 2 (AP).—A Royal Air Force communique:

In the Western desert, a large number of enemy aircraft dispersed on the ground at Benina were attacked. Two bombers of Type S79 were destroyed and others severely damaged. Bombs also fell among enemy aircraft on the tarmac (runway).

Enemy troops and motor transport on the Metemma Gondar Road, ten miles west of Warni, in Abyssinia, were machine-gunned and bombed by the R. A. F. Four direct hits were registered on the motor transport while heavy casualties were observed as a result of the machine-gunning. A similar attack was made on Wadi Aradeira where there is an enemy encampment, and Metemma itself also was bombed.

Further south a successful raid was made on a large camp at Gubba. Direct hits on barracks started numerous fires. Two incendiaries fell in the store buildings outside the barracks, causing large fires.

On Nov. 29, the Dangila camp, containing several battalions of colonial troops and Black Shirts, was attacked. Direct hits on the buildings and camp started fires. The attack was pressed home and much damage caused.

Our fighters attacked a flight of Caproni aircraft on Nov. 22 when the latter were attempting to raid Bura. One enemy aircraft was shot down in flames, its sole survivor being taken prisoner. Two other enemy aircraft were fiercely engaged by our fighters but managed to escape into the clouds. No casualties were caused by the enemy.

From all operations reviewed our aircraft returned safely to their respective bases.

A British headquarters communique:

SUDAN: On the night of Nov. 30, in the Kassala sector, one of our patrols successfully ambushed a party of the enemy, capturing one Italian officer and nine of other ranks. East of Gallabat, parties of the enemy were again successfully engaged by our artillery.

OTHER FRONTS: No change in the situation.

ATHENS, Dec. 2 (AP).—A communique of the Royal Air Force operating in Greece:

During the day there was slight enemy air activity owing to weather conditions.

A road in southwestern Albania which was being used to bring up enemy reinforcements was successfully attacked by R. A. F. bombers. The low-level attack was completed despite heavy ground fire, and the road was hit and an important bridge damaged.

Previously, military buildings in the Telepini area were bombed and a number demolished.

From all operations our aircraft returned safely.

Italian

ROME, Dec. 2 (AP).—The Italian high command communique:

On the Greek front violent enemy attacks were thrown back everywhere. The enemy was thrown back by our counter-attacks to original positions, suffering serious losses especially on the right flank of the 9th Army where the attack, preceded by intense artillery preparation, was carried out by a complete army corps. On the front of the 11th Army, two battalions of the Puseteria and Ferrara divisions especially distinguished themselves.

Cavalry detachments surprised by our Alpine scouts was annihilated.

In East Africa our pursuit planes set fire to one plane of the Wellesley type on the Daref airfield.

Enemy planes bombed the Kassala region, killing two and wounding four civilians. One enemy plane was shot down by anti-aircraft fire.

Other air raids were made over Burao, where two women were wounded, and over Assab and Metemma, where three were killed and seventeen wounded.

German

BERLIN, Dec. 2 (A).—The German high command communique:

Saturday night to Sunday strong combat-plane units in rolling flights bombed Southampton with the heaviest caliber bombs, as already reported. More than sixty large and numerous smaller fires were observed, which in the course of the night formed an ocean of flames. A large power plant was hit. Storehouses on a test quay and other parts of the harbor were blazing.

During the same night and in the course of the day (Sunday) heavy and light combat planes bombed London. Otherwise the air force's activity during the day was limited to reconnaissance and chaser thrusts which developed into several successful air fights.

Last night attacks on Southampton and other cities continued, while British planes that night again were inactive. Only at dawn several planes coming from the North Sea bombed residential quarters in a city in the coastal region, wounding several civilians.

Chasers bagged eleven enemy planes over southern England yesterday, and two of our own planes were lost.

In the War Zone

Hitler Faces Difficult Problem If He Has to Help Mussolini

By DEWITT MACKENZIE.

Mussolini is making a desperate effort with heavy reenforcements to remedy the already far-reaching effects of his Greek defeat without having to thrust aside pride and appeal to Hitler for help.

A Fascist communique this morning reported that defending Italian troops had thrown back the attacking enemy in one sector. The victorious Greeks, however, claimed to have made important new advances all along their line. That line, working on a pivot on the Adriatic coast near the Greco-Albanian boundary, is swinging across the mountains and valleys of Albania toward the sea like a windshield wiper.

This astonishing success of the little Greek Army against the might of Rome is having a tremendous moral effect on both Britain and the neutral countries of the Balkans.

The Turkish press even claims, with evident relish, that the Nazis have been balked in their scheme for assaulting British interests in the Near East by means of a drive across the Dardanelles. The British already are talking of the possibility of utilizing Greece as the gateway for a grand offensive by land against the German rear.

A Land Foothold for Britain.

All this savors a bit of wishful thinking, of course, but there is no gainsaying that if the Greeks, with British help, can hold their own against Italy, they will have opened up an invaluable base for English operations against the Axis. It will give the British a land foothold against Hitler which they have not hoped to achieve for another year at best, owing to their inferiority in the air.

As a matter of fact the Fascists have got themselves into a predicament from which it would be extremely difficult for Hitler to rescue them at this time. There are only two really feasible forms of help Der Fuehrer could give his Axis partner—one being with an air fleet and the other the sending of an army against Greece through either Yugoslavia or Bulgaria.

There can be small doubt that the violation of the nervous neutrality of either Yugoslavia or Bulgaria might precipitate a general Balkan upheaval; that is exactly what Der Fuehrer has been trying so carefully to avoid.

Would Require Big Air Force.

So far as air assistance is concerned, that would be valuable, though it would require a huge aerial navy to reduce Greece at this late juncture in the operations. While Hitler likely could spare a considerable number of planes, he wouldn't want to weaken his attack on the British isles—an assault which is calculated in part to compel the English to withdraw forces from the eastern Mediterranean to defend the homeland.

The present indications are that Hitler intends to let his partner work out his own salvation. If Il Duce can do this, it certainly will be much better for the prestige of the Axis, which already has suffered heavily because of the Fascist reverse in the Greek adventure.

Mussolini's greatest danger at the moment is that his communications between Italy and Albania may be severed by the growing British attack on them. He has plenty of forces and materials to devote to the Greek show, but cutting of communications would be fatal, for it would deliver the Italian army in Albania over to the enemy. An expeditionary force is only as strong as the supplies and re-enforcements available for it.

Duke Aids Man Who Braved Atlantic In Small Schooner

Allows H. B. Clarke To Fly From Nassau To U. S. To Spend Christmas With Family

[By the Associated Press]

Nassau, Bahamas, Dec. 2—After a dangerous fifty-eight day crossing from England in a small schooner, Henry B. Clarke was delayed today by immigration difficulties in a hurried trip to Roslyn, N. Y., for a Christmas at home with his family.

He had planned to fly to Miami, but Colonial immigration men objected to his leaving in the Bahamas the six members of his crew, three of whom are of Danish birth. After a conference with the Duke of Windsor, governor of the colony, Clarke obtained permission to leave tomorrow.

Escapes From Shells

Clarke started out from Falmouth, England, in the schooner Marie, and before he left the English Channel barely escaped from a shower of shells.

"We were machine-gunned at Dartmouth. All down the French coast to Portugal we sighted German patrol planes," he said.

The vessel was damaged in terrific gales and put into the Madeira Islands, southwest of Portugal, for repairs.

Ran Out Of Food

The voyagers ran out of food while still a week out of Nassau. They picked up a few things from the oil tanker Carrabelle, of Baltimore, but traveled the final two days with no food at all.

Clarke said if he could enjoy Christmas peace with his family in Roslyn he would be ready to return to England and continue his work as a manufacturer of planes.

He made the gruelling schooner voyage because he missed passage on a liner bound for New York.

9 New York Teachers Linked With Communist Activities

One Admits Joining Party At Hearing On Use Of City's Schools To Spread Doctrine

[By the Associated Press]

New York, Dec. 2—An assistant professor at Brooklyn College testified today that he and eight other faculty members joined the Communist party in 1935 and assumed aliases to conceal their identities.

Dr. Bernard D. N. Grebanier told a joint legislative committee investigating the city's school system that he took the name of David Arden when he joined the party "because there would be no peace if the person's real name were used."

Deliberate Plan Alleged

His testimony followed an assertion by Paul Windels, chief committee counsel, that there had been deliberate use of New York city's school system to spread subversive doctrine as well as efforts by certain faculty members to obstruct exposure of such activities.

Grebanier, an English instructor named among others David McKelvey White, Frederick Ewan, Murray Young and Harry Slochower as his associates who joined the Communists under the respective aliases of Wood, Cowal, West and Flint. He said the first three taught English and that Slochower was in the German department.

He added that he joined the Communist party at the persuasion of Dr. Howard Selsan, philosophy professor at Brooklyn College, in 1935 "at a time when I was worried about the Fascist threat to Democracy."

Says Party Discussed Policies

He testified that educational and administrative policies of the college were mentioned at Communist meetings he attended.

"It would be wrong to say there was any deep-dyed plotting in these discussions," he added.

CAIRO, EGYPT, DEC. 2--EGYPT ANNOUNCED TODAY SHE HAD PROTESTED FORMALLY TO ITALY AGAINST FASCIST BOMB ATTACKS ON EGYPTIAN CITIES IN A FIRM MOVE REGARDED IN DIPLOMATIC CIRCLES AS ONE STEP NEARER DECLARATIO OF WAR AGAINST ITALY BY THIS BRITISH ALLY.

PREMIER HUSSEIN SIRRY PASHA TOLD PARLIAMENT THE PROTEST HAD BEEN MADE. IT WAS UNDERSTOOD TO HAVE BEEN TRANSMITTED BY THE UNITED STATES EMBASSY, WHICH HAS REPRESENTED EGYPTIAN INTERESTS IN ITALY SINCE EGYPT BROKE OFF RELATIONS WITH ROME WHEN MUSSOLINI WENT TO WAR AGAINST BRITAIN AND FRANCE.

"SINCE JUNE 12, ITALIAN RAIDS ON ALEXANDRIA AND OTHER CITIES HAVE RESULTED IN 155 DEAD AND 425 WOUNDED," THE PREMIER, WHO ALSO IS MINISTER OF WAR, ASSERTED IN THE MOST FORCEFUL DECLARATION YET MADE BY A MEMBER OF THE EGYPTIAN GOVERNMENT ON ITALIAN ATTACKS ON EGYPT.

"NINETY-SEVEN HOUSES HAVE BEEN DESTROYED AND 102 OTHERS PARTLY DEMOLISHED," HE SAID.

THE DECLARATION FOLLOWED THE CABINET'S VOTE OF AN IMMEDIATE EXPENDITURE OF £270,000 ($1,080,000) FOR AIR RAID SHELTERS.

WHAT COURSE THE GOVERNMENT WILL TAKE IF THE PROTEST BRINGS NO SATISFACTORY ASSURANCE FROM ITALY WAS NOT DISCLOSED.

NEW YORK, DEC. 2-(AP)-ALASKA IS "ALARMED TO A CERTAIN EXTENT ABOUT JAPAN," BUT DISCOUNTS THE POSSIBILITY OF INVOLVEMENT IN MILITARY CONFLICT WITH RUSSIA, VILHJALMUR STEFANSSON, NOTED ARCTIC EXPLORER, DECLARED TODAY IN ASSERTING THE UNITED STATES SHOULD EXTEND "THE GOOD NEIGHBOR POLICY" TO INCLUDE THE SOVIET UNION.

"WHY SHOULDN'T WE DO--IN TIME--WHAT THE BRITISH ARE TRYING TO DO, TOO LATE?" ASKED STEFANSSON DURING A PRESS CONFERENCE FOLLOWING HIS RETURN FROM A MONTH'S SURVEY OF ALASKA, INCLUDING THE NEWLY-EXPANDING ARMY BASES.

"WITH THE EXCEPTION OF CANADA AND MEXICO," HE SAID "THE SOVIET UNION IS OUR NEAREST NEIGHBOR--LESS THAN TWO MILES AWAY."

OUT OF SUCH AN EXTENSION OF THE GOOD NEIGHBOR POLICY, STEFANSSON SAID, THE UNITED STATES STOOD TO GAIN CERTAIN BENEFITS RELATED TO AMERICA'S DEFENSE PROGRAM.

ALASKANS, STEFANSSON REPORTED, "WORRY A GOOD DEAL ABOUT JAPAN" AND HAVE "NOTICED THAT 'SCARE' STORIES CONCERNING RUSSIA COME FROM SHANGHAI--A JAPANESE-DOMINATED CITY."

HE SAID ALASKANS RESENTED JAPANESE FISHERMEN CLOSE TO AMERICAN SHORES, AND DECLARED IT WAS THE COMMON BELIEF IN ALASKA THAT "THE JAPANESE HAVE BETTER MAPS AND HAVE MADE MORE SOUNDINGS OF THE SOUTHWEST COAST THAN WE HAVE."

DISCUSSING THE DEFENSE NEEDS OF ALASKA, THE EXPLORER OBSERVED THAT IT WAS VERY DIFFICULT TO DEFEND AN UNINHABITED COUNTRY AND TERMED IT A VERY IMPORTANT ELEMENT IN OUR DEFENSE TO SETTLE THE TERRITORY WITH "FOOD-PRODUCING PEOPLES GENERALLY."

IN LINE WITH THIS, HE CONTINUED, A PROGRAM OF "GENERAL COOPERATION" WITH THE SOVIET COULD OBTAIN FOR ALASKANS CERTAIN TYPES OF EARLY WHEAT AND CLOVER DEVELOPED BY THE RUSSIANS FOR NORTHERN CLIMES.

IN ADDITION, HE SUGGESTED THE UNITED STATES "SHOULD ASK PERMISSION TO BUY ONE OR MORE ICE BREAKERS--OR MODELS AND BLUE PRINTS--FROM THE SOVIETS, BECAUSE THEY LEAD THE WORLD IN THAT TYPE OF CONSTRUCTION."

WITH THE AID OF THESE ICE BREAKERS, HE EXPLAINED, THE HARBORS COULD BE KEPT OPEN THE YEAR 'ROUND.

STEFANSSON SAID THAT WITH THE "COOPERATION OF THE SOVIET" THE UNITED STATES COULD OBTAIN REPORTS FROM RUSSIAN ARCTIC WEATHER BUREAUS "WHICH REPORT THE WEATHER THREE TIMES A DAY."

HE SAID HE EXPECTED TO GO TO WASHINGTON WITHIN THE NEXT FEW DAYS, THERE TO DISCUSS WITH VARIOUS OFFICIALS DETAILS OF EQUIPMENT FOR TROOPS AND METHODS OF TRAVEL IN THE FAR NORTH.

AIR WAR

BY DEVON FRANCIS

ASSOCIATED PRESS AVIATION EDITOR

NEW YORK, DEC. 2--ENGLAND IS PUSHING PRODUCTION OF AN ENGINE INTENDED TO WIPE OUT AN ADVANTAGE ENJOYED BY GERMAN FLIERS FOR SEVERAL MONTHS, AND AT THE SAME TIME IS MAKING PROGRESS WITH THE MANUFACTURE OF A TWO-SEATER FIGHTING PLANE OF EXCEPTIONAL STRIKING POWER.

THE PLANE IS NOT A NEW MODEL, BUT THE ROYAL AIR FORCE LOST SO MANY OF ITS TYPE DURING THE DUNKIRK EVACUATION LAST SUMMER THAT IT CEASED TO BE A FACTOR IN THE AIR FIGHTING.

THE ENGINE, DESIGNED TO GIVE A HIGHER "CEILING" AND THEREFORE A GREATER ADVANTAGE, IS ONE OF THE "MERLIN" FAMILY OF ROLLS ROYCE AIRCRAFT MOTORS. MORE HIGHLY SUPERCHARGED FOR ALTITUDE FLYING THAN ITS PREDECESSORS, IT IS ALREADY IN SERVICE IN "SPITFIRE" FIGHTERS.

A DISPATCH LAST SATURDAY FROM LONDON, RECOUNTING THE DESTRUCTION OF A GERMAN FIGHTING PLANE BY TWO SPITFIRE PILOTS AT AN ALTITUDE ABOVE 30,000 FEET, MENTIONED THE INABILITY OF THE NAZI MESSERSCHMITT TO CLIMB HIGH ENOUGH TO ELUDE ITS ENEMIES.

THE SAME ENGINE WILL BE MADE AVAILABLE TO THE MANUFACTURERS OF THE "HURRICANE" TYPE FIGHTING PLANE WHICH, WITH THE SPITFIRE, HAS CARRIED THE BRUNT OF THE DEFENSE WORK IN THE BATTLE OF ENGLAND.

THE TWO-SEATER FIGHTER WHICH BROKE INTO THE NEWS BRIEFLY A FEW MONTHS AGO IN THE EMPLOYMENT OF THE R.A.F., AND AS QUICKLY DISAPPEARED, IS THE BOULTON PAUL "DEFIANT." SINGLE-ENGINED, IT CARRIES A GUNNER'S COMPARTMENT WITH A POWER-OPERATED TURRET AMIDSHIPS.

UNLIKE THE SINGLE-SEATER FIGHTERS, WHICH CAN FIRE IN ONLY ONE DIRECTION, THE DEFIANT WAS DESIGNED SPECIFICALLY FOR THE DESTRUCTION OF ENEMY BOMBERS BY LAYING DOWN A HEAVY FORWARD AND CROSS-FIRE.

IT WAS USED LIBERALLY, HOWEVER, IN PURSUIT DOG-FIGHTING DURING THE DUNKIRK EPISODE.

OTTAWA,DEC.2-(AP)-CONSTRUCTION OF WOODEN SHIPS TO MAINTAIN BRITAIN'S TRANSATLANTIC "LIFE-LINE" WAXXREXEMR WAS URGED UPON THE GOVERNMENT TONIGHT BY VINCENT POTTIER, NOVA SCOTIA LIBERAL.

THE SHIPS COULD BE BUILT IN ATLANTIC COAST SHIP YARDS AS THEY WERE IN THE LAST WAR, HE SAID.

REPORTS THAT BRITAIN WAS LOSING SHIPPING AT THE RATE OF 2,000,000 TONS A YEAR WAS ENOUGH PROOF THAT THE SITUATION WAS SERIOUS, POTTIER SAID. THE UNITED STATES COULD NOT HOPE TO REPLACI MORE THAN HALF THAT DEFICIENCY.

IN 1915, POTTIER SAID, CANADA PRODUCED $7,000,000 WORTH OF WOODEN SHIPS.

THIS WAS INCREASED TO $35,000,000 IN 1917, $74,000,000 IN 1918 AND $86,000,000 IN 1919.

IN 1914 THERE WERE 40 SHIPYARDS ON THE ATLANTIC COAST BUILDING WOODEN VESSELS AND IN 1918 THERE WERE 250.

ONLY 5,000 TONS OF WOODEN SHIPPING IS UNDER CONSTRUCTION NOW IN CANADA FOR MERCHANT PURPOSES, LESS THAN 10 PER CENT OF CAPACITY.

CANADA'S MANPOWER PROBLEM

INDUSTRY AND ARMED FORCES COMPETE FOR SKILLED WORKMEN (480)

28 d 29

BY WADE WERNER

(ADVANCE)..OTTAWA-(CORRESPONDENCE OF THE ASSOCIATED PRESS)-CANADA IS THE THIRD LARGEST COUNTRY IN THE WORLD AND HER NATURAL RESOURCES ARE IMMENSE, BUT WITH SCARCELY 12,000,000 POPULATION, HER MANPOWER IS STRICTLY LIMITED.

CONSEQUENTLY, IN A WAR SUCH AS CANADA NOW FACES, THE EFFECTIVE USE OF HER AVAILABLE MANPOWER HAS BECOME A BURNING ISSUE.

WHEN THE WAR BEGAN SOME 15 MONTHS AGO, THE PROBLEM WAS SIMPLER. CANADA'S FUNCTION WAS TO SUPPLY RAW MATERIALS FOR BRITISH AND FRENCH INDUSTRY, GROW WHEAT TO FEED THE ALLIED ARMIES AND POPULATIONS, PROVIDE TRAINING FOR BRITISH COMMONWEALTH AIRMEN AND, TO A LIMITED EXTENT, CONTRIBUTE SOLDIERS AND SAILORS TO THE LAND AND SEA FORCES KEEPING GERMANY BOTTLED UP BEHIND THE MAGINOT LINE AND THE BRITISH FLEET.

IT WAS TO BE A LONG WAR OF ATTRITION, AND THERE SEEMED TO BE PLENTY (ADVANCE)--OTTAWA, FIRST ADD CANADA'S MANPOWER PROBLEM BY WERNER (PREVIOUSLY MOVED NOV. 28 AT 11:40AES AS A169) XXX PLENTZ OF TIME.

BUT WITH SCANDINAVIA, THE LOW COUNTRIES AND FRANCE IN GERMAN HANDS, THE SITUATION HAS CHANGED DRASTICALLY. NOW CANADA IS TRYING TO SUPPLY BRITAIN WITH THE BACON, BUTTER, EGGS AND FISH FORMERLY IMPORTED FROM DENMARK, HOLLAND, BELGIUM, NORWAY AND FRANCE. AT THE SAME TIME SHE IS BUILDING UP A WAR INDUSTRY TO TAKE THE PLACE OF FRENCH FACTORIES IN GERMAN HANDS AS WELL AS UNITED KINGDOM FACTORIES DEMOLISHED IN AIR RAIDS.

AND, SIMULTANEOUSLY, SHE IS PREPARING TO PLAY HER PART WITH TRAINED TROOPS IN THE GREAT OFFENSIVE WHICH SOME DAY MUST BE LAUNCHED ON THE CONTINENT OF EUROPE IF BRITAIN IS TO WIN.

ALL THIS TAKES MANPOWER. CANADA'S SWIFTLY EXPANDING WAR INDUSTRIES ARE COMPETING AGAINST CANADA'S ARMED FORCES FOR SKILLED MEN, AND ACUTE SHORTAGES OF SKILLED LABOR HAVE DEVELOPED IN VARIOUS SPECIALIZED BRANCHES. INDUSTRY NEEDS SKILLED MEN TO BUILD THE MECHANIZED WEAPONS OF MODERN WAR; THE ARMED FORCES NEED SKILLED MEN TO OPERATE THESE MACHINES AND KEEP THEM IN REPAIR.

SO THE QUESTION HAS ARISEN: WHICH IS MORE URGENTLY NEEDED -- MORE MEN FOR THE ARMY, NAVY AND AIR FORCE, OR MORE RECRUITS FOR CANADA'S WAR INDUSTRIES?

SOME INDUSTRIALISTS ARE INSISTING THAT SKILLED WORKERS ARE THE PRIMARY NEED, THAT IT IS A WASTE OF TIME TO SEND YOUNG CANADIANS TO CAMP FOR 30 DAYS OF COMPULSORY MILITARY TRAINING WHEN THE COUNTRY IS SHORT OF WEAPONS. ONE MANUFACTURER, ACCORDING TO JAMES G.GARDINER, MINISTER OF NATIONAL WAR SERVICES, ACTUALLY REFUSED TO RELEASE WORKERS WHO HAD BEEN CALLED UP FOR THEIR 30-DAY TRAINING PERIOD.

CONDEMNING THIS ATTITUDE, MR.GARDINER CITED THE FACT THAT MANY FACTORIES IN ENGLAND ARE MANNED BY NEWLY-TRAINED WORKERS, INCLUDING A LARGE PERCENTAGE OF WOMEN. HE SAID THE ARMED FORCES THERE HAD FIRST CALL ON THE NATION'S MANPOWER, LEAVING IT TO INDUSTRY TO TRAIN NEW RECRUITS TO TAKE THE PLACES OF MEN CALLED TO THE COLORS.

A179

HE SUGGESTED THAT FACTORY MANAGERS UNABLE TO MEET SUCH A TRAINING EMERGENCY WERE "NOT GOOD ENOUGH FOR WARTIME" AND WARNED THAT CANADA MAY HAVE TO GET TOUGH WITH NON-COOPERATIVE INDUSTRIALISTS.

SOME CANADIAN COMMENTATORS HAVE SUGGESTED THAT MR.GARDINER, WHO COMES FROM THE WHEAT-GROWING WEST, VOICES THE ATTITUDE OF FARMERS WHO FEAR THEIR SONS WILL BE ASKED TO GO OVERSEAS AND DO THE FIGHTING WHILE THE YOUNG MEN OF THE CITIES STAY HOME AND MAN THE FACTORIES.

OTHERS AGREE THAT INDUSTRY CANNOT JUSTLY HOLD BACK THE BEST MEN, LEAVING IT TO THE ARMED FORCES TO TAKE WHAT IS LEFT. WHAT THEY SUGGEST IS THAT INDUSTRY BEGIN IMMEDIATELY TO TRAIN MEN OVER 35, OR OTHERWISE UNLIKELY TO BE CALLED FOR MILITARY SERVICE, AND ALSO WOMEN, TO TAKE THE PLACES OF MEN NEEDED BY THE ARMED SERVICES.

ISOLATED BAHAMA SITE CHOSEN FOR U.S.
DEFENSE BASE
---PRIMITIVE MAYAGUANA

NATIVES LACK MONEY,
TRADE BY BARTER (440)

BY FRED L.STROZIER

(ADVANCE)...NASSAU, BAHAMAS, DEC.2--(AP)--THE UNITED STATES COULD HAVE FOUND FEW MORE PRIMITIVE AND ISOLATED SPOTS IN THE WEST INDIES FOR ONE OF HER HEMISPHERE DEFENSE BASES THAN THE SITE IN THE REMOTE BAHAMIAN ISLAND OF MAYAGUANA SELECTED RECENTLY BY A MILITARY COMMISSION.

YET ABRAHAM'S BAY, A LANDLOCKED HARBOR OF THE ISLAND, OVERLOOKS A GREAT SHIPPING CROSS-ROADS WHERE AMERICAN VESSELS BOUND FOR SOUTH AMERICA AND EUROPEAN SHIPS HEADING FOR THE CANAL ZONE AND THE GULF OF MEXICO PASS IN UNENDING PROCESSION.

HERE THE BAHAMIAN COLONIAL GOVERNMENT ALREADY IS ACQUIRING LAND THAT THE UNITED STATES WILL USE, ALONG WITH SITES IN SEVEN OTHER COLONIES, TO CREATE A DEFENSE CHAIN COSTING $60,000,000 OR MORE AND PROTECTING THE AMERICAS FROM HOSTILITY IN THE ATLANTIC.

THE 700 OR 800 PERSONS WHO LIVE ON MAYAGUANA EXIST IN BLISSFUL IGNORANCE OF WHAT GOES ON IN THE REST OF THE WORLD MOST OF THE TIME, DEPENDING FOR THEIR SCHEDULED CONTACT WITH CIVILIZATION UPON A SAILING SLOOP THAT BRINGS MAIL ONCE A MONTH.

IN NASSAU, THEY LIKE TO REPEAT THE STORY OF A NATIVE JUSTICE OF THE PEACE, ONLY GOVERNMENT REPRESENTATIVE IN THE ISLAND, WHO SAW TWO OBVIOUSLY FOREIGN VESSELS AT ANCHOR OFF PIRATES' WELL IN MAYAGUANA SEVERAL YEARS AGO. ONE WAS A YACHT. THE OTHER WAS A CRUISER.

THE CURIOUS JUSTICE ROWED TO THE VESSELS, RAPPED SHARPLY ON THE SIDE AND DEMANDED TO KNOW BY WHAT RIGHT THEY HALTED THUS IN THE WATERS OF A BRITISH COLONY.

THE VESSELS PAID HIM SCANT ATTENTION, SO HE MADE A LONG, OFFICIAL REPORT OF THE INCIDENT TO COLONIAL OFFICIALS IN NASSAU. IT WAS SEVERAL MONTHS BEFORE HE LEARNED THAT THE OFFENDING YACHT HAD BROUGHT PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT FROM THE UNITED STATES FOR A FISHING TRIP IN THE CARIBBEAN AND THAT THE CRUISER WAS HIS CONVOY.

LIFE ON MAYAGUANA IS THE MOST PRIMITIVE TO BE FOUND IN THE BAHAMAS. THE ISLAND HAS NO ELECTRICITY, NO ROADS, NO TELEPHONES, AND NO VEHICLES OF ANY SORT. MONEY IS VIRTUALLY UNKNOWN AND WHAT LITTLE TRADE THERE IS STICKS STRICTLY TO BARTER.

THE NATIVES GROW THEIR OWN FOOD AND SEND PART OF IT TO NASSAU FROM TIME TO TIME BY OCCASIONAL VESSELS TO BE EXCHANGED FOR CLOTHING.

THE GOVERNMENT RADIO HAS ESTABLISHED A SMALL STATION ON THE ISLAND LARGELY FOR GATHERING WEATHER INFORMATION DURING THE WEST INDIES' HURRICANE SEASON FOR EXCHANGE WITH THE UNITED STATES' STORM WARNING SERVICE.

MAYAGUANA IS THE MOST EASTERLY OF THE BAHAMAS GROUP AND, WITH INAGUA, IS THE MOST SOUTHERLY. EUROPEAN SHIPS USUALLY PASS THROUGH THE GREAT MAYAGUANA PASSAGE, THENCE AROUND THE EASTERN TIP OF CUBA, BETWEEN JAMAICA AND HAITI AND THENCE TO THE CANAL ZONE, CENTRAL

30.24-6231

AMERICA OR THE NORTHERN COAST OF SOUTH AMERICA. THIS ROUTE ALSO IS CLOSEST FOR MANY SHIPS FROM THE UNITED STATES GOING TO THE CANAL ZONE.

THE ISLAND IS MORE THAN 400 MILES FROM NASSAU AND MORE THAN 700 FROM MIAMI. IT WILL BE THE CLOSEST OF THE WEST INDIAN BASES TO THE UNITED STATES.

NINE HIGH U. S. OFFICIALS STUDY WAY TO BOOST AID TO ENGLAND AND BRITISH ABILITY TO PAY FOR WAR MATERIALS

Important Executives Seek Accounting Of War Contract Situation

All London Purchases, Now And Future, Said To Have Been Analyzed

[By the Associated Press]

Washington, Dec. 3—The whole question of British financial resources and ability to buy war materials in this country was reported authoritatively to have been the cause and chief topic of a meeting today of nine of the most important officials in the Government.

According to this source, it was not a meeting to decide whether the United States should lend money to Great Britain, but more to take an accounting of the situation resulting from British contracts, now aggregating more than $2,500,000,000 and expected to rise to $4,000,000,000 in the next year.

Another source, who seemed to have the same idea, said he understood all British purchases, present and prospective, were tabulated and analyzed.

Aftermath Of Lothian Talk

It was, one indicated, the aftermath of the controversy stirred up by the recent statement of Lord Lothian, British Ambassador, that Britain was running out of the means of buying American products and needed financial as well as material aid.

The reported nature of the meeting also seemed to fit the news that came out Saturday that the British shortly would send an official mission to this country to survey the financing problem. A possible explanation of today's gathering was that the United States was setting up a committee to join this British mission in the study—a study which is expected to develop vital information of the very nature for which a number of Congressmen are demanding investigations.

Attendance Significant

The only certain thing about today's meeting was the attendance, which alone was significant, because nearly every time a similar gathering of so many high officials has occurred in recent months some important step in the "aid-to-Britain" policy has been announced soon afterward.

Such meetings preceded the trade of navy destroyers for Atlantic bases, the announcement that Britain would be allowed to order 12,000 more warplanes and the release of four-motored bombers to England.

"These people don't get together to talk about peanuts," is the way one conferee put it, referring to the following who were closeted in the Treasury:

HENRY MORGENTHAU, JR., Secretary of the Treasury.

HENRY L. STIMSON, Secretary of War.

FRANK KNOX, Secretary of the Navy.

JESSE H. JONES, Secretary of Commerce and Federal Loan Administrator.

SUMNER WELLES, Under Secretary of State.

JAMES V. FORRESTAL, Under Secretary of the Navy.

GEN. GEORGE C. MARSHALL, chief of staff of the army.

ROBERT P. PATTERSON, Assistant Secretary of War.

HERBERT FEIS, economic adviser of the State Department.

Demand What Situation Is

The Lothian controversy, it was learned, has created a great demand among officials, Congressmen, manufacturers and bankers to know just what the British purchasing situation is now.

Manufacturers, particularly of airplanes, it was pointed out, want to know whether the millions of dollars they have spent to work on British orders will be repaid or whether it is financially safe to accept more orders.

Officials know that the more than $5,000,000,000 that England owes the United States from the World War has prejudiced many persons against granting new loans. Also they worry about American foreign trade if British finances run out, because the empire currently is taking about sixty per cent. of all the goods exported from the United States.

Aim To Avoid Misunderstanding

The British themselves, it appeared, were concerned lest misunderstanding of the Lothian statement interfere with American aid. Lord Lothian, it was noted, called on Welles at the State Department prior to the big meeting.

The first official reaction in Washington last week to the Lothian statement was that Britain probably had enough gold, securities and cash to pay cash for war materials for at least another year, if not two or more, and that Lothian merely intended to start the ball rolling in the hope of getting favorable response whenever that faraway date arrived.

Lately, some officials indicated, they were worried that the bitter arguments heard, particularly in some Congressional quarters, might injure relations between the two countries.

Four U. S. Ships Sold

The activity of Great Britain in acquiring both new and used cargo ships to replace sunken tonnage was reflected during the day in an announcement of the Maritime Commission that it had authorized sale of four more ships to British firms. Approval was given the Black Diamond Steamship Company of Weehawken, N. J., to sell the vessels.

The ships are the Black Condor, 5,358 tons, and the Black Osprey, 5,589 tons, to go to the Cairn Line, Newcastle-on-Tyne, and the Black Heron, 4,926 tons and the Black Tern, 5,032 tons, to the Cunard White Star Line.

Remainder Available

This move brought the total number of vessels sold to Britain to 130 since the start of the war, 86 of which have been deep-water cargo carriers of more than 1,000 tons.

Maritime Commission officials said that all of the remaining sixty-three laid-up ships of the commission were available for bidding by the British.

Bids on fifteen vessels of 9,000 tons each will be opened December 12. It is expected British offers will be included in these bids.

Informed sources said that while the United States was glad to sell its laid-up vessels to Great Britain, there was no intention at this time of selling new merchant ship construction. Britain, it was explained, probably had no desire to buy such high-speed cargo carriers as are being built under the auspices of the Maritime Commission.

In the first place, these sources said, the cost would run high and, in the second, speed was not an essential since most of the British transatlantic shipping is done under convoy, where all ships in the group are held to the speed of the slowest unit of the convoy.

British Buying American Ships

Orders Placed Here for Building of Sixty—Twenty-two Vessels Lost in Week.

LONDON, Dec. 3 (A. P.).—The Minister of Shipping, Ronald H. Cross, informed the House of Commons today that Great Britain has placed orders for the construction of sixty cargo vessels in the United States and, in addition, would continue to purchase serviceable American ships.

Mr. Cross assured the House that "everything possible is being done to get ships with the greatest facility" to meet the menace of Axis raids on shipping—Great Britain's most urgent problem at the moment.

He spoke after the German High Command had reported that submarines yesterday, in two separate raids on British commerce, had sunk an auxiliary cruiser and at least seventeen, and possibly nineteen merchantmen, totaling 160,000 tons.

"Old but serviceable American vessels, including vessels belonging to the Maritime Commission, have been and will continue to be purchased for the British flag as opportunity offers," Mr. Cross said.

22 Ships Lost in Week.

Meanwhile today the Admiralty reported that twenty-two merchant ships, totaling 87,975 tons, were sunk by enemy action in the week ending November 24.

They were nineteen British ships, totaling 75,560 tons, and three Allied, totaling 12,415 tons.

The Admiralty said that the Germans claimed to have sunk 118,020 tons of merchant shipping during that week.

The week's total as reported by the Admiralty was about 24,000 tons above the weekly average since the beginning of the war.

"It is a serious menace," a naval spokesman said, "but as a nation we can take knocks."

Late this afternoon the Ministry of Information announced that 323,157 tons of British, Allied and neutral shipping had been sunk during the four weeks ending November 24. The Ministry compared this total with the 881,000 tons of British, Allied and neutral shipping sunk during April, 1917, at the height of the unrestricted submarine campaign of the world war.

Italians Tell of Exploits.

ROME, Dec. 3 (A. P.).—The Italian High Command today credited two Italian submarines with successes against British ships.

One submarine was said to have torpedoed a British cruiser en route from Malta in the Sicilian Channel on November 27. The second submarine was said to have returned from operations in the Atlantic with a report that she had sunk the 5,000-ton British steamship Lylian Moller on November 18.

BRITISH ORDER SIXTY NEW U. S. FREIGHTERS

Will Continue Also To Buy Old Ships To Meet Menace Of Nazi Raids

Admiralty Admits Loss Of 87,975 Tons In Week By "Enemy Action"

[By the Associated Press]

London, Dec. 3—The British disclosed today that they have turned to United States shipyards with an order for sixty new freighters to meet their most immediate menace—Nazi raids from on, above and below the surface of the sea.

In addition, Ronald H. Cross, Minister of Shipping, told the House of Commons: "Old but serviceable United States vessels, including vessels belonging to the Maritime Commission, have been and will continue to be purchased for the British flag as opportunity offers."

"We Must Have Speed"

Another Cabinet member, Lord Woolton, Food Commissioner, declared in a speech: "We must have speed! Speed! Speed! . . . and Ships! ships! ships! ships!"

Britain's own figures and acknowledgments, entirely aside from those broadcast by the Germans, made it a black Tuesday for Britain at sea.

The Admiralty announced that twenty-two British and Allied merchant ships of 87,975 tons had been sunk "by enemy action" in the week ended November 24, in contrast to German claims of 118,020 tons for the same period.

323,157 Tons Lost

This ran 24,000 tons above the weekly average since the start of the war, and a naval spokesman said frankly it reflected "a serious menace." He added, however: "We can take the knocks."

The Ministry of Information put the total lost during the four weeks ended November 24 at 323,157 tons.

Cross, before the House of Commons, gave assurances that "everything posible is being done to get ships with the greatest facility."

[Associated Press Editor's Note—Unless Britain is able to arrange American credits by the time the ships are delivered, this will be another strenuous drain on her already-depleted dollar reserves. Britain's war expenses last week totaled about $360,536,000; the total for the fiscal year so far is about $8,600,000,000.]

Another Government spokesman in the House, Deputy Leader Clement R. Attlee, parried a question about unofficial proposals "for either definite or implied union with the United States," saying he was aware of no such project.

Churchill Sees King

That American aid—and means to get it to England—was the question of the day for even the throne was evident, however, from the fact that both Prime Minister Churchill and A. B. Purvis, chairman of the British Purchasing Commission to the United States, saw King George VI at Buckingham Palace.

Lord Woolton disclosed that more shipping space would be diverted from overseas food purchases to military uses; that no more cargoes of fresh or canned fruit will be sanctioned for a while, except for a limited supply of oranges (probably from Palestine).

He did, however, announce a Christmas present to the nation—increased sugar and tea rations for the week beginning December 16.

Reunion of U.S. and Britain Disavowed as London Policy

LONDON, Dec. 3 (A. P.).—Deputy Leader Clement Attlee, answering a question in the House of Commons today, said that he was not aware of any proposal for either definite or implied union with the United States and that "if any such plans should approach the fringe of practical policy it could only be after prolonged discussion by the legislative bodies on both sides of the Atlantic."

His reply was to Richard Stokes, Laborite, who had asked assurances also that "no further naval or military bases would be let to the U. S. A. . . . or union be entered into or irrevocably committed . . . without the Government first giving opportunity to the House for full discussion."

Mr. Attlee, who serves as Prime Minister Churchill's deputy on the floor of the House, answered that such opportunity is long established, and ignored another Laborite question: "Has our diplomacy over recent years achieved such striking success that Mr. Attlee can stick to the old principles?"

HOW BOMBERS GO TO BRITAIN

40 U. S. Pilots Are Making Mass Deliveries.

BALTIMORE, Dec. 3 (A. P.).—Forty American pilots are making regular deliveries of American bombers to England without molestation from German Nazis, one of them disclosed today, and are taking the ships across the icy north Atlantic at high altitude in approximately ten hours.

George R. Hutchinson, head of the flying Hutchinsons family which in recent years made good will flights to fifty-one countries, asserted that regular deliveries had been made since early November and that none of the pilots had encountered German opposition.

Seven high-speed Lockheed Hudson bombers were delivered in the first flight last month, he said. His own ship made the fastest time for the trip—eight hours and fifty minutes from land to land and ten hours from takeoff in North America to landing in Britain.

The planes take off from an airport in British North America, Hutchinson said, each carrying a pilot, co-pilot and a radio operator. He said about sixty pilots and thirty radio operators, including Americans, Canadians and Britons, were participating.

Asked about passport arrangements for the flyers, Hutchinson's wife said, "It's all arranged by the British."

Separated by Weather.

On the first flight the seven bombers started away in formation, led by a British officer, but after five and a half hours bad weather and severe icing conditions forced them to separate. Although scattered the rest of the way, the pilot said, all of the planes landed within an hour of each other at a predesignated British airport.

Since then, he added mass deliveries have been made on a regular schedule.

Mr. Hutchinson, interviewed during a brief visit here with his family, said the crews were paid monthly salaries and made about one flight a month. They return by boat, with a round-trip thus requiring about two weeks.

Special equipment for the hazardous flights includes oxygen tanks, extra fuel tanks and flotation gear in the event of a forced landing. Mr. Hutchinson said the pilots fly according to strict instructions—which included the action to be taken in case of attacks by German aircraft.

TULSA, Dec. 3 (A. P.).—Four young American volunteers—the first in a new pilot training program for the Canadian Government—began an intensive course in advanced flying today over Oklahoma's rolling flatlands.

Five more trainees will join them next week, and another five the following week. Under present plans, no more than thirty will be in training here at one time, said Capt. Maxwell Balfour, director of the Spartan School of Aeronautics.

Each of the four volunteers for flight service in Canada already has between 200 and 300 hours in the air.

Two other schools in the United States also will train pilots for the Canadian Government under a similar plan. They are the Dallas (Tex.) School of Aviation and Cal Aero Tech, Glendale, Cal.

The course includes eighty hours flight training and 120 hours study in the class room. Capt. Balfour said it would take about sixty days to complete the course.

The four volunteers shook their heads when asked if they expected to see combat service.

"We are given this course, then if we qualify Canada will give us jobs on the airlines or ferrying planes," said Edner.

2 MORE DESTROYED OUTSIDE OF CONVOY

Berlin Boasts Submersibles Broke Through British Naval Escort—Auxiliary Cruiser Is Said to Be Lost.

BERLIN, Dec. 3 (A. P.).—In two successful submarine assaults on Great Britain's commerce yesterday, one of them under the shellfire of British warships, seventeen merchantmen totaling more than 131,000 tons and a 17,000-ton auxiliary cruiser were sent to the bottom, the High Command reported today.

With two others, totaling 16,000 tons, added as probably sunk, the communique said that "thus, on December 2, submarines alone sank British shipping totaling more than 160,000 tons."

[Although the scene of the sinkings was not announced in Berlin, wirelessed appeals for help recorded here yesterday by Mackay Radio indicated that they came from a point about 300 miles west of Ireland. The 5,497-ton sister ships, Lady Clanely and Goodleigh, a craft with the call leters GKIF, the 4,360-ton W. Hendrick, the 12,247-ton tanker Victor Ross and the 4,958-ton Loch Ranza were among the craft reporting themselves in distress.]

At least fifteen of the ships, representing 110,000 tons, went down in one swoop, the High Command said, when U-boats slipped past the booming guns of a convoy's strong cruiser and destroyer guard and rammed home their torpedoes before the zig-zag line of freighters scattered.

DNB Eliminates Identification.

"It is probable," it added, "that two other ships belonging to the convoy and totaling 16,000 tons were also sunk."

Although the communique said that the sunken auxiliary cruiser, one of the protecting vessels which put up "energetic fire" against the U-boats, was the 17,064-ton converted liner Caledonia, DNB, the official German news agency, later asked editors to strike mention of the Caledonia from the communique, substituting merely "an auxiliary cruiser of about 17,000 tons."

[Identification of the Caledonia, however, apparently was erroneous. An Admiralty announcement last June 14, confirming Germany's own claim, admitted that the former Anchor liner, converted for war service and renamed the Scotstown, was sunk by a German submarine the day before with a loss of two officers and four seamen.]

Singles Out One U-boat.

The communique singled out a U-boat commanded by Lieut.-Commander Mengersen in the convoy raid. It said his submarine contributed notably to this success by sinking five ships totaling 41,000 tons.

One of the two ships reported sunk separately from the convoy, it added, was the modern, 12,247-ton motorship Victor Ross.

A Nazi plane on reconnaissance, the only daylight air activity yesterday, added to this toll by sinking another cargo ship southwest of Ireland, the communique said.

17 FREIGHTERS DESTROYED, BERLIN CLAIMS

Auxiliary Cruiser Also Declared Sent Under With Her Guns Blazing

Subs Rammed Home Their Torpedoes Despite "Energetic Fire"

[By the Associated Press]

Berlin, Dec. 3—German submarines swooping against British shipping yesterday sank seventeen merchantmen—fifteen of them in a single convoy—totaling more than 131,000 tons and a 17,000-ton auxiliary cruiser which went down with her guns spouting, the Nazi high command announced today.

Besides these which it declared sunk for sure, two others aggregating 16,000 tons probably were sent to the bottom, today's communique said, adding: "Thus on December 2 submarines alone sank British shipping totaling over 160,000 tons."

Dodged Shell Fire

In the attack on the convoy, the U-boats were reported to have dodged shell fire from a strong cruiser and destroyer protecting force to destroy 110,000 tons of ships. The other two possible victims were in this convoy.

Despite "energetic fire" from the sunken cruiser and the other ships shepherding the convoy, the communique said the submarines got the range and rammed home their torpedoes.

Apart from this attack, the high command asserted another submarine contributed to the day's bag by sinking two other ships aggregating 21,247 tons.

Motorship Claimed Sunk

One of these, it said, was the modern, 12,247-ton motorship Victor Ross.

[Associated Press Editor's Note—The Germans failed to state where the ships were sunk, but distress calls picked up by Mackay Radio over a twenty-hour period beginning Sunday night indicated a mass attack on British ships about 500 miles west of Ireland. Among those sending the calls were the 5,497-ton Lady Clanely and her sister ship, the Goodleigh, a ship which gave the call letters GKIF, the 4,360-ton W. Hendrick, the 12,247-ton tanker Victor Ross and the 4,958-ton Loch Ranza.]

A lone German plane, in the only daylight air activity yesterday, was reported to have added to the toll by sinking a cargo ship of unspecified tonnage southwest of Ireland.

Use Of Super U-Boats By Germans Suspected

New York, Dec. 3 (AP)—Germany's claim today that a total of more than 160,000 tons of British shipping was sunk by submarines yesterday suggested to observers here that the Nazis may be using super-submarines.

On November 13, when Britain's Minister of Shipping, Ronald H. Cross, told the House of Commons Germany probably would make a supreme effort to wreck the British convoy system in the spring, neutral naval quarters in London spoke of reports of new German submarines carrying twenty torpedoes and operating partly as surface craft.

In size, according to these sources, the submarines were surpassed only by the French submarine Surcouf, with surface displacement of 2,800 tons.

Would Have Big Target

Attacking at an angle, these sources added, the torpedo officer would have a target of an almost unbroken line of freighters against which salvos could be fired with three hits out of four tries almost certain.

These submarines, moreover, were said to have a surface speed of nineteen knots, faster than most surface ships.

The size of the British losses claimed by the German high command would indicate a deficiency in escort power of the British—a defect long recognized, since most of Britain's naval strength is generally believed to be concentrated in British waters or the Mediterranean or in blockade work, and with ships scattered across the South Atlantic.

Had 179 Destroyers

Britain started the war with 179 destroyers and with sixteen on the stocks. Probably thirty-five have been lost and fifty acquired from the United States, but the number available is apparently still too small to furnish the kind of protection the Allies, and particularly the United States, gave to convoys during the World War.

German emphasis today was laid on the work of submarines, but Britain has still another menace to cope with—the surface raider.

There have been indications that the 10,000-ton German pocket battleships Admiral Scheer and Lützow, formerly the Deutschland, fast and powerful, are being used for such operations.

It probably was one of two ships which attacked a convoy of thirty-eight merchant vessels in the North Atlantic last month, bagging several in spite of the fight put up by the auxiliary cruiser Jervis Bay which eventually was sunk while most of the others escaped in the darkness.

Several houses were damaged and some injuries were reported after that attack—the first of four daylight raids on London.

Day raiders also attacked an east Anglian town. Observers said that the Nazis machine-gunned the streets there, as well as bombed them.

The Ministry of Home Security reported that some bombs had been dropped at two places in western England during the afternoon, but that only slight damage had been done.

"At one of the places a few people were injured," the Ministry said.

Nazis Resume London Raids

Luftwaffe Spreads Over England and Wales After 'Coventrizing' Port of Bristol.

DEC 4-1940

LONDON, Dec. 3 (A. P.).—The Luftwaffe resumed its familiar night raids on London earlier than usual this evening in the face of dirty flying weather and sent other bombers roaring over England's provinces and Wales.

Heavy gunfire booming in one London area soon after the night alarm began and the sound of motors in the cloudy skies indicated that many planes had been unleashed on London, which recently has enjoyed comparative calm at night.

Many incendiary bombs were reported dropped in a half-dozen districts of a west Midlands town in the first serious raid on that locality in several days. The Germans dropped high explosives on that area and several people were believed trapped under demolished homes.

Movie House Is Struck.

A dozen incendiary bombs fell on a London motion picture theater. They showered the audience with sparks and plaster, but the auditorium was cleared without incident and firemen quickly extinguished the fire.

Raiders were reported early from South Wales and southwest and Midland English towns.

In South England, a German plane dived on a bus and attempted to machine-gun it. The driver, previously warned by bombs falling in a nearby field, shepherded his passengers out of the bus into a ditch and a shower of bullets just missed the vehicle. There were no casualties.

The Germans ignored London last night, but attacked the city in the morning rush hour and dive-bombed one section of the capital. Several houses were damaged and some injuries were reported after that attack—the first of four daylight raids on London.

London Attacked, But Midlands Town Is Apparently Chief Objective

Several Persons Believed Trapped Under Demolished Homes

Madrid, Dec. 3—Reports from La Linea, on the Gibraltar Isthmus, today said fifteen French airplanes landed at Gibraltar last night and this evening. There was no official verification.

[By the Associated Press]

London, Wednesday, Dec. 4—The German Luftwaffe broke off its attacks on London and a western Midlands town shortly before last midnight in the thick of dirty flying conditions.

The Midlands town apparently was the main objective, although the raiders flew over Wales and other provincial areas and paid London fleeting "nuisance" visits, dropping some bombs in the face of heavy anti-aircraft fire.

The Midlands raid, of comparatively short duration, was the first on that town in several days. Principal damage reported was to shops and homes. Several persons were believed trapped under demolished homes.

Dive-Bomb One Section

The Germans ignored London Monday night, but attacked the city in the morning rush hour and dive-bombed one section. Several houses were damaged and some injuries were reported after that attack—the first of four daylight raids on the capital.

Bristol Raided Six Hours

It was in the west—at Bristol—that the Germans Monday night turned destructive force. They pounded that important western port for six hours in the third big raid there in ten days.

The British, meanwhile, said their air offensive included another attack on Lorient, France, where the Germans have built a submarine base from which to raid Atlantic shipping.

Further, the British said, their bombers scored a direct hit on an "enemy supply base" off Norway Monday, and attacked military objectives at Naples and Catania, Sicily, last night.

"Hefty Bombardment" Is Reported By Nazis

Berlin, Dec. 3 (AP)—Returning to the assault on London today, German bombers were reported to have broken through British coastal defenses to deliver a "hefty bombardment" against the capital.

In another attack last night on the port of Bristol, the Germans said their planes dropped bombs of all calibers, setting fires visible for miles.

Nazi Raiders Drive Workers From Their Southampton Jobs

Only 5% Of Plants Destroyed, Officials Say, But Many Will Stay Idle Because Men Can't Get There

DEC 4-1940

By H. TAYLOR HENRY
Associated Press Correspondent

Southampton, England, Dec. 3—This bomb-wrecked port, familiar to thousands of peacetime American tourists as a terminus of the Atlantic run from New York, worked under difficulties today to restore its essential war industries to normal production.

The cumulative effect of a three-weeks' rain of bombs brought to a climax by the week-end's pounding from waves of German raiders, made the city look as battered as Coventry, but British officials estimated that war industries suffered less than a five per cent. plant destruction.

Obviously, this figure did not include the loss of production suffered as a result of the flight of workers from their razed homes.

Central Areas Devastated

The central and slum areas of the city were devastated, and many who worked in the war plants could stay no place near enough for them to report to their jobs.

Nevertheless, employers reported to city officials tonight that they had effected temporary repairs and were ready to resume mass production tomorrow if employes billeted in the surrounding countryside could report for duty.

On a short tour of the city's surrounding areas, a trip made without Government supervision, I saw factories which had been bombed out of action. On the other side of the ledger there were many with steam up and workers already back on the job.

Way Blocked By Debris

I was unable to visit the dock area because my way was blocked by debris from wrecked homes on either side of the highway leading from the center of town to the water front.

From twenty to twenty-five per cent. of the city's 175,000 inhabitants are homeless. They have been billeted within a radius of thirty miles of the city.

Busses take them to and from work and the familiar communal kitchen, on wheels, feeds them at noon outside their plants.

Two things stand out in Southampton:

The speed in restoration of electricity, telephone service and other essential services.

The effective use of advance plans for housing bombed-out workers in the suburbs and getting them back on the job.

Morale remains high and most people go out of their way to help their neighbors or visitors.

U. S. Admiral's News Fiat In 1898 Recalled

[By the Associated Press]

London, Dec. 3—Publicity for Britain's wartime difficulties should be "the surest method of remedying such defects as there may be in our censorship of news for America," Sir William Goode wrote today in a letter to the London Times.

Newfoundland-born Sir William, an economic authority, formerly was a London newspaper editor.

He wrote in support of an article by Drew Middleton, member of the Associated Press London staff, describing the present as Britain's "darkest hour" since last May. The article had been questioned by the Times.

Recalls 1898 Fight

Sir William, an Associated Press correspondent from 1896 to 1904, said the fight over censorship in 1898 "had a different locale but it was the same war." He was on United States Admiral William T. Sampson's flagship throughout the Spanish-American War.

He told of his greeting by Admiral Sampson when he presented himself with official permission from Washington to be the A.P.'s correspondent with the admiral.

What Sampson Said

Sampson quietly told him, he said:

"We no longer have yardarms, but if the Associated Press publishes anything anywhere which endangers the safety of the American fleet I'll hold you responsible and string you up—yardarm or no yardarm."

"My survival, now somewhat prolonged," Sir William added, "is merely tribute to the trustworthiness and discretion of the A. P. of America in wartime."

Note Describes How Bombs Razed Areas of Bristol

Germans Swept Over Horror-Stricken City In Continuous Waves

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Dec. 3.—How an ancient part of Bristol, western English port, which was bombed heavily again last night, was turned into a "run," and many of the city's university buildings swept by fire in a recent German raid was told today in a letter received here.

It was written by Dr. J. S. Spink, a London University lecturer, who moved to Bristol early in the war with other teachers and students.

Dr. Spink is a member of the university and Raid Precautions Guard, and an observer in the squad which watched from Bristol University tower, commanding a good view of the city.

Flares Float Down.

Dr. Spink said he was working in his room when an alert sounded shortly after 6 p. m. on the night of the raid, so he "went up to see."

Here's the story in his own words:

"Two or three big flares floated down, lighting up the whole town. Fires were burning. Suddenly another (a church) started in the center of the city.

"The old town in Bristol is very compact, with narrow, 18th century streets. Suddenly, all along the hills on the south side of town, hundreds of little points of light appeared—incendiaries.

"Then, right across the center of Bristol, in a strip about a quarter of a mile wide, lots of lights appeared—hundreds of incendiaries bursting into flame on the roofs of houses. I must admit the spectacle was grandiose.

Whistle Around Tower.

"Then suddenly they began to fall on us, scores of them whistling down around the tower. Many fell on the buildings, and we rushed downstairs to a flat part of the roof and put out two or three.

"We then returned to the tower and watched another dozen or so fires start in shops and buildings around the base of the tower.

"We thought our own building was alight. But a phone bell rang, and a guard in the science block said they had two or three fires. We rushed down from the tower to help them. As we reached one of the doors a bomb came hissing down. We went out to put out an incendiary on a low roof. Then back to the top of the tower.

Fires Rage Everywhere.

"The Science Block rang again and asked us to phone for help—their phone was no good. Outside fires were raging everywhere. I went to the second floor and phoned the fire brigade.

"On my return I met a colleague who said he thought the Great Hall was on fire. The roof of the Great Hall was of heavy oak timber. The roof was ablaze.

"Then the rush started. There were hoses to pull up and down stairs and get working. I turned a hose on the floor of the hall and played it on the roof until smoke laid me out.

"We kept going and had five hoses at work fairly soon, but the flames sped along the timbers. Burning boards began to fall.

"I was wet to the skin and my suit was ruined, but we didn't care about anything but that . . . fire.

"King's College (London) had 7500 books in that hall and the Kings' offices under it.

Police Order Them Away.

"We carried on until the police cleared us out because of a time bomb. Four bombs had fallen at the base of the building, but none on it.

"Outside scores of fires were raging. The Anatomy Block and Geography Department were done for. The art gallery and museum next door both were ablaze. The whole street was levelled to the ground.

"It was not till the next day that I saw what happened to the shopping and commercial center of Bristol. It is quite true that nearly all damage was done to shops, houses, offices, theaters and cinemas rather than docks and railways.

"But 18th century Bristol is a ruin.

"Why do churches get hit so frequently?

"The next day there was no water and in some parts no light. Some of the streets no longer existed. Lines of 30 to 40 houses were just rubble."

"Luckily, between the second and third belts of incendiaries a wide band was spared from which essential services could be carried on.

"I think Bristol made a rapid recovery and that quite literally the damage, though severe, was not vital—so much consisting as it did in shops.

"Another raid on the same scale the following night might have been a finishing blow, but I suppose the Germans thought they would get better results per ton of bombs if they attacked another town.

"The casualty list was short. I would say there certainly were not fifty killed."

BRITAIN'S AIRMEN BOMBARD NAPLES AND SICILIAN BASE

U-Boat Harbor at Lorient and Shipping Off Norse Coast Also Attacked.

CAIRO, Dec. 3 (A. P.).—Long-range British bombers raided Naples last night, successfully attacking a railway junction and oil refineries, the R. A. F. Middle East Command said today.

"One well-placed stick of bombs straddled oil refineries and started a large fire, visible twenty miles away," the command said.

Catania airdrome, on Sicily, also was attacked, it added.

Rome Affirms Attack.

ROME, Dec. 3 (A. P.).—The Italian High Command said today that British flyers bombed Naples, on the Italian west coast, and Augusta, the Italian naval base in Sicily.

In each instance the damage was described as unimportant.

The High Command said that several small fires were started, but that these were soon brought under control.

U-Boat Base Is Bombed.

LONDON, Dec. 3 (A. P.).—Offensive operations of the Royal Air Force were reported by the Air Ministry today to have included an attack on the German submarine base at Lorient last night and blows against shipping off the Norwegian coast.

Lorient is on the coast of occupied France.

The communique said that a direct hit was scored on the stern of an enemy supply ship off Norway yesterday, and that last night another ship sustained a direct hit and that a large explosion and a fire followed the bombing of wharves at Feje Island.

No aircraft were lost in the operations, it said.

GREEKS REPORT DRIVE TO GATES OF PORTO EDDA

Claim Gains On Entire Front Despite Stiff Italian Resistance

"Choice" Fascist Company Declared Wiped Out In Central Sector

[By the Associated Press]

Athens, Wednesday, Dec. 4—Greek troops have advanced to within a mile and a quarter of Porto Edda, the Italians' southernmost sea base in Albania, a Government spokesmen declared early today.

In that area, he said, the Fascists were retreating rapidly.

He reported, too, that Greek gains were continuing along the entire front despite bad weather and stubborn Italian resistance at some points.

One important advance claimed was the occupation of the heights northeast of Libohovo, some six miles southeast of Argirocastro, the Italian supply base.

Vital Road Shelled

The high command communique said the road linking Argirocastro with Porto Edda had been subjected to Greek artillery fire.

In the center of the front, the spokesman said, the Greeks seized the plateau of Platovouni, "where our men crushed strong enemy resistance."

The capture of some one hundred prisoners in that sector—specifically in the region of the town of Premet—was claimed, and the spokesman said that as the Italians retreated, one of their "choice" companies was decimated and a captain, another officer and "what was left of the company" were made prisoner.

Right Wing Extended

The Greek right wing was declared to have pushed through snow and bad weather generally to extend its line northwest of Moskopolis, and to have dislodged the Italians from the heights in that area.

The Greek high command itself announced the capture of new heights around Pogradetz on the northern front, and the seizure of an unstated number of Italian prisoners and certain heavy arms.

On this front casualties were said to be heavy in fierce fighting during which the Greeks repulsed an enemy counter-attack and advanced across the Devoli river.

Storehouse Bombed

The army's communique added that Greek bombers had successfully attacked storehouses behind the Fascist lines, setting big fires. Two Italian planes were declared shot down to one Greek loss.

Earlier, a general advance into Albania had been claimed for Greek soldiers moving across battlefields wet with snow and rain.

British Flyers Bomb Valona

LONDON, Dec. 3 (AP)—The Air Ministry news service reported today a "successful" raid had been made yesterday by the Royal Air Force on "important military objectives" at Valona, Albania.

One ship in the harbor received a direct hit, the service said, and a stick of bombs fell on the main jetty. Loud explosions followed a fire started in a large portside building, the report said.

One Italian fighting plane was reported shot down. The service said the British lost none.

Reuters, British news agency, attributed tonight to the Athens radio an official Greek statement that 604 persons had been killed and 8,070 injured in Italian air raids on undefended towns and villages in the first month of the Greek-Italian war.

GREEKS RINGING LAST OF ENEMY ON SOUTH FRONT

GAINS ARE MADE ELSEWHERE

ATHENS, Dec. 3 (A. P.).—The Greek left wing, reported to have smashed its way beyond Porto Edda, was said today to be pacing wide new gains all along the battle front and threatening to engulf the last Italian fighting force left in south Albania.

The Greek High Command reported that Greek shock troops won new mountain heights north of Premet, in a thrust into central Albania, and north of Pogradetz, in a drive down the road toward Elbasani, near the Albanian capital, on the right wing; but a Government spokesman described the left wing advance as the most important.

Porto Edda May Be Cut Off.

There, the spokesman said, "the enemy retreated to the heights around Delvino and has passed, in depth, Santi Quaranta." Santi Quaranta is the original name of the port the Italians renamed Porto Edda, after Premier Mussolini's daughter.

The Greeks have apparently not broken the Italian resistance in the section immediately around the port, but they indicated that the Italians there may be cut off.

The High Command declared that the road linking the port with Argyrokastron, fifteen miles to the northeast, had been placed under Greek fire.

Delvino, to which the Italians are reported to have retreated, is five miles northeast of the port on that road.

More Prisoners Taken.

In the central and northern sectors, the High Command reported, more prisoners had been taken and started along the roads back into Greece, already plodded, it was said, by more than 13,000 disarmed Italians. The greatest number of prisoners reported taken was 5,000 yesterday. Their surrender, the Greeks declared, broke the Italian morale and resistance in the center of the fighting front.

"Near Premet," the High Command said, "our sections occupied new positions. . . . On the Ostrovitza Mountains successful attacks by our troops dispersed enemy sections."

A spokesman added: "In the River Aoos region (in the central sector), our troops are fighting with the same courage as that which enabled them to capture Pogradetz, and have captured a summit 2,145 meters (about 7,000 feet) high on Politzani Mountain. There, the Italians were strongly established and had hoped to remain."

He said that the Italians retreated to villages and heights northeast of Premet.

"In the Pogradetz region," the spokesman said, "the enemy tried to cover his retreat by defending himself in the northeastern heights (along Lake Ochrida), but we hope to dislodge the enemy from these heights also."

Meanwhile today the Greek Ministry of Home Security reported considerable damage caused to buildings by an Italian air raid on the island of Corfu, and said that eighteen prominent residents of the Greek frontier town of Philiates were abducted by retreating Italians a week ago.

"Their fate is not known," it added.

Falling Back on Elbasani.

After long and bitter fighting, the Greeks were declared last night to have driven plume-hatted Italian bersaglieri out of the village of Mumulishta, north of captured Pogradetz, in an operation apparently designed to mop up remaining Fascist units along the highway which skirts Lake Ochrida and leads to Elbasani.

Casualties were heavy on both sides, these reports said on the front northwest of Moskopolis, where the Greeks repulsed an Italian counter-attack and advanced across the Devoli River.

Greek sources reported the capture of important heights around Argyrokastron, Italian southern base, and predicted successful conclusion of the campaign in that sector within a few days.

Driving on Elbasani.

BELGRADE, Dec. 3 (A. P.).—Dispatches from the Albanian frontier today indicated that two Greek columns were driving toward Elbasani, forty-five miles by road from Pogradetz, along the Skumbi and Devol River valleys.

These reports said that the Greeks had reached the upper Skumbi Valley, which twists northwest from Pogradetz to Elbasani, and were moving northward toward Elbasani along the Devol Valley, northwest of Moskopolis.

Rome Admits Fierce Fighting.

ROME, Dec. 3 (A. P.).—Fierce fighting along the Albanian battle-front was reported today by the Italian High Command, which said that the Greek attacks were met by Italian counter-attacks on the fronts of the Ninth and Eleventh armies.

Italian bombers were said to have attacked Greek troop positions and communications and to have again raided the Island of Corfu.

British Admiral Reports.

LONDON, Dec. 3 (A. P.).—King George heard a first-hand account of the war in Greece today from Rear Admiral E. E. Turle, British naval attache at Athens.

[By the Associated Press]

London, Dec. 3—Reuters tonight attributed to the Athens radio an official statement that 604 persons had been killed and 8,070 injured in Italian air raids on undefended towns and villages in the first month of the Greek-Italian war.

All Crete Now an Armed Camp

British Transforming Greek Isle Into One of Most Powerful Military Bases.

SUDA BAY, Island of Crete, Dec. 3 (A. P.).—Great Britain and Greece are forging a powerful base out of this strategic island in the eastern Mediterranean, and the British declare it is already effectively blockading Italy's fortified Dodecanese Islands.

Almost all Crete teems with British and Greek soldiers.

Heavy anti-aircraft guns guard the rim of mountains overlooking the harbor, one of the biggest and deepest in this Mediterranean region.

While transports bring in fresh troops and supplies, some of Great Britain's crack warships stand watch in the bay, ready to meet any sea or air attack.

Greeks, working alongside the British, are throwing up new fortifications.

Whole Island a War Camp.

The Greek inhabitants of this peaceful, brown, hilly island have turned readily from their goat-herding, wine-pressing and vegetable farming, and every able-bodied man is enrolled for army service. It is only a little more than a month since Italy invaded Greece, but this whole island has been turned into a war camp.

The British say their men and materials are making Crete one of the strongest links in Great Britain's blockade of the Dodecanese. Not one Italian supply ship, they say, has passed through Kaso Strait since the British base was established here.

How strong Great Britain's land, sea and air forces are is a secret, but officers say they are more than sufficient to cope with any Italian offensive.

Italian Oil Supply Seems Low.

While the British fleet roves the Mediterranean and Ionian seas attempting to achieve its first aim—the destruction of Italy's naval squadrons—it is said to be constantly pushing forward its second aim—isolation of the Dodecanese.

That only sporadic attempts are made to bomb the British fleet and only small air squadrons are used, the British say, is a sign that resources on Rhodes, Lero and other Dodecanese islands are running low. In addition to dwindling Fascist oil supplies, they say, a food shortage is developing.

Route to Libya Blocked.

This base puts the British 400 miles closer to the scene of action than at Alexandria, Egypt, not only athwart Italy's line to the islands, but also nearer to Italy's routes to her North African empire, increasing the hazard of efforts to get supplies to Libya.

Great Britain's naval commanders say their ships have slowed down, if they have not altogether halted, the efforts to provision and re-enforce Marshal Rodolfo Graziani's long-threatening offensive into Egypt. For weeks now, they say, while the British Mediterranean fleet cruises in small formations close to Italy's coasts—the mainland and her islands—no Italian ship has attempted to reach Libya.

SHREWD MOVES LAID TO PETAIN

Diplomats in Berne See Aim to Extend Control.

FASCIST TINGE IS DENIED

Marshal Reported Enormously Popular in France Now.

BERNE, Dec. 3 (A. P.).—Marshal Petain's plan to establish his French Government at historic Versailles was viewed by political observers today as another shrewd step by the Chief of State to extend his authority over all France at a time when his prestige is at a high level.

From Versailles, where the Marshal is expected to use the Trianon Palace, he would be able to take the German-occupied north of France at least partly under his wing, and could co-ordinate with the rest of his Government at Vichy the interests of all France.

Bars Talk at Berlin.

Diplomatic reports from France hinted that Marshal Petain was overriding the advice of his Vice-Premier, Pierre Laval, in arranging to transfer his official residence to the traditional capital of Royal France and shuttle back and forth to Vichy. M. Laval, these reports indicated, advised the Marshal last week to stay in Vichy until he, M. Laval, had discussed arrangements for such a move in Berlin. Marshal Petain was said to have ordered M. Laval to do the arranging in Paris and cancel the trip to Berlin.

Shrewd Plan is Deduced.

This, like Marshal Petain's opposition to the ousting of the French people from Lorraine, caused observers to wonder whether the old Marshal might not be following a shrewd plan to do the most for France, while capitalizing on a belief that he is only a figurehead Chief of State.

Such observers recalled that it was Marshal Petain who let Gen. Maxime Weygand drop out of the Government. Some said, at that time, that M. Laval had "squeezed" Gen. Weygand out; that "old Petain just doesn't know the score."

But today, Gen. Weygand seems far stronger in North Africa than he could have been at Vichy. He commands the loyalty of a well-trained North African army next door to Italian Libya, and his presence there has been considered Vichy's best guaranty of consideration from France's conquerors.

Enormously Popular.

Marshal Petain's recent trip to the provinces has given him a new reputation in Vichy—that of a man who likes to govern and who thinks for himself.

His public prestige, which was great among the people even when most men considered him only a figurehead, is enormous now.

Travelers from the occupied zone almost all report that the phrase they hear most is that "Papa Petain will see us through, if only he lives to finish the job." He is 84 years old.

Those close to Marshal Petain say that he has a clear-cut plan; that he believes France will have no real guaranty until a final settlement has been made with her conquerors; and that he believes no such settlement can be reached until the Axis war with Great Britain is ended.

Fascist Tinge Denied.

Accordingly, they declare, he has placed France's relations with the conquerors in M. Laval's care—after noting that M. Laval, as a man without a party and without wide popular support, appears no threat as a dictator.

Marshal Petain was said by his friends to be particularly anxious to maintain good relations with the United States. On learning of Admiral William Leahy's appointment as Ambassador to France, he was said to have declared: "Good—I hope he speaks French, for we have much to talk about."

One personal friend who talked with the Marshal of Vichy, recently scoffed at reports that he was turning France into a Fascist-type state.

"Do not confuse an old soldier's idea of war with Fascism," this person warned.

Henry-Haye Asked Petain To Make Versailles Move

Mayor and Envoy to U. S. Happy Over Projected Change

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3 (AP).—Gaston Henry-Haye, still Mayor of Versailles as well as French Ambassador to the United States, took some of the credit today for the projected move of Chief of State Marshal Henri Petain's headquarters to the famous old city near Paris. Beaming with civic pride, Henry-Haye revealed that he had suggested this to Petain last summer.

"I saw Marshal Petain at Clermont-Ferrand and asked him to establish his government at Versailles," Henry-Haye said. Clermont-Ferrand was a temporary seat of government before the officials moved to Vichy. "Naturally I am happy that he is doing so now."

Petain "will be no prisoner" at Versailles, Henry-Haye emphasized, although the city is in German-occupied France. "If Marshal Petain establishes himself there," he said, "you can be sure he knows he will have freedom of action. Otherwise, he would not go."

Henry-Haye discounted speculation that Gen. Maxime Weygand, now in French Morocco, was acting independently of the Vichy government in his colonial activities. "As a soldier, Gen. Weygand obeys orders of Marshal Petain—make no mistake about that," the ambassador said.

The French Ambassador had his first meeting today with Admiral William D. Leahy, new American Ambassador to France, who also called on Secretary of State Cordell Hull to discuss his new duties as a diplomat.

DE GAULLE BIDS FOR FRENCH AID

Arrival of Any General Welcome, He Says.

LONDON, Dec. 3 (A. P.).—Gen. Charles de Gaulle, leader of the Free French forces, bid today for co-operation of French military followers of the Vichy Government by informing his first press conference that "any French general" would be welcome.

He said, however, that he knew nothing of a report that Gen. Maxime Weygand had eased measures taken by Vichy against De Gaulle followers in Morocco after their futile attempt to capture Dakar in French West Africa with British aid. Nor has he received any indication of what Weygand's intentions are, he said, in view of reports that the former Allied generalissimo had disobeyed a Vichy order to return to France.

"All Frenchmen, whoever they are, who can contribute anything will be welcome," he haid. "There is no exclusion, no exception."

He said that the Free French forces now number 35,000 men under arms, with twenty warships and sixty merchant vessels.

Acknowledges the importance of what remained to Vichy of the French Fleet, he said he was convinced the first aim of the Germans was to use it. He added that the Germans would carry the war into the Mediterranean before the Allies become superior in the air by 1941. He also expressed the opinion that Vichy might one day order an attack on French Equatorial Africa, and that the Germans wanted that to happen.

British War Expenses Touch Record Figure

LONDON, Dec. 3 (A. P.).—Last week's British war expenditures rose to the record figure of £90,133,950 (roughly, $360,536,000). The previous week expenditures were £72,350,000 ($289,400,000).

The total to date for the financial year, starting April 1, is £2,149,918,499 (about $8,600,000,000).

'Deux Gaules' Cry in Paris Causes a de Gaulle Riot

By The Associated Press.

BASLE, Switzerland, Dec. 3—Two bamboo fishing poles caused a riot between French students and German soldiers in which two persons were killed and many injured near Paris's Arch of Triumph on Armistice Day, the newspaper Democrate of Delemont reported tonight.

The French for "two poles" is "deux gaules"—which sounds like the name of the "Free French" leader, General Charles de Gaulle. The riot started when the parading students pointed to the poles they carried and shouted "Vive! Vive!"

Tea and Sugar Rations Raised in Britain

LONDON, Dec. 3 (A. P.).—Lord Wolton, the Food Minister, announced today that his Christmas gift to the nation would be increased sugar and tea rations for the week of December 16.

They will be twelve ounces of sugar and four ounces of tea, instead of eight and two ounces, respectively, allowed now.

London Bans Hooky

London, Wednesday, Dec. 4 (AP)—Authorities decided today to set the truant officer on London's dead-end kids.

They estimated that three-fourths of the 92,000 school children remaining in the city are not going to school, but are spending their nights in air-raid shelters and their days roaming the streets.

Now, along with the growing campaign for compulsory removal of children from the city, school attendance is to be enforced.

Italians Mob British Postoffice At Tangier

Rip Down Bulletins And Photographs And Destroy Equipment, London Hears

London, Dec. 3 (AP)—Reuters dispatch from Tangier, Morocco, said today twenty Italians entered the British postoffice there, tore down an official news bulletin and photographs and destroyed office equipment.

Afterward the group did considerable damage to a British business house. No arrests were reported.

Tangier, formerly an international zone, has been occupied by Spanish forces.

Washington Informed Of British-Madrid Deal

LONDON, Dec. 3 (A. P.).—An authoritative source said today the State Department at Washington had been kept informed of Britain's intentions regarding a financial agreement signed yesterday at Madrid which released Spanish credits in Britain for Spanish purchases there.

The agreement, this source said, was minor and purely technical, and was not a preliminary step to a larger trade pact. Spain's declaration of non-belligerency in the European war was said to have been taken into consideration in releasing the credits.

CHILDREN TO COME HERE

Group Of 37 To Sail On Exporter Friday.

Lisbon, Portugal, Dec. 3 (AP)—A group of thirty-seven children, including many war orphans, will leave for the United States Friday on the American Export Lines ship Exporter.

Brought here November 30, they have been living in a school in the outskirts of Lisbon under the care of the Unitarian Service Committee of Boston and the United States Committee for European Children of New York. Including Russians, Germans, Czechs, Hungarians and Australians, most of them had been in school in France.

Pope Asks Christmas Truce

Appeals to Belligerents to Keep War From Drowning Out Angel Chorus of Peace.

VATICAN CITY, Dec. 3 (A. P.).—Pope Pius XII asked warring Powers today to observe a Christmas truce to keep "the clash of arms from drowning out the angel chorus of peace."

The pontiff called on the belligerents to observe a truce "spontaneously or by mutual accord" in order that "new bloodshed may not disturb or miserably extinguish heavenly joy of that hour."

The appeal was contained in a motu proprio, the name given to certain papal rescripts because of the phrase, motu proprio—"of his own accord"—used in the document.

The pontiff's appeal accompanied permission for Christmas Eve masses in the afternoon instead of midnight where wartime blackouts prevail.

In addition, the Pope freed Catholics in war-stricken regions from obligations to attend mass on Christmas Day itself.

Translation of Appeal.

"Since the present war is bringing ruin and carnage not only to combatant armies but sometimes even to peaceable citizens, we, inspired by the paternal affection which we cherish toward all peoples, are overlooking nothing that can bring at least spiritual comfort to those who are bearing sorrows and distress of all kinds because of war.

"With the approach meanwhile of the solemnities of Christmas Eve, we are preoccupied with the thought that, in many places, those sacred rites cannot be carried out without difficulty and danger which are customarily celebrated at midnight Christmas Eve with such gentle emotion of Christian sentiment. It has been established by law in not a few nations in fact that for fear of reciprocal night air raids, lights must be put out or concealed in order that towns and villages will no longer be exposed to such attacks.

"It is fair to hope and trust that at least on that Holy Night and on that Holy Day all belligerents will declare a truce, either spontaneously or by mutual accord, so that the clash of arms shall not cover the angelic chorus of peace which is repeated in the sacred temples and so that new fraternal bloodshed shall not disturb or miserably extinguish the heavenly joy of that hour.

Because of Blackout Laws.

"In any event, however moved by a desire that, as we said above, the faithful shall not lack heavenly blessings and comforts, after major deliberation, by virtue of our apostolic authority, we decree and establish by 'motu proprio' as follows:

"With the present very sad circumstances continuing, in those regions in which blackout laws are in force, it is permissible for individual ordinaries to concede that in primatical, metropolitan, cathedral, collegiate and parochial mass, which usually is celebrated at Christmas midnight, be celebrated instead the evening of Christmas Eve in such a way, however, that between the end of the sacred rite and the moment in which the above mentioned laws are enforced there remain some intervals of time. Ordinaries may also concede the above provision to other churches and public oratories—not however to semi-public and private oratories—provided they enjoy by custom of centuries since time immemorial or by apostolic indulgence the privilege of having the Eucharistic sacrifice celebrated on Christmas Eve.

Issues Instructions.

"Before the above-mentioned conventual mass is celebrated in the evening, matins may be recited in chorus beginning, if necessary, at noon. Priests who make use of this concession can celebrate only two masses the following day, observing a natural fast from midnight.

"Priests who make use of this privilege must abstain from taking any food or drink whatsoever for four hours before beginning the celebrations of the Holy Mass of Christmas Eve.

"Those who piously take part in the eucharistic sacrifice the evening of Christmas Eve will fulfill the holy day rule for the following day.

"Finally, all faithful who take part in the eucharistic sacrifice the evening of Christmas Eve may, even if they took communion in the morning, approach the holy table provided they are confessed, well disposed and have fasted for four hours. They may not however approach the divine table the following day.

"We will and ordain everything established in this motu proprio shall have force and effect, anything to the contrary notwithstanding."

Italians Silent.

ROME, Dec. 3 (A. P.).—Italian authorities withheld comment today on the Pope's proposal for a Christmas truce in the European war, but Italy's compliance is expected in unofficial circles if Great Britain and her allies signify acceptance.

Churchill's 'No' Stands.

LONDON, Dec. 3 (A. P.).—Well-informed spokesmen said today that Prime Minister Winston Churchill's "No" to a Christmas truce suggestion in Parliament last week also covered the proposal of Pope Pius XII for a Christmas armistice.

T. E. Naylor, Laborite, of Southwark, asked the Prime Minister on November 26 whether he would "invoke the good offices of the Vatican or of some neutral State in furthering a proposal that . . . the belligerent nations should agree to a forty-eight-hour cessation of hostilities on sea, on land and in the air from 12 noon on December 24 until 12 noon on December 26 with or without the cooperation of China and Japan?"

"No, sir," Mr. Churchill replied, to cries of "Hear, Hear."

Germany's Reaction.

BERLIN, Dec. 3 (A. P.).—Pope Pius's expression of hope for a Christmas truce was received by authorized German quarters today with the comment that it had never been the practice of the German fighting forces to disturb the quiet of the holy day.

They said, however, that the German attitude toward the forthcoming Christmas would be determined by that of the other side, implying that the Germans were willing to have an undisturbed day if the English were willing to stay at home, but were also willing to fight if their opponents did.

"Nothing definite can be said about Christmas action," a spokesman explained. "If we said we were not going to do anything, it might be accepted as a challenge to the enemy to start something."

IRON GUARD'S POLICE FORCE IS ABOLISHED

Leader Also Moves to Expel the Disreputable Element From Green Shirts.

THOUSANDS MAY BE INVOLVED

Undesirables Blamed for Purge —Rumania Quiet as More Nazi Troops Pour In.

BUCHAREST, Dec. 3 (A. P.).—The Iron Guard chieftain, Horia Sima, abolished today the Iron Guardist police organization which played a leading role in the revenge blood purge of the past two months.

He coupled this move to restore order in the turbulent ranks of the Iron Guard with an order for the dismissal of those "guilty of false heroism." Rumanians interpreted this latter action as meaning that Sima and the Rumanian Premier, Gen. Ion Antonescu, are determined to oust thousands of disreputable members.

These undesirables have been blamed for the present anarchy in Rumania, which reached a peak last week with the assassination of sixty-four former officials high in the regime of the ousted King Carol.

Germans Streaming In.

Comparative quiet prevailed throughout the country today as German troop re-enforcements streamed in.

In disbanding the Iron Guard police force, Sima ordered them to deposit their arms at headquarters within twenty-four hours, forbade them to walk in groups of more than three each and banned singing on the streets.

State employees were forbidden to wear green shirts, the Iron Guardist regalia, while on duty.

The dissolution order said that the police organization "had accomplished its mission in helping the Iron Guard in an epoch of transition."

The last act of the Guardist police was a raid on a Constanta spinning mill where it uncovered, it said, "the headquarters of a nationwide white slavery ring with hundreds of little girls as well as ladies of good society involved."

How Jorga's Fate Was Decided.

The fate of Nicholas Jorga, seventy-two-year-old former Premier, who was executed last week by Iron Guardists, was decided as he was walked through the streets of Bucharest, Rumanian informants said today.

Jorga, an old friend of ex-King Carol, was seized by seven green-shirted Iron Guardists at Sinaia House and was hurried along by his captors as they talked. He was silent as they argued the question of death or life. For three hours they walked, debating fiercely in undertones. At last they came to a woods. There they voted. Four were for death.

"I expected this," the aged man said wearily.

He was one of the first men, once high in Rumanian affairs under Carol, to be executed in revenge for the death of Corneliu Zelea Codreanu, founder of the Iron Guard, who was killed two years ago.

The Holy Synod of the Orthodox Church pledged its loyalty to the Iron Guard State today and called for an end of discord in a statement signed by the Patriarch. The people were urged to pray that the life of King Michael "be a moral one, conforming to Christian precepts."

Gigurtu Reported in Reich.

BUDAPEST, Dec. 3 (A. P.).—Authoritative Rumanian informants said today that former Premier Ion Gigurtu and former Foreign Minister Mihael Manoilescu had fled to Germany to escape Iron Guard threats of assassination in Bucharest.

Former Foreign Ministers Gheorghe Tatarescu and Istrate Micescu were said by the same informants to be trying to enter Yugoslavia.

URGES QUIET ARREST

Gandhi Tells Aids to Have Only Police Hear Defiance.

BOMBAY, Dec. 3 (A. P.).—Mohandas Gandhi, the Indian nationalist leader, today ordered that members of the All India Congress avoid public demonstrations in their protest against Indian participation in the war.

Gandhi telegraphed Rajendra Prasad, former president of the Congress, that only the police, not the public, should be notified when Congress leaders planned to invite arrest by threatening to make anti-war speeches.

Chakravarthi Rajagopalachari of Madras, former Congress Premier, was jailed for one year today under the defense of India rules.

RUSSIAN GENERAL ASKS BIGGER ARMY

Says World Conditions Call for Soviet Vigilance.

MOSCOW, Dec. 3 (A. P.).—Gen. Ivan V. Toulenev, commander of the Moscow military district, reviewed the international situation and called for a further strengthening of the Red Army in an address to an infantry division today.

"International conditions indicate that enemies of our Socialist country will try again to organize all possible troubles and provocations," he said. "This compels us to be vigilant."

Reviewing army reforms under Marshal Timoshenko, Commissar of Defense, the general said that one aim was "to eliminate all defects in the training of individual fighters and units." Others included the tightening up of discipline and improvement in the education of young officers.

The navy organ, the Red Fleet, in an international review, emphasized the importance of the Dutch East Indies.

"The submission of the Dutch Indies to Japan," it said, "would not only deprive the Netherlands of its richest Far Eastern colony but would also have extremely serious consequences in England and the United States."

NAZI SHIP DUE TO SAIL

Orinoco to Try Again to Run Blockade.

TAMPICO, Dec. 3 (A. P.).—The 9,660-ton German steamship Orinoco, whose attempt to run the British blockade was cut short by engine trouble just outside Tampico harbor on November 15, had steam up again today.

She was ready to sail last night, loaded to capacity with fuel, live hogs, meat and other provisions, but lacked clearance papers.

Three other German vessels—the Idarwald, the Rhein and the Phrygia—left with the Orinoco in her unsuccessful dash last month, but when they sighted warships offshore which they identified as British, three returned to the harbor, and the Phrygia's crew scuttled their vessel. The warships were later identified as United States vessels on neutrality patrol.

The Rhein and Idarwald left Tampico again last week, giving Spanish ports as their destination.

BRAZIL ENTERS PROTEST

Lodges Complaints With Britain Over Ship Stoppings

Rio de Janeiro, Dec. 3 (AP)—Brazil was reported reliably today to have made separate protests to Britain over the recent halting of three Brazilian ships by British war vessels.

The vessels involved included the Siqueira Campos, which was halted off Portugal and escorted to Gibraltar; the Buarque, halted off Venezuela, and the Itape, which was stopped eighteen miles off Brazil last Sunday for removal of twenty-two passengers, described by the British as Germans.

ROOSEVELT SAILS ON CARIBBEAN TRIP

Cruiser Tuscaloosa And Two Warship Escorts Depart From Miami

President Indicates Only General Idea As To Where He Plans To Go

DEC 4-1940

[By the Associated Press]

Aboard U. S. S. Mayrant, En Route to Caribbean, Dec. 3—President Roosevelt shoved off from Miami aboard the cruiser Tuscaloosa today and headed for the Caribbean Sea, indicating that he himself had only a general idea of where he will go.

He parried questions about whether he will inspect air and naval sites acquired from England or watch exercises of Atlantic petrol units and marines at Culebra Island, near Puerto Rico.

Thousands lined Miami streets to cheer as the President rode in an open automobile from his special train to the docks to be piped aboard the 10,000-ton light cruiser.

Harbor Craft Salute

Harbor craft whistled a salute. Mr. Roosevelt paused at attention on the gangplank as the band played the National Anthem. He appeared on an upper deck a few minutes later to smile and wave in response to a tremendous cheer.

It was cloudy and Mr. Roosevelt grinned and nodded when a spectator shouted:

"We'll have that sun out for you when you come back."

After tugs nudged the cruiser into the channel, Tuscaloosa cannon boomed a twenty-one-gun Presidential salute. Two escort destroyers, the Mayrant and the Trippe, moved out after the big warship had cleared.

Indicates Serious Purpose

At a press conference aboard the train, Mr. Roosevelt indicated his voyage has a serious purpose and is not a vacation. That fishing stuff is the bunk, he asserted when asked if he will try his luck.

To a question about whether he will inspect the new Caribbean bases, the President replied he had not the faintest idea. Then he added that, of course, he had a general idea, but would keep it to himself.

He said he had talked of four different points to which he might return.

Gun Crews On Watch

Because foreign warcraft have been rumored in the Caribbean, the President's flotilla will take unusual precautions. Gun crews on the Tuscaloosa and the destroyers will stand constant watch, with live shells in their weapons.

Spotlights will play all night on the United States flags. The same measures were used last February when Mr. Roosevelt sailed to Panama and into the Pacific Ocean.

In the President's party were:

HARRY L. HOPKINS, former Secretary of Commerce.

MAJ. GEN. E. M. WATSON.

CAPT. DANIEL J. CALLAGHAN.

It is the first time since last summer that Mr. Roosevelt has gone so far from Washington that he cannot reach the Capital by train in twelve hours. When he announced plans for the trip he explained that he was breaking his self-imposed rule only because he could return by plane if necessary.

Recalls Previous Jest

Recalling that when he began a cruise last February that took him to Panama and into the Pacific he had said he was going to islands that were not even on the map—including the fictitious Cheruble Islands—the Chief Executive grinned broadly and said that this time he would not deceive reporters.

"We are going to Chisttmas Island to buy Christmas cards," he went on, "and to Easter Island to buy Easter eggs."

"Will you arrive at Christmas Island on Christmas?" he was asked.

"No," he replied, "we'll have to arrive before that to get the cards off."

The newest addition to the White House kennels, a black Scotty pup named Falla, accompanied the President on the cruise.

The naval exercises are not maneuvers, Mr. Roosevelt insisted. Rather there will be what he termed just the usual winter landing parties that take place every year, with a mock night attack and defense of Culebra Island.

The operations, he said, will be chiefly by marines, since the Atlantic patrol squadron will, for the most part, still be on patrol.

SHIP OFF FOR MIAMI

Trans-Atlantic Schooner Sets Sail From Nassau

DEC 4-1940

NASSAU, Bahamas, Dec. 3 (A. P.).—Henry B. Clarke started an unscheduled voyage to Miami last night aboard the schooner Marie in which he and a crew of six made a dangerous fifty-eight-day crossing from England.

The yacht moved out of the harbor last night and Clarke announced he would anchor outside. It was revealed today that the vessel left for Miami about 10 P. M.

The schooner should make the trip in from thirty-six to forty hours.

Clarke said he made the long voyage in order that he might spend Christmas with his family in Roslyn, N. Y.

He had difficulties here with the immigration authorities over the status of his crew. He obtained permission, however, to leave for Miami.

Thailand Reports 'Atacks' on Border Beaten Off as Hanoi Orders Retaliations

BOMB FRENCH WARSHIPS

Bangkok Airmen Have Raided Two Towns Four Times Each, Vichy Government Says

BANGKOK, Thailand, Dec. 3 (AP)—The Thai Siamese High Command announced today that a French effort to seize the southeastern Thai province of Trad had been beaten off, with damage to one of two French warships, which landed a "considerable number" of troops.

The vessel, it was added, suffered three bomb hits.

The French attempts, the communiqué added, were frustrated by joint action of Thai air and military forces. The action occurred yesterday.

The communiqué said a detachment of French troops landed a few miles from the Thai frontier and penetrated inland a short distance before being repulsed by military and police guards, while Thai aircraft attacked the warships.

The vessel hit was declared to have been struck directly on the turrets and perhaps in the engine room as well. It was said to have retreated.

Another clash was reported on the northeast front near Magor Banom, where a French landing party was declared repulsed with heavy casualties.

Thai aviation, the communiqué said, also carried out retaliatory raids across the frontier, wrecking a French military headquarters at Thanhek.

French Order "Retaliations"

HANOI, French Indo-China, Dec. 3 (AP)—The Fench Colonial Government reported today that "severest French retaliations" were taking place along the entire Mekong River valley along the border where bombings and patrol skirmishes have strained relations between Indo-China and Thailand.

The Mekong valley section was isolated from the rest of Indo-China yesterday, when alleged fifth columnists were said to have severed communications. The French said the entire border between Indo-China and Thailand was closed.

This was taken by some observers as an indication there was increasingly widespread fighting on land, sea and in the air along the frontier strip where Thailand has made territorial demands upon Indo-China.

The belief was expressed in some quarters that the original cause of friction, territorial claims, had been fanned by foreign influences seeking to disturb the status quo in Southeastern Asia.

The first French casualty in the border disorders was reported. A French sailor was listed as killed when a French Mekong River gunboat was machine-gunned below Vientiane, allegedly by Thai gunners. Several sailors were wounded.

French forces were reported taking severe action against 10,000 natives described as insurrectionists in the vicinity of Mytho.

French Deny Capture

Vichy, France, Dec. 3 (AP)—The French Ministry of Colonies said today there was no truth in "tendentious" foreign reports that Thailand (Siam) troops had occupied three districts in the Aranza border region of French Indo-China.

The Ministry also denied reports that Indo-Chinese planes had bombed Thailand towns, or that any had been shot down by Thailand artillery.

[By the Associated Press]

Hongkong, Wednesday, Dec. 4—Domei said today in a dispatch from Hanoi, French Indo-China:

"French authorities reported the most severe retaliation was taking place in the entire Mekong river valley, which is regarded by observers as a clear indication of increasingly widespread fighting by land and air along the frontier" (of Thailand).

Siam Works For Order

[By the Associated Press]

Singapore, Dec. 3—The official Bangkok radio announced today the Thailand (Siam) Government had named a high police official to coordinate defense units along the troubled Indo-China border, and Thai officials here interpreted the move as an attempt to maintain order in the frontier zone by civil rather than military means.

The appointment, these officials said, apparently indicated the Bangkok Government still had hopes of a diplomatic settlement of territorial disputes with French authorities.

These quarters said that, with the exception of "retaliatory" operations carried out last week by the Thai air force, only Thai police had been involved in recent border incidents.

They declared regular army units were being held well behind the frontier, and that the Thai navy had been ordered to remain at its bases, or within territorial waters in the Gulf of Siam.

Japanese Bomb Tin Refineries

HONG KONG, Dec. 3 (AP)—Japanese dispatches reported today that large tin refineries in Kokiu, Yunnan Province, had been reduced to ashes by fire and explosions by Japanese aerial bombing yesterday. A communiqué by the Japanese South China Sea Fleet said the raids were the first after several weeks of inactivity because of unfavorable weather. The Central [Chinese] News said one of the bombers crashed against a mountain.

Tokio's Spokesman Going to Madrid

TOKIO, Dec. 3 (A. P.).—The Foreign Office announced today the appointment of Yekichiro Suma, its official spokesman and former counselor of the embassy in Washington, as Minister to Spain, and of Yoshio Muto, Consul-General at Tientsin, China, as Consul-General at San Francisco.

Latest American Loan To China Brings Comment On Possibility Of Conflict

Tokyo, Wednesday, Dec. 4 (AP)—The latest American loan to China brings Japan and the United States closer to "the final test," the Japanese newspaper Miyako declared today.

It said Japan did not intend to attack any nation, "but cases may arise where Japan is forced to accept the American challenge."

The paper adde dthat "whether an armed clash comes in the Pacific depends solely on American action."

Chugai, another paper, professed to see increased opposition toward Japan since the United States Presidential election.

Rumanian Diplomatic Action Is Announced by Japan

TOKYO (Wednesday) Dec. 4 (AP)—The Japanese Foreign Office said today that Rumania had recognized Manchukuo with formal notes published at Hsingking.

Manchukuo, set up under Japanese aegis in 1932, previously had been recognized by Japan, Germany, Italy, Hungary, El Salvador and Poland.

BLOCKADED SECTOR IN SHANGHAI GROWS

Japanese Extend Its Limits as Gendarme Dies

SHANGHAI, Dec. 3 (A. P.).—The Japanese blockade of Shanghai's Badlands, imposed Saturday to facilitate search for a gunman, was extended today to the western boundary of the International Settlement as a Japanese gendarme wounded by the gunman was reported to have died.

Inside the barbed wire network through which no food supplies have passed since Saturday thousands of Chinese milled about. Many were reported suffering from hunger. Five primary schoolchildren were said to be living without food or heat in their schoolroom.

The Japanese announced partial lifting of blockade restrictions effecting foreigners, however, after Danish Consul-General Scheel made representations to the Japanese consul-general. The Japanese said it still was necessary that they search foreigners, however.

Japanese May Lift Ban On Fur Exports in China

Military Agrees to Receive Foreigners' Applications

TIENTSIN, China, Dec. 3 (AP).—Japanese military authorities agreed today to receive applications from foreign traders for export of all furs purchased in north China prior to Oct. 2, when regulations sharply restricting the export trade were decreed.

The announcement followed two months of negotiations by the fur traders association, which includes many Americans. The latter estimated furs worth $750,000 in American money were awaiting shipment.

Buyers said that even if the shipments were cleared, they would cease further purchases pending clarification of the Japanese attitude toward foreign trade in North China.

Norway Navy's Former Commander Dies In U.S.

Vice-Admiral Christian Sparre, 81, Found Dead In Hotel Room In Portland, Ore.

Portland, Ore., Dec. 3 (AP)—Vice Admiral Christian Sparre, former commander of the Norwegian Navy, was found dead in his room at a hotel here today.

Norwegian Consul Emil Slovarp, who took charge of the body, said the consulate at Seattle had been searching for the 81-year-old war refugee, who was to have arrived in Seattle by train from Los Angeles last Saturday.

He evidently became ill on the train and stopped off at Portland without notifying anyone of his connections, Slovarp said. Gideon Snook, coroner's deputy, attributed Sparre's death to natural causes.

Admiral Sparre, who had retired from the Norwegian navy, left his home in Oslo, Norway, last February for a holiday cruise to Buenos Aires. As he prepared to sail for home, the Germans invaded Norway and he never returned. Since then he had visited many countries, including England.

U. S. Court Frees Seaman Who Dared British Zone

First Indicted, He Fears Lawyers More Than U-Boats

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 3 (AP).—Commenting, "You've got more nerve than I have," Judge George A. Welsh gave Frank McElherron, marine engineer accused of violating the neutrality law by sailing on a vessel which entered the European war zone, a suspended sentence today.

McElherron, fifty-two-year-old resident of New York, was said by government officials to be the first person indicted under the neutrality law provision forbidding Americans to enter combat zones. He was chief engineer of the Greek steamship Nocolaou Virginian, which sailed from Savannah, Ga., to Glasgow, Scotland, last July.

"Did you see any submarines?" asked Judge Welsh.

"No, sir, but we heard them, and, to tell you the truth, I'm more afraid of lawyers than I am of submarines," McElherron replied.

Asserts Reds Taught Pupils That Teachers Were Enemies

Brooklyn Zoologist Says Party Gave Public School Children, 6 To 14, Soviet Slant On Life

[By the Associated Press]

DEC 4-1940

New York, Dec. 3—A story of how a New York grammar-school child is taught to be a Communist—by beating up Boy Scouts and regarding teachers and policemen as enemies—was told today by a Brooklyn zoologist to a joint legislative committee investigating subversive movements in the city school system.

Ralph de Sola, the witness, testified he joined the Communist party and was assigned to the Children's Movement—the Communist training school for children from 6 to 14.

"They were taught the 'Soviet slant' on life," he testified. "They were taught their only friends were the defenders of the Soviet system, and their enemies teachers, policemen and others who did not believe as they did."

Names Faculty Members

Part of this program, he added, consisted of waylaying and beating Boy Scouts, although frequently the tables were turned and "other kids would sock them and beat them up."

De Sola also said Morris U. Schappes, history instructor at the College of The City of New York, and Mrs. Elizabeth Deward and Miss Yetta Feigenbaum, Brooklyn public school teachers, were members of the Communist party.

At the opening session yesterday, Dr. Bernard D. N. Grebanier, assistant professor of English at Brooklyn College, testified that he and eight other faculty members joined the party, using aliases to conceal their identity. Seven of those he named denied any connection with the Communist party and accused him of being "hysterical."

Says Cost Was $500 Yearly

He continued today that it had cost him approximately $500 a year to belong, some for dues, some for support of the Communist publication, The Daily Worker, and the rest for "The Red Front Fund."

"I never knew exactly what that front was," he said.

Grebanier said his testimony "might give a false impression of the situation at Brooklyn College today."

"I believe the Communist influence is now at the vanishing point," he said. "The Young Communist League has lost much influence among the students. What influence it has, has been reduced to members of the organization. I believe the same thing is true for the faculty."

Tells Of Student Publication

He told the committee that faculty members at Brooklyn College attempted to promote Communism among the students by publishing a paper known as The Staff from May, 1935, through 1939.

He identified a commencement address in a June (1936) issue which he said had been written by Dr. Frederic Ewen, assistant English professor. Grebanier said the article set forth that the Communist party alone held any hope for American youth.

From one issue, Grebanier read to the committee a list of Communist publications which he said were required reading for students of Brooklyn College.

The list as read by Grebanier included The Daily Worker, "Why Communism?" "Communist Manifesto," "Life of Karl Marx," "The Foundation of Leninism," by Stalin, and "Communism In the United States," by Earl Browder.

Day's War Communiques

DEC 4-1940

German

BERLIN, Dec. 3 (AP).—The German high command communique:

On Dec. 2, submarines attacked with marked success a convoy bound for England and dispersed it.

Although the convoy was strongly protected by cruisers and destroyers, and notwithstanding the immediate opening of energetic fire, fifteen ships totaling over 110,000 gross registered tons, as well as an auxiliary cruiser of 17,000 tons, which was one of the protecting vessels, were hit and sunk.

It is probable that two other ships belonging to the convoy and totaling 16,000 tons were also sunk.

A submarine under Lieut. Cmdr. Mengerson, which sank five ships totaling 41,000 tons, contributed notably to this success.

In addition to the above successes, another submarine reports sinking two armed enemy merchantmen, totaling 21,247 gross registered tons, one of which was the modern motorship, Victor Ross, of 12,247 tons.

Thus, on Dec. 2, submarines alone sank British shipping totaling over 160,000 tons.

The German air force continued on Sunday the night attacks on Southampton, where already existing fires were extended. Explosions in warehouses in the harbor district were observable across the Channel as far as the French coast. The weakness of the British anti-aircraft defense helped to increase the precision of the German aim.

London, Birmingham and Liverpool were also bombed.

Mining of British ports from the air was continued.

The activity of the air force during the day was limited to reconnoitering. In the course of a reconnaissance flight one cargo ship was bombed and sunk to the southwest of Ireland.

Monday night strong German formations attacked a port on the west coast of England.

The nightly activity of the British air force was confined to some incursions over occupied territory near the coast.

One German airplane is missing.

Greek

AHHENS, Dec. 4 (Wednesday) (AP).—A Greek high command communique:

In the Pogradetz region we captured new heights after fierce fighting. Prisoners were taken, and automatic weapons, howitzers and three guns fell into our hands.

On the remainder of the front, there was fighting, with some progress by our troops.

Our bomber aircraft successfully bombed columns and storehouses behind the enemy line, and large fires were started. Our fighter aircraft in battles with the enemy downed two planes. One of our planes did not return.

A Greek Ministry of Home Security communique:

The enemy carried out the following air raids against the civil population yesterday:

1. Filiatra (Peloponnese), small number of casualties and slight damage.

2. Prevana, small number casualties, slight damage to buildings.

3. Lefkas, small number casualties, slight damage.

The major casualties of yesterday's bombings were women and children. The bombed towns were of no military interest whatsoever.

Italian

ROME, Dec. 3 (AP).—The Italian high command communique:

Greek attacks and our counter-attacks took place on the fronts of the 9th and Eleventh Armies.

Our air force, co-operating with ground troops, bombed lines of communication and machine-gunned enemy positions and motor columns.

Our air squadrons bombed a new fort and other military objectives at Corfu.

In the central Mediterranean, our chasers shot down a plane of the Blenheim type in flames.

During the night of Nov. 27, one of our submarines cruising in the Sicilian Channel attacked and torpedoed an enemy cruiser escorted by two destroyers en route from Malta.

In North Africa, an enemy attack, supported by artillery fire, on our post at Elgasala on Auenag Mountain was repulsed by our garrison. Our planes scatter-bombed a British post at Aine el Prinz.

In East Africa, enemy air raids on Adi Ugri and Giula caused extremely slight damage and no casualties. At Metemma, an enemy plane was shot down by our troops.

Enemy planes dropped several bombs at Naples and Augusta, causing unimportant damage and small fires which were soon under control. There were no casualties.

One of our submarines, on return to its base, reported sinking the 5,000-ton British steamer Lillian Moler in the Atlantic on Nov. 18.

The British Admiralty recently announced the loss of the submarines Rainbow and Triad. These submarines operated in the Mediterranean. They therefore must be listed among those destroyed by the Italian Navy, as announced from time to time in previous bulletins.

Characteristics of the sunken units follow: Rainbow—displacement on surface, 1,475 tons; submerged, 2,030 tons; armament, eight torpedo tubes of 533 millimeters, one cannon of 102 millimeters and two anti-aircraft machine-guns. Triad—Displacement on surface, 1,090 tons; submerged, 1,575 tons; armament, ten torpedo tubes of 533 millimeters, one cannon of 102 millimeters, and two anti-aircraft guns.

British

LONDON, Dec. 3 (AP).—A communique of the Air and Home Security Ministries:

There have been a few flights over East Anglia and southeast England today by single enemy aircraft. Some of these flew over the London area and dropped bombs on the outskirts. Bombs were also dropped in Sussex and East Anglia. The damage done was slight and the number of casualties was small.

A later Home Security Ministry communique:

According to reports which have now been received, some bombs were also dropped at two places in the west of England during the afternoon. Only slight damage was done, but at one of the places a few people were injured.

An Air Ministry communique:

Last night, aircraft of the Coastal Command attacked shipping off the Norwegian coast. One ship sustained a direct hit. A large explosion and a fire followed the bombing of the wharves at Feje Island.

Yesterday, another aircraft of the Coastal Command scored a direct hit on the stern of an enemy supply ship off the Norwegian coast.

Aircraft of the Bomber Command last night attacked the submarine base at Lorient.

In these operations none of our aircraft was lost.

CAIRO, Egypt, Dec. 3 (AP).—A communique of the British African command:

SUDAN: Further details now are available of action in the Kassala area on the night of Nov. 30. In addition to capturing prisoners already reported, our patrols destroyed a lorry and counted eleven enemy dead. Subsequently a party of Italian motorcyclists was ambushed, leaving in our hands three prisoners, seven motorcycles and a quantity of equipment, including machine-guns, rifles and ammunition. In the area east of Gallabat our artillery again is active.

OTHER FRONTS: No change in the situation.

Initiative in Mediterranean Now Has Passed From Italy to Britain

DEC 4-1940

By DEWITT MACKENZIE.

The initiative in the battle of the Mediterranean—the outcome of which is of such vast importance that it may spell either victory or defeat for Britain in the war—has definitely passed from the Axis Powers to England, at least for the moment.

More fairly, let us say that the initiative has passed to England and her little ally, Greece. For it is the smashing Greek victory that has forged a chain of adverse circumstances about Mussolini's neck.

An indication of the fullness of Britain's determination to knock Italy out of the war was given by Lord Woolton, Minister of Food, in a speech yesterday. He said that the offensive will mean a drain on the country's shipping facilities" for the movement of troops overseas.

"We have been much too patient for much too long," he declared, "in submitting to the blustering bounce of the Italian pseudo-dictator. There is every reason to hope that before long we shall find ourselves settling old scores and to that end we have to mobilize the whole resources of the country."

Changed Situation in Spain.

A significant sign was given yesterday in the formal protest made by Egypt against the Italian bombing of Egyptian cities. To my mind this action could only mean that Britain is ready for a showdown with Italy, since relations between England and Egypt are closer than crossed fingers.

Simultaneously, Britain signed a financial agreement with Spain, indicating a betterment of relations, after Hitler and Mussolini have been putting pressure on Franco to join them. One of the Axis aims has been to secure the use of Spanish territory as a base for an assault on Gibraltar.

Because of its importance it is necessary for me to repeat that Britain's acquisition of Greek bases —notably Crete—has completely altered the [illegible] picture in the Mediterranean.

This has given England a superb base right in the heart of essential operations. It has vastly shortened Britain's lines and enable her to strike in every direction.

The British report today that Italy's fortified Dodecanese Islands just east of Crete are now being effectively blockaded.

English planes are bombarding Italian cities which they couldn't reach satisfactorily before.

Italy's lines of communication with Albania are being plastered so vigorously that the Fascists are in danger of losing Albania altogether.

Graziani Force in Danger.

The British blockade is increasing its weight on all Italian communications with Africa. Thus the position of Marshal Graziani, commanding the forces which undertook to invade Egypt from Libya, is rendered increasingly unstable.

The offensive against Egypt has been marking time for reasons which might easily be connected with that fierce blockade. You can't wage war across the blistering sands of a desert without water and other supplies.

Meanwhile the British have been moving troops into Egypt to cope with the numerical superiority of the Italians, which, so far as I am informed, still exists. Warplanes and tanks also have been shipped to Egypt.

Reports continue to pile up of a growing pro-British sentiment in the French colonies of northern Africa. There are French military forces there which could help Britain in a drive against the Italians if they wished. And little Haile Selassie, ex-Emperor of Ethiopia, has been busy in the Sudan getting his people set for revolt.

This accumulation of circumstances has resulted in the British offensive.

LONDON,DEC. 3-(AP)-LORD WOOLTON, FOOD MINISTER, WARNED BRITONS THAT MORE SHIPPING WOULD BE DIVERTED FROM FOOD IMPORTATION TO MILITARY PURPOSES, BUT ANNOUNCED TODAY A CHRISTMAS "GIFT" OF INCREASED SUGAR AND TEA RATIONS FOR THE WEEK OF DEC. 16.

HE SAID THE NATION HAD UNDERTAKEN THE OFFENSIVE TO SETTLE "OLD SCORES" WITH ITALY WHICH WOULD "MEAN A DRAIN OF THE COUNTRY'S SHIPPING FACILITIES."

DEC 4-1940

EXCEPT FOR A LIMITED QUANTITY OF ORANGES, THE FOOD MINISTRY SAID, NO MORE CARGOES OF FRESH OR TINNED FRUIT WILL BE BROUGHT TO BRITAIN FOR THE TIME BEING EXCEPT LOADINGS ALREADY ARRANGED.

THE CHRISTMAS RATION OF SUGAR WILL BE INCREASED FROM EIGHT TO 12 OUNCES AND OF TEA FROM TWO TO FOUR OUNCES.

"WE HAVE TO CARRY OUR FORCES OVERSEAS-- AND OVERSEAS IS THE PROPER PLACE FOR BRITAIN TO BE AT WAR," WOOLTON SAID YESTERDAY IN A SPEECH AT MANCHESTER.

"AS WE ARE GOING TO LOSE A PART OF OUR FOOD SHIPS TO TAKE PART IN THIS OFFENSIVE, I CAN NOT AFFORD TO BRING YOU ANY LONGER THOSE THINGS WHICH ARE NOT ESSENTIAL FOR PROSECUTION OF THE WAR.

"DOES THAT MATTER? WE HAVE A STANDARD OF LIFE THAT THE REST OF EUROPE HAS ENVIED, BUT NOW WE ARE GOING INTO THE OFFENSIVE."

HE SAID THE BRITISH HAD "BEEN MUCH TOO PATIENT FOR MUCH TOO LONG EVEN BEFORE THE WAR STARTED IN SUBMITTING TO THE BLUSTERING BOUNCE OF THE ITALIAN PSEUDO-DICTATOR. THERE IS EVERY REASON FOR HOPE THAT BEFORE LONG WE SHALL FIND OURSELVES SETTLING OLD SCORES AND TO THAT END WE HAVE MOBILIZED THE WHOLE RESOURCES OF THE COUNTRY."

(NO PICKUP).

LONDON,DEC. 3-(AP)-THE AIR MINISTRY NEWS SERVICE REPORTED TODAY A "SUCCESSFUL" RAID HAD BEEN MADE YESTERDAY BY THE RAF ON "IMPORTANT MILITARY OBJECTIVES" AT VALONA, ALBANIA.

DEC 4-1940

ONE SHIP IN THE HARBOR RECEIVED A DIRECT HIT, THE SERVICE SAID, AND A STICK OF BOMBS FELL ON THE MAIN JETTY. LOUD EXPLOSIONS FOLLOWED A FIRE STARTED IN A LARGE PORTSIDE BUILDING, THE REPORT SAID.

ONE ITALIAN FIGHTING PLANE WAS REPORTED SHOT DOWN. THE SERVICE SAID THE BRITISH LOST NONE.

WASHINGTON,DEC 3-(AP)-A TOTAL OF $75,000,000 HAS BEEN ALLOTTED, IT WAS DISCLOSED TODAY, TO START DEVELOPING SITES BEING ACQUIRED FROM GREAT BRITAIN FOR NAVAL AND AIR BASES GUARDING THE ATLANTIC APPROACHES TO AMERICA.

ANNOUNCING THAT ARMY ENGINEERS HAD STARTED PRELIMINARY WORK ON DEFENSE INSTALLATIONS IN NEWFOUNDLAND AND BERMUDA AND THAT ADDITIONAL FIELD PARTIES WOULD SAIL "AT EARLY DATES" FOR THE SIX OTHER SITES, THE WAR DEPARTMENT DISCLOSED THAT PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT HAD ALLOTTED $25,000,000 OF EMERGENCY FUNDS FOR INITIAL ARMY EXPENDITURES.

THIS MONEY WILL BE SPENT ON SURVEYS AND CONSTRUCTION OF FACILITIES FOR ARMY GARRISONS WHICH WILL BE STATIONED AT THE BASES TO PROTECT THEM FROM AIR RAIDS AND HOSTILE LANDING PARTIES.

PREVIOUSLY, SECRETARY KNOX HAD DISCLOSED THAT THE PRESIDENT HAD MADE $50,000,000 OF EMERGENCY FUNDS AVAILABLE TO THE NAVY FOR ITS SHARE OF THE WORK--DREDGING HARBORS, BUILDING WHARVES, NAVAL STORE HOUSES, REPAIR SHOPS AND THE LIKE. BOTH SUMS CAME FROM FUNDS PLACED AT THE CHIEF EXECUTIVE'S DISPOSAL BY CONGRESS. #

NEW YORK, DEC 3-(AP)-MAJ. GEN. J.E.CHANEY, COMMANDER OF THE NORTHEASTERN DISTRICT OF THE U.S. ARMY AIR CORPS, TOLD NEWSMEN TODAY THAT AFTER A 43-DAY SURVEY IN ENGLAND HE WAS "VERY OPTIMISTIC ON THE OUTCOME OF THE WAR FROM THE BRITISH POINT OF VIEW."

DESCRIBING THE BRITISH ISLES AS "A FORTRESS," HE SAID "AT THE RATE THEY ARE GOING, THE BRITISH WON'T LOSE THE WAR."

ASKED WHETHER HE MEANT THAT THE BRITISH WOULD WIN THE WAR, HE REPLIED, "THAT IS ANOTHER QUESTION."

DEC 4-1940

IN THE MOST EXTENDED INTERVIEW PERMITTING DIRECT QUOTATION GIVEN BY AN AMERICAN AIR CORPS OFFICER RETURNING FROM ENGLAND, GENERAL CHANEY ASSERTED THE MILITARY INFORMATION THE UNITED STATES IS GLEANING FROM ENGLAND ON BOTH BRITISH AND GERMAN MILITARY ESTABLISHMENTS "IN MONEY WOULD BE WORTH HUNDREDS OF MILLIONS OF DOLLARS." #

LITTLE LIECHTENSTEIN
HOPES TO SURVIVE
WAR UNSCATHED

WEDGED BETWEEN AUSTRIA
AND SWITZERLAND (410)

DEC 4-1940

(ADVANCE) VADUZ, LIECHTENSTEIN-(CORRESPONDENCE OF THE ASSOCIATED PRESS)-THE TINY PRINCIPALITY OF LIECHTENSTEIN, WEDGED IN BETWEEN AUSTRIA

AND SWITZERLAND ON THE UPPER RHINE, IS OPTIMISTIC ENOUGH TO THINK IT CAN SURVIVE THE EUROPEAN HOLOCAUST UNSCATHED AND UNTOUCHED.

LIECHTENSTEIN COMPRISES AN AREA OF 65 SQUARE MILES, HAS A POPULATION OF ABOUT 11,000. VADUZ, ITS CAPITAL, HAS 1,715 INHABITANTS.

SOMEHOW PRINCE FRANZ JOSEPH, THE RULER, AND HIS PRIME MINISTER, DR. JOSEPH HOOP, ARE CONFIDENT THEIR PRINCIPALITY WILL NOT SHARE THE FATE OF POLAND, NORWAY, DENMARK, BELGIUM, HOLLAND, RUMANIA, AND GREECE AND EITHER BE COMPELLED TO TAKE SIDES IN THE CONFLICT OR AT LEAST TO ENTERTAIN OCCUPATION TROOPS.

THEIR HOPES REST ON THE FOLLOWING CONSIDERATIONS:

1. PERSONAL RELATIONSHIPS BETWEEN PRINCE FRANZ JOSEPH AND LEADING PERSONALITIES OF THE NAZI REGIME ARE CORDIAL.

2. A TRUCE HAS BEEN ARRANGED BETWEEN THE TWO POLITICAL PARTIES OF THE PRINCIPALITY, THE CIVIC (CONSERVATIVE) PARTY AND THE PATRIOTIC UNION (CAPS), THE LATTER WITH NAZI LEANINGS.

3. GERMAN ANTI-SEMITISM HAS BEEN MET BY LEGISLATION RESTRICTING JEWISH INFLUENCE IN THE PRINCIPALITY.

LIECHTENSTEIN GOVERNMENT CIRCLES ARE EMPHATIC IN INSISTING THAT WHEN PRINCE FRANZ JOSEPH VISITED BERLIN LAST YEAR AS THE NEW RULER AND WAS RECEIVED BY ADOLF HITLER, NO DEMANDS OF ANY KIND WERE MADE UPON HIM. FROM THIS THEY DEDUCE THAT NO DEMANDS WILL BE MADE IN FUTURE.

IN ORDER FURTHER TO BAR TROUBLE, THE GOVERNMENT AT THE BEGINNING OF LAST SUMMER FORBADE ALL POLITICAL MEETINGS OF ANY KIND. AS A CONCESSION TO THE PATRIOTIC UNION, SEVERAL REPRESENTATIVES OF THAT PARTY WERE GIVEN POLITICAL BERTHS.

THIS CONCESSION SEEMS TO HAVE SATISFIED THE "UNION" -- ALL THE MORE SO SINCE, IN A PRIVATE POLL WHICH THIS BODY TOOK OF THE CITIZENRY, 95 PER CENT OF THE REGISTERED VOTERS -- 2,492 OUT OF 2,610 -- REJECTED UNION WITH GERMANY AND DEMANDED CONTINUED INDEPENDENCE.

ECONOMICALLY, THE LITTLE COUNTRY HAS BEEN HARD HIT BY THE WAR. BY TREATY IT IS INCORPORATED IN THE SWISS CUSTOMS TERRITORY. HENCE, JUST AS SWITZERLAND IS IN A BAD WAY ECONOMICALLY, SO LIECHTENSTEIN IS BOUND TO BE.

Morgenthau To Find Vessels, Their Price And How They Can Be Paid For—Question Of Financial Aid Involved In Transaction

[By the Associated Press]

London, Dec. 4—The Daily Mail, in a page one dispatch under a Washington dateline, declared tonight:

"The United States Government are placing 150 American merchant ships at Britain's disposal immediately."

The dispatch, attributed to unnamed sources "of the highest repute," said "this timely aid, decided on in Government conferences in the past forty-eight hours, is part of a plan to mobilize all available American merchant shipping to meet what officials here (in Washington) believe is Britain's first and most imperative need."

It added, "more destroyers are likely to follow, as well as an increased flow of aircraft," and that it was understood that President Roosevelt "laid down a broad plan for this increased extensive aid to Britain before sailing on his Caribbean cruise."

Veteran Royal Air Force officers, who are to be flying instructors in the dominion, and many young men who are learning to fly also arrived.

COMMONS TOLD TO ASK U. S. FOR CONVOY SHIPS

Commons Hears Suggestion For Appeal For American Warships

Suggests This Country Help Patrol Atlantic Trade Routes

[By the Associated Press]

London, Dec. 4—The House of Commons heard an unofficial suggestion

today that the Government appeal to the United States for warships to guard Britain's much-attacked Atlantic convoys and for dollar credits to pay for American supplies.

Ian Campbell Hannah, Conservative member of Parliament, and an educator who taught church history between 1915 and 1925 at Oberlin College, Ohio, urged in the question period that the United States "help patrol trade routes of the Atlantic with her own navy." Moreover, he said, Britain should tell Washington candidly, "We want financial help."

"I do not see how this nation can bear the tremendous burdens of carrying on a great war which, after all, if we see it rightly, is just as much to the benefit of America as for our own empire," he said.

Government Avoids Reply

Government spokesmen avoided a direct reply to Hannah, who reflected the nation's concern over U-boat, submarine and raider attacks on Britain's Atlantic shipping, in the face of a deficiency of warship protection for convoys.

R. A. Butler, Undersecretary for Foreign Affairs, replying to another query, made the stock statement that Britain is maintaining close contact with the United States "on all matters of common interest" in the Pacific.

Clement R. Atlee, the deputy leader, reiterated assurances that Britain did not intend to "barter the sovereignty of any British territory" in the Western Hemisphere for American war help.

May Use Compulsory Labor

Commons also heard from Sir John Anderson, Lord President of the Council, that powers of labor compulsion may have to be invoked to rehabilitate bomb-blasted industrial centers; that shipping losses in recent months in American supply lanes had not been "under-estimated" by the Government and that technical naval advisers were doing everything possible to "find an early and effective solution of the grave problem" caused by shipping losses.

The Minister of Economic Warfare, Hugh Dalton, said there had been negotiations with the United States over Britain's desire for "a reservation of United States surpluses for the Allies." Dalton also, on a note of optimism, said the Germans now were using more oil than they could produce because of Royal Air Force bombings of between eighty and ninety per cent. of German refineries and oil plants.

Hull and Jones Indicate Specific Details on Further War Aid Are Being Discussed.

Sir Frederick Philips, Under-Secretary of the British Treasury, arrived today on the Dixie Clipper of Pan American Airways, which alighted on Flushing Bay at 4:20 P M.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4 (A. P.).—Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau announced today that Sir Frederick Philips, Under-Secretary of the British Treasury, was scheduled to arrive in the United States today to place the latest available information on British finances before the United States Treasury.

Mr. Morgenthau's statement consisted of only one sentence. It followed by only a few minutes a statement by Secretary of Commerce Jones, speaking as Federal loan administrator, who said that the British Government was a good risk for loans.

U. S. Officers Discuss Project.

It was learned that the mission of Sir Frederick was one of the chief topics of a meeting yesterday of nine important Government officials.

At the State Department Secretary Hull said today that all phases of the shipping question in connection with aid to Britain were being considered by various officials, but that he was not aware that any decisions had been reached on any further specific measures.

He made the comment in response to press conference questions based on the meeting of high officials at the Treasury yesterday.

On the subject of financial assistance to Britain, Mr. Hull said he knew only about public discussion and had not heard of any particular plan being discussed by officials, although that might come at some future time, he added.

Mr. Jones said the British Government was a good risk and that ordinarily he favored lending money to good risks when they need it for a proper purpose."

He declined, at a press conference, to amplify these two remarks further and specifically refused to say that he favored loans to the British for war purposes now or in the future.

He was asked whether the Johnson act prohibiting loans to world war debt defaulters, including Britain, should be repealed. His reply was "Not now."

Needs Not Known.

Saying that he did not know h much money the British have for purchases in this country, Jones declared that they say th need financial aid.

Mr. Jones was one of nine m who met at the Treasury yest day. They were reported authori tively to have surveyed the Brit purchasing and financial situatio All he would say about the me ing was that we discussed gener ly the production of war supplie

He declined to answer a questi on whether war production was discussed in the light of British ability to pay for American materials.

Mr. Jones's statement that Britain was a good risk came after reporters had referred to a reported statement by Chairman Marriner S. Eccles of the Federal Reserve Board, which Mr. Eccles later denied.

Eccles Denies Proposal.

The New York Herald Tribune said last night that it had learned today Mr. Eccles, speaking in a personal capacity at a closed meeting of the National Industrial Conference Board last week, had proposed that this Government lend $2,500,000,000 to the British Government, taking in return a lien on Empire gold production for the next five years.

At the Jones press conference this bantering by-play. Mr. Jones declined to comment on it. A short time later Mr. Eccles, through a spokesman, denied that he had proposed a $2,500,000,000 loan to the British.

He was quoted by his representative as saying that he was greatly disturbed by the report that he had done so. After a stenographic transcript of his New York speech was ready, the spokesman added, Mr. Eccles would study it and might issue a statement about the situation.

Mr. Eccles also was quoted as denying that he had suggested restrictions on monetary powers of the Treasury which might interfere with his own ideas of credit control.

Food Problem Acute.

The agricultural aspect of British financial assistance was developed in a speech at Chicago yesterday by J. B. Hutson, Deputy Defense Commissioner of Agriculture. Explaining that Great Britain presently obtained as much of her farm imports as possible from empire sources, Mr. Hutson said:

"But if the war drags on and becomes even more intensified, there is the possibility that the reduction of food supplies and other commodities may impel Great Britain to turn to the United States for larger quantities of products not obtainable from empire sources, products such as lard, tobacco, cotton and canned goods.

"In the event this should happen, it is possible that the sale of agricultural commodities to Great Britain might depend on the extension of credit by the United States. This, of course, would call for a revision of our present policy, and would place squarely before farmers the question of whether they would be willing to risk a loss in order to hold the United Kingdom markets."

Imminence of an important new development in the aid-for-Britain program was indicated strongly by the mere fact that yesterday's meeting at the Treasury was held at all.

Ford Would Give Britain All the Money She Wants

Says This Can End War Fast, but Without a Victor

DETROIT, Dec. 3 (AP).—Henry Ford said today that if Great Britain needed money he favored "giving them all they want." "It will end the war in a hurry," he said in a brief interview. "We did it before and we might as well do it again."

Mr. Ford, who twenty-five years ago started a peace expedition to Europe in the Oscar II, asserted that he was convinced neither side would win the present war. "After this war is over," he said, "I see the people turning to the land—the source of all things needed for the peace and prosperity of any nation."

Labor Compulsion Likely, Is Tip in British House

Necessary to Rebuild Bombed Industries, Minister Says—U. S. War Help Debated

LONDON (AP)—The government raised the prospect today that it may be forced to resort to labor compulsion to rehabilitate Britain's Luftwaffe-blasted industrial centers and also disclosed that "constant attention" is being given to means of halting mounting shipping losses.

Reconstruction of the industrial areas was described to the House of Commons by Home Secretary Sir John Anderson as a "most vitally important and urgent task." He said also that shipping losses in recent months in lanes from the United States had "not been underestimated" by the government.

The powers of labor compulsion, Sir John said, "should be applied after consideration of all the facts," the real test being "whether it would give results."

He assured the House that Prime Minister Churchill is "giving constant attention to the question of enemy attack from underseas and from the air upon our ships and convoys."

Sure of Solution

Sir John said that "technical naval advisers were leaving nothing undone to find an early and effective solution of the grave problem." He expressed confidence it would be solved.

Replying to criticism of the government's war effort, he said, "we may reasonably expect to see rapid progress" in the training of labor—a problem which the government is attacking with "vigor, foresight and success."

The shipping situation evoked an appeal from Ian Campbell Hannah, Conservative M. P., that the United States "help patrol trade routes of the Atlantic with her own navy." He said also that Britain should candidly tell the American government "we want financial help."

"I do not see how this nation can bear the tremendous burdens of carrying on a great war, which after all, if we see it rightly, is just as much to the benefit of America as for our own empire," Hannah told the House.

Will Not Barter Land

His statement evoked no government comment, but another apparent rererence to American aid brought from Clement R. Attlee, Lord Privy Seal, assurances that the government "will not barter the sovereignty of any British territory for war supplies from foreign countries."

R. A. Butler, Undersecretary for Foreign Affairs, told the House that Britain "is maintaining close contact with the United States on all matters of common interest" in the Pacific.

An optimistic note on the war outlook was sounded by Hugh Dalton, Minister of Economic Warfare, who declared the Nazis now were using more oil than they were producing because the R. A. F. had attacked 90 per cent of her refineries and 80 per cent of her oil plants.

LONDON, Dec. 4 (A. P.).—The Government may have to apply its powers of labor compulsion "in tackling the most vitally important and urgent task of the reconstruction of our industrial centers bombed by the Germans," Sir John Anderson, Lord President of the Council, told Commons today.

These powers, Sir John said, "should be applied after consideration of all the facts," the real test being "whether it would give results."

Sir John said that Great Britain's shipping losses in recent months in the western approaches to Britain had not been underestimated by the Government. He added that "these and connected problems are among the main preoccupations of the defense committee over which the Prime Minister presides."

Won't Barter Territories.

He assured the House that Mr. Churchill is "giving constant attention to the question of enemy attack from underseas and from the air upon our ships and convoys."

Replying to criticism of the Government's war effort, Sir John said, "we may reasonably expect to see rapid progress" in the training of labor—a problem which the Government is attacking with vigor, foresight and success."

Sir John said that "technical naval advisers were leaving nothing undone to find an early and effective solution of the grave problem" caused by shipping losses. -He expressed confidence that it would be solved.

Clement R. Attlee, Lord Privy Seal, assured the House that the Government will not barter the sovereignty of any British territory for war supplies from foreign countries."

This was in reply to a question raised by Oliver E. Simmons, Conservative, with apparent reference to reports that British possessions in the Western Hemisphere might be traded to the United States.

Britain Has Eye on Russia.

R. A. Butler, Under-Secretary for Foreign Affairs, told the House that the Government was "always looking for means of getting around difficulties" in relations with Russia. The comment came with the disclosure by Mr. Butler that Ambassador Sir Stafford Cripps had been instructed to take up with Moscow that Government's refusal for the first time to remit to London £92,500 sterling due under the Lena gold fields agreement.

Frederick S. Cocks, Laborite member, called for a swift, ruthless and sustained attack on Italy, remarking that "now that we have use of Greek air bases, I see no reason why we should not plaster the Italian peninsula with bombs."

Earl Winterton, Conservative member, argued, however, that the "real offensive must take place in the shipyards and work shops of Britain" in association with the empire and "our great friends in the United States."

Wave Upon Wave of Bombers Raids Workshop of England

German Air Force Strikes Midlands Again Tonight and London Itself Has Alarm Early in Evening.

LONDON, Dec. 4 (A. P.).—The German air force opened another heavy attack on the industrial Midlands tonight.

Reports reaching London, which itself had an early evening alarm, said that wave after wave of bombers had passed over one Midland town, heading south in the face of fierce anti-aircraft fire.

Bombs of various sizes were dropped.

There was little activity over Great Britain during the day.

An east Anglican town was attacked twice by low-flying Junkers bombers during the afternoon, but damage was reported to be negligible.

Dover also was bombed, resulting in a few casualties.

Birmingham, the often bombed heart of the industrial Midlands, shared with London the brunt of last night's flying attacks, but flying conditions were so unfavorable that the raiders headed for home soon after 10 P. M.

Several lives were lost in London, where a convent of the Sisters of Mercy was bombed, but the Government reported that the attacks were nowhere on a large scale and that the number of casualties would not prove large.

Although the Germans began their night attacks on London earlier than usual, the assaults were sporadic, and a communique said that no large fires had been caused, no important objectives hit.

Several Killed at Convent.

Several persons were buried under debris, however, when a bomb struck the convent which was being used as an air raid shelter. Three women drivers of American ambulances were rescued unhurt from the wreckage here by Air Raid Protection workers who tunneled through the debris.

Several other persons were killed, but several nuns who were praying in the convent chapel when the bombs fell, were unhurt.

French and Polish refugee women housed on the top floor of the convent also escaped injury.

A traveling crane was used to lift the debris of the convent and rescue parties, helped by the Army Pioneer Corps, continued this afternoon to search for victims. Some were brought out alive.

She and her parents had been using the refuge each night. Last night she ran out during the alarm to buy fried fish from a nearby restaurant for the family supper. While she was out the bomb struck. She got back in time to see her father dug out of the wreckage gravely injured. Rescue workers were digging for her mother late this afternoon.

Seven bombs fell in a row in this district, smashing an apartment house.

Crowded Movie Struck.

Three heavy bombs caused considerable damage in another London sector where a number of homes and stores were wrecked. Four bodies were recovered from ruined buildings there today.

Incendiary bombs also struck a crowded London movie theater, showering the audience with sparks and plaster, but the auditorium was cleared quickly and the flames were extinguished.

The raid on Birmingham was the first heavy assault directed against that city in more than a week. It was of comparatively short duration, however.

The Nazi's dropped fire bombs, high explosives and delayed-action bombs. Nineteen persons were trapped when a high explosive bomb hit two adjoining basement shelters, but all were rescued through an emergency exit.

Five Killed in Southeast.

In one suburban area in the south of England, a low-flying Nazi bomber machine gunned a bus, but the driver had already led the passengers to safety in a nearby field.

Five persons were killed and a number injured by a stick of bombs that fell in another section of southeast England.

One low-flying raider, believed to have been an Italian, dropped three bombs on a beach near a southeast coastal town, smashing shops, a hotel and house windows.

Several fires were started in the Midlands, the Government said, but all were quickly brought under control.

Nazis Report Fires in Birmingham.

BERLIN, Dec. 4 (A. P.).—Nazi spokesmen reported today that German air raiders observed twenty-five large fires in Birmingham, in the heart of industrial England, after a large-scale bombing attack last night.

London also was attacked several times during the day and night, they said.

The German High Command said merely that bad weather had hampered night operations over Great Britain, but that sharp attacks had been carried out on vital objectives in central and southern England.

Augmenting the High Command's communique, DNB, the official German news agency, said that the Southern Railway's line between Dover and London was broken by bomb hits near Tunbridge.

An armored troop train heading for middle England was attacked by fliers at low altitude and the last three cars were thrown off the track, DNB said, and also reported that factories near Brighton and Grantham were partly wrecked and set afire and that numerous airdromes and other railways had been bombed.

NAZI RAIDERS AGAIN ATTACK MIDLAND AREAS

One Assault Lasts 4 Hours; Houses And Church Are Struck In One Town

Many Trapped As Homes Collapse—Fires Start, But Are Soon Put Out

[By the Associated Press]

London, Thursday, Dec. 5—The German air force smashed at the Midlands—both eastern and western sections—last night with explosive and fire bombs, and ir at least two towns in that area there were casualties.

In a town in the western Midlands a number of houses and a church and police station were damaged, but the raid there was comparatively short.

Fires sprang up early in the raid, but none was serious and all were put out. An undetermined number of people were trapped in basement shelters in the destruction of homes.

Attack One Area 4 Hours

Raiders were reported over the eastern Midlands for nearly four hours, attacking singly and at intervals. They began as usual by scattering incendiaries over the center of a town in that section to light the way for the high explosives that followed.

There was damage to both houses and stores, but in the aggregate it was described as light. Raiders were reported over southwest England and Wales.

London, too, did not escape, although the all clear sounded at midnight. Bombs struck an occupied school in one district of the city. A school for incurable children was destroyed, as were a number of houses.

Steady Anti-Aircraft Fire

Skies on the city's outskirts were luminous with steady anti-aircraf fire, and the guns could be heard over a wide area.

Adverse weather was credited with blunting the effectiveness of afternoon raids. An East Anglian town was attacked twice by low-flying Junkers, but damage was said to be negligible.

The new raids came shortly after Britons had been informed that defender planes had been equipped secretly with cannon to meet the challenge of extra armour placed on German bombers.

Effectiveness of last night's raid on Birmingham was minimized by a Ministry of Home Security communique which said clouds hid key targets.

Berlin Reports New Mass Raid Over England

Berlin, Dec. 4 (AP)—Reports of a new mass air raid over Britain reached Berlin shortly before midnight. London and "a Midlands city" were declared particular targets. Pilots returning from their first forays to French bases were quoted as saying they had dropped loads of bombs on the London harbor sections.

Murky weather slowed up aerial warfare over Britain last night, but high officials and DNB reported these attacks were carried out:

Bombs of all calibers were dropped on port facilities at Bristol. "Numerous observations confirmed well-aimed hits on the targets," a communique said.

Factories near Brighton and Grantham. in southeast England, were damaged and "numerous" airdromes and railways were bombed. Low-flying planes derailed three cars of an armored train heading for middle England.

London was attacked several times during the day and night.

German flyers left twenty-five fires blazing in Birmingham, in the industrial Midlands.

"A few, scattered flights" into Germany were made by British planes, informed sources said, but caused virtually no damage.

"it has been reported," but quoted no authority for the reports.

In the wake of this statement, the Ministry declared that the R. A. F. last night had started explosions and fires in Mannheim and Ludwigshaven, on the upper Rhine.

Berlin Stations Damaged.

"Other targets included a blast furnace at Essen and the port of Dunkirk," the Ministry said.

In daylight operations yesterday airdromes in northern France were bombed, it declared.

The Ministry's new service credited the R. A. F. with having severely damaged some of Berlin's great railway terminal stations, and described railways and oil plants as two of the weakest units in the German military and industrial organization.

Berlin, it continued, "is not being attacked merely because it is the capital of Germany, but because it is, among other things, a very important railway center."

German oil plants are very suitable targets for British bombers, the news service said.

The service stated that hits had been made on Leuno, where one of Germany's largest synthetic plants is situated, and that oil reserves in many other areas had been destroyed.

At Stettin, north of Berlin, it declared, cisterns of aviation gasoline blazed for three days, and while Germany admitted two had been destroyed, "it is now known that many were burned."

Freight traffic in Berlin has been held up for days, the news service said.

Meanwhile Hugh Dalton, Minister of Economic Warfare, said today that Germany now was using more oil than she was producing because Royal Air Force bombers had attacked 90 per cent of her refineries and 80 per cent of her oil plants.

Mr. Dalton said that stocks of oil in axis-dominated territory were smaller now than at the beginning of the war.

"I think the economic pressure which we are exerting is constantly turning the balance in our favor," he said. "It is a slow process and it must be stimulating and assisted by other factors, if we are to end the war in our favor within a reasonable time.

"That it will so end I have never doubted and, since I have been Minister of Economic Warfare, we have constantly imposed new shortages on the enemy to the determent of his war effort."

Berlin Denies Great Damage.

BERLIN, Dec. 4 (A. P.).—British airmen made a few, scattered flights into Germany last night but caused practically no damage, informed Nazi spokesmen declared here today.

The German High Command said: "Scattered British planes last night dropped bombs on western and southwestern Germany, causing only slight damage to buildings. No one was hurt."

Nazi Coal Supply Reported Cut in Half by Ruhr Raids

British Air Ministry Hears Lack of Fuel Has Made Idle Factories in France Needed by Germans for War.

LONDON, Dec. 4 (A. P.).—The Air Ministry said today it understood that British raids on communications in the Ruhr Valley had cut off half of Germany's mined coal supply, forcing French factories, which the Germans want to use for the making of war materials, to lie idle for lack of fuel.

The Ruhr region is highly important for its mines and vast industrial establishments.

The Ministry, in speaking of the results of the continuous night attacks of the R. A. F., merely said

ANGLO-TURKISH TRADE ACCORD IS APPROVED

Considerable Increase In Commerce Between Two Nations Forecast

Pact Held Direct Challenge Nazi Economic Domination In Balkans

[By the Associated Press]

London, Dec. 4—The Foreign Office announced tonight conclusion of a financial agreement between the British and Turkish governments "which they hope will bring about a considerable increase in their trade."

The accord provides that payments between Turkey and nations of the sterling area be made at the existing rate of exchange between the Turkish lire and the pound sterling, the announcement said.

It also stipulates that special accounts be created to facilitate commercial and other payments between Turkey and the British Empire.

Termed Political Stroke

Diplomatic circles here were quick to term the treaty not only an important commercial move, but a political stroke as well.

They said the agreement, coming at a "strategic moment," was a "direct challenge to German economic domination in the Balkins" as represented by the ten-year Rumanian-German treaty announced in Berlin today.

These diplomats added they believed the Turkish pact was concluded when Germany was "ready to tempt the Turks by attractive new commercial propositions."

Had Only 10% Of Trade

It was pointed out that in the past Britain has enjoyed less than ten per cent. of Turkey's foreign trade while Germany has captured about fifty per cent.

The agreement complements a trade and payments pact signed in London February 3. It followed the signing of a new commercial agreement between Britain and Spain earlier this week.

The agreement reflects Britain's intensified diplomacy. It was just two days ago that the Foreign Office under Lord Halifax, for whose scalp the British press has been clamoring, closed the pact with Axis-friendly Spain.

Bid To Bulgaria

Both of these moves were preceded by a British bid last week for Bulgaria's continued neutrality by promising to respect that Balkan kingdom's integrity and independence when peace comes.

Anthony Eden, War Secretary, recently toured the Near East, where he was believed to have presented Britain's diplomatic as well as her military position to Turkey, Egypt and possibly to representatives of territories not yet empire allies.

The Spanish agreement, while in itself a purely technical arrangement for facilitating exchange of payments, was regarded as indicating Spain still desires to remain outside the Axis war orbit.

Recognition Of Bulgarian Claims Hinted In Turkey

Ankara, Thursday, Dec. 5 (AP)—In an editorial scheduled for publication in today's issue, the semi-official paper Ulus praised recent improvement in Turkish-Bulgarian relations, and added:

"We have always appreciated the fact that there are certain injustices to Bulgaria which should be amended."

Presumably this referred to Bulgarian territorial claims involving Thrace and Macedonia, through which Bulgaria wants an outlet to the Ægean Sea, Macedonia is part of Greece, while the ancient land of Thrace is partly in Greece and partly in Turkey.

"We never have lost the belief that these adjustments could be made by peaceful means and with a spirit of reconciliation," the Ulus said.

The fact that Ulus is the organ of Turkey's only recognized political party was seen as adding weight to these hints of peaceful adjustment with Bulgaria if that nation does not join the German Axis.

U.S. Planes Helped British Strike Blow at Taranto

London Says Craft Are Proving Worth in Middle East

LONDON, Dec. 4 (AP).—American-built warplanes are being used extensively by the Royal Air Force in the Near East and the Mediterranean, a Ministry of Information communique disclosed tonight.

One of their outstanding performances was declared to have been the making of pictures of aranto Harbor, giving the story of the Fleet Air Arm's recent blow at the Italian fleet.

"The R. A. F. in the Middle East is enthusiastic about the performance of the American aircraft," the communique said. "These have fought their way successfully through many operations.

"The reliability of American engines is no surprise to the R. A. F., who have come to regard with real aection the Lockheed-Hudsons. . . . which are proving such a valuable aid to Britain's Coastal Command and have taken part in hundreds of raids from Norway to the Baay of Biscay."

Cannon Mounted on Spitfires

British Reveal Fighter Planes Are Fitted Now With Armor-piercing Guns.

LONDON, Dec. 4 (A. P.).—Royal Air Force fighter planes equipped with cannon are now engaged in the effort to beat back German air raiders, it was disclosed today.

The process of fitting the heavier armament has been under way for some time, informed spokesmen said, but has been kept secret.

In the early stages of the battle of Britain, Hurricanes and Spitfires were armed with eight machine guns each, and these took a heavy toll of Nazi attackers seeking control of the skies.

Then Germany strengthened the armor of her planes to make them less vulnerable, and succeeded in reducing her losses among bombers and their escorts. As a countermeasure, the R. A. F. then decided to equip its fighter craft with cannon to provide them with a longer range and greater destructive power.

The number of cannon being carried remained a military secret, but officers said they were convinced they would be more potent than the machine guns.

Meanwhile today reports here suggested that the American Bell Airacobra fighter may be made available to Great Britain. This is fitted with a 37-millimeter, long-barrel cannon.

Firing trials have been held in Canada.

"Now, in a night, this is all changed. Instead of a tightly packed mass of buildings there are many burnt-out ruins. But like a forest fire, the present evil may bring forth greater riches and beauty."

Sees Coventry Cleared For Richer Things

LONDON, Dec. 4 (A. P.).—When German raiders reduced Coventry to a heap of ashes last month they may unwittingly have cleared the way for a city center of "greater riches and beauty," D. E. Gibson, the Coventry city architect, told the Royal Society of Arts today.

High land values and legal delays had frustrated his scheme of a year and a half ago for replacing old buildings with a "dignified and fitting city center," he said.

ENGLISH CARDINAL ASSAILS FASCISTS

Lays Bombing of Greece to 'Totalitarian Paganism.'

LONDON, Dec. 4. (A. P.).—Cardinal Hinsley, Archbishop of Westminster and Catholic Primate of England, condemned what he described as Italy's indiscriminate bombing of Greece in a message today to Mgr. Mamos, the Apostolic Prothonotary at Athens.

His message replied to an appeal from Mgr. Mamos that "all Catholics join forces against the barbarism of the Italians who from the outset of the war have used their planes to bombard defenseless towns and villages."

The Cardinal said: "Of course nothing better could be expected of young men trained in the school of totalitarian paganism."

RULING ON PALESTINE

Illegal Immigrants Will Be Sent to British Colony.

LONDON, Dec. 4 (A. P.).—G. H. Hall, Under-Secretary of State for the Colonies, announced today that the British Government's decision was that illegal immigrants reaching Palestine would be sent to a British colony for the duration of the war.

The Government decided as "an exceptional act of mercy," he added, to permit survivors from the refugee steamship Patria, which sank in Haifa harbor after an explosion last week, to remain in Palestine.

M. P. Wants U. S. Navy To Patrol the Atlantic

LONDON, Dec. 4 (A. P.).—Ian Campbell Hannah, a Conservative, expressing concern at the sinking of British ships, advocated today a direct appeal to the United States "to help patrol trade routes of the Atlantic with her own navy.

"I do not see how this nation can bear the tremendous burdens of carrying on a great war which after all, if we see it rightly, is just as much to the benefit of America as for our own Empire," Mr. Hannah, a former professor at Oberlin College, told Commons.

He said also that Britain should candidly tell the United States that " We want financial help."

M. P. Who Milked Daily Dies

LONDON, Dec. 4 (AP).—John Morgan, a Laborite member of Parliament who regularly milked his own cows—going every night from London through the blackout to his farm for that chore—died today after an operation for appendicitis. He was forty-eight years old. He was well known as a writer on agricultural affairs.

R. A. F. Harries Italian Forces In East Africa

Cairo, Egypt, Dec. 4 (AP).—The R. A. F. African command issued the following communique today:

"In East Africa, Kassala was heavily raided, our bombs falling on the enemy's fortified positions and straddling a motor transport park. At Gur, our aircraft machine-gunned transport and enemy personnel.

"At Adardeb, Rhodesian aircraft bombed an enemy camp, starting a fire.

"Numerous reconnaissances were carried out in enemy territory on all fronts. From all operations our aircraft returned safely."

Seven More Sinkings Reported

Nazis Put Total at 25 Since Monday—Rome Tells of Torpedoing Warships.

BERLIN, Dec. 4 (A. P.).—The German High Command today credited a Nazi submarine with sinking six British armed merchant vessels totaling 31,500 tons in a continuation of the stepped-up offensive against Great Britain's ocean supply lines.

At the same time, long-range Nazi bombers were reported to have reached out into the Atlantic 250 miles northwest of Ireland to sink a 4,000-ton British cargo vessel with a direct hit yesterday.

These reports brought to twenty-five the number of British merchant ships the Germans claim to have sunk since Monday. Yesterday the Germans said their submarines had destroyed seventeen merchantmen totaling more than 131,000 tons and a 17,000-ton auxiliary cruiser the day before.

DNB, the German official news agency, said that the bomber attack northwest of Ireland was made against a long convoy protected by numerous destroyers. It headed for the Scottish coast when the bombers were sighted, the agency declared.

Explain Caledonia Report.

In addition to the sinking of one merchantman, others of the convoy were partly damaged, DNB declared.

Meanwhile today authoritative Nazi spokesmen declared that an error in transmission from the front had caused the High Command yesterday to claim the sinking by submarine on Monday of the British liner Caledonia, only to retract the claim later. The vessel actually sunk, they said today, was one 4,000 tons larger than the 17,000-ton Caledonia. They said they could not give her name, however, because of military reasons.

[On June 14 the British Admiralty reported the sinking one day earlier of the former Anchor liner Caledonia which had been renamed the Scotstoun.]

Reports Warships Torpedoed.

ROME, Dec. 4 A. P.).—The Italian High Command reported today that three British warships had been torpedoed—two cruisers by Italian torpedo-launching planes in Suda Bay, on the island of Crete, and a destroyer by an Italian submarine in the Atlantic.

The communique declared in part:

"Torpedo-launching planes torpedoed two British cruisers in Suda Bay. . .

"One of our submarines torpedoed an enemy destroyer in the Atlantic on December 1."

It failed to say whether any of the ships was sunk, or to give the time of the raid on Suda Bay, where the British have established one of their main Mediterranean bases since going to the aid of Greece.

Yugoslav Seamen Saved.

LONDON, Dec. 4 (A. P.).—Twenty-three members of the crew of the 1,937-ton Yugoslav steamship Cetvrti, which was sunk by a Nazi bomber off the coast of Ireland, were landed today at Valentia, Ireland.

TOLL CLAIMED SINCE MONDAY RISES TO 25

One Declared Victim Of Bomber Attack On Convoy 250 Miles Out

Three English Warships Torpedoed By Italians, Rome Announces

[By the Associated Press]

Berlin, Dec. 4—Germany's accelerated sea warfare against Great Britain was credited by the high command tonight with sinking seven more armed merchant vessels of 36,400 tons.

One submarine scored direct hits on six of the ships, a communique said. A seventh was listed as the victim of a bomber which attacked a convoy in the Atlantic 250 miles off the Irish coast.

DNB said the bomber attack was made against a "long convoy" which headed for the Irish coast when the planes were sighted.

Since Monday the high command has claimed sinking of twenty-five British merchant ships aggregating 285,000 tons.

Credited To New Nazi Tactics

New tactics designed to break up convoys and enable submarines to pick off scattered merchantmen are credited generally by Nazi commentators for the recent impressive successes claimed for German undersea warfare.

Other stated reasons for what is called here the growing effectiveness of submarine raiders were these:

The probable increased number of submarines.

Closer cooperation with an air force which spots convoys hundreds of miles distant.

The alleged weakening of the British navy, and particularly a shortage of British destroyers to protect merchantmen.

The Germans' "daring, imaginative leadership in sea war."

Details of the technique by which submarines are declared by the Germans to be escaping with increasing frequency from the dangers of depth bombs and outwitting convoying vessels were not mentioned.

The Nazi "Mass Attack"

But authorized comments left no doubt that part of this new procedure is the "mass attack"—a phrase employed by DNB in describing "the ever-tightening blockade of the British Isles."

Nothing was disclosed specifically as to submarine construction; the newspapers, however, speak of a record production in the World War construction reached one a day and the capacities of present Germany, it is said here, certainly are not inferior.

Air Force In Sea War

As to the cooperation of the air force, the high command has reported air attacks on ships far west of Britain and virtually in mid-Atlantic. Long-range reconnaissance planes capable of covering equally great distances can report the approach of convoys which still may be several days' sailing distance from England. The submarine commanders thus frequently are able to get set.

The alleged inability of the British navy adequately to protect all ships which must go to England if the island is to be provisioned remains a favorite German theme. It is contended that this weakness daily becomes more apparent and that the war tempo is so accelerated that British construction and the purchase of ships remains behind British needs.

Three British Warships Torpedoed, Italians Claim

Rome, Dec. 4 (AP)—In a daring sequel to the British raid early this month on Taranto, the Italian high command announced today that torpedo-launching Fascist planes slipped over the Greek island of Crete and torpedoed two British cruisers in Suda Bay, Britain's new eastern Mediterranean "Gibraltar."

Coupled with this feat, today's communique said an Italian submarine on the prowl in the Atlantic torpedoed a third British ship—a destroyer—on December 1. It failed to say whether any of the ships were sunk or when the cruisers were hit.

Insisted British "Lied"

The raid on the Crete base, established by the British when they went to the aid of Greece, was similar to the attack by British torpedo planes on Taranto harbor November 11.

Premier Mussolini acknowledged three of his warships were damaged, one of them extensively, at Taranto, and insisted the British lied when they reported the crippling of half of Italy's six battleships and four other war vessels.

Besides the Crete raid, the Italians reported their air force carried the air war to the Greeks, with sorties against Preveza and San Maura, on the island of Levkas.

Nine Poles Sentenced To Death by Germans

BERLIN, Dec. 4 (A. P.).—A special German court at Posen sentenced to death today nine Poles accused of having abducted fifty-two German farmers on the first day of the German-Polish war and murdering nine.

Twenty-six other Poles were sentenced to imprisonment and three were acquitted.

ALBANIAN TOWN IS CAPTURED, GREEKS CLAIM

Fall Of Premet, With Heavy Italian Losses, Reported By Athens

Fascists Also Reported Fleeing Key Bases, Porto Edda, Argirocastro

[By the Associated Press]

Athens, Thursday, Dec. 5—The Greek high command announced today the capture of the strategic town of Premet, in south central Albania, with heavy Italian losses, and a Greek spokesman said the Fascist forces also were hastening northward from their vital southern Albanian bases of Porto Edda and Argirocastro.

[Associated Press Editor's Note—Remet is north of Argirocas and a deep thrust in that quarter could make a northward Italian movement difficult.]

The official communique said:

"Fierce fighting on the mountain range west of Pogradetz was crowned by considerable success. Stubborn enemy resistance in the sector north of Premet was overcome as the result of strong intervention by our artillery.

Italian Losses Declared Heavy

"In the zones on either side of the highway, the enemy launched attacks with tanks, which failed. We captured Premet. The enemy suffering heavy losses. We captured 500 prisoners, six guns and abundant material.

"Today's activities of our aviation have been very successful. Reconnaissance flights and bombing raids on fixed and moving targets were conducted with successful results. One enemy aircraft was shot down in an air fight. All our planes returned intact."

Counter-Attacks "Repelled"

Italian counter-attacks in some sectors were acknowledged, but the Greek spokesman asserted they were all repelled "in whatever part of the front."

Summing up the situation, he said:

"Despite severe weather and difficult terrain, our troops continue to advance and pursue the retreating enemy. At certain points fierce fighting is taking place, which has continued to our advantage."

The northern Greek wing was reported struggling on through icy mountains toward the Albanian capital of Tirana.

Early in the day the Greeks had declared the fall of Porto Edda and Argirocastro, an important supply center, was momentarily expected.

Answers Italian Claims

The spokesman, saying that Italian claims to have repulsed Greek attacks were "simply figments of the imagination for home consumption," asserted the efforts of the Fascist high command to reorganize its forces "must be considered as having failed and one should even foresee that the position of the Italian army will become more and more difficult."

"There are several important facts," he said.

"The enemy in order to avoid encirclement is retreating. We have been able to observe his movement from Santi Quaranta (Porto Edda) toward Chimara, from Argirocastro toward Tepeleni, from Premet toward Klisoura.

Successes At Premet

"Generally the enemy is retreating from the places where he tried stubbornly to maintain himself. Regarding Premet there are two facts: First, on the Premet front the Italians have abandoned emplacements called the Lousnia and have fled toward the west. The second fact of great importance is that north of Premet we have succeeded in occupying the Frasheri Mountain range.

"This new success is in itself important in view of the fact that the Frasheri position is a junction of mountain chains and passes.

Italian Rout Claimed

"It was necessary to dislodge the Italians, and that was done after a battle which ended in an Italian rout.

"In the Pogradetz area (on the northern front) up to yesterday the enemy defended himself stubbornly on the heights northwest of Pogradetz, but today (Wednesday) they were no longer able to continue resistance, and we drove them out. The enemy sustained heavy losses, leaving many prisoners and war material, including three guns, in our hands."

Resistance Declared Waning

As early as dawn yesterday, the Greeks were officially declared to be in Porto Edda's outskirts and during the day their artillery went into action to cover the road running from that seaport northeast some twenty miles to Argirocastro. Italian resistance, which the Greek command already had officially characterized as failing, was said to have been thus even more nearly broken.

From the center of the front, Greek accounts told a similar story of success. It was said that new mountainous positions in that sector had been occupied and that Greek field pieces had been set up to shell the Italian emplacements.

From the far northern theater, it was declared that Fascist camps in the region of Elbasani had been assaulted by Greek bombers.

Athens Reports Resistance of Italian Troops Is Collapsing.

RETIRE OVER SNOWY RANGES

Evzones Are Pressing Forward on Road to Elbasani and the Capital, Tirana.

ATHENS, Dec. 4 (A. P.).—The Greek armies were today reported to be pressing hard against the Italian defenses of Porto Edda and Argyrokastron, Albania, where resistance was said to be collapsing, and the capture of both cities was expected at any moment.

A Greek spokesman declared early today that the Fascist forces were falling back fast in the region of Porto Edda, the Italians' southernmost port of entry into Albania, and that the Greek advance units were within a mile and a quarter of the city.

Other Greek forces, at the opposite end of the Albanian battlefront, were said to be driving steadily through snow-blanketed mountains toward Elbasani and the Albanian capital, Tirana.

Greek Guns Raking Road.

In the Argyrokastron area Greek artillery was said to have neutralized the Italian resistance by placing under fire the road running northeast from Porto Edda inland.

North of the Ostrovitza Mountains, in the central sector, new positions were said to have been occupied by the Greeks in their counter-invasion of Albania. An Athens spokesman said that they had set up their field pieces and shelled the Italian emplacements.

Heavy and medium Greek bombers were also reported exceptionally active yesterday, facilitating the ground operations. They were said to have heavily bombed the Italian columns and other Fascist targets in the Berati and Valona areas, despite strong anti-aircraft fire and fighter opposition.

Important Hits Scored.

Other bomber formations attacked Fascist camps near Elbasani and in the valley of the Shkumbi River, which runs past Elbasani to the sea. Hits were described as of great importance, and all Greek aircraft were said to have returned safely to their bases.

The British Royal Air Force said that its toll of Italian planes mounted. An R. A. F. communique declared:

Encircling Argyrokastron.

"Reports received confirm that, in addition to two Italian aircraft destroyed by our bomber and fighter formations on December 2, two other enemy aircraft also were shot down. In the Premeti area our fighters intercepted two reconnaissance aircraft and they were destroyed."

The Athens spokesman also credited the Greeks with new gains in their efforts to encircle Argyrokastron—about twenty miles northeast of Porto Edda—and said that the heights northeast of Libohovo, six miles southeast of Argyrokastron, had been wrested from the Italians.

Reporting on action at the opposite end of the battlefront—in the push toward Elbasani—the Greek High Command said merely: "In the Pogradetz region, we captured new heights after fierce fighting. Prisoners were taken, and automatic weapons, howitzers, and three guns fell into our hands."

The spokesman, describing operations in that sector, declared that the Greek right wing pushed forward despite snow and bad weather northwest of Moskopolis, dislodging the Italians from heights there.

Italian Unit 'Cut to Pieces.'

In the center of the battlefront, near Premet, the Greeks were reported to have cut to pieces one of Italy's picked companies, and then to have captured two officers and "what was left" of the company.

The spokesman said that Greeks on this front also seized the plateau of Platovouni, crushing strong enemy resistance.

Meanwhile today Greek communiques said that civilians were killed in Italian bombing raids on Prevenna, Philiatra and the island of Levkas, and that Greek planes "successfully bombed columns and storehouses behind the enemy lines."

Italians Deny Retreat.

ROME, Dec. 4 (A. P.).—The Italian High Command declared today that the Italian forces in Albania held their positions against heavy Greek attacks supported by artillery fire.

In some sectors, the Italians were stated to have counter-attacked.

The communique also said that enemy planes bombed Elbasani, killing four persons.

The communique said that "renewed attacks by numerous enemy formations with considerable artillery preparation and support have been held in check by tenacious resistance on the part" of the Italian troops, "who have even vigorously counter-attacked."

Italian planes were said to have supported the Fascist troops by "concentrating violent bombardments" especially on the sector west of Erseka, in the central fighting front.

Italian planes attacked the Greek ports of Preveza and San Maura, on the island of Levkas, and shot down six Greek planes over Tirana, the communique reported, adding that these latter craft were PZL (Polish) planes being used by the Greek Air Corps.

Three Italian planes failed to return after the air fight, it was admitted.

Closing In on Elbasani.

BELGRADE, Dec. 4 (A. P.).—Dispatches from the Albanian frontier today indicated that the Greeks had reached the Devol Valley northwest of Moskopolis, which would put them within forty miles of Elbasani.

Reports from the same quarter last night said that another column had driven Italian Bersaglieri troops from Mumulishta, just north of Pogradetz, which would put this drive within forty-five miles of Elbasani by road.

604 Killed in Raids So Far.

LONDON, Dec. 4 (A. P.).—Reuters, the British news agency, in a dispatch from Athens today quoted the Athens radio as saying that 604 persons had been killed and 8,070 wounded in Italian air raids on undefended towns and villages in the first month of the Graeco-Italian conflict.

Indian Strategy Helps Greeks Take Fortified Enemy Position

Two Wounded Sergeants Tell How They Used Mountain Mist As "Secret Weapon" Against Italians

[By the Associated Press]

Salonika, Greece, Dec. 4—Two Greek army sergeants who never saw an American Indian told today how they copied the classic tactics of the redskins to capture a fortified mountain peak from surprised Italian artillery companies.

One sergeant, a 21-year-old Salonika clerk, chuckled in his hospital bed despite a throbbing wound as he told of the capture of the peak in the Koritza-Pogradetz sector with a force of forty men which faked a heavily armed numerically superior force.

"They had us under range of their machine guns," he said, "and it would have been suicide to attack when they could see us and know where to fire.

Mist Their "Secret Weapon"

"We waited until the mist swirled up around the Italian positions. Then we hid in the mist—we used it as a secret weapon, like your American Indians we've heard about.

"When we charged the last few feet with our bayonets, the Italians raised their hands. We took a number of prisoners and, of course, their guns.

"This wound I got was nothing. I want to go back to the front again."

The other sergeant, a 25-year-old Peleponnesian fisherman, was equally cheerful but his fighting days are over. Surgeon had to amputate his left foot because of wounds.

Picked Them Off, One By One

"I took thirty men up the peak near the Morova Mountain and we literally crawled through scrubby pinewoods in order to approach the Italian guns," he related.

"The enemy sent out scouting parties and from behind tree trunks we picked them off one by one.

"They laid down a barrage but we kept edging forward. I divided my men and we came on guns from two sides.

"There were not many of us left when the fight was over and then one hundred Italians rushed over from nearby positions. I was wounded, and they took me prisoner but I crawled away from their camp during the night.

"The next two days I lay under cover of brush in a ravine. Then our forces completely routed the enemy and I was found and brought to the hospital.

"The Italian privates are afraid of our bayonets and our determination. Only Italian officers resist hard."

Italy Calls 200,000 More Men to Colors

ROME, Dec. 4. (A. P.).—Italians born in 1921 were called today for service in the army for the regular two-year conscription period, adding 200,000 more men to the 1,000,000 already under arms.

Big-Gun Trains Back Up Italian Navy with Land Fire

By the Associated Press.

ROME, Dec. 4.—To Italy's naval strength, add an unspecified number of trains especially equipped for fighting off attacks from the sea.

Active use of these trains was disclosed during the four-day war with France. A communique announced the posthumous award of a gold medal to a senior lieutenant killed commanding one at Mentone.

One of Il Lavoro Fascista's war correspondents was allowed to witness the operation of such a train, manned entirely by regular sailors.

Two locomotives, he said, were kept with steam up constantly, ready to haul the train at high speed at the first sign of a bombardment from the sea.

At the signal, all civilian traffic was sidetracked to allow the fighting train to rush through to the danger point. The train described carried one car of munitions right behind the engine, several cars of long-range guns and their equipment, and one car on which were mounted anti-aircraft artillery and special machine guns for fighting off enemy planes.

Arriving at the designated spot, the two engines pulled away a short distance, leaving the gun carriages alone. Heavy braces were dropped to the ground to help absorb the firing shocks and keep the tracks from being jolted out of alignment.

Meanwhile, sailors ran up a signaling mast and quickly strung a telephone line to wires along the right of way, setting up communication between the various units of the train.

Within a minute and a half of the train's arrival on the spot, all this had been done and the guns were in firing position, the correspondent reported. A small torpedo boat at sea signaled the proximity of the shots to the target.

LITTLE NATIONS TOLD THEY FACE DRAFT BY AXIS

Nazis Expect Them To Aid In Spring Drive, Says Bucharest Paper

Rumania Expropriates Oil Properties—Signs New Pact With Berlin

[By the Associated Press]

Bucharest, Dec. 4—The statement that Germany expects smaller European nations to lend their armies, their territory and their transport facilities to the Axis for a spring offensive was made today by Curentul, the newspaper which frequently is called the Nazi mouthpiece in Rumania.

Rumanians in particular were exhorted to look seriously upon their promise of military assistance to the Axis—made, along with those of Hungary and Slovakia, in recent adherence to the "all for one and one for all" alliance among Berlin, Rome and Tokyo. Nazi troops already are in Rumania.

Preparing "Huge Coalition"

"Axis diplomacy," said the newspaper, "is preparing a huge coalition of all European states which will involve participation of their armies and the free use of their territories and transport facilities."

[Associated Press Editor's Note—The newspaper did not say which direction the offensive was to take, but the implication seemed clear that it referred to the German drive which is expected to descend through Bulgaria or Yugoslavia into Greece, Turkey and the Middle East—aimed eventually at Suez; possibly to be coordinated with a German thrust through Spain at Gibraltar.]

Curentul also forecast an Axis league of nations at Vienna—in which the Axis would make and pursue its own decisions without referring them to satellite states.

Oil Properties Expropriated

Meantime, increased railroad, highway and pipeline construction to speed up delivery of oil to Germany was foreseen in informed circles as the immediate result of the signing of the Rumanian-German trade treaty in Berlin today.

The announcement of the treaty coincided with Rumania's expropriation of all oil pipelines, reservoirs, pumping stations and the land on which they are situated in a decree that would include the Romano Americano properties owned by the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey.

The chief bottleneck in deliveries of oil to Germany—deliveries on which she has depended heavily to carry on her war with Britain—has been the lack of adequate transportation facilities.

Applies To "Jewish" Ship Lines

In recent months the production of Rumanian oil has been curtailed twenty per cent. by the capping of wells because surpluses could not be shipped to Germany, Italy or Rumania's Balkan neighbors.

The importance placed on transport was emphasized further by the expropriation decree which embraced all Danube barges, tugs, tankers and seagoing ships owned and used by companies having Jewish stockholders.

Since both the American and British companies have Jewish stockholders, this enables the Government to seize all their properties.

The companies would be reimbursed by twenty-five-year bonds bearing three per cent. interest.

Adjunct To Nazi Machine

The development of Rumania as an agricultural adjunct to Germany's industrial machine also was foreseen in diplomatic circles.

They pointed out that Germany could supply virtually every manufactured need of Rumania, while the latter's grain and other agricultural and mineral raw products are vital to Germany's industrial plant.

Economically, these diplomats concluded, the treaty binds Rumania as tightly as her adherence to the Rome-Berlin-Tokyo Axis does politically.

No Official Notification Received By Standard Oil

In New York a spokesman for Standard Oil of New Jersey said the company had received no official notification of the Rumanian action or details of the properties involved.

Romano Americano produces petroleum from the Rumanian fields, has refining facilities and likewise buys Rumanian crude for refining. The subsidiary has fifteen American employes.

The Rumanian properties, informed quarters said, represent only a minor part of the world-wide interests of Standard of New Jersey.

Germany And Rumania Sign Economic Alliance

Berlin, Dec. 4 (AP)—Germany and Rumania signed today a broad, ten-year trade and economic agreement placing a large portion of Rumanian resources at Germany's disposition.

Rumania, with the help of German experts, created a ten-year economic development plan of her own and committed herself to deliver large quantities of materials to the Reich.

The agreement, covering agriculture, trade, finance, transport and industry, was officially described as taking into account "the new political relations between the two states."

Nazi Capital And Technicians

German capital and German technicians are to be employed in Rumania.

To insure delivery of products, a large-scale development of Rumanian transportation facilities is an essential part of the ten-year plan.

With an eye to war needs, Germany stipulated specifically that petroleum lines be built and extended.

The sums to be employed over the ten-year period and the specific nature of developments contemplated were not disclosed, but obviously large amounts are involved.

Another "German Triumph"

Germans stressed the importance of the agreement, declaring, "Rumania now takes its ordered place in the economic scheme of the new Europe," and, "the struggle with Britain for access to Balkan products ends in another German triumph."

The Germans maintained, however, that the significance of the step transcended the needs of war, saying that the basis for post-war trade thus was being established.

The German-Rumania protocol was concluded here in Berlin—after weeks of negotiations, it was stated—and the protocol announcing its terms showed that Rumania's part of the bargain was to improve markets within its border for German products.

What Rumania Is Promised

The Nazis, on their part, promised:

To extend credits for the ten-year period, provide machines and technical aid to increase the production of Rumanian farms and to drain Rumanian swamps.

To give both financial and technical help for developing Rumanian industries; to cooperate in improving Rumania's transport systems, including railways, highways and pipe lines.

To give financial credits to private Rumanian banks so that they might participate in the program; to send both agricultural and industrial experts to Rumania.

To sustain permanent and dependable markets for Rumanian products and to protect those markets from "the vagaries of economic crises."

"Both governments," said the official statement, "announce with satisfaction that German-Rumanian cooperation in all contemplated phases already has begun. They are determined to continue this cooperation in the interest of both peoples."

Hungarian And Yugoslav Missions Off For Moscow

Budapest, Dec. 4 (AP)—Hungarian and Yugoslav trade delegations headed for Moscow today to place big orders with the Soviets.

The Yugoslavs expect to negotiate the purchase of from $1,000,000 to $2,000,000 worth of wool. Hungary has a trade agreement with Russia envisaging a turnover of at least $3,700,000 annually.

Russia has placed orders for eight Danube river boats, several thousand railway car undercarriages and more than 2,000 Diesel engines with Hungary.

Csaky May Visit Belgrade Soon

Belgrade, Yugoslavia, Dec. 4 (AP)—Informed sources said today that Count Stephan Csaky, the Hungarian Foreign Minister, may visit Belgrade within the near future. There was some suggestion that a non-aggression pact between Hungary and Yugoslavia might be contemplated.

Ribbentrop, Ciano And Laval Expected To Meet Soon To Smooth Out Friction

Italy, Due To Reverses In Greece, Seen Ready To Modify Demands On France

[By the Associated Press]

Bern, Switzerland, Dec. 4—A conference between Foreign Ministers of the Rome-Berlin Axis and France to seek a "post-armistice, but pre-peace" settlement was reported imminent in diplomatic quarters here tonight.

Pierre Laval, Vice-Premier and Foreign Minister of France, was expected to meet both Foreign Minister Joachim von Ribbentrop of Germany and Foreign Minister Count Galeazzo Ciano of Italy this week or early next week, possibly in Munich, to smooth out points of friction.

Rome Reverses Reported Factor

Italian reverses in the war with Greece were reported to be one of the main reasons for the conference at this time. Italian demands on the French Empire have been one of the main barriers to closer cooperation between the Vichy Government and the Axis, while German attempts to persuade Italy to lower those demands were unsuccessful until the Greek war began, editors in Berlin and Rome were informed.

[Associated Press Editor's Note—Berlin sources were evasive regarding recurring inquiries about Laval's reported visit but said: "There is no question that German-French talks will continue, but no dates have been fixed."]

Informed French sources described Germany as willing to let France retain the greater part of her African empire except the former German colonies and small areas like Jibuti, with a possible joint Italian-French protectorate over Tunisia.

Believed Weakening On Tunisia

Until the Greek war started, however, Italy was adamant on its demand for all Tunisia and on other points of territorial cession.

Now, both Germans and French believe Italians might be inclined to lower their demands upon France and look to the British African empire and Egypt as their main field for territorial gains.

Unofficial reports from Vichy declared that Laval's proposed trip to Berlin last week was postponed on Premier Henri Philippe Petain's expressed order.

Today, however, news reached Switzerland that Petain gave an interview in a Paris weekly newspaper in which he was quoted as saying Laval would "soon" go to Germany to continue efforts toward closer collaboration.

SWISS RAID REDS

Police Seize Propaganda in Underground Units.

BERNE, Switzerland, Dec. 4 (A. P.).—The Swiss Government announced today Federal police had raided various underground units of the Swiss communists and the totalitarian Swiss national movement, which were ordered dissolved.

At the office of the communist newspaper, Freiheit, they seized large quantities of propaganda, the police said.

They also raided the offices of totalitarian organizations in Zurich, Lucerne, Bienne and Geneva where, the communique said, they found documents indicating the national movement had 2,000 regular members with a youth movement of only 129 members.

Vigilante Legion Formed To Help Police France

VICHY, Dec. 4 (A. P.).—Civilians who wore armbands and assisted police in maintaining order at Marseilles yesterday during the reception for Chief of State Marshal Henri Petain were members of a vigilante legion being formed in France, it was reported here today.

Legion committees, known as "protection groups," were said to have been organized in various towns of the unoccupied zone of France, but the occasion at Marseilles was their first public appearance.

REVOLTS REPORTED IN COCHIN CHINA

20 Native Policemen Killed, Leaders Of New Uprisings Seized, Hanoi Hears

French To Send Gunboats As Strength Demonstration. Lull On Thai Front

[By the Associated Press]

Hanoi, French Indo-China, Thursday, Dec. 5—Twenty native police were killed, nine others are missing and twenty-one were wounded in new native uprisings in western Cochin China, the southern tip of French Indo-China, it was reported today.

French authorities arrested numerous leaders in the revolts and prepared to send gunboats to that sector in a demonstration of strength.

Reprisals On Thailand Halted

The revolts came while there was a lull in the fighting on the Indo-China-Thai (Siam) border. The French announced that "reprisals for Siamese attacks" had been halted "to permit diplomats every opportunity to effect a settlement," but there was no word here on progress of the negotiations.

The border situation seemed definitely improved. The only incident reported yesterday was the flight of three Thai warplanes over Poipet, which was not bombed.

French Gunboat Reported Sunk

Bangkok, Thailand, Dec. 4 (AP)—The Thai (Siamese) high command reported tonight that a Thai anti-tank gun had sunk a French gunboat in the Mekong river Monday night, killing or wounding several soldiers and officers.

A clash between French and Thai patrol boats on the upper river also was reported here. Unofficial advances said the French attacked a Buddhist shrine at Nagorn Panom, but fell back in the face of a vigorous defense.

LARGE-SCALE VICTORY REPORTED BY CHINESE

Attempted Japanese Drive in Hupeh Said to Be Smashed

HONG KONG, Dec. 4 (AP)—Chinese dispatches portrayed today as one of the major victories of the Chinese-Japanese conflict the reported Chinese successes in Central and Northern Hupeh Province, where a Japanese offensive was claimed to have been smashed last week.

Central News, in a dispatch from Chungking, said Chinese authorities officially announced that about 20,000 Japanese were killed in action in Hupeh, and that large quantities of arms and ammunition were seized.

Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek telegraphed General Li Tsung-jen, commander in chief of the Chinese forces in Hupeh, commending him for his "wise direction of operations which led to the Japanese débâcle."

Reports reaching Shanghai said a steady stream of Japanese wounded had been moving down the Yangtze River in the last two weeks in transports and hospital ships.

They were said to have included 11,400 men alone from the region of Hankow, capital of Hupeh.

Russia Informs Japan It Keeps Policy on China

Notes Treaty With Wang, and Asserts Its Attitude to Chiang Is Unchanged

MOSCOW, Dec. 5. (Thursday) (AP).—Tass, official Russian news agency, reported today the Russian government had informed Tokio that its "policy with regard to China" remained unchanged by Japanese recognition of the Chinese regime at Nanking headed by Wang Ching-wei.

Tass said Russian Ambassador Constantin Smetanin had called at the Japanese Foreign Office yesterday and delivered the following statement on behalf of his government:

"The Soviet government notes the statement of the Japanese government to the effect that an article of agreement has been concluded between Japan and Wang Ching-wei not directed in any way against the U. S. S. R., and that it will not affect Japan's desire to adjust her relations with the U. S. S. R.

"On its part, the Soviet government desires to state that the policy of the Soviet Union with regard to China remains without change."

The Japanese statement referred to by Smetanin, Tass said, was delivered to the Russian Ambassador last Sunday by Japanese Vice-Minister of Foreign Affairs Chuichi Ohashi.

Ohashi explained, the agency added: "Article Three in this agreement concerning the struggle against Communism was not directed in any way against the U. S. S. R., and said article follows from purely internal conditions."

Nazi Ships Reported North Atlantic Bound

German Sources At Tampico Say Two Freighters Eluded U. S. Neutrality Patrol

Tampico, Mexico, Dec. 4 (AP)—German sources said today the German freighters Rhein and Idarwald, which sailed from Tampico November 29, after an earlier unsuccessful start, were apparently heading into the North Atlantic, where Nazi warcraft are believed to be operating.

These sources said they had received word from the two freighters that they had eluded shadowing vessels of the United States neutrality patrol. The Idarwald and Rhein cleared for Spanish ports.

A third ship, the Orinoco, was believed getting ready to sail.

The three ships and a fourth, the Phrygia, started from Tampico November 15. Three of them turned back and the crew of the Phygia scuttled their ship in the belief British or Canadian warships were close at hand.

Helgoland Was Reported Sunk By British Warships In Caribbean

Bogota, Colombia, Dec. 4 (AP)—A message indicating that the 2,927-ton German freighter Helgoland, which sailed from Puerto Colombia October 29 without bothering about the formality of clearance papers, had arrived safely in Hamburg, Germany, was received here today.

New York shipping circles received reports November 15 that the Helgoland was sunk by British warships in the Caribbean.

BRITAIN TO RECEIVE REMINDER OF DEBT

Washington To Tell England She Still Owes About Billion And Half

U. S. Has No Hope Of Collecting Anything, But Will Send Notices

[By the Associated Press]

Washington, Dec. 4—A reminder will go to Great Britain in a day or two that an item of about a billion and a half dollars of unpaid World War debt complicates the current problem of financial assistance from the United States.

With no hope of collecting anything, the State Department is preparing the semi-annual notices to Britain and other war debtors of the amounts due this Government on December 15.

The regrets that have come back from Britain in the last several years stand as a barrier now to any private loans in the United States.

Reason Is Johnson Act

The reason is the Johnson Act, a measure sponsored in Congress in 1934 by Hiram Johnson, the veteran Republican Senator of California, who declared today he was resting up for a fight at the next session against expected moves to repeal it.

Enacted in the days before Adolf Hitler's war machine really began to take shape, and even before Benito Mussolini started his campaign against Ethiopia, the Johnson Act makes it a criminal offense for any person in the United States to make a loan to a government which is in default on any debt to this country.

But the act specifically exempts from the ban "a public corporation created by or pursuant to special authorization of Congress, or a corporation in which the Government of the United States has or exercises a controlling interest through stock ownership or otherwise."

Similar Prohibition

The Neutrality Act contains a similar prohibition against loans, and credits as well, by any person to any belligerent nation named in a Presidential proclamation on the existence of a state of war.

The President has never proclaimed the existence of a state of war between Japan and China, but all the European belligerents have been named in proclamations.

The act says that the term person includes a partnership, company, association or corporation, as well as a natural person. It does not mention the Government in connection with this definition.

To Consult Congress

Despite these apparent legal "loopholes" permitting governmental financial assistance to Britain, however, indications have come from official quarters that Congress would be consulted on any such move.

Secretary Hull, answering a question whether there were ways of extending financial aid without changing the Johnson Act, said he would not undertake to say it was possible without action by Congress in some approving manner.

President Enjoys Smooth Sea on Caribbean Cruise

ABOARD U. S. S. MAYRANT AT SEA, Dec. 4 (AP by Radio).—President Roosevelt cruised along the Cuban coast today on the first stage of a trip into the Caribbean Sea, where he was expected to inspect some of the bases recently acquired by the United States from Great Britain.

The sea was smooth, the weather was sunny and the temperature was in the 80s. The only ships sighted were several American freighters, one Honduran and one British.

Two of the United States neutrality patrol seaplanes from the Guantanamo Naval Base dipped over the cruiser Tuscaloosa, on which the President was enjoying the sunshine and salt air after a good sleep.

The Tuscaloosa, escorted by the destroyers Mayrant and Trippe, averaged thirty knots during the night.

The President's destination remained a secret. When he left Miami, Fla., yesterday he announced he would sail into the Caribbean and that there would not be much fishing.

Knox in Key West

KEY WEST, Fla., Dec. 4 (AP).—Frank Knox, Secretary of the Navy, rested here tonight after a flight by land and seaplane from Washington on the way to inspect defense bases in Panama and the Caribbean.

Included on his eight-day itinerary was a visit to the Navy's exercises at the uninhabited island of Culebra, near Puerto Rico. President Roosevelt had said he might see the maneuvers there, but Mr. Knox asserted there was no prearrangement for him to meet the President.

SEES U. S. DOOMED TO GET INTO WAR

Senator Johnson Asserts "Only A Miracle" Can Keep Us Out

Charges That Those In Command Are "Mad" To Enter Conflict

[By the Associated Press]

San Francisco, Dec. 4—Senator Hiram W. Johnson told interviewers today "only a miracle can keep us out" of participation in Europe's war.

"There is no doubt that the United States will go to war," he asserted. "Those in command are perfectly mad to be 'in the game.'"

Johnson came home for the Christmas holidays and to visit his grandson, Phillip B. Johnson, seriously ill in a hospital here.

He predicted Congress soon would see a drive for repeal of the Johnson Act, his own measure which prohibits loans to nations in default of previous debts.

Promises A Fight

Without predicting outcome of the drive, Johnson said, "I hope to make a few of these mad hatters realize they have to fight."

He would not predict when he believed the United States would enter the war but said it could happen any time.

"We will probably lend money to England after this country gets into the war, regardless of the little act bearing my name.

"The sad part of it is that requests for money are not coming so much from England as from the American foreign legion—the group of Americans living in this country who do anything and everything foreign countries want.

Charges Hidden Designs

"If the United States really wants to get into the war, there is a mode prescribed by the Constitution that permits it. What I object to is us being eased in by groups who are deliberately hiding their designs."

The Senator expressed belief most Americans wanted England to win, but said he saw no reason why "we have to dig and give them all the money they want.

"If we make loans to the British and it succeeds in saving them, it's a dead cinch we'll be at loggerheads over these loans once the curtain is down."

Britain Holds Down War Risk Insurance

New York, Dec. 4 (AP)—Marine underwriters disclosed today the British Government had prevented a sharp increase in commercial war risk insurance rates despite current heavy English shipping losses.

The British War Risk Office insures all cargoes between United States Atlantic Coast ports and the West Coast of the United Kingdom for a flat 2½ per cent.

Commercial interests in the United States and England charge 10 per cent., which has been in effect for months.

A few exporters and importers pay the higher rate, insurance men said, because they fear delay in payment of British policies because of Government technicalities and prefer dealing with United States firms with which they are familiar.

In addition, some are afraid England might be subjected to quick defeat, it was said.

Domestic underwriters claimed they were not doing enough business on Europe-bound cargoes to keep in postage stamps, largely because of the British rate. Most insurance business now comes from Far Eastern and South American shipping, they said.

Says U. S. Should Seize Island Of Martinique

Admiral Stirling Calls It Threat To Security Under Control Of Vichy, "Partner Of Hitler"

Cleveland, Dec. 4 (AP)—Rear Admiral Yates Stirling, Jr. (U. S. N. retired), declared today that the United States should seize Martinique from France for unpaid debts.

Admiral Stirling described the West Indian island as a threat to American security as long as it is controlled by the Vichy Government, which he described as a virtual partner of Hitler.

Addressing the Cleveland Advertising Club, Admiral Stirling said "the only thing to do" with German diplomatic officials in the United States "is to give them their passports and get rid of them."

Plans To Ship 5,000 Packages To European Captives Before New Year

Washington, Dec. 4 (AP)—The Red Cross will inaugurate a regular package service to prisoners of war in Europe by shipping 5,000 packages of food before the new year, the organization announced today.

An American vessel will transport the first shipment to Lisbon, whence it will be taken to Geneva. The international committee of the Red Cross guarantees safe delivery of the packages to individual prisoners.

20 At Honolulu Ask Insurance And Bonus — Captain Doesn't Think Nippon Has 'Bad Intentions'

Honolulu, Dec. 4 (AP)—The Greek freighter Point Judith, loaded with scrap iron for Japan, remained at her pier today with twenty seamen striking for $500 war-risk insurance for each man and a bonus of $200 for entering Japanese waters.

"I don't know what the men want," commented Capt. Theodoros Caracalas. "I do not think Japan has any bad intentions."

The ship was due to sail yesterday.

War Communiques

Greek

ATHENS, Dec. 5 (Thursday) (AP).—A Greek general headquarters communique:

Fierce fighting on the mountain range west of Pogradetz was crowned by considerable success.

Stubborn enemy resistance in the sector north of Premet was overcome as the result of strong intervention by our artillery. In the zones on either side of the highway, the enemy launched attacks with tanks, which failed. We captured more than 500 prisoners, six guns and abundant material.

Today's activities of our aviation have been very successful. Reconnaissance flights and bombing raids on fixed and moving targets were conducted with successful results. One enemy aircraft was shot down in an air fight. All our planes returned intact.

German

BERLIN, Dec. 4 (AP).—The German high command communique:

German submarines scored additional successes in the merchant warfare against England. One U-boat sank six armed enemy merchant vessels totaling 31,500 tons. This submarine, commanded by Comdr. Viktor Schuetze, has sunk a total of 94,500 tons of enemy merchant shipping space.

As already reported, strong fighting plane units the night of Dec. 2-3 attacked port facilities at Bristol with bombs of all calibers. Because of generally bad weather, the planes partly broke through the lowest clouds, attacking their ordered objectives with ground visibility. Numerous observations confirmed well-aimed hits on the targets.

The same night Southampton was bombed again.

During the course of the day light and heavy combat planes raided airports, camps, traffic points and armament plants. Thus London and the armament plant at Grantham were bombed. In an attack on Shoreham, airport hangars were struck and several planes were destroyed on the ground.

A long-distance bomber attacked a large protected convoy of 400 kilometers (250 miles) northwest of Ireland, sinking a 4,900-ton merchant ship with a direct hit.

Despite bad weather last night, raids were carried out on various war-vital objectives in central and southern England.

Scattered British planes last night dropped bombs on western and southwestern Germany, causing only slight damage to buildings. No one was hurt.

Maj. Wick, commodore of the Richthofen Squadron, failed to return from a flight against the enemy after his fifty-sixth air victory. The German air force thus lost one of its most audacious and most successful pursuit pilots. Maj. Wick, who for his heroism in the fight for the future of the German people was decorated with oak leaves to the Knight's Cross of the Iron Cross, will live on as an example among German people and German youth.

Italian

ROME, Dec. 4 (AP).—The Italian high command communique:

On the Greek front, renewed attacks by numerous enemy formations with considerable artillery preparation and support have been held in check by the tenacious resistence of our troops, who have even vigorously counter-attacked.

Our air formations supported the action of our troops, concentrating violent bombardment especially in the zone west of Erseka. The ports of Prevesa and San Maura were attacked successfully by our bombers.

A formation of our planes, meeting a group of PZL's (Polish planes used by the Greeks), shot down six in flames over Tirana. Three of our planes failed to return.

Enemy planes dropped bombs at Elbasani, killing two women, a child and a workman, without causing any damage.

Our torpedo-launching planes torpedoed two British cruisers in Suda Bay (Crete).

In East Africa, an enemy cruiser opened fire on works at Alula Nov. 29, causing some damage but no casualties.

One of our submarines torpedoed an enemy destroyer in the Atlantic Dec. 1.

British

LONDON, Dec. 4 (AP).—An Air Ministry-Home Security Ministry communique:

Enemy activity over this country today has been very slight.

Shortly after mid-day bombs were dropped in Dover, doing some damage and causing a few casualties.

One enemy bomber was shot down over the Dutch coast by our fighters without loss to themselves.

An earlier Air Ministry-Home Security Ministry communique:

Last night the enemy attacked London and the Midlands, and bombs were also dropped at various scattered points between these areas and the coast. The attacks were not on a large scale, nor of long duration, and ceased soon after 10 p. m. The total number of killed and injured should not prove to be large.

In the midlands a number of fires which were soon brought under control were caused, but no large fires are reported in the London area, nor were any important objectives damaged there.

CAIRO, Egypt, Dec. 4 (AP).—A communique issued by the Royal Air Force African command:

In East Africa Kassala was heavily raided, our bombs falling off the enemy's fortified positions and straddling a motor transport park. At Gur our aircraft machine-gunned transport and enemy personnel. At Adardeb Rhodesian aircraft bombed an enemy camp, starting a fire.

Numerous reconnaissances were carried out in enemy territory on all fronts. From all operations our aircraft returned safely.

Despite British Shipping Losses, Her Position Is Declared Not Desperate

By DEWITT MACKENZIE.

DEC 6-1940

The heavy sinkings of British and allied shipping by U-boats and bombers is in all conscience a serious matter, but lest we be misled in our estimates it's wise to record that Britain's position on the sea is by no means desperate.

The torpedoing business, like most other enterprises, has its good days and its bad ones—as witness the proud claim by Berlin that on Monday U-boats sank eighteen ships with a tonnage of 148,000, and probably got two more, making a total of over 160,000 tons. Such a sensational report of wholesale slaughter of good ships sounds like the end of all things.

However, no longer ago than November 26, Cross, the British Minister of Shipping, stated that the Germans were averaging 60,000 tons a week. Yesterday London announced that for the four weeks ending November 24 the Axis had done away with 323,157 tons—a considerable increase over the average.

If we use this larger figure of 323,157, as a basis for calculation, it would take Hitler some six years to put the present British and Allied merchant marine out of business.

Actually, of course, this has little value as a long-range calculation. I cite the estimate, not to detract from the gravity of the Nazi assault, but with the idea of helping us keep our prospective.

Losses of Cargoes Serious.

But while Britain can lose a lot more shipping and still keep herself afloat, the losses of the cargoes must be a matter of deep concern for the Government. The British Isles are terribly vulnerable in that they are dependent on sea-borne imports for the bulk of their foodstuffs and raw material.

Those cargoes which are going to the bottom in such large numbers, represent not only food but materials for the manufacture of warplanes and other necessities. Britain can stand the loss of ships, but she can't afford to lose their freight.

Britain must replace, so far as possible, the ships sunk, increase her naval policing of submarine infested waters, and provide more adequate naval protection for convoys.

Britain's shipyards aren't able to build fast enough to meet the losses. She therefore is turning to America, and Minister Cross said yesterday that orders for sixty new ships had been placed here. American steamers already available also will be purchased.

Britain's greatest effort to counter the drain, however, is her new offensive against Mussolini in an attempt to knock Italy out of the war. Could this be achieved, it would release warships from the Mediterranean to combat the submarine menace.

London estimates that Britain has on hand about 23,000,000 tons. She started the war with 19,284,000 tons in vessels of over 1,000 tonnage, acquired some 8,000,000 tons from allies, and 3,800,000 tons are said to have been sunk up to November 10.

Thus it is apparent that Britain actually has more tonnage than when the war started.

New Shanghai Ruler Reported Assassinated

Dies Proposes U. S. Should Bar Nazi Propaganda From Mails

Asks Postoffice How Much Alien Literature It Distributes Under Treaty and Says It Should Stop Unless Dictatorships Reciprocate

DEC 5-1940

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4 (AP).—Chairman Martin Dies, Democrat, of Texas, said today that the House Committee on Un-American Activities would seek to ascertain "how much it is costing the American taxpayers" for the Post Office Department to distribute German propaganda under the terms of an international treaty.

"We are calling on the Post Office Department to furnish the committee with an estimate of the tonnage and the number of pieces of literature received from Germany and disseminated by our own postal authorities," Mr. Dies said.

"Of course, we will also seek the same figures on other countries, such as Italy, Russia, Japan and England."

He said that as he understood the treaty, the United States was "forced" to provide postal facilities for "disseminating this propaganda without receiving anything in return."

Representative Dies exhibited envelopes which he said contained German propaganda sent from Germany through Siberia. In one case, an aid explained, the packages were landed at Seattle, and the Post Office Department had to assume responsibility for delivery to persons as far east as New York.

"Either we must discontinue dissemination of this German propaganda or else we must find some method for dissemination of democratic propaganda in totalitarian countries," Mr. Dies asserted.

He said that Germans in their home country as well as those in the United States supplied names for the German Propaganda Ministry mailing lists and that the committee had run across a list in Chicago containing 220,000 names.

Mr. Dies said, too, that the committee would like to find out exactly how much money was being sent from persons and organizations in the United States to "totalitarian governments to help finance the war."

"I think that the facts will disclose that the United States has done a lot to help finance these countries and that in the case of Italy it's going to be an astonishing figure."

The chairman disclosed that both these matters would be the subject of another committee "paper" which he hoped would be ready for publication in ten days.

Mr. Dies, who returned to Washington Friday for a conference with President Roosevelt, left today on a ten-day speaking trip which will take him to Tennessee, Oklahoma, Kansas and Missouri before he goes to his Texas home for Christmas. He said he would remain away from Washington until Jan. 3, the day the new Congress convenes.

"I plan to make investigations at almost every place I stop," he said.

DEC 5-1940

BRISTOL, ENGLAND, DEC. 4-(AP)-EMERGENCY WORKERS ASSISTED TODAY IN RESTORING BRISTOL'S TRANSPORTATION SYSTEM IN ORDER TO KEEP INDUSTRIES OPERATING DESPITE THE DOUBLE DOSE OF FIRE AND HIGH EXPLOSIVE BOMBS SUFFERED BY THIS WESTERN PORT AND MANUFACTURING CITY.

BY THIS MORNING, THE WORST OF THE TRANSPORT DAMAGE FROM LAST MONDAY NIGHT'S RAID BY 300 GERMAN BOMBERS HAD BEEN REPAIRED. SUBURBAN TRAINS AND BUSES WERE RUNNING ON ALMOST NORMAL SCHEDULES.

SOLDIERS AND POLICE ARE DIRECTING TRAFFIC AND HELPING TO CLEAR WAY DEBRIS.

IT IS IMPOSSIBLE YET TO GET EVEN A SEMI-OFFICIAL ESTIMATE OF THE DAMAGE, EXCEPT THE COMMENT THAT IT IS CONSIDERABLY LESS THAN MIGHT HAVE BEEN EXPECTED "AS MANY OF THE PLANTS HIT WERE SMALL."

ASIDE FROM ONE BATTERED SECTION OF THE CITY, BRISTOL'S MAIN PROBLEM IS GETTING WORKMEN TO THE FACTORIES AND REESTABLISHING TELEPHONES, ELECTRICITY AND SIMILAR SERVICES.

ALONGSIDE THE WHARVES TODAY, SHIPS APPEARED TO BE LOADING AND UNLOADING WITHOUT DIFFICULTY.

FROM A HILL OVERLOOKING THE VALLEY OF THE AVON, WHERE IT FLOWS INTO BRISTOL CHANNEL, I SAW SMOKE POURING FROM HUNDREDS OF FACTORIES STILL OPERATING.

(BESIDES BEING AN IMPORTANT MANUFACTURING CENTER, BRISTOL IS A PORT THROUGH WHICH BRITAIN RECEIVES MANY OF ITS VITAL SUPPLIES FROM THE UNITED STATES).

OUT OF A POPULATION OF 420,000, NONE OF WHOM HAS BEEN EVACUATED FROM THE CITY, ONLY 5,000 ODD REMAIN HOMELESS AS A RESULT OF RECENT RAIDS.

AND BRISTOL HAS ENOUGH HOMES STILL STANDING TO BILLET ITS BOMBED OUT RESIDENTS WITHOUT CALLING UPON SUBURBAN FACILITIES.

SECTIONS HIT HARDEST BY THE RECENT RAIDS WERE POPULAR SHOPPING DISTRICTS NEAR THE RESIDENTIAL AREAS AND TWO CLUM SECTIONS. ONE OF EACH OF THESE WAS DEVASTATED TO A GREATER EXTENT THAN EITHER CONVENTRY OR SOUTHAMPTON.

OTHERWISE, BRISTOL PRESENTS A PICTURE SIMILAR TO THAT OF LONDON, WITH INDIVIDUAL BUILDINGS WRECKED AND MANY BOMB-POCKED STRUCTURES SURROUNDING THEM.

THE FOOD SITUATION PRESENTS SOMEWHAT OF AN ANOMALY. THERE IS PLENTY TO EAT BUT NO PLACE TO EAT, SO MANY RESTAURANTS HAVE BEEN DESTROYED.

THOSE WHO DON'T TAKE THEIR LUNCH LOAD UP AT BREAKFAST AND SUPPERTIME.

FROM 3,000 TO 4,000 WHO HAVE REPORTED BEING BOMBED OUT OF THEIR JOBS, ARE EXPECTED TO BE TRANSFERRED TO WAR INDUSTRIES ELSEWHERE.

WASHINGTON,DEC. 4-(AP)-THE GOVERNMENT ATTACKED THE PROBLEM OF GETTING ENOUGH MACHINE TOOLS FOR DEFENSE INDUSTRIES ON TWO FRONTS TODAY, ANNOUNCING THAT ITS CONTROL OVER MACHINE TOOL EXPORTS WOULD BE EXPANDED SHORTLY AND APPEALING FOR A "POOLING" OF EXISTING FACILITIES IN COUNTLESS COMMUNITIES.

COLONEL RUSSELL L.MAXWELL, ADMINISTRATOR OF EXPORT CONTROL, ANNOUNCED THAT THE EXPORT LICENSING SYSTEM WOULD BE EXTENDED AFTER DECEMBER 10 TO A LONG LIST OF MACHINE TOOLS "HITHERTO EXEMPTED IN OUR DESIRE TO MINIMIZE RESTRICTIONS ON NORMAL EXPORT BUSINESS." HE SAID THIS STEP WAS REQUIRED BY "THE INCREASED PACE OF THE NATIONAL DEFENSE PROGRAM."

PLACING AN ARTICLE UNDER THE EXPORT LICENSING SYSTEM MAKES IT NECESSARY TO OBTAIN A GOVERNMENT LICENSE IN ORDER TO SHIP THE ARTICLE ABROAD. THE LICENSE MAY BE REFUSED, AND THE SHIPMENT THUS EMBARGOED, IF OFFICIALS DECIDE THAT THE NATIONAL DEFENSE REQUIRES IT.

WELL INFORMED PERSONS SAID THAT GREAT BRITAIN AND COUNTRIES OF THE WESTERN HEMISPHERE WOULD UNDOUBTEDLY BE GIVEN FIRST CONSIDERATION IN THE LICENSING OF ANY MACHINE TOOL EXPORTS THAT UNITED STATES DEFENSE

NEEDS WOULD PERMIT. THE UNITED KINGDOM IS NOW THE PRINCIPAL IMPORTER OF UNITED STATES MACHINE TOOLS, HAVING TAKEN $19,903,000 WORTH FOR ARMAMENT PRODUCTION AND OTHER PURPOSES IN OCTOBER THIS YEAR. CANADA, RUSSIA, JAPAN AND LATIN AMERICA HAVE BEEN OTHER PRINCIPAL TAKERS. MACHINE TOOL EXPORTS TO ALL COUNTRIES IN OCTOBER TOTALLED $25,607,000.

THE APPEAL FOR THE ASSISTANCE OF COMMUNITY ORGANIZATIONS IN ARRANGING TO "POOL" IDLE MANUFACTURING FACILITIES SO THAT THEY WOULD BE SUFFICIENT, IN EACH LOCALITY, TO CARRY OUT A PHASE OF DEFENSE PRODUCTION WAS MADE AT A PRESS CONFERENCE BY MORRIS L.COOKE, A CONSULTANT TO SIDNEY HILLMAN, LABOR MEMBER OF THE NATIONAL DEFENSE COMMISSION.

COOKE, A CONSULTING ENGINEER IN THE LABOR FIELD AND FORMER ADMINISTRATOR OF RURAL ELECTRIFICATION, VOICED THE APPEAL IN URGING THAT IDLE FACILITIES IN "GHOST TOWNS," "GHOST AREAS" OF CITIES AND OTHER COMMUNITIES BE USED TO PERMIT FURTHER "FARMING OUT" OF DEFENSE MANUFACTURING ORDERS.

IN SOME COMMUNITIES, HE SAID, A NUMBER OF PLANTS HAD IDLE FACILITIES, WHICH INDIVIDUALLY WERE NOT SUFFICIENT TO HANDLE ANY PART OF DEFENSE PRODUCTION. BUT IF THESE FACILITIES WERE COMBINED, HE ADDED, THEY COULD TAKE OVER A SHARE OF THE ARMAMENT-BUILDING BURDEN IN MANY INSTANCES.

WITHIN THE NEXT WEEK, COOKE CONTINUED, HE EXPECTED TO SEND TO COMMUNITY ORGANIZATIONS DRAWINGS OR BLUE PRINTS AND SPECIFICATIONS OF MATERIALS NEEDED BY THE WAR AND NAVY DEPARTMENTS FOR DETERMINATION OF WHAT WORK MIGHT BE PERFORMED IN THIS MANNER.

THE NEED FOR SUCH POOLING OF FACILITIES, HE SAID, WAS THE DEMAND---GREATLY EXCEEDING SUPPLY---FOR MACHINE TOOLS.

"WHAT'S HAPPENING IS THAT MANUFACTURERS ARE OFFERING TWO AND THREE PRICES FOR THE TOOL THEY NEED," COOKE TOLD NEWSMEN.

MACHINE TOOL MANUFACTURERS HAD ORDERS WHICH LOADED THEM UP TO THE END OF 1942, HE SAID, AND THE DEMAND EXTENDED TO TOOLS IN USE FOR MANY YEARS.

DEC 5 1940

COOKE'S DISCUSSION DEALT WITH A METHOD OF SUBCONTRACTING, OTHER THAN THAT NORMALLY USED, IN WHICH SMALL PLANTS MIGHT FABRICATE COMPLETE PARTS OR PERFORM ONLY ONE OR TWO OPERATIONS IN THE FABRICATION.

"FARMING OUT" OF DEFENSE WORK HAD BEEN HIGHLY DEVELOPED IN ENGLAND, IT WAS SAID, UNDER THE NAME OF "BITS AND PIECES."

DEC 5-1940

THIS METHOD WOULD MAKE PLANNING MORE DIFFICULT AND ADD TO THE COST OF THE DEFENSE PROGRAM, COOKE SAID, BUT "NATIONALLY, IT'S THE ONLY WAY TO SPEED UP PRODUCTION."

"I BELIEVE THAT IN THE AIR BATTLE OVER ENGLAND IN AUGUST AND

SEPTEMBER," HE ADDED, "HISTORIANS WILL FIND MATERIAL TO RECORD IT AS ONE OF THE DECISIVE BATTLES OF THE WAR, EQUALLY DECISIVE AS THE EIGHT TO 12 BATTLES FROM MARATHON TO WATERLOO.

DEC 5 - 1940

"MY OBSERVATIONS ABROAD HAVE LED ME TO THE BELIEF THAT ENGLAND CAN'T LOSE THIS WAR, UNLESS SHE BECOMES OVER-CONFIDENT OR CARELESS."

HE EXPRESSED DOUBT THAT GERMANY'S NUMERICAL WARPLANE SUPERIORITY OVER THE BRITISH WAS AS LARGE AS HAS BEEN THOUGHT, BUT SAID THE NAZI PLANES WERE OF HIGH QUALITY AND THEIR FUEL UNIFORMLY GOOD.

HE SAID ONE OF THE BIGGEST FACTORS IN BRITAIN'S SUCCESS SO FAR IN HOLDING OFF THE AIR INVADERS WAS ITS EXTENSIVE GROUND OBSERVATION NETWORK. WITH IT, HE DECLARED, 100 PLANES COULD DO THE WORK OF MANY TIMES THAT NUMBER BY REMAINING GROUNDED UNTIL JUST THE RIGHT MOMENT FOR COUNTER-ATTACK.

HE LISTED AMONG CURRENT CRITICAL POINTS THE LOSS OF SOME BRITISH MERCHANT SHIPPING AND DESTROYERS, AND SAID ENGLAND NEEDS 100 MORE DESTROYERS, SEVERAL THOUSAND PLANES, PORTS IN IRELAND, MERCANTILE SHIPS AND FINANCIAL CREDIT IN THE UNITED STATES.

HE ADVISED AMERICA TO CONSIDER FOUR IMPORTANT FACTORS AS A RESULT OF THE WAR ABROAD: THE PROBLEM OF COMBATTING NIGHT BOMBARDMENTS; IMPROVEMENT OF PLANE-TO-GROUND RADIO SETS; BUILDING OF MORE OFFENSIVE POWER INTO FIGHTER PLANES AND DEFENSIVE POWER INTO BOMBERS; AND THE CONSTRUCTION OF ANTI-AIRCRAFT GUNS WITH A RANGE UP TO 40,000 FEET.

Porto Edda, Argirocastro Ablaze—Former Already Declared Taken

1,500 Fascists Claimed Captured In Hellenic Advance In North

DEC 6—1940

[By the Associated Press]

Athens, Friday, Dec. 6—Large fires in Porto Edda and Argirocastro were reported today as the Greek army pressed into the ouskirts of those two key Italian military bases in southern Albania.

It was presumed that the Italians, who have been reported abandoning the towns, had fired all stores and materials they were unable to cart away.

Firing of the two cities, Greeks said, was designed to prevent their troops from adding to an estimated $8,000,000 worth of war materials already seized from retreating Italians.

500 Machine Guns Taken

More than 500 machi. guns were said to be among the prizes.

A general headquarters communique reported general progress over the entire Albanian front, "especially in the central and southern sectors despite strong reaction from enemy aviation."

Italian planes bombed Corfu again, the commnique continued, but there were no casualties and only slight damage resulted.

On the northern sector, in the region of Koritza and Pogradetz, a Greek spokesman declared, the last Italians in that lofty area had been dislodged.

Losses "Quite Heavy"

He said Italian losses for the day were "quite heavy" and that more than 500 Italian prisoners were taken.

The Greeks marching beyond Premet, he asserted, were "received enthusiastically by a population liberated from Fascist servitude."

Reports from the front said the Greek air force had dive-bombed mechanized Italian units, virtually destroying some of them, and had attacked barracks which later became enveloped in black smoke. Italian trenches also were reported bombed.

Entry Of Greek Troops Into Porto Edda Claimed

DEC 6—1940

Ochrida, Yugoslavia, Dec. 5 (AP)—Greek forces, gathering speed in their counter-invasion of Italian-held Albania, were declared by Greek sources tonight to have entered the southern port of Porto Edda and to have captured 1,500 Italians in the thrust toward Elbasani in central Albania.

Greek informants said their troops were expected to seize the Italian southern base of Argirocastro by tomorrow, while on the central front the Italians were withdrawing down the Viosa river valley toward Tepeleni.

Neutral observers reported, however, that elements of three new Italian divisions had just arrived in Albania,

[Associated Press Editor's Note—Confirmation of the Porto Edda entrance is lacking from any other quarter, either from Athens or Rome. Advices on the Greek side have pictured merely the impending occupation of Porto Edda and Argirocastro.]

At the opposite end of the mountain-broken battle front, near the Yugoslav border, Greek troops, fighting in snow and fog, were said to have cleared their foe from the last positions on Kamia and Mokra mountains, forcing a continued Italian withdrawal toward Elbasani, on the road to Tirana, Albania's capital.

Albanians May Revolt

Meanwhile, Albanian refugees arriving in Yugoslavia declared that Italy faced a general uprising in her Albanian protectorate unless she could deliver food and supplies. They asserted that hundreds of Albanian deserters from the Italian army were hiding out in mountains and forests.

Heavy fighting was reported in southern and central sectors of the Albanian front with Italian aviation attempting to stem the Greek advances. The British Royal Air Force, according to Athens reports, also was taking a strong hand in the Greek offensive.

R. A. F. Bombards Italians

An R. A. F. communique reported raking bombardment of Italian troops and the communications vital to their withdrawal from the southwestern corner of Albania, two direct hits which left an Italian destroyer "listing heavily" off Porto Edda and apparent destruction of ten Italian planes in an air battle yesterday.

The fates of Porto Edda and Argirocastro were closely linked to that of Premet, a town fifteen miles within Albania, which the Greek high command announced today had been taken.

Capture of Premet, in the upper valley of the Viosa river, opened the way for a Greek advance twenty miles farther down the valley road to Tepelini, where the Viosa is joined by its tributary, the Dryno. Argirocastro lies in the Dryno valley, about twenty miles upriver from Tepelini.

The only escape from Argirocastro left by the mountain artillery of the Greeks was northward toward Tepelini. The Greek advance toward Tepelini threatened to bottle up the Argirocastro forces and thus, coupled with the frontal pressure on Argirocastro istelf, was reported forcing withdrawal.

The main inland route from Porto Edda into northern Albania passes through Argirocastro. Italians at Porto Edda could not use it. They were reported to be withdrawing along the twisting coastal road to Chimara, twenty-five miles northwest of the port.

Virtual Collapse Seen

The reported new successes in the Greek campaign would mean virtual collapse of the Italians' southern operations.

Thirty-nine days ago, when this Balkan war started Italian forces of invasion in the southern sector were aimed at capture of Ioannina, in northern Greece, and eventually Athens, the Greek capital, itself.

At the other end of the Albanian front other Fascist columns attempted to drive east onto Phlorina, Greece, en route to Salonika. This northern drive was squelched by Greek assaults which brought capture of the Italians' base, Koritza, and later Pogradetz.

Now, if the reports on Porto Edda and Argirocastro are to be credited, Italy has lost the principal sea gateway into southern Albania and stands to lose her last remaining base in the frontier region for conquest of Greece.

Italian Flyers Report Premet-Perati Road Cut

DEC 6 1940

Rome, Dec. 5 (AP)—The Italian high command's communique today reported Fascist aerial action on the Albanian front had cut the Premet-Perati highway at several points.

The objective appeared to be to halt a Greek advance beyond Premet—an advance which, if carried some twenty miles, would cut off the Italian forces at the southern base of Agirocastro.

Aside from this the Italians were declared to have bombed a series of objectives—military works, columns of troops, supply trucks.

The submarine Delfino was credited with having sunk a Greek destroyer in the Aegean November 29.

Without mentioning the date, Il Giornale d'Italia reported that a British cruiser of the Neptune type had been sunk by Italian torpedo boats.

ATHENS FORCES ARE OCCUPYING ALBANIAN PORT

Belgrade Reports They Will Enter Argyrokastron Tomorrow.

Italians Continue Retreat Toward Elbasani, Giving Up Last Positions on North Wing.

DEC 6 1940

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia, Dec. 5 (A. P.).—Greek sources said that Greek troops entered Porto Edda today and were expected to occupy Argyrokastron tomorrow.

The Greeks here said these successes spelled virtual collapse of the Italian campaign on the southern front, which the Fascists had aimed originally at Athens.

In southern and central sectors, continued heavy fighting was reported, however, with Italian aviation attempting to stem the Greek advance.

Albanian Uprising Predicted.

Despite snow and fog, the Greeks were declared to have cleared the Italians from their last remaining positions in the Kamia and Mokra mountains on the northern wing of the battlefront. The Fascist retirement toward Elbasani, in central Albania, was reported continuing from this area.

Losses on both sides continued heavy, border advices said.

Albanian refugees reaching Yugoslavia predicted a general uprising among their fellow nationals unless the Italians promptly fulfill their promises to deliver badly needed food supplies. Hundreds of Albanian deserters from the Fascist ranks were declared lurking in the mountains and forests.

Greek Guns Control Road.

ATHENS, Dec. 5 (A. P.).—The main road from Porto Edda, Albania, was said to be under Greek control today as forces launched dawn attacks on both Porto Edda and Argyrokastron.

Greek reports from the front telling of control of the Porto Edda highway stated that there was still left open a tortuous coastal route, less improved than the main road, running through Argyrokastron.

One report, however, said that Porto Edda was completely cut off from communication with the rest of Albania. Porto Edda, formerly called Santi Quaranta (forty saints), was renamed for Premier Mussolini's daughter, wife of the Italian Foreign Minister, Count Ciano.

A dispatch from the Argyrokastron area said:

"Our troops have made further considerable advances and occupied additional important positions."

Another said that the Argyrokastron radio station had been silent since last night.

Premet Is Captured.

Also today the Greek Army announced the capture of Premet, thereby threatening the entrapment of the Italian forces at Argyrokastron and northward in the valley of the Dryno River if the Greeks could push twenty miles on from Premet and take Tepelini.

A road paralleling the Viosa River lay before the Greek forces at Premet for an advance on Tepelini, a river port at the junction of the Viosa and Dryno rivers.

British Flyers Attack.

The weather was said to favor cooperation of the air force with land forces.

The British Royal Air Force, operating with the Greeks, reported that Fascist troops retreating hurriedly in the Tepelini-Kelsyre area were "successfully attacked by R. A. F. bomber and fighter formations."

"The Italians, despite desperate resistance, will not be able to hold.

"Much material was captured, including guns, machine-guns, howitzers, hand grenades and cartridges.

"The machine-guns and howitzers were immediately turned against the Italians.

"The situation of the enemy forces in the southern sector is already becoming very difficult and any further resistance on their part will be exceedingly dangerous for them.

"The pressure on Argyrokastron continues hard."

British Flyers Attack.

DEC 6 1940

The weather was said to favor cooperation of the air force with land forces.

The British Royal Air Force, operating with the Greeks, reported that Fascist troops retreating hurriedly in the Tepelini-Kelsyre area were "successfully attacked by R. A. F. bomber and fighter formations."

One formation bombed a road junction and troop concentrations at Kelsyre and also scored direct hits on roads between Tepelini and Berati, north of Tepelini, the R. A. F. communique said:

A fierce battle over the Italian lines yesterday resulted in the shooting down of "a large number" of Italian planes, the R. A. F. reported.

Greek spokesmen were quoted as saying that the number of planes downed was believed to be ten.

The R. A. F. also covered the sea front, scoring two direct hits on an Italian destroyer near Porto Edda, the communique said. The destroyer was said to be listing heavily when the attackers left the scene. The British said they lost no planes yesterday.

British Leader Tells His Story.

The leader of an R. A. F. formation which bombed Italian concentration centers in the Tepelini area said:

"Over the frontier on a snow-covered mountain we saw groups of Greek troops. We met no enemy fighters, probably because ours were operating in the area at the time, but we ran into anti-aircraft fire.

"We dived on the town and saw clouds of dust and stones arise from around a bridge as our bombs dropped. We also hit a road and some buildings around which were gathered a lot of motor transports.

"Seeing the convoy on the road, we dropped a stick of bombs plumb in the center of it. Later I saw two Italian bombers apparently attacking a road in the Greek lines, but their bombs burst on the mountainsides, doing no damage as far as I could see. I later saw what appeared to be a hot engagement going on between our fighters and the enemy."

Dives Through Narrow Valley.

The leader of another day bombing formation said:

"We went after enemy troop concentrations on the road at Kelsyre. Weather conditions were perfect as we went into action, although it was tricky work getting on the target.

"It meant diving down a narrow valley and swinging up again over a hill, but we managed it and dropped sticks on the road close to the junction. On the way back I saw a couple of Italian fighters, but they made no attempt to chase us."

500 Italians Surrender.

The fall of Premet followed fierce fighting in the course of which the Italians suffered heavy casualties and the loss of considerable equipment, the Greek High Command reported. More than 500 Fascist troops were stated to have surrendered.

Premet was captured, the Greeks said, after they had driven the Italians from strong positions in the Frasheri mountain range, north of the town, from which they were able to dominate strategic passes.

The Italians also were reported to be retreating on the northern flank of the 100-mile battle front, where the Greeks said their forces captured important mountain positions northwest of Pogradetz in a drive toward Elbasani and the Albanian capital, Tirana. The exact point reached by the spearhead of the Greek advance in this sector was not disclosed.

Arms Industries of Turin Also Bombed Heavily by the British.

ROYAL ARSENAL MAIN TARGET

14 Axis Planes Are Shot Down in Daylight Raids on England—Coast Guns in Action.

LONDON, Dec. 5 (A. P.).—The longest Royal Air Force assault on record—nearly twelve hours of blasting at Duesseldorf and her industrial environs in Germany's vital Rhineland—was reported today by the Air Ministry.

And while one formation battled "filthy" weather to sow its bombs on the German city last night, another at Italy's principal northern center of war industry, Turin. "Selected" targets were hit there, the Ministry said.

Bomber crews, the Ministry said, observed considerable damage at Turin.

Other bomb targets included the ports of Antwerp, in German occupied Belgium; Calais, on the occupied French coast, and several enemy airdromes.

One plane was reported missing.

The British bombers flew through what one pilot called absolutely filthy weather to make the twelve-hour attack on Duesseldorf, the Air Ministry news service reported.

Squadrons of British bombers were used to attack Dusseldorf and continued to raid the city at intervals from shortly after 6 P. M. until nearly 6 A. M., the Air Ministry said.

First pilots dropped incendiary and high explosive bombs which started a dozen fires, it reported. A second wave pilot said his crew counted about fifteen fires among buildings and a third pilot reported "fifteen to twenty good fires" in and around the Derendorf yards.

"Flare of fires striking up through cloud banks told of crippling damage," the Ministry news service bulletin said.

"A big fire," believed to be a building ablaze, was reported at Dortmund and "heavy bursts" were seen among docks and shipping at Antwerp, Ostend and Calais.

Reports Turin Arms Plants Hit.

The news service said Turin's armament works underwent a "formidable assault" which was a "further and impressive step in our double attack on Italy from our bases in this country and in the Mediterranean."

The chief objective was the Royal Arsenal, it was said, and "much was done to reduce its output of guns, gun carriages, shell cases and tanks."

British planes were over the Royal Arsenal nearly two hours, the news service said. One pilot reported a building was "completely on fire with heavy black smoke" coming from it.

"There were so many fires and explosions," said another pilot, "that you couldn't distinguish the effect of our bombs falling among them."

Two sticks of bombs burst directly on the main buildings of the Fiat works, where airplane engines are made, and a subsidiary factory and "a glow was seen which developed into an internal fire," the Air Ministry said.

Convoy Shelled in Channel.

German guns on the French coast and responsive British bombers started fireworks after dark on the English Channel shores tonight.

The Nazis first turned their guns on a convoy of twenty-eight ships passing down the channel and then switched to the coastline, while the R. A. F. was doing a brisk business of blasting Boulogne and other French ports. From this side their bombs could be seen bursting for miles along the French shore amid will-o'-the-wisp specks of anti-aircraft fire.

The main objectives there were railway yards in the Derendorf district, north of the city, the big Mannesmann Rohrenwerke armament works, quays and dockyards along the Rhine and the Duesseldorf coal and gas plants.

14 Planes Felled Over Britain.

In the most successful defense of Britain for some time in terms of aerial invaders destroyed, the Air Ministry announced tonight, fourteen Axis planes were shot down today against the loss of two British craft.

Thirteen were declared destroyed in air fights and by anti-aircraft fire over the southeast—an old battle area—and a single bomber off the southwest coast.

The islands did not go free of bombs, however; the most serious incident was a hit on a mental institution in a southeastern town. The number of casualties was not announced.

London's first warning of the day came in the early afternoon and was over shortly. Late in the day, however, the familiar sound of anti-aircraft fire rose again in the city.

Bristol Factories Still Carry On.

Meanwhile, today an Associated Press correspondent reported smoke pouring from hundreds of factories still operating in the port and manufacturing city of Bristol, which was hard hit by 300 hammering German bombers on Monday night. He added that ships appeared to be loading and unloading at the wharves without difficulty.

Officially, it was announced that with the help of emergency workers Bristol had restored its transportation system to something approaching normal. Shopping districts and slum areas were reported hardest hit by the raids, and the city's chief problem was said to be that of getting workmen to the factories and restoring telephone, electricity and similar services.

Rome Admits Turin Damage.

ROME, Dec. 5 (A. P.).—The Italian High Command declared today that British planes last night bombed Turin, in the north of Italy, killing one person and injuring three, and starting several fires in dye works and textile and carpet factories, but causing no damage to military objectives.

The British were reported to have come by way of Switzerland.

Bombs Fall in Germany.

BERLIN, Dec. 5 (A. P.).—The German High Command announced today that several British planes dropped bombs last night in western Germany and damaged a number of houses.

The communique also said that two British planes were shot down by anti-aircraft fire yesterday. It did not say where.

DNB, official news agency, reported today that a British torpedo plane attempting to sink a German outpost boat in the North Sea was shot down before it could launch its torpedo.

DNB said that German air raiders in numerous waves attacked London and Birmingham last night and also made scattered attacks in the Midlands and the south of England.

The High Command announced that in addition to attacks on southern England during the night the German air force also mined British ports.

German aerial activity over England yesterday was said to have been limited to reconnaissance flights.

The communique added:

"Three enemy planes were downed yesterday, including two shot down by anti-aircraft fire. Three of our own planes are missing."

Alarm Sounded in Geneva.

GENEVA, Dec. 5 (A. P.).—Geneva had a forty-eight-minute air-raid alarm before midnight last night.

Alarms in Switzerland usually mean that British raiders are on their way to attack points in the north of Italy.

NAZI RAIDERS BLAST TOWN IN SOUTH ENGLAND

Public Institution Hit. Adjoining Nurses' Home Is Set Ablaze.

Many Casualties Feared London Has 2 Alarms, But No Attacks

[By the Associated Press]

Berlin, Friday, Dec. 6—London as well as a harbor on the southeast English coast and a number of other important military objectives were subjected to heavy aerial bombardments last night, an informed source said today. No further details were given.

[By the Associated Press]

London, Dec. 5—Nazi warplanes rained incendiaries and high explosives on a south coast town tonight after a day of attacks which cost the Axis fourteen planes, but in which the British lost only two.

Bombs fell all over the town, it was said, and it was feared there were many casualties. A public institution, which was not identified, was reported to be one of the most seriously hit. An adjoining nurses' home was set on fire by incendiary bombs.

There was considerable damage in three streets and several fires were started. They were soon extinguished, however.

A dozen bombs struck an east Anglian town early in the evening, and gunfire was heard in several London districts.

Weather Bad For Raiders

The weather was unfavorable for the invaders but a second alarm sent people back into air-raid shelters not long after the first all-clear signal had sounded. But the all-clear sounded at midnight without bombs or guns being heard.

Thirteen of the Axis planes brought down today were reported destroyed in air fights and by anti-aircraft fire over the southeast coast, and the fourteenth, a bomber, off the southwest coast.

The most serious happening of the daylight hours was a hit on a mental institution in a southeastern town. The number of casualties was not announced.

Duesseldorf Attacked

Meanwhile, the R. A. F. announced that Duesseldorf, inland German port and one of the chief cities of the industrial Ruhr, had been pounded for almost twelve hours last night in the longest attack of the British campaign to smash the power of the Nazi war machine at its source.

Wave after wave of bombers, the ministry's news service reported, braved dirty weather to roar over the Rhineland city from a little after 6 P. M. last night until almost 6 A. M. today, raining incendiaries and high explosives on the railway yards of the Derendorf district to the north, the Mannesmann Rohrenwerke armament works, the coal gas plants and the quays and dockyards.

Pilots counted fifteen or twenty fires in and around the Derendorf yards, the Air Ministry said, the light of the flames quivering upward through cloudbanks.

Other Ports Assaulted

The R. A. F. also attacked Dortmund, Antwerp, Ostend and Calais and reported gigantic bursts among the docks and shipping of the ports.

British bombers were working in the coastal area again tonight and long-range British and German guns duelled from cross-channel emplacements. Shells were exchanged for more than an hour.

The Nazi artillery attack was first directed against a convoy of twenty-eight ships pssing down the channel. British guns accepted the challenge. British bombs could be seen bursting for miles along the French mainland.

Other British planes were busy at the other end of the Axis last night, attacking Turin, one of Italy's main manufacturing cities. A British pilot who followed the first waves said there were so many fires and explosions that "you couldn't distinguish the effect of our bombs falling among them."

These units operated from England and a Mediterranean base.

The Royal arsenal at Turin was bombed for two hours, the Ministry said, adding that "much was done to reduce its output of guns, gun carriages, shell cases and tanks."

Bombs burst on the roof of the Fiat works, the Ministry said, starting a large fire inside which burned so fiercely that a British pilot, homeward bound to his base by way of the Alps, found his way lighted as he approached the towering peaks.

Midlands' Industrial Damage From Bombs Declared Slight

Area Termed So Vast That Germans Have Hard Time Knocking Out Even One Section

By H. TAYLOR HENRY
Associated Press Correspondent

DEC 6-1940

Birmingham, Dec. 5—Bombing damage to Britain's industrial west Midlands as a whole apparently has been almost negligible.

The area is so vast and so teeming with blast furnaces, factories and plants of all sorts that even if the Germans completely knocked down one of the industrial sections of Birmingham itself, the damage still would be slight.

Birmingham proper has been hit—and hit hard—but except for its satellite neighbor, Coventry, eighteen miles away, none of the rest of the Midlands industries has even been threatened, so far as I could see today.

Worse Than Coventry

Birmingham, Neville Chamberlain's home town, possibly has suffered even worse than Coventry from waves of night raiders.

A big church has been blasted, hotels blown out and great stores, including some of the best in England, damaged.

But on the surface it is less apparent, for Birmingham is big and sprawling and modern.

While the heart of middle-aged Coventry and eighteenth century Bristol burned out, Birmingham's modern buildings stood.

Some of her big buildings are reduced to shells, however, others have been sheered half away, rows of houses and small shops have been blasted.

At a rough estimate, the city has 10,000 to 15,000 homeless and an equal number whose jobs have been destroyed. This is from a population of well over 1,000,000.

Transportation rapidly is being restored to normal.

There is no scarcity of food. In front of the bombed and burned central market today I saw meat, fish and fresh vegetables going begging on hucksters' carts.

Workers' District Hit

Night raiders have concentrated on the business and shopping districts. In workers' homes which surround these sections the heaviest casualties have occurred.

People are going about their work as normally as possible under the conditions.

During my tour of the town today raiders were reported in the area.

Nowhere did I see a rush for shelters, although the sound of guns could be heard in the distance.

A normal pall of smoke hung over the city from its many industries. Worker's bicycle racks and parking lots at most factories in the area surrounding the city were full.

British Hail Pact as Victory

Deal With Turkey Called Challenge to Axis and Bitter Blow to Hitler.

DEC 6-1940

LONDON, Dec. 5 (A. P.).—Britons today described a new financial agreement with Turkey, second step in Great Britain's recently intensified diplomatic activity, as a wedge against German efforts to draw the guardian of the Dardanelles into the economic orbit of the Axis.

The Financial Times said that the agreement, signed yesterday, was an "especially bitter blow to Hitler because there is reason to believe the Germans were about to put forward tempting proposals to the Turks."

Diplomats viewed the treaty as an important commercial move and a vigorous political stroke as well, and declared it to be a direct challenge to German economic domination in the Balkans, as represented by yesterday's signing of a ten-year Rumanian-German trade and economic pact.

Called Challenge to Nazis.

Details of the Anglo-Turkish agreement, which followed closely upon a commercial accord with Spain, were not made public but it was generally understood that the United Kingdom Commercial Corporation, set up last April, would play a big part in arranging sales and purchases.

At the same time, experts expected that purchases under the agreement would run into the millions of pounds sterling, with Turkey sending Britain mainly agricultural products in exchange for woolens, cotton, locomotives, freight cars and munitions.

"Under the new arrangement," the London Times declared, "Turkey will be free to develop her economy in co-operation with the British Empire. On our side we now effectively challenge the great German share of the Turkish market."

Complements Earlier Pact.

The Foreign Office announced that both governments hoped the accord would "bring about a considerable increase in their trade." The pact provides that payments between Turkey and nations of the sterling area be made at the existing rate of exchange between the Turkish lire and the pound sterling.

It complements a trade and payments pact signed between the same two Powers on February 3 last, and also stipulates that special accounts be created to facilitate commercial and other payments between Turkey and the British Empire.

Offers Pledge to Bulgaria.

ANKARA, Dec. 5 (A. P.).—In an editorial today the semi-official newspaper Ulus praised a recent improvement in Turco-Bulgarian relations and added: "We have always appreciated the fact that there are certain injustices to Bulgaria which should be amended."

Presumably this referred to Bulgarian territorial claims involving Thrace and Macedonia, through which Bulgaria demands an outlet to the Ægean. Macedonia is part of Greece, while Thrace is partly in Greece and partly in Turkey.

"We have never lost the belief that these adjustments could be made by peaceful means and in a spirit of reconciliation," the Ulus editorial continued, adding that although Turkey was preparing against "threats and blows, our preparations are in no way directed toward Bulgaria, our friend and neighbor. Let us continue to work in peace." The war that may come to the Balkans could not profit the peninsular countries."

Sees Italy Being Abandoned.

The fact that Ulus is the organ of Turkey's only recognized political party was seen as adding weight to these hints of adjustment with Bulgaria if that nation does not join the German Axis.

The Ankara radio, while recording indications that there would be "peace in the Balkans for the time being," commented: "We must remain on guard during the period of diplomatic calm . . . because we know that German statesmen work unceasingly."

The announcer also remarked: "Italy has lost her prestige entirely. France, on the other hand, although defeated, still holds her navy and her colonies. It may be that Germany has abandoned Italy and is trying to create a Franco-German Axis."

Nominated for Seat Held by Chamberlain

LONDON, Dec. 5 (A. P.).—Peter F. Bennett, Birmingham industrialist, was nominated today for the House of Commons seat held by the late Neville Chamberlain.

The nomination came at a meeting of the executive committee of the Edgbaston division of the Unionist Association.

Morrison Praises Valor Of Greeks in Allied Cause

Likens 'Upsetting of Bully' to David's Victory Over Goliath

LONDON, Dec. 5 (AP).—A tribute to the "extraordinary valor" of the Greeks in giving to the Allied cause its "first major land victory" was paid at Southampton today by Herbert Morrison, the Home Secretary.

"The example of Greece," he said, "gives us a timely reminder that courage, brains and inflexible determination can upset the calculations of a bully as swiftly, as unexpectedly and as thoroughly as David, with his sling, overthrew the clanking champion of the Philistines."

While the overthrow of Italy was not completed, Morrison said, the Greeks, "supported by our own arms, have shown the world that spirit that not only will achieve it but bring still greater triumphs."

Liverpool Buries Its Dead

Unidentified Victims of Air Raid Placed in Common Grave

LONDON, Dec. 5 (AP).—Unidentified victims of last Thursday's air raid on Liverpool were buried in a common grave today as thousands looked on.

Food Ship Is Bombed

The 5,298-ton British freighter Biela, believed to be en route from Rio de Janeiro to England with a food cargo, was bombed in the Atlantic Ocean about 350 miles west of Ireland last week, shipping circles said yesterday, according to The Associated Press.

The 4,943-ton Greek freighter San Gabriel and the 4,555-ton British freighter Maryln have been torpedoed and sunk on their regular South Atlantic runs, "The New York Maritime Register" said.

KING SEES DESTROYERS

Wishes Britain Had More Former U. S. Ships.

PORTSMOUTH, England, Dec. 5 (A. P.).—King George today visited a number of the destroyers acquired by Britain from the United States and, as a veteran of service aboard such type of war vessel, asked officers and men many questions about the ships' performance.

He was told that they were good ships in every way.

"The only pity of it is that we haven't got more of them," observed one sailor.

"I agree with you," rejoined the King.

Before coming to Portsmouth, the King, who was wearing the uniform of an Admiral of the fleet, visited Southampton and inspected the damage inflicted by Nazi bombers over the past week end.

Dockyard workers and the homeless cheered him. An old woman ran forward and cried: "We're all right and you're all right, too."

"Now let Berlin have it," called out another woman, standing by her wrecked home.

French India Ready To Fight For Britain, Governor Declares

London, Dec. 5 (AP)—Reuters reported from Bombay today that Gov. Louis Bonvin, opening the French India Legislature at Pondicherry, said the possession "is ready to go to the limit of its resources in fighting side by side with the noble British."

A special delegate representing Gen. Charles de Gaulle, head of the "free French" forces in London, was present at the ceremony.

French India, in the southeast part of India proper, consists of five separate colonies with a total area of about 196 square miles. The chief colony is Pondicherry, where the Governor of all the colonies resides.

Commons Rejects Peace Move

Defeats, 341 to 4, Left Wing Attempt to Stop War by Compromising With Hitler.

DEC 6-1940

LONDON, Dec. 5 (A. P.).—A silent, disapproving House of Commons rejected by an overwhelming vote of 341 to 4 a motion by three members of the Independent Labor party today that Britain state her war aims and seek peace immediately, "if necessary in a spirit of compromise," because they said "there is no certainty of a great military victory."

The vote followed quickly the presentation of the motion by J. McGovern, Campbell Stephen and James Maxton, all from Glasgow.

Supporting the trio, Samuel Silverman, Liverpool Laborite, declared that the moment defined by Prime Minister Churchill as the time for the statement of peace aims—"when we have convinced the world of our capacity to survive"—had now arrived.

The authors of the motion are members of the extreme leftist wing of Britain's labor movement.

The four members voting for the motion were Maxton, Dr. Alfred Salter, Laborite, William Gallacher, the only communist member of Parliament, and David Kirkwood, another Laborite. Mr. McGovern and Mr. Stephen were named tellers, hence could not vote.

Attlee's Reply Brings Cheers.

Clement R. Attlee, Lord Privy Seal, replying to the motion for the Government, was interrupted by frequent cheers as he delivered an impassioned denunciation of "the fundamental fallacy" of the suggestion "that on one side was this terrible war and on the other side all the beauties of peace."

"The alternative is not war and peace; it is war and what kind of peace!" shouted Mr. Attlee, who is a leader of the main Labor party which is included in the Churchill Government.

"Probably this debate is one which would not be tolerated in any other country at war," he continued. "No doubt use will be made of it. But I believe it will show our strength."

Frequently assailing Mr. Maxton, who is leader of the Independent Labor party, Mr. Attlee cried:

"If it comes to a conference and if Hitler refuses to listen to what is called the voice of reason and says he prefers his scheme and rejects the honorable member's idea of liberty and social justice, will the honorable member fight or give way?"

For a 'Peace of Free Peoples.'

Mr. Maxton's retort that the question was "hypothetical" was greeted with laughter.

"Our aim is to try to establish a world of peace of free peoples," Mr. Attlee concluded. "We cannot lay down the law to the rest of the world and we do not want to. We can only say 'Here is our way of life.'

"The best way in which we can advocate our principles is by striving to live more and more in accordance with the principles of social justice and liberty and by setting an example to the rest of the world."

Mr. McGovern presented his motion in the form of an amendment to a reply to the King's address opening the new Parliament and, since the three Independent Laborites represent the only nominal opposition, the Government had to accede to a request for debate on war aims.

Fears Intensified Bombings.

Declaring that peace efforts are "not discreditable," Mr. McGovern asserted:

"If tht war goes on—as it is likely to do if the forces in operation today have their way without any attempt to end it—until February of next year, I expect that there will be intensive bombing from this country, and if that is so the large reserves which Germany has been piling up will be utilized for the purpose of subjecting every industrial city in this country to a Coventry raid."

Mr. Churchill was absent as the three independent Laborites demanded that Britain's war aims be stated and called for "restoration of freedom in each country, the establishment of a new social order which would mean the end of German, British and other imperialism and provide a decent home and standard of life for each family in every country of the world."

"No opportunity should be lost to end the war," contended Mr. McGovern, "if necessary in a spirit of compromise."

Before the debate began Mr. Attlee assured the House that "progress has been made and is being made in solving the problem of night interception (of German bombers), but it is a matter of some complexity and can only be dealt with gradually."

His statement was made in reply to a demand from Capt. Alec Stratford Cunningham-Reid, a Conservative, that Mr. Churchill forbid "optimistic pronouncements concerning methods to frustrate night raiders until practical results are achieved."

Mr. McGovern, a member of Parliament since 1930, told the House:

"We backed a policy of appeasement because we believed that anything was better than what would happen in war."

He got the only cheers evoked by his statement when he asserted he believed the late Neville Chamberlain, who led Britain into the war after discarding his appeasement policy, "will have a much bigger place in history than he has at the moment."

Not Sure It's Democracy.

"Do not let us be misled by statements about fighting for freedom, fighting for democracy, the kind of democracy that refuses to allow Sir Hugh Robertson, who is a pacifist, to sing on the wireless; the kind of democracy that denies what you say you want for Czechs, Greeks, Poles or other nations," Mr. McGovern asserted.

He concluded that a sympathetic statement of war aims would evoke "response over the heads of politicians from the people of Germany."

Mr. Attlee, replying to a suggestion that a War Cabinet member be sent to the United States to discuss methods of acquiring and delivering war supplies said the Government would "continue to maintain a close contact with the American administration through the Ambassador and British Purchasing Commission."

Arthur Greenwood, Laborite minister without portfolio, told Edgar Louis Granville, Liberal National, that he would not ask Canada and the United States to set up a joint board for organization for war production because of "close relations" already existing.

Mr. Stephen, seconding Mr. McGovern's statement, said that "if peace is to be based on justice and equity the time for a conference is now, because the military situation is one in which the parties are fairly evenly balanced."

"It may be said," he continued, "that Germany is occupying a position of military superiority, but it would appear to be counter-balanced by the tremendous potential resources of the British Empire, along with the promised material assistance of the United States.

Stephen's Two-point Peace Plan.

"The time has come when Britain should make a great moral gesture to the world and offer peace to the other side on a basis of justice to all people."

Mr. Stephen proposed a two-fold basis for a peace conference:

1. "Acceptance by the contending parties of the restoration of freedom in all countries.

2. "Both parties to put all their material resources which they are willing to devote to war into a common pool to bring about a new civilization in the world."

James Griffiths, Laborite, said every one would welcome a real peace, but, he said, "the choice is not peace or war but capitulation or survival."

Mr. Griffiths and Sir Percy Harris, Liberal, agreed that the Government should "take the first opportunity of stating its aims not because we are defeated or defeatists but because we are winning for Britain a new place in the world."

PEACE MOVE DEFEATED BY 341-TO-4 VOTE

Advocates Fear Every Industrial City Will Be "A Coventry" By Spring

A[illegible]ee Cheered As He De[illegible]ces "Fundamental [illegible]lacy" Of Bill

LONDON

By the Associated Press

[illegible] Dec. 5—The formal de[illegible]nd Britain move to end this fifteen-month-old war by compromise was beaten down in the House of Commons today by 341 votes to 4.

Actually it was supported by six men in a debate which the Government interpreted as "a sign of our strength."

Its principal adherent made it clear that behind the peace move was the fear that every one of Britain's industrial cities would become "a Coventry" by spring, battered to the ground by German bombs.

Motion Smothered

But the motion, combined with a request for a specific statement of British war aims which drew somewhat wider adherence, was smothered after Clement R. Attlee, deputy Government leader and head of the official Labor party, declared:

"The alternative is not war and peace. . . . It is war and what kind of a peace?"

A motion by the Independent Labor party, a pacifist section of Parliament which has three members in the House of Commons and is now the only actual opposition, set off the debate. These three demanded that Britain not only state her specific war aims but seek an immediate peace because "there is no certainty of a great military victory."

Advocates Of Peace Move

When the vote was taken the ayes were from:

James Maxton, Labor, a former Scottish schoolteacher.

Dr. Alfred Salter, a Laborite from London's East Side.

David Kirkwood, Independent Labor, a long-time Clydeside trades union leader.

William Gallagher, the only Communist member of the House.

J. McGovern, Independent Labor, and Campbell Stephen, Independent Labor, were named tellers and could not vote.

"No opportunity should be lost to end the war, if necessary, in a spirit of compromise," declared McGovern.

Expects More Bombing

If the war lasts until next February, he argued, "I expect that there will be intensive bombing from this country, and, if that is so, the large reserves of planes and ammunition which Germany has been piling up will be utilized for the purpose of subjecting every industrial city in this country to a Coventry raid."

McGovern's only cheers came when he explained that his group backed appeasement because it believed anything was better than war and that the late Neville Chamberlain, the author of appeasement, "will have a much bigger place in history than he has at the moment."

"Don't let us be misled by statements about fighting for freedom, for democracy," cried McGovern.

Expresses Confidence

He expressed confidence that a peace appeal from Britain would evoke a response from the German people, "over the heads of their politicians."

Stephen proposed a twofold basis for a peace conference: "Acceptance by the contending parties of the restoration of freedom in all countries; both parties to put all their material resources which they are willing to devote to the war into a common pool to bring about a new civilization in the world."

This is the time for a peace move, he said, because the military situation of Britain and Germany is "fairly evenly balanced."

Maxton echoed his views.

Back War-Aims Move

Two regular Laborites, James Griffiths and Samuel Silverman, and the Liberal leader, Sir Percy Harris, supported the move for a statement of war aims, but Griffiths declared: "The choice is not peace or war but capitulation or survival."

The Conservative Henry Brooke bitterly declared that McGovern "would advocate for the whole Western World surrender to slavery and devils," and said: "The war must go on to victory."

Cheers rolled through the House as Attlee, speaking in Prime Minister Churchill's absence, denounced "the fundamental fallacy" of the idea that "on the one side is this terrible war and on the other side all the beauties of peace."

Lansbury "Got Nothing"

"George Lansbury, an apostle of peace if ever there was one, went around to see and plead with Hitler and Mussolini. He got nothing from them. . . . It is no good being blind to the mentality of the people with whom you are dealing."

He turned to Maxton and asked him if he would "fight or give way," in case Hitler refused to listen to the "voice of reason."

Maxton said the question was "hypothetical."

The House laughed.

Attlee observed that "probably this debate would not be tolerated in any other country at war. . . . But I believe it will show our strength."

On war aims, he continued:

"Our aim is to try to establish a world of free peoples. We cannot lay down the law to the rest of the world and we do not want to. We can only say: 'Here is our way of life.'"

Lady Astor Warns America Its Turn Is Coming Next

Tells U. S. Volunteers With R. A. F. It Is Right They Should Be in This War and Hopes Thousands More Will Join.

LONDON, Dec. 5 (A. P.).—In a fighting speech to the Eagle Squadron of American volunteers in the Royal Air Force, American-born Lady Astor declared today that the "British Empire, backed by the United States, cannot fail."

She predicted that the same thirty American volunteers now training for active service alongside British flyers would be followed by "thousands of others."

"America should know that this is really the greatest hour of trial in the history of the English speaking people," said Lady Astor, a native of Virginia, her eyes flashing. "They may not know it, but it's their turn next."

Turning to the young Americans, organized into a volunteer air force by Col. Charles Sweeny, Lady Astor exclaimed:

"I knew they would come. Thousands of young Americans are longing to get into this war. It is right that they should.

"As Sherman said, war is hell," she continued, "but it is more terrible that the civilization we think is based on Christianity should fail."

Lady Astor said the British would never submit under aerial bombardment.

Praises Generosity of America.

"The most extraordinary thing is the stupidity of the German mentality," she said. "You can kill us, but you can never scare us."

She declared that the British people "enormously appreciate" the help coming from America through the Red Cross, the ambulance units and other relief organizations.

"I don't suppose there ever has been a country in the world more generous than America has been to Great Britain."

She expressed the belief that world peace could be maintained after this war by the collaboration of Britain and the United States.

Just as the American civil war brought about federation of the New World, she said, it is quite likely that this "great war will bring about federation of these two great empires."

Capt. Balfour Speaks.

Capt. H. H. Balfour, Parliamentary Under-Secretary for Air, also spoke to the volunteers at a luncheon, saying, "We hope your squadron will be followed by the formation of other squadrons impelled by the same motives and imbued with the same ideals."

He told the flyers they could be "ambassadors as well as airmen" by spreading throughout the United States a first hand picture of what Britain was doing and feeling about the war with Germany.

Turning to the battle of Britain, Capt. Balfour said:

"We are facing a new phase of the war in the concentrated attacks night after night on munition and industrial centers. . . . We must face the fact that front line war for the factory is here. We must and do accept the challenge which is entailed.

More Confident Than Ever.

"The enemy will damage, destroy and kill, but just as his indiscriminate bombing raids failed, so will the effects from this present form of attack be countered."

Capt. Balfour added that "while in the air we work for measures to oppose the night raider, in the factory we will mend, patch, replace and rebuild.

"Please tell your fellow countrymen in the United States, which is giving such invaluable and increasing help to our cause, that there is no limit to what we can face and accept. Tell them that we accept the dark passages of war, as well as the successful, and that today we are more determined and more certain of victory than ever we have been in the past."

Italy Promises To Supply More Food to Nazis

DEC 6-1940

Accord Hints Italians May Buy Produce Abroad to Augment Own Production

ROME, Dec. 5 (AP).—An Italian-German agreement to increase Italy's not yet satisfactory flow of food supplies to Germany by intensifying farm production here and giving aid to growers was disclosed today by Stefani, the official Italian news agency.

The agency said Italian farm production did not yet meet German need and therefore Giuseppe Tassinari, Italian Minister of Agriculture, and Walther R. Darre, German Agriculture Minister, had recently reached an agreement to intensify the Axis farm collaboration.

To do this it was found necessary to assure Italian growers of good prices "stabilized as much as possible" by "elimination of the speculative influence on the world market," Stefani said.

The Italian news agency did not explain whether the price-stabilization arrangement meant that the Italian government would intervene directly as a buyer of produce, selling in turn to Germany, but something of that sort seemed to foreign observers to be indicated.

The agreement also included side problems such as collaboration in plant experimentation to fight against pests, feeding of live stock, breeding, canning, irrigation and colonization.

Italy May Extend Rationing

A United States Department of Agriculture study, prepared by Dr. N. William Hazen on the basis of secret diplomatic reports and released in Washington last Friday, said an extension of food rationing in Italy was to be expected this winter.

The British blockade, the report said, had disorganized the Italian economic structure, since normally about 84 per cent of all Italian imports arrive by sea. The poorer classes in great numbers were said to be suffering from malnutrition.

All Italian imports of coffee and meats, 95 per cent of Italian purchases of fats and oils and about 70 per cent of normal imports of cereals had been cut off by the blockade, the report declared.

AXIS POWERS BID FOR ARAB SUPPORT

DEC 6-1940

Italy and Germany Stress Their Friendship.

An Italian Government statement, broadcast in Arabic, responded, the announcer said, to British charges that Italy and Germany intended to occupy and dominate the Arabic countries.

"The Italian Government confirms," the statement said, "that it always has been animated by sentiments of friendship for the Arabs, whom it wants to see prosper and occupy a place among the peoples of the earth corresponding to their natural and historic importance, that it has constantly followed their fight for independence with interest and for the achievement of this aim the Arabic countries also can count in the future on the full sympathy of Italy."

An almost identical statement was made in a German radio broadcast picked up in New York last night by the Columbia Broadcasting System. The German radio said that the statement had been broadcast in Arabic and was made in full accord with Germany's Axis partner, indicating that the two Powers were making a joint bid for support among the Arabic peoples. A further German broadcast today said that an Arab economic missive had just arrived in Berlin.

1,410,000 Prisoners In 120 Nazi Camps, Foreign Press Told

Berlin, Dec. 5 (AP)—The German Prison Camp Administration told foreign correspondents today Germany has 1,410,000 war prisoners, mostly French, British and Belgian, who were captured in the West, in 120 camps.

Of this number, the administration said, eighty-seven per cent are working and receiving wages equal to those German workmen receive after their taxes and contributions are made.

Most Polish prisoners have been released, the administration said, but several hundred thousand remain in civil employment.

QUISLING LEAVES OSLO

Reports of Norse Disorders Denied by Nazis.

BERLIN, Dec. 5 (A.P.).—In informed German quarters it was stated today that Major Vidkun Quisling, political chief of the Nazi-model commission State in Norway, had left Oslo, but the informants would neither confirm nor deny reports that he was coming to Berlin.

They denied vigorously, however, reports of disorders in Norway, occupied by the German army.

SWEDISH SHIPS HELD

Five Ordered Confiscated by German Prize Court.

BERLIN, Dec. 5 (A. P.).—A German prize court at Hamburg ordered confiscation today of five Swedish ships with their cargoes. They were seized by German forces in the Norweigian campaign while headed for British and French ports. The cargoes were held to be contraband.

The court identified the ships as the Brita, 1,345 tons; Dahlia, 1,077; Balticia, 1,966; Edda, 5,100 and Indus, 720 tons. Two English yachts seized in harbors of the Netherlands also were taken over by the Reich.

BULGARIANS CLOSE BORDER ALONG RUMANIA

Turks Hint At Nazi Promise To Return Territory To Bucharest

DEC 6-1940

[By the Associated Press]

Bucharest, Dec. 5—The Bulgarians have closed their frontier with Rumania, it was learned in official circles here tonight.

The explanation given here was that Bulgaria had decided that the entire quota of emigres set by the Craiova agreement already had crossed into southern Dobruja (Bulgaria).

This was the agreement by which southern Dobruja was returned to Bulgaria from Rumania.

More Reserves Called

Meanwhile, new concentrations of Rumanian reservists were called up.

Earlier the Ministry of Interior had ordered all foreigners in Rumania to deposit their passports and identification papers with the police by December 20.

Failure to comply will result in expulsion, the order said. No explanation was given.

Nazi Promise Hinted

Ankara, Dec. 5 (AP)—The Turkish radio said tonight that "it is indicated" Germany has promised to return to Rumania some of the territory she has lost recently.

The comment was not expanded, but it appeared the radio was warning Bulgaria she might lose southern Dobruja.

Army And Iron Guard Seen Headed For Clash

Maros Vasarhely, Hungary, At The Rumanian Border, Dec. 5 (AP)—The Rumanian army and the Iron Guard apparently are headed for a clash, Rumanian refugees declared tonight as they swarmed across the border into Hungary.

They said there were heavy troop concentrations at strategic Rumanian cities.

DEC 6 1940

Refugees expressed belief the Rumanian chief of state, Gen. Ion Antonescu, unable to reconcile the warring factions of the Iron Guard and unable even to restore order by appeals to them, had determined that the army must take over the rule of Rumania.

Antonescu Backed By Nazis

It was understood here that Antonescu was backed up by the German army, whose troops already stationed in Rumanian oil fields are reported being swelled by four new divisions (about 60,000 men) moving across Slovakia and Hungary.

Refugees reaching here told of continuing anarchy in Rumania and declared that hundreds of persons had fled by boats bound for Turkey.

Among persons reported on the Rumanian side of the frontier awaiting permission to enter Hungary were the Peasant party leaders and former Premiers Juliu Maniu and Alexander Vaida-Voevod.

MORE EXPROPRIATION

Rumania Authorizes Seizure of Sea and River Craft.

BUCHAREST, Dec. 5 (A. P.).—The Rumanian Government decreed today that the Marine Secretary may expropriate any river or oceangoing craft "to satisfy the obligations of international economics."

DEC 6 1940

The decree followed closely upon the signing of a German-Rumanian ten-year-economic agreement and a decree of Premier Gen. Ion Antonescu expropriating all oil pipelines, pumping stations, reservoirs and real estate on which they are situated.

Premier Antonescu also decreed today that Jews are exempt from army service, but are subject to enforced labor and those from 18 to 50 years old must pay a special military tax.

Freight Trains Wrecked Near Hungarian Junction

ZAGREB, Yugoslavia, Dec. 5 (A. P.).—The head-on collision of two freight trains, with a third train piling into the wreck, at an important junction near Zakany, Hungary, was blamed on sabotage today by Yugoslav police.

Two persons were killed and several injured. Traffic between Hungary and Italy passes through Zakany.

CHINA POLICY FIRM, SOVIET TELLS JAPAN

Informs Tokyo in a Written Statement That Moscow Recognizes Chungking

RUSSIA DISPLAYS NEWS

Red Organ Paper Publishes Fact That U. S. and Britain Are Friendly to Chiang

MOSCOW, Dec. 5 (AP)—Soviet Russia has advised Tokyo that her "policy with regard to China" remains unchanged by Japanese recognition of Wang Ching-wei's Nanking regime as the Chinese "National Government," Tass, official news agency, reported today.

[Russia maintains diplomatic relations with the Chinese Government at Chungking and generally is regarded as an important source of supply for Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek's armies.]

Moscow's attitude was made clear, Tass said, in a statement handed to the Japanese Foreign Office yesterday by Russian Ambassador Constantin Smetanin. News of Japan's recognition of the Nanking regime previously had been published in the Soviet press without comment.

Mr. Smetanin's statement, Tass declared, was delivered after receipt of a note from Japanese Vice Minister of Foreign Affairs Chuichi Ohashi, explaining that an article in the Nanking-Tokyo accord provided for joint defense against communistic elements was "not directed in any way against the U. S. S. R."

Mr. Ohashi was quoted as saying that the article dealt solely with "internal conditions" and "does not affect Japan's desire to adjust her relations with the U. S. S. R."

Mr. Smetanin advised Mr. Ohashi, Tass added, that the Soviet Government had taken note of the Japanese statement.

"On its part," Mr. Smetanin added, "the Soviet Government desires to state that the policy of the Soviet Union with regard to China remains without change."

Red Star, official organ of the Soviet Army, published the terms of the Wang Ching-wei government's treaty with Japan as well as United States and British reaction, including statements that the two western powers recognized only the Chungking government. The paper said discontent was rising in Japan as a result of Premier Fumimaro Konoye's policies.

"The internal political atmosphere is getting red hot," Red Star said.

Soviet Now Doubtful Who Will Win War

MOSCOW, Dec. 5 (A. P.).—The Red Star, official organ of the Soviet Army, commented yesterday that offensive operations on the western front had new possibilities but were "far from the conception of blitzkrieg."

It added: "The question of final victory for one side or the other is not yet decided."

Swiss-Alsatian Frontier Closed

Basel, Switzerland, Dec. 5 (AP)—German authorities closed the Swiss frontier with Alsace today after giving Alsatians in Switzerland and Swiss with farms in Alsace a "fifth and last" chance to return to Alsace.

In five times the border was opened, 978 persons returned to the German-occupied province.

Nazis Slate Stahmer As Envoy To Tokyo

Negotiator In Japanese-German Alliance Expected To Become Ambassador

Tokyo, Friday, Dec. 6 (AP)—Diplomatic circles heard today that Heinrich Georg Stahmer, the German negotiator who was given the major credit for bringing Japan into the Axis, soon will succeed Gen. Eugen Ott as German Ambassador to Tokyo.

Ott himself declined comment except to say, "interesting."

Stahmer is regarded as Adolf Hitler's personal emissary, and observers believe his appointment as Ambassador would presage some closer form of cooperation between Japan and Germany.

Stahmer also is credited here with great influence in Soviet Russia, and informed quarters considered it possible he might be stationed in Tokyo to assist a Russian - Japanese rapprochement.

De Ludre Called Bullet Victim

ORLEANS, France, Dec. 5 (AP).—Officials exhumed today the body of Thierry de Ludre, who disappeared in June while under arrest for pro-German activity, and said he died as the result of a revolver shot. "Gringoire," a Rightist newspaper, has charged that De Ludre was shot by the mobile guard while being transported from a prison in Paris during the German advance. Two other bodies, both unidentified, were exhumed at the same time.

VICHY, France, Dec. 5 (A .P.).—Varian Fry, of the American Aid Center, and a member of his staff, who had been held by police at Marseilles since December 1, were released today. The charges against them were not announced.

Mr. Fry, a resident of New York city, formerly was editor of the magazine, The Living Age.

TAKES 300 EXILES

Portugal Gives Asylum to Anti-Nazi Group.

LISBON, Dec. 5 A. P.).—Portugal has given asylum to a group of some 300 "men without a country."

They are Jews, Austrians and Germans who, fleeing before Adolf Hitler's armies, reached Spain, where they were detained. The Reich asked Spain some time ago to hand some of them over, but the Spaniards declined, consenting, however, to expel them.

Portugal permitted their entry this week and found them temporary residences at Bussaco, Coimbra and other provincial cities. Some are seeking permission to go to American countries.

It was reported on good authority that one prime purpose of a recent visit of Heinrich Himmler, chief of the Nazi secret police, to Madrid was to discuss handling of anti-Nazis who have come to Spain.

EGYPT SPURS TRADE HERE

Anis Azer Named to Commercial Post at Washington

CAIRO, Egypt, Dec. 5 (AP)—The government announced today the appointment of Anis Azer to the newly created post of commercial counselor of the Egyptian Legation at Washington.

The position was established to alleviate Egypt's difficulty in getting certain supplies formerly obtainable in Europe and also in disposing of some exports formerly taken by European countries.

Several Egyptian ships recently carried goods from North and South American ports to the Suez Canal by way of the Red Sea, and it is hoped to develop this traffic.

In addition to his normal duties as commercial counselor, Mr. Azer will have wide powers to buy in behalf of the Egyptian Government. He was Egyptian consul in New York from 1928 to 1934, then secretary of the Egyptian Legation in Washington in 1936-37.

Finance Minister Hassan Sadek Bey has been transferred to the Defense Ministry, to be succeeded in the finance post by Abdel Hamid Badawy Pasha.

Subhas Chandra Bose Taken Home in Ambulance After Hunger Strike Against Defense Plan

Calcutta, Dec. 5 (AP) — The Indian Leftist leader, Subhas Chandra Bose has been released from jail where he has been on a hunger strike against the defense of India regulations under which he was arrested last July.

Bose was taken home in an ambulance. Two charges of making objectionable speeches and writing objectionable articles still are pending against him.

The British House of Commons was told last month that one of the causes of Bose's arrest was a plot to raze the "Black Hole" memorial at Calcutta.

On Christmas Day each warship will have its tree and the officers will visit all the mess decks to exchange greetings with the men and distribute small gifts. Chaplains will give special communion.

War No Barrier To Romance

Arlon, Belgium, Dec. 5 (AP)—War, food rationing and nightly blackouts failed to stop the celebration today of the annual Arlon Lovers' Festival.

Amid matrimonial haggling of parents and whisperings of middlemen, called "hellechmaenner," plump rosy girls of one community exchanged glances with rustic farm youths from over the hill.

The fete—which dates back to days before the country was ruled by Roman legions—is held the first Thursday in December to provide an opportunity for youths and maidens in isolated regions to meet, look each other over and find a life companion.

French Ship Reaches Brazil

SANTOS, Brazil, Dec. 5 (AP).—The 3,891-ton French freight and passenger ship Katiola arrived here unexpectedly today with eighty-five passengers, among them forty-one French volunteers returning to homes in South America. The Katiola, which left Bordeaux Nov. 1, came via Casablanca and Dakar.

The United States took two actions which Thailand has considered support for the French position. The State Department reiterated its stand against any alteration of the status quo by threat of or resort to force, and United States officials at Manila confiscated ten warplanes—purchased by the Thai air force—on the ground they were needed for United States rearmament.

Simultaneously, an American oil company canceled a contract for aviation gasoline placed by Thailand and another American concern informed Bangkok it would be unable to fill an order for gun cotton.

These actions aroused resentment in Bangkok. Thai officials asserted they were given to understand the United States stand was based on the belief Thailand was working with Japan to dismember Indo-China.

Thai Leaders Fear Independence Loss

[By the Associated Press]

Bangkok, Thailand, Dec. 5—Leaders of Thailand (Siam) are torn today between the necessity of providing territorial satisfaction for the Nationalistic aspirations they have drilled into their people and growing fear that insistence upon their claims against French Indo-China will force them into an alignment with Japan, which might cost Thailand her independence.

(There has been sporadic border fighting between troops of Thailand and French Indo-China, but the French in Hanoi announced yesterday that "reprisals for Siamese attacks" had been halted "to permit diplomats every opportunity to effect a settlement."

Wants Land Returned

(In the past fighting, for which each side has accused the other of being responsible, there have been clashes between land units, air bombings of border towns and fights between planes and warships in the Gulf of Siam and on the Mekong river.)

Twice—September 6 and October 2—Bangkok formally asked Vichy to return two small areas in Laos, westernmost Indo-China State which France took from Siam by threat of force in 1893.

Inhabitants are of the Thai (Siamese) race, the Government maintained, and the areas are west of the Mekong river, the natural and historic boundary between French Indo-China and Thailand. Bangkok also requested the cession to Thailand of the States of Laos and Cambodia if and when France relinquished her sovereignty over Indo-China.

U. S. Seen Pro-French

Vichy rejected Bangkok's demands on both occasions and declared Indo-China would resist with force any Thai attempt to regain the territories by armed force.

Disclaim Threat Of Force

Thai spokesmen insisted that their requests to Vichy contained no threat of force, that they were not acting with Japan and that they had merely concluded a non-aggression pact with Tokyo.

The Thai Government maintains that when it signed a non-aggression pact with France in June—before the French collapse in Europe—it did so on the understanding the pact would pave the way for a general readjustment of the Thailand-Indo-China frontier.

The Thailand Foreign Office says only that the matter has reached a "diplomatic impasse."

But the peacetime defense force of about 40,000 has been doubled and the greater part of the army is deployed along the Indo-China frontier.

French Base In Indo-China

[By the Associated Press]

Hongkong, Dec. 5—Domei (Japanese news agency) today quoted a Japanese traveler arriving in Hanoi, French Indo-China, as reporting that the French are converting Pnom-Penh, capital of Cambodia, into a base from which trucks, motor boats and junks loaded with troops have been streaming toward the Thailand (Siamese) border.

Pnom-Penh is filled with Annamite (native) troops and Foreign Legionnaires, and hotels are crowded with French women who accompanied their husbands, Domei quoted the traveler as saying.

Ranged along the river banks, the report continued, were United States trucks originally consigned to China but requisitioned by the French since the Thailand-Indo-China border crisis arose.

The Kremlin: Soviet Temple Of Silence

[By the Associated Press]

Moscow, Dec. 5—The masters of the Kremlin, ruling the neutral Soviet sixth of the world, are wearing their most inscrutable mask in the grim game of power politics being played as a side attraction of the war.

Never known for talkativeness, the Kremlin men now have become as uncommunicative as the sodden, gray clouds of winter over the golden Byzantine domes of their citadel.

Stalin Is Mum

Joseph Stalin, chief of them all, has not spoken since the March, 1939, Congress of the Communist party, of which he is secretary-general.

Vyacheslaff Molotoff, Premier, Foreign Commissar and general right-hand man, who usually does the talking for Stalin, has not spoken publicly since the Supreme Soviet session last August 1.

Parliamentary debate, public statements and press conferences,—all the normal channels through which a government usually informs its people of what it is doing—have been closed.

Press Running Dry

The Soviet press remains virtually the only source of information in Russia, and even that is running dry. Most war news is given in official communiques from Berlin and London. Diplomatic new usually comes in New York dispatches, quoting American newspapers about what is happening in Europe and the Far East.

Only in events of extreme importance, like conclusion of the German-Italian-Japanese pact, is there any editorial reaction.

Then Pravda, Communist party organ, lays down the law; Izvestia, Government organ, echoes it the next day, and the rest of the newspapers repeat their comment for days afterward.

Still Friendly

Denials published by Tass, official Soviet news agency, also give some clues to the trend of Kremlin opinion.

The silence does not mean unfriendliness. The foreign press department of the Foreign Office gives correspondents a cordial reception, even though "No" may be the answer to most requests.

Diplomats also enjoy warm relations with government officials. When United States Ambassador Laurence A. Steinhardt returned from a four-month visit to America last summer, Molotoff received him at the Kremlin by slapping him on the back, putting both hands on his shoulders and expressing pleasure at seeing him again.

Don't Mention Reich

One curious note detected by European diplomats in these talks is that Soviet officials do not mention Germany in speaking of the entry of German forces in Rumania and passage through Finland. They speak simply of the presence of "troops" in those countries.

The reason for the cautious silence is easy to find. Soviet policy throughout the war has been one of neutrality and friendship with neighboring powers to keep Russia out of the conflict, while driving ahead on a campaign of internal reinforcement.

If a shift in the balance of power should make a change of policy advisable, surprise would play a large part in the effect.

Says Japanese Study Coast Line Of Alaska

Witness Declares Fishermen Know It Better Than United States Navy Itself.

[By the Associated Press]

Seattle, Dec. 5—Testimony that some Japanese fishermen know the Alaskan coast "better than the American navy itself" has been added to the records of a United States Tariff Commission hearing.

It was offered yesterday by William Hecker, secretary of the Alaska Fishermen's Union, CIO affiliate. The commission is investigating whether the present fifteen per cent. duty on imported crab meat should be increased.

Hecker said Japanese vessels obtained crab, as well as salmon, in Alaska waters and declared that "excessive" canned crab imports injured American producers and brought unemployment for American fishermen.

Exploits Of Disguised Nazi Raider Disclosed By Victim

Prowler Flying Greek Flag Sinks Ships, Lays Mines And Refuels In Mid-Pacific

[By the Associated Press]

New York, Dec. 5—The story of a German sea raider, disguised as a Greek ship, destroying enemy vessels in the South Pacific, laying mines in Australian and African waters and refueling from a Nazi tanker in mid-ocean, is related in the log of the British freighter Haxby, a victim.

The 5,207-ton Haxby left Greenock last April 8 for Corpus Christi, Texas, the log, published by the New York Maritime Register and London Journal of Commerce, relates.

Seven days after leaving her convoy a steamer carrying Greek colors crossed her bow. A moment later the Nazi ensign went up and incendiary and high-explosive shells from four concealed six-inch guns burst from the vessel.

In thirty minutes the Haxby was afire, her lifeboats riddled, gaping holes torn in her sides, and sixteen men dead.

"I decided to abandon ship," Captain Arundell wrote in his log. "When the frigate captain saw us in the water . . . with only lifebelts, he put out boats and picked up survivors.

"We were taken aboard the raider and each of us were issued with the following articles: One shirt (wood pulp), one set underwear (wood pulp), one pair socks (wood pulp), one canvas suit, one pair canvas shoes (soles ersatz leather), toothbrush, toothpaste and one glass."

Raider Lays Mines

Later he noted in the log:

". . . raider proceeded in southeasterly direction when on May 2 she laid mines off West Africa. . . .

"May 7, 8 and 9—Raider oiled from German tanker Winnetou (a 5,113-ton vessel out of Hamburg)."

The raider then rounded Cape Horn and on June 12 laid about 230 mines near the New Zealand coast.

[Associated Press Editor's Note—On November 8 the American freighter City of Rayville, 5,883 tons, only American ship sunk in the war to date, struck a mine off Cape Ottway, Victorio, Australia, sinking almost immediately with death to one man.]

Captures Norse Ship

On June 18 the raider intercepted the Norwegian freighter Tropic Sea, loaded with wheat for England. After her capture the Winnetou came alongside to refuel the raider.

The raider placed the British sailors aboard the Tropic Sea and with a prize crew dared the British blockade in an attempt to reach Bordeaux in occupied France.

The vessel was 400 miles off Gibraltar when the British submarine Truant appeared, causing the Germans to scuttle the Tropic Sea, after they had staged a premature celebration in the belief that the sub was a German U-boat.

Captain Arundell, his crew, the Norwegian skipper and his wife were landed at Gibraltar by the submarine and a ship was sent to pick up the Germans and Norwegians.

HITLER SEES EXPLORER

Führer Receives Swede At Berlin Chancellery

New York, Dec. 5 (AP)—The German radio said today that Adolf Hitler had received Sir Sven Anders Hedin, the Swedish explorer, at his Berlin chancellery today.

Hedin was awarded a high German decoration by Hitler last February. A little while later he was reported to have had something to do with the Swedish moves which contributed to Russo-Finnish peace.

Rome Says Pilot Bombed U.S. Holdings by Mistake

Tells Hull He Thought Saudi Arabia Was British Domain

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5 (AP).—Cordell Hull, Secretary of State, disclosed today that Italy, replying to a protest from the United States, had attributed the bombing of American oil properties in Saudi Arabia to the mistake of an Italian pilot.

The properties were bombed in October during an attack by Italian flyers on British oil sources in the Persian Gulf, including Bahrein Island, a British protectorate off the mainland of the neutral kingdom of Saudi Arabia.

Secretary Hull said the Italian government, in replying to an oral protest made here on Oct. 23, had stated that the bombing of the property in Saudi Arabia resulted from a mistake on the part of an Italian pilot who believed he was flying over territory under British control.

The Italian Foreign Office added, Mr. Hull said, that an appropriate expression of regret had been conveyed to the government of Saudi Arabia, which now considered the matter a closed incident.

GROUNDED WARSHIP FREED

Destroyer Badger Hauled Off Bermuda Ledge, Little Damaged

Hamilton, Bermuda, Dec. 5 (AP)—The United States destroyer George O. Badger, which went aground yesterday in a heavy blow, was hauled off a ledge today and found to be only slightly damaged.

The 21-year-old four-stacker, engaged in work in connection with a United States defense base here, will continue operations without the need of immediate repairs, it was announced.

Woman Clerk in Paris Embassy Held by Nazis as Aid of British

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5.—"The Washington Post" in a copyrighted story said tonight that a woman clerk in the American Embassy at Paris has been arrested by German authorities on the charge of conniving to help British officers escape from occupied France.

The "Post" said that the State department had queried the Embassy and had confirmed the report that the woman, Mrs. Elizabeth Deegan, forty years old, of Asheville, N. C., is being detained by German police for questioning.

State Department officials were quoted by the "Post" as saying that appropriate action was being taken by the embassy "to protect the American woman's rights."

Mrs. Deegan, a resident of Paris for the last twelve years and an employee of the embassy for the last four years, was one of the few women employees who chose to remain at their posts when the Nazi army marched in, the "Post" said.

She is the granddaughter of Peter Connely Pritchard, Republican Senator from North Carolina, from 1895 to 1903, and later a justice of the District of Columbia Supreme Court.

She has a fourteen-year-old daughter, who was sent back to the United States when the Germans invaded France.

NEW TAHITI GOVERNOR

Missionary Says Islanders Elected de Gaulle Man.

HONOLULU, Dec. 5 (A. P.).—Eugene M. Cannon, president of the Mormon mission at Tahiti, said on his arrival here today that the inhabitants of that French island possession "rose up wrathfully against the vacillating Vichy Government on September 2" and forced Gov. Chastenet de Gery, the Vichy representative, to resign.

The Tahitians, who "feel keenly the collapse of free France," then voted in Dr. D. E. Curton as Governor, Mr. Cannon reported, adding that at least 2,000 votes were cast in support of Gen. Charles de Gaulle, head of the French National Committee, as compared with three or four votes for the Vichy Government.

MORGENTHAU SILENT

Can't Express Views on Aid to Greece.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5 (A. P.).—Henry Morgenthau Sr. offered some advice today on the question of aiding the Greeks, but Henry Morgenthau Jr. said he'd have to think it over because of his official position.

The elder Morgenthau, an Ambassador to Turkey before the world war, was present at a press conference held by his son, the Secretary of the Treasury. He told reporters why he believed the Greeks should be helped in their war against the Italians.

"What does Junior think about that?" a reporter asked the Secretary.

"My father is an ex-Ambassador, and the sky is the limit for him," was the reply, "but I am just a plain Secretary and I have hobbles."

The elder Morgenthau was active in Greek relief work after the world. He said of today's warriors of Athens that "they ought to be helped as soon as possible."

"I think that if the Italian Army is no better than it was in the last war it will be shown up pretty soon," he added.

Greece has been attempting to obtain munitions in the United States.

Morgenthau Backs Jones

British Loan Good Risk, He Says

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5 (AP).—Secretary Morgenthau said today that he, like Jesse H. Jones, Federal Loan Administrator, believed that the British government was a "good risk" for loans.

The Treasury chief made the comment at a press conference after arranging to meet tomorrow with Sir Frederick Phillips, Undersecretary of the British Treasury, who arrived in the U. S. yesterday.

Someone asked whether he agreed with a statement made yesterday by Jones, who is Commerce Secretary as well as Loan Administrator, that the British were a "good risk." Morgenthau said, "Yes."

DEC 6 - 1940

Asked when the British would need credits, Morgenthau replied:

"If I knew the answer to that question, it would not have been necessary for Sir Frederick to come over."

But as far as he knew, he added, Sir Frederick came to the U. S. only to present factual information on British finances and resources available for purchases in the U. S., and not to make a loan request.

Roosevelt Views Jamaica Sites For Sea Bases

DEC 6 - 1940

Visits Kingston on Cruiser Minus Fanfare; Inspects Naval and Air Leases

ABOARD U. S. S. MAYRANT, KINGSTON, Jamaica, Dec. 5 (AP via radio).—Without fanfare or formalities, President Roosevelt inspected sites today for United States naval bases in this key British Island of the Caribbean.

It was the President's first visit to the waters of a belligerent country since the war began and his first trip to British waters since August of last year, when he visited Nova Scotia and Newfoundland just before hostilities broke out in Europe.

His tour favored by sunny skies, the President looked over the prospective American naval anchorage at Portland Bight and the adjacent land area, including Goat Island and the near-by cays inside the bight, which were leased from Britain in the destroyer deal. He also saw the site acquired for an emergency and auxiliary air field along Bakers Canal.

Besides these points, almost in view of the guns protecting the West Indian British naval station, the United States has obtained territory in Jamaica for recreational and hospital use, the right to develop dockyard facilities at historic Port Royal, at the entrance of Kingston Harbor, for joint Anglo-American use, and reciprocal rights with Britain for military air fields being established by the two governments.

Mr. Roosevelt arrived on the cruiser Tuscaloosa, accompanied by the destroyers Mayrant and Trippe. By agreement with British authorities salutes and formalities were dispensed with as the Tuscaloosa nosed into Kingston harbor.

An official call was paid by H. H. Watson, American Consul General, and his party, who were followed by a British delegation which included Sir Arthur Richards, Governor of Jamaica; Lady Richards and their children, and the Colonial Secretary and Mrs. A. W. G. Grantham.

After Mr. Watson had been put ashore the Tuscaloosa and her escort weighed anchor and proceeded twenty-five miles southwest along the coast to Portland Bight, where the President was luncheon host to British officials.

Mr. Roosevelt passed part of yesterday afternoon at the Guantanamo naval base discussing with commanding officers the plans for extensive development of the defense post.

Knox Inspecting Panama Canal

CRISTOBAL, C. Z. Dec. 5 (AP).—New ways to defend the Panama Canal may be found "as the art of war develops," but "we are doing the best we can with what we know now," Frank Knox, Secretary of the Navy, said today on his arrival here by plane to inspect canal defenses.

Asked whether he meant that he considered the canal defense complete or approaching impregnability, Secretary Knox replied: "I am never satisfied with anything. Everything is susceptible of improvement."

He said, however, that no specific increases in canal naval installations were now contemplated, and he was particularly emphatic in denying that plans were definitely on foot to create a major fleet-operating base at the Pacific end of the canal.

Secretary Knox attended a dinner this evening at the Coco Solo submarine base and arranged to confer with Rear Admiral Frank Sadler and other officers.

His program calls for inspections here tomorrow, a flight to the Pacific side, luncheon with an anti-aircraft crew in the jungle, dinner with President Arias of Panama, and return here for a take-off Saturday morning.

Secretary Knox said he did not expect President Roosevelt to come here, but that he probably would see him "in a day or so," indicating the meeting might be at Culebra Island or Puerto Rico. He added he had no direct knowledge of the President's schedule.

Public Not Informed

KINGSTON, Jamaica, Dec. 5 (CP Cable).—A President of the United States called here today for the first time in Jamaica's history, but only a handful of officials knew of President Roosevelt's visit until his warship had left harbor again.

While the cruiser lay in Kingston harbor for three hours, the general public was without an inkling that the United States President was aboard. When the news circulated tonight, disappointment was expressed universally at the fact there had been no public foreknowledge of the President's presence.

5-Year Defense Bill Put At 35 Billions

[By the Associated Press]

Washington, Dec. 5—An expenditure of $35,000,000,000 during the next five years would be required, it was estimated today, to carry out the national preparedness program as now formulated.

Other sources estimated that factory forces of that size could make possible the production of more than 350 warplanes a week, or in excess of 18,000 a year.

The figures were contained in the annual report of the Aeronautical Chamber of Commerce of America, trade association.

On Five-Day Week

A five-day week for the 382,000 shop workers will make available roughly 15,000,000 man hours in the air rearmament drive, with a proportionate increase if the work week should be lengthened.

Of that number, 10,700,000 man hours will be expended weekly on aircraft making, the remainder on propeller, engine and accessory manufacture.

Other sources said the average man hours of labor expended on a warplane was about 30,000—lumping together trainers, fighters and medium and heavy bombers—and that the productive capacity of the aircraft plants next summer, therfeore, would be something in excess of 350 machines a week.

Jouett said aeronautical equipment makers already had spent $83,356,580 on plant expansion and had let contracts for an additional $232,188,472 worth of facilities to be in use by June.

"The American aircraft industry," he commented, "has more than justified the faith placed in it early this year when the President of the United States launched one of the most drastic rearmament programs in history."

The $35,000,000,000 estimate, the first to come from official sources projecting defense plans that far into the future, was made by a committee of Agriculture Department economists in a report entitled "The Impact of the War and the Defense Program on Agriculture."

The report said the probable magnitude of the defense program could only be "roughly" estimated at this time, but that "additional unfavorable developments" might result in an "even more ambitious program."

"During the five calendar years beginning 1941 it will require probably about $35,000,000,000 to care for the defense program as now projected, or around $25,000,000,000 in excess of the 1939-40 rate of expenditure (for all Government purposes) before the defense program was inaugurated," the report said.

The Estimates By Years

The report was prepared for the Agriculture Department's program board for use in drafting future farm-aid programs.

It estimated calendar year expenditures for defense purposes for the next five years as follows: 1941, $7,500,000,000; 1942, $9,000,000,000; 1943, $7,500,000,000; 1944, $6,000,000,000, and 1945, $5,000,000,000.

The report said the effect of the defense expenditures upon industrial activity and prices depends to a considerable extent upon how the program is financed. "The financing program, as it is developing, seems likely to permit a speedy development of the defense program in the next two years, with the result that in those two years the program will make a large net contribution to national purchasing power."

Employment Prediction

The economists predicted that the defense spending together with enlargement of military forces would reduce the nation's unemployment rolls by about one-half between 1940 and 1942.

Discussing its probable effects on agriculture, they said the indicated increase in purchasing power would be reflected in higher prices for most farm products, but that probable advances in farm wages and in costs of materials and equipment used in production of farm products might offset most of the rise in farm income.

350 Planes Weekly

DEC 6 - 19

[By the Associated Press]

New York, Dec. 5—American factories turning out aviation equipment will have about 500,000 employes on their pay rolls when the current plant expansion programs are completed next June, a spokesman for the industry reported today.

War Communiques

DEC 6 - 1940

Greek

ATHENS, Dec. 6 (Friday) (AP).—A Greek command communique on yesterday's operations:

Fighting continued all over the entire front. Our troops made further progress, especially in the central and southern sectors, despite the strong reaction of enemy aviation.

ATHENS, Dec 5 (UP)—A communique of the Greek Ministry of Public Security:

Enemy aviation today bombed Corfu again without casualties and with only slight damage.

British

LONDON, Dec. 5 (AP).—An Air Ministry communique:

Last night R. A. F. bombers made a sustained attack on various objectives in the Duesseldorf area. Fires and explosions resulted from the bombing.

Another force of aircraft bombed selected targets at Turin. Considerable damage was observed by our bomber crews.

Other targets included the ports of Antwerp and Calais and several enemy airdromes, as well as searchlight and anti-aircraft guns and positions.

One of our aircraft is missing from operations over Italy. All other aircraft returned safely.

An Air Ministry-Home Security Ministry communique:

This morning a number of enemy fighters and fighter-bombers which flew over east Kent were intercepted by our fighters and scattered.

During the afternoon other enemy aircraft crossed the coast of Kent and came inland. They were also attacked and put to flight.

Bombs dropped by these raiders caused some damage to houses and other buildings and injured a number of people.

In these engagements twelve enemy aircraft were destroyed by our fighters and another was shot down by anti-aircraft gunfire. One of our fighters was lost, but the pilot is safe.

An Admiralty communique:

The communiques issued by the German high command lay continual stress upon the mining of British ports. These ports and their approaches are kept clear of mines from day to day by the tenacity, courage and devotion to duty of our mine-sweeping forces.

The enemy is using all manner of devices to prevent or hinder the sweeping of these mines. Although the success of these devices has been limited and is likely to decrease, they have imposed losses upon our mine sweeping forces.

The Board of Admiralty regretfully lists the following vessels are lost: H. M. trawler Ethel Taylor, H. M. trawler Amethyst, H. M. trawler Elk, H. M. trawler Calverton, H. M. drifter Christmas Rose.

There were no casualties in H. M. trawler Amethyst or in H. M. trawler Elk. The next of kin of all casualties in the other vessels have been informed.

ATHENS, Dec. 5 (AP).—A Royal Air Force communique:

In a fierce battle over the enemy lines yesterday, our fighters without loss shot down a large number of enemy aircraft. Greek sources stated that the number of aircraft destroyed was believed to be ten, but official confirmation was awaited.

Enemy troops retreating hurriedly in the Tepelini-Kelsyre area were successfully attacked by R. A. F. bomber and fighter formations. One formation bombed a road junction and troop concentrations at Kelsyre, direct hits being scored on roads to Tepelini and Berati. Other bombs exploded near a road and among buildings. Two enemy aircraft were sighted, but they did not attempt to intercept our bombers.

At Tepelini, both the road and the bridge over the river were bombed, the bridge being observed as surrounded by dust and rubble after the explosion of one bomb. A convoy of lorries was bombed in the same area, in addition to buildings in the north of the town.

Off the coast near Santi Quaranta (Porta Edda), our bombers attacked a destroyer, and two direct hits as well as several near misses were scored on it. The destroyer stopped and was listing heavily when our aircraft left.

All crews of aircraft, both bombers and fighters, returned safely.

CAIRO, Egypt, Dec. 5 (AP).—An R. A. F. African command communique:

On the Western Desert, night raids were carired out the night of Dec. 3- on El Adem, Sollum and Sidi Barrani. Bombs fell in the target area at each place but it was impossible to observe the amount of damage. A motor transport between Sollum and Bardia also was attacked.

Aircraft from the Rhodesian squadron successfully raided stores dumped on the road east of Chelga. Flames from the burning dumps reached a considerable height.

The Ardate railway station was raided. A direct hit on some station buildings wrecked them. Goods trucks on a siding and a group of huts near the station also were badly damaged.

One of our aircraft on reconnassance failed to return, but with this exception all operations were carried out without loss.

A British general headquarters communique:

SUDAN: In the Kassala sector

one of our patrols successfully engaged a large enemy working party, inflicting a number of casualties. In the area west of Gallabat our artillery was again active.

OTHER FRONTS: No change.

Italian

ROME, Dec. 5 (AP).—The Italian high command communique:

On the Greek front, attacks and counter-attacks in sectors of two armies again took place yesterday.

Our formations of bombing planes and dive bombers bombarded military works, highways, bridges, columns of supply trucks and troops on the march in effective actions in co-operation with land forces. The Premet-Perati Highway particularly and repeatedly was attacked, being cut at several points. Bases at Corfu, Zante and Preveza were bombed.

During a fight between our and enemy pursuit planes, five enemy fighter planes were shot down. Two of our planes failed to return.

Our submarine Delfino sank a Greek destroyer in the Aegean Sea on Nov. 29.

In East Africa, enemy mechanized troops attacked our post west of Tessenei and were quickly repelled. Enemy air raids on Cheren and Ghinda failed to cause damage or casualties. An enemy plane was shot down by our fighters.

Enemy planes coming from Switzerland dropped bombs on Turin. One person was killed and three injured near a hospital. Some fires, which immediately were brought under control, were started in a dye works, a woolen mill and a carpet factory. No damage was done to military objectives.

German

BERLIN, Dec. 5 (AP).—The German high command communique:

On the night of Dec. 3-4, combat planes attacked London and Birmingham despite bad weather. Big fires were observed in the London districts of Paddington, Kensington and Battersea. Birmingham also had nine large and numerous smaller fires, followed by strong explosions. Furthermore, Southampton and a number of other cities were raided.

The air force's day activity was limited to reconnaissance flights. Last night's attacks were directed against southern and central England. British ports were mined.

Several British planes last night bombed western Germany, damaging a number of houses.

Three enemy planes were downed yesterday, whereof two were by anti-aircraft fire. Three of our own planes are missing.

In the War Zone

Several Elements Involved in British Plan to Eliminate Italy

DEC 6- 1940

By DEWITT MACKENZIE.

The major offensive which the British indicate they are inaugurating against Signor Mussolini with the idea of knocking him out of the war is likely to see sensational developments in several directions.

For one thing, there is a growing possibility that the strong French military forces in northern Africa may defy their Vichy Government and throw their lot in with the British, once the campaign is in full swing.

The British need this help. It is certain that while they probably can go far in their offensive on the strength of their naval and air forces, they will have to employ very considerable land contingents to deal with the Fascist armies in Africa.

One of the chief obstacles with which the British will have to deal is the half-million men under that famous desert fighter, Marshal Graziani, who in September started to invade Egypt from Libya and then got hung up for some reason not satisfactorily explained.

The British have said that they are preparing to transport troops from England into the Mediterranean area. However, they will be fortunate if they are able to move in the immediate future all the men and equipment they need.

Troop Movements Hazardous.

Hitler's fierce submarine campaign bids fair to render movement of troop ships a very precarious business. That, of course, is one of the Fuehrer's objectives on his intensified U-boat and aerial warfare. He is trying to relieve the pressure on his unhappy Axis partner, who already has his hands more than full with his Greek adventure.

Thus it is clear why the British are turning hopeful eyes toward Gen. Weygand, chief of military and political affairs in French Africa, who has some 500,000 well-equipped troops at his disposal. Should these troops throw themselves on Graziani from the seas, thus putting him in a vise, his position would indeed be precarious if not utterly hopeless.

There is no doubt that there is a growing pro-British sentiment in the French colonies, as indeed there is in France itself. That is clear from numerous sources. I have before me a copy of a confidential French colonial document which reached me through a neutral source. This is in the form of a memo by an official who discussed with his subordinates how to cope with the growing pro-British trend.

However, Gen. Weygand has been sitting very tight and the world will have to wait until he is ready to make known his position. However, the indications are that the British are ready to tackle the job of cleaning up northern Africa.

Italian Position Difficult.

It is a fair guess that Egypt will come into the war with the British, adding very considerable support. It would appear, too, that Haile Selassie of Ethiopia is in process of working up a revolt against the Italians.

The position of the Italian expeditionary forces is far from enviable because they are virtually cut off from communication with Italy owing to the British blockade. Thus they are deprived of both supplies and re-enforcements. That fact in itself is worth an army to the British.

Naturally the first phase of the offensive must be to complete so far as possible the job of evicting the Italians from Albania. This campaign is proceeding apace, but one would expect the fierce winter weather of that mountainous region to slow operations down.

The British are tightening their blockade, and are bombing Italian cities from their new bases on Greek territory. All Fascist communications have come under increased pressure.

ARGENTINA-CHILE

OVER BEAGLE ISLANDS

DEFENSE PLANS (360)

SANTIAGO,CHILE--(CORRESPONDENCE OF THE ASSOCIATED PRESS)--A JUSTICE OF THE UNITED STATES SUPREME COURT SOON MAY BE ASKED TO DECIDE OWNERSHIP OF THE BEAGLE ISLANDS, SITUATED AT THE SOUTHERN TIP OF SOUTH AMERICA AND POSSIBLE FACTORS IN CONTINENTAL DEFENSE PLANS.

CLAIMED BY ARGENTINA AND OCCUPIED BY CHILE, THE THREE ISLANDS--PICTON, LENNOX AND NEW--OCCUPY A STRATEGIC POSITION ON A ROUTE BETWEEN THE ATLANTIC AND PACIFIC OCEANS WHICH MIGHT SERVE AS AN ALTERNATIVE IN EVENT OF DAMAGE TO THE PANAMA CANAL.

THEY COMMAND THE EASTERN ENTRANCE TO THE BEAGLE CHANNEL, WHICH CONNECTS THE TWO OCEANS SOUTH OF THE STRAITS OF MAGELLAN AND NORTH OF THE ROUTE AROUND CAPE HORN.

CHILE AND ARGENTINA ARE WAITING FOR THEIR AMBASSADORS IN WASHINGTON TO AGREE ON WHICH JUSTICE THEY WILL ASK TO ARBITRATE THEIR CLAIMS IN PLACE OF FORMER U.S. ATTORNEY GENERAL HOMER CUMMINGS. ARGENTINA OBJECTED TO CUMMINGS CONTINUING AS ARBITER AFTER HIS RESIGNATION FROM HIS POST, AND BOTH COUNTRIES AGREED TO SELECT A REPLACEMENT FROM THE SUPREME COURT.

IT WAS THROUGH THE EFFORTS OF UNITED STATES AMBASSADORS IN SANTIAGO AND BUENOS AIRES IN THE PAST CENTURY THAT THE TWO REPUBLICS SIGNED A BOUNDARY TREATY IN 1881 RECOGNIZING CHILEAN SOVEREIGNTY OVER ALL ISLANDS "SOUTH OF THE BEAGLE CHANNEL" AND GIVING ARGENTINA THE EASTERN PART OF TIERRA DEL FUEGO.

A FEW YEARS AFTER THE TREATY WAS SIGNED, DISPUTE AROSE BETWEEN THE TWO COUNTRIES OVER THE QUESTION WHETHER THE BEAGLE ISLANDS LIE "SOUTH OF THE BEAGLE CHANNEL," IN THE CHANNEL OR IN THE ATLANTIC OCEAN.

THE STRATEGIC IMPORTANCE OF THE WILD, COLD AND FOGGY REGION IS INDICATED BY ARGENTINA'S REPORTED MAINTENANCE OF A BASE IN CONNECTION WITH ITS PENAL COLONY AT USHUAIA ON THE NORTHERN BANK OF THE BEAGLE CHANNEL IN TIERRA DEL FUEGO. THE CORRESPONDING CHILEAN BASE IS AT PUNTA ARENAS ON THE STRAITS OF MAGELLAN.

AT PRESENT, THE BEAGLE CHANNEL IS NOT MUCH USED BY INTER-OCEAN SHIPPING, WHICH EITHER PASSES THROUGH THE STRAITS TO THE NORTH OR AROUND CAPE HORN TO THE SOUTH. MARINE AUTHORITIES SAY THE CHANNEL IS DEEP AND STRAIGHT, IN CONTRAST TO THE WINDINGS OF THE STRAITS, AND THAT ITS SHELTERED WATERS OFFER A BETTER ROUTE THAN THE ROUGH AND STORMY PASSAGE AROUND THE HORN.

500 Machine Guns Seized.

The Greeks estimated they already had seized more than $8,000,000 worth of equipment abandoned by the retreating Italians. More than 500 machine guns were said to be among the loot.

Some of the captured arms, including six heavy guns seized in the advance beyond Premet, have been turned on their former owners, the Greeks said.

Italian warplanes were reported to have bombed the Greek island of Corfu again yesterday, but damage was officially described as slight.

Porto Edda Capture Officially Announced

ATHENS, Dec. 6 (AP).—An official announcement today said Greek troops had occupied Porto Edda, one of the Italian Army's main bases in Southern Albania.

The fall of Argirocastro, another important Italian military base, 15 miles northeast of Porto Edda, was expected at any moment, the Greek high command said.

Greek troops also were reported advancing rapidly westward from Premet, on the Central Albanian front, where the mountain pass south of Klisoura was said to be under the fire of their artillery. Klisoura is about 10 miles west of Premet.

Reports from the front previously had said both Porto Edda and Argirocastro were aflame and Greek leaders expressed belief retreating Italian troops had set fire to equipment and supplies to keep them from falling into the hands of the Greek Army.

Reports from Porto Edda said the Greeks entered the town early today after the Italians cleared out hurriedly, leaving behind virtually all their vast war material assembled there. They placed the torch to what supplies they could before leaving, however, the Greeks said.

The Greeks found in the harbor an Italian destroyer they declared had been sunk last Wednesday by British bombing planes shortly after it arrived to take out Fascist staff officers.

The Italian position in Porto Edda became untenable, the Greeks explained, when their forces captured the nearby towns of Lykursi and Vyroni.

The main battle in the southern sector, meanwhile, appeared developing in the vicinity of Klisoura, road junction north of Argirocastro.

Armies Moving Forward.

The Greek high command, in a terse communique, declared its armies were moving forward along the entire 100-mile front in Albania extending from the Adriatic Sea to the Yugoslav border.

The Greek advance westward from Premet toward Tepelini, 30 miles inside Albania, threatened to cut the line of retreat for Italian forces reported falling back from Argirocastro, which is situated about 15 miles southwest of Premet. Greek columns were said to be driving on Argirocastro from both the south and east.

The high command indicated the Italian air force was offering stiff resistance to the Greek push on this front.

On the northern wing of the front the Greeks said the last Italian troops had been dislodged from mountain positions in the Pogradetz area and that the Greek advance was continuing toward Elbasani. Italian losses in this area were described as heavy and the Greeks said they had captured more than 500 prisoners.

Cavallero Named Successor Amid Reversal Reports

By the Associated Press.

ROME, Dec. 6.—The resignation of Marshal Pietro Badoglio as chief of the Italian general staff was announced officially today.

He was replaced by Gen. Ugo Cavallero, veteran of three Italian wars and until recently commander of the Italian forces in East Africa.

(The Greeks claimed additional advances in all sectors and reported that retreating Italian troops had put the torch to their Southern Albanian bases of Porto Edda and Argirocastro to prevent capture of war supplies they could not take with them.)

During the Greek campaign Marshal Badoglio's name rarely has been mentioned, although he was second only to Mussolini in the high command. Roberto Farinacci, Fascist leader, criticized him, however, in the newspaper Regime Fascista on November 23, declaring victory in Greece was certain despite "some improvidence and untimeliness on the part of the head of the general staff."

Staff Chief 15 Years.

Marshal Badoglio, Italy's most famed soldier, sometimes called the "Italian Hindenburg," had been chief of the general staff for 15 years.

As such, he had supreme command of all three branches of the nation's fighting forces. A communique announcing the resignation gave no reason, saying only that it was "on his own request."

Gen. Cavallero, who is 60 years old, nine years younger than Marshal Badoglio, first fought in the Libyan war of 1912-13 and won the bronze medal for military valor.

At the beginning of the World War he served as an aide to the army chief of staff and later was named chief of operations in the high command. In this office he was credited with playing an important part in reorganizing Italian defenses on the Piave after the Caporetto disaster and directing the campaign which led to the final Italian victory of Vittorio Veneto.

Given Highest Decoration.

For his services in this critical phase he received the nation's highest military decoration, the military order of Savoia.

Gen. Cavallero retired from active service after representing Italy for two years on the Inter-Allied Military Commission at Versailles. In 1925 Premier Mussolini named him undersecretary of war. He occupied this post three years, carrying out extensive reorganization of the army.

He was made a senator in 1926 and was named commander of Italian forces in East Africa in 1937, but recently had not been on active duty.

PAS 4

Marshal Badoglio, whom Mussolini called upon to vanquish Ethiopia for Fascist Italy when the Italian campaign bogged down, did not join the Fascist party until he had sealed his triumph over Haile Selassie's empire.

Chief of state when the Black Shirts marched on Rome, Marshal Badoglio was reported to have assured King Victor Emmanuel that he could, if ordered, disperse them with a single regiment. But the King decided to invite Benito Mussolini to form a government and Marshal Badoglio offered no opposition to the new regime.

Soon after Mussolini achieved power he sent Marshal Badoglio to Brazil as Ambassador, Badoglio receiving the diplomatic appointment, it was believed at the time, because he was too useful, too strong with the army and too popular with the people to dismiss altogether.

His position as Italy's foremost military strategist was so strong, however, that Mussolini called him back to direct reorganization of the Italian war machine in 1926.

Marshal Badoglio first marched to battle as an artillery lieutenant against Ethiopia in 1896 and against Turkey in 1911-12. Entering the World War against Austria as a lieutenant colonel, he later advanced to the rank of army corps commander.

Went to Libya as Governor.

He plunged into his fourth war when he was appointed governor of Libya in 1929, with the mission of reconquering the former Turkish province from the rebellious natives.

Marshall Badoglio remained in the background at the start of the Ethiopian campaign in 1936, but when Marshal Emilio de Bono's campaign slackened Mussolini sent Marshal Badoglio into command.

He gained victory over the Ethiopians and was rewarded with the title of Duke of Addis Ababa and named viceroy of Ethiopia. He was showered with honors upon his return to Rome.

In the Ethiopian campaign he settled an account that had rankled in his memory since 1896, when, as a young officer of 25, he witnessed the Italian Army's humiliating defeat at Aduwa.

Marshal Badoglio was born in Piedmont province on September 28, 1871, the son of a farmer. He was attracted to military life and attended the military academy at Turin, Italy's West Point.

He is married and the father of one child, a daughter.

Badoglio Experienced Commander, British Say

LONDON, Dec. 6 (AP).—London military circles today said that the resignation of Marshal Pietro Badoglio as Italian chief of staff had deprived Italy of one of its most experienced commanders and "one who apparently was not in sympathy with the military policy now being pursued by the Fascist government."

Some military sources expressed the opinion that Marshal Badoglio had been "sacked" as a scapegoat for Italian military reverses or "because he is opposed to the attitude of the party organization and the strictures of the army."

Push Beyond Porto Edda And Argirocastro After Italians

BY MAY HARRELSON

[By the Associated Press]

Athens, Saturday, Dec. 7—Triumphant Greek troops, overwhelming Italian forces at the southern Albanian seaport of Porto Edda and near-by Argirocastro, immediately pushed northward on the heels of the retreating Italians, a Greek Government spokesman said today.

Some units remained in Porto Edda to list captured Italian armament. Others drove units of the Italian rearguard from hill positions north of Porto Edda on the coastal road. These Fascist units sought to protect their legions escaping north toward Chimara, the spokesman said.

Heavy losses were suffered by the Italians vacating Argirocastro, the spokesman said, and the Fascist retreat all along the one-hundred-mile Albanian front was continuing, he said.

In Full Flight

The spokesman did not claim the capture of Argirocastro officially, but said its fall was expected hourly. The Italians were in full flight toward Tepeleni in that sector after "strong but fruitless resistance," he said.

Greek arms also scored successes in driving Italians from the heights surrounding Moskopolis in the central sector of the front, he said, and chalked up victories in the northern Pogradetz area en route toward Elbasani, important Italian headquarters in central Albania.

The Greeks made a belated but welcome discovery in Koritza, the first important Italian city captured in their counter-invasion, it was learned.

Great Booty Seized

Several thousand tons of war equipment and munitions, fifty per cent. of which can be used immediately against the Italians, was found stored underground there.

"To sum up," the spokesman said, "the success of the Greek army is becoming more and more important."

The resignation of Marshal Pietro Badoglio, Italian chief of general staff, "does not create an encouraging atmosphere for the Italians, coming as it does in the midst of battle," he commented.

Porto Edda was plundered and left in flames by the Italians, the Greek high command said.

[Associated Press Editor's Note—Dispatches reaching the Yugoslav frontier reported that Argirocastro had been occupied by the Greeks about noon today after bloody fighting in which 1,000 Fascist prisoners were taken. A number of heavy cannon and other war supplies were reported seized.]

Along the central sector of the front sustained Greek advances westward from Premet were claimed and near-by mountain passes were declared to be under Greek artillery fire.

The maneuver, which extended toward Tepeleni, which is thirty miles within Albania, was intended to cut the line of the Italian retreat from Argirokastro, and thus to place the Fascists in what might be a sack disastrous for them.

The Italian position in Porto Edda became untenable, the Greeks explained, when their forces captured the near-by towns of Lykursi and Vrioni. In the harbor at Porto Edda, the Greeks reported, was found the hulk of an Italian destroyer said to have been smashed by British bombing planes upon its arrival to take off Italian staff officers.

Fighting on the northern front continued, with the Greeks driving in the direction of Elbasani, which is about twenty-five miles southeast of Tirana, the Albanian capital.

By the Associated Press.

BITOLJ, Yugoslavia, Dec. 6.—Dispatches reaching the Yugoslav border said Greek troops occupied Argirocastro, Albania, about noon today after bloody fighting, and took more than 1,000 prisoners.

A number of heavy cannon, machine guns and other war material were reported captured by the Greeks as they swept into that former base of the Italians in Southwestern Albania.

[The report that Argirocastro was occupied has not been confirmed officially or unofficially in Athens or Rome.]

Italian troops were said to be counter-attacking while the Fascist air force was reported subjecting the Greek communication lines and troop concentrations to a heavy bombardment.

Troops of the Italian Arezzo and Venezia divisions were said to be carrying out their assignments in a manner "above all praise."

The communique did not say how the fighting was progressing.

On the Northern African front, the Italians reported they had put to flight a British patrol south of their Egyptian coastal base of Sidi Barrani. The British force was said to have abandoned arms and munitions.

British warplanes dropped several bombs at Tobruk, Libya, and in the vicinity of Salum and Sidi Barrani without causing any damage, the high command said. Two persons were reported killed in the Tobruk bombing.

Nairobi, Kenya Colony, Dec. 6 (AP)—British troops have repulsed Italian scouting bands along the Ethiopian border with "heavy casualties," a communique said today.

One British officer was missing, and "a number" of British native soldiers killed.

R. A. F. Downs Eight Italians.

LONDON, Dec. 6 (A. P.).—British fighters in an air battle with large numbers of Italian fighters over southwestern Albania destroyed eight planes and severely damaged seven others on Wednesday, the Air Ministry reported today.

It said that the British escaped without a loss.

Meanwhile today a British military spokesman reported that on the north flank of the Albanian front the Greeks had captured fifteen officers and 200 men in addition to eight guns and fifty machine guns during the past few days.

"There has been a general advance all along the front by the Greeks," the spokesman added, "although the advance in the north and in the Pindus has not been very extensive."

The stalling of the latter drive is not so much due to Italian opposition as to the obvious difficulties of getting across mountainous and more or less roadless country, the spokesman said.

In the north, he declared, the exact position of the advance Greek troops is uncertain, but "it runs from the north, northwest of the town of Pogradetz to the village of Rahan about six miles west of Voskoboj (Moskopoli)."

Royal Air Force planes which bombed the Northern Italian industrial city of Turin Wednesday night also dropped leaflets of photographs showing damage done Fascist warships in Taranto Harbor by British bombers three weeks ago, an official announcement said today.

HAILS VICTORIES AGAINST ITALIANS

Briton Says Fascist Empire May Be Camouflage.

DEC 7 - 1940

LONDON, Dec. 6 (A. P.).—Citing what he called British and Greek successes in the Mediterranean, the British Home Secretary, Herbert Morrison, said today in a speech prepared for delivery at Portsmouth that "it becomes possible to hope that the Italian Fascist empire may be a dummy—all canvas and camouflage."

"Our own navy and air force, and now spectacular triumphs of the Greek Army, have shown up weak spots in at least one of our enemies," Mr. Morrison declared.

But, he warned, "feather-headed optimism" and "leaden-footed pessimism" are two dangers in Great Britain's path.

He listed "six reasons for cheerfulness," including two Italian reverses. Others were:

". . . the way we rose to the occasion with a tremendous spurt in factories and camps in meeting the biggest crisis in our history.

". . . that our navy is powerful and has already established complete moral ascendancy over our Italian opponent. We are confident it will do the same with the subtler menace of the U-boat.

". . . That our R. A. F. has won one of the greatest and most decisive battles in the world's history by beating its far more numerous opponent out of the daylight skies so that millions of town dwellers go about their work in complete disregard of the boasted luftwaffe, sitting on its bases fifteen or twenty minutes away.

". . . That our army has within a few months multiplied many times over the strength of an island fortress and correspondingly reduced the chance that an invasion, if it came, might succeed.

". . . The splendid resistance put up by the civil defense force, including police and civil population, against the trials and terrors of air bombardment."

British Rout German Raider In Fight Inside Neutral Zone

DEC 7 - 1940

But Armed English Merchantman Is Damaged—Another Craft May Be Pursuing Nazi Ship—Hull Has No Word.

LONDON, Dec. 6 (A. P.).—A fierce, long-range encounter between a German Q-boat or disguised raider and the British armed merchant cruiser Carnarvon Castle in which the British ship suffered slight damage and the German was said to have fled was reported today by the Admiralty.

It was learned authoritatively the battle occurred in the South Atlantic approximately 700 miles northeast of Montevideo, Uruguay, where three British cruisers drove the German pocket battleship Admiral Graf Spee to self-destruction last December.

[This would be off the coast of Brazil and well within the American neutrality zone. Berlin's account of the engagement merely said that a British auxiliary cruiser had been "severely damaged" in an engagement in the South Atlantic with a German auxiliary cruiser.]

The Admiralty said only that the battle took place "somewhere in the South Atlantic." It acknowledged some casualties aboard the Carnarvon Castle, a vessel of 22,122 tons.

British Introduced Q-boats.

It left open the question of damage to the opponent, which was described as "a fast and heavily armed German raider disguised as a merchantship."

"It is not yet known what damage was inflicted on the enemy raider and she was last reported to be steaming north at high speed away from the scene of action," the communique said.

It was the second engagement between British and German vessels within the Western Hemisphere neutrality belt since the Graf Spee battle. On July 29 the 22,209-ton British merchant cruiser Alcantara fought it out with a German merchant raider near the Brazilian island of Trinidad, farther to the northeast of yesterday's battle. The Alcantara put to sea again after having her damage repaired at Rio de Janeiro.

The British themselves developed the Q-boat in the world war, where the name was given to mystery warships masked as innocent tramp steamers. They were one of Britain's great weapons against German submarines.

Battle Described.

The communique said:

"The armed merchant cruiser H. M. S. Carnarvon Castle (Capt. H. N. M. Hardy, D. S. O., R. N.) was in action yesterday with a fast and heavily armed German raider disguised as a merchant ship in the South Atlantic.

"Full details are not yet available, but from available reports it is clear that the action was fought at a long range, the enemy raider, which was a ship of considerable speed, not accepting closer action.

"There was heavy firing on both sides during the engagement and a considerable amount of ammunition was expended as H. M. S. Carnarvon Castle gave chase to the enemy.

"H. M. S. Carnarvon Castle received slight damage and there were some casualties. The next of kin will be informed as soon as possible. It is not yet known what damage was inflicted on the enemy raider and she was last reported to be steaming north at high speed away from the scene of action."

Authorized sources said German night raiders roared over Portsmouth, naval base on Britain's south coast, in several waves and dropped considerable numbers of bombs with visible success. Numerous fires were said to have been observed.

(London dispatches said only that a south coast town had been the chief target of the invading airmen during the night.)

A. A. Battery Silenced.

Reconnaissance planes were said to have sighted a number of ships near Lowestoft and damaged one 800-ton vessel. An anti-aircraft battery at this east coast town was said to have been silenced by German bombs.

German long range guns shelled a British convoy trying to pass through Dover Strait toward the east at dusk yesterday, DNB reported. The agency said several ships were hit and the entrance to the port of Dover effectively shelled.

Authorized sources said only one British plane appeared over Germany last night and it dropped no bombs.

Augmenting the daily communique, DNB said a British airdrome was attacked yesterday. Its hangars were declared flattened and its landing field made unusable.

The news agency said military objects near Chatham likewise were raided and several fires started.

Germans Term Damage To British Ship Severe

BERLIN, Dec. 5 (AP).—The high command reported today that a German auxiliary vessel had severely damaged a British ship of the same class in a battle in the South Atlantic and credited a Nazi submarine with sinking four British merchantmen totaling 13,300 tons.

DEC 7 - 1940

Two of the merchantmen were sunk in convoy, a communique said.

The date of the engagement was not specified. (The British said it took place yesterday.)

A special communique said:

"In the South Atlantic an engagement took place between German and British auxiliary cruisers. In the course of the engagement the British war vessel was severely damaged."

10 Planes Claimed.

The high command listed British plane losses yesterday at 10, six of them in air fights, and said the Nazis lost seven planes in raids on Britain. (The British reported they shot down 14 German planes over England yesterday and only two of their own aircraft were lost.)

Merchant Cruiser Damaged In Clash With Masked Nazi Raider

Attacked Within Neutrality Zone, Will Tie Up At Montevideo

By HAROLD K. MILKS

[By the Associated Press]

30,24-6273

Montevideo, Uruguay, Dec. 6—The 20,122-ton British armed merchant cruiser Carnarvon Castle, steaming here to repair the damage done her in a South Atlantic sea battle with a masked German raider, broke her radio silence briefly tonight to report that the Nazis' superior speed had enabled her to escape after "a stern chase."

The message added that the action had been at long range and that the Britisher had expended "considerable ammunition." Then the wireless fell silent without having mentioned the extent of the damage or casualties.

Studying reports of the action, a naval expert here suggested that the German commander probably was following instructions in fleeing the British, remarking:

"The mission of these raiders is not to give battle to enemy warships but to prey on lightly armed or unarmed merchantmen."

British officials here began arranging at once to provide quick repairs on the Carnarvon Castle upon her arrival, which now is expected to be tomorrow.

Following Instructions

It was believed that the German was one of a group of vessels especially equipped before the war began to hound British shipping. These are armed with the most modern of 6.9-inch cannon and are understood to be able to outrun anything save a regular warship.

DEC 7-1940

The Uruguayan Government has given the Carnarvon Castle permission to anchor here, it was learned on good authority, and the news that she was putting in indicated to some naval men that another British ship perhaps had taken up where she left off in the chase of the Nazi vessel.

British Ship Returns

The fact that for the moment at least there is peril in these waters was illustrated late in the day by the action of the British steamer Argentino in turning about and tying up again in the harbor here after having sailed.

The Britisher's fight with the raider was placed here by informed persons as some 1,000 miles northeast of Montevideo.

[Associated Press Editor's Note—It was said unofficially in London that it was 700 miles to the northeast, but either area would be within the security belt.]

An interesting phase of the battle was the strong supposition that even as German shells were being pumped at her, the Carnarvon Castle had German prisoners aboard.

Halted Brazilian Ship

On November 30 she halted the Brazilian coastal steamer Itape eighteen miles offshore and removed twenty-two passengers declared by the British to be Germans. It seemed unlikely that there had been opportunity in the meantime for the transfer of the twenty-two.

A similarly inconclusive engagement occurred last July 29 between the 22,209-ton British merchant cruiser Alcantara and a German raider near the Brazilian island of Trinidad. The Alcantara was hit, repaired at Rio de Janeiro and then put out to sea again.

The first and far the most dramatic instance of sea warfare in these waters last December led to the scuttling of the German pocket battleship Admiral Graf Spee.

London's Report

In London the British Admiralty announced today that the Carnarvon Castle had suffered "slight damage" and that the German "Q-boat," a term meaning that she was a raider in disguise, had fled north "at high speed away from the scene of action."

"It is not yet known," said the communique, "what damage was inflicted on the enemy raider."

"Some casualties" aboard the Carnarvon Castle were acknowledged.

". . . the action," the Admiralty commented, "was fought at a long range, the enemy raider, which was a ship of considerable speed, not accepting closer action.

"There was heavy firing on both sides during the engagement and a considerable amount of ammunition was expended as H. M. S. Carnarvon Castle gave chase to the enemy."

Carnarvon Castle Due In Montevideo Monday

MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay, Dec. 6 (AP).—The British merchant cruiser Carnarvon Castle, damaged yesterday in battle with a German raider, was expected to reach this harbor next Monday, apparently seeking repairs.

DEC 7-1940

It was learned authoritatively that the Uruguayan government had granted permission to enter. Informed sources placed the scene of the battle 1,000 miles northeast of Montevideo, within the American neutrality belt.

Naval sources expressed belief that the British ship broke off the engagement when the German raider outdistanced her and that the fact the Carnarvon Castle is putting into port indicated another warship might be taking up the chase.

Buenos Aires Gets Report.

BUENOS AIRES, Dec. 6 (A. P.).—Information reaching informed quarters here on the South Atlantic battle between an armed British merchant cruiser and a German raider indicated today that the engagement occurred within or near the American neutrality zone.

The British ship, the Carnarvon Castle, 20,122 tons, sailed from a position eighteen miles off of Victoria, Brazil, only five days ago. In naval circles here it was said that without a doubt she headed north or south rather than eastward across the Atlantic. She has a cruising speed of fifteen knots.

The Carnarvon Castle halted the Brazilian coastal steamship Itape eighteen miles off shore on November 30 and removed twenty-two persons the British said were Germans. This and other haltings of Brazilian ships have been protested to London.

Other British merchant cruisers known to be in South Atlantic waters recently were the 22,575-ton Queen of Bermuda and the Alcantara, a vessel of 22,209 tons which was damaged in a battle with a German raider off the Brazilian coast July 29.

U. S. Cruiser at Rio.

RIO DE JANEIRO, Dec. 6 (A. P.).—British sources said today that the merchant cruiser Carnarvon Castle had been expected to arrive here four days ago but, one official explained, she had been "ordered to fulfill another task."

Meanwhile the United States cruiser Louisville, which is touring South American ports, arrived here today from Rio Grande do Sul, Brazil.

Officers aboard the American warship said that they had not heard of the battle between the Carnarvon Castle and the German raider before reaching port.

Hull Lacks Any Word.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6 (A. P.).—Secretary Hull said today that the State Department had not yet received any information about a battle between British and German armed ships in the South Atlantic yesterday and that it was not known whether it occurred within the Pan American neutrality belt, which is patroled by American naval vessels.

BY JOHN A. MOROSO III

[By the Associated Press]

New York, Dec. 6—A masquerading German sea raider prowling southern waters, laying hundreds of mines and capturing and sinking enemy merchantmen is a huge rebuilt passenger liner—so large she has been equipped for a three-year voyage.

This was told to the Associated Press today by Capt. Cornelius Arundell, British skipper who was imprisoned on the vessel for sixty-four days after the raider sank his ship, the 5,207-ton Haxby, near Bermuda.

The German marauder leads a chameleon-like existence, carrying elaborate "stage props" to change her appearance from day to day. She is even equipped with a telescopic funnel to further change her superstructure.

Captain Arundell, 49, who came here from England to command an American freighter recently purchased by Britain, was bound by Admiralty secrecy not to identify the raider, but he did give this picture:

"She was a decent size man-of-war, much more than 10,000 tons. If you knew her name you would be surprised. Her skipper is a frigate captain (German rank equivalent to commander in the United States Navy) about forty-two years old.

"She carries six guns, four of them broadside, and other arms, including a huge supply of mines.

"While I was aboard she changed her disguise from a Greek ship to a Brazilian and then a Dutchman. Through special rebuilding and light steel plates she could change her entire superstructure in a short time. A telescopic funnel helped do this.

"Her superstructure was constantly being repainted—in the morning it would be white and before night it would be buff. This gives you an idea of the huge crew she carried."

Capt. Arundell dodged questions on the exact size of the crew, but acknowledged that it comprised more than 300 men.

"She slipped out of Hamburg April 6 while the British Navy was rushing to Norway to fight the German invasion there. My ship was her first victim."

Fired Without Warning

En route from Greenock to Corpus Christi, Tex., last April, the Haxby sighted what appeared to be a Greek ship. A moment later the vessel crossed her bows and began firing without warning.

"They killed sixteen of my men, smashed the lifeboats and set the ship on fire before we abandoned her," the bronzed veteran of Scapa Flow in the last war said.

The twenty-four survivors among the Haxby's crew were taken aboard the raider, which then laid mines off west Africa, met the Nazi tanker Winnetou at sea for refueling and then proceeded to New Zealand, where 230 mines were dropped.

On June 18 the Britons were put aboard a captured Norwegian freighter, the Tropic Sea, which was scuttled seventy days later by her German prize crew when a British submarine accosted her off Bordeaux. The Britons were rescued by the submarine and taken to Gibraltar.

The submarine—the Truant—was unable to accommodate the thirty-three Norwegian and thirty Germans aboard the Tropic Sea and left them in lifeboats with orders to remain where they were until flying boats arrived. Fearing capture, the Germans fled and managed to reach Spain in lifeboats. The Norwegians were rescued the next day.

Back in England, Capt. Arundell—long unheard from—was officially listed as dead and his "widow" had been receiving pension payments from the government for three months, although she had refused to give up hope, or to sign a death certificate.

"She told me later that she used to sit and look at my picture and it would say to her, 'Chin up, I'm all right,'" Capt. Arundell said. He returned home Oct 4, six months after leaving Glasgow.

Many Made Homeless As Waves of Planes Raid Portsmouth

Private Property Suffers Heavy Damage During 3-Hour Nazi Attack

DEC 7-1940

By the Associated Press

PORTSMOUTH, England, Dec. 6.—German bombers sweeping over in waves killed a number of persons and inflicted heavy damage to private property in this south coast naval base last night in a concentrated, three-hour assault.

A large number of persons were made homeless by the bombs which were declared to have been aimed at the civilian population. Rescue workers dug into debris of leveled homes throughout the day in search of possible victims.

Home Secretary Herbert Morrison, here for a speech, inspected the damaged areas and afterward asserted:

"All ranks seem to be animated with the right spirit, which is: 'We are going to stick this business out and the enemy is not going to get us down.'"

Congratulates City.

"I really congratulate the city for the brave spirit with which it has stood up to the attack," the Home Secretary continued.

"Portsmouth is a city of great civic tradition and long associations with the Royal Navy and, as I would expect, it is facing the attack with traditional British grit and courage."

The full extent of casualties was not determined immediately, as workers still were digging into the debris of wrecked homes for possible victims when dawn came. Officials said the number, however, was "fewer than might be expected, considering the severity of the attack."

The raid was declared to have been concentrated on the civilian population. Many of those whose homes were splintered were given temporary shelter in schools and other public buildings.

A tremendous anti-aircraft barrage kept the bombers at great height, but the first waves dropped flares which guided the subsequent formations to their target.

(The German radio, describing the raid, declared Portsmouth to be the main base of Britain's home fleet and an important supply center for warships. It said submarine, torpedo, artillery, navigation, anti-aircraft and signaling schools are located there.)

Casualties were reduced because the people, from experience in previous raids, took cover quickly. Working class dwellings were among the hardest hit.

One bomb fell just outside a movie theater and 50 of the 200 persons inside were trapped in a balcony by collapsing walls, but later were rescued. The operator was killed.

Three bodies were taken from the wreckage this afternoon.

An incendiary bomb burned the interior of a nurses' home. The nurses, after moving patients from the nearby hospital, attacked the flames with hand pumps.

At another hospital nurses saved patients by smothering flames which threatened to reach serious proportions.

The fire bombs started blazes in many areas, but air raid services brought most of them under control. Damage to private property, however, was extensive.

Girl Rescued From Debris.

A 12-year-old girl was rescued from the debris of a cellar of a house where she had been trapped for 14 hours. Her mother and three sisters had been killed.

Air raid precaution workers lauded nurses who formed a bucket brigade and helped control the flames. One nurse climbed through a hole in a roof and played a hose on the flames until smoke compelled her to retreat.

Two members of the medical staff of one hospital were injured in removing an incendiary bomb which had fallen in the operating room.

Famous Observatory And Windsor Castle Nazi Bomb Targets

Time Ball Continues To Function: Globe And Clock Damaged

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Dec. 6.—Greenwich Observatory was damaged in a recent air raid, but the famous time ball continues to function, British sources disclosed today.

The revolving globe, the observatory clock and parts of the telescope room were damaged by high explosive and fire bombs.

It was also disclosed that three bombs fell in the grounds of Windsor Castle, residence of English sovereigns up the Thamas from London, in a recent air raid.

One of the sections damaged in the observatory bombing was built in 1675 from designs by Sir Christopher Wren.

Bones were blasted recently from graves of ancient Scottish Kings and Queens by bombs dropped on Edinburgh's Holyrood House, it was also learned. Windows of the palace were broken by bombs striking close to the ruins of the old chapel.

"The Ring," one of London's famous boxing halls, also was damaged. On Blackfriars road, it was built in 1782 and originally was a chapel.

In the Windsor Castle attack one close to the tennis courts and a third—an oil bomb—fell on the royal household bowling green and quickly burned itself out.

Some damage was done to the royal lodge, but no casualties were reported. Bombs which also fell on Windsor town resulted in little damage, it was said.

Windows and the roof of a nursing home were said to have been badly damaged when a bomb fell in the middle of a street. None of the patients was seriously hurt.

Greenwich Observatory is situated on the prime meridian from which British astrologers and geographers, and to a great extent those of the world, calculate their longitude and from where "Greenwich time" is telegraphed around the globe.

It was founded by King Charles II in 1675 and is under control of the British Admiralty. Its equipment includes numerous priceless astronomical instruments.

The observatory also possesses the famed 24-inch Newtonian reflector with which Lassell discovered the satellites of Uranus and Neptune.

Photographs of the sun are taken on every available day and are stored for reference, forming a continuous sunspot record since 1873. A continuous record of the moon's position since the middle of the 18th century is contained in the Astronomical Observations. Publication started in 1750.

Magnetic and meteorological observations also have been carried on regularly there since 1838.

HOSPITAL HIT, MANY SLAIN IN BRITISH TOWN

London, Dec. 7 (Saturday) (AP).—A hospital and numerous buildings in a southwest town were bombed heavily last night, and an undetermined number of persons were killed.

Every window in the hospital was shattered, but there were no casualties there, as patients and staff had been removed to the basement.

The raid, which toward midnight slackened somewhat, followed the customary pattern: First flares were dropped, next incendiary bombs, and then high explosives.

The Germans put into play their technique of boxing the compass over Britain, centering their fire upon the southwest town (perhaps Southampton or Plymouth.)

Dig for Trapped 13.

Among buildings hit were a church, a motion-picture theatre, a furniture warehouse and several houses. During the attack a rescue party struggled to free 13 persons trapped in a damaged building.

London, too, was under attack, along with areas in the Midlands.

Bombers were reported ranging as far as Wales, shortly after London's wailing sirens heralded their approach at 8 P. M. (2 P. M., New York Time). The first London alarm of the night was over by 9:30 P. M.

Houses Wrecked

Numerous homes were leveled in a raid which the British said was directed at civilian population.

However, the experience-born speed with which residents took cover was said to have reduced casualties below what might have been expected.

Fifty persons trapped in a theater balcony which collapsed when a bomb fell near by were rescued. The operator was killed.

Morrison Views Damage

Herbert Morrison, Home Secretary, inspected the damaged areas on his arrival for a speech in Portsmouth and commended the city for its "brave spirit with which it has stood up to the attack."

London belatedly disclosed hits by enemy raiders on two world-known landmarks, the Greenwich Observatory on the south bank of the Thames, and Windsor Castle grounds, west of London.

The revolving globe, the observatory clock, by which timepieces around the world are set, and parts of the telescope room were damaged by explosive and fire bombs at Greenwich.

Sports Areas Hit

At Windsor a bomb hit the golf course, another fell near the tennis courts and an oil bomb landed and burned itself out on the Royal Bowling Green.

The Air Ministry announced British raids on an electro-chemical factory at Eindhoven, and airports in Rotterdam and Haamstede, all in the Netherlands. Two British planes were reported shot down.

Bad weather forced cancellation of wider bombing operations.

LONDON-U. S. CABLES CUT FOR SIX HOURS

Heavy Nazi Bombing In Southwest Is Blamed For Interrupting Service

Hospital And Other Buildings In One Coastal Town Are Damaged

[By the Associated Press]

New York, Dec. 6—Western Union Cable Company announced its communications with London were restored tonight at 9.30 o'clock after an interruption of six hours and fifteen minutes.

"Trouble" in the vicinity of Bristol, England, in the land line section between the main cable office at Penzance on the southwestern tip of England and London was the reason for interrupted service, the company said.

London dispatches at the time told of a heavy German air raid on an unidentified "southwest", English city.

Western Union said it understood all cable companies were affected similarly.

Service via Western Union stopped about 3.15 P. M., E. S. T., and that of commercial cables about an hour later.

The latter still had not regained cable contact with London late tonight.

Raids in the Netherlands Are Reported by Bri[illegible]h

LONDON, Dec. 6 (AP)—Offensive operations of British flyers yesterday included attacks on an electro-chemical factory at Eindhoven and airports at Rotterdam and Haamstede, all in the Netherlands, and the German submarine base at Lorient, France, the Air Ministry announced today. Two British aircraft were reported lost in patrols.

Because of bad weather bombing operations last night were canceled, a communique said.

(A German report said a single British plane appeared over Germany during the night but dropped no bombs.)

Two Alerts in London.

London had two alerts but raiders here and over the remainder of the island left shortly after midnight, a government communique said.

The attacks never were "on a large scale," it added, but high explosives and incendiaries were dropped on a south coast town.

"The fires which broke out were soon extinguished, but damage was done to a church, houses, shops and other buildings, the communique said.

An air raid warden in the town said the number of casualties was held down because the residents fled to shelters early and remained until the raiders passed.

Some houses were smashed in London, but the government said the attack on the capital was "a light one and bombs were dropped at a few points only." A few casualties, some fatal, were reported.

Bombs also fell in Southeast England and East Anglia.

Raids Believed Muting Rome, Bremen Radio

London Says Italians Quit Sending for 2½ Hours; Holland, France Bombed

LONDON, Dec. 6 (AP).—Reuters (British news agency) announced tonight that the Rome medius wave radio had gone off the air at 9:37 p. m. and the radio at Bremen, Germany, at 6:40 p. m. The Rome wave came back on at midnight, London time, however.

[The chief engineer of the Rome radio denied that there had been an interruption of program.]

[When a wireless station falls silent it usually means that hostile planes are about. Rome has had only a few and minor air alarms since Italy entered the war.]

Britons Healthy Despite War

Typhoid Fever Cases Cut Almost in Half—Scarlet Fever Higher Than in 1939.

BY WILLIAM W. WHITE

LONDON, Dec. 6 (A. P.).—Great Britain's health is better now than at any time during the world war—in some respects even better than in peacetime—despite broken sleep and long hours in cold air raid shelters, Health Ministry officials said today.

DEC 7 - 1940

So far there has been no evidence, it was said, to support the British Medical Journal's dark prophecy months ago that "unless measures are promptly taken . . . we can foresee this winter a state of affairs in respect to infectious diseases which may prove more devastating than the blitzkrieg."

The Health Ministry officials were optimistic that though the worst of the winter lies ahead they could maintain the record.

"We should be further on by then," they said, referring to their precautionary measures.

Ministry figures show that up to October 15 there were only seven deaths in London from infantile paralysis—lower than the peacetime death rate—and only six from typhoid fever.

Typhoid Rate Reduced.

There were 17,871 cases of diphtheria in all major towns up to October 15, as compared with 17,785 in 1939; 614 cases of typhoid and paratyphoid, against 1,181 cases in 1939, and 30,295 cases of scarlet fever, against 22,191 cases in 1939.

Cerebro-spinal fever, which increases in wartime because of concentration of population, is not a major problem because of the excellent results of sulfanilimide treatment, the Ministry declared.

Not a single case of typhoid resulting from bombed water mains has been reported, it continued, thanks to the vigilance of thirty public health laboratories.

There is a seasonal upturn in measles, but infectious diseases, which were expected to take a heavy toll in the crowded shelters, were forestalled by better sanitary facilities, by the creation of 125 medical shelter-posts, in each of which a doctor and a nurse are in constant attendance, and by placing 200 more doctors and 150 nurses on call at all times, the ministry asserted.

Cooties Are Rough-handled.

The liberal use of gargles, disinfectants and gauze masks has cut the toll of infectious diseases, it was said, and even the lowly cootie is getting rough treatment.

Diphtheria inoculations are recommended, but no legislation making them compulsory is planned at present, the authorities said.

Mobile units sent into areas which lack proper facilities are combating venereal diseases. The rate of increase in such diseases is less than it was last year, they added.

Bomb-shock cases were said to be surprisingly few. One shelter reported that out of 1,100 cases received only fifteen had psychological disorders.

Too Busy to Get Sick.

Sir Alan Anderson, a director of the Bank of England, told a meeting of the Hospital Savings Association recently that "apparently the people are too occupied now to be ill."

Since the war began there has been a reduced demand on medical service, he said.

Bunks which have been recommended to keep the people from sleeping too close together in air raid shelters are being installed.

Miss Ellen Wilkinson, Parliamentary Secretary to the Ministry of Home Security, told the House of Commons yesterday that up to November 27 bunks for 109,200 persons had been installed in the London area and that bunks for 99,300 more had been delivered and would be erected soon.

Even the death toll from bombs has shown a decline. There were 5,033 reported killed in London in September and 4,751 in October. Officials estimated that November's figure would show a further decline of 75 per cent.

Doctors here declared that although the danger of disease in shelters was at first over-estimated, the worst months of the year—January, February and March—are yet to come.

Britain Lifts Ban On Coastal Resorts

LONDON, Dec. 6 (A. P.).—An official ban on pleasure trips to English coastal areas, ordered last summer at the height of the invasion scare, was lifted from some sections today.

The restrictions originally barred holiday visitors from the entire east and southeast coasts. The Home Security Ministry's announcement today reduced the restricted areas to a strip about five miles deep in Norfolk, Suffolk and Essex, and all Kent, except its London area, Orpington, Seven Oaks and Tonbridge.

LONDON, Dec. 6 (A. Ireland has maintained her neutrality in the war and has refused use of her ports to the British navy.

VICHY DISCLOSES RIOTING IN PARIS

Reveals Arrest of 123 on Armistice Day.

VICHY, France, Dec. 6 (A. P.).—An official announcement today said 123 persons were arrested in Armistice Day demonstrations in Paris and that four individuals were wounded.

The belated official disclosure of the incidents more than three weeks ago said those arrested included ninety lycee and fourteen university students. The demonstrations were for the most part in the Champs Elysees, Paris's main boulevard.

The official announcement denied that German authorities had tried any students before military tribunals or had sentenced any to capital punishment. Reports to this effect, which it said originated with British broadcasts, were characterized as intended to divide the country.

A private school teacher was arrested in Paris charged with spreading this rumor.

The British Broadcasting Corporation said in a November 28 broadcast that eleven students were killed in Paris, more than 500 sent to German concentration camps and others deported to unoccupied France as a result of Armistice Day rioting.

The next day authorized German sources in Berlin said students of a Paris university had been arrested as a result of hostile demonstrations, but did not say whether they occurred on Armistice Day. They said merely the action had taken place "recently."

Embassy at Paris Protests—Charge of Aiding British Reported Involved.

DEC 7 - 1940

Strong Diplomatic Protests Hinted As Probe Is Balked By Gestapo

[By the Associated Press]

Washington, Dec. 6—Strong diplomatic protests to Germany were indicated tonight as the United States sought to clear up the mystery surrounding the detention of Mrs. Elizabeth Deegan, a clerk in the embassy in Paris, who has been held by German authorities there for a week.

Embassy officials in Paris, seeking to learn the cause and circumstances of her detention, appeared to have failed to penetrate the secrecy of the German Gestapo.

The embassy was said to have protested to German diplomatic officials in Paris as soon as it learned Mrs. Deegan was in custody. According to reports received here, she was detained after German police had invited her to go to a Paris prison to visit British prisoners.

"Comfortably Lodged"

The last report received by the State Department here on the case was sent from Paris Tuesday, at which time the embassy apparently had only indirect word that Mrs. Deegan was "comfortably lodged."

DEC 7 1940

The State Department announced that "appropriate action" was being taken by the Paris embassy.

Mrs. Deegan, a granddaughter of a former United States Senator from North Carolina, Jeter C. Pritchard, had been employed as a reception clerk in the Paris embassy since 1936. She previously had lived several years in Paris.

On the basis of information from Paris, officials here assumed Mrs. Deegan's detention was linked in some way with the cases of the British prisoners whom she was taken to visit.

Call From Gestapo

The State Department, announcing what details it had on the case, said two German civilians, "presumably members of the German secret police," called at Mrs. Deegan's apartment on the morning of December 1 and "invited her to go to the Cherche Midi prison to visit one or more British prisoners."

"This was the second time within a week," the statement continued, "that Mrs. Deegan had been invited by the German authorities to visit acquaintances at the Cherche Midi prison."

Later that day, the State Department said, she returned under escort to her apartment to get warm clothing and that evening one of her friends received a message "from an unspecified source that she was comfortably lodged," that she would be unable to report for work the next day but "would doubtless report for duty on December 3." She failed to report then, however.

Nazis Arrest 123 In Paris After Armistice Display

Four Wounded On Champs Elysees. Ninety Students Among Those Seized

Vichy, France, Dec. 6 (AP)—The French Government disclosed officially tonight that 123 persons had been arrested for Armistice Day demonstrations on the Champs Elysees in Paris.

Four demonstrators were wounded on the Champs Elysees, broad avenue of former French splendor which is dominated by the Arce de Triomphe and the tomb of the Unknown Soldier, but none was killed, the official announcement said. Those arrested included ninety Lycee students and fourteen university undergraduates.

SYNDICAL SYSTEM IN EFFECT IN SPAIN

Franco Plans Organization of Work Militia.

MADRID, Dec. 6 (A. P.).—Generalissimo Francisco Franco put into force today Spain's new syndical structure, declaring that the whole Spanish people now would be organized into a work militia.

Once the syndical system, which organizes the country's life under Government command, has reached peak efficiency, Franco said, economic Spain will be like a gigantic syndicate of producers.

The Spanish chieftain did not go into details of the syndical organization in his brief speech to the Falange council, but he did point out that regional syndical units would pyramid up to national syndicates and that the whole system would be built under guidance of the party and the supreme command of the Government.

The central council of the Falange met here today to promulgate the national syndical law and create a national youth front which will have charge of the physical, political and preliminary military training of boys and young men.

Meanwhile, the Spanish Government today placed sales of gasoline and all other liquid fuels under control of a special board to insure maximum co-ordination and production because of difficulties in importation.

DEC 7-1940

Franco Will Organize All Productive Efforts

Madrid, Dec. 6 (AP)—A new system of political discipline for the Spanish people was inaugurated by Generalissimo Francisco Franco today with a national syndical law decreed to organize the country's productive life.

Under the law, an abstract of which was published tonight, all persons engaged in the nation's productive life would be considered members of the national union of syndicates, a kind of work-militia that would embrace even middlemen and the professions.

The syndical structure will pyramid from a local through a provincial group to a national delegation of syndicates with the syndical junta of the Falange, Spain's only party, as peak authority.

To Keep Managements

Present managements of Spain's enterprises would be retained, with the proviso that they guarantee as syndical representation of their employes.

Each national syndicate is defined as a "legal corporation" which would assume charge of a given product—steel for instance—and any similar products or derivatives from the raw material to the consumer.

Heads of syndicates will be appointed by the Falangist party headquarters from candidates proposed by the syndicates themselves. The Central Syndical Junta will have representatives of agriculture, industry and labor.

Can Impose Quotas

Syndical organizations will have power to impose quotas on production of all enterprises under their jurisdictions.

Franco likewise set into motion the National Youth Front which will train the youth from childhood. The feminine section will take charge of girls from the seventh through their seventeenth years. Boys will enter the front at 7 and progress upward through four grades until they are called for military service at 21.

ADD MADRID--XXX 17

FRANCO ASSERTED THAT HENCEFORTH THE SPANISH PEOPLE WOULD BE ORGANIZED INTO A "WORK MILITIA" AND THAT AFTER THE SYNDICAL SYSTEM REACHED TOP EFFICIENCY, ALL SPAIN WOULD BE A "GIGANTIC SYNDICATE OF PRODUCERS."

THE STUDENT FRONT IS TO COOPERATE CLOSELY WITH THE MILITIA. ACADEMIES WILL BE FOUNDED TO TRAIN INSTRUCTORS.

THE ENTIRE DIPLOMATIC CORPS ATTENDED THE CEREMONIOUS ANNOUNCEMENT OF THE LAWS.

Army Confronts Iron Guard

Shooting Decreed for Opposing Military as Open Clash Is Believed Likely.

MAROS VASARHELY, Hungary, Dec. 6 (A. P.).—The Rumanian Premier, Gen. Ion Antonescu decreed a drumhead court-martial today for Rumanians who "rebel against the army," with quick execution to follow upon conviction, according to reports reaching this border city.

The step, taken as refugees streamed into the city from Rumania with predictions that the army and the Iron Guard were approaching an open clash, was said to have been designed to strengthen the military in the event of such conflict.

The decree, it was reported, provides that judgment should be handed down within twenty-four hours and sentence carried out within ten hours after judgment, without provision for appeal.

The Government also was said to have forbidden any display of flags on automobiles, which would make it impossible for the Iron Guard thus to display its emblem.

The refugees pictured Rumania as a land of continuing anarchy.

Antonescu, they said, was apparently unable to reconcile warring factions of the Guard, which exacted bloody revenge last week for the killing two years ago of their founder, Corneliu Codreanu, and had, therefore, determined to use the army in ruling the nation.

The refugees said there were heavy troop concentrations in strategic Rumanian cities. Bucharest dispatches reported that the army had called a large number of reserves to the colors.

Germany, it was understood here, was backing Antonescu, and reports said that the German Army already stationed in the Rumanian oil fields was to be increased by four new divisions (about 60,000 men).

The fleeing Rumanians said that hundreds of persons had fled by boat for Turkey, in addition to those swarming into Hungary. Among those awaiting permission to enter this country, it was reported, were Juliu Maniu and Alexander Vaida-Voevod, former Premiers and Peasant Party leaders.

Bulgaria closed her Rumanian frontier last night in a move seen here as apparently an effort to stem the tide of fleeing Rumanians and to avoid possible disorders.

A Bucharest dispatch said it was explained there that Bulgaria had decided the entire number of emigres allowed to enter southern Dobruja under the agreement by which that area went to Bulgaria from Rumania had crossed the border.

Threat to Bulgaria Hinted.

Southern Dobruja was ceded to Bulgaria in an Axis-dictated settlement last September.

The Turkish radio at Ankara said last night "that it is indicated" that Germany has promised to return to Rumania some of the territory she recently lost. This was taken as an apparent reference to southern Dobruja.

Japan Blockades Parts Of Hankow and Soochow

By the Associated Press.

SHANGHAI, Dec. 6.—Portions of Hankow and Soochow were blockaded by the Japanese military today following terrorist attacks similar to those which caused partial blockades now in effect in Shanghai and Peiping.

The gates of the French concession in Hankow were shut after five Chinese gunmen seriously wounded Hsieh Dau-tse, political adviser to the Hupeh provincial government, only two hours before Gen. Nobuyuki Abe arrived for a tour of inspection. Gen. Abe is Japanese Ambassador to the Japanese-recognized Chinese regime of Wang Ching-wei set up in Nanking.

In Soochow a gunman killed Peng Chih-chia, counsellor to the Kangsu provincial government. The Japanese immediately put a cordon around a portion of the city.

The blockade in Shanghai has been relaxed considerably, although searching of Chinese continues, but Peiping still is under strict military law. The streets are patrolled by the Japanese military, which proclaimed its intention to stamp out any terrorist plot.

In Shanghai, French police stationed guards at the warehouse of the American Trading Co. in Shanghai's French quarter after hearing reports that the Japanese military intended to "confiscate" 6,000,000 Chinese dollars ($354,000) worth of silver and copper stored there, claiming it to be the property of the Chungking government of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek.

HANOI, French Indo-China, Dec. 6 (A. P.).—Five hundred additional Japanese troops and considerable quantities of artillery landed at the French Indo-China port of Haiphong today, augmenting the large Japanese force already garrisoned in the colony under terms of an agreement with the Vichy Government.

New border skirmishes between Thai (Siamese) and French troops were disclosed by the Government, meanwhile, as reports of new communist outbreaks reached Hanoi.

Eight communists were said to have been killed and thirty arrested after an uprising in the South.

"Give Aid To China, Save War," Author Urges

5 Per Cent. Of Possible Cost To U. S. Would "Finish" Japan, Lin Yutang Asserts

San Francisco, Dec. 6 (AP)—Dr. Lin Yutang, Chinese author, philosopher and educator, said today the United States "instead of spending $5,000,000,000 for the construction of a super navy, can give us just five per cent. of that amount and we'll finish Japan off.

"It's becoming steadily more apparent that aid to China is the cheapest way of defense in the Pacific for the United States — just as aid to Britain is your foremost defense in the Atlantic," he said.

"Japan joined the Rome-Berlin Axis, of course, with the idea of scaring the United States into a 'hands-off' policy—only to learn that your country doesn't scare easily. Just give us airplanes and other war materials and China will be more than able to settle this Japanese threat, once and for all."

MEXICO SAID TO SEEK OLD U. S. DESTROYERS

Exchange of Ships for Use of Naval Facilities Rumored

MEXICO CITY, Dec. 6 (AP)—An authoritative source reported today that negotiations were under way for transfer of several old-type United States destroyers to Mexico in exchange for use of Mexican naval facilities and other concessions.

This source said that while conversations had been in progress for several weeks between the State Department in Washington and the Foreign Office here no agreement had yet been reached.

Between six and twelve destroyers, similar to those that the United States dispatched to Britain in return for naval bases in British Western Hemisphere possessions, probably would be involved in the deal should it go through, it was said.

In exchange for the destroyers, the source declared, Mexico probably would make her naval bases available to the American Fleet for fueling and repair purposes. There was no information concerning other possible concessions.

President Manuel Avila Camacho said last week in his inauguration speech that the Mexican Navy Department representation in the Cabinet and the republic's marine facilities would be expanded so that it might better defend its shores.

War Communiques

Greek

ATHENS, Dec. 6 (AP).—A Greek command communique tonight:

On the (Italian) right wing our troops, having overcome enemy resistance on the River Bistitsa, crossed the river and occupied Aghi Saranda (Porto Edda) and pushed their lines northward.

The retreating enemy has plundered and set afire the town. An Italian destroyer which was bombed from the air is in the harbor half submerged.

On the remainder of the front fighting continued successfully. Among the booty which has fallen into our hands are two guns.

A Greek Ministry of Home Security communique:

Enemy aviation carried out the following raids in the interior today, directed against the civilian population: Zahne, no casualties or damage; Arta, one child, six years old, killed; three wounded; a town in the western Peloponnesus, no casualties or damage.

British

LONDON, Dec. 6 (AP).—An Admiralty communique:

The armed merchant cruiser H. M. S. Carnarvon Castle (Capt. H. N. M. Hardy, D. S. O., R. N.) was in action yesterday with a fast and heavily armed German raider disguised as a merchant ship in the south Atlantic.

Full details are not yet available, but from available reports it is clear that the action was fought at a long range, the enemy raider, which was a ship of considerable speed, not accepting closer action.

There was heavy firing on both sides during the engagement, and a considerable amount of ammunition was expended as H. M. S. Carnarvon Castle gave chase to the enemy.

H. M. S. Carnarvon Castle received slight damage and there were some casualties. The next of kin will be informed as soon as possible.

It is not yet known what damage was inflicted on the enemy raider, and she was last reported to be steaming north at high speed away from the scene of action.

An Air Ministry communique:

Yesterday aircraft of the coastal command carried out a raid on the electro-chemical factory at Eindhoven. The Rotterdam Airport and the Haamstede Airdrome were also attacked.

Other coastal command aircraft bombed the submarine base at Lorient.

Owing to bad weather last night bomber operations were canceled.

Two of our aircraft are missing from routine patrols.

An Air Ministry-Home Security Ministry communique:

There has been very little enemy air activity during the daylight today. A few bombs were dropped in an east coast town, but damage they caused was slight. No one was hurt.

An Air Ministry communique:

It is now confirmed that in the air battle between a formation of R. A. F. fighter aircraft and large numbers of enemy fighters, CR42S and G50S, in southwestern Albania on Dec. 4, eight enemy aircraft were definitely shot down and destroyed, seven others severely damaged and seen to be in difficulties, and several more also damaged.

All our pilots and aircraft returned to their bases.

CAIRO, Egypt, Dec. 6 (AP).—A British general headquarters communique:

In the western desert, no change in the situation.

In the Sudan, in the Gallabat area our fighting patrols attacked and drove off an enemy machine-gun post in position east of Gallabat. The enemy sustained casualties, leaving one dead and a quantity of arms and equipment in our hands. In the Kassala sector our patrols were also active.

On the Kenya front there has also been considerable patrol activity.

German

BERLIN, Dec. 6 (AP).—The German high command communique:

In the south Atlantic, as already reported (in a brief special communique), an engagement took place between British and German auxiliary cruisers, in the course of which the British vessel was heavily damaged.

A U-boat sank four merchantmen totaling 13,300 tons. Of these, two were sunk in a convoy.

In the night to Dec. 5, fighting planes attacked London, Birmingham and Southampton. In all three cities bombing resulted in large and small fires.

In the course of the day German planes restricted their activity to isolated disturbance flights over London and other objectives in south and middle England.

During the night to Dec. 6, London and Portsmouth again were the objectives of German air attacks.

Navy and army long-range batteries effectively shelled an enemy convoy east of Dover.

A British plane flew over western Reich territory during the night to Dec. 6, but dropped no bombs.

Total losses of the enemy yesterday were ten planes, six in air fights. Seven of our own planes are missing.

Italian

ROME, Dec. 6 (AP).—The Italian high command communique:

In Albania the enemy, employing forces drawn from other frontiers, is continuing his pressure, particularly on our left wing.

Our troops have counter-attacked. In the fighting the troops of the Arezzo and Venezia divisions have been above all praise.

Our air force has successfully attacked enemy communication lines and troop concentrations with bombing and machine-gunning actions. All our planes returned.

In North Africa, clashes took place between patrols in the zone south of Sidi Barrani. The enemy was put to flight and abandoned arms and munitions.

The enemy air force dropped several bombs in the Tobruk zone, killing two persons and injuring one, and in the Sollum and Sidi Barrani zones, without casualties or damage.

Radios Of 3 Warships Carrying Presidential Party To Stay Silent

DEC 7 - 1940

New York, Dec. 6 (AP) — President Roosevelt cruised somewhere in the Caribbean tonight, the three ships in his party maintaining radio silence.

Communication apparently was terminated last night shortly after the President departed from Kingston, Jamaica, where he inspected sites for United States naval bases in that British island.

The Navy Department in Washington said the silence probably was ordered to avoid revealing the position of the cruiser Tuscaloosa, on which the President is journeying, and the accompanying destroyers Mayrant and Trippe, although they are in the area covered by the United States neutrality patrol. At the naval communications office here, it was said the silence would continue for an indefinite period.

PHILLIPS DISCUSSES LOANS TO ENGLAND

British Treasury Official Opens Talks With Morgenthau And Aides

DEC 7 - 1940

Under Secretary Presents Balance Sheet Of Great Britain's Resources

By RICHARD TURNER

[By the Associated Press]

Washington, Dec. 6—For an hour and thirteen minutes today, Sir Frederick Phillips, British Under Secretary of the Treasury, was closeted with high American fiscal officials in the first of a series of conferences which may lead to loans to England to help her fight the Nazis.

Telling reporters as he left, however, that the stage of talking directly about loans had not been reached, Phillips summed up the conversation with a statement that he was presenting "a balance sheet on the state of our resources and the cost of supplies in the United States."

Asked About War Debt

A newsman asked if it included any reference to the unpaid British war debt of the World War, and the Briton unperturbably replied in the negative.

The other principal in the discussion was Henry Morgenthau, Jr., Secretary of the Treasury. He and Phillips are old friends, and the latter, arriving at the Treasury unaccompanied, proceeded at once to his office.

Later they were joined by G. H. S. Pinsent, financial attache of the British Embassy, and Daniel Bell, Under Secretary of the Treasury; Merle H. Cochran, director of the stabilization fund, and Harry D. White, director of monetary research.

Meanwhile, informed quarters said that England was considering the establishment here of several plants for assembling pre-fabricated ships, to replace the English merchant marine's war losses.

Mass-Production Basis

As outlined, the idea is to put ship construction on a mass-production basis, with parts manufactured at various points in the country and assembled at the projected plants.

Phillips said that over the week end he would prepare new studies for submission to Morgenthau at a second conference on Monday. His plans called roughly, he said, for a three-week stay on this side of the Atlantic, a week here, a week in New York and a week in Canada.

In response to a question, he said he had received no suggestions that he confer with other Government officials or appear before Congressional committees.

Asks Data For Congress

At the Capitol, legislators interested in learning the exact state of British finances and buying resources here suggested, in informal talks with newsmen several days ago, that Phillips lay his balance sheet before a committee of Congress.

Phillips indicated that there were many questions to be considered in his future discussions with Morgenthau, and said that thus far no matters of policy had been touched upon.

When it was recalled that some here had suggested the sale of British possessions in the Western Hemisphere instead of loans, he said that was outside the scope of his authority, and that he dealt "only in financial matters."

Citrine States Britain's Needs.

KANSAS CITY, Dec. 6 (A. P.).—Sir Walter Citrine, secretary of the British Trades Union Congress, told an audience last night the English are having a hard time of it, but not such as to "make us say in the near future, we've had enough of this war."

Sir Walter said 50,000 of the richest persons in England have a total yearly income of $900,000,000 and that the Government takes $800,000,000 of this in taxes.

"We are trying to help ourselves, before asking help of you."

"The Nazis know," he asserted, "that once the economy of the United States is put o na wartime basis, the days of the Nazi regime are numbered. Therefore, it is a matter of moment to Germany to end the war quickly. The primary need is the realization by the American people of the necessity for speed."

Britain, he said, needs long distance bombers to cripple Italian production.

CREDITS CALLED SECRET WEAPON

Stabilization Fund Deals Are Seen as Safeguards.

DEFENSE AGAINST AGGRESSION

Aimed at Preventing Penetration by Totalitarians.

By IRVING PERLMETER

DEC 7 - 1940

They described the fund thus, to explain why within the last week credits of $50,000,000 each had been advanced to China and Argentina. Additional similar transactions could be expected, they indicated, particularly with Latin American countries.

The value of the fund as a weapon was, in their opinion, ample answer to criticisms such as the one made yesterday by Senator Taft, Republican, of Ohio, charging that these credits were violating the purposes of the fund.

These officials took the view that credits such as those to China and Argentina would not only strengthen American business relations with these countries, but also lessen the chance of economic, if not military, aggression of unfriendly nations.

Legally, the whole transaction is clothed in complicated terms of international finance, and the United States is lending nothing—as far as the stabilization fund is concerned. Technically, the fund is merely selling American dollars to China and to the Argentine for their currency.

Example of Broad Powers.

But the transactions were examples of the broad powers of one of the largest and most secret financial agencies in the world.

The fund was created on January 31, 1934, with $2,000,000,000 of the profit that the Government made by the devaluation of the dollar the same day.

Until recently, its activities were reported to no one but to the Secretary of the Treasury, and the President. Only to overcome congressional opposition against extending the life of the fund last year, did the Tresury agree to make available quarterly balance sheets to show what was in the fund. These reports, however, are carefully based on three-months-old figures so that current operations will not be given away.

If you went to the Treasury to look for the fund, you would find only one big room, fitted with numerous telephones, stock tickers, news tickers, soundproof booths for trans-Atlantic telephoning and a few officials and stenographers. Most of its wealth is in gold at Fort Knox, and its $45,000,000 profit is in a Federal reserve bank.

Before the war, the fund traded in both gold and the currencies of France, Great Britain, Holland, Belgium and Switzerland in an attempt, considered generally successful, to keep the value of the American dollar steady. The war forced suspension of these stabilization operations, leaving the fund inactive until its new uses were found.

Speedup Program Adds Ship Every 12 Days To Navy Fleet

Construction, However, Is Short Of Peak Due To Bottlenecks And Labor Situation

DEC 7 - 1940

[By the Associated Press]

30,24-6281

Washington, Dec. 6—The navy has speeded its construction program to the point where a new ship is joining the fleet every twelve days, it was disclosed today, but navy yards still are short of peak efficiency because of much obsolete equipment and some bottlenecks in work.

These reports of the shipbuilding program came from the National Defense Commission and Rear Admiral S. M. Robinson, chief of the Bureau of Ships, simultaneously with authoritative words in other quarters that costs of construction at naval shore stations and army posts were running sharply in excess of the original estimate of $2,000,000,000.

Competition among contractors for skilled workmen was said to be one reason why costs were exceeding estimates.

Pay Some Double Time

In order to obtain certain types of craftsmen, contractors on some army jobs, informed sources said, have been forced to let the men work on Saturdays and Sundays—at double-time rates—and to take Mondays and Tuesdays off so as to keep within a forty-hour week.

Neither army nor navy officials would discuss the probable extent of the cost increase, but it was learned the navy already is preparing to ask Congress for additional funds because of it. Congressional sources said service officers in charge of the work were "very much disturbed" by the situation generally. These sources said the cost increase might run twenty to twenty-five per cent.

Most Have Cost-Plus Jobs

Officials said avances in wage scales, which were occurring throughout the country, and higher material prices were the chief factors responsible for the climbing costs, but that payment of overtime to expedite the work also figured in the picture.

Most contractors can pass the higher costs on to the army and navy because the contracts were negotiated on a cost-plus-fixed-fee basis.

The general speedup in the navy's $7,700,000,000 ship construction program was discussed in a report from the defense commission which said that various shortcuts were being utilized.

"The forty-month building period for completing cruisers has been cut as much as one-eighth," the report stated, "and submarine construction time has been cut from thirty to twenty-four months. Destroyers under construction are being launched three months ahead of schedules."

As an example of time-saving practices, the commission said a completed Diesel engine was installed in a ship being built at Tampa, Fla., instead of being assembled piecemeal in the ship.

Small Shops Participate

Adoption of such sub-assembly practices, the commission said, permits small machine shops scattered throughout the country to participate in the building program.

Admiral Robinson, in his annual report, said that despite a record expenditure for new equipment in navy yards there was not much progress during the fiscal year ending last June 30 in elimination of obsolete equipment which, he added, "has been a source of reduced efficiency for many years."

The worn equipment had to be retained in use, he explained, to cope with the increase in work which also hampered "elimination of choke points and shift work."

"The actual tool equipment of the navy yards considered in terms of ability to produce work," he said, "now approaches and in some cases exceeds the maximum of any previous date."

NEW PLANE PLANT SITES APPROVED

DEC 7 - 1941

Kansas City And Omaha Chosen—Plans To Use Auto Industry Pushed

Martin Company To Operate Bomber Assembly Line In Nebraska

BY EDWARD BOMAR

[By the Associated Press]

Washington, Dec. 6—A plan to gear the motor-car industry to mass production of bombing planes advanced a step today with the approval of sites for assembly plants at Kansas City, Mo., and Omaha, Neb.

Operated by aircraft companies which will use parts largely fabricated in automobile factories, the two plants together are to have capacity to turn out some 2,400 medium two-motor bombers a year.

Two additional plants also are contemplated elsewhere west of the Mississippi to produce large, four-motor bombers at the rate of 1,200 annually.

Goal For 1942

Under revised plans of the War Department and defense commission, these will supplement the output of conventional aircraft plants which are expanding toward a scheduled production rate of 36,000 military planes of all types by early 1942.

However, probably fifteen months will be required, according to official estimates, to start mass production under the scheme to employ facilities of the motor-car industry.

At the same time it was reported authoritatively that an original plan submitted to automobile manufacturers to produce parts for 12,000 bombers has been scaled down because of limitations which some officials consider insurmountable at this time.

Share For Britain

William S. Knudsen, defense commission production chief, asked automobile manufacturers at Detroit in October to consider producing parts for 12,000 army bombers, and subsequently President Roosevelt announced that Great Britain had been given permission to negotiate in this country for a like number.

Under the revised program, more than three years would be required to produce the 12,000 American bombers alone. Under Mr. Roosevelt's announced intention to share munitions output equally, Britain would receive half of the bomber output.

Other limitations of the plan to employ automobile facilities were disclosed by technical estimates that not more than forty per cent. of parts could be fabricated in motor-car factories.

Cost Of Program

The Kansas City assembly plant is to be operated by the North American Aviation Corporation, of California, and the Omaha plant by the Martin company, of Baltimore. Construction and other details are still under negotiation.

Although sites have not been finally approved for the two additional plants for large bombers, a site at Tulsa, Okla., was reported under consideration for one.

The Kansas City and Omaha plants are expected to cost from $7,500,000 to $10,000,000 each and to employ 10,000 or 12,000 persons each.

As an indication of the magnitude of the scheme, persons involved in the negotiations said the four new Western assembly plants would turn out planes costing approximately $1,000,000,000 a year at present prices, representing nearly half the value of the annual output of the entire automobile industry. The estimates were based on a cost of about $200,000 for a two-motor bomber for combat, and $400,000 for four-motor bombers. These estimates include necessary spare engines.

Comment Is Refused By Martin Officials

Officials of the Glenn L. Martin Company said last night that they were not in a position to comment on the report from Washington that the company would operate at Omaha, Neb., an assembly plant for bombers using parts fabricated by the automobile industry.

DEC 7 - 1941

They pointed out, however, that two buildings are under construction at the Martin plant here to add 400,000 square feet of floor space to the existing 1,200,000 feet and that, under the defense program, another 300,000-foot addition has been approved.

Achievements For War Cited At New York By Aide To Dominion Cabinet

[By the Associated Press]

New York, Dec. 6—Leonard W. Brockington, counselor to the War Committee of the Cabinet of Canada, said today that "of all the men being trained as gunners, observers and pilots (in the Royal Canadian Air Force) seven per cent. are United States citizens."

In his speech, which was delivered from notes, he did not say how many "gunners, observers and pilots" were being trained.

Later he told reporters, anxious to learn the number of Americans in those classifications, that he did not know.

Addresses Insurance Heads

Addressing 300 members of the Association of Life Insurance Presidents in their thirty-fourth annual convention, Brockington said Canada had 36,000 men in the air service under the Commonwealth air-training plan.

He said, later, however, that that figure included all classifications of men—not only gunners, observers and pilots. Revealing that "more than 10,000 Americans" had volunteered for the air corps since May, he said they came "from Texas, Massachusetts and the Far West, and everywhere in your nation."

He did not say how many of the 10,000 had been accepted for service.

"I want to give you," he said, "some idea of the magnitude of Canada's achievements so that you will have some idea of what we are prepared to do if we are called upon to cooperate with you in defense of North America."

Lists 167,000 In Active Army

He listed the Dominion's wartime army accomplishments as follows:

An army of 167,000 men on active duty.

A reserve of 100,000 men.

Completion of training for 30,000 men a month at the present time.

More than 60,000 men already overseas.

Some of the soldiers on active duty, he said, were garrisoned in the West Indies, in Iceland and in part of Newfoundland.

"They are a well-equipped, scientific army," he asserted.

As for the navy, Brockington outlined the progress as:

Peacetime—7,700 men, 15 ships.

Now—13,000 men, 155 ships and soon to have 200 ships.

Has 2 Squadrons In England

"But the greatest contribution Canada will make to winning the war will be in the air," he declared.

The Royal Canadian Air Force, he said, already has two squadrons in England, with seventy-one German airplanes to their credit.

Brockington said $600,000,000 had been spent in Canada for aviation material and flying fields, of which more than fifty out of a proposed one hundred are already built. Of the total expenditure, he said the Dominion had put up $360,000,000.

Brockington said that transport of Canadian-trained airmen abroad was approaching a rate of "tens of thousands a year" and that these "gunners, observers and pilots" were going to Canada from all over the British Empire, as well as from the United States.

400 Join Up In Day

"Since May," he said, "more than 10,000 Americans have volunteered in Canada. The maximum number of volunteers was reached on October 4 when more than 400 offered themselves."

Canada's war costs, he said, reached a rate of $80,000,000 a month in October, with the Dominion "paying for the war as we go."

So far, he said, Canada has spent $548,000,000 and Great Britain $309,000,000 in Canada on munitions and supplies. The Dominion, he said, planned to spend $255,000,000 soon on additions to factories.

Pipe Line To Carry Oil Cargo To Canada

Shipload Of Venezuelan Product To Be Pumped From Pennsylvania

Marcus Hook, Pa., Dec. 6 (AP)—A shipload of oil for Canada's defense industries arrived at Marcus Hook from Venezuela today and will be piped from there to the Canadian border.

DEC 7 - 1941

Heavy ice flows in the North and a shortage of Canadian shipping facilities was given as the reason for the ship dropping its 120,000-barrel cargo there.

The ship, the Orville Harden, 11,191-ton tanker of Panamanian registry docked at the Sun Oil Company refinery. The oil is being pumped through the Susquehanna pipe line and three others, to Fort Huron, Michigan. There it will be reloaded and taken across the St. Clair river to the refinery of the Imperial Oil Company, Ltd., of Canada.

Foreign Investments Here Get Clean Bill of Health.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6 (A. P.).—Direct foreign investments in American industry, the Monopoly Committee was informed today in a report, exerted only a minor influence on production in this country.

DEC 7 - 1941

The report, which dealt with export prices and export cartels, was prepared for the committee by Paul B. Dickens of the Commerce Department. It was based on a survey of foreign industrial holdings here during 1937.

"Cartel members, rather than the cartel organizations themselves," Mr. Dickens wrote, "were the sources of the only part of such control that was found to exist. They did not dominate any strategic industry and did not give rise to any serious problems."

He estimated the total of foreign investments in this country at $7,398,000,000, of which $1,883,000,000 represented direct investments involving 1,172 companies and branches at the end of 1937.

One crew member said there was little meat available in Finland, and that the most recent restrictions were on the use of tobacco and salt.

Predicts First Big Defeat Will Bring Nazi Collapse

BUFFALO, N. Y., Dec. 6 (A. P.).—The morale of Germany is such that it can be sustained only on victories, according to Mme. Genevieve Tabouis, French journalist, who predicts the defeat of Nazi Germany by the early part of 1943.

"With the first great defeat, Germany will collapse, just as it did in the last war," Mme. Tabouis, former foreign editor of L'Oeuvre, Paris, told interviewers here yesterday. She also spoke before the Garret Club of Buffalo.

NAZI RADIO SHOWS HOSTILITY TO U. S.

Princeton Listening Post Records Growing Anxiety.

PRINCETON, Dec. 6 (A. P.).—German radio broadcasts indicate increased anxiety and rising hostility in that country toward the United States because of American aid to Great Britain, the Princeton University listening center reports.

Harold N. Graves Jr., director of the powerful twenty-four-hour-a-day receiving station which listens to and analyzes Nazi broadcasts for the School of Public and International Affairs, writes in an article in the school magazine that Germany is devoting as much air time to propagandizing the United States as to efforts to undermine British morale.

DEC 7-1940

"During November, criticisms of America occurred nine times as frequently as they had eleven months before," the article states. "Of Germany's anxiety about America's possible influence on the outcome of the war, and of the Reich's hostile attitude toward the United States, there can no longer be any doubt."

By a ratio greater than three minutes to one, the German radio "has concentrated on a negative drive: To destroy pro-British rather than create pro-German feeling," Graves says.

"A surface technic is used to paralyze possible American action which is as simple as name-calling, with frayed adjectives already familiar in National Socialist idiom being attached to unfriendly elements.

"An occasional technic was to confuse, most spectacularly in the case of the fifth column, for which the Berlin radio gave four different definitions almost simultaneously. Reserved for great occasions was frightfulness, used before the triple pact and also before Hitler's peace offer of July 19.

"In the fourteenth month of the war, the chief difference between German broadcasts to Britain, an avowed enemy, and those to the United States was one of quantity rather than quality. The same classic arguments and technics had been applied to both audiences; even inequalities in the frequency of use made of such technic was disappearing."

In the War Zone

War May Be Won by Nation With Superior Civilian Stamina

DEC 7-1940

By DEWITT MACKENZIE.

More and more the civilian populations of the principal belligerents are being forced to bear the burden of the European conflict on their bowed backs.

Not only must they endure harsh privations and heartbreaks, but the fear of death and destruction by bombing—one of the most terrible of war's experiences.

So great is the strain imposed on civilian morale that to my mind its cracking in one or more of the warring nations is increasingly possible.

I don't necessarily mean that this will happen in the immediate future. It might come tomorrow or a year from tomorrow. It depends on how much can be endured by ragged nerves.

If and when it does come, however, it will mark the war's end—provided all the allies of either side collapse simultaneously. It seems to me this is the manner in which peace is most likely to arrive—through the inability of some one of the civilian populations to endure more punishment.

This may not mean a revolution. It may be that the people simply will be either unable or unwilling to follow their government further.

Thousands of Casualties.

Thus far the civilians of Britain have suffered far more than those of Germany and Italy. Let none think that the British Isles have been other than a hell during the last six months, as the Nazi bombers have tried to blast them from their moorings.

There have been thousands of civilian casualties; countless homes have been destroyed. And yet only yesterday Parliament rejected by a vote of 341 to 4 a motion by three Leftist members who urged that Britain seek peace immediately. Apparently the Britons still can take it.

With Britain's growing strength, the German people also have had to stand the bombing, along with other hardships. Their trial has been shorter and probably less fierce, but it has been nevertheless hard. Still we have heard no complaints. They are standing by their leadership.

And now the Italian public enters the list as misfortune overtakes them in the Grecian adventure, and the British inaugurate their major offensive against Mussolini. True, Italy previously had been subjected to rigid food rationing. The American Department of Agriculture says that the British blockade has disorganized the Italian economic structure, that there is a shortage of supplies, and that many of the poorer class are suffering from malnutrition—a statement which Italy denies.

Italians Get Bomb Baptism.

However, up to recently, Italy's fine old cities as a whole haven't known the horrors of bombing. The civilian population has endured privation, but little terror and death and destruction. Now for the first time the British are able to reach all Italy from Crete and other Greek air bases, and the bombing is becoming more frequent and widespread.

Thus the stamina of the Italian public is just beginning to be tried by fire. We still have to learn whether there is any truth to enemy claims that the people are sick over the Fascist reverses in Greece and Albania; that they find great hardship in the rationing of already frugal meals; that they never did want the war, and that they have no use for Hitler or Hitlerism.

That's what some sources are alleging. Some even are going further, but I won't repeat that here.

From personal investigation on the ground, I am convinced that the Italian people as a whole do have small use for Hitler and his program. However, I feel equally sure that they have a real affection and regard for Mussolini.

It would be unjust and rash for us to accept unconfirmed reports. We must await the verdict of the Italian people themselves—whether they want to see the war through to the bitter end, or whether they may advise Il Duce that they prefer to follow him in peace rather than in war.

FOR 12 HOURS I WATCHED THIS PATROL SPLASH THROUGH THE ROLLING SEA, COVERING A 25-MILE AREA. IN THE WAKE OF THE SQUADRON CAME LARGE UNITS OF THE BRITISH WARFLEET, OUT FOR TARGET PRACTICE.

WITH THE MINEFIELDS CLEARED, THE SWEEPER HEADED SLOWLY BACK TOWARD ALEXANDRIA.

NEVER WAS AN ARDENT FASCIST. HE JOINED THE PARTY ONLY AFTER HIS STRIKINGLY QUICK CONQUEST OF ETHIOPIA IN 1935-1936. DEC 7-1940
SINCE THE 1914-1918 WAR BADOGLIO HAS BEEN RATED ITALY'S BEST
STRATEGIST AND HIS CIVIC COURAGE EQUALLED HIS MILITARY PROWESS.
WHEN MARSHAL EMILIO DE BONO SLOWED DOWN IN HIS ETHIOPIAN CAMPAIGN, MUSSOLINI SENT FOR BADOGLIO. AT THAT TIME THERE WAS A CURRENT OF ANTI-FASCISM AND SOME DISCONTENT WITH THE WAR. IL DUCE WAS APPLAUDED WIDELY THEN AND LATER FOR HIS WILLINGNESS TO HONOR AND TRUST
BADOGLIO WHOSE REFUSAL TO LABEL HIMSELF A FASCIST HAMPERED THE PARTY MOVEMENT.

BADOGLIO, IT WAS KNOWN, TOOK COMMAND IN ETHIOPIA ONLY WHEN MUSSOLINI GAVE HIM AN ABSOLUTELY FREE HAND, WITH THE KING'S FULL APPROVAL AND WITH THE UNDERSTANDING THAT THE BLACK SHIRT FASCIST
SOLDIERS SHOULD BE PART OF THE REGULAR ARMY WITH NO FAVORITISM
BECAUSE THEY WERE PARTY MEMBERS. AFTER THE ITALIAN VICTORY, BADOGLIO
AND MUSSOLINI KNEW EACH OTHER BETTER, EACH TRUSTED THE OTHER AND THE MARSHAL JOINED THE FASCIST PARTY AS HIS CONTRIBUTION TO ITALIAN HARMONY.

BADOGLIO'S WITHDRAWAL AT THIS CRUCIAL TIME, THEREFORE, APPEARS TO BE A BREAK BETWEEN HIM AND MUSSOLINI, A SIGN OF DISSATISFACTION WITH ITALY'S PART IN THE WAR. IT MAY EVEN MEAN THAT MARSHAL BADOGLIO PULLED OUT BECAUSE HE IS DISCONTENTED AND WISHES TO HAVE NOTHING MORE TO DO WITH THE PRESENT WAR AGAINST HIS OLD ENGLISH ALLIES ON THE SIDE OF GERMANY, AGAINST WHICH HE FOUGHT.

A43

THE IMPORTANCE OF THE MARSHAL'S RESIGNATION PROBABLY IS MUCH MORE PSYCHOLOGICAL THAN MILITARY. THERE ARE OTHER SOLDIERS IN ITALY AND IN EVERY ARMY THERE ARE NEW MEN UNKNOWN TO THE PUBLIC WHO MAY BE BETTER THAN THEIR PREDECESSORS.

IN THE ITALIAN MIND, AS ELSEWHERE, BADOGLIO'S REMOVAL FROM CONTROL HARDLY CAN DO LESS THAN DIMINISH CONFIDENCE. IT IS TRUE THAT ITALIAN CONFIDENCE IN THE ARMY HAS BEEN SHAKEN BY THE GREEK TRIUMPHS, EVEN IF THEY BE BUT TEMPORARY, YET THE ITALIAN HAS AN EXPLANATION FOR THAT.

ITALY DIDN'T EXPECT THE GREEKS TO FIGHT AND THEY DIDN'T EXPECT ENGLAND TO GET INTO ACTION IN GREECE IN ANY BIG WAY. THEY COUNTED ON MERE OCCUPATION OF CERTAIN DISPUTED TERRITORY, WITH ONLY PERFUNCTORY IF ANY RESISTANCE. THEREFORE, THEY BLAME THE GOVERNMENT AND THE ARMY ONLY FOR A MISTAKE IN POLITICAL JUDGMENT AND LAXNESS IN MILITARY PREPARATION.

BADOGLIO'S DISAPPEARANCE AS CHIEF COMMANDER IS SOMETHING ELSE TO PEOPLE WHO KNOW ITALY. TO THEM IT SEEMS AN OPEN BREAK THAT MAKES THEM WONDER IF THE ROOT OF THE TROUBLE IS DEEP AND SERIOUS. MAY BE IT IS AND MAY BE IT ISN'T. IT MAY BE ONLY THE RESIGNATION OF A 69-YEAR-

DEC 7-1940

SOLDIER WHO HAS DONE MORE THAN HIS SHARE OF WORK IN HIS LIFE AND WHO PASSES HIS HAND TO OTHERS WHEN THERE WAS CRITICISM OF THE ARMY'S WORK IN THE WAR WITH GREECE.

DASH MATTER -- FOLLOW ATHENS (PORTO EDDA DESCRIPTIVE)

PORTO EDDA, PLACID LITTLE TOWN OF 2,000, IS THE PRINCIPAL SEA GATEWAY INTO SOUTHERN ALBANIA AND RANKS AMONG THAT COUNTRY'S FIRST FOUR SEAPORTS. KNOWN FOR MORE THAN 2,000 YEARS AS SANTI QUARANTA -- "FORTY SAINTS" -- IT WAS RE-NAMED PORTO EDDA IN HONOR OF PREMIER MUSSOLINI'S DAUGHTER, THE COUNTESS EDDA CIANO, IN JUNE, 1939, AFTER THE ITALIAN OCCUPATION OF ALBANIA.

DEC 7-1940

DURING ITS MORE THAN TWENTY CENTURIES PORTO EDDA WAS AT VARIOUS TIMES A PHOENICIAN SEAPORT, A BYZANTINE OUTPOST, A TURKISH MILITARY GARRISON AND A VENETIAN STRONGHOLD, BUT IT BECAME SIGNIFICANT IN MODERN TIMES ONLY WITH THE OUTBREAK OF THE WORLD WAR. BETWEEN 1915 AND 1918, IT WAS TURNED INTO A NAVAL BASE FOR ITALIAN OPERATIONS AND WAS ONE OF THE GUARD POSTS FROM WHICH ALLIED SHIPS WERE ABLE TO ENFORCE THE BLOCKADE AGAINST AUSTRIA WHEN THAT CENTRAL POWER WAS BOTTLED UP IN THE ADRIATIC.

30.24—6287-B

PORTO EDDA IS LESS THAN 10 MILES NORTHEAST OF THE ISLAND OF CORFU AND IS ABOUT 85 MILES EAST OF THE HEEL OF THE ITALIAN BOOT. WHILE ONLY SMALL VESSELS CAN TIE UP AT ITS WHARVES, THE PORT IS ON A DEEP, PROTECTED BAY WHICH AFFORDS ANCHORAGE TO LARGE SHIPS.

THE OLD NAME OF THE TOWN WAS DERIVED FROM AN ANCIENT BYZANTINE CHURCH IN WHOSE MONASTERY, ACCORDING TO LEGEND, 40 MONKS LIVED.

GREECE TO GET U. S. PLANES AS ROOSEVELT PLEDGES AID

PRESIDENT AND KING EXCHANGE MESSAGES

DEC 8 1940

Chief Executive Says It Is Established Practice of U. S. to Aid Nations Which Are Fighting Aggression.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 7 (A. P.).—President Roosevelt has assured King George II of Greece that his nation can look for assistance—expected to be in the form of planes and other military supplies—from the United States in its war against Italy.

This became known today when the State Department made public an exchange of messages between the heads of the two governments. Replying to a message from King George expressing his country's appreciation for Red Cross help already given by the United States, Mr. Roosevelt said:

"As your Majesty knows, it is the settled policy of the United States Government to extend aid to those governments and peoples who defend themselves against aggression. I assure your Majesty that steps are being taken to extend such aid to Greece which is defending itself so valiantly."

Mr. Roosevelt did not say what form this aid would take, but he did mention that the Red Cross already had sent substantial amounts of funds and supplies for the relief of suffering in Greece.

Later an official of the Greek legation said that the United States had offered his country "any kind of help it wants," including planes. Although he specified only planes in discussing with reporters the type of aid that might be forthcoming, he stressed that Greece had been given an opportunity to purchase whatever available war supplies it might need.

Immediate Deliveries Sought.

In other quarters it was learned that the Greeks were chiefly concerned with buying materials that are immediately available, and were not interested at the moment in placing orders for munitions that might require months to deliver.

It was previously known that officials were studying the question of whether military supplies could be spared without reducing amounts being provided Greece's ally, Great Britain. Sumner Welles, Under-Secretary of State, announced recently that Greece had appealed for aid through the American legation in Athens and the Greek Minister in Washington, asking permission to purchase certain aviation material and munitions in this country.

At that time, Mr. Welles told the Greek Minister, Cimon Diamantopoulos, that the request had been received with the utmost sympathy by the United States, but that it was a question that would have to be determined by other branches of the government.

Text of King's Message.

The message from King George said:

"In this hour in which my country is engaged in a hard and unequal struggle, forced upon it by an enemy whose actions are motivated by cruelty and violence, I am deeply moved by the warm sympathy and the keen interest manifested by the great nation whose destinies you guide.

"The noble American people have often in the past rendered assistance to my country in all critical moments of its history, and the recent organization of the Greek War Relief Association is further proof that Philhellenism continues to inspire Americans of today in their lofty aims.

"Guardians across the seas of the ideals for which throughout the centuries Greeks have lived and died, Americans today are aware that the Greek nation is again fighting for the principles of justice, truth, and liberty, without which life for us is inconceivable.

"I wish to assure you that with the help of the Almighty, we will march forward until our sacred struggle is crowned with success. All moral and material assistance will strengthen the heroic Greek army and will bring it nearer to victory."

Reply By President Roosevelt.

In reply President Roosevelt said:

"I thank your Majesty for your friendly message which comes at a time when all free peoples are deeply impressed by the courage and steadfastness of the Greek nation.

"The American Red Cross has already sent substantial amounts of funds and supplies for the relief of suffering in your country and I am sure that my countrymen will give generously to the new organizations which are being established for the same purpose.

"As your Majesty knows, it is the settled policy of the United States Government to extend aid to those governments and peoples who defend themselves against aggression.

"I assure your Majesty that steps are being taken to extend such aid to Greece which is defending itself so valiantly."

Argirocastro Base Reported Abandoned By Italians

DEC 8 - 1940

Greece's War: New Mass Of Prisoners

[By the Associated Press]

Athens, Dec. 7—Italian forces were reported today to have abandoned Argirocastro, leaving parts of that inland Albanian base in flames. Dispatches from the front said Greek troops, advancing on Argirocastro from several directions, had established contact preparatory to occupation.

Greek forces already hold the road between Porto Edda and Delvino and the road south of Argirocastro, it was said. The high command announced yesterday that Porto Edda, fifteen miles southwest of Argirocastro and the main sea gateway to supply the Italians, had fallen.

3,000 Prisoners Taken

Dispatches from the front said at least 3,000 prisoners were captured yesterday, along with more than 100 howitzers—one of the Italians' principal weapons in the attempt to invade Greece.

Many prisoners, it was said, have been transported to Greek camps in the past four days by plane to facilitate their movement over the mountainous frontier region.

Greek units were reported to be advancing from Porto Edda with a new battle cry—"Tirana by Christmas!" Tirana is the Albanian capital.

Striking With Full Force

Greek troops were reported to be striking with full force at Italians retreating across the last mountain ridges toward the Albanian foothill strongholds of Chimara, Tepeleni and Elbasani.

A Government spokesman declared that Greek advance units were pushing steadily beyond smoldering Porto Edda in fighting contact with the Italian rear guard, which sought to cover the Fascist withdrawal up to the coastal road to Chimara, twenty miles north.

Tepeleni Also Threatened

The Greeks said the Italians from Argirocastro were in full flight toward Tepeleni, fifteen miles north.

Tepeleni, where the road north, like that through Chimara, leads to the important port of Valona, also was reported menaced by a Greek thrust from the east. The Greeks were said to be driving a spearhead toward it from Premet, less than twenty miles east.

A spokesman claimed victories, too, for Greek regiments converging on Elbasani, twenty-five miles from Tirana, along the road from Pogradetz and up the Devol Valley. (The official Turkish radio reported last night that the Greeks had fired oil wells in the Devol Valley.)

The Greeks reported that in addition to large quantities of supplies found undamaged by fires the retreating Italians were said to have started in Porto Edda, vast stores of war equipment and munitions had been discovered hidden underground at Koritza.

'Ground Regained'

[By the Associated Press]

Rome, Dec. 7—Counter-attacks were officially reported today to have regained for the Italians some of the positions from which they were driven by Greeks along the Albanian battle-front.

The high command said the Greeks continued to press strongly against the Italian left flank in the mountains west of Pogradetz, but described their operations in the Argirocastro sector on the other wing as only "local attacks."

The communique made no mention of Greek claims to have captured Porto Edda, southwest of Argiroca

The high command did not sp in what sector the Italians made t counter-attacks. Its communique s only:

"Our counter-attacks have given us possession again of various positions. Alpine battalions, the Second Regiment of Bersaglieri and the Twenty-sixth Artillery of the Army Corps have particularly distinguished themselves."

(Royal Air Force bombers were reported today to have made a new attack on Italian forces at the Albanian port of Valona and to have scored a direct hit on a munition dump. Great clouds of black smoke billowed up from the port after the assault, the Air Ministry declared in London.

(Bombs also were said to have exploded on an Italian motor truck concentration and on military buildings. All the British raiders were said to have returned.)

Despite "decisively unfavorable weather conditions and strong anti-aircraft reaction" Italian planes were said to have attacked Greek troops and communication lines repeatedly, bombing highways and supply columns and machine-gunning troops.

Greeks Claim Fall Of Another Town

Delvino Taken, Athens Says—Troops Close In On Agirocastro, With 'Tirana By Christmas' Their Battle Cry

[By the Associated Press]

Athens, Sunday, Dec. 8—Greek soldiers, shouting the new battle cry, "Tirana by Christmas," have taken Delvino, about ten miles northeast of the newly-captured town of Porto Edda and are closing on the abandoned Italian base at Argirocastro, it was reported early today.

The Greek high command reported the capture of the town and said its soldiers had fought "successful local engagements" against the Italians at various points along the front from the sea to the Yugoslav frontier. Prisoners were taken.

All Italian bases in southern Albania now are behind the Greeks except Argirocastro, and the Greeks are closing in on that.

Italian forces were said to have abandoned the inland base, leaving part of it in flames, and converging Greek vanguards were reported already to have established contact, ready to push in.

Claim 3,000 Italian Prisoners

In preparation for occupying Argirocastro, dispatches from the front said, Greek forces have taken over the road between captured Porto Edda and Delvina and the road south of Argirocastro.

At least 3,000 Italian prisoners were said to have been taken Friday and many were reported being flown back to Greek camps to save time and avoid clogging roads in the mountainous frontier region.

Among materials newly reported captured in the occupation of Porto Edda, one of the main sea gateways for Italian supplies, were one hundred howitzers, a weapon on which the Italians relied heavily in their attempt to invade Greece.

A Government spokesman said tonight that Italian forces were falling back steadily in the southern sector with more men and materials falling into Greek hands.

The line of Italian retreat, he said, is toward Chimara and Tepelini. At Tepelini, fifteen miles north of Porto Edda, the road north, like that through Chimara, leads to the important port of Valona, which also has been reported menaced by a Greek thrust from the east.

Italian Resistance "Stubborn"

"Despite stubborn Italian resistance," he said, "our troops have been able to occupy heights of strategical importance, dislodging the enemy. . . .

"The enemy has displayed considerable efforts to rush reinforcements to his forces but these reinforcements also have been unable to change the situation."

Casualties, mostly women and children, were reported in Italian air raids on the Greek towns of Xanthe and Kyparissia.

The Ministry of Home Security announced bombs were dropped on islands in the Ioman Sea and towns and villages of Epirus it reported "no casualties or damage."

British Blast Italian Troops.

LONDON, Dec. 7 (A. P.).—Royal Air Force bombers were reported today to have made a new attack on Italian forces at the Albanian port of Valona and to have scored a direct hit on a munitions dump.

Great clouds of black smoke billowed up from the port after the assault, the Air Ministry declared.

Bombs also were said to have exploded on an Italian motor truck concentration and on military buildings. All the British raiders were said to have returned.

Greeks Claim Proof Invasion Was Planned By Italy Months Ago

Athens, Dec. 7 (AP).—The Greek Government charged tonight that documents found in the divisional headquarters files of an Italian Alpine division showed that Italy had planned its invasion of Greece for several months.

One document dated October 21 and another October 26 carried instructions as to how the attack should be made, a Government spokesman said.

A document was credited to Gen. Mario Ciroti, of the Third Division of the Alpine troops, and purportedly addressed to officers of the Eighth and Ninth Regiments, told them to use every precaution to see that Greek troops were taken by surprise.

Non-Combatants Exchanged

BELGRADE, Dec. 7 (AP).—Three hundred Italian residents of Greece arrived in Yugoslavia by train today and a somewhat smaller number of Greeks came from Italy, all of them non-combatants whose exchange had been arranged through the Hungarian Legations at Athens and Rome.

Another General Quits

[By the Associated Press]

Rome, Dec. 7—Count Cesare Maria de Vecchi di Val Cismon, one of the original big four of Italian Fascism with Benito Mussolini, resigned his command in the Dodecanese Islands today in the second sensational retirement from Italy's war scene.

Gen. Ettore Bastico, 54-year-old commander of the motorized Army of the Po and veteran of the Fascist Blackshirts, was chosen by Mussolini to replace the 56-year-old count, who had been civil and military governor of the Ægean Islan since November, 1936.

Nothing was published in Rome on the resignation beyond this communique:

"By royal decree, which is to be signed, Brig. Gen Cesare Maria de Vecchi Conte di Val Cismon is giving up at his request the duty of commander of the forces of the Ægean and that of Governor. By royal decree, likewise to be signed, Ettore Bastico, general of the army, for war merits, has be amed Governor of the Dodecanese and commander of those armed forces."

Cavallero To See Keitel

(This resignation followed that yesterday of Marshal Pietro Badoglio, chief of the Italian general staff, who also stepped out with the phrase, "On his own request.").

(The British Broadcasting Company today quoted "neutral sources" in Rome as saying that Gen. Ugo Cavallero, Italy's new chief of staff, soon would confer with Gen. Field Marshal Wilhelm Keitel, chief of the German high command. CBS heard the broadcast in New York.)

Resignation A Surprise

De Vecchi, one of Mussolini's closest lieutenants, has held many posts of trust since, as a member of il Duce's quadrumvir, he helped lead the march on Rome in 1922. Only one other of the quadrumvir—Gen. Emilio de Bono—is still a collaborator of Mussolini. He is inspector-general of the Italian forces overseas. The other two, Italo Balbo and Michele Bianchi, are dead.

De Vecchi's resignation, unlike Badoglio's, came as a surprise in Rome.

(The Dodecanese, lying between Turkey and Greece, are of considerable strategic importance, especially in the Italian conflict with Greece.).

Held Many High Posts

De Vecchi was appointed Governor of the Dodecanese only a month after Mussolini made him Governor of Rome.

He was Governor of Italian Somaliland from 1923 to 1928. In 1929 he was made Ambassador to the Holy See, the first one under the Lateran treaties of that year which ended the fifty-nine-year voluntary "imprisonment" of popes within the Vatican.

He was awarded the Grand Cross of the Order of Pius IX by the Vatican in 1932 and held his ambassadorship until 1934, when he was made minister of education.

Made Count In 1925

Even before the march on Rome he had been president of the Fascist group in Parliament. A permanent member of the Fascist Council he was given the title of Count di Val Cismon in 1925.

His successor, General Bastico, was born in Bologna and won his first commission from the War School in 1906 after serving as a subaltern in the Bersaglieri, the plumed-hatted light infantry.

In the 1912 Italo-Turkish campaign Bastico was a balloon observer. He won a colonelcy and two decorations for valor in the World War. He became a division general in 1932 and went to East Africa three years later as commander of Mussolini's pet division of Black Shirt fighters, known as the "Twenty-third of March."

Bastico was commander of the Blackshirt troops which captured Santander, Spain, for Generalissimo Francisco Franco's forces in the Spanish Civil War.

Warning To Farmers

[By the Associated Press]

Rome, Dec. 7—Imprisonment for a year and confiscation of his crops has been ordered for any Italian farmer who withholds his products from compulsory storage. The provision was adopted in a Cabinet meeting four days ago, but announced only today.

"The basic importance of storage of agricultural products for supply of the armed forces and the civilian population requires this more severe exemplary suppression of any lack of discipline and comprehension of superior national necessities," said an official statement.

(If there has been any lack of farmer collaboration with Italy's efforts to mobilize her resources for war previous dispatches have not indicated it.)

War needs also impelled the Government to order "greatest impetus" in production of war materials, particularly those for war industries, with mines to be worked to capacity.

The announcement said that penalties were provided against mine owners who failed to carry out the speed-up order.

Italians Explain War Now Is One Of Attrition

New York, Dec. 7 (AP)—The Italian radio said today that the Axis had shifted from Blitzkrieg tactics to a war of attrition. The comment, heard by CBS, follows:

"This is not a war which is being fought on one small front. It is not a war which will be decided by local successes. But it is a war which is being fought on two continents over the greatest war front the world has ever seen.

Italian Transport Train Bombed In East Africa

Cairo, Egypt, Dec. 7 (AP)—Today's Royal Air Force communique:

"In the western desert weather conditions were very bad and restricted operations.

"In Italian East Africa, yet another raid was made on Assab and near by on a large motor transport concentration.

"Photographs taken during this raid revealed that the damage done by raids on the twenty-four and twenty-fifth of November was considerable, two dumps being completely destroyed by fire.

"On December 5, Neghelli, Moyale and Mega were raided by aircraft of the South African Air Force. Several direct hits with high explosives were obtained on targets in each of those areas, causing considerable damage.

"On the sixth normal reconnaissances were carried out."

ITALY HOLDS WHIP OVER HER FARMERS

Heavy Penalties Fixed For Withholding Crops From Compulsory Storage

[By the Associated Press]

Rome, Dec. 7—Heavy penalties for Italian farmers withholding their production from compulsory storage and for mine owners failing to speed up operations were disclosed today.

At the same time, the Government's needs impelled it to order "the greatest impetus" in the production of war materials generally.

Prison And Crop Confiscation

The Cabinet's decision to penalize recalcitrant farmers was made December 3, but was made public only today. For any farmer withholding his production from storage it provided imprisonment for a year and the confiscation of his crop.

"The basic importance of the storage of agricultural products for the supply of the armed forces and civilian population requires this more severe exemplary suppression of any lack of discipline and comprehension of the superior national necessities," said the official statement.

Italy To Help Feed Germany

Only last Thursday an agreement by which Italy undertook to help feed Germany was announced here. Italy was to increase her exports of fresh and dried vegetables, fruits, cheeses and wines to meet the needs of a Germany deficient in those products.

Germany also was to get vegetables, seed, forage and live stock for breeding. Promised by the Germans were efforts for a stabilized market and the improvement of Italian agriculture generally.

[Associated Press Editor's Note—Italy's decree regarding farmers recalls a recent report by the United States Department of Agriculture that so effective was the British blockade that the sources of eighty per cent. of Italy's imports already had been cut off. The Italians, said the report, faced the possibility of five or six meatless days a week, and prices already forty per cent. higher than when Britain declared war on Germany.]

Penalties Prescribed

The penalty provided for mine operators not beginning work within prescribed limits, or not developing their properties adequately will be cancellation of their concessions—that is, their right to operate.

The text of the announcement providing penalties for laggard farmers as issued through the official news agency, Stefani, follows:

"At the last meeting of the Cabinet an outline of provisions was approved by which violators of the compulsory storage of agricultural products, besides being punished by confiscation of their products and special penalties provided by the special storage laws, will be punished with arrest up to one year.

"The basic importance of the storage of agricultural products for the supply of the armed forces and civilian population requires this more severe exemplary suppression of any lack of discipline and comprehension of the superior national necessities."

British Hear Cavallero Will Confer With Keitel

New York, Dec. 7 (AP)—The British Broadcasting Corporation attributed to "neutral sources" today a report that Gen. Ugo Cavallero, Marshal Badoglio's successor as Italy's chief of staff, would confer shortly with the chief of the German high command, General Field Marshal Wilhelm Keitel.

This reflected a belief that Cavallero might be of a mind to collaborate utterly with the Nazis.

The dispatch of General Bastico to the Dodecanese recalled that the British have claimed to have put those islandes—vital in the Italian war with Greece—substantially in a sack formed by the British navy.

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

FIRST GENERAL LEAD ITALIAN

ROME, DEC 7--JUST SHORT OF A HALF-YEAR OF ACTIVE PARTICIPATION IN THE EUROPEAN WAR, ITALY HAS ORDERED IMPRISONMENT AND CROP CONFISCATION FOR RECALCITRANT ITALIAN FARMERS AND "GREATEST IMPETUS" IN PRODUCTION OF WAR MATERIALS WHILE MAKING TWO SENSATIONAL CHANGES IN HER HIGH COMMAND.

YESTERDAY CHIEF-OF-STAFF MARSHAL PIETRO BADOGLIO WAS REPLACED BY GENERAL UGO CAVALLERO (AND A BROADCAST TODAY BY THE BRITISH BROADCASTING CORPORATION QUOTED "NEUTRAL SOURCES" AT ROME FOR A REPORT THAT CAVALLERO WOULD CONFER SHORTLY WITH THE CHIEF OF THE GERMAN HIGH COMMAND, GENERAL FIELD MARSHAL WILHELM KEITEL.)

WITH THE FASCIST HIGH COMMAND REPORTING RECAPTURE OF SOME ALBANIAN POSITIONS BY COUNTER-ATTACK AGAINST THE GREEKS (AFTER A SERIES OF DRASTIC REVERSES), ITALIAN POLITICAL CIRCLES DERIVED GREAT SATISFACTION FROM FASCIST DISPATCHES REPORTING A WILLINGNESS BY YUGOSLAVIA TO COOPERATE WITH THE ROME-BERLIN AXIS.

FOREIGN CIRCLES AWAITED SOME SIGN AS TO WHETHER THIS "COOPERATION WOULD GO SO FAR AS TO PERMIT ITALIAN SUPPLIES OR EVEN TROOPS TO CROSS YUGOSLAVIA TO ANOTHER SECTOR OF THE BALKAN WAR FRONT, ALTHOUGH INDICATION OF ANY SUCH POSSIBILITY WAS LACKING IN ITALIAN QUARTERS.

(THE ASSOCIATED PRESS DISPATCH FROM BELGRADE YESTERDAY SAID CVETKOVIC DECLARED YUGOSLAVIA WOULD COOPERATE IN BUILDING A "NEW ORDER" IN EUROPE, BUT THAT "YOU CAN BE SURE SHE NEVER WILL PERMIT TO COME INTO THE QUESTION OUR SECURITY, INDEPENDENCE AND FREEDOM."

(ADDRESSING THE BELGRADE MUNICIPAL DEPUTIES, THE PREMIER SPOKE OF YUGOSLAVIA'S "POLICY OF NEUTRALITY AND FRIENDSHIP WITH HER NEIGHBORS

YUGOSLAVIA'S COOPERATION WITH THE AXIS GENERALLY WAS EXPECTED, HOWEVER, TO BE ECONOMIC AND POLITICAL RATHER THAN MILITARY, ALTHOUGH SOME OTHER COUNTRIES WHICH JOINED THE AXIS--SUCH AS HUNGARY AND RUMANIA--HAVE INVITED TECHNICAL AND MILITARY ASSISTANCE.

(HUNGARY'S FOREIGN MINISTER, COUNT ISTVAN CSAKY, WILL VISIT BELGRADE NEXT WEEK.)

"ITALIANS REGARD WITH GREAT SATISFACTION THE DESIRE EXPRESSED BY CVETKOVIC FOR COOPERATION WITH THE AXIS WITHIN THE FRAMEWORK OF THE NEW EUROPEAN ORDER," CORRESPONDENTS WERE TOLD.

"IT MEANS THAT WORK DEVELOPING IN THE BALKANS IS FULLY UNDERSTOOD AND APPRECIATED BY YUGOSLAVIA .

"IT IS ALL THE MORE IMPORTANT BECAUSE IT WAS COMPLETELY SPONTANEOUS."

(AUTHORIZED SOURCES IN BERLIN, ASKED TODAY WHETHER THERE IS ANY DIPLOMATIC ACTIVITY CENTERING ON BRINGING YUGOSLAVIA INTO THE AXIS, SAID THAT RELATIONS OF SUCH NATURE AND THAT CONSTANT CONTACT IS SELF-EVIDENT.)

THE FASCIST CABINET, MEETING FOUR DAYS AGO UNDER PREMIER MUSSOLINI, DECIDED ON A SPEED-UP IN ITALIAN WAR MATERIAL PRODUCTION AND SPECIFICALLY PROVIDED PENALTIES FOR MINE OWNERS WHO IGNORED THE ORDER. IN THE SAME SESSION THE CABINET ORDERED ONE-YEAR IMPRISONMENT AND CONFISCATION OF CROPS FOR ANY FARMER WITHHOLDING HIS PRODUCTS FROM COMPULSORY STORAGE.

THE DECISIONS WERE MADE KNOWN ONLY TODAY IN AN OFFICIAL ANNOUNCEMENT WHICH SAID, IN PART:

DEC 8 1941

"THE BASIC IMPORTANCE OF STORAGE OF AGRICULTURAL PRODUCTS FOR SUPPLY OF THE ARMED FORCES AND THE CIVILIAN POPULATION REQUIRES THIS MORE SEVERE EXEMPLARY SUPPRESSION OF ANY LACK OF DISCIPLINE AND COMPREHENSION OF SUPERIOR NATIONAL NECESSITIES."

(PREVIOUS DISPATCHES FROM ROME HAVE INDICATED NO "LACK OF DISCIPLINE" OR "COMPREHENSION" AMONG ITALIAN FARMERS, BUT ITALY, WEAKER OF THE TWO AXIS POWERS IN MATERIAL RESOURCES, WAS REPORTED ON NOV. 29 BY THE UNITED STATES DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE TO BE FACING A WINTER SHORTAGE OF SORELY NEEDED FOODSTUFFS AND RAW AGRICULTURAL MATERIALS.

(THE AGRICULTURE DEPARTMENT DECLARED THAT THE BRITISH BLOCKADE OF THE MEDITERRANEAN HAD CUT OFF MORE THAN 80 PER CENT OF ITALY'S IMPORTS.)

GENERAL BASTICO, 64-YEAR-OLD COMMANDER OF THE MOTORIZED ARMY OF THE PO AND VETERAN LEADER OF THE BLACKSHIRT FASCISTI, WAS CHOSEN BY

Bombers Hammer Plane Bases In France

[By the Associated Press]

London, Dec. 7—Britain detached a "powerful force" of bombers from their usual nightly raids on Germany last night to range over occupied France and the Low Countries and blast the airdromes from which the Germans are attacking England, the Air Ministry news service reported today.

At Chateaudun, 226 miles southwest of Chartres in the plain of Orleans and at Melun, only 26 miles southeast of Paris, successful raids were reported. The Chateaudun airdrome was raided several times and explosion and fires were seen on runways and in hangars, the service said.

At Melun "heavy bombs threw masses of debris into the air, and the pilot could clearly see fragments of a building flying in every direction," it was stated.

The attack began yesterday at nightfall and lasted until several hours past midnight, the Ministry said.

The Channel ports of Dunkirk, Calais and Boulogne were also bombed. Two British planes were lost.

Hangars Blasted

Other bombs started fires at Villacoublay, scored direct hits on hangars at Chartres—followed by a "spectacular explosion"—and fired gasoline stores near Lille, the Air Ministry service related.

Many other airdromes in occupied France were bombed and machine-gunned, it was said.

Field Machine-Gunned

At Le Touquet, on the coast, one pilot came down to 500 feet so his gunner could spray the field with accurate fire, it was reported, and at Vitry-en-Artois a low-level attack was carried out.

In the Low Countries, despite clouds and ice, airdromes at Brussels, Rotterdam and Eindhoven were among those attacked.

While the German raiders were subjecting Bristol to another terrific pounding, strong squadrons of heavy bombers fanned far inland from the French coast, the Air Ministry disclosed, and spread into both Belgium and the Netherlands to blast at airdrome after airdrome.

Chartres Hangars Hit

At Melun, twenty-seven miles from Paris, planes dropped explosives which "threw masses of debris into the air and a pilot could clearly see fragments of a building flying in every direction," the Air Ministry news service reported.

Direct hits on hangars at Chartres were followed by a "spectacular fire"; gasoline tanks were blasted near Lille, in northern France, and other inland airports were bombed and machine-gunned, officials said.

One bomber, they said, dived down to 500 feet over the airport at Le Touquet, a former gambling resort, on the Channel coast, "so his gunner could spray the field with accurate fire."

'Straddled With Bombs"

Low-flying bombers also were reported to have attacked other coast airports and "invasion ports."

Flying fields at Brussels and Harskamp, in Belgium, and at Rotterdam and Eindhoven, in Holland, were reported "straddled with bombs."

At Chateaudun, near Chartres on the plain of Orleans, the airport was attacked twice and fires were seen in the wake of the bombs, the Ministry said.

Meanwhile London Has Bombless Night—Germans Lose Two Bombers Today.

LONDON, Dec. 7 (A. P.).—Bristol, one of Great Britain's chief ports and the west coast gateway through which many of her seaborne war supplies have been flowing into the industrial Midlands, bore the brunt of German bombing attacks during the night, the Government announced this afternoon.

It also was disclosed that Manchester University and the College of Technology had been among the buildings hit in northwest England last night.

Today's Raids on Small Scale.

Today R. A. F. fighters shot down two Axis bombers, the Air Ministry anounced, adding:

"Enemy air activity during the daylight today again has been on a very small scale and has been mainly confined to the east and southeast coasts. Bombs were dropped at one place in East Anglia. Only slight damage was done, but a few people sustained minor injuries."

Numerous fires were caused by the Bristol raiders and a hospital and many other buildings were damaged, the communique said, and added that a number of persons were reported killed and injured.

[Cable communications between New York and London via Western Union and Commercial cables alike were interrupted for several hours last night. Western Union reported, when its lines were restored after six hours and fifteen minutes that the break had been caused by "trouble in the vicinity of Bristol, England."]

Bristol Fires Called Serious.

A few bombs also were dropped in the south of England and in south Wales, but for the most part German air activity over the island, it was officially stated, was "not on a heavy scale," and no bombs were reported at all in London.

"Many incendiary bombs were dropped and some serious fires were started" in Bristol, the communique asserted, but all were brought under control quickly, and the raid ended before midnight.

Among the buildings reported hit were a church, a motion picture theater and a furniture warehouse. The hospital reported bombed suffered many broken windows, but there were no casualties because the patients had previously been removed to the basement.

Thirteen persons were trapped in a wrecked building and a rescue party struggled to save them.

Eight persons were killed by a bomb that struck a private shelter in a south coast town last night. Circling over the town in the bright moonlight, the raiders showered incendiary and high explosive bombs over a wide area.

Nazis Report Bristol in Flames.

BERLIN, Dec. 7 (A. P.).—The center of Bristol was left in flames by a night bombing attack which damaged the harbor district of the city, DNB, the German official news agency, reported today.

The agency said that fires also were started in London and that the raid extended throughout the south of England.

Informed spokesmen said that overnight attacks were directed against Southampton, Bournemouth and Brighton.

These persons said that no planes were lost in the raids.

LONDON PASSES 30 HOURS "ALL CLEAR"

City Experiences Longest Period Without Bombing In 3 Month Siege

All Britain Unmolested Except For Minor Activity. 2 Raiders Shot Down

[By the Associated Press]

London, Sunday, Dec. 8—For the first time in the three months in which Germany has attempted to bomb Britain into submission, London has had more than thirty hours of uninterrupted "all clear."

No air alarm has disturbed the city since about 9.30 P. M. (3.30 P. M., E.S.T) Friday. The last long lull in the Nazi air bombardment was from about noon, November 25, to lunch time the next day.

Activity Called Minor

All Britain was unmolested yesterday except for minor air activity.

Some Britons suggested that bad weather on the other side of the Channel kept the Nazis home; others, that the British raids Friday night on Nazi bases also had something to do with it.

Yesterday the aerial fighting was confined principally to the east and southeast coasts, the Air Ministry announced. It said two raiding bombers were shot down.

Bombs In East Anglia

Bombs fell in East Anglia, but it was declared that only "a few people sustained minor injuries."

The Government also reported that in Friday's night's German attacks on Bristol, the important west-coast port through which supplies have been going into the industrial Midlands, many fires were set off, a hospital and many other buildings damaged and an unstated number of persons killed or injured.

7,455 Tons Of Bombs Hit Britain, DNB Says

Berlin, Dec. 7 (AP)—A total of 7,455 tons of German bombs was dropped on British targets during November, DNB said tonight it had learned from an authoritative source.

During the same month, it said, only 475 tons of British bombs fell on German soil.

In the twenty-three principal German raids of the month, DNB declared, 5,585 tons of bombs were dropped by Nazi flyers.

It said 3,521 tons of explosives fell on London, 911 on Birmingham, 629 on Southampton, 610 on Coventry, 196 on Bristol, 129 on Plymouth and 415 on Liverpool. These figures, DNB said, are for explosives and do not include incendiaries.

It added that 272 tons of explosives were dropped on ships and forty-three tons on airports.

LONDON, Dec. 7 (AP)—Peggy Scriven, the Wightman Cup tennis player who was married only nine days ago to Flight Lieutenant F. H. Vivian, was notified today that he was a prisoner of war in Germany.

Shipping Losses Placed At 84,000 Tons A Week

BY DREW MIDDLETON

London, Dec. 7 (AP)—The threat of the German U-boat to the commerce by which Britain lives is sharply defined by the figures compiled by neutral sources which put average weekly British, Allied and neutral shipping losses at 84,000 tons for the last 12 weeks, compared to an average of 43,000 tons a year ago.

The increased submarine activity since the Germans established themselves in the French ports of Lorient, Brest and Cherbourg has jumped the weekly average for the war to 62,000 tons to date.

April, 1917, was the worst month for Britain in the World War. She lost 852,000 tons that month.

At that time the convoy system had not been adopted. Today it is in use.

The reasons for this increase, according to neutral naval sources, are the new German bases plus the operations of bombing and scouting aircraft which operate between 600 and 700 miles west of Ireland.

There is no doubt the British navy, especially the destroyer force, is doing its utmost to combat the threat, but more long-range aircraft and more destroyers appear to be needed by the dozens and scores, not by ones and twos.

Not since November 5 has the Admiralty announced the sinking of a German submarine. Germany's rate of construction of submarines is not known.

Records of Admiralty communiques in the current year indicate that fifteen German submarines have been destroyed. Prime Minister Churchill, in a speech of February 27, 1940, declared half of Germany's submarine strength, namely thirty-five U-boats, had been sunk up to the end of 1939, giving Britain a total bag of fifty sunk since the outbreak of war.

'Stop War' Loses, 14-1, In British By-Election

Churchill Calls Vote Another Sign of 'Fight-On' Spirit

LONDON, Dec. 7 (AP).—W. S. Seamark, thirty-seven-year-old Northampton butcher who campaigned as a "stop-the-war" candidate for Parliament, was defeated today by Gerard Spencer Summers, a Conservative, by a 1,107-to-16,587 vote, or 14 to 1.

Seamark called himself a "Christian pacifist."

Prime Minister Winston Churchill supported Summers, who called his election triumph "Yet another instance of Britain's determination to fight on to victory."

The by-election campaign followed by two days the House of Commons rejection, 341 to 4, of the first formal demand that Britain move to end the fifteen-month-old war by a compromise with Germany. A motion by the three-man Independent Labor party, now the only actual opposition in Parliament, set off the debate in the House Thursday.

2-POINT PLAN TO AID BRITAIN DISCUSSED

English Would Exhaust Resources Here And Then U. S. Would Make Loans

Some Form Of Collateral For Such American Outlays Also Visualized

[By the Associated Press]

Washington, Dec. 7—A two-point plan for financial aid to Great Britain is being discussed, it was learned today, by highly placed Administration aides, some of whom predicted that it would be adopted.

The plan:

1. The British would use their own investments in this country to buy war supplies, as long as the investments lasted.

2. The United States would make a flat promise to grant loans when those British resources were exhausted. (Some officials suggested that such loans might perhaps be backed by certain British collateral.)

Want Future Security

As seen by persons in influential positions, the situation is that the British have enough money to pay for their multi-billion-dollar war purchases here for a year or more, but they want to know where the money is going to come from after that. The British were said to have raised the question of immediate loans in order to pin down future commitments.

The British view was said to be that the promise of future loans was necessary for these reasons: (a) Bolstering the morale of the British people; (b) Better planning of war purchases; (c) Reassurance of American manufacturers who might be hesitant to make large expenditures for factories and tools to fill British orders unless they knew that they were going to be paid.

An indication of the American view that the British ought to spend their own money before getting loans was seen in the conversations between Treasury Secretary Morgenthau and Sir Frederick Phillips, Under Secretary of the British Treasury. They started their talks Friday and will meet again Monday.

"Facts" Under Discussion

Both announced that they were not talking of loans "at this time," but were discussing the "facts" of British resources and purchases.

Although, officials said, it is not ordinarily polite for sovereign governments to ask collateral when lending money to each other, the collateral question is very live in the United States with reference to Great Britain.

In Congress and elsewhere, talk centers on asking the British to put up their gold, securities, West Indian islands or other assets as security for an American loan. In the Far East and Africa, the British also own vast rubber, tin and other strategic material resources which may figure in the loan question.

War Debt Recalled

Certain officials took the view that some type of collateral might be necessary to popularize the loan idea with Americans, who remember that the British still owe more than $5,000,000,000 on unsecured American loans of the World War era.

The collateral idea, they continued, might be combined in some cases with the idea of the British spending their own resources first.

For instance, the British own many important American industries—grey rayon, soap, canning and other companies. It would, apparently, make little difference whether the British were asked to sell these investments outright to get cash, or were lent the cash with the properties as collateral. Total British Empire investments in this country are nearly $5,000,000,000, of which about $2,800,000,000 are United Kingdom investments. However, not all of these are salable or suitable for collateral.

Views Are Divided

The British might be able to raise another $1,000,000,000 on their Latin-American investments, but American opinion is divided on the desirability of this. Some economists, including several in the Government, have said privately that for the sake of post-war readjustment, it might be better to let the British keep their stake in Latin America.

Marriner S. Eccles, chairman of the Federal Reserve Board, advocated recently a loan to the British secured by their future gold production, which is about $800,000,000 a year. Since the British are selling us all the gold they mine anyhow, this appeared to be the least controversial of the proposals.

Questions about the possibility of acquiring some British West Indian islands in consideration of either cash or loans brought some surprising answers in Administration circles. Although the islands might have some strategic value, some officials say they would be financial liabilities. One said the Virgin Islands were an example of how such island purchases cost large sums in relief, public works and defense, while yielding little revenue.

Nazi Radio Announces 35,000-Ton Battleship

Says "Very Large" Picture In Hitler Paper Shows "Details Of Gigantic Turrets"

New York, Dec. 7 (AP)—The German radio said today that a "very large" picture of a new 35,000-ton German battleship appears in Sunday's Volkischer Beobachter, Adolf Hitler's newspaper, on the front page.

"The picture shows details of the gigantic turrets and other superstructure," said the broadcast.

Two battleships of this size, the Tirpitz and Bismarck, were launched early in 1939, but whether they have been in actual service is a mystery. The 1939 "Jane's Fighting Ships," the authoritative British naval work, lists two others, "H" and "I" as building. Each is listed as getting eight 15-inch guns, twelve 5.9-inch guns and four aircraft, with a designed speed of probably thirty knots. Jane's also notes that "H" and "I" have been reported, without confirmation, as possible 40,000-ton ships.

French Prisoners Give Play Of Christ Child In Nazi Camp

Presentation In German Effort To Buoy Spirits Where 45,000 Are Held, 30 Miles From Berlin

BY PRESTON GROVER

[By the Associated Press]

Berlin, Dec. 7—In a congested prison camp in the middle of Nazi Germany French prisoners of war produced a play of the Christ Child today in a pathetic effort to buoy their spirits for the approaching Christmastide.

Strangely enough, they presented the entire play in German, memorized under the direction of a Berlin language master.

The play was part of a demonstration for foreign newspapermen of the German army's attempt to prevent its million and a half war prisoners from developing the dread "barbed-wire" sickness.

30 Miles From Berlin

This term is the German equivalent of the American term "Stir-craziness," which sometimes comes upon prisoners long behind bars.

The Germans say many of their own people were "completely ruined" by their long World War confinement in French prison camps.

The camp was at Luckenwalde, thirty miles from Berlin. It is fenced in by two walls of barbed wire and contains 45,000 French prisoners, most of whom are white.

Performers Applauded

The language master explained that the Christmas play sprang up from language studies offered to all the prisoners to give them something to do to take their minds off their burdensome incarceration.

The French amateur actors threw their best into the play, but it was a heart-breaking effort to bring about a brighter outlook among the hall full of prisoners, fresh from the mud-spattered and rain-soaked streets of the camp.

Nevertheless, the individual performers were applauded generously and there were laughs for a comedian.

Task To Buoy Spirits

German officers were frank to admit it is a terrific task to keep up the spirits of the soldiers, some of whom have been behind the wire for more than a year.

All German camp officers are chosen because they, too, were prisoners during the World War and thus know from first-hand experience many prisoner problems.

For the most part they are trying to find work for their charges because work, the commandant said, "is the best remedy for barbed-wire sickness."

Work In Factories

A thousand men from the camps are employed in factories and on farms in the vicinity and others are given work tending the camp, cooking and handling the mass of mail.

The soldiers are permitted to send cards to their families.

Ersatz has been found by manufacturers in what is called "lineol," composed of ground-up linoleum scrap and plaster of Paris. But apparently "lineol" and the youngsters' ideas on how their soldiers should look, don't click.

War Spirit Dominates

Despite certain restrictions, the war spirit dominates toyland. There still are some metal-made toys to be had—anti-aircraft guns, artillery units on wheels and on trucks, machine guns and ambulances, armored cars and tanks spitting fire as they roll along, commanders' cars which start moving if blown at.

Various types of German airplanes, among them the famous Messerschmitt, Heinkel and Junkers, are in demand. Tiny spring-driven motors propel these airplanes, and machine guns in the wings sputter streams of fire.

These articles, however, are rationed. Only one such piece can be sold to any customer.

Steam and electrically driven locomotives practically have disappeared, and toy railways made of wood have taken their place.

Girls are comparatively better off. Big blond dolls still are to be had. Considering the rationing of all textiles, their dresses must be regarded as of pre-war standard. Miniature kitchens with shining pots and pans, and various dishes of aluminum, are also on sale.

Toys for the little ones, like teddy bears, dogs and elephants, have not suffered by the war, and can be obtained in all qualities and sizes, according to one's purse.

War Hits German Christmas

[By the Associated Press]

Berlin, Dec. 7—Germany's Santa Claus, facing his second war Christmas, won't be able to fill all the requests from German children.

Metal toys especially will be available only in a limited number because of rationing of iron and other metals essential to war economy.

Miniature lead soldiers, for centuries the joy of German boys, will be missing. They have disappeared from stores, as lead is needed for more realistic tasks. In fact, lead soldiers held by families for generations have become victims of Reichsmarshal Hermann Goering's metal collection campaign.

Report Nazis Treat Mrs. Deegan Well

U. S. Aide Hopes for Release Soon; Held in Paris Hotel

WASHINGTON, Dec. 7 (AP).—The State Department announced today that it had received a report from Maynard B. Barnes, American charge d'affaires in Paris, that Mrs. Elizabeth Deegan was being held by German authorities in a small private hotel in Paris.

Mrs. Deegan was well treated and in good health, the charge d'affaires reported. He expressed hope that she would released soon.

The State Department had awaited further information from Paris before deciding whether to lodge a protest with the German government against the detention of Mrs. Deegan, an embassy clerk.

The Germans detained Mrs. Deegan, the Department announced, after two civilians, "presumably members of the German secret police," had called at her apartment and invited her for the second time within a week to visit British prisoners at Cherche Midi Prison.

Reports from Vichy indicated that German authorities suspected her of having helped British officers escape from occupied France.

Berlin, Dec. 7 (AP)—Alexander Diamon, 66, a Hungarian citizen convicted of having for four years made journeys into Germany in the spy service of other, unstated lands, was executed today.

Foreign Scientists Remain In Germany

All-Time Record Of 1,000, Including 1 From U. S., Doing Research

Berlin, Dec. 7 (AP)—Despite the war the number of foreign scientists conducting research work or lecturing in Germany has reached approximately 1,000, an all-time record.

Balkan countries are in the lead with 300 representatives.

China has 48, Japan 20, the United States 14 and Italy 13.

Moving Day In Poland

[By the Associated Press]

Warsaw, Dec. 7—German authorities in Poland are tackling the "minorities problem," perennial political headache of eastern Europe, by pulling out minorities by the roots.

In great migrations, Poles, Germans, Russians and Ukrainians are being unscrambled and brought together in nationality groups in regions sharply defined geographically.

Thus, an exchange of 30,000 Germans who live or lived in the Lublin region in the "Government General" district of German-occupied Poland, for 30,000 Poles who once lived in the Warthe district of western Poland, now is nearing completion.

This exchange is a specific trading of farms between Germans and Poles. They take virtually nothing with them and have been told exactly where they are going—have seen photographs of their new homes, the authorities say, and have been told the condition of buildings and the size of their new farms.

Families Change Places

A Polish farmer along the Warthe river, for instance, leaves six cows, two horses and a furnished six-room house. A German farmer of the Lublin area leaves six cows, two horses and a furnished house of about equal size. These families change places.

There are difficulties, of course, and heartaches. Some Poles of the Warthe district have become almost Germanized. A few Germans of Lublin have almost forgotten the German language. But they are confronted with a "last chance" to retain their nationalities.

It's moving day here in Warsaw day after day. Never in the history of the former Polish capital have so many moving vans been seen on the streets as during this autumn period.

The Poles are moving out of the sections designated as a Jewish ghetto. The Jews who have not hitherto lived within the ghetto are moving there.

Warsaw Transfer

The Germans are getting a residential and business quarter of their own and are moving their possessions there.

In all, 200,000 Warsaw residents are affected.

When the Germans took over, they segregated that section of the city in which the poorer Jews lived. By last spring this section was walled off from the rest of the city. Many Poles, however, continued to live in this district.

In October a new ordinance compelled Aryan Poles to move out and all Jews to move in. This transplantation largely was completed by November 1.

Now the Poles and Germans are trying to get apart, each nationality moving out of the section principally inhabited by the other.

DOG-MEAT SAUSAGE SEIZED FROM DUTCH

Confiscation Leaves People To Face Second Week End With Virtually No Meat

Purchasers Complain Some Of Small Amount Available Is Tainted

[By the Associated Press]

Amsterdam (via Berlin), Dec. 7—Sausages made of dog meat were confiscated by authorities at The Hague today while housewives throughout Holland sought—in most cases vainly—some meat for Sunday dinners.

It was the second week end with meat virtually non-existent. The small quantities available in some places were tainted, some purchasers complained.

No Mutton Or Horse Meat

Mutton and horse meat, available until recently, have disappeared from the markets, since the slaughter of horses and sheep now is forbidden.

Occupation authorities said they were taking energetic measures to relieve the shortage, which they ascribed to the refusal of farmers to sell their cattle.

Breeders now have been ordered to sell part of their stock, milch cows, and must dispose of one-fifth of their present herds by March 1.

To Guard Milk Supply

The measure was pronounced necessary not only to provide meat now, but also to ration fodder so that the milk supply can be assured for next spring.

The meat shortage began to become apparent late last month. Citizens have meat ration cards allowing them 400 grams (about 14 ounces) every ten days. On November 25, the meat allowed under the ration system was not available.

The Texts of the Day's War Communiques

Greek

ATHENS, Sunday, Dec. 8 (AP)—The Greek High Command communiqué follows:

There was successful local fighting at various points along the entire front. We captured a number of prisoners, including some officers. Delvino was taken.

The Ministry of Home Security issued this communiqué:

Enemy aviation carried out raids on Greece on a limited scale. Bombs were dropped on islands in the Ionian Sea and towns and villages of Epirus. No casualties or damage.

Italian

ROME, Dec. 7 (AP)—Today's Italian High Command communiqué:

In Albania the enemy is continuing his pressure on our extreme left wing in a group of mountains west of Pogradec, limiting his activity on the remainder of the front to local attacks in the Argyrokastron zone.

Our counter-attacks have given us possession again of various positions. Alpine battalions of Bolzano, the Second Regiment of Bersaglieri and the Twenty-sixth Artillery Army Corps have particularly distinguished themselves.

Our air force, despite decisively unfavorable weather conditions and strong anti-aircraft reaction, has carired out numerous attacks from a low altitude, bombing and machine-gunning troops, motor vehicles and supply columns, cutting highways and hitting concentration centers. Military objectives at Zante and Arta [in Greece] were violently bombed. An explosion was caused in a munitions dump at Herseg [in Albania].

In East Africa four enemy Wellesley [British] planes machine-gunned Buri, killing one, injuring some. Our fighters, intervening shot down three enemy planes. Other enemy planes bombed a village northeast of Sabderat [in Eritrea], killing and wounding several natives, as well as Geleb, near Callam, where enemy bombs wounded three women and four children, all natives.

At Noghelli [in Ethiopia] an Askari [native soldier] was killed.

British

ATHENS, Dec. 7 (AP)—The British Royal Air Force issued this communiqué today:

In further attacks on Valona [in Albania] yesterday by R. A. F. bomber aircraft a column of black smoke arose from munitions dumps which received a direct hit, and bombs also exploded in a motor transport park and among military buildings.

From all operations all our aircraft returned safely.

LONDON, Dec. 7 (AP)—The Air Ministry issued this communiqué today:

Airdromes in France and the Low Countries, the enemy's bases for night attacks on the British Isles, were successfully attacked by a strong force of R. A. F. bombers from nightfall yesterday until several hours after midnight.

The Channel ports of Dunkerque, Calais and Boulogne were also attacked.

Two of our aircraft are missing from these operations.

A communiqué issued by the Air and Home Security Ministries:

Such enemy air activity as there was last night was not on a heavy scale and was concentrated against a town on the Bristol Channel. The attack was over before midnight.

Many incendiary bombs were dropped and some serious fires were started, but, owing to prompt and efficient action of fire-fighting and other A. R. P. services, these quickly were brought under control. Damage was done to dwellings, houses and buildings and a number of people were killed and others injured.

A few bombs were dropped elsewhere at various points in the southern part of England and South Wales. Some damage was done and there were a few casualties, including some people killed. No bombs were reported from the London area.

Another communiqué issued by the two Ministries:

Enemy air activity during the daylight today again has been on a very small scale and has been mainly confined to the east and southeast coasts. Bombs were dropped at one place in East Anglia. Only slight damage was done but a few people sustained minor injuries.

Two enemy bombers have been shot down by our fighters during the day.

CAIRO, Egypt, Dec. 7 (AP)—Today's Royal Air Force communiqué:

In the Western Desert weather conditions were very bad and restricted operations.

In Italian East Africa yet another raid was made on Assab [in Eritrea] and, near by, on a large motor transport concentration. Photographs taken during this raid revealed that the damage done by raids on Nov. 24 and 25 was considerable, two dumps being completely destroyed by fire.

On Dec. 5 Noghelli [in Ethiopia], Moyale [in Kenya] and Mega [in Ethiopia] were raided by aircraft o the South African Air Force. Several direct hits with high explosives were obtained on targets in each of those areas, causing considerable damage.

On Dec. 6 normal reconnaissances were carried out.

German

BERLIN, Dec. 7 (AP)—Today's German High Command communiqué:

Combat planes on the night of Dec. 6, as previously announced, attacked London and Portsmouth despite bad weather. Numerous hits caused big fires.

The German Air Force in the course of the day carried out reconnaissance and harassing attacks.

Last night fighting planes bombed Bristol and other war-essential objectives on the Channel Coast.

The enemy last night made no attempt to enter Reich territory.

Navy patrol vessels shot down two British torpedo planes. There were no German losses. Of the seven German planes reported missing yesterday two returned later.

RAF Outbombs Germans, Reporter, Back, Declares

BALTIMORE, Dec. 7 (AP).—Warren Irvin, NBC reporter just returned from a year of the European war, estimated tonight that bomb damage had caused a 20 per cent reduction in British industrial output, compared with a 30 per cent drop in Germany.

Stories from England, sent out under comparatively mild censorship, had given Americans a "greatly exaggerated" idea of damage done to Britain, Irvin said in an interview.

"In Germany, the correspondents are confined to what the Germans say about what they have done to England, and nothing of what happens in Germany," said Irvin, whose assignments took him to London, Berlin, Copenhagen, Oslo and the Balkans. His home is in Baltimore.

The R. A. F. was hitting objectives, he said, because German cities were unprotected by balloon barrages, and British pilots could aim from low altitudes. Nazi bambers, on the other hand, "must resort to haphazard bombing from altitudes of from 15,000 to 20,000 feet," Irvin explained.

He said that, on the night of the Munich beer hall explosion, after Adolf Hitler had spoken and left, the Gestapo "rounded up all the glaziers in town" and made them repair blown-out windows before civilians saw the damage.

RELIGIOUS SCHOOLS DECREED BY VICHY

Day of Godless Education Is Declared Ended

VICHY, Dec. 7 (A. P.).—Plans to return religious education to the schools of France were announced today by Jacques Chevalier, secretary general in the ministry of Public Education, who said that "Godless schooling has had its day."

Religious education in French Government-supported schools was abolished in 1923. Its reintroduction was authorized in a decree which said that schools must teach "duty toward ourselves and our kind—family and country—and toward God."

The entire French agricultural structure was reorganized on a corporative basis in a decree signed today by Premier Petain.

Peasants are to be organized by families on a regional basis in Government-guided agricultural corporations.

The decree prohibits farm strikes or lockouts.

Regulations of the corporation are to apply to all persons in each district whose work is connected with farming or rural crafts.

Within the corporative scheme there will be specialized local, regional and national groups for different branches of production to fix prices and regulate relations between production and consumption, with ministerial approval.

Regional chambers of agriculture also will be formed to intensify production by promoting scientific agriculture.

Duplication will be abolished among farm organizations, such as co-operatives and insurance societies, and those permitted to continue will function as part of the corporations.

The Minister of Agriculture was empowered to liquidate any public or private farmers' groups which "hinder or oppose development of the corporative agricultural organization."

FRANCE'S FARMERS TO BE REGIMENTED

Decree Puts Agriculture On Corporative Basis And Outlaws Strikes

All Peasants Will Be Organized In Family, Local And Regional Units

[By the Associated Press]

Vichy, Dec. 7—The farmers of France, hard-handed, independent and traditionally the bulwark of the old republic, are to be regimented.

A decree ordering the reorganization of the entire French agricultural structure on a corporative basis and forbidding strikes and lockouts was signed today by Marshal Henri Philippe Petain, Chief of State.

Under the decree all peasants are to be organized by families on a regional basis in Government-guided agricultural corporations which will be open to all landowners, rural craftsmen and farm laborers.

Local, Regional, National

The corporations will determine all questions relating to working conditions, professional relations and social organizations, besides regulating working and marketing conditions; and will deal also with hygiene, living conditions, women's labor, vocational training of youth and "questions relating to general discipline."

Regional corporations will be formed of local corporations, and these will be under a national corporative council of regional delegates named by the Agriculture Ministry.

To Have Power To "Liquidate"

The Minister of Agriculture will have power to "liquidate' 'any "public or private" farmers' groups which "hinder or oppose development of the corporative agriculture organization."

The head of each family will represent the entire family.

"Regional chambers of agriculture" also will be formed to intensify produticon by promoting scientific farming. Duplication will be abolished among farm organizations such as cooperatives and insurance societies and those permitted to continue functioning will be part of the corporations.

Vichy Council Reveals De Gaulle And Aides Will Lose Their Nationality

Vichy, France, Dec. 7 (AP)—The Council of Ministers of the Vichy Government announced tonight that Gen. Charles de Gaulle, the Free French leader, and several of his supporters will be deprived of French nationality.

Besides de Gaulle, those mentioned were Gen. Georges Catroux, former commander of the Nineteenth Army Corps in Algeria, whom de Gaulle has named as head of the Free French movement for the Red Sea area; Col. Eduard Rene Marie de Larminat, former chief of staff of the French Near Eastern Armies, lately active in equatorial Africa, and General Le Gentihomme, former commander of Allied forces in Somaliland.

De Gaulle was sentenced to death in absentia by a French court, last August.

Vichy Expelling 'Dangerous' 4,000

VICHY, France, Dec. 7 (AP).—Since national police took over the police administration of Vichy almost 4,000 aliens have been deported from Allier Department (Province), in which Vichy is situated, as "dangerous."

Murphy Back in Vichy

VICHY, Dec. 7 (AP).—Preparing for the arrival of Admiral William D. Leahy, newly appointed American Ambassador to France, the American Charge d'Affaires, Robert D. Murphy, returned to his post here last night from the United States after a three-month absence.

Britons Named In Rumania Oil Case

Bucharest, Rumania, Dec. 7 (AP)—Proceedings were started today against directors of the British-controlled Astra-Romano Oil Company, charged with swindling the Rumanian Government of 2,000,000 lei through drilling wells allegedly infringing on state property.

All but one of the directors are Englishmen. They have left Rumania.

The King returned today from his residence near the Black Sea port of Varna, where he was said to have been visited by a Soviet Russian emissary.

It was reported the emissary also told King Boris that Bulgaria should not attack her neighbors.

Cabinet In Long Session

The King is considering his answer to the Russians, it was said. He saw Foreign Minister Ivan Popoff and then met the Cabinet in a long session at which it was presumed the foreign situation in view of Greek developments was discussed.

Meanwhile, Bulgaria Nazis distributed leaflets urging Boris to closer cooperation with Germany and extremist students delivered speeches of a like nature. The first air-raid practice was held here.

Reds In Far East Send Martial Pledge To Stalin

Moscow, Dec. 7 (AP)—From what is designated as "the Far Eastern Front," a Communist party conference of the Red Army has sent to Joseph Stalin a promise that the troops of Soviet Russia will "fight at any minute" and "defeat any enemy."

The pledge was expressed by General Popoff, who commands the First Far Eastern Army, following a meeting of officers, commissars and troops who are members of the party.

Curt Notice To Tokyo

Gen. Gregori M. Stern, commander in chief of the Far Eastern forces spoke to the assemblage.

[Associated Press Editor's Note: This week, the Soviet Government curtly informed Tokyo that its "policy with regard to China," which is one of supplying Chiang Kai-shek with aid against Japan, remains unchanged, despite Japanese action in "recognizing" the puppet government of Wang Ching-wei at Nanking.]

In the Moscow military district, another conference sent another message to Stalin in which it was asserted: "We are ready to answer with a double blow at any minute any blow by the incendiaries of war."

This message listed the 1939 Soviet victories over Japan in Far Eastern border clashes along with Soviet triumphs in Poland and Finland as lines on a "brilliant new page in the history of the armed forces of the country of victorious Socialism."

FRANCO WANTS FRENCH LANDS

He Tells New Envoy of Hope for Colonial Gifts.

EXPECTS REASONABLE REPLY

El Caudillo of Spain Recites Realm's Past Glories.

MADRID, Dec. 7 (A. P.).—Gen. Francisco Franco, receiving Francois Pietri, the new French Ambassador, referred today to Spain's colonial aspirations, and said that Spain was confident that France's good will would be evident in that connection.

This good will, Gen. Franco declared, "undoubtedly will be manifest in a most sincere acknowledgment" of everything which in "Spanish history and natural rights" has been forgotten and denied Spain, with "notorious and serious injustice."

Gen. Franco said: "Spain's past grandeur was not a whim of destiny, but the fruit of an undying spirit.

"You may be sure that the spirit of the Spanish nation has not changed and that we desire now, as a few months ago, that the strictest justice prevail when peace is reborn in this suffering world."

U. S.-Spanish Loan Negotiated.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 7 (A. P.).—Secretary of State Hull said today that diplomatic negotiations were being conducted with the Spanish Government involving the possible extension of credits for foodstuffs. No agreement has been reached.

[The Associated Press reported on November 14 that Spain had requested a loan or credits of $100,000,000 with which to feed and rehabilitate a hungry Spain, but that action on the request was expected to await clarification of Spain's position in the European war.]

In reply to questions based on a report from Lisbon that Alexander Weddell, American Ambassador to Madrid, had presented an offer to provide credits for foodstuffs and raw materials on the understanding that Spain would stay out of the war, Mr. Hull confined himself to the statement that discussions were going on.

The Lisbon report said that the United States was expected to provide credits for purchases of wheat, frozen meat, gasoline, cotton and rubber in this country in amounts between $100,000,000 and $250,000,000 on the understanding that none of the goods would be trans-shipped to Germany.

The report added that while Ambassador Weddell had not been able to obtain a public declaration that Spain would not enter the war, a compromise had been reached by which Spain would send notes to the United States and Great Britain saying that it was not foreseen that Spain would join the conflict.

Francois Pietri, and said he was confident of France's "good will"—a good will to be made manifest in "a most sincere acknowledgment" of the "notorious and serious injustice" done Spain in the past.

MOSCOW, DEC 7-(AP)-COMMUNIST PARTY CONFERENCES OF THE RED ARMY HAVE PLEDGED TO JOSEPH STALIN A READINESS TO "FIGHT AT ANY MINUTE" TO "DEFEAT ANY ENEMY," IT WAS DISCLOSED TODAY.

Stalin's Lieutenant

[By the Associated Press]

Moscow, Dec. 7—The star of Lazar M. Kaganovich, Russia's greatest organizer and trouble-shooter No. 1, is rising once more as the Soviet Union is taking advantage of her neutrality to build up her war potential.

Until the purge of 1936-38, Kaganovich was second to Joseph Stalin alone in popularity and influence, but the period of wholesale arrests brought new men to the foreground.

Actually he never lost his share in determining Russia's courses—the privilege of the eleven members of the all-powerful Political Bureau of the Communist party, headed by Stalin.

It is popularly believed among the Russians that Kaganovich shares with Andrei Zhdanoff the distinction of pinch-hitting for Stalin when he goes on vacation.

Vice-Premier In 1938

Appointed Vice-Premier of the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics in August, 1938, Kaganovich retained his post as Commissar for Railways, a job he has held since 1935, with a brief interruption in 1937.

Kaganovich then was relieved of his duties as Commissar for Railways in order to head the Commissariat for Heavy Industry. But his successor soon made such a mess of Russia's transport that Kaganovich had to be recalled to undo the damage.

In the spring of 1938, he again was charged with the task of insuring timely delivery of raw materials to industrial plants and distribution of finished products to Russia's innumerable cities and villages.

As Commissar for Railways, Kaganovich also has been in charge of transporting troops, ammunition and provisions to the new, extended frontiers of the Soviet Union.

Had Special Task

A special task with which Kaganovich is entrusted is delivery to Germany of supplies of raw material under the terms of the Soviet-German trade agreement.

That this is no mean task can be gauged from the fact that the terms are generally believed to have called upon the Russians to provide the Third Reich during the first year of the agreement's operation with 1,000,000 tons of oil, an equal amount of barley, 100,000 tons of raw cotton, probably as much grain, some 50,000 tons of manganese, and smaller quantities of iron ore, phosphate and other raw materials.

Most of these supplies have to be transported by rail over the ten railway lines linking Russia and Germany in what formerly was Polish territory.

Unofficial reports have it that Moscow has not fulfilled some of its obligations under the agreement. The explanations given, however, do not attribute this failure to Kaganovich's inability to transport the goods, but rather to other reasons of a political nature.

Administrative Leader

Kaganovich's rise to power as an outstanding industrial executive in 1935 ended all talk of his being slated to succeed eventually to Stalin's place as the Communist party chief, putting him rather in the ranks of strictly administrative leaders like Premier Vyacheslaff Molotoff.

Kaganovich launched his career, however, as a Communist party functionary. At various times between 1920 and 1935, he headed party organizations in Central Asia, the Ukraine and Moscow province.

Kaganovich directed the building of the first subway in Moscow, and he alone of all the Soviet leaders proved able to cope with the problem of railways—for centuries the weakest link in Russian economy.

Kaganovich was born November 22, 1893, son of a poor Jewish leather worker in the Ukraine. At the age of fourteen, Lazar began work as a shoemaker, and later became a saddler.

Kaganovich joined the Bolsheviks as a youth of 18. He was arrested and exiled in 1915, but escaped and continued underground work in various Ukranian cities.

DEC 8 1941

Follower Of Lenin

A follower of Lenin, Kaganovich was arrested by the Kerensky government after the Menshevik revolution in February, 1917. He escaped to White Russia, where he was active in the Bolshevik revolution in October of the same year.

He became a figure of national importance after receiving the job of secretary-general of the Communist party of the Ukraine in 1925. He held this post for three crucial years in the history of Soviet Russia, as this was the period of the sharpest, decisive clashes between Leon Trotsky and Stalin.

After Trotsky's banishment, Kaganovich became the most important Jew in his country. He was appointed third secretary-general of the Communist party, a key post which he has held ever since. Two years later, he was transferred to Moscow, as head of the capital's party organization.

Tall and handsome, Kaganovich is one of the most attractive among Soviet Russia's leading personalities. Even among the hard-working Soviet leaders he is considered a "human dynamo," capable of showing not a trace of fatigue after fifteen or sixteen hours of incessant work.

THAI GUNNERS ATTACK TWO INDO-CHINA CITIES

Drastic Japanese Demands on French Colony Are Reported

HANOI, French Indo-China, Dec. 7 (AP)—The government said today that two Indo-China border cities were machine-gunned by Thai (Siamese) forces yesterday.

A low-flying Thai plane sprayed the waterfront of Vientiane, important border city, with machine-gun bullets, and Poipet was fired upon from across the Mekong River, the government said. It added that no casualties were reported and the French did not retaliate.

It said "ma[illegible] hundreds" of Communists had been arrested in a drive against subversive element in Indo-China.

CHUNGKING, China, Dec. 7 (AP)—A dispatch from Kunming to the Chungking newspaper Ta Kung Pao said today the Japanese were reported to have made new major demands to the government of French Indo-China.

The dispatch declared it was learned authoritatively that these demands included immediate Japanese representation in all departments of the Indo-China Government and a voice for the Japanese Army in the Indo-China police system.

The Colonial Government was reported to have forwarded the demands to the French Government at Vichy.

General Shih Executed; Ex-Chinese Governor

Chungking, China, Dec. 7 (AP)—Gen. Shih Yu-Shan, 48, Chungking-appointed Governor of Chahar Province, now occupied by the Japanese, was executed last Wednesday after a court martial, it was reported tonight.

General Shih, who once led a revolting division in China but who later became aligned with Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek and led an irregular army against the Japanese, was charged with conniving with Wang Ching-Wei, head of the Japanese-recognized regime in China.

He was the second outstanding Chinese war lord and provincial Governor executed since the Japanese war began. The first was Gen. Han Fu-Chu, Governor of Shantung Province, who was executed in 1938 for dereliction of duty.

"Secret Anglo-Chinese" Pact Reported Brewing

Shanghai, Dec. 7 (AP)—Japanese local press reports said today that negotiations are pending in Chungking for a "secret Anglo-Chinese military alliance."

According to these reports, the provisions of the alliance are:

Britain will assist China in transporting war material and other goods from India, Burma and Singapore to China.

Aircraft assembly plants will be established in India, Burma and Singapore to supply Chungking with aircraft.

Chinese South Seas natives in British possessions will be induced to support Anglo-Chinese cooperation.

All land and air forces under Chiang's command will be under the command of Sir Robert Brooke-Popham, commander in chief of the British Far Eastern forces at Singapore, in the event Britain declares war against Japan.

The papers credited "reliable Chinese sources" for their information, and said the negotiations were between Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek and Sir Archibald J. K. Clark Kerr, the British Ambassador to China.

Warship Nears Port

[By the Associated Press]

Montevideo, Urguay, Dec. 7—The British armed merchant cruiser Carnarvon Castle, damaged in battle two days ago with a German surface raider, was reported sighted this afternoon, making toward the entrance of Montevideo Harbor at moderate speed and apparently without difficulty.

Welders had been called to the docks by the British consulate to make hurried repairs to the 20,122-ton vessel whose battle with a German auxiliary cruiser within the American neutrality zone ended, according to the London Admiralty, with flight of the German.

British Legation officials would say only they had directed a hospital ship to stand by as a precautionary step, adding:

"When a heavy shell hits a ship like the Carnarvon Castle, which is unarmored, someone is almost certain to get hurt."

CARNARVON CASTLE IS IN WITH SCARS

British Ship at Montevideo After Naval Battle.

MONTEVIDEO, Dec. 7 (A. P.).—The British armed merchant cruiser Carnarvon Castle, damaged two days ago in a sea fight with a German raider, slid past the breakwater into Montevideo harbor late today, showing four shell impacts starboard and others on her only smokestack.

Ashore crowds of several thousand set up cries of "Viva!"

The ship moved into deep harbor moorings.

Among the watchers were members of a Uruguayan naval commission designated to examine the 20,122-ton liner to decide the time to be allowed her in port, under Uruguayan neutrality laws, to be made seaworthy.

BY HAROLD MILKS

[By the Associated Press]

Montevideo, Uruguay, Sunday, Dec. 8—With at least two British warships reported searching the Atlantic for a German raider, the British Government early today asked Uruguay to grant permission for the auxiliary cruiser Carnarvon Castle to remain in Montivideo harbor 72 hours to repair damages inflicted by the elusive Nazi ship.

It was expected the Uruguayan Government would approve the request, following the recommendations of a commission named to examine the 20,122-ton vessel.

and her captain, H. M. R. Hardy, declared his opponent "ran away so badly damaged that she will undoubtedly be caught and destroyed."

He declined, however, to disclose how many of his own sailors had been killed by the German shells. Other details of the hour-and-a-half battle Thursday likewise remained hidden behind "Admiralty silence."

72 Hours Needed For Repairs

However, unofficial estimates of casualties ranged as high as seven dead and twenty-two injured.

It was learned authoritatively that a Uruguayan naval commission reported after a survey that the ship would require at least seventy-two hours to repair damages. She was said to have two hits at the water line, four

The liner showed a strong list to port as she entered harbor but an official explained she was listed purposely to keep the sea out of a starboard hit near the waterline.

Naval experts who viewed the vessel from the dock said it appeared at least one enemy shell exploded inside her.

British Skipper's Statement

Captain Hardy issued this statement:

"The engagement lasted one hour and a half. It began with a high-speed chase after which the enemy continually tried to end the action and finally disappeared after making a smoke screen.

"The damages suffered by the Carnarvon Castle, while of a somewhat spectacular nature, are rather superficial and easy to repair. The German ship undoubtedly suffered much more anchored in mid-harbor with the German swastika flying from her stern.

Sailors on the Tacoma gathered at the rail to watch the Carnarvon Castle

A half-dozen ambulances waited at the dock to transfer wounded men to hospitals, but the captain said the ship's doctors had been able to care adequately for them.

Uruguayan police made several arrests when more enthusiastic members of a crowd of several thousands attempted to pass police lines and reach the ship.

The crowd greeted the ship with cries of "viva."

Mechanics immediately boarded the cruiser and truckloads of foodstuffs were ready, indicating she would resume patrol duties after repairs are made.

While the Tuscaloosa and the destroyers Trippe and Mayrant lay hove to at 10 A. M., the mail was transferred in a whale boat.

The rudder of one plane was damaged slightly during the operation, performed in a choppy sea.

The rudder was repaired in lee of shore, however, and the Tuscaloosa and her escorts stood by until both planes took off on their return flight to San Juan, P. R.

The contact with the planes was made after an all-night run from Jamaica. Despite the somewhat rough sea, the weather continued sunny and warm.

TWO WARSHIPS SEEK CRIPPLED GERMAN VESSEL

Carnarvon Castle Captain Reports Direct Hits On Enemy Craft

English Cruiser, In Turn, Damaged In Fight Within Neutrality Zone

The British cruiser Enterprise, 7,580 tons, and another warship in the vicinity of the battle Thursday between the Carnarvon Castle and the German raider were said to have taken up the chase immediately.

Fire On Raider Reported

Some reports said the German ship was afire astern when she fled the battle.

British officials asserted the action was fought well within the neutrality belt set up by American republics, with the Germans as the aggressors.

One official said the British auxiliary cruiser, acting in accord with international law, challenged a "suspicious vessel" which failed to halt. Then, the official said, the British fired a shot across the vessel's bow.

Germans Open Fire

The other vessel, it was said, then turned and fired broadside and hoisted the German war ensign.

Hit by nearly a dozen shells from the raider, the Carnarvon Castle put into Montevideo harbor late yesterday near the water line and another directly on the exhaust line, which was out of commission.

The bulky merchant cruiser put into Montevideo harbor a week less than a year after the German raider Admiral Graf Spee arrived.

Dozen Hits To Starboard

The Graf Spee was blown up by her own commander in the harbor rather than engage British warships waiting for her to leave this refuge.

The starboard side of the Carnarvon Castle showed a dozen hits. Some of these were on her broadside. One struck the starboard part of her superstructure, forward, blowing out that portion of the ship, cutting her antimine belt, and setting a fire which spread over two decks before it was extinguished.

Seized Nazis Transferred

It was disclosed that twenty-two German seamen the Carnarvon Castle removed from the Brazilian coastal ship Itape, November 30, were transferred to another British vessel "almost immediately" and were not aboard at the time of the battle.

damage and the chances are it will be caught and destroyed very soon.

Plates Already Assembled

"The behavior of our crew was in accord with the best traditions of the British navy."

The captain would not say how long it would take for repairs. Uruguay has assigned a naval commission to inspect the damage suffered in the noon engagement with the German raider 700 miles northeast of Montevideo, and report to the Government on the time necessary to make her seaworthy.

Steel plates already have been assembled to patch the vessel.

Hoover Heads Group Seeking Food For Conquered Nations

"25 Outstanding Women" Say, However, European Relief Would Endanger America's Security

[By the Associated Press]

New York, Dec. 7—A "National Committee on Food for the Five Small Democracies" with former President Herbert Hoover as honorary chairman was formed today in order to "save millions" from the "inevitable famine and pestilence which confront them."

Coincidentally, opposition to the "Hoover plan for feeding conquered populations in Europe" came from "twenty-five outstanding women," who said in a statement that America's own national security would be endangered by any action making easier "Hitler's task in holding the small conquered nations in subjection."

Among those listed as signers were Helen Hayes, actress; Margaret Culkin Banning, author; Marion Edwards Park, president of Bryn Mawr College; Mrs. Sherwood Anderson, wife of the author; Alice Duer Miller, author, and C. Mildred Thompson, dean of Vassar College.

Listed as members of the national food committee were former Vice-President Charles G. Dawes and several Cabinet members in the Hoover administration; Gen. John J. Pershing, Col. Theodore Roosevelt, former Governor General of the Philippines; Hendrik Willem Van Loon, author; Alice Roosevelt Longworth, thirty-seven educational leaders and twenty-nine theologians.

The national food committee said that before the next harvest there would be in Finland, Norway, Holland, Belgium and central Poland "a tragic problem of the loss of lives of millions of children, of women and of men, and the aftermath of a stunted and diseased generation."

To Act As Clearing House

The committee said its purpose was to act as a clearing house for expression through which the German British governments could agree a neutral organization in a whereby domestic food supplies of five countries "can be protected fr

"the occupying armies" and supplemental supplies "can be imported through the German and British blockades and protected."

The opposing group of women asserted that "the sooner Great Britain is victorious, the sooner will these small nations be freed from their miseries."

Debate Is Held

"If at any time the British Government should find it possible in the successful prosecution of the war to permit limited supplies of medicine and milk for children to pass through the blockade," their statement said, "we will urge the United States Government to cooperate, but we oppose the application of any pressure whatsoever upon the British people or their Government which will jeopardize the outcome of the struggle."

Meanwhile, the Foreign Policy Association heard a debate on the question: "Does Europe Face Famine?"

Robert Sherwood, playwright, assailed any food plan which would require Britain to relax her blockade, asserting that its resultant effect upon ill-fed peoples was no worse "than the wholesale bombing of civilians."

Clarence E. Pickett, executive secretary of the American Friends Service Committee (Quaker), replied that the blockade was a "two-edged sword" with which Britain would "cut her own throat" of there resulted "starvation and disease" which "honors no frontier."

SUPER-PROTECTION IS AIM

Stark Says Program Will Put Our Fighting Craft 'Ahead of Requirements'

By The Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 7—The Navy, as a result of lessons learned from the European war, seeks to spend about $300,000,000 for major improvements in the anti-aircraft defenses of its fighting ships.

Secretary Knox sent a letter to the House Naval Committee asking authorization of the funds. He declared that details of the plans were confidential.

Admiral Harold R. Stark, Chief of Naval Operations, emphasized in a statement that the present aircraft defenses of the fleet were good, adding:

"The whole program is designed to have our ships not only abreast of requirements but ahead of them."

The Navy Department estimated that from five to six years would be required to complete the proposed alterations on ships already with the fleet. Presumably, the improvements would be included in ships under construction.

"Information on developments in the European war, augmented by experience obtained during our own fleet manoeuvres," Secretary Knox wrote, "has conclusively indicated the necessity of improving the means by which our combatant vessels may oppose aircraft attacks and the entire question has been under study in the Navy Department for some time."

Edison Urged Action

Disclosure that the Navy intended to strengthen its surface ships against air attack first was made by former Secretary Edison soon after the German invasion of Norway. He said then that the operations of the British Navy in restricted waters, close to land bases of enemy aircraft, demonstrated that American surface ships would have to have greater protection for personnel on the vessel's "top sides"—particularly for the crews of anti-aircraft batteries.

In that connection, he asserted that one of the steps to be taken in designing new warships would be to hold to a minimum projecting surfaces liable to splinter if struck by a bomb. The splinter fragments become deadly missiles.

Although Secretary Knox withheld details of the proposed alterations, expressing a desire to present them to Congress when hearings start on the necessary legislation, informed quarters said that changes suggested in early discussions of the problem had included doubling the number of guns in each ship's anti-aircraft batteries and provision for greatly increased stores of ammunition for them.

Legislation to authorize the project is necessary because existing law limits to $450,000 the amount that can be spent for alteration and repair on any individual vessel during an eighteen-month period.

Said To Have Put His Queries In Flat Form

[By the Associated Press]

Washington, Dec. 7—A series of blunt questions put by Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau, Jr., set Sir Frederick Phillips, Under Secretary of the British Treasury, to work at the British Embassy today on a detailed accounting of his country's assets for waging war with Germany.

On the answers, which Phillips is expected to deliver on Monday, may depend the form and timing of any proposals for the United States to bulwark Britain's fight with dollars.

Specific Data Asked

While no officials here are on record with commitments for loans or other financial aid to the British, it was generally accepted in both Administrative and Congressional circles that consideration of such assistance was the primary purpose of Phillips' visit.

His opening conference with Morgenthau yesterday was devoted to facts and devoid of policy considerations, he reported afterward. Informed officials said Morgenthau asked him for the most specific types of information about what the British still have in the way of assets after buying several hundred million dollars' worth of airplanes, tanks and other war supplies.

Outright Grant Discussed

In some quarters it was believed that if Britain proved to be in need of early financial aid, strong efforts would be made in the opening months of the new Congress to win acceptance of some specific proposal. The nature of that proposal, it was believed, might also be determined by the evidence Phillips presents.

Both Morgenthau and Jesse Jones, Federal Loan Administrator, have described Britain as a "good risk" for loans, but in Congress there has been talk of making an outright grant of funds in order to avoid such complications as grew out of World War loans to the Allied powers.

DONOVAN INCOGNITO ON MYSTERY TRIP

Boards Clipper With Party of Englishmen

BALTIMORE, Dec. 7 (A. P.).—Col. William J. (Wild Bill) Donovan, former Assistant Attorney-General, was believed to be en route to Europe today, traveling under an assumed name and with a party of Englishmen.

Col. Donovan, commander of the "Fighting Sixty-ninth" in the world war, left via Pan American clipper late yesterday, bound for Bermuda and it was believed he planned to continue to Europe.

With Col. Donovan, who is traveling under the name Donald Williams, were, according to the Baltimore Sun, three Englishmen registered as Charles Des Graz and Edwin Herbert of London and William Stephenson, identified by the Sun as a British citizen who gave a New York address.

The Sun said Des Graz was "supposed to be attached to the British embassy."

The purpose of the trip, Col. Donovan's second to Europe recently, was not disclosed. The Sun quoted the State Department as saying he was not going as a representative of that department.

40,000-Plane Rate To Be Reached In '42

Washington Dec. 7 (A. P.)—Secretary of the Navy Frank Knox has asked Congress, it was learned today, for authority to spend approximately $300,000,000 for strengthening the anti-aircraft defenses of the navy's fighting ships.

[By the Associated Press]

Washington, Dec. 7—The prospective use of automobile factories in the manufacture of military aircraft today boosted to 40,000 planes a year the production rate which defense officials expect to attain some time in 1942.

Four huge plants to assemble into finished units airplane parts made in motor-car factories are to be constructed west of the Mississippi river, under plans of the War Department and Defense Commission. The sites for two with a combined capacity of 2,400 medium two-motor bombers a year were announced yesterday as Kansas City and Omaha. The other two plants planned, it was reported, will turn out four-motor bombers at the rate of 1,200 a year.

Officials estimated that fifteen months would be required to get these assembly factories into mass production. Their output, it was explained, will be in addition to that of regular plane factories, expanding now toward a production rate of 36,000 planes a year by early 1942.

It was announced also that naval construction was turning out a new ship for the fleet every twelve days, although navy yards still were short of peak efficiency. Failure to attain the peak was attributed by Rear Admiral S. M. Robinson, chief of the Bureau of Ships, to obsolete equipment.

Increased costs in construction of naval shore stations and army posts were reported in other authoritative quarters, and some officials privately expressed the belief that the increase might run as much as twenty to twenty-five per cent. over the $2,000,000,000 estimate originally fixed for this work. The navy, it was learned, is preparing to ask Congress for additional funds.

Officials said the increases resulted chiefly from rises in wage scales and material prices, with payment of overtime rates in some instances a contributing factor.

Knudsen Asks Speed

[By the Associated Press]

Detroit, Dec. 7—Accelerated production of defense materials as insurance against American involvement in war is being asked of the nation's industrialists by National Defense Coordinator William S. Knudsen.

Before a group of Detroit manufacturers, among them the presidents of three automotive companies and the production chief of another, Knudsen last night urged "speed and more speed" in filling defense orders.

"I'm no worrier," he told a dinner of the Adcraft Club of Detroit, "but I feel that if we can improve our setup, quantity and delivery of defense items, it would be the best insurance to keep us out of war. The more prepared we are, the less liable to attack. It is our duty to show the world that we are all that we claim we are."

His listeners included M. M. Gilman, president of the Packard Motor Car Company; K. T. Keller, president of Chrysler Corporation; C. E. Wilson, acting president of General Motors Corporation, and Charles E. Sorenson, Ford Motor Company production chief. All of these companies are producing defense materials.

Knudsen called upon firms having defense contracts to make use of subcontractors to ease the strain on the machine-tool industry and utilize idle space and equipment.

WOULD KEEP U. S. OUT OF CONFLICT

Cardinal O'Connell Urges This Nation To Work For Permanent Peace

Prelate, On Eve Of 81st Birthday, Criticizes Propaganda And 'Expatriates'

[By the Associated Press]

Boston, Dec. 7—William Cardinal O'Connell, declaring this nation should keep out of war and work for a permanent peace, today denounced "propagandists for war" at home and "certain expatriates" he said were seeking to have America "become a sort of tail end of a foreign empire."

"Not only should we keep out of war as the best thing for America and Americans," he said in an interview on the eve of his eighty-first birthday, "but we might well be turning our thoughts toward a speedy and permanent peace among the nations."

"Notwithstanding the too prevalent propaganda from all sides, the hope and prayer of the American people today is that we shall be spared the horrors of war. They have taken for granted that the authorities at Washington meant what they said and said what they meant when they promised to keep us out of war."

"Peace Based On Justice"

Alternately raising his right hand in a gesture of blessing as he called for peace "based on justice" instead of on the "power politics in Europe" and pounding his great fist on the arm of his chair as he scored "propagandists," the archbishop of more than 1,000,000 Catholics in 300 parishes said:

"It's hard for me to understand why some of these propagandists are allowed to cry down the normal wish of the American people for peace. What is their purpose? They cannot be real Americans, because real Americans think of their own country first."

Suggests "Island Of Peace"

He said we should help provide "an oasis, an island, of peace" to which the warring nations could turn for an example of "religious justice" when they have laid down their arms, and he added:

"We can't have a permanent peace without justice. That was the trouble with the Versailles treaty. It was not just. Power politics in Europe is not a basis of justice. It's a basis of imperialism which is the cause of all their troubles."

Urges Aid To Britain "At The Risk Of War"

Cambridge, Mass., Dec. 7 (AP)—Calling for aid to Britain "at the risk of war," Prof. William Y. Elliott, of Harvard, advocated today that the United States send convoyed ships to Ireland and that it promise Japan a fight if she attacked Singapore or the Dutch East Indies.

His address was prepared for delivery at a faculty symposium in conjunction with a Harvard Alumni Association meeting.

Elliott said the "simple test for right action" meant "all possible aid to Britain. . . . It does not mean all aid to Britain within the limits of the present Neutrality Act, and it does not mean all aid to Britain short of war," he added.

"It means that this country must make the decision on all aid to Britain at the risk of war, rather than to face a future in which we alone would bear the perpetual risk of war."

He declared that, in his opinion, Japan could be prevented from entering the war if the United States issued "a flat and clear warning that we will fight if she attacks Singapore or the Dutch East Indies."

Bullitt Appears Out As Diplomat

WASHINGTON, Dec. 7 (AP).—An indication that William C. Bullitt would not re-enter the diplomatic service immediately was seen today in a routine State Department list of foreign service changes.

Carmel Offie, third secretary of the embassy in Paris, was transferred to become third secretary of the embassy at Bogota, Colombia. Offie long served as Bullitt's private secretary.

45 Leave For Lisbon Aboard Liner Siboney

Passengers Include Associated Press Correspondent And Former Movie Actress Virginia Cherrill

Jersey City, N. J., Dec. 7 (AP)—The American Export liner Siboney left for Lisbon via Bermuda today with forty-five passengers. Included was I. C. Daniel, Jr., Associated Press staff member assigned to the Bern (Switzerland) bureau.

A native of Zebulon, N. C., Daniel joined the Associated Press in Raleigh, N. C., where he had been an editorial staff member of the Raleigh News and Observer.

Another passenger was Virginia, the Countess of Jersey, the former movie actress Virginia Cherrill, returning to London to rejoin her husband, a captain in the anti-aircraft division of the British army.

The Countess, former wife of Cary Grant, movie actor, carried the first badge released by the Y. W. C. A. in its work for Chinese-British relief. She was to present it personally to Queen Elizabeth.

Says Stoppage Of Mail Bound To U. S. Will End

American Export Lines Cites Contract Signed With Portuguese Government

New York, Dec. 7 (AP)—American Export Lines today announced the temporary stoppage of some European mails to this country would end as a result of a contract signed with the Portuguese Government.

John F. Gehan, vice-president, said the contract included handling mails from other European countries as well as Portugal.

The company recently refused to carry mails from other European countries because of the lack of a guarantee of payments. Portugal is the only outlet for European mails.

O'Connell Wants Speedy Peace

Cardinal at 81 Says America Should Not Be Tail of a Foreign Empire.

BOSTON, Dec. 7 (A. P.).—William Cardinal O'Connell today strongly denounced propagandists who, he said, were attempting to get this nation into war, and called on the American people to work for a peace "based on justice" instead of on the "power of politics of Europe."

In an interview on the eve of his eighty-first birthday the dean of the Catholic hierarchy in America said:

"Notwithstanding the too prevalent propaganda from all sides, the hope and prayer of the American people today is that we shall be spared the horrors of war.

People Trust Promises.

"They have taken for granted that the authorities at Washington meant what they said and said what they meant when they promised to keep us out of the war.

"Not only should we keep out of the war but we might well be turning our thoughts toward a speedy and permanent peace."

Declaring that it was hard for him to understand "why some of these propagandists for war are allowed to cry down the normal wish of the American people for peace," the Cardinal said:

"There are certain expatriates raising their voices in loud accent—I think you know whom I mean—with the preposterous proposition that America sink her individuality and become a sort of a tail-end of a foreign empire. If this is not an example of an exalted hysteria I do not know what it could be."

Asked what sort of a peace the world should work for, the Cardinal-Archbishop of Boston said:

"You can't have permanent peace without justice. That was the trouble with the Versailles Treaty. It was not just. Power politics in Europe is not a basis of justice. It's a basis of imperialism, which is the cause of all their trouble."

Should Be Peace Oasis.

He said that by following the principles of justice, brotherly love and religion, this country not only could maintain its own defenses but could contribute toward the maintenance of what he termed an oasis of peace, to which the warring nations could look for example after they had dropped their arms.

Asserting that in his long life he had seen "a great deal of bounding prosperity" and that he had "observed a great many people, too rich," the Cardinal said:

"I think now that everybody realizes that in the future quite another condition is to be expected. The trend is away from enormous individual wealth and, therefore, I think the wise thing for the American people to do is to prepare for that change which has come, even now.

Simplicity the Way Out.

"Let them cultivate a sober, simple life and find their happiness in simplicity, and not in the futile perplexities of barren luxuries."

He said that in time of stress and strain, such as war, the people naturally were nervous.

"Instead of thinking quietly," he continued, "they jump around from one thing to another, adding to their fatigue and hysteria.

"We see that in the night clubs, in this hysteric dancing, in this raucous vulgar shouting of lascivious songs over the radio . . . but what people really need is the quiet of home, family, friends and the church."

Underground Hangar Designer For Italy Consulted By U. S.

American Engineer Also Advises Army On Protections For Arms Plants And Oil Reserves

[By the Associated Press]

New York, Dec. 7—The army can start construction of underground airplane hangars, fuel storage reservoirs and other bombproof structures of modern warfare, if it likes, with Italy's subterranean system as a pattern. It has all the details.

Carlo G. Flebus, New York, engineer for the Italian Government, has given official Washington data not only on the Fascist air-raid-protection system but on the systems of Germany and England as well.

Huge hangars, some of them holding as many as 800 stored planes and others 350 planes ready to roll onto adjacent airports, have been built under the Italian Government's direction.

Hide Plants And Oil Reservoirs

Underground caverns hide manufacturing plants and oil and fuel reservoirs.

Elevators, air-conditioning equipment and, in some instances, camouaged entrances and exits characterize he holes in the earth occupied by oldiers, workers and civilians driven nderground by the warplane.

When Flebus returned to the United States eleven months ago the Fascist Government placed only one prohibition on him—as a possessor of military secrets vital to Italian defense, he must not disclose the whereabouts of the various shelters he helped build.

He was emphatic in expressing his belief in the invulnerability of industrial and military Italy to air attack.

Called For Consultation

War Department called him to Washington last August for consultation on preparation of underground structures to save airplanes, fuel reservoirs and important industrial plants from damage by bombs if war ever came again.

"Europe used Spain for a laboratory during the Civil War," Flebus said.

"It was found that regardless of the character of the construction, surface structures would not resist bombs and artillery.

"France and England directed the construction of fortifications at Santander. Germany and Italy reduced those structures with bombs and artillery."

Enclose Structures In Shells

The effect of vibration led to interesting alterations in all of Europe's hiding places. Constant concussion produced fissures in the walls of good, solid buildings. That was met by enclosing buildings within a shell, with an air space in between. That cushioned the shock.

"The British are suffering today," said Flebus, "because all their structures are units, without enclosing shells to absorb the vibration."

He credited the Germans with setting the "final standards" for bombproof structures after close study of the Spanish war.

Europe's underground hangars with adjoining air fields are cleverly camouflaged, he said. Italy uses green wood shavings embedded in concrete runaways to hide airdromes from prying eyes of enemy airmen.

Use Nitrogen Gas

Nitrogen gas, inert and safe around explosive liquids, is in common use in Europe to force fuel from underground tanks, said Flebus, enabling the warring countries to store huge quantities of gasoline without danger of deterioration.

"As yet," he said, "we do not use it in the United States. Instead, we use water which carries many dangers and disadvantages."

He warned that world conditions made it imperative for this country to start construction of subterranean structures, immediately to protect army and navy equipment and stores, industrial plants and civilians.

"It takes at least six months to study and design the structures," he said, "and a year after that to build them.

"I shudder every time I look at all those oil storage tanks on the top of the ground on the New Jersey side of the Hudson River."

NEW YORK, DEC 7-(AP)-A BRITISH SEA CAPTAIN--GIVEN UP AS DEAD BY ALL BUT HIS WIFE--DECLARES THAT A GERMAN SEA RAIDER, SOWING SOUTHERN WATERS WITH HUNDREDS OF MINES, IS A HUGE REBUILT LINER WHOSE APPEARANCE IS CHANGED FROM DAY TO DAY LIKE STAGE SCENERY.

CAPT.CORNELIUS ARUNDELL, A PRISONER ABOARD THE RAIDER FOR 64 DAYS FOLLOWING THE SINKING OF HIS VESSEL--THE 5,207-TON MAXBY--BY THE NAZI SHIP NEAR BERMUDA LAST APRIL DESCRIBED THE RAIDER AS A "DECENT SIZE MAN-OF-WAR, MUCH MORE THAN 10,000 TONS." IT CARRIED PROVISIONS, HE ADDED, FOR A 3-YEAR VOYAGE. THE CAPTAIN ESCAPED WHEN A BRITISH SUBMARINE APPEARED AND ANOTHER SHIP TO WHICH HE WAS TRANSFERRED WAS SCUTTLED.

THE MARAUDER, HE SAID, CARRIED ELABORATE DISGUISES, WHICH CHANGED HER APPEARANCE DAILY--HER EQUIPMENT INCLUDING EVEN A TELESCOPIC FUNNEL WHICH TRANSFORMED HER SUPERSTRUCTURE.

THE 49-YEAR-OLD BRITISH SKIPPER CAME HERE TO COMMAND AN AMERICAN FREIGHTER RECENTLY PURCHASED BY BRITAIN.

HE SAID THE GERMAN SHIP CARRIED SIX GUNS, FOUR OF THEM BROADSIDE, AND A HUGE SUPPLY OF MINES.

WHILE HE WAS A PRISONER ON HER, CAPT.ARUNDELL SAID, THE SHIP CHANGED ITS IDENTITY FROM GREEK TO BRAZILIAN, THEN TO DUCH.

FOLLOWING THE MAXBY'S SINKING, THE RAIDER LAID MINES OFF WEST AFRICA, MET THE NAZI TANKER WINNETOU AT SEA FOR REFUELING AND THEN PROCEEDED TO NEW ZEALAND WHERE 230 MINES WERE DROPPED, THE CAPTAIN SAID.

ON JUNE 18, THE RAIDER CAPTURED THE NORWEGIAN FREIGHTER TROPIC SEA, LOADED WITH WHEAT FOR ENGLAND, SHORTLY AFTER SHE LEFT NEW ZEALAND. THE BRITISH SEAMEN AND 30 GERMANS AS A PRIZE CREW WERE PLACED ABOARD THE TROPIC SEA, AND SHE STARTED FOR BORDEAUX. FOUR HUNDRED MILES FROM THEIR GOAL, THE SHIP WAS INTERCEPTED BY THE BRITISH SUBMARINE TRUANT.

THE NAZIS SCUTTLED THE SHIP AND CAPT.ARUNDELL AND HIS CREW, WITH THE TROPIC SEA'S MASTER AND HIS WIFE, WERE TAKEN BY THE SUBMARINE TO GIBRALTAR. THE NORWEGIANS WERE SAVED BY BRITISH FLYING BOATS, AND THE GERMANS ESCAPED IN LIFEBOATS TO SPAIN.

ERBE T K.STAUB, HEAD OF THE LONDON MACHINE TOOL COMPANY BEARING HIS NAME, DISCUSSED THE FINANCIAL CONDITION OF HIS FELLOW BUSINESSMEN SHORTLY BEFORE BOARDING THE LISBON-BOUND ATLANTIC CLIPPER.

"ONLY THOSE FIRMS WHICH HAVE CASH, YOU KNOW, CAN DO BUSINESS," STAUB COMMENTED, RESPONDING TO QUESTIONS AS TO WHETHER THERE WAS ANY SHORTAGE OF CASH AMONG PRIVATE BUSINESS MEN IN BRITAIN AND WHETHER THEY MIGHT NEED CREDITS.

STAUB SAID MUCH OF THE MATERIALS HE HAD PURCHASED HERE ALREADY WERE ENROUTE TO BRITAIN BY SHIP.

HE REMARKED THAT "CURIOUSLY, YOU CAN GET A BETTER PRICE IN THIS COUNTRY ON A SMALL ORDER THAN ON A LARGE ORDER. THERE IS NO SHORTAGE OF TOOLS THAT I COULD SEE. THE INDUSTRIAL PROGRAM IS IN FULL SWING."

THE CLIPPER CARRIED A RECORD LOAD OF MAIL--12,000 POUNDS--WHICH HAD ACCUMULATED AT THE BASE SINCE NOV. 28. THE MAIL CONSISTED PRINCIPALLY OF CHRISTMAS LETTERS AND PACKAGES FOR EUROPE.

When Bombs Come Raining Down

Returned News Executive Describes How London Householders Adjust To Life Under Shattering Assaults Of Nazi Airmen

By MILO M. THOMPSON
AP Chief Of Bureau, London

This is the plain story of life in an ordinary home in London today. It was written by the chief of the Associated Press bureau, a London householder himself, who recently returned to America after two years abroad.

The banshee wail of the siren wakes you up before dawn. Whether it is an alarm or an "all clear," there's something about the starting crescendo which freezes your blood. But when the upper note stays steady for its allotted number of seconds you realize it means the night's bombardment is over, and you turn in the darkened basement shelter for the most blissful hours of sleep in what's left of the night.

But it is long before the dustmen are busy banging the garbage cans. Raid or no raid, they make their morning round with wagons hung with odd receptacles into which they sort the refuse systematically. Bones go here and paper there and tin cans in another place. Food for pigs is kept separate from ashes, sweepings and the heap of glass broken in the shaking-up of the previous night or two.

You stretch limbs a bit stiff and sore from closeness to damp underground walls, and reach for the light cord to see whether it works. You never know until you try. And the light doesn't work, so you fumble among the things on your cotside table for a match for the waiting candle.

Maid Sleeps Out

Upstairs in the kitchen you can hear the maid already making her first cup of tea. She has come in from the public shelter down the street. She used to sleep in part of the underground billiard room. But a while back a bomb crashed in most of the windows, wrenched the doors off their hinges, shook chimney soot over carpets and furniture, and rained down plaster.

The maid took refuge then in the public shelter and liked it so well she goes there every night. She finds her friends there. They have a radio, sing songs, tell stories, make tea. There's a comradery she wouldn't give up.

While you are eating whatever is available for breakfast—a treasured egg or an equally hard-to-get kipper or just coffee, toast and jam—the gardener arrives full of details about the night's bombing in the neighborhood. Where he gets his information I never know, but it is complete even down to the condition in which the bodies were found.

Somehow the first reports of neighborhood tragedies are always most shocking. You picture places as demolished and unrecognizable, but on later inspection they are not half so horrible.

Eggs Are Scarce

Your wife goes with you to the station. She has to arrange for the weekly meat ration and hopes she may be able to get a few eggs, at 7 cents each. Eggs are not rationed, but so scarce are they that merchants dole them out to preferred customers. Our grocer usually manages to produce three a week. Sometimes he can manage four. We have a standing order with the dairyman, who also handles eggs in normal times. He, too, can be counted on for a few a week. If the fishmonger happens to have some, that will make it perfect.

Those fat fresh lightly-kippered herring which are traditional for English breakfasts are almost as hard to get as eggs. We have paid as much as 20 cents for a single lemon. Onions were recently 20 cents a pound, tragic in rationing times when you must have stews to save the day. Recently onions were stabilized at 12 cents. You pay no more if you can find the onions.

But there's plenty of food to be had. Bread is plentiful and good. Potatoes and home-grown vegetables seem inexhaustible. There's all manner of canned goods. There's poultry, though expensive, and rabbit, which is not too dear. Neither is rationed. Nor is fish.

Life For The Housewife

While you are away at the office, things go on calmly enough at home. As in the city, the women lose count of sirens and don't know when there's a raid on. Your wife and the maid use the vacuum sweeper to draw the week's powdered glass from upholstery fabrics and carpets. There's a lot of cleaning to be done to overcome the effects of the house's last shaking, when soot and plaster seemed to cover everything. There are things to pack away for protection, emergency suitcases to repack, shelter clothing to air.

The gardener goes about his strangely assorted chores. He spreads the dahlia roots out in one of the garages now that the greenhouse has lost most of its glass and so ruined the second crop of tomatoes. He works a bit on the herbaceous border, repairs a wrecked trellis, gathers bits of anti-aircraft shell fragments from the lawn where they might ruin the mower, then gives his attention to making more frames of wood and heavy building paper to take the place of windows. Eventually he is off to his own particular air-raid duties.

So much of the house is made unusable by the bombings that one doesn't run the central heating regularly. Instead, bright fires are kept in the usable rooms, and there, if the gas has failed, supper is prepared on a grill above the fire. Some of the neighbors use oil and gas stoves.

Will He Be Home?

An air of anxiety pervades the house as darkness comes on. It is always a question whether the master of the house can beat the raiders home. The days shorten, it is rare when he does. Darkness comes and brings with it the grinding broken hum of enemy planes and an occasional crackle of gunfire.

Soon comes the banshee's wailing again, this time the rising and falling note which means business. The women wonder whether to set up the supper table by the library fire or use the improvised lounge in a basement.

The big guns warm up, close by. The planes are overhead. Now and again the house trembles while the women wait, knowing that somewhere, though gunfire flashes and shells wink overhead like fireflies, you are beating your way homeward.

At last the step and the bell and the rush to the door.

"We were so worried," she says. "Dinner has been ready an hour."

Well, That One Missed!

You slick up a bit and descend to the cozy underground room sumptuously overfurnished with things moved from lounge and dining room. Underfoot is the softness of half a dozen carpets piled one upon another for protection.

It is light and warm and pleasant. You eat your fill with good appetite until there comes that sound which above all others chills the Londoner's heart. It is the shriek of a descending bomb and it gives you just six seconds to choose your corner. There is a scramble from windows and doors to chimney corner, a waiting for the crash, a feeling of relief when it comes and you find the house has not crashed in.

You try not to think of what might have happened as you slide back into your seat. You find, somehow, that your stomach no longer yearns for the food which a moment before seemed so inviting. People find themselves trying to hide belches; the spasm of fear does that.

With the dishes eventually removed, you settle back to read or play cards, always anticipating a ring on the telephone. You hope not. Telephones bring such horrid news.

Guests Stay All Night

If you have guests, they are with you for the night. One no longer has guests just for dinner. Unless they can stay in your shelter, they do not come. Sometimes, for guests, you have families of refugees from neighboring houses. They, too, are there for the night—or for many days.

The first wave of enemy planes overhead has dropped its firebombs and released its flares. The heavier waves come on with their high explosives. The mobile guns back up against your garden wall and let go. Some have the clap of thunder, some the roll of bass drums, some an explosive bubbling. Some dump out a whishing projectile which seems to whisper interminably in the clouds.

The house shakes. The scrunch of bombs in the distance, too far to be heard shrieking, increase in number. You give up trying to take it easily and creep into the safer shelter below the stairs, reach for something as unreal as the Arabian Nights and start to read yourself to sleep in an equally unreal world of fearsome genii.

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

BAD WEATHER WHICH HINDERED FLYING OPERATIONS AND GERMANY'S PREFERENCE FOR NIGHT ATTACKS ON PROVINCIAL CITIES -- FOR WHICH BRITAIN HAS NOT YET FOUND AN ANSWER -- WERE FACTORS IN KEEPING THE PLANE CLAIMS OF THE BELLIGERENTS VERY LOW DURING THE WEEK OF DEC. 1-7.

AN UNOFFICIAL, INCOMPLETE TABULATION SHOWED THE GERMANS CLAIMED DESTRUCTION OF 26 BRITISH PLANES TO 11 GERMAN LOSSES AND THE BRITISH CLAIMED 27 GERMAN PLANES TO 12 BRITISH. IN THE PREVIOUS WEEK, THE GERMANS CLAIMED 32 BRITISH TO 20 GERMANS AND THE BRITISH CLAIMED 40 GERMANS TO 20 BRITISH.

ON DEC. 3, THERE WERE NO CLAIMS OR LOSSES BY EITHER SIDE ON ACCOUNT OF BAD WEATHER AND AT THE WEEK'S END LONDON ENJOYED 24 HOURS WITHOUT AN ALARM, POSSIBLY BECAUSE OF THE XXXXXX WEATHER OR BECAUSE OF HEAVY BRITISH BLOWS AT GERMAN AIRFIELDS IN OCCUPIED TERRITORY ACROSS THE ENGLISH CHANNEL

(WX) INTERPRETING THE WAR NEWS

BY KIRKE L. SIMPSON

HISTORIANS DELVING FOR EXPLANATIONS OF DRAMATIC EVENTS OF THIS EUROPEAN WAR, SUCH AS THE SWIFT DEFEAT OF FRANCE AND ITALY'S DISASTROUS INVASION OF GREECE, HAVE A RICH FIELD TO CULL.

A SPECIAL FRENCH TRIBUNAL SET UP TO FIX RESPONSIBILITY FOR THE FALL OF THE THIRD REPUBLIC PROMISES REVELATIONS AS TO WHAT AND WHO LED FRANCE TO HER UNHAPPY FATE. IN THE LIGHT OF SUBSEQUENT EVENTS IN GREECE AND ALBANIA, THE PATTERN OF WHICH IS STILL EVOLVING, IT NOW SEEMS THAT IL DUCE MUSSOLINI HIMSELF HAS GIVEN A KEY TO WHAT UNDERLAY THAT FIRST BIG WAR DISASTER FOR THE NAZI-FASCIST AXIS MATES.

THE CONSEQUENCES OF THAT ITALIAN REPULSE BY THE VALIANT BUT OUTNUMBERED AND ILL-EQUIPPED GREEKS ARE BEYOND CALCULATION. THE

3024-6307

DEFEAT MAY PROVE THE CRUCIAL EVENT OF THE AXIS-BRITISH WAR. THE WHY OF IT MAY PROVE TO HAVE BEEN INDICATED IN IL DUCE'S SPEECH IN ROME ON NOVEMBER 18.

THAT WAS THE ANNIVERSARY OF THE APPLICATION TO ITALY OF LEAGUE OF NATIONS' ECONOMIC SANCTIONS INTENDED TO CURB HER AGGRESSION AGAINS ETHIOPIA. MUSSOLINI SAID IT WAS A "DECISIVE DATE" IN EUROPE, A "DAY OF VICTORY FOR FASCIST ITALY."

ITALIAN REVERSES IN GREECE WERE THEN BEGINNING. IL DUCE ADMITTED IT BY BLUSTERING THAT ITALY WOULD "BREAK GREECE'S BACK, WHETHER IN TWO MONTHS OR TWELVE, IT LITTLE MATTERS".

YET HE FOUND IT EXPEDIENT TO STRESS FOR ITALIAN HOME CONSUMPTION THE CONTENTION THAT BRITAIN ALONE, EXCEPT FOR "A SUPINE FRANCE", WAS RESPONSIBLE FOR THE ILLS THE WAR HAD BROUGHT OR MIGHT BRING TO ITALY. HE PREPARED THE ITALIAN PEOPLE FOR MORE BAD NEWS SAYING:

"A STRONG PEOPLE LIKE THE ITALIAN DO NOT FEAR THE TRUTH. THAT IS WHY OUR WAR BULLETINS ARE DOCUMENTATIONS OF TRUTH."

XXX OF TRUTH."

(SNS BJT)

ROME BULLETINS ON THE GREEK WAR DO THAT IN A LIMITED SENSE. THEY ADMIT AN ITALIAN OFFENSIVE WAS TURNED QUICKLY INTO A DEFENSIVE, BUT BOAST THAT FASCIST FORCES ARE "EVEN COUNTER ATTACKING" IN SOME SECTORS. THEY HAVE NOT YET TOLD THE ITALIAN PEOPLE THAT ONLY FASCIST DEAD, WOUNDED AND PRISONERX

SECTORS. THEY HAVE NOT YET TOLD THE ITALIAN PEOPLE THAT ONLY FASCIST DEAD, WOUNDED AND PRISONERS REMAIN ON GREEK SOIL.

THERE SEEMS SMALL DOUBT THAT IT WAS REVERSES AGAINST GREECE WHICH SHOOK ITALY'S FOREMOST SOLDIER, MARSHAL PIETRO BADOGLIO, OUT OF ITALIAN MILITARY CHIEFTAINSHIP. WHETHER HE STEPPED OUT AS A SCAPE-GOAT TO SAVE MUSSOLINI'S FACE AT HOME OR GAVE WAY TO A YOUNGER MAN TO DIRECT THE MAJOR MILITARY OPERATION MATTERS LITTLE.

HIS RESIGNATION HEAVILY UNDERSCORES THE INCREASING GRAVITY OF THE SITUATION FOR BOTH HITLER AND MUSSOLINI. IT DOES NOT HELP EXPLAIN THE ITALIAN DISASTER.

MUSSOLINI DID EXPLAIN--TO SOME EXTENT. HE TOLD HIS ROME AU-DIENCE:

DEC 9-1940

"THE GREEKS HATE ITALY AS NO OTHER PEOPLE. IT IS A HATRED WHICH AT FIRST GLANCE APPEARS INEXPLICABLE, BUT, IN GENERAL, IS DEEP-SEATED AND INCURABLE IN ALL BRANCHES, IN THE CITIES AND THE VILLAGES, HIGH AND LOW, EVERYWHERE."

THAT HELPS EXPLAIN THE GREEKS BUT NOT THE MISERABLE SHOWING OF THE ITALIAN ARMY OF ATTACK. FOR THAT IL DUCE GAVE THIS GLIMPSE OF ITALIAN WAR MORALE:

"ENGLISH AID CANNOT X X X SAVE THE HELLENES FROM CATASTROPHE. X X X TO THINK OR SUSPECT SOMETHING OTHERWISE MEANS NOT TO KNOW ME. ONCE A BEGINNING IS MADE, I DO NOT SOFTEN. I HAVE ALREADY SHOWN THAT, AND, WHATEVER HAS HAPPENED, IS HAPPENING OR MAY HAPPEN, I WILL SHOW IT AGAIN."

A214WX

THIS ALL ADDS UP TO OPEN RECOGNITION OF A CONDITION OF WAR APATHY IN ITALY STRIKINGLY REFLECTED IN THE ARMY IN ALBANIA. IT IS THE WAR HIGHLIGHT STIMULATING BRITISH MORALE AND BALKAN-TURKISH RESISTANCE TO AXIS WILL.

THE WAR TODAY

BY DEWITT MACKENZIE

DEC 9-1940

WHATEVER WAY YOU LOOK AT THE SENSATIONAL "RESIGNATION" OF ITALIAN ARMY CHIEF BADOGLIO--WHETHER HE DID RESIGN OR WHETHER HE WAS OUSTED BECAUSE OF THE DEBACLE IN GREECE--A SPOTTY PIECE OF LINEN HAS BEEN HUNG ON THE LINE FOR ALL AND SUNDRY TO SEE AT A MOMENT WHEN IT DOESN'T PAY TO ADVERTISE.

IT'S PASSING STRANGE THAT THE MARSHAL--ONE OF THE WORLD'S GREAT SOLDIERS--SHOULD SUDDENLY LOSE ALL HIS CUNNING. I DON'T BELIEVE HE HAS LOST IT. THIS, AMONG OTHER CIRCUMSTANCES, RATHER COMPELS THE VIEW THAT HE ACTUALLY DID RESIGN, PROBABLY BECAUSE OF OPPOSITION TO THE FASCIST MILITARY POLICY.

BADOGLIO ALWAYS HAS HAD A DEEP-SEATED HOSTILITY TO FASCISM, AND TO THE INTRODUCTION OF POLITICS INTO THE ARMY. HE HAS CONTINUED TO HOLD HIS VARIOUS HIGH POSITIONS BECAUSE, FORSOOTH, HE WAS TOO GOOD A MILITARY LEADER TO LET GO. POSSIBLY THE FACT THAT HE IS ONE OF KING VICTOR EMMANUEL'S CLOSEST FRIENDS HASN'T HURT THE MARSHAL, EITHER.

IT IS DIFFICULT TO DISCOVER THE METICULOUS HANDIWORK OF BADOGLIO IN THE BUNGLED ITALIAN CAMPAIGN AGAINST GREECE. IT'S EASIER TO BELIEVE THAT HE BALKED AT THE PROGRAM OF STARTING AN OFFENSIVE AT A BAD TIME OF YEAR AND WITHOUT ADEQUATE PREPARATION, AND HAS BEEN SITTING ON THE SIDE WHILE SOMEBODY ELSE BUNGLED THE SHOW.

IN ANY EVENT, EVEN IF HE WERE GUILTY, SIGNOR MUSSOLINI WOULD BE TAKING AN EXTREME STEP TO FIRE HIS CHIEF OF STAFF--IDOL OF MOST OF ITALY. THIS WOULD SERVE MERELY TO EMPHASIZE THE DEFEAT, DAMAGING FASCIST PRESTIGE ABROAD AND SHOVKING THE ITALIAN PUBLIC AT A TIME WHEN IT BADLY NEEDS ENCOURAGEMENT AND STEADINESS.

IT IS TO BE ASSUMED THAT MUSSOLINI WILL FORTHWITH SET OU TO REPAIR HIS SHATTERED FORTUNES IN ALBANIA. THIS WILL CALL FOR THE REBUILDING OF HIS EXPEDITIONARY FORCE, WHICH HAS BEEN KNOCKED INTO A COCKED-HAT BY THE GALLOPING GREEKS.

THE GREEKS, FLUSHED WITH THEIR GRAND VICTORY, ARE SHOOTING AT THE STARS. THEY ARE PRESSING THEIR ATTACK WITH EVERY OUNCE OF THEIR STRENGTH TOWARDS THE SUPREME GOAL OF OUSTING THE ENEMY ALTOGETHER FROM ALBANIA. IT IS WITHIN THE REALM OF POSSIBILITY THAT THEY MAY ACHIEVE THIS, BUT IF THEY DO THEY WILL BE PULLING ANOTHER RABBIT OUT OF THE HAT.

A107

DEC 9-1940

AT THE MOMENT THE GREEKS ARE CONTINUING THEIR TWO MAIN DRIVES--AGAINST BOTH FLANKS OF THE RETREATING ITALIANS. THE FASCIST RIGHT WING RESTS UNEASILY ON THE ADRIATIC COAST, WHICH IS ITALY'S GATEWAY TO ALBANIA. THE LEFT WING IS BEING PUSHED BACK THROUGH THE MOUNTAINOUS LAKE REGION OF THE YUGOSLAV BORDER IN THE NEIGHBORHOOD OF POGRADETZ.

30.24 -6309

THIS IS A TURNING MOVEMENT, IN WHICH THE GREEKS ARE TRYING TO FOLD THE FASCIST LINE BACK TOWARDS THE SEA AND ENCIRCLE THE END.

THE HOPE OF THE GREEKS IN THEIR SOUTHERN DRIVE IS, OF COURSE, TO RA[illegible] NORTHWARD ALONG THE COAST TO CAPTURE FIRST THE IMPORTANT PORT OF VALONA AND THEN ACHIEVE THE DREAM OF REACHING THE LAST GREAT PORT--DURAZZO, DOORWAY TO THE CAPITAL OF TIRANA. YESTERDAY THEY CAPTURED THE 2,000 YEAR OLD PORTO EDDA (SANTI QUARANTA) ONE OF THE CHIEF ITALIAN BASES.

THEY ARE PRESSING THEIR ADVANTAGE HERE, AND A BIT FURTHER INLAND ABOUT THE STRATEGIC TOWN OF AGIROCASTRO, WHICH LIES ON THE HIGHWAY TO TEPELINI AND THENCE TO VALONA.

DEC 9-1940

ON THE ITALIAN LEFT THE GREEKS HAVE ALMOST REACHED THE WESTERN EXTREMITY OF WHAT PRESUMABLY WOULD BE THE ITALIAN LINE OF LAST DEFENSE, SHOULD THEY FALL BACK THAT FAR. THIS IS THE HEADWATERS OF THE SHKUMBI RIVER, WHICH RUNS DIRECTLY WESTWARD TO THE ADRIATIC. ALONG THE VALLEY OF THIS RIVER LIES THE MAIN HIGHWAY ON WHICH THE STRATEGIC TOWN OF ALBASANI RESTS. IT IS JOINED BY OTHER MAIN TURNPIKES LINKING UP DURAZZO AND TIRANA.

THIS IS A LOGICAL LINE FOR REORGANIZATION OF THE ITALIAN DEFENSE, SINCE IT PROTECTS THE CAPITAL AND THE VITAL PORT OF DURAZZO. SHOULD THE GREEKS BY ANY CHANCE BE ABLE TO REACH THIS LINE IN ITS ENTIRETY, IT WOULD SMASH THE ITALIAN GRIP ON ALBANIA.

IT SEEMS DOUBTFUL WHETHER THE ITALIANS WILL ATTEMPT A MAJOR OFXENSIVE AGAINST THE GREEKS BEFORE SPRING. THE WINTER ALREADY IS UPON THEM--AND WINTER IN ALBANIA AND GREECE IS A TERRIFIC DETERRENT TO FIGHTING.

THIS ALSO MAY EASILY PREVENT THE GREEKS FROM CARRYING THEIR ATTACKS MUCH FURTHER AT THE MOMENT, ESPECIALLY BECAUSE OF THE GREAT LENGTHENING OF THEIR LINES OF COMMUNICATION IN THEIR SPEEDY ADVANCE. IT DEPENDS ON HOW MUCH OPPOSITION THEY ENCOUNTER.

(ADVANCE) WARSAW, POLAND (CORRESPONDENCE OF THE ASSOCIATED PRESS)--GERMAN AUTHORITIES IN POLAND ARE TACKLING THE "MINORITIES PROBLEM," PERENNIAL POLITICAL HEADACHE OF EASTERN EUROPE, BY PULLING OUT MINORITIES BY THE ROOTS.

IN GREAT MIGRATIONS, POLES, GERMANS, RUSSIANS AND UKRAINIANS ARE BEING UNSCRAMBLED AND BROUGHT TOGETHER IN NATIONALITY GROUPS IN REGIONS SHARPLY DEFINED GEOGRAPHICALLY.

THUS, AN EXCHANGE OF 30,000 GERMANS WHO LIVE OR LIVED IN THE LUBLIN REGION IN THE "GOVERNMENT GENERAL" DISTRICT OF GERMAN-OCCUPIED POLAND, FOR 30,000 POLES WHO ONCE LIVED IN THE WARTHE DISTRICT OF WESTERN POLAND, NOW IS NEARING COMPLETION.

THIS EXCHANGE IS A SPECIFIC TRADING OF FARMS BETWEEN GERMANS AND POLES. THEY TAKE VIRTUALLY NOTHING WITH THEM AND HAVE BEEN TOLD EXACTLY WHERE THEY ARE GOING--HAVE SEEN PHOTOGRAPHS OF THEIR NEW HOMES, THE AUTHORITIES SAY, AND HAVE BEEN TOLD THE CONDITION OF BUILDINGS AND THE SIZE OF THEIR NEW FARMS.

THEY TRAVEL THE DISTANCE WITHIN A FEW HOURS, MOSTLY BY TRAIN, CARRYING ONLY THEIR CLOTHING AND A FEW PERSONAL BELONGINGS.

A POLISH FARMER ALONG THE WARTHE RIVER, FOR INSTANCE, LEAVES SIX COWS, TWO HORSES AND A FURNISHED SIX-ROOM HOUSE. A GERMAN FARMER OF THE LUBLIN AREA LEAVES SIX COWS, TWO HORSES AND A FURNISHED HOUSE OF ABOUT EQUAL SIZE. THESE FAMILIES CHANGE PLACES.

THERE ARE DIFFICULTIES, OF COURSE, AND HEARTACHES. SOME POLES OF THE WARTHE DISTRICT HAVE BECOME ALMOST GERMANIZED. A FEW GERMANS OF LUBLIN HAVE ALMOST FORGOTTEN THE GERMAN LANGUAGE. BUT THEY ARE CONFRONTED WITH A "LAST CHANCE" TO RETAIN THEIR NATIONALITIES.

-DASH-

IT'S MOVING DAY HERE IN WARSAW DAY AFTER DAY. NEVER IN THE HISTORY OF THE FORMER POLISH CAPITAL HAVE SO MANY MOVING VANS BEEN SEEN ON THE STREETS AS DURING THIS AUTUMN PERIOD.

THE POLES ARE MOVING OUT OF THE SECTIONS DESIGNATED AS A JEWISH GHETTO.

THE JEWS WHO HAVE NOT HITHERTO LIVED WITHIN THE GHETTO ARE MOVING THERE.

THE GERMANS ARE GETTING A RESIDENTIAL AND BUSINESS QUARTER OF THEIR OWN AND ARE MOVING THEIR POSSESSIONS THERE.

IN ALL, 200,000 WARSAW RESIDENTS ARE AFFECTED.

WHEN THE GERMANS TOOK OVER, THEY SEGREGATED THAT SECTION OF THE CITY IN WHICH THE POORER JEWS LIVED. BY LAST SPRING THIS SECTION WAS WALLED OFF FROM THE REST OF THE CITY. MANY POLES, HOWEVER, CONTINUED TO LIVE IN THIS DISTRICT.

IN OCTOBER A NEW ORDINANCE COMPELLED ARYAN POLES TO MOVE OUT AND ALL JEWS TO MOVE IN. THIS TRANSPLANTATION LARGELY WAS COMPLETED BY NOVEMBER 1.

NOW THE POLES AND GERMANS ARE TRYING TO GET APART, EACH NATIONALITY MOVING OUT OF THE SECTION PRINCIPALLY INHABITED BY THE OTHER. SO THERE'S MOVING, DAY IN AND DAY OUT.

-DASH-

THE PICTURESQUE OLD CITY OF LUBLIN, WHICH IN MODERN TIMES HAS BEEN IN TURN GERMAN, RUSSIAN AND POLISH, IS A FUGITIVE CENTER OF EASTERN EUROPE.

IN TUMBLE-DOWN HOUSES IN THE OLD SECTION OF TOWN ARE HUNDREDS OF UNHAPPY PERSONS WHO HAVE RUN AWAY FROM SOMEWHERE OR WHO WOULD LIKE TO BE SOMEWHERE ELSE.

IN LUBLIN'S GHETTO, ONE OF THE OLDEST AND LARGEST IN EUROPE, ARE 40,000 JEWS, THEIR FUTURE MOST UNCERTAIN.

AMONG THE FUGITIVES ARE MANY UKRAINIANS WHO SOMEHOW HAVE MANAGED TO CROSS FROM THE EAST THE CLOSELY GUARDED DEMARCATION LINE BETWEEN RUSSIAN AND GERMAN ZONES OF PARTITIONED POLAND. MANY COMPLAINED THAT ONE OF THE FIRST RUSSIAN STEPS WAS INTERFERENCE WITH THEIR RELIGIOUS ACTIVITIES. CHURCHES WERE LEFT OPEN, THEY REPORTED, BUT CHURCH TAXES WERE RAISED SO SHARPLY THAT FEW COULD AFFORD TO PAY. AND PERSONS WHO HAD NOT PAID WERE NOT PERMITTED TO WORSHIP AS OF OLD.

FUGITIVES FROM RUSSIA REPORTED THAT RUSSIAN ADMINISTRATORS ARE DEPOPULATING A STRIP OF TERRITORY, ULTIMATELY TO BE 40 KILOMETERS (NEARLY 25 MILES) WIDE, BORDERING ON THE ZONE OF GERMAN OCCUPATION.

RESIDENTS OF VILLAGES IN THIS BUFFER STRIP ARE BEING OBLIGED TO MOVE EASTWARD AND FARMS ARE BEING ABANDONED. ULTIMATELY, IT IS SAID, ONLY RUSSIAN SOLDIERS WILL BE PERMITTED IN THIS AREA.

MIGRATION OF BRITISH INDUSTRY TO ESCAPE BOMBS EXPECTED (1,000)

BY WADE WERNER

(ADVANCE)..OTTAWA-(CORRESPONDENCE OF THE ASSOCIATED PRESS)-CANADA IS LOOKING AHEAD, ALTHOUGH PREOCCUPIED WITH HER WAR EFFORT, AND THERE IS A SURPRISING VOLUME OF PUBLIC AND PRIVATE DISCUSSION OF PROBLEMS LIKELY TO ARISE WHEN THE WAR IS OVER.

THESE PROBLEMS RESOLVE THEMSELVES BROADLY INTO FOUR MAIN QUESTIONS:

30.24 6313

1. WHAT SORT OF NEW WORLD ORDER IS COMING OUT OF THIS STRUGGLE; FOR WHAT KIND OF DEMOCRACY, POLITICAL AND ECONOMIC, IS THE WORLD TO BE MADE SAFE?

2. WHAT WILL BE THE CHARACTER OF CANADIAN-UNITED STATES RELATIONS, BOTH FROM THE STRICTLY CANADIAN-UNITED STATES POINT OF VIEW AND FROM THE VIEWPOINT OF CANADA AS A LINK BETWEEN THE BRITISH COMMONWEALTH AND THE UNITED STATES?

3. WHERE WILL CANADA FIT INTO THE PAN-AMERICAN PICTURE?

4. HOW WILL CANADA'S INDUSTRY, NOW SWIFTLY EXPANDING UNDER THE WHIP OF WAR NEEDS, FIT INTO THE POST-WAR SET-UP?

THESE ARE LARGE QUESTIONS, PARTICULARLY THE FIRST, SINCE IT RAISES IN TURN THE QUESTION OF ULTIMATE WAR AIMS.

DEC 9-1941

THERE HAS BEEN A VAST AMOUNT OF EDITORIAL COMMENT AND OTHER DISCUSSION, SOME OF IT ORIGINATING IN ENGLAND AND PROMINENTLY PUBLISHED HERE, TO THE EFFECT THAT A NEW KIND OF DEMOCRACY IS BEING FORGED UNDER THE SLEDGE-HAMMER BLOWS OF TOTAL WAR.

THERE ARE EVEN FORECASTS OF FAR-REACHING DEVELOPMENTS INSIDE BRITAIN WHEN THE WAR AIMS OF THIS NEWLY-EMERGING DEMOCRACY ARE CRYSTALIZED IN THE FORM OF A CLEARLY-STATED PROGRAM.

THAT WILL NOT COME, THE CANADIAN WEEKLY "SATURDAY NIGHT" PREDICTS, UNTIL BRITAIN'S DEFENSIVE BATTLE HAS BEEN CLEARLY WON AND THE TIME COMES TO LAUNCH THE LONG-AWAITED OFFENSIVE ON THE CONTINENT OF EUROPE.

UNDER THE CAPTION "BRITAIN'S COMING CRISIS", THIS PUBLICATION SAYS THE "PREVAILING EFFECTIVE UNITY" IN BRITAIN NOW IS DUE TO THE FACT THAT BRITISH LABOR IS COOPERATING WHOLE-HEARTEDLY WITH THE CONSERVATIVES IN WHAT IS OBVIOUSLY A FIGHT FOR THE SHEER EXISTENCE OF BRITAIN.

ONCE THE EXISTENCE OF BRITAIN NO LONGER IS IN QUESTION, THE WORKERS WHO HAVE DAILY RISKED DEATH FOR HOME DEFENSE MAY WEIGH THE PRICE OF A GRAND OFFENSIVE "IN SCALES UNKNOWN TO OFFICIALDOM, OR THE CITY, OR THE ARISTOCRACY," THE ARTICLE SAYS, ADDING THAT IN THE RESULTANT INTERNAL CONTROVERSY "WILL BE AT STAKE A WHOLE SOCIAL ORDER, A WHOLE ECONOMIC SYSTEM, AND THE FUTURE OF INTERNATIONAL RELATIONS, INCLUDING COLONIAL RELATIONS, FOR AN INDEFINITE PERIOD."

PARLIAMENTARY DEBATE ON CANADA'S WAR EFFORT HAS INCLUDED SOMEWHAT SIMILAR FOGESHADOWINGS OF A POPULAR INSISTENCE THAT THIS WAR MUST BE FOUGHT, NOT TO DEFEND THE OLD ORDER, BUT TO SHAPE THE NEW.

SPEAKERS HAVE INSISTED THAT THERE MUST BE NO REPETITION OF THE POST-WAR POVERTY OF RETURNING SOLDIERS SUCH AS CHARACTERIZED THE END OF THE LAST WAR. SOME HAVE DEMANDED A CLEARER STATEMENT OF WAR AIMS TO CONVINCE THE PEOPLE THAT THE SACRIFICES THEY WILL BE CALLED ON TO MAKE WILL END INTERNAL INEQUALITIES AS WELL AS FOREIGN AGGRESSION.

THE TREND OF CANADA'S FUTURE RELATIONS WITH THE UNITED STATES HAS BEEN UNDERSCORED BY CREATION OF THE PERMANENT JOINT DEFENSE BOARD AND A RAPIDLY WIDENING COOPERATION BETWEEN THE TWO COUNTRIES IN ALL MATTERS AFFECTING THE SECURITY OR WELFARE OF NORTH AMERICA.

"THE LINK FORGED BY THE CANADA-UNITED STATES DEFENSE AGREEMENT IS NO TEMPORARY AXIS," PRIME MINISTER W.L.MACKENZIE KING TOLD THE HOUSE OF COMMONS RECENTLY. "IT IS PART OF THE ENDURING FOUNDATION OF A NEW WORLD ORDER, BASED ON FRIENDSHIP AND GOODWILL."

SOME CANADIANS FORESEE A MERGER OF THE BRITISH

COMMONWEALTH AND THE UNITED STATES, WITH CANADA AS THE HUB OF AN ENGLISH SPEAKING UNION. IN GENERAL, HOWEVER, THE CANADIAN ATTITUDE TOWARD THE UNITED STATES STILL IS CAUTIOUS.

NEVERTHELESS, EVEN THOSE WHO HESITATE TO ADVOCATE ANY REVOLUTIONARY CHANGE IN THE STATUS OF THE TWO COUNTRIES EMPHASIZE THE NECESSITY OF FAR GREATER COORDINATION IN THE FUTURE.

BUSINESSMEN, NOTING THE PRODUCTION CRISIS WHICH AROSE WHEN CANADA SUDDENLY FOUND HERSELF DRASTICALLY DEPENDENT ON AMERICAN FACTORIES WHILE HER WAR INDUSTRY STILL WAS GEARED TO ENGLAND'S, HAVE BEGUN TO INSIST ON CLOSER COORDINATION BETWEEN ALL LINES OF CANADIAN AND UNITED STATES PRODUCTION. AS THE MAGAZINE "CANADIAN BUSINESS" HAS PUT IT, PEOPLE ARE BEGINNING TO SEE THAT IN CANADA AND THE UNITED STATES "VIRTUALLY ALL PROBLEMS ARE MUTUAL -- NOT MERELY THOSE OF DEFENSE."

DEC 9-1940

THERE IS ALSO A TENDENCY TO CONCEDE THAT, WHATEVER THE OUTCOME OF THE WAR, CANADA AND THE UNITED STATES HENCEFORTH WILL HAVE TO STRIVE FOR A COMMON FOREIGN POLICY BEFORE EITHER OF THEM GETS INTO ANOTHER WAR--NOT MERELY SOME FORM OF FRIENDLY COLLABORATION AFTER THE WAR HAS BEGUN. AS A WRITER IN THE UNIVERSITY OF TORONTO QUARTERLY HAS EXPRESSED IT:

"WE CANNOT HOPE TO OCCUPY HALF A CONTINENT WITHOUT DECIDING THE NATURE OF OUR RELATIONS WITH THE OTHER HALF. WE CANNOT POSSESS VITAL COASTLINES FRONTING ON TWO OCEANS WITHOUT RECOGNIZING THAT OUR NEIGHBOR--TO WHOM, WHETHER WE ADMIT IT OR NOT, WE LOOK FOR PROTECTION IN CASE OF ATTACK--HAS ALSO INTEREST IN SEEING THAT NO OTHER STATE IS PROVOKED BY OUR ACTIONS INTO AN ATTEMPT TO SEIZE THOSE POSITIONS."

AS TO CANADA'S ATTITUDE TOWARD THE PAN-AMERICAN UNION, HERE AGAIN RECENT DEVELOPMENTS SUGGEST THE TREND TOWARD A NEW POSITION. THE CANADIAN POSITION HERETOFORE HAS BEEN THAT THE PAN-AMERICAN UNION IS A UNION OF REPUBLICS, AND CANADA IS NOT A REPUBLIC; IS IN FACT A KINGDOM, WITH GEORGE VI AS REIGNING MONARCH.

RECENTLY, HOWEVER, THE DOMINION GOVERNMENT ANNOUNCED ITS INTENTION TO OPEN CANADIAN LEGATIONS IN BUENOS AIRES AND RIO DE JANEIRO, AND SOON AFTERWARD PREPARATIONS WERE MADE TO SEND A CANADIAN TRADE DELEGATION TO THE WEST INDIES AND LATIN AMERICA. SOME OBSERVERS INTERPRETED THESE MOVES AS A PRELUDE TO CANADA'S ENTRY INTO THE PAN-AMERICAN COMMUNITY.

CANADA'S RELATIONS WITH LATIN AMERICA NATURALLY ARE TIED UP WITH THE POST-WAR FUTURE OF CANADIAN TRADE AND INDUSTRY. SOME PESSIMISTIC FORECASTERS FEAR THAT WHEN THE WAR IS OVER AND THE MUNITIONS BOOM COLLAPSES, CANADA'S VASTLY EXPANDED INDUSTRY MAY BE REDUCED TO COMPETING WITH UNITED STATES MANUFACTURERS FOR THE MARKETS OF SOUTH AMERICA, ESPECIALLY IF GERMANY EMERGES FROM THE WAR STRONG ENOUGH TO DOMINATE EUROPE'S TRADE.

DEC 9-1940

OTHERS, HOWEVER, FORESEE A GREAT MIGRATION OF BRITISH FACTORIES TO CANADA--REGARDLESS OF THE OUTCOME OF THE WAR--WHICH WOULD MAKE CANADA THE CENTER OF A TRADE WITH SOUTH AMERICA WHICH FORMERLY HAD ITS HEADQUARTERS IN ENGLAND. CANADA THEN WOULD BE ENTERING THE SOUTH AMERICAN MARKET NOT WITH ARTICLES ALREADY MANUFACTURED MORE CHEAPLY IN THE UNITED STATES, BUT WITH "ENGLISH" WARES FORMERLY PRODUCED IN THE UNITED KINGDOM.

THE TREND IN THIS DIRECTION IS INDICATED BY THE FACT THAT BRITISH CAPITAL ALREADY IS FINANCING NEW PLANTS IN CANADA INSTEAD OF

30.24-6315

REBUILDING ENGLISH FACTORIES DESTROYED IN BOMBING RAIDS.

THAT COLOSSAL ECONOMIC READJUSTMENTS ARE INEVITABLE, REGARDLESS OF HOW THE WAR ENDS, IS ACKNOWLEDGED GENERALLY HERE.

THAT IS ONE REASON WHY CANADIANS, IN AND OUT OF PARLIAMENT, ARE INSISTING THAT THEIR GOVERNMENT KEEP ITS EYE ON POST-WAR PROBLEMS AS WELL AS THE IMMEDIATE TASK OF WAGING WAR.

(ADVANCE) WASHINGTON,DEC. 7-(AP)-A SHIPBUILDING PROGRAM BEGUN IN 1938 AFTER JOSEPH PATRICK KENNEDY DYNAMITED THE FACTS OUT OF THE AMERICAN MERCHANT MARINE SITUATION MAY ENABLE AMERICA TO RESPOND TO GREAT BRITAIN'S APPEAL FOR SHIPS.

THE TEN-YEAR, 500-SHIP PROGRAM THAT WAS DEVELOPED AFTER KENNEDY TOLD CONGRESS AND THE NATION WHAT HE THOUGHT OF THE STATE OF THE MERCHANT MARINE SENT A THROB OF NEW ACTIVITY PULSING THROUGH THE SHIPYARDS. IT HELPED TO READY THEM, PARTIALLY, FOR THE VASTLY EXPANDED NAVAL BUILDING PROGRAM THAT WAS TO FOLLOW.

AND IN THE WAKE OF THIS HAS COME NEW DEMANDS FOR PRIVATE COMMERCIAL CRAFT.

IT ALL ADDS UP TO THE GREATEST BURST OF SHIPBUILDING ACTIVITY THE NATION HAS EXPERIENCED SINCE THOSE FRANTIC DAYS OF THE WORLD WAR WHEN IT SET OUT TO BRIDGE THE ATLANTIC WITH SHIPS--AND AFTER THE WAR TUCKED THE BRIDGE AWAY IN HARBORS AND ISOLATED INLETS TO ROT.

THE WHOLE PICTURE IS NOT TO BE GATHERED EITHER BY A STUDY OF MARITIME COMMISSION FIGURES OR BY SCANNING THE EFFERVESCENT ACCOUNTS OF CONTRACTS THAT BUBBLE THROUGH THE PAGES OF MARINE TRADE MAGAZINES. BUT, COMBINED, THE TWO GIVE A SORT OF IDEA OF WHAT AMERICA HAS IN STOCK AND ON ORDER.

THE MARITIME COMMISSION LISTS 24 ACTIVE SHIPYARDS THAT ARE BUILDING OCEAN-GOING VESSELS.

THIS IS EXCLUSIVE OF GREAT LAKES SHIPYARDS AND SMALL YARDS BUILDING YACHTS, TUGS, BARGES AND SMALL CRAFT. TRADE MAGAZINES LIST 109 SUCH YARDS AS GETTING CONTRACTS LAST MONTH. NOR DOES THE COMMISSION FIGURE INCLUDE THE GOVERNMENT'S NAVY YARDS, BUSY ON FIGHTING CRAFT AS, FOR THAT MATTER, ARE QUITE A FEW OF THE PRIVATE YARDS.

DEC 9-1940

TRADE MAGAZINES SAY THERE WERE 335 COMMERCIAL SHIPS WITH A TOTAL TONNAGE OF 1,600,000 UNDER CONSTRUCTION OCTOBER 1. OF THESE, 183 WITH A TONNAGE OF 1,500,000 WERE SEAGOING CRAFT.

BUT WITH THE SINGLE HISTORICAL EXCEPTION OF HOG ISLAND, SHIPS HAVE NEVER BEEN TURNED OUT ON AN ASSEMBLY LINE. THEY TAKE TIME IN THE BUILDING.

THE MARITIME COMMISSION EXPECTED TO BUILD AT THE RATE OF 50 SHIPS A YEAR FOR TEN YEARS. IT HAS STEPPED UP THAT PROGRAM CON-

TRACTUALLY. IN LESS THAN THREE YEARS IT HAS CONTRACTED FOR 179 SHIPS BUT IN THE SAME PERIOD IT HAS GOT ONLY 82 SHIPS LAUNCHED, AND ONLY 54 OF THESE ARE COMMISSIONED, OUT ON THE SEAS DOING THEIR JOBS.

ALL OF THESE SHIPS ARE BUILT TO SPECIFICATIONS THAT HAVE BEEN WORKED OVER BY THE NAVY. THEY ARE EASILY CONVERTIBLE TO NAVAL USES, SO EASILY, IN FACT, THAT SOME OF THE PRIVATE OPERATORS HAVE COMPLAINED THAT NAVAL USES WERE BETTER PROVIDED FOR IN THE PLANS THAN WERE THE COMMERCIAL PURPOSES.

TAKE TANKERS, FOR INSTANCE. SEVERAL HAVE BEEN BUILT FOR THE STANDARD OIL COMPANY, AND SOME OF THESE HAVE ALREADY BEEN TAKEN OVER BY THE NAVY. BY SPECIFICATION, THEY WERE TWIN-SCREW, 12,000-TON, 150,000-BARREL, 13,500-HORSEPOWER, 18-KNOTTERS. THEY WERE THE FASTEST, BIGGEST, MOST POWERFUL COMMERCIAL TANKERS AFLOAT. THEY HAD MORE SPEED, SIZE AND POWER THAN A COMMERCIAL SHIP NEEDED. BUT THEY FITTED NICELY INTO THE GROWING UNITED STATES NAVY.

A COMBINATION CARGO AND PASSENGER TYPE SHIP TAKES 15 MONTHS TO BUILD. THIS TIME IS CUT TO TWELVE MONTHS FOR A PLAIN CARGO SHIP. IT CAN BE CUT TO SIX MONTHS IF THE LINES OF SUPPLY ARE WIDE OPEN FOR THE FLOW OF MATERIALS, MACHINERY AND EQUIPMENT. OR, IN THE FABULOUS DAYS OF HOG ISLAND, WHEN MATERIALS WERE PRE-FABRICATED, THE SHIPS WERE PUSHED OFF THE ASSEMBLY LINES INTO THE WATER AT THE RATE OF ONE EVERY 23 1/2 HOURS.

DEC 9-1940

BUT HOG ISLAND, FIRST A SWAMP AND NOW AN AIRPORT, WAS CONVERTED NOT INTO A SHIPYARD, BUT INTO A VAST ASSEMBLY PLANT. IN A YEAR, 250 BUILDINGS, 18 MILES OF ROAD AND 80 MILES OF RAILROAD TRACK WERE BUILT TO POUR MATERIALS INTO THE 50 SHIPWAYS THAT LACED ITS TWO MILES OF WATERFRONT NEAR PHILADELPHIA. BEHIND THE LINES, 88 STEEL PLANTS TURNED OUT PLATES FOR HOG ISLAND HULLS, AND MANUFACTURERS GROUND OUT MACHINERY AND GEAR. THE SHIPS WERE SMACKED TOGETHER AS FAST AS THE RAILROADS COULD POUR THIS PRE-FABRICATED MATERIAL INTO THE YARDS. MANY OF THE SHIPS STILL AFLOAT BELONG TO THAT HOMELY BROOD OF 122 CHICKS HATCHED OUT AT HOG ISLAND IN SUCH A SUPER-HEATED HURRY.

COUNTING THE HOG ISLANDERS, THE SHIPPING BOARD WOUND UP THE WORLD WAR WITH 2,316 SHIPS. IT HAS BEEN TRYING EVER SINCE TO GET RID OF THEM, JUST NOW IS BEGINNING TO SCRAPE THE BOTTOM OF THE BARREL. ABOUT 2,000 HAD BEEN SOLD, SCRAPPED, LOST AT SEA OR WRITTEN OFF THE ROLLS IN ONE WAY OR ANOTHER BY THE TIME THE BOARD BECAME THE MARITIME COMMISSION.

DEC 9-1940

WHEN THE WAR BROKE OUT IN EUROPE LAST YEAR THE COMMISSION STILL HAD 107 CARGO, 6 PASSENGER AND 5 REFRIGERATOR CARGO SHIPS LEFT OUT OF THIS AGING BATCH. THEY HAD BEEN GATHERING BARNACLES FOR ALMOST 20 YEARS IN THE HARBORS AND INLETS AROUND BALTIMORE, NEW ORLEANS, THE JAMES AND PATUXENT RIVERS, AND BREMERTON, WASH. FIFTY OF THESE HAVE BEEN SOLD SINCE THE WAR STARTED, NINE SINCE THE FIRST OF NOVEMBER. THE COMMISSION HAS JUST 68 LEFT.

THE SAME FURIOUS DRIVE THAT PUSHED THESE OFF THE WAYS HAS NOT YET TOUCHED THE AMERICAN SHIPBUILDING INDUSTRY, THOUGH YARDS ARE WORKING AT CAPACITY AND PRODUCTION IS BEING STEPPED UP. BUT SOME OF THEM REMEMBER THE PAINFUL SAG WHICH STRUCK THEM AFTER THE WORLD WAR BOOM. SOME OF THE VETERANS EYE THE EXPANSION WITH DREAD.

HOWEVER, HOWEVER, EXPERTS SAY THAT WHATEVER BOTTLENECK MAY BE SLOWING SHIP CONSTRUCTION LIES NOT IN THE YARDS THEMSELVES BUT IN THE LINES OF SUPPLY BACK OF THE YARD, CHIEFLY IN THE PRODUCTION OF ENGINES, MACHINERY AND GEARS.

CONSIDERABLE STREAMLINING OF THE BUILDING PROCESS HAS BEEN DONE. EXPERTS SPEAK OF STANDARDIZING SOME OF THE EQUIPMENT. THE MARITIME COMMISSION HAS PRODUCED FOUR TYPES OF SPECIFICATIONS WHICH SAVE PLAN-DRAWING TIME AND LOP $100,000 TO $250,000 OFF THE COST IN THAT WAY.

FOR SHIPBUILDING IN THE PAST HAS GENERALLY BEEN A TAILORING TO ORDER PROCESS. THE WHIMS OF THE INDIVIDUAL BUYER WERE TAKEN INTO CONSIDERATION. THE MARITIME COMMISSION SPECIFICATIONS, THOUGH VARIABLE TO MEET DIFFERENT NEEDS, YET PROVIDE SOMETHING OF A STANDARD DESIGN.

DEC 9-1940

NOTHING LIKE HOG ISLAND HAS GROWN UP YET, HOWEVER, THOUGH A MILD APPROACH IS BEING MADE BY THE INGALLS SHIPBUILDING CORPORATION IN ITS PLANT AT PASCAGOULA, MISS. IT IS NOT A SHIPYARD IN THE ORDINARY SENSE. MUCH OF THE MATERIAL THAT GOES INTO THE PASCAGOULA SHIPS COMES INTO THE PLANT READY MADE FROM BIRMINGHAM STEEL AND FABRICATING MILLS. WHAT PASCAGOULA HAS IS SOMETHING OF AN ASSEMBLY PLANT FOR SHIPS.

ARMY GETS DETAILS ON UNDERGROUND
HANGARS

BUILDER OF ITALIAN
SYSTEM GIVES DATA (820) PIX SERVICED

BY DEVON FRANCIS
ASSOCIATED PRESS AVIATION EDITOR

30

DEC 9-1940

(ADVANCE) NEW YORK, DEC 7--THE ARMY CAN START CONSTRUCTION OF UNDERGROUND AIRPLANE HANGARS, FUEL STORAGE RESERVOIRS AND OTHER BOMB-PROOF STRUCTURES OF MODERN WARFARE, IF IT LIKES, WITH ITALY'S VAST SUBTERRANEAN SYSTEM AS A PATTERN.

IT HAS ALL THE DETAILS.

CARLO G.FLEBUS, CONSULTING ENGINEER EMPLOYED BY THE CITY OF NEW YORK AND FOR THREE YEARS A DESIGN AND CONSTRUCTION ENGINEER FOR THE GOVERNMENT ~~OF PREMIER MUSSOLINI~~ ITALY, HAS GIVEN OFFICIAL WASHINGTON DATA NOT ONLY ON THE FASCIST AIR RAID PROTECTION SYSTEM BUT ON THE SYSTEMS OF GERMANY AND ENGLAND AS WELL.

HUGE HANGARS, SOME OF THEM HOLDING AS MANY AS 800 STORED PLANES AND OTHERS 350 PLANES READY TO ROLL ONTO ADJACENT AIRPORTS, HAVE BEEN BUILT UNDER ~~MUSSOLINI'S~~ ITALIAN GOVT DIRECTION.

UNDERGROUND CAVERNS HIDE MANUFACTURING PLANTS AND OIL AND FUEL RESERVOIRS.

ELEVATORS, AIR CONDITIONING EQUIPMENT AND, IN SOME INSTANCES, CAMOUFLAGED ENTRANCES AND EXITS CHARACTERIZE THE HOLES IN THE EARTH

OCCUPIED BY SOLDIERS, WORKERS AND CIVILIANS DRIVEN UNDERGROUND BY THE WARPLANE.

WHEN FLEBUS RETURNED TO THE UNITED STATES ELEVEN MONTHS AGO, THE FASCIST GOVERNMENT PLACED ONLY ONE PROHIBITION ON HIM--AS A POSSESSOR OF MILITARY SECRETS VITAL TO ITALIAN DEFENSE, HE MUST NOT DISCLOSE THE WHEREABOUTS OF THE VARIOUS SHELTERS HE HELPED BUILD.

HE WAS EMPHATIC IN EXPRESSING HIS BELIEF IN THE INVULNERABILITY OF INDUSTRIAL AND MILITARY ITALY TO AIR ATTACK.

THE WAR DEPARTMENT CALLED HIM TO WASHINGTON LAST AUGUST FOR CONSULTATION ON PREPARATION OF UNDERGROUND STRUCTURES TO SAVE AIRPLANES, FUEL RESERVOIRS AND IMPORTANT INDUSTRIAL PLANTS FROM DAMAGE BY BOMBS IF WAR EVER CAME AGAIN.

"EUROPE USED SPAIN FOR A LABORATORY DURING THE CIVIL WAR," FLEBUS SAID.

"FRANCE AND ENGLAND DIRECTED THE CONSTRUCTION OF FORTIFICATIONS AT SANTANDER. GERMANY AND ITALY REDUCED THOSE STRUCTURES WITH BOMBS AND ARTILLERY."

THE EFFECT OF VIBRATION LED TO INTERESTING ALTERATIONS IN ALL OF EUROPE'S HIDING PLACES. CONSTANT CONCUSSION PRODUCED FISSURES IN THE WALLS OF GOOD, SOLID BUILDINGS. THAT WAS MET BY ENCLOSING BUILDINGS WITHIN A SHELL, WITH AN AIR SPACE IN BETWEEN. THAT CUSHIONED THE SHOCK.

"THE BRITISH ARE SUFFERING TODAY," SAID FLEBUS, "BECAUSE ALL THEIR STRUCTURES ARE UNITS, WITHOUT ENCLOSING SHELLS TO ABSORB THE VIBRATION."

HE CREDITED THE GERMANS WITH SETTING THE "FINAL STANDARDS" FOR BOMBPROOF STRUCTURES AFTER CLOSE STUDY OF THE SPANISH WAR.

EUROPE'S UNDERGROUND HANGARS WITH ADJOINING AIR FIELDS ARE CLEVERLY CAMOUFLAGED, HE SAID. ITALY USES GREEN WOOD SHAVINGS EMBEDDED IN CONCRETE RUNWAYS TO HIDE AIRDROMES FROM PRYING EYES OF ENEMY AIRMEN.

NITROGEN GAS, INERT AND SAFE AROUND EXPLOSIVE LIQUIDS, IS IN COMMON USE IN EUROPE TO FORCE FUEL FROM UNDERGROUND TANKS, SAID FLEBUS, ENABLING THE WARRING COUNTRIES TO STORE HUGE QUANTITIES OF GASOLINE WITHOUT DANGER OF DETERIORATION.

"AS YET," HE SAID, "WE DO NOT USE IT IN THE UNITED STATES. INSTEAD, WE USE WATER WHICH CARRIES MANY DANGERS AND DISADVANTAGES."

HE WARNED THAT WORLD CONDITIONS MADE IT IMPERATIVE FOR THIS COUNTRY TO START CONSTRUCTION OF SUBTERRANEAN STRUCTURES IMMEDIATELY TO PROTECT ARMY AND NAVY EQUIPMENT AND STORES, INDUSTRIAL PLANTS AND CIVILIANS.

"IT TAKES AT LEAST SIX MONTHS TO STUDY AND DESIGN THE STRUCTURES," HE SAID, "AND A YEAR AFTER THAT TO BUILD THEM.

"I SHUDDER EVERY TIME I LOOK AT ALL THOSE OIL STORAGE TANKS ON THE TOP OF THE GROUND ON THE NEW JERSEY SIDE OF THE HUDSON RIVER."

OF UNDERGROUND HANGARS, FLEBUS WROTE IN THE STUDY SUBMITTED TO THE WAR DEPARTMENT:

"AIRPORTS ARE THE MAIN OBJECTS OF ATTACK BY AN ENEMY FORCE; CONSEQUENTLY THEY ARE THE MAIN OBJECT OF DEFENSE.

"THE ENGLISH AND THE ITALIANS, FAVORED BY THE NATURAL CONFORMATIONS OF THE HILLS BORDERING THEIR SHORES, TOOK ADVANTAGE OF ALL THE NATURAL GROTTOES. ENLARGED AND LINED WITH INEXPENSIVE STRUCTURAL WORK, ENTRANCES AND RUNWAYS CAMOUFLAGED, THEY OBTAINED STRATEGIC AND MAGNIFICENT HANGARS TO STORE THEIR CRAFT.

"THE FRENCH AND GERMANS, HAMPERED BY THE GEOLOGICAL AND TOPOGRAPHICAL CONFORMATION OF THEIR SOIL, WERE OBLIGED TO BUILD MORE

ELABORATE STRUCTURES TO HIDE THEIR PLANES. GAS CHAMBERS FOR THE PROTECTION OF THE PERSONNEL WERE, IN GENERAL, PROVIDED IN ALL DESIGNS...

"TRACTORS, AIR CONDITIONING, AIR PURIFYING EQUIPMENT, ELEVATORS, CATAPULTS, WATER LINES, FUEL LINES, AMMUNITION SERVICE TUNNELS, REPAIR SHOP, POWER PLANT, QUARTERS, ETC., WERE COMMON FEATURES INCLUDED IN THE DESIGN."

FLEBUS SAID SUCH BIG AIRWAY TERMINALS AS THOSE IN NEW YORK, CHICAGO, CLEVELAND AND LOS ANGELES COULD BE PROTECTED AGAINST LANDINGS BY ENEMY WARPLANES BY THE SYSTEM USED IN EUROPE.

TELESCOPIC SPRING POLES SUPPORTING HIGH TENSION WIRES ARE PLACED AT THE SIDES OF RUNWAYS. WHEN AN ALARM IS SOUNDED, THE POLES ARE RAISED AND THE WIRES BECOME BARRIERS ACROSS THE RUNWAYS. PITS DUG IN THE UNSURFACED PORTIONS OF THE FIELD EMIT SMOKE WHICH COVERS THE GROUND AND INVITES DISASTER FOR THE FLIER TRYING TO LAND OFF THE RUNWAYS.

(EDITOR'S NOTE: ON THE FRINGE OF WAR-RIDDEN EUROPE, UNDER CONSTANT THREAT OF EMBROILMENT, SWEDEN TREADS A CAUTIOUS PATH OF NEUTRALITY. KING GUSTAF AND PRIME MINISTER HANSSON, ONCE A LABORER, GUIDE THE COUNTRY DURING THESE TENSE DAYS. HERE FOLLOWS A STORY ON THESE MEN AND THEIR CURRENT ACTIVITIES.)

BY THOMAS F. HAWKINS

(ADVANCE) STOCKHOLM--(CORRESPONDENCE OF THE ASSOCIATED PRESS)--THE TWO MEN WHO STAND AT THE HEAD OF SWEDEN, ZEALOUSLY INTENT ON THE NATION'S TICKLISH JOB OF REMAINING NEUTRAL, ARE WIDELY DISSIMILAR IN BACKGROUNDS AND TASTES BUT HAVE ONE THING IN COMMON -- THEIR PALPABLE DEMOCRACY.

DEC 9-1940

ONE IS SWEDEN'S KING, GUSTAF, THE GREAT GRANDFATHER, 82, EXTREMELY THIN, STILL ADDICTED TO TENNIS AND BRIDGE, BIG GAME SHOOTING AND FAMILY GATHERINGS.

THE OTHERIS PER ALBIN HANSSON, PRIME MINISTER, BALD, 55, STURDILY BUILT AND GIVEN TO SCHNAPPS AND GIANT CIGARS ATHOME, A SHREWD POLITICAL TACTICIAN OF THE SWEDISH LABOR MOVEMENT WHOSE POLITICAL FUTURE IS STAKED ON HIS NEUTRALITY POLICY.

ONE WAS BORN TO THE THRONE; THE OTHER IN YOUTH WAS A COMMON LABORER AND SON OF A LABORER.

THE KING, ALWAYS MR. "G" ON THE TENNIS COURTS, IS A KINDLY OLD MAN, A PLAIN SWEDE INTERESTED IN THE WELFARE OS HIS FAMILY AND ENJOYING THE COMPANY OF A SMALL CIRCLE OF FRIENDS.

HIS FAMILY USUALLY ACCOMPANIES HIM TO PUBLIC FUNCTIONS SUCH AS DEDICATIONS, THE GROUP FREQUENTLY INCLUDING CROWN PRINCE GUSTAF ADOLPH

AND HIS WIFE; HIS BROTHER, PRINCE CARL, HEAD OF THE SWEDISH RED CROSS, AND ANOTHER BROTHER, PRINCE EUGEN, A HANDSOME BACHELOR OF 75, AND CROWN PRINCE GUSTAF ADOLPH'S SON AND HIS WIFE. THERE ARE SIX GREAT GRANDCHILDREN, ALL GIRLS.

THE KING USUALLY RISES ABOUT 9 A.M. AND AFTER READING THE NEWS-PAPERS PLAYS TENNIS. TWICE A WEEK HE ATTENDS A GOVERNMENT COUNCIL MEETING. SOMETIMES HE SLIPS AWAY FROM STOCKHOLM FOR A DAY'S ELK SHOOTING. HE SOMETIMES DINES WITH THE CROWN PRINCE IN THE LATTER'S APARTMENT IN STOCKHOLM CASTLE.

LATELY, HE HAS DEDICATED A NEW HOSPITAL AND OPENED A MUSEUM EXHIBIT OF DEFENSE WEAPONS. DURING THE WINTER HE WILL BE 45 MINUTES AWAY FROM STOCKHOLM AT DROTTNINGHOLM PALACE, WHERE HE WILL PLAY BRIDGE OF AN EVENING AND SLIP OUT OF A MORNING TO SHOOT RABBITS OR FOXES.

THE KING USED TO DO A LOT OF EMBROIDERY WORK, AND PLAYED THE PIANO AND ORGAN. THESE ACTIVITIES ARE VIRTUALLY OVER, THOUGH HE STILL ATTENDS THE OPERA ANDSYMPHONY CONCERTS.

PER ALBIN HANSSON DEVOTED MORE OF HIS EFFORTS TOWARD LABOR REFORM THAN TO INTERNATIONAL POLICY UP TO 1936 WHEN SWEDEN FIRST SERIOUSLY EMBARKED ON A DEFENSE PROGRAM. AT THE OUTBREAK OF THE WAR HANSSON BECAME THE STRONGEST ADVOCATE OF SWEDISH NEUTRALITY.

HE HAS FEW CLOSE FRIENDS OUTSIDE HIS WORK. HE WORKS LONG HOURS AND LIVES IN A LITTLE TWO-STORY GRAY STUCCO HOUSE, 30 MINUTES BY BUS FROM HIS GOVERNMENT OFFICE. IT IS LIKE A DOZEN OTHER HOUSES IN THE STREET, WITH A SMALL GARDEN IN THE REAR.

HANSSON LIKES A GOOD DINNER WITH SMORGASBORD AND HE LIKES CARDS. HIS MOST FREQUENT CALLER IS HIS BROTHER, A BRICKLAYER UNTIL HE BECAME HEAD OF THE GOVERNMENT'S SOCIAL WELFARE DIVISION. HANSSON'S CHILDREN ARE GROWN AND HE LIVES ALONE WITH HIS WIFE.

(SPECIAL NEWS SERVICE ADVANCE FOR AMS OF SUNDAY DEC.8)

(ADVANCE)..STOCKHOLM FIRST ADD SWEDEN BY HAWKINS (TOP MOVED AYE DEC.28)

XXX WITH HIS WIFE.

HE CAME INTO THE LABOR MOVEMENT THROUGH THE LABOR YOUTH MOVEMENT WHILE WORKING NEAR MALMO, WHERE HE WAS BORN.

EVENTUALLY HE BECAME EDITOR OF THE SOCIAL DEMOKRATEN PARTY NEWSPAPER. AFTER THE LAST WAR HE WAS MADE WAR MINISTER. IN 1932, HE BECAME PRIME MINISTER AND HAS REMAINED IN THAT OFFICE EVER SINCE EXCEPT FOR A PERIOD OF FOUR MONTHS IN 1936 WHEN THE AGRARIANS FORMED A GOVERNMENT.

THE HARDEST WORKING MEMBER OF THE ROYAL FAMILY PROBABLY IS THE CROWN PRINCE, A SIX-FOOT MAN OF 58, SWEDEN'S AMBASSADOR OF MORALE AND FORTITUDE IN THE PRESENT GRAVE PERIOD. TO HIM HAS FALLEN THE TASK OF TRAVELING UP AND DOWN THE COUNTRY, TALKING TO PEOPLE, INSPECTING NATIONAL DEFENSES, ATTENDING MANEUVERS, VISITING THE SOLDIERS AND WORKERS.

HE IS, PERHAPS, A KEENER STUDENT OF POLITICAL AND SOCIAL PROBLEMS THAN HIS FATHER, HAVING STUDIED ECONOMICS AND SOCIAL QUESTIONS WHILE HIS FATHER WAS A ROUGH AND READY SOLDIER IN HIS YOUTH.

THE CROWN PRINCE, TOO, SAW MILITARY SERVICE, BUT HIS GREATEST INFLUENCE LIES IN THE OTHER DIRECTION --- THE SOCIAL AND ECONOMIC FIELD.

RUSSIA'S TROUBLE-SHOOTER

KAGANOVICH DELIVERS

SUPPLIES TO NAZIS

ONLY SOVIET LEADER

ABLE TO COPE WITH

RAILWAY PROBLEM (770)

BY ROBERT MAGIDOFF

DEC 9-1940

(ADVANCE) MOSCOW-(CORRESPONDENCE OF THE ASSOCIATED PRESS)-THE STAR OF LAZAR M.KAGANOVICH, RUSSIA'S GREATEST ORGANIZER AND TROUBLE-SHOOTER NO. 1, IS RISING ONCE MORE AS THE SOVIET UNION IS TAKING ADVANTAGE OF HER NEUTRALITY TO BUILD UP HER WAR POTENTIAL.

UNTIL THE PURGE OF 1936-1938, KAGANOVICH WAS SECOND TO JOSEPH STALIN ALONE IN POPULARITY AND INFLUENCE, BUT THE PERIOD OF WHOLESALE ARRESTS BROUGHT NEW MEN TO THE FOREGROUND.

ACTUALLY HE NEVER LOST HIS SHARE IN DETERMINING RUSSIA'S COURSE--THE PRIVILEGE OF THE ELEVEN MEMBERS OF THE ALL-POWERFUL POLITICAL BUREAU OF THE COMMUNIST PARTY, HEADED BY STALIN.

IT IS POPULARLY BELIEVED AMONG THE RUSSIANS THAT KAGANOVICH SHARES WITH ANDREI ZHDANOFF THE DISTINCTION OF PINCH-HITTING FOR STALIN WHEN HE GOES ON VACATION.

APPOINTED VICE-PREMIER OF U.S.S.R. IN AUGUST, 1938, KAGANOVICH RETAINED HIS POST AS COMMISSAR FOR RAILWAYS, A JOB HE HAS HELD SINCE 1935 WITH A BRIEF INTERRUPTION IN 1937. KAGANOVICH THEN WAS RELIEVED OF HIS DUTIES AS COMMISSAR FOR RAILWAYS IN ORDER TO HEAD THE COMMISSARIAT FOR HEAVY INDUSTRY. BUT HIS SUCCESSOR SOON MADE SUCH A MESS OF RUSSIA'S TRANSPORT THAT KAGANOVICH HAD TO BE RECALLED TO UNDO THE DAMAGE.

DEC 9-1940

IN THE SPRING OF 1938 HE AGAIN WAS CHARGED WITH THE TASK OF INSURING TIMELY DELIVERY OF RAW MATERIALS TO INDUSTRIAL PLANTS AND DISTRIBUTION OF FINISHED PRODUCTS TO RUSSIA'S INNUMERABLE CITIES AND VILLAGES.

AS COMMISSAR FOR RAILWAYS, KAGANOVICH ALSO HAS BEEN IN CHARGE OF TRANSPORTING TROOPS, AMMUNITION AND PROVISIONS TO THE NEW, EXTENDED FRONTIERS OF THE SOVIET UNION.

THAT THIS IS NO MEAN TASK CAN BE GAUGED FROM THE FACT THAT THE TERMS ARE GENERALLY BELIEVED TO HAVE CALLED UPON THE RUSSIANS TO PROVIDE THE THIRD REICH DURING THE FIRST YEAR OF THE AGREEMENT'S OPERATION WITH A MILLION TONS OF OIL, AN EQUAL AMOUNT OF BARLEY, 100,000 TONS OF RAW COTTON, PROBABLY AS MUCH GRAIN, SOME 50,000 TONS OF MANGANESE, AND SMALLER QUANTITIES OF IRON ORE, PHOSPHATE AND OTHER RAW MATERIALS.

MOST OF THESE SUPPLIES HAVE TO BE TRANSPORTED BY RAIL THROUGH THE TEN RAILWAY LINES LINKING RUSSIA AND GERMANY IN WHAT FORMERLY WAS POLISH TERRITORY.

UNOFFICIAL REPORTS HAVE IT THAT MOSCOW HAS NOT FULFILLED SOME OF ITS OBLIGATIONS UNDER THE AGREEMENT. THE EXPLANATION GIVEN, HOWEVER, DO NOT ATTRIBUTE THIS FAILURE TO KAGANOVICH'S INABILITY TO TRANSPORT THE GOODS, BUT RATHER TO OTHER REASONS OF A POLITICAL NATURE.

KAGANOVICH'S RISE TO POWER AS AN OUTSTANDING INDUSTRIAL EXECUTIVE IN 1935 ENDED ALL TALK OF HIS BEING SLATED TO SUCCEED EVENTUALLY TO STALIN'S PLACE AS THE COMMUNIST PARTY CHIEF, PUTTING HIM RATHER IN THE RANKS OF STRICTLY ADMINISTRATIVE LEADERS LIKE PREMIER VYACHESLAFF MOLOTOFF.

KAGANOVICH LAUNCHED HIS CAREER, HOWEVER, AS A COMMUNIST PARTY FUNCTIONARY. AT VARIOUS TIMES BETWEEN 1920 AND 1935 HE HEADED PARTY ORGANIZATIONS IN CENTRAL ASIA, THE UKRAINE AND MOSCOW PROVINCE.

KAGANOVICH DIRECTED THE BUILDING OF THE FIRST SUBWAY IN MOSCOW, AND HE ALONE OF ALL THE SOVIET LEADERS PROVED ABLE TO COPE WITH THE PROBLEM OF RAILWAYS--FOR CENTURIES THE WEAKEST LINK IN RUSSIAN ECONOMY.

KAGANOVICH WAS BORN NOVEMBER 22, 1893, SON OF POOR JEWISH LEATHER WORKER IN THE UKRAINE. AT THE AGE OF 14, LAZAR BEGAN WORK AS A SHOE-MAKER, LATER AS SADDLER.

DEC 9-1941

KAGANOVICH JOINED THE BOLSHEVIKS AS A YOUTH OF 18. HE WAS ARRESTED AND EXILED IN 1915, BUT ESCAPED AND CONTINUED UNDERGROUND WORK IN VARIOUS UKRAINIAN CITIES.

A FOLLOWER OF LENIN, KAGANOVICH WAS ARRESTED BY THE KERENSKY GOVERNMENT AFTER THE MENSHEVIK REVOLUTION IN FEBRUARY, 1917. HE ESCAPED TO WHITE RUSSIA, WHERE HE WAS ACTIVE IN THE BOLSHEVIK REVOLUTION IN OCTOBER OF THE SAME YEAR.

KAGANOVICH TOOK ACTIVE PART IN THE CIVIL WAR THAT FOLLOWED, AND IN 1920 HE WAS GIVEN HIS FIRST IMPORTANT POLITICAL ASSIGNMENT AS THE COMMUNIST PARTY BOSS IN TASHKENT, CAPITAL OF UZBEKISTAN, CENTRAL ASIA.

HE BECAME A FIGURE OF NATIONAL IMPORTANCE AFTER RECEIVING THE JOB OF SECRETARY-GENERAL OF THE COMMUNIST PARTY OF THE UKRAINE IN 1925. HE HELD THIS POST FOR THREE CRUCIAL YEARS IN THE HISTORY OF SOVIET RUSSIA, AS THIS WAS THE PERIOD OF THE SHARPEST, DECISIVE CLASHES BETWEEN LEON TROTSKY AND STALIN.

AFTER TROTSKY'S BANISHMENT, KAGANOVICH BECAME THE MOST IMPORTANT JEW IN HIS COUNTRY. HE WAS APPOINTED THIRD SECRETARY-GENERAL OF THE COMMUNIST PARTY, A KEY POST WHICH HE HAS HELD EVER SINCE. TWO YEARS LATER HE WAS TRANSFERRED TO MOSCOW, AS HEAD OF THE CAPITAL'S PARTY ORGANIZATION.

DEC 9-1941

TALL AND HANDSOME, KAGANOVICH IS ONE OF THE MOST ATTRACTIVE AMONG SOVIET RUSSIA'S LEADING PERSONALITIES. EVEN AMONG THE HARD-WORKING SOVIET LEADERS HE IS CONSIDERED A "HUMAN DYANMO" CAPABLE OF SHOWING NOT A TRACE OF FATIGUE AFTER 15-16 HOURS OF INCESSANT WORK.

NAZIS BOMB LONDON FOR 9 HOURS; R.A.F. AGAIN BATTERS DÜSSELDORF; GERMANS SCUTTLE SHIP OFF CUBA

Homes, Shops, Hospitals Smashed In Violent Overnight Raid After 44-Hour Lull—Casualties Not Heavy, First Reports Indicate

Technique Used In Assault On Capital Recalls That At Coventry—British Raiders Intensify Forays Against German War Bases

DEC 10 1940

[By the Associated Press]

Berlin, Dec. 8—Many German bombers set out for London soon after nightfall, informed sources said tonight, and made a surprise gliding raid on the British capital with their engines silenced.

The German radio said the silent approach enabled the raiders to arrive over London before sirens could be sounded and that Londoners became aware of the attack only when flares were dropped, followed immediately by a rain of bombs.

The technique of the Germans was reminiscent of the devastating bombing of Coventry a month ago.

Nazi planes appeared to be taking a south-to-north route across the shrapnel-filled skies.

Casualties Appear Not Heavy

An ambulance station and a Catholic Church were struck. Shops, homes and offices collapsed, but the casualties were not heavy in first reports. Many injured by flying glass were treated at neighborhood first-aid stations.

A number of persons were reported trapped in an air-raid shelter east of London near the Thames river estuary when one bomb struck near by.

A rectory and cottages were damaged in a raid on a southeast village.

The authoritative press association's expert was reminded of the ruinous assault on the Midlands city of Coventry as the raiders, breaking through the outer circles of anti-aircraft fire, came over the city singly or in groups of three and four, varying the direction of approach.

Singly And In "Sticks"

The bombs struck various parts of the city, sometimes singly and sometimes in series or "sticks."

In one residential district I saw at least sixty incendiaries fall and burst. I joined the volunteers putting them out, but more began falling even as we worked. A few fires broke out in one district, but they were quickly extinguished.

The British set up the heaviest drum-fire barrage heard in the past two weeks.

The earliest bombing squadrons, roaring up from the Thames Estuary, dropped flares to light the ground below. Ground crews sent showers of tracer bullets upward into the wavering lights, breaking them to pieces before they could settle to earth.

But the planes roared on. One hurled a stick of seven bombs into the outskirts.

Big Guns Bombard Dover

The alarm sounded soon after nightfall. In the afternoon and at dusk big German guns on the coast of France had bombarded Dover, and the British reported one German bomber shot down in the English Channel.

But London itself had been quiet, so uncommonly quiet that nerves, rested through most of the peaceful forty-eight-hour period, began to get a little raw as people wondered what was keeping the Nazis away. To some the stillness was ominous, portending something a good deal worse than London has ever known.

Lull Laid To Bad Weather

No official comment was advanced as to the reason for the Nazi inactivity, although it was generally believed the dirty weather over Britain might have something to do with it.

Night came, the sirens began wailing and the big guns opened up.

London, it seemed, was in for a night of it.

When the raiders had turned homeward, the Ministry said, they could see far behind them a blaze which experienced crews declared was the worst they had seen in Germany since the R. A. F. attacks began.

Brest's Worst Pounding

Brest, too, was given its worst pounding of the war, the Air Ministry news service declared. Incendiaries fell on infantry barracks and the buildings between them and the naval barracks, and high explosives rained down on the port, which to old France had been an important naval base.

The dry-dock area was among the targets, the news service said, and a bomb hit a power station. There was an explosion when the station was hit, the service said, and the place looked like "a huge blacksmith's forge from which rose showers of what looked like metal mingled with the debris of shattered buildings."

As Bad As Wednesday Night's

The R. A. F. also attacked Lorient, Antwerp, Dunkirk, Calais and Boulogne.

The Air Ministry communique on the Düsseldorf attack suggested the raid was just another one in a series to reduce the city of 500,000 population to worthlessness so far as its productive power goes.

"Düsseldorf is getting little respite from the R. A. F.," the communique said. It noted that "full details" were not yet available, then added that the destructiveness of the raid was certainly as bad as the Wednesday night attack, which was the longest any German city has suffered since the war began.

"There was good visibility and our pilots had no difficulty in recognizing their targets and observing the results of their bombing. Railways, factory buildings and waterways showed up brilliantly beneath the moon," the communique said.

Destruction At Düsseldorf

"Roofs caved in and explosions tore the walls of the great steel works wide open, and one crew, though experienced in raids over Germany, declared that the largest fire ever seen was left blazing in Düsseldorf last night."

At Lorient, a naval station, fifteen fires were counted in one section alone near the dry dock. Shipbuilding yards and ordnance works also were attacked, and fires were started near the submarine refueling wharves, the news service said.

Nazi Airdromes Bombed

Several airdromes in Holland, Belgium and France were also bombed. The British lost four planes.

On the Mediterranean front, the news service said, British bombers destroyed at least eight planes on the ground at Castel Benito, near Tripoli, last night and set fire to hangars at the airport. Other planes were reported damaged by incendiary bombs and machine-gun bullets. All British planes returned safely, it said.

DEC 10 1940

Damage From Raiders "Slight," Germans Say

Berlin, Dec. 8 (AP)—British bombers attacking occupied areas and western Germany last night "slightly" damaged factories in three places and killed six persons in one raid, the German high command announced today.

Several others were injured, the communique added.

Informed quarters said a limited number of British planes attempted to fly into German territory during the night.

German bombers subjected London to one of the heaviest attacks since September, informed sources said early today.

From airports in German-held Holland, Belgium and France, chains of German bombing units roared off against the British capital.

They began their attack early in the night, it was said, gliding down on the capital with silenced engines for a surprise raid.

A limited number of British planes attempted to fly into German territory last night, informed quarters said.

Soon after crossing the western frontier, the British were subjected to heavy anti-aircraft fire and were forced to dispose of their bombs while over open country, it was said. The British were reported turned back, with one plane shot down.

Returning pilots said the weather favored German attacks, moonlight offering good visibility After the third hour of bombardment, numerous fires were observed. The flames were said to enshroud various city blocks.

At sea, the Germans said, a submarine sank two "enemy" merchant ships aggregating 17,000 tons, and another submarine sent to the bottom two more totaling 12,000 tons. One of the vessels was described as a 9,000-ton tanker.

The Germans said four British planes were shot down yesterday, three by anti-aircraft fire, and that two German planes were missing.

Two British steamers off the east coast of England were reported bombed early today and D.N.B., German news agency, said both probably would be destroyed.

D.N.B. said German planes attacking a coal ship thirty-five kilometers (almost twenty-two miles) east of the Humber mouth scored bomb hits admidships, then peppered the top deck with machine-gun fire. Flames were said to have broken out on the ship.

Bomb Disposers Get Badges

LONDON, Dec. 8 (AP).—The War Office announced today a special badge for men in bomb disposal units—a bomb embroidered in gold on a red background, to be worn on the lower left sleeve.

Overnight Assault On London Ends As Fog Envelops City

By J. NORMAN LODGE
Associated Press Correspondent

London, Monday, Dec. 9—A violent nine-hour overnight German air assault ended early today as fog closed in to cover the new gaping wounds of the great city.

DEC 10 1940

Londoners, who had forty-four hours of quiet shattered by mass bombing that started early last night, resumed the tragic poll of dead and wounded, smashed homes, shops and hospitals.

The thunder of anti-aircraft guns died down as rescue workers labored in the debris.

Flares, Bombs, Explosives

The Germans worked with all their customary trappings—first flares, then fire bombs, then high explosives.

The British Press Association said "bombs crashed on a number of districts in and around London."

Both residences and business houses were demolished in the already bomb-scarred capital. The nurses' home of a children's hospital was hit by a time bomb, it was reported, but there were no casualties.

ARGIROCASTRO IS CAPTURED; ATHENS EXULTS

Greek Capital Orders 3-Day Celebration To Mark Major Victory

ATHENS, Dec. 8 (AP)—Greek troops marched into Argyrokastron, last Italian base on the Albanian frontier from which Italy intended to overrun Greece, it was officially announced today.

The capture of the base removed the Italians' remaining airdrome in Southern Albania, and the Greeks said Italian attempts to prevent huge military stores from falling into Greek hands were unsuccessful.

The nearest Italian air bases now are at Valona and Berat. The former is on the Adriatic coast, along which the Greek Army is advancing after the capture of Porto Edda, and the latter is not far inland and is a site of Albanian oil production.

The retreating Italians are being harassed by the Greek cavalry and bombed and machine-gunned by airplanes, latest reports from the front said.

Field Marshal Alexander Papagos, congratulated by Premier General Metaxas, thanked the Premier and issued a general order congratulating the units that occupied Argyrokastron.

Church bells pealed throughout Athens to celebrate capture of this, the last of Italy's invasion bases on the Albanian frontier. It signaled that two days of mopping up around the mountain-fringed town had been completed.

Three days of celebration were ordered to mark this major success. It meant that the entire Italian line in the frontier region had collapsed. Jubilant crowds poured into the streets of this ages-old capital.

Premier General John Metaxas and high officers appeared at an open window of general staff headquarters here to wave to crowds cheering the Greek army "on to Rome."

"An Important Victory"

The Government spokesman said:

"Greek troops occupied Argirocastro at 12.15 P. M. It is an important victory.

"Very large quantities of materials and many prisoners were taken. They are uncounted yet.

"The Premier (Gen. John Metaxas) has been able to communicate by telephone with the commanding officer of the forces which occupied Argirocastro and has congratulated him.

Italian Flight Reported

"After the occupation of Delvino (announced last night) the enemy fled northwest, pursued by our troops which had been able to capture important quantities of material which was put to use immediately—this despite the enemy's efforts to destroy it.

"Other villages and divisions (areas) were taken by our troops. More to the north, other Alpinist units were beaten by our infantry."

Front dispatches and a communique of the British Royal Air Force, which is an integral factor in the Greek advance into Albania, pictured a general withdrawal of Italian forces under aerial bombardment, of die-hard resistance by rear-guard outposts, of roads jammed with refugees fleeing toward Tirana, Albanian capital, and of Italian prisoners streaming past the advancing Greeks as they slogged over mountain roads through rain and snow.

The R. A. F. announced that two days ago Greek naval units captured an Italian destroyer already badly damaged by British bombs, when they occupied Porto Edda, fifteen miles southwest of Argirocastro.

Italy's fighting retreat pivoted on Klisura Pass, on the road between Premet and Tepelini, where counter-invading Greeks had driven more than twenty miles through the Italian lines.

Farther northeast at the inland extremity of the battle front, the Greek advance aimed at Elbasani, on the road to Tirana, was said to be rapid.

New Heights Occupied

The Greeks on the right wing were based on captured Pogradetz, and every report from this sector told of the capture of new heights, although exact positions were not stated.

Italian losses there were said to be severe. In one position alone—apparently a rearguard post left to cover the withdrawal—fifty Italian dead were found by a Greek advance party.

R. A. F. Backs Offensive

There were no accurate figures on the number of prisoners, but observers told of meeting detachments being escorted to the Greek rear lines in every sector.

The R. A. F. supported the Greeks' general offensive yesterday with an attack on "enemy shipping" off the Albanian coast.

"There was a direct hit on the stern of one ship and many near misses," the R. A. F. communique reported.

Despite unfavorable weather, the Britons raided the port of Valona, about fifty miles northwest of Porto Edda, and were met by "heavy enemy fighter opposition." Nevertheless, the R. A. F. said, all bombs fell in the target area.

The Italian destroyer reported seized at Porto Edda was struck by two direct hits in a British bombardment two days before Porto Edda fell to the Greek land forces.

Greeks Report Capture Of New Points In North

Struga, Yugoslavia (Near Yugoslav-Albanian Border), Dec. 8 (AP)—Greek forces have captured strong Italian mountain positions near the village of Radokal, near the Yugoslav border, and have gained an opening to advance west through the Shkumbi river valley toward Elbasani, it was reported here tonight.

The Greeks were said to have suffered heavy losses.

They also were said to have cleared the way for an advance to the northeast to attack Lin, just across the Yugoslav border.

ROME, Dec. 8 (AP)—Mario Appelius, commentator in Premier Mussolini's newspaper Il Popolo d'Italia, cited British press dispatches as authority that the Italians were retreating in Albania in good style.

According to the British source, Signor Appelius said, attempts to cut the retreat of Fascist contingents on the road around Lake Ochrida failed "notwithstanding furious Greek efforts" and the Greeks have been unable to touch Italian positions in the Tepeleni sector.

In the air, the high command reported Italian bombardments of the Greek towns of Preveza and Ithaca.

ARGYROKASTRON A KEY CITY

Town Is One of Albania's Chief Communication Centers

Argyrokastron, one of Albania's chief communication centers, is a city of some 10,000 normal population about fifteen miles inland from Porto Edda, the chief southern port, The Associated Press states.

Settled sixteen centuries ago, the city is a conglomerate of the very old and the new. The ancient silver crafts for which Argyrokastron became famous throughout the Balkans are still carried on.

A good highway links the city with Tepeleni and the Port of Valona on the northwest and with Porto Edda on the southwest.

The plague of 1814 nearly wiped out Argyrokastron during one of its most prosperous periods.

In the Balkan wars of 1912-13 it suffered heavily and later was claimed unsuccessfully by the Greeks. During the World War, when Greece and Italy were allies, Argyrokastron was first occupied by the Greeks and then by the Italians.

There, in June, 1917, an Italian general proclaimed the independence of all Albania under the protection of Italy. Later the Italians and other foreign forces withdrew from the country and its independence was confirmed.

Wounded Greeks And Italians Lie Side By Side In Hospital

Both Getting Equal Treatment At Salonika Institution, Writer Says After Visit

By DANIEL DE LUCE
Associated Press Correspondent

Salonika, Greece, Dec. 8—Hundreds of Italian wounded were carried down today to a Greek base hospital from the mountainous northern front in Albania.

They came in Red Cross trucks over roads deep in slush to the Phlorina railroad terminus in upper Macedonia where doctors sorted out those with a chance to live from those whose luck had run out. But they did their best for both.

"Grazia," many Italians whispered as their wounds were dressed.

Soup Brings Smiles

When young nurses brought soup to men who had gone hungry for days during the fighting on cliffs in the Albanian mountain wilderness, they broke into wide smiles. (Here thirty-one words censored.)

As far as I could see Italian and Greek casualties were getting equal treatment behind the lines. All the food, housing and medical attention I saw were identical, and to the limit of Greek resources.

In some hospitals, wounded soldiers of both armies lay side by side.

Italian privates fraternized willingly with the Greeks who ministered to them.

"Soddisfatti!" (we are satisfied) they exclaimed—and most added that they hoped the war would end soon.

Told that Marshal Pietro Badoglio had resigned Friday as army chief of staff, they shook their heads and said they couldn't believe it.

"Sometimes they say bad things about Mussolini when their wounds hurt most," a 17-year-old nurse told me. "I think it would be good propaganda if we could send them back to Italy. The ones that recover would tell their comrades in arms how they were treated in Greece."

Officers Are Husky

A group of wounded Fascist officers, including a colonel, were husky, powerful men, who bore little physical resemblance to many privates, who appeared gaunt and frail. (Here twelve words censored.)

"They are professional soldiers," one doctor said, explaining their silence. "Their pride, too, has been wounded."

He looked at the chart of a gray-faced captain with a smashed knee.

"He suffers much, but he doesn't complain," he said.

Salonika Greeks Mistake Celebration for an Alarm

By The Associated Press.

SALONIKA, Greece, Dec. 8—Many Greeks were late tonight for the celebration that followed the official announcement of the fall of the Albanian city of Argyrokastron.

Salonika had a taste of air raids last month, and so when the whistles and bells got going tonight hundreds of Greeks mistook the sounds for an alarm and dashed into cellars.

TWO ITALIAN GENERALS DIE IN AIR CRASH

Members Of French-Italian Armistice Commission Killed

Pintor, Famed Artillery Officer, And Pellegrini, Of Air Force, Perish

[By the Associated Press]

Rome, Dec. 8—The death of two Italian generals in a plane crash yesterday was disclosed today in a communique.

Those killed were Gens. Pietro Pintor and Aldo Pellegrini, both members of the Italian-French Armistice Commission.

The communique named only the two generals, but said all aboard the military plane, including "some members" of the commission—apparently besides Pintor and Pellegrini—were killed on a flight from Rome to Turin, Italy's northern industrial center.

Headed Armistice Group

General Pintor, 60, a distinguished artillery officer who was promoted to army corps general in 1937, was president of the Armistice Commission.

He was a veteran of the World War, the Libyan War, 1926-1928, and the Ethiopian War, 1935-1936. He was sent to east Africa in command of the regular Cosseria division when Italy mobilized it for the drive against Ethiopia.

Led Regiment At Piave

Pintor was attached to the high command as an artillery consultant in the World War and also led his own regiment in the victory of the Piave.

This victory turned the tide in Italy's favor. So brilliant was Pintor's work that he won the military Order of the House of Savoy, the silver Medal of Valor and promotion for war merit.

Like Pintor, General Pellegrini, 52, was a veteran of the Libyan war. A flyer in the late Marshal Italo Balbo's good-will flight to Chicago in 1938, he headed the office of air traffic and civil aviation in the Air Ministry at the time of his death.

Second Tragedy Of Kind

This was the second time that air crashes have taken a toll of armistice commission officers and the second time they have taken the lives of high Italian officers.

Balbo died last June 29 when the plane he was flying over Tobruk, Libya, crashed. Italians said he was shot down by a British warplane, but the British denied this and other sources said his death was a mystery that might never be explained.

Last October 10 three French and four German officers, members of the French-German Armistice Commission, and six German soldiers were killed when their plane fell into the Mediterranean in a severe storm when they were flying from north Africa to France. No names of the victims were announced.

Four Recent Major Shifts Of High Italian Officers

Rome, Dec. 8 (AP)—Since the start of the Greek invasion—admittedly still in reverse—there have been four major shifts in the Italian fighting services, two in the high command and two on the front, in this order:

1. In Albania, Gen. Ubaldo Soddu, Under Secretary of War, sent to the front to shake up the offensive against Greece (presumably superseding Gen. Visconti Prasa).
2. Chief of the Italian general staff, Marshal Pietro Badoglio, "Italy's Hindenburg," succeeded by Gen. Ugo Cavallero.
3. In the Dodecanese Islands, General Count Cesare Maria de Vecchi di Val Cismon, commander there and one of the original big four of Fascism, replaced by Gen. Ettore Bastico.
4. Chief of staff of the navy, Admiral Domenico Cavagnari, succeeded by Admiral Arturo Riccardi.

RICCARDI, WHO COMES FROM A LINE OF ITALIAN COUNTS, WAS BORN 62 YEARS AGO AT PAVIA AND WAS MADE A SENATOR ABOUT A YEAR AGO. CAMPIONE IS THE SAME AGE AND BECAME A SENATOR AT THE SAME TIME.

AS GEN. CAVALLERO FORMALLY TOOK COMMAND AS ARMY CHIEF OF STAFF WITH A BRIEF ORDER OF THE DAY SAYING "WE SHALL PUT ALL OUR STRENGTH INTO REACHING THE SUPREME GOAL OF VICTORY," THE HIGH COMMAND ACKNOWLEDGED CONTINUED PRESSURE AGAINST THE NINTH ARMY IN ALBANIA BUT SAID THE ATTACKS "WERE THROWN BACK BY OUR TROOPS."

BRITISH SEE DUCE AT GRAVEST CRISIS

Experts View Shifts in Rome as Sign He Is Losing Grip After Major Blunders

REPORTS OF UNREST CITED

Further Blows to Disillusioned People, It Is Contended, Would Bring Collapse

LONDON, Dec. 8 (AP)—British military circles, cautiously optimistic about the course the war with Italy is taking, expressed the opinion tonight that the unexpected changes in the Italian Army and Navy High Command were "another sign" that Premier Mussolini was on the toughest spot in his career.

Some officers even went so far as to declare he was losing his grip "after two major political blunders"—his declaration of war against France and Britain last June and his Greek adventure. Both undertakings, these men said, apparently were started on the false assumption that victory would be cheap.

The surprising quality of Greek resistance, the British blockade and the "increasingly effective" British bombing, the officers said, had softened Italy to a dangerous degree.

Public Unrest Expected

Military experts not only put credence in reports reaching London of unrest and disorders in Northern Italy but also said "we have been expecting it." They said British broadcasts and leaflets, plus reports trickling back from the front, had made it impossible for Signor Mussolini to conceal the true state of affairs in Albania.

The fact that Marshal Rodolfo Graziani's army, poised for months for an attack on Egypt and the Suez Canal, is still waiting was regarded as another source of disquietude on the Italian home front.

Experts here are not brash enough to predict an immediate collapse, but they believe Italy is becoming groggy and that unrest and disillusionment among the people will set in and grow apace, and that if more blows are struck against the Fascisti Italy will reach a point where collapse cannot be avoided.

One officer suggested that the reason behind the changes in the Italian High Command was the necessity of finding men willing to carry out whole-heartedly the political and military policies of the Premier and avoid a growing split between the Fascisti and the Italian Army.

Badoglio Opposition Seen

This man had no doubt that Marshal Pietro Badoglio, who has never been a Fascist, opposed the Greek campaign, which turned out to be such a grievous misadventure, politically as well as militarily. The politicians, this man said, apparently underestimated the strength of the Greek resistance and the army therefore was inadequately prepared.

What part Reichsfuehrer Hitler might have had in the High Command changes, supposing he had anything at all to do with the shake-up, was naturally not known here, but it appeared to be becoming clear in the minds of observers that German diplomacy was at work to persuade the Greeks to accept peace.

British naval circles expressed belief that the appointment of Admiral Angelo Jachino as commander of Italy's "fleet on the sea" might foreshadow a more offensive spirit by Fascist naval forces. A former Italian naval attaché here, he was described as a young man for so important a command. Admiral Domenico Cavagnari, who resigned as Chief of the Naval Staff, these sources said, owed his position "more to his political opinions than his reputation as a seaman."

Cairo Watches Dodecanese

CAIRO, Egypt, Dec. 8 (AP)—Internal events in Italy arising out of the Italian-Greek war are being watched closely by British military authorities here with emphasis on the position of the Dodecanese Islands in the Eastern Mediterranean.

Special attention was paid to the announcement of the resignation of General Cesare Maria de Vecchi, Governor of the Dodecanese Islands, where Premier Mussolini is reliably reported to have about 50,000 troops.

Since the British occupied Crete early in November, the British and Greek fleets have successfully blockaded Italy's island fortresses in the Eastern Mediterranean, which, like Ethiopia, now have no sea communications with the homeland and must rely on aircraft.

The Italian troops are reported garrisoned mainly on the islands of Rhodes and Leros. The latter has been turned into an important naval base, which the Italians at one time made no secret of intending to use as a base for operations against the Suez Canal.

The islands were well stocked with war materials, but Greek inhabitants who have escaped to Crete lately say food supplies are running low. Italy took the islands from Turkey in 1911, but nine-tenths of the population is Greek by descent and religion and all speak Greek despite attempts to spread Italian culture among them.

Significantly, Greek authorities are recruiting Greek citizens who came originally from the islands for a "special mission." In Egypt, discriminatory measures against Italian nationals are not applied to those of Dodecanese descent.

SOVIET ARMY'S PAPER SEES NAZI AID TO ITALY

Red Star Says Fascisti Have Difficulty Getting to Albania

MOSCOW, Dec. 8 (AP)—Red Star, the Russian Army newspaper, said today that Italy was having difficulty in transporting troops to Albania and declared that the British Navy had isolated Italy's Dodecanese Islands. It suggested that Germany planned intensification of air and sea warfare against Britain to draw her attention away from the Italian-Greek front.

The Russian Government newspaper Izvestia, marking the 120th anniversary of the founding of Russia's Artillery Academy, declared that Red Army technique was the best in the world and that the army was the greatest in number.

Red Star emphasized Joseph Stalin's "tireless efforts from the days of the civil war until the present to insure the growth and striking power of Soviet artillery, which he calls the 'God of War.'"

The Defense Commissar, Marshal Semyon Timoshenko, congratulating the academy on its anniversary, declared that its graduates had displayed heroism on battlefields and had also helped Soviet industry to produce powerful artillery equipment for the Red Army.

Sixteen professors of the academy received Soviet decorations. Twenty other teachers received prizes from Marshal Timoshenko.

INDO-CHINA'S HOPES OF PEACE DWINDLE

Governor Decoux Says No New Ground for Conversations With Thailand Is Sought

DEC 9 1940

JAPANESE DEMAND DENIED

Colony Will Resist Attack and Strive for Improvement in Trade Position

HANOI, French Indo-China, Dec. 8 (AP)—Admiral Jean Decoux, Governor General of Indo-China, held little hope of an imminent settlement of the border dispute with Thailand in an interview granted tonight amid reports of mounting frontier hostilities.

"The French attitude remains unchanged and no new grounds for conversations are being sought," he said.

Despite military concessions to Japan in the north and her troubles with Thailand in the south and west, Indo-China intends to retain complete authority within her borders, he said.

In this connection he added that "Indo-China has not received any Japanese demands regarding South Indo-China."

[A Domei, Japanese news agency, dispatch received from Hanoi in Hong Kong said that Thailand troops crossed the Cambodian frontier twice yesterday. Ground troops attacked a small village and Thai planes machine-gunned it. Simultaneously, the dispatch said, Thai bombers attacked Vien Tiane in Laos Province.]

Thailand has completed the evacuation of all her nationals living in Indo-China and communications between the two countries are severed except for a cable link via Singapore.

Offer Rudely Answered

Admiral Decoux said that France's offer to put the border dispute in the hands of a neutral commission was answered by Thailand's "rude radio, press and handbill campaign."

Indo-China is seeking increased trade with Japan and the United States, the Admiral said.

Since the arrival of the Japanese, Indo-China politically has aimed to maintain entire French authority in Indo-China, according to the treaty, and to develop trusting, friendly dealing with Japan. The purpose of the economic mission to Tokyo is to develop two-way trade, simplify formalities and lower custom rates.

Indo-China's trade with the United States "will not be abandoned," he said. For the last six months America has purchased nearly all of Indo-China's rubber and tungsten, he added.

He saw a reciprocal desire on the part of the United States to maintain close trade relations with Indo-China because of America's attitude in balancing power in the Pacific, but said Japan was the principal potential source of supply for Indo-China since the colony has been cut off from France.

France, he said, has given Indo-China complete control of customs effective Jan. 1, whereafter certain goods from all countries will be permitted free of duty if those countries reciprocate.

U. S. EVACUEES FROM ORIENT ARRIVE HOME

Most Of Liner's 1,342 Americans Are Women And Children

Ship Travels 20,000 Miles In Six Weeks To Complete Task

[By the Associated Press]

San Francisco, Dec. 8—A throng of 1,342 Americans, most of them women and children evacuating a troubled Orient, arrived here today expressing reluctance at leaving husbands and fathers across the Pacific.

Of the group, which arrived aboard the liner Washington, 904 were wives and children of American naval personnel, ordered to return to the United States because of tension between this country and Japan.

Others were families of army men, and some were civilians from the Shanghai area returning here at the urgent advice of the Government.

Diverted To Orient

The liner, commanded by the veteran captain, Harry Manning, was diverted to the Orient for the express purpose of removing the Americans, and carried back the largest group ever to cross the Pacific on a merchantman.

Captain Manning, who previously had brought back Americans from war-torn Europe, said the steward's department served an average of 6,000 meals a day crossing the Pacific.

"This ship has traveled 20,000 miles in six weeks, and has carried about 5,000 passengers," he said. "There has been no trouble, no difficulty. The crew worked hard and willingly."

Women's Point Of View

The attitude of the women was summed up by Mrs. H. A. House, wife of a navy lieutenant, who is the former Anita Page, of the movies:

"I hated to leave my husband, and that's true of every one of us navy wives. But we were practically forced to leave. It didn't seem necessary to us. After all, in our little group, there's practically no war talk." Mrs. House is en route to Hollywood.

Mrs. Harry Biszmaier, wife of a navy electrician at Manila, added:

"It's grand to be back, but, gosh, how I hated to leave my husband."

aboard the vessel, which had accommodations for about 1,100 passengers. To care for the overflow, extra cots were set up in many staterooms.

Several days of stormy weather were encountered on the thirteen-day voyage from Manila.

Nazi Freighter Fleeing Mexico Caught by British in Caribbean

Washington Says English Warship Crew Took Over Ship Fired by Germans; Havana Lays Sinking to Torpedo; Roosevelt Cruising in Waters

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Dec. 8.—The Navy Department reported tonight that the 5,033-ton German freighter Idarwald had been scuttled and set afire by her Nazi crew off Cuba at the approach of a British cruiser.

The British sailors were said to have boarded the flaming vessel after it was abandoned by its own men, brought the flames under control, hauled down the Swastika flag and hoisted the British ensign. The British cruiser Diomede is known to have been in the vicinity.

Reports conflicted, however, as to the fate of the freighter. The Cuban Navy reported that the British warship torpedoed her, but officials here had no confirmation of this. There also was no word immediately as to what became of the crew.

A spokesman indicated the exact location of the action had not been established definitely so far, but that it was within the Pan-American neutrality zone. State Department officials were watching the situation closely, but there was no comment.

The Navy was understood to be obtaining additional reports, but officials were reluctant to make them public until an authenticated account of the affair could be obtained.

[President Roosevelt, on an inspection cruise in the Caribbean, stopped on Sunday at the French Island of Martinique, about 900 miles from Cuba. He conferred aboard the cruiser Tuscaloosa with American officials.]

Two Versions of Sinking

HAVANA, Dec. 8 (AP).—The blockade-running German freighter Idarwald was intercepted in the Caribbean Sea by a British cruiser today and was either scuttled by her crew or sunk by a torpedo. The Cuban Navy Department said the ship had been sunk by a torpedo. The crew got away in their boats.

The attack on the Nazi ship, which with another Nazi freighter, the Rhein, left Tampico, Mexico, in an attempt to run the blockade, came well within the American neutrality zone.

The Cuban Navy Department and wireless stations in Cuba and the United States intercepted a brief message saying the Idarwald had been torpedoed and that her crew was abandoning her in a sinking condition. The operator indicated he did not have time to say more because of the quickness of the sinking. Then the radio went silent.

The frantic message of the Idarwald was the first reported from her since she slipped away from port. "Being attacked by English warship off coast of Cuba. . . . Ship sinking south of Cuba. . . . No time now. . . . Leaving ship," the message said.

The reported sinking or capture was seventy-five miles from the south coast port of Cienfuegos, between the Isle of Pines and Grand Caiman Island, according to officials of the Cuban Department of Communications radio bureau.

Jose Arcilai, radio operator, picked up the distress signal of the Idarwald at 2:30 p. m. Arcilai is operator of the government radio telegraph station at Central Chaparra, American-owned sugar mill in Oriente Province. Officials expressed belief the Idarwald was trying to reach refuge at Cienfuegos.

There still was no word of the Rhein, 6,031 tons. The last message from her was reported shortly after she left Mexico, when she sent urgent calls to a station in Tampico. One operator also said he picked up a message from an unidentified station saying: "Rhein being followed by warships," but nothing further was reported from or about her.

Misfortune From Start

Misfortune dogged the Idarwald almost from the start of the venture. First to enter the open sea, she ran aground on a bar outside Tampico, but refloated herself without assistance and sailed away. The Rhein followed several miles in her wake.

The two ships found haven in Tampico early in the war. There was some speculation that they were en route to a rendezvous in the Atlantic with German war vessels, but the Idarwald gave Vigo, Spain, as her destination, and the Rhein said she was headed for Tenerife, in Spain's Canary Islands. Both were reported carrying limited cargoes of fuel and provisions.

The Rhein and Idarwald were with the German freighters Orinoco and Phrygia when the quartet vainly attempted to leave Tampico Nov. 15. The Orinoco turned back because of engine trouble and last was reported preparing to sail again. The Rhein and Idarwald beat a hasty retreat to harbor when they sighted warships their officers believed to be British. The Phrygia was scuttled by her captain. Later it developed that American destroyers had been on neutrality patrol in those waters.

Still in Tampico Harbor with the Orinoco were ten Italian vessels, which sought refuge there when Italy entered the war.

Believed Seeking Refuge

Officials expressed belief the Idarwald was trying to reach refuge at Cienfuegos.

Naval authorities said there were no reports from the south coast indicating the Idarwald's crew, if able to abandon ship and get away, had reached land there.

The Cuban molasses tanker Mambi, sailing south of the Isle of Pines, reported to the Cuban Government radio tonight it had picked up the Idarwald's distress signal and was proceeding at full speed east toward Cienfuegos in an effort to locate the freighter and lend assistance to her crew, if possible.

The Mambi, owned by the Cuban Distilling Company, reported it believed the Idarwald at the time was close to the Cuban south coast between Cienfuegos and Manzanillo.

IDARWALD'S FATE PLEASES BRITISH

English In Mexico Awaiting Details Of Scuttling Of Nazi Freighter

Note That Disaster Has Overtaken Most German Ships Seeking To Escape

[By the Associated Press]

Mexico City, Dec. 8—British sources here expressed satisfaction tonight over reports that a British cruiser had intercepted the German freighter Idarwald today, but said thus far they had received no advices on the incident.

"Empire naval units operating in the general vicinity of the Caribbean Sea were advised at the time of the departure and general course of both the Idarwald and Rhein. Since then, however, we have had no news," these circles said.

No authoritative German source could be reached for comment.

Nazi Ships Meet Disaster

Disaster has overtaken virtually all German ships seeking to escape Mexican ports, made prisonlike by lurking British and Canadian warcraft, to which they fled at the outbreak of the war.

The German liner Columbus, speeding out of Veracruz after three months there in a bold bid to reach Hamburg, was scuttled in mid-Atlantic last year by its crew after being overtaken by a British destroyer.

The freighter Arauca, which left Veracruz with the Columbus, was forced into the port of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., by a British cruiser within a few hours of the sinking of the Columbus. It was held there by a legal action.

Wholesale Flight A Fiasco

Only last month a wholesale attempt to flee Tampico by the Idarwald and Rhein and two companion ships—the freighter Phrygia and passenger-cargo boat Orinoco—ended in the scuttling of the Phrygia and the hasty return of the three others. The Orinoco suffered an engine breakdown.

The German captains reported they were signaled to halt by unidentified warships, later said to have been members of the United States neutrality patrol.

A Canadian commerce raider captured the German freighter Weser shortly after the Nazi vessel steamed out of the Pacific port of Manzanillo.

The fate of the Havelland, German freighter that sailed this year from Manzanillo, remains unknown. No word has been received of the ship's movements since she left Manzanillo.

Carnarvon Castle's Sailors Believe Prowler Already May Be Caught

Aircraft Carrier Expected To Join Hunt For Fugitive Ship

[By the Associated Press]

Montevideo, Uruguay, Dec. 8—Confident that their adversary also had been damaged and would be caught and smashed, the crew of Britain's battered 20,122-ton auxiliary cruiser Carnarvon Castle left the search of the South Atlantic today to other British warships.

While the Carnarvon Castle remained laid up here getting new plates to close the shell holes in her hull, the 7,580-ton British cruiser Enterprise and another warship in the vicinity of the 90-minute battle Thursday were said to have taken up the chase.

Raider Believed Caught

Some of the Carnarvon Castle's crewmen were sure the German raider already had been caught. Her commander, Capt. H. M. H. Hardy, said "the German ship undoubtedly suffered much more damage" than his, and some reports said she broke off the fight and fled aflame.

The German raider has not been identified, but authoritative sources say there are prowling Nazi motor ships equipped with special engines, ultra-modern cannon and electric, centralized fire-control which have been causing the British much concern.

Unless the raider already has been caught, British circles said, it is likely that an aircraft carrier will join the hunt to clear the South Atlantic of the German threat to a vital British food line.

While a Uruguayan commission has not yet reported the time necessary to make the Carnarvon Castle seaworthy, reports in British circles said she would leave some time Tuesday to rejoin the South Atlantic anti-raider patrol.

TANKER REPORT Q-BOAT ATTACK OFF LIBERIA

"Fired On By Mysterious Ship," Norse Craft Flashes

British Steamer Torpedoed, Also Off West Africa

[By the Associated Press]

New York, Dec. 8—A Q-boat—disguised raider—attack on the Norwegian motor tanker Hidlefjord off the West African coast was indicated tonight in a distress signal picked up by Mackay Radio, which also reported the torpedoing of a British steamer along the same coast.

Mackay said it received the following message from the Hidlefjord: "QQQ . . . Hidlefjord . . . being fired on by mysterious ship . . ." The time of the attack was given as 7.10 P. M.

The Hidlefjord, 7,639 tons, gave her position as less than one hundred miles southwest of Monrovia, capital of Liberia, on the West African coast.

Torpedoed, Ship Reports

The other message, Mackay said, was relayed by a British station, and said: "SSS . . . British S. S. Empire Jaguar . . . torpedoed."

The time of attack was 6.40 P. M.

The "SSS" signal indicated an attack by a submarine, Mackay said. The British vessel's position was given as approximately one hundred miles northeast of Dakar, scene of the attempted "Free French" landing by Gen. Charles de Gaulle several weeks ago. Dakar is on the coast of French West Africa.

The Empire Jaguar is not listed in Lloyd's register. A number of boats recently launched or acquired by the British—some of them from the United States—have been given an "Empire" designation.

Followed By Submarine

Earlier in the day the 4,070-ton former French freighter Djurdjura, sailing under British colors, signalled that she was being "followed by submarine" 550 miles west of Foynes, Ireland.

Mackay Radio heard the SSS call relayed by the Portishead station at 11.45 A. M. The eighteen-year-old vessel traded between France and Africa before the war.

Greek Ship In Distress

Her position, "latitude 53.06 north, longitude 22.00 west," was approximately one hundred miles west of that given by the storm-battered Greek freighter Aghiaeirini, calling for "immediate assistance" for the fourth time in four days.

The Greek, one of five ships which sent calls for aid after being disabled by "heavy gales" last Thursday, had sent three previous S O S calls.

This morning, still afloat with twenty-nine men aboard, she radioed that she was drifting helplessly with "holds full of water" and her "helm out of action."

GIBRALTAR, Dec. 8—General Agustin Munoz Grande, military governor of Algeciras, paid an unofficial visit to this British fortress yesterday and had luncheon on the aircraft carrier Ark Royal, whose "sinking" Spanish radio stations recently have been announcing.

General Munoz Grande was the guest on the Ark Royal of her commander, Captain C. S. Holland, who took him on a tour of the ship.

Flandin, Deat May Get Posts In Vichy Rule

Shake-Up Expected to Put Pro-Germans in Interior and Justice Ministries

BERNE, Dec. 8 (AP).—Marshal Henri Petain of France is planning a government shake-up to bring into his Cabinet former Premier Pierre-Etienne Flandin, a pre-war exponent of an understanding with Germany, and perhaps others to replace ministers opposing Vice-Premier Pierre Laval on the issue of collaboration with Germany, diplomatic reports from France said tonight.

It was reported that Flandin soon might replace Marcel Peyrouton as Minister of the Interior, and that former Air Minister Marcel Deat, also a pre-war advocate of Franco-German co-operation, might be chosen as Minister of Justice to replace Raphael Alibert.

Flandin and Deat, these reports added, might establish their departments in Paris and function there as the two who could deal best with the German authorities. Flandin heretofore has been either in Paris or in the provinces, but has shunned Vichy. However, he appeared there yesterday and was still there during a Cabinet meeting tonight.

Peyrouton and others in the Cabinet, including Alibert, Minister of Agriculture Pierre Caziot and Minister of Labor Rene Belin, were said to be in frequent disagreement with Laval on questions involving collaboration with Germany.

Political observers reported that Flandin's entry into the Cabinet would not, however, necessarily bolster Laval's stock, even if it removed some of his opposition. Although Flandin's public support is by no means nation-wide, diplomatic sources said he was more popular than Laval and might well become Laval's rival for power.

SPAIN HINTS FRANCE MUST YIELD LANDS

Falangist Organ Joins Franco In Call For Redeeming Past Errors

[By the Associated Press]

Madrid, Dec. 8—The time may soon come when France can give proof of her "proclaimed friendship" for Spain, the Falangist party organ Arriba declared today in an editorial quickly following up Generalissimo Franco's hint to France against repeating "past errors."

Both Franco in his speech yesterday accepting the credentials of French Ambassador Francois Pietri and the newspaper Arriba today referred to iscriminations against Spain in past years.

Adjoins French Areas

Their consensus was that the "new order" in Europe and peace when it comes must take into account Spain's desires, which have been outlined as including expansion in Africa, where France still holds territories adjacent to Spain's Moroccan protectorate.

Franco warned that "whoever may have intentions contrary to Spain's legitimate ambitions cannot long boast of keeping our friendship."

Arriba declared Spain wants "no status quo and no provisional arrangement. These would simply defraud Spain of her historical and natural rights."

Spain wanted only neutrality from France during the civil war, the paper said, but "instead of a spectator we had next to us an adverse belligerent."

French Radio Denies People Are Starving

Broadcast, Heard In U. S., Admits "Food Is Scarce" And There Has Been Rationing

New York, Dec. 8 (AP)—The French radio in Paris, in a broadcast heard in the United States by NBC, asked the "friends of France" not to believe that food conditions are so bad in France that some persons are starving.

"Food is scarce, it is true," the announcer said, "and therefore we have rationed some food stuffs. But there is enough to satisfy our needs as regarding necessities."

RUMANIAN VETERANS BACK 'OLD FRONTIERS'

Dniester, Lost to Russia, Cited at Review Before Antonescu

BUCHAREST, Rumania, Dec. 8 (AP)—Thousands of war veterans paraded today before General Ion Antonescu and their leader, General George Beglescu, told the Chief of State that "war survivors are impatient to hear your order to shoulder rifles and reconstruct the old Rumanian frontiers."

"If some hostile event should occur to prevent Rumania from realizing this dream, we would wish all Rumanian soldiers be turned to stone along the Dniester River," General Beglescu said.

[The Dniester was the Rumanian-Russian boundary before the Province of Bessarabia was ceded to Russia last Summer on Russia's ultimatum.]

"I am accused of not taking hands extended to me, but I refuse to take hands extended over the corpses of our persecuted brothers," General Antonescu replied. "When this ceases I will take the outstretched hand."

Two German generals were seen on the reviewing stand.

Rumania Promises Reich 3,000,000 Oil Tons in '41

By The Associated Press.

BUCHAREST, Rumania, Dec. 8—Rumania has promised to deliver 3,000,000 tons of oil to Germany in 1941, it was reported in official circles tonight.

That amount would be nearly twice as much as the total exported this year and twice as much as sold to the Reich in 1936, when exports were at their peak.

To move this unprecedented amount for the use of German ships, submarines and factories, work already has begun on a 75-mile pipeline to the Danube port of Giurgiu and a 300-mile pipeline from the oil fields to the Danube port of Moldova Noua.

Establishment of a secondary loading port at Moldova Noua will eliminate the necessity of sending tankers through the treacherous Iron Gate, Danube bottle neck.

Petroleum men have been told by the Germans that they expect to have the lines completed by April 1, when they will be prepared to move 360,000 tons monthly.

Roosevelt Holds Parley Off Island of Martinique

U. S. Officials at French Colony Visit His Cruiser

ABOARD U. S. MAYRANT, AT SEA, Dec. 8 (AP).—President Roosevelt climaxed his Caribbean defense inspection cruise today by stopping off at the French island of Martinique, a potential trouble spot, where he conferred for one hour aboard the cruiser Tuscaloosa with American officials.

American Consul Brocker and Capt. Ernest J. Blankenship, U. S. N. American observer on the island went to the Tuscaloosa aboard the destroyer Sims, which has been on neutrality patrol in this area. The Tuscaloosa hove to in plain view of the French aircraft carrier Bearn off Fort de France.

Blankenship and Brocker returned to Fort de France aboard the destroyer, and the Tuscaloosa and escort vessels proceeded to sea for an unannounced destination.

The President devoted most of Sunday to inspection of strategic American aviation outposts guarding the eastern Caribbean approaches at St. Lucia, a small British island in the Lesser Antilles. Facilities for seaplane operation, acquired from Great Britain in the destroyer Deal, already are in operation. With Sir Henry B. Popham, Governor A. A. Wright, administrator, and Allen B. Peter, he examined facilities for water supplies and artillery protection.

Completing a 2,000-mile run from Miami, the Tuscaloosa and escorting destroyers, Trippe and Mayrant, anchored in the morning off Castries, picturesque St. Lucia capital.

held daily conferences last week on the diplomatic, legal and economic questions which would be involved in such action, and asked advice from a number of private citizens interested in refugee problems. It is understood that no decision has been reached.

A joint resolution adopted last year by the St. Thomas and St. Croix public councils declared it to be the desire of the island people that such refugees be given shelter there under protection of the United States flag.

Plan "Landing Ticket"

Under the plan being considered, aliens would be received with no passport other than a "landing ticket" approved by American consuls at their points of embarkation or by island authorities upon their arrival. They would not be eligible to apply for American citizenship, and would not be permitted to seek employment in competition with the islanders. Their "tickets," similar in effect to border passes, would be revocable at any time.

The Interior Department, which supervises the islands, is understood to have approved the proposal.

The State Department, however, is said to be concerned over the feasibility of permitting European aliens to enter American territory without the customary visas, and the Justice Department is weighing the chances of successfully weeding out subversive elements and "fifth-columnists" who might take advantage of the island's hospitality.

If, after a time on the islands, a refugee wished, and this Government found it satisfactory, he would be permitted to make application for a visa to come to the mainland and later, perhaps, file for citizenship.

No vast number of political exiles could be accommodated on the islands. They are small in territory and the native population, responsible for its economy, is a scant 22,000.

Virgin Islands Considered As Haven For Rich Refugees

Three U. S. Departments Study Proposal For "Landing Tickets" In Place Of Passports

British Urged To Pay Debt With Islands

Senator Thomas Advises Cancellation in Return for Temporary Control

Would Solve Issue Of Credits for War

Holt and Clark Reiterate Warnings on Dangers of U. S. Involvement

By The Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 8.—Senator Elbert D. Thomas, Democrat, of Utah, proposed today that the United States cancel Great Britain's $5,000,000,000 war debt in return for temporary control over some of Britain's possessions in the Western Hemisphere.

Senator Thomas, a member of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, said that an exchange such as he proposed would free Britain from restrictions of the Johnson act, prohibiting private loans from the United States to nations which have defaulted on their war debts.

The Utah Senator advocates transferring control of all British colonies in this hemisphere except Canada and islands adjacent to Canada. This, he said, would relieve Britain of the burden of defending these countries and would provide the United States with strategic military and naval outposts. He suggested that the transfer be effective until two years after the European war is terminated.

Others Ask Collateral

Other Senators said England should offer insular possessions in this hemisphere, English investments in the United States or similar collateral in return for loans.

This exchange of views was prompted by recent discussions by United States and British government officials of Britain's ability to finance the war. Sir Frederick Phillips, British Under Secretary of the Treasury, conferred with Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau jr. last week and is scheduled to see him again tomorrow.

"We must follow a policy of realism," Senator John A. Danaher, Republican, of Connecticut, said. "That first involves our own national interests. That's just what Britain does in every international stratagem in which she is involved."

Fear United States Involvement

Senator Bennett C. Clark, Democrat, of Missouri, said that England was "starting its demands for money early in a further effort to involve us in active participation in the war."

Senator Rush D. Holt, Democrat, of West Virginia, using football terms, called the credit campaign "the old 'Statue of Liberty play.'" He added that "they don't need money, they don't want credit, they don't even care what play we use, just so we carry the ball for them."

Expressing a dissenting view, Senator William H. King, Democrat, of Utah, said: "England is fighting our battle against the totalitarian forces right now. I'm not so particular about security for loans under those conditions."

PADEREWSKI URGES SACRIFICES BY U. S.

Calls On Americans To Give Greater Aid To Great Britain

Says Exchange Of Destroyers For Bases Was Deal, Not Contribution

[By the Associated Press]

New York, Dec. 8—Ignace Jan Paderewski urged Americans today to avoid the "risky impression of relative security" and to make sacrifices to aid Great Britain in her fight against dictatorships.

In a radio interview under auspices of the Department of Justice, designed to speed the registration of aliens in this country, the noted pianist and former Polish Premier answered questions put by Marshall E. Dimock, of the Immigration and Naturalization Service.

Makes Reservations

"All of you, my dear American

friends," Paderewski said, "are under the impression that your present collaboration for the final victory of the democracies is something that deserves general appreciation and praise. Far from underestimating the importance of your help to date, I have to make some reservations, so far as your contributions are concerned."

The 80-year-old statesman asserted that the cash-and-carry law "leaves you very little opportunity" and that the exchange of fifty destroyers for naval bases "has to be considered rather as a deal than as a contribution."

"Don't you Americans realize," he said, "that every plane, every load of munitions which reaches England postpones the prospect of your eventual armed intervention? Across the ocean there are millions of men already fighting and eager to fight for the final victory, which is the common victory of civilization and democracy.

Points To Needs

"They need proper arms. They need food, they begin to feel the shortage of transportation means, and they need liberal financial assistance. . . ."

As a guest of the United States, Paderewski said he did not feel it right for him to suggest how best to accomplish greater aid to Britain, but in response to a question he urged:

"Stand by your great President, Franklin Delano Roosevelt, hand to hand, united and disciplined, ready to back him, confident in his judgment, in his statesmanship, in his patriotism, ready for any sacrifice, and all of you—the great American nation—enlist your unlimited means in the defense of the great cause of freedom and democracy."

Windsors To Arrive In Miami On Abdication Anniversary

Duke And Duchess Accept Use Of Swedish Industrialist's Yacht—Leaving Nassau Today

[By the Associated Press]

Nassau, Bahamas, Dec. 8—The Duke and Duchess of Windsor will use the palatial ocean-going yacht Southern Cross, owned by Alexis Wenner-Gren, Swedish industrialist, for their trip to Miami tomorrow.

They will reach Miami Tuesday—the fourth anniversary of Edward's abdication December 10, 1936, from the English throne so that he might marry American-born Wallis Warfield Simpson.

Use of the Southern Cross was accepted by Windsor to take the Duchess to her homeland for a major dental operation because of a half-day delay in the sailing schedule of the S. S. Munargo, on which the party had booked passage.

The extra time was considered valuable, the Duke's aides said, so the Duchess could submit to the operation at a Miami Beach hospital and have time for partial recuperation before the royal party returns to Nassau Friday aboard the Munargo. The Southern Cross will remain in Miami for minor repairs.

The Southern Cross, a frequent visitor in Southern waters, has had a spectacular history, including several dramatic rescues at sea. The most notable of these occurred when Wenner-Gren's yacht saved many survivors from the Athenia, torpedoed in mid-Atlantic at the start of the war.

The Wenner-Grens will remain here at their new home, Shangria-La on Hog Island.

The Duke has let it be known he will accept no invitations and make no public appearances during the private, four-day trip to Miami. He and the Duchess and an aide-de-camp, Capt. Vyvyan Drury, will remain at St. Francis Hospital Tuesday night after the operation. They then will move to a hotel for the remainder of the stay.

The Duke's only public contact will be upon arrival Tuesday morning, when the Southern Cross docks at the same pier from which President Roosevelt boarded the cruiser Tuscaloosa a week earlier for a Caribbean cruise.

The Windsors will meet newsmen, after which they will be greeted by an official committee.

The committee will include Mrs. Fred P. Cone, wife of Florida's Governor; Stephen Childs, of the British Embassy in Washington; J. A. Marjoribanks, British Consul at Jacksonville; L. A. Oates, British Vice-Consul at Miami; Terence F. McGrath, of the Nassau Development Board; the Mayors and Chamber of Commerce presidents of Miami, Miami Beach and Coral Gables.

Italian

ROME, Dec. 8 (AP)—Today's Italian High Command communiqué:

In Albania renewed enemy attacks against the left wing of our Ninth Army were thrown back by our troops. Along the remainder of the front there was scouting patrol activity by both sides.

Our planes bombed military objectives at Preveza and Ithaca.

Enemy planes raided Valona. Received with ready, precise anti-aircraft reaction and attacked by our pursuit planes, they lost one plane shot down by naval anti-aircraft batteries and another downed in flames by our chasers. Two more pursued by our chasers disappeared in the clouds with signs of fire aboard.

In Northern Africa one of our pursuit formations machine-gunned numerous enemy mechanized forces east of Bir Enba [in Egypt], putting a number out of action. One of our planes bombed enemy military positions along the Wadi el Raml, near Matruh [in Egypt].

In Eastern Africa our planes attacked a score of motorized units at Mecali [in the Sudan], as well as north of Kassala, railway stations at Malawaya, south of Kassala, and one Wellesley type plane on the ground at the Seraf Sayip airfield northeast of Gallabat. All our planes returned.

British

ATHENS, Dec. 8 (AP)—The British Royal Air Force issued the following communiqué today:

Enemy shipping off the Albanian coast was attacked yesterday by a formation of R. A. F. aircraft. There was a direct hit on the stern of one ship and many near-misses.

A raid on Valona, made in bad weather conditions and with heavy enemy fighter opposition, resulted in all bombs falling in the target area, but their effect was not observed.

The enemy destroyer which was attacked off the coast of Santi Quaranta [Porto Edda] and two direct hits scored, as described by the communiqué of Dec. 5, has been captured by units of the Greek Navy. The destroyer was so badly damaged it had to make for the nearest harbor, which was Santi Quaranta.

LONDON, Dec. 8 (AP)—The Air Ministry issued this communiqué today:

Last night R. A. F. bombers again carried out an effective and substantial attack on many important industrial and military targets in the Duesseldorf area. The damage inflicted is believed to be severe.

Other targets included the ports of Antwerp, Dunkerque, Calais and Boulogne. Several airdomes in enemy-held Holland, Belgium and France also were bombed.

Aircraft of the Coastal Command attacked the naval shipyards and docks at Lorient and Brest. Hits causing fires and explosions were seen on the target area. Four of our aircraft are missing.

A communiqué issued by the Air and Home Security Ministries:

One enemy fighter-bomber was shot down in the Channel early this afternoon. Otherwise there is nothing to report.

CAIRO, Egypt, Dec. 8 (AP)—The British Army Command issued this communiqué today:

Yesterday our artillery again carried out a successful shoot on enemy positions east of Metemma [in the Sudan]. Loud explosions were heard following the bombardment. In the area north of Kassala our artillery also was active.

Other fronts: No change in the situation.

DEC 9 1941

German

BERLIN, Dec. 8 (AP)—Today's German High Command communiqué:

A submarine sank two enemy merchant ships with a total of 17,000 tons, and another submarine sank two more totaling 12,000 tons, including a 9,000-ton tanker.

As already announced airplane groups the night of Dec. 7 attacked Bristol port and dock facilities and other war-important objectives in various parts of the city, especially in the vicinity of the waterworks. Explosions and several fires were observed.

Air force activity Dec. 7 was concentrated on disturbance attacks on several important centers on the English southeast coast.

During armed reconnaissance at sea east and north of Great Yarmouth two freighters were bombed and set afire.

The night of Dec. 8 [apparently the night of Dec. 7-8] the British flew over and bombed occupied areas, as well as Western Germany. In three places factories were damaged slightly. Besides that houses were damaged in several places, in one of which six persons were killed and several injured. Nearly all those killed and injured were outside safety cellars.

Four enemy planes were shot down, three by anti-aircraft fire. Two of our ships are missing.

HAMILTON, BERMUDA, DEC 8—(AP)—ARRIVAL OF 150 MORE CENSORS FROM ENGLAND HAS SWELLED TO 590 THE TOTAL OF CENSORS OPERATING IN THIS BRITISH COLONY. THEY EXAMINE CARGOES AND MAIL PASSING THROUGH HERE ENROUTE TO AND FROM EUROPE.

CANADA DEBATING FINANCIAL AID TO BRITAIN

MORE GIVING, LESS
SELLING SUGGESTED (440)

BY WADE WERNER

(ADVANCE) OTTAWA--(CORRESPONDENCE OF THE ASSOCIATED PRESS)--THE QUESTION OF EXTENDING FINANCIAL AID TO EMBATTLED BRITIXZN OFTEN HEARD IN THE UNITED STATES, FINDS AN ECHO ON THIS SIDE OF THE BORDER.

EVEN BEFORE THE BRITISH AMBASSADOR TO THE UNITED STATES CALLED ATTENTION TO ENGLAND'S DWINDLING FINANCIAL RESOURCES, VOICES WERE RAISED IN CANADA'S PARLIAMENT SUGGESTING THERE SHOULD BE MORE GIVING AND LESS SELLING IN THE DOMINION'S POLICY OF AID FOR BRITAIN.

AFTER THE MINISTER OF AGRICULTURE INFORMED PARLIAMENT THAT BRITAIN HAD AGREED TO BUY FROM CANADA $12,050,000 WORTH OF FISH, $4,541,000 WORTH OF FRUIT AND HONEY, $89,300,000 WORTH OF BACON AND OTHER PORK PRODUCTS, $16,100,000 WORTH OF CHEESE AND ABOUT $100,000,000 WORTH OF WHEAT, SOME MEMBERS SUGGESTED THAT FOOD FOR BRITAIN UNDER EXISTING CIRCUMSTANCES SHOULD NOT BE RECKONED ON A DOLLARS AND CENTS BASIS--THAT IT SHOULD BE SENT TO HER GLADLY AS A GIFT.

ON THE OTHER HAND, SOME MEMBERS FROM AGRICULTURAL SECTIONS POINTED OUT THAT THE PRICES PAID REPRESENTED, IN THEMSELVES, A SACRIFICE TO BE BORNE BY CANADIAN FARMERS. THEY ARGUED THAT THE FARMER HAS JUST AS MUCH RIGHT TO COLLECT A FAIR PRICE FOR HIS PRODUCTS AS THE MUNITIONS MAKER.

OTHERS LIFTED THE DISCUSSION TO THE GENERAL PLANE OF FINANCING BRITISH PURCHASES IN CANADA. THEY POINTED OUT THAT BRITAIN HAS FOUND IT NECESSARY TO SELL LARGE AMOUNTS OF BRITISH-OWNED CANADIAN SECURITIES IN ORDER TO PAY HER BILLS IN CANADA. IN THIS CONNECTION THE FINANCE MINISTER EXPLAINED THAT THESE SECURITIES WERE NOT SIMPLY DUMPED ON THE MARKET FOR WHATEVER PRICE THEY MIGHT BRING, BUT MARKETED IN AN ORDERLY FASHION, SHORT-TERM CREDITS MEANWHILE BEING ADVANCED TO COVER BRITISH PURCHASES UNTIL THEY COULD BE LIQUIDATED FROM THE PROCEEDS OF THE SECURITIES SOLD.

"SO FAR AS I UNDERSTAND IT, THE ONLY PURCHASES SO FAR THAT WE PERMIT BRITAIN TO MAKE IN CANADA ARE THOSE WHICH SHE IS FINANCIALLY ABLE TO MAKE THROUGH THE EXCHANGE AVAILABLE TO HER BY VIRTUE OF THE GOODS SHE HAS SHIPPED TO CANADA AND THE SECURITIES WHICH HAVE BEEN REPATRIATED...IF THAT IS ALL THAT HAS BEEN DONE, HAVE WE TREATED GREAT BRITAIN IN ANY DIFFERENT WAY FROM THE WAY IN WHICH SHE HAS BEEN TREATED BY THE UNITED STATES, OR THE ARGENTINE, OR ANY OTHER FOREIGN COUNTRY?

"WE MUST NOT BE TOLD THAT THE LIMIT OF OUR ASSISTANCE TO GREAT BRITAIN IS WHAT GREAT BRITAIN IS ABLE TO BUY WITH HER GOODS AND HER SECURITIES. SURELY WE ARE NOT GOING TO STOP AT ANY SUCH LIMITED DEGREE OF ASSISTANCE."

TUCKER SUGGESTED THAT THE BANK OF CANADA BE AUTHORIZED TO BUY OUTRIGHT "ABOUT $1,000,000,000 WORTH" OF BRITISH-OWNED CANADIAN SECURITIES, AND KEEP THESE SECURITIES IN ITS VAULTS AS BACKING FOR CANADIAN CURRENCY; THUS "THE BANK OF CANADA, REPRESENTING THE PEOPLE OF CANADA, WOLD OWN ABOUT A BILLION DOLLARS' WORTH OF CANADIAN SECURITIES ON WHICH THEY WOULD EARN INTEREST AND FOR WHICH BRITAIN HAD BEEN PAID A FAIR PRICE."

BRITISH SEIZE 1,000 ITALIANS IN SUDDEN THRUST IN EGYPT; GREEKS WIN NEW POSITIONS

Greeks Report Rout Of Fascists' Right Wing In Albania, With Duce's Troops In Full Flight Behind Porto Edda

[By the Associated Press]

Bucharest, Rumania, Dec. 9—A huge reservoir of airplane gasoline for Germany exploded and spread a serious fire over Rumanian oil fields near Ploesti today.

First reports said a workman's cigarette caused the blast in the grounds of the Standard (Rumanian-owned) company.

German firefighters and Rumanian soldiers joined in efforts to extinguish the fires, but late tonight they were reported still rapidly spreading.

British Seize 1,000 Italian Prisoners In Attacks In Africa

By EDWARD KENNEDY
Associated Press Correspondent

With British Forces in Egypt, Dec. 9. Britain's armored desert fighters, striking at dawn with new and sudden fury against Italy's invaders in Egypt, captured 1,000 prisoners by nightfall, killed their commanding officer and seized his assistant, the British command announced tonight as the fighting went on.

This "great raid" against Marshal Rodolfo Graziani's legions in the Sidi Barrani region, seventy miles from Libya's frontiers, possibly heralded the full-fledged offensive against Italy because of its gearing with Italian reverses at the hands of the Greeks in Albania.

Fighting still swirled south of Sidi Barrani late tonight, and more Italian prisoners were being rounded up, the British said.

500 Taken At One Base

An Italian camp at Mabeya, a few miles south of Sidi Barrani, the coastal base the Italians occupied three months ago, yielded 500 prisoners, the British said.

That many more were reported captured about thirty miles from the coast. This attack, on the Italian right flank, apparently was the main thrust and other British units surged around it and pressed on westward behind the Italian advance lines.

The staff of Lieut. Gen. Sir Archibald P. Wavell, commander of Britain's Middle Eastern forces, gave no indication as to how extensive the operation would become, but showed high pleasure at the first day's results. The number of prisoners taken in a single day's fighting perhaps was the best gauge of the extent of combat.

Probing Enemy Defenses

For weeks British armored units have been probing Italy's defenses, even employing camels in one extended operation deep into Italian Libyan sands.

30.24—6331

Many observers believed today's blow was the beginning of operations designed to trap the main Italian body of troops at coastal Sidi Barrani—a strike made while Premier Mussolini juggled his high command.

"Following Italy's debacle in Albania at the hands of the Greeks it's evident that the moment has been well chosen to make Marshal Graziani fight," one British military observer said.

Announced By Wavell

General Wavell himself announced the first news of the attack less than four hours after it was launched.

The commander said:

"I have asked you here to tell you our forces began to carry out an engagement against Italian armies at dawn today."

Then the general described his troops' steady advance during the night to within striking distance and declared: "Two hours ago I received word that we had captured an Italian camp (Mabeya)."

The R. A. F. was participating inland and the British navy off the Italian-held coast, it was reported.

Careful Secret Planning

The offensive was the result of careful planning in utmost secrecy. Even though it was described as only a "great raid" rather than a general offensive, it was believed it might lead to further attacks.

Preparations were carried out in the dead of night. Troops moved supplies, including gasoline, across eight miles of no-man's land and buried them under the sands.

British forces attacked an Italian camp at Mabeya, south of Sidi Barrani, and had completed the operation by 10 A. M. Other British units, meanwhile, were pushing forward elsewhere in the same region.

British Forces Ready

It is the conviction of Britain's army leaders here that if the switches in Premier Mussolini's high command mean action in Egypt, British desert forces are ready.

In fact, impatience is apparent and some troops have been allowed to work off their energy in special harassing units sent deep into Italian Libya. Camels were used for the first time in this war recently on one such expedition.

"Nothing," I was told, "would delight our forces more than an Italian thrust at their strongly fortified lines running through the western desert."

Waiting For 3 Months

They have been sitting for three months across no-man's land from the Italian-held coastal strip while Marshal Graziani has waited, apparently wary of the risks of a desert offensive.

The British have a good communication system, including a railroad all the way from Alexandria. The Italians have poor transportation and their supply problem, especially for water, is great.

British policy has been defensive-moving far from supply bases creates disadvantages—but the trend of battle in Greece has spurred desire for action of Britain's assembled British, Australian, New Zealand, Polish and French troops.

Although aid for Greece has taken a considerable number of British warplanes from Egypt, R. A. F. officers declare plenty are left to cope with any Italian offensive.

London Calls Drive Local.

LONDON, Dec. 9 (A. P.).—British forces have launched a local offensive in the western Egyptian desert and fought a battle south of Sidi Barrani, authorized military sources here said tonight.

These authorities said that the battle was "of some importance," but added that it did not indicate a general British offensive.

In any event it was the British who seized the initiative, the informants asserted.

Informed sources said that weather conditions for a big push on the Egyptian desert are at their best now and will remain so for at least two months, perhaps four.

The guarded official comment that the operation was of "some importance" was taken by some as meaning that, although not necessarily the start of a general offensive, it was on a "pretty large scale."

Some observers believed it was possible that the British might be ready to seize the initiative now, with Italy deeply involved in the Grecian campaign and her Libyan forces isolated from the mother country's support.

Contact on a Broad Front.

CAIRO, Dec. 9 (A. P.).—British forces have made contact with the Italians "on a broad front" in the western Egyptian desert, the British African command declared today.

This front has long been dormant, with the British apparently content to prevent the Italians from driving further into Egypt from Sidi Barrani, seventy miles inside the western frontier.

The action was described as between British advance elements and the Italians.

The Italians, under Marshal Rodolfo Graziani, drove across the Libyan-Egyptian frontier early in the Italian-British conflict and marched along the coast to Sidi Barrani with little opposition. From there they have made little important progress for the last three months.

Ready for Offensive.

British authorities here declared they are ready for any Fascist offensive in Egypt if that is what Premier Mussolini's changes in the Italian High Command mean. The communiqué did not indicate which side was on the offensive, British or Italian.

So far apparently, Marshal Rodolfo Graziani has been reluctant to risk an offensive, with the necessity of moving supplies—especially water—over poor road communications, against Great Britain's well-organized transport system, including a railroad to their front lines.

[In London the Air Ministry News Service reported an R. A. F. bombardment of a large number of Italian warplanes on Benina Airdrome in the western desert and said it believed many were damaged. One hangar was "completely burned out" and fires were started in three others, it said.]

Although overwhelmingly superior to the British in man power and material, foreign observers say, the first months of the war in the Mediterranean have shown Italy lacking any striking power like Germany's.

Had Mussolini struck at the time of the French collapse he might have had easier going, in their view. But now, they say, his holding back has enabled Britain to increase her strength greatly.

Occupation of the seventy-mile strip into Egypt has been Italy's main achievement in North Africa so far. They are said to have moved six divisions into the area, built roads, a water supply system and supply bases.

An army of six divisions means from 72,000 to 90,000 men.

A Dangerous Battlefield.

An Italian defeat in Egypt would be a severe setback to Axis hopes, and the obstacles confronting the Fascists are tremendous.

First is the battlefield itself. On one flank it is exposed to the sea and the British fleet has not been blind to the opportunity to pump steel-jacketed explosives into the Italian positions.

Desert sands are the most vulnerable fighting fields of modern war. Besides the terrific heat and the lack of water the desert is wide open. Men and equipment are sharp targets for air attack.

For Italy, especially, a thrust forward from her Libyan bases is dangerous because of the difficulty of supply. The British declare that the Libyan coast is thoroughly blockaded.

Blow Not Aimed at Egypt.

The Egyptians still regard the Italian offensive as aimed at Great Britain, not at Egypt. But should the Italians press closer to Alexandria and the rich, productive valley of the Nile—where most of Egypt's population is centered—Cairo might regard that as a threat to Egypt herself and she is bound in a mutual assistance treaty with Britain against any menace to her territorial integrity.

The test in Egypt ultimately may be between British and Italian air and sea power, or, even Italian air power and British sea power.

Neither side has used air power in Egypt for more than sporadic raiding, but the Italians are closer to their home bases and British air strength has been reduced somewhat by aid to Greece.

At sea, Britain holds she is master.

GREEKS BATTLE OUTSIDE SECOND CAPTURED BASE

Athens Says Troops Have Advanced Beyond Argyrokastron.

FIERCE FIGHTING IS REPORTED

Soldiers Cry 'Tirana by Christmas' as They Follow Up Victories Over Duce's Forces.

ATHENS, Dec. 9 (A. P.).—Fierce fighting beyond Argyrokastron was reported today between Greece's advancing army and the Italian rearguard, strongly entrenched to cover the retreat of the main Fascist body to the north and west.

With Argyrokastron, last of Italy's southern Albanian bases behind them, Greek soldiers launched into the new, swift follow-up attack with cries of "On to Valona."

Valona, next Albanian sea gateway for Ltalian supplies in the Greek path, is about 40 miles northwest of Agyrokastron. About midway on that line lies Tepeleni, a road junction, toward which the Greeks are fighting from the east and south. Their goal, shouted as a battle slogan, is "Tirana by Christmas!" Tirana is Albania's capital.

Capture of Argyrokastro yesterday, two days after the fall of Italy's southernmost Albanian port Porto Edda, touched off a three-day celebration. Rather than by direct assault, it was disclosed, the inland base was occupied after it had been flanked from east and west, forcing the Italians to withdraw.

Artillery Captured.

Part of the city had been burned by the Italians before they fled, but the amount of captured war material was said to be enormous and to include twelve full batteries of abandoned artillery.

After six weeks of fighting the Greeks have driven the Italian invaders completely from their soil and pushed their own counter-invasion across about 20 per cent of Albania's Italian-held territory.

The exact position of the Greek vanguards is a military secret, but officials say the rate of the Greek advance is increasing week by week.

So far, two of Albania's six cities with normal populations of more than 10,000—Koritza, the country's third largest city, and Argyrokastron, the fifth—have been taken.

Each of them has two airdromes.

The Greeks also hold Porto Edda, one of Albania's four seaports.

One estimate several days ago placed the cash value of captured war materials at about $10,000,000. This does not include the booty taken at Argyronkastron.

In the drive toward Tepeleni, fifteen miles north of Argyrokastron, Greek cavalry and machine-gun and bomb attacks from airplanes were said to be spurring the Italian retreat.

Another Fascist force was said to have dug in at Klisura Pass, just east of Tepeleni, in a fierce fight with Greeks trying to smash through along the road from captured Premet. The pass is midway along the road that runs twenty miles through the mountains from Premet to Tepeleni.

Fifteen miles west of Argyrokastron another Greek column was reported to be pursuing Italians up the coastal road to Chimara, twenty-five miles north of Porto Edda which the Greeks took last week.

Other Drives Speeded.

The Greek High Command also reported rapid progress for Greek drives toward the mid-Albanian base of Elbasani from Pogradetz, across Lake Ochrida from Yugoslavia.

Dispatches from the Yugoslav side of the border said last night that the Greeks had captured mountain positions near the village of Radokal, nearly ten miles north of Pogradetz, and cleared the way for a blow at nearby Lin on the Pogradetz-Elbasani road.

Dispatches from the front reported the capture of uncounted additional prisoners and the seizure of vast quantities of supplies which the Italians were said to have abandoned because of the spread of the Greek advances.

Air reconnaissance reports said north and south of the battle front the roads were jammed. To the south, Greek re-enforcements being moved up, were said to be passing streams of Italian prisoners plodding to internment in the country their army invaded seven weeks ago today.

Reports of the Royal Air Force said that to the north Italian troop movements were impeded by the jam of refugees streaming toward Tirana, the Albanian capital.

These British reports said last night that Greek naval units last Friday captured an Italian destroyer left, damaged by British bombs, in the harbor at Porto Edda.

Rome Announces Withdrawal.

ROME, Dec. 9 (A. P.).—The Italian High Command announced today that Italy's Eleventh Army had withdrawn to a new defense line north of Argyrokastron, southern Albania.

"The Eleventh Army," the High Command's daily war bulletin asserted, "completed its orderly withdrawal without loss of men or material on a line north of Argyrokastron and minor surrounding localities."

In the Ninth Army sector, it added, "repeated enemy attacks were repulsed by our troops, which had launched numerous victorious counter-attacks."

The Italian Air Force, "although hampered by unfavorable weather conditions," bombed military objectives at Sant Moura and the Gulf of Arta, Greece, the communique said.

Collapse Of Whole Italian Right Flank Claimed By Greeks

[By the Associated Press]

Belgrade, Yugoslavia, Dec. 9. Greek newspapers received at the border today said Italy is attempting to land troops at San Giovanni di Medua, Adriatic seaport in northern Albania, because of heavy damage to the port of Durazzo and Valona by British-Greek airmen and the capture of Porto Edda by the Greek infantry.

[By the Associated Press]

Athens, Dec. 9—The entire Italian right wing behind the Greek-occupied port of Porto Edda has been put to flight and a whole series of strategically important peaks in the northern sector of the front has been captured by the Greeks, a Government spokesman declared tonight.

The spokesman said the Italian right wing had been in flight since yesterday noon.

Twin Drive Launched

The Greek warriors, with a fifth of Albania's territory behind them, were making a vast twin drive against the Italian armies between them and the port of Valona, the city they expect to be their next big prize.

King George addressed his congratulations to Greek commanders and soldiers, declaring he was "full of joy for the occupation of Argirocastro and proud of the new brilliant victories of my army."

Occupation of Argirocastro was a "victory both of great military and moral importance," he said.

Gains In North Reported

The Government spokesman said "in the north the enemy has been compelled to abandon important strategic positions and withdraw in full flight after fierce attacks by our troops. If the enemy was able to avoid annihilation it was due to bad weather."

The flight of Italians was general along the entire front, he declared.

Passing Argirocastro, last of Italy's southern Italian bases, which was captured Sunday, the Greeks swiftly organized their campaign aimed from the east and south toward Valona, forty miles northwest, an entry point for Fascist men and supplies.

Exact positions were withheld as military secrets.

"On To Valona!"

"On to Valona!" The Greeks shouted, coupling this slogan with their battle cry of "Tirana by Christmas." Tirana, Albania's capital, some sixty miles above Valona, is the object of another Greek drive from the east.

The immediate objective of both drives was Tepeleni, a road junction, about twenty miles from Valona.

The army fighting in the south reported fierce resistance from the Italian rearguard, strongly entrenched to cover the retreat of the main Fascist body to the north and west.

Cavalry Harasses Italians

Spurring the Italian withdrawal were constant charges from Greek cavalry and harassing raids by planes with machine-guns and bombs.

The Valona campaign developed as all Greece joined in a three-day celebration over the capture of Argirocastro, two days after the fall of Italy's southernmost Albanian port, Porto Edda. Sharing Greek enthusiasm was news of President Roosevelt's promise to help the embattled Balkan kingdom.

"Mr. Roosevelt's message is causing joy through the entire Greek nation as showing the extent of friendship and mutual assistance existing between our country and his great nation," Eleftheron Vima, Government spokesman, told American correspondents at a special reception.

Greeks Flanked Town

It was disclosed, meanwhile, that the Greeks captured Argirocastro by flanking the town from east and west, rather than by a frontal assault. Some sections were burned by the Italians, but the Greeks declared they left intact huge supplies of war material, including twelve full batteries of artillery.

The Greeks now have routed the Italians from about 2,125 square miles of the rugged 10,629 square-mile Albanian kingdom Mussolini seized in his Good Friday invasion in 1939. The fallen Koritza and Argirocastro are its third and fifth largest cities, respectively.

Prior to Argirocastro's fall the Greeks placed the cash value of captured Italian booty at $10,000,000, a figure expected to be greatly increased when stock is taken of equipment seized in the southern invasion base.

Greeks Thank America For Promise of Aid

ATHENS, Dec. 9 (A. P.).—President Roosevelt's promise to give help to Greece was received with enthusiasm here today and a government spokesman received American correspondents especially to convey the thanks of the Greek people.

The press also applauded.

Eleftheron Vima said: "Mr. Roosevelt's message is causing joy through the entire Greek nation as showing the extent of friendship and mutual assistance existing between our country and his great nation."

Hestia said: "The Greeks are not ungrateful. The Greek nation and every Greek individually remembers and will remember eternally that in a moment so difficult for their existence these people far away have done everything for realization of the Greek struggle which was the struggle for justice."

Several papers printed large photographs of Mr. Roosevelt.

Italian Arithmetic Out In Egypt as Subversive

CAIRO, Egypt, Dec. 9 (AP).—The Egyptian Cabinet banned today the Italian arithmetic book, "Arithmetica Practica," by Cantardo Baffi, from Egyptian schools on the ground that its arithmetic problems were so worded as to "spread Fascist propaganda and justify Italian imperialist designs against Britain and France."

7 DIE IN EGYPTIAN PRISON

'Undesirables' Are Shot When They Attack Their Guards

CAIRO, Egypt, Dec. 9 (AP)—Seven prisoners were killed and nine injured today when Egyptian "undesirables" interned in El Nor Prison in the Sinai Desert attacked their guards with staves and iron pipes.

The guards first shot over the heads of the prisoners as a warning and then fired directly at them.

The camp contains 4,000 persons who were rounded up as a precautionary measure for the war period. Authorities feared they might loot during air raids.

Woman Leader Gets Jail Term in India

BOMBAY, Dec. 9 (A. P.).—Mrs. Vijalakshmi Pandit, former Congress Minister in the United Provinces Government and sister of the imprisoned Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru, was sentenced today to four months in jail under the defense of India act.

She was arrested at Allahabad after informing police authorities she intended to make an anti-war speech, the same offense which brought about the arrest of Nehru, former president of the India National Congress, who is serving a four-year sentence.

40 London Fires Started, 9 Hospitals Hit In Raid Which Berlin Calls Heaviest Yet

Poplar and Bethnal Green Areas Suffer Most—British Capital Is Enjoying Peace Tonight After Quiet Day.

BERLIN, Dec. 9 (A. P.).—In what was declared to be by far the mightiest assault yet upon London, the German High Command reported today that the Luftwaffe had left a great, glowing sea of fire raging last night in the besieged British capital.

The business section, Government buildings, oil storage tanks, grain elevators and warehouses shared equally in the attack, asserted today's communique, adding that 700 tons of high explosives and 100 tons of fire bombs had been loosed on the city.

Within two hours forty fires sent flames licking skyward, the official DNB news agency said that returning pilots had reported.

Poplar and Bethnal Green in East London were hardest hit, with entire blocks of houses, grain elevators and warehouses engulfed in flames, DNB asserted.

Terrific Fire in Poplar.

The returning pilots told of witnessing a terrific fire in Poplar, apparently from a gasoline tank, which they said soon spread to others and formed one huge wall of flames sweeping down whole avenues to grain elevators and warehouses. Blocks of collapsing houses in Bethnal Green sent clouds of dust and smoke billowing upward, they added.

Besides the major action against London, the official announcement said that other German bomber units had found time to attack cities on the south coast and elsewhere "with extraordinary success," as DNB put it.

German reconnaissance planes flying over the south coast after dawn came back with reports of heavy destruction.

London Defense Fire Slackens.

It was said here that the London defenses almost collapsed during the second part of the massed raid.

The Nazi flyers, it was said, reported that anti-aircraft batteries in London, which fired furiously at the beginning of the attack, seemed to be lacking in ammunition after the first hour of the raid.

There was no German announcement of losses immediately, but a British report that only two German raiders had been downed was taken by informed quarters here as evidence of the success of the raid and the result of new tactics.

London Gets Respite Tonight.

LONDON, Dec. 9 (A. P.).—A day without alarms for London stretched into the darkness tonight, past the usual time for evening raiders to approach, and gave the capital another respite after the severe hammering which last night had shattered a forty-four-hour lull.

Thus, for the second time since Friday, the German air siege lapsed into total inactivity—following the raids last night and early today in which Nazi bombers concentrated their might on London, swelling its toll of casualties and ruin. Elsewhere in England, save for the counties surrounding London, the lull has been unbroken since Friday.

A communique of the Air and Home Securities Ministries late today said merely: "There is nothing to report."

London had been kept under alarm more than twelve hours.

City Rocked by Explosions.

Except for a pre-dawn lull when the fog rolled in, the huge city was rocked by explosions and lighted by fires and shell-bursts from evening until early morning.

It was believed the number of casualties was not heavy in proportion to the intensity of the raid, but property damage was widespread through the London area.

Nine hospitals in all were hit, it was reported this morning.

There were many casualties among the staff and patients of one of them which received a direct hit. One of the hospitals struck was a large general hospital; another was a hospital for women.

Hospital Badly Damaged.

One of the hospitals which was badly damaged by explosive and incendiary bombs dropped by the night raiders had nearly 700 beds, but the number of deaths was not expected to exceed five as most of the patients were removed some weeks ago.

One high explosive bomb demolished two blocks of the institution, comprising about one-third of the hospital.

Incendiary bombs seriously damaged the administrative offices and the casualty department.

Shock Causes Several Deaths.

Several deaths in London were attributed to shock among elderly patients in a hospital the grounds of which were hit by bombs.

One heavy bomb in a London borough wrecked a line of houses, damaged forty others and trapped an unknown number of persons.

A widespread fire, which took hours to control, was set in a Thames estuary district by a bombardment of incendiaries.

In this section of London, where fires flamed over a wide area, a resident said:

"It seemed as if it were raining incendiary bombs by the hundred."

While some fires still were burning, bombs were dropped by succeeding raiders who came over in what one observer said were "endless waves."

Explosions damaged a Catholic church and an ambulance station. Considerable damage was reported done to dwellings, shops and business buildings.

250 Hide in Crypt.

Two hundred and fifty persons who were seeking shelter in the crypt of a church were safely removed after bombs ignited the roof. Adjoining buildings were destroyed.

A Government communique said bombs fell in many districts between the south and east coasts and London, along the route the bombers took to reach the capital.

Four persons were killed and another was injured by the explosion of a delayed-action bomb they were examining near a railroad tunnel in the southeast.

A residential district in an East Anglian town was reported plastered with incendiary bombs. No casualties were reported, however, and little damage was said to have been done.

Many Feared Trapped.

East of London, near the Thames River Estuary, a number of persons were feared trapped in an air raid shelter by a bomb-hit near by.

A Government communique said bombs fell in many districts between the south and east coasts and London, along the route the bombers took to reach the capital.

The attack ended forty-four hours of quiet—London's longest respite from bombings since the air siege began.

German planes in their raid last night on London roared over in waves and singly, dropping flares, incendiary bombs and then high explosives.

The raid was described as a mass attack—but not area bombing concentrated on any specific section of London.

At times so many planes were over the city that the drone of their motors rose to a roar that could be heard above the almost incessant crash of the anti-aircraft barrage.

The gunfire was so intense that waves of light pulsated across the sky almost continuously. The clouds reflected the glare of shell-bursts and bomb-started fires below.

Firemen Work All Night.

The display of deadly fireworks sometimes counteracted the London blackout.

Firemen were kpt busy all night long, working while the bombs still fell.

Once the raiders flew in parallel lines across the city dropping long rows of fire bombs.

A. E. Wall, a staff member of the Associated Press, who came to London only a few weeks ago, found his taxicab suddenly ringed by sputtering incendiary bombs.

He and the cabby sprinted for shelter in an archway, waited while five "scream bombs" smashed down near by, then returned to their undamaged cab and continued through streets lit like a giant Fourth of July celebration.

CBS Offices Wrecked.

The Columbia Broadcasting System was bombed out of its London headquarters for the second time last night during the fierce assault by German bombers.

Larry Lesueur, CBS correspondent, said the office was wrecked by a high explosive bomb. No one was in the office at the time. A few months ago the broadcasting system's offices were destroyed by a time bomb.

NAZIS FAIL TO BOMB LONDON DESPITE MOON

London, Dec. 10 (Tuesday) (AP).—German warplanes were reported in the vicinity of a south coast town early this morning after a raidless night which contrasted in the extreme with the 12-hour aerial bombardment to which London was subjected Sunday night.

Although flying conditions were excellent and a brilliant moon lighted the Channel, there were no reports of Nazi raiders over the capital or other parts of Britain from dusk last night until just after dawn today.

The authoritative British Press Association speculated that retaliatory R. A. F. raids or a German desire to marshal its forces en masse for a series of heavy blows later might explain the interlude, but concluded "the now constant guessing as to why the Luftwaffe fails to raid night after night still is without an authentic answer."

"There is nothing to report," was the welcome news given by the Government at the end of the day.

One Bomber Shot Down

The Germans apparently attempted to come over, however, for the Ministry of Information announced an enemy bomber was shot down in the afternoon over the North Sea.

30.24-6333

In Sunday night's concentrated assault the Germans added new casualties and inflicted widespread damage in bomb-scarred London. Nine hospitals in all were damaged and many casualties were counted among the staff and patients of one which received a direct hit, an official report said.

The Nazis concentrated their heaviest blows east of London, near the Thames estuary, where rescue workers dug into debris throughout the day in search of trapped victims.

12-HOUR RAID MIGHTIEST YET, BERLIN SAYS

At Least 40 Big Blazes Declared Counted By Returning Pilots

Nazis Admit R. A. F. Subjected Ruhr Area To "Test Of Nerves"

[By the Associated Press]

Berlin, Dec. 9—"A great glowing sea of fire" that engulfed blocks of houses and grain elevators and warehouses was left by German bombers in their mightiest assault on London, the German high command declared today.

The twelve-hour raid last night showered 700 tons of high explosives and 100 tons of fire bombs on Government buildings, oil-storage tanks, grain elevators and the warehouses, the communique said.

Forty Major Fires Counted

DNB quoted returning pilots as having counted at least forty major fires started within two hours after beginning the raid, which other informed sources said shattered the defenses of London.

As these claims were made, the candid admission that the steel-producing Ruhr area had been subjected to a "test of nerves" lasting three months appeared in an article in the weekly magazine Das Reich.

Asserting that England was getting manyfold what its bombers had dealt out, the article continued:

People "Stood Up"

"So British bombers flew over Düsseldorf, over Cologne, over Essen and over Dortmundt night after night for months. The German people in the west stood up under the cowardly attack. It was a test of nerves hard to hold out under because, except for short sentences in the high command report, these attacks were hardly noticed in the press.

"Some citizens in the industrial area properly asked themselves whether people in Berlin and elsewhere in the Reich knew what it meant to sit every night in a cellar and yet the next day do a full day's work.

"Then came reprisals."

Ruhr Area Bombed

The Ruhr district, the news agency said, was bombed last night by British planes "to give the appearance of embarking on counter action" to the London raid, but the chief result was said to have been two British planes shot down.

Reichsmarshal Hermann Wilhelm Goering's own plane was put at the disposal of foreign correspondents for a flight to Düsseldorf, No. 2 steel producing center of Germany.

They reported seeing no evidence either from the air or ground of crippling damage to the steel plants as claimed by the British.

They said there were a few old shattered apartment houses, and about a block of blownout windows, but docks along the Rhine and factories alike were working full blast.

Hitler to Speak To All Workers In Reich Today

He May Announce Plans to Aid Italy; Sunday's Raid Is Called London's Worst

By The Associated Press

BERLIN, Dec. 10 (Tuesday).—Exactly a month after announcing that Germany was strong enough to meet any combination of nations, Fuehrer Adolf Hitler will speak today to the workers of the Reich. His speech will come close on the heels of the heaviest attack yet made on London—Sunday's night raid.

D. N. B., the official German news agency, announced that Hitler would speak at noon (5 a. m., New York time) in a war industry factory to the workers. It said the speech would be carried over all broadcasting stations.

[The three major American networks said they would not rebroadcast Hitler's speech, but the Mutual Broadcasting System intended to record it and carry it later in the day.]

It was expected that Hitler would devote part of the address to reminding workers that Germany had delivered smashing blows in past months against London's war industries without receiving in return any approximation of similar bombardment. In his last speech, made in Munich before his comrades of the unsuccessful 1923 putsch, Der Fuehrer declared: "I reject now and here any compromise."

Whether today's speech would be merely to encourage the workers to carry on in the face of the advancing winter or a prelude to widening the war was not known.

In the lack of any formal occasion for a talk, such as a special anniversary, observers could only speculate that something special was in the wind, including the possibility that he might announce a plan to aid Italy against Greece.

In recent days the foreign press has carried intimations that peace proposals were in the offing, but none of these has found a comfortable resting place in Germany, where authoritative spokesmen have brushed them aside.

Instead of discussing peace, Germany has begun a series of her heaviest attacks against England in recent weeks, smashing successively at such important factory and shipping centers as Coventry, Birmingham, Plymouth, Liverpool, Bristol and, finally, back to London again Sunday night.

much longer, because except for short sentences in the High Command's report, these attacks were hardly noticed in the press and some citizens in the industrial area properly asked themselves whether people in Berlin and elsewhere in the Reich knew what it meant to sit every night in a cellar and yet the next day do a full day's work."

DANISH NAZIS IN RIOT

10 Members and Policeman Wounded in Fight.

COPENHAGEN (via Berlin), Dec. 9 (A. P.).—Nearly 300 Danish Nazis were arrested in the north Schleswig town of Headerslev last night when they tried to parade illegally in uniforms. In rioting that accompanied the arrests, ten policemen and Nazis were wounded.

The policemen tried vainly to prevent the march to the town's largest hall. Some party members, armed with clubs, shut themselves in the hall, disregarding demands for their surrender.

Wearing gas masks, the constables and police re-enforcements from nearby towns rushed into the hall throwing tear gas bombs, wielding night sticks and finally turning on the hose to capture the Nazis.

THIEF EXECUTED IN REICH

He Robbed 50 Bomb Cellars—Another Is Doomed

BERLIN, Dec. 9 (AP)—Herbert Gellert, 27 years old, was executed today for having robbed fifty Madgeburg bomb cellars of soap, first-aid kits, clothing and story books in the last nine weeks.

First German Paper Admits Raid Strain

BERLIN, Dec. 9 (A. P.).—A frank admission that British bombing attacks on Germany's great industrial Ruhr provided a "test of nerves" for German steel workers was published today in the weekly magazine Das Reich.

British raids, the magazine said, have been carried out at night for months in belief that German pilots could not fly well then.

"The German people in the west stood up under the cowardly attack," it added. "It was a test of nerves, hard to hold out

Canadian Pilots Reach Britain

LONDON, Dec. 9 (AP)—Another contingent of airmen from Canada—graduates of the Empire Air Training Arganization—arrived at a British port today for assignment to various Royal Air Force units.

Additional Canadian Flyers Reach England

LONDON, Dec. 9 (A. P.).—Another contingent of airmen from Canada—graduates of the empire air training organization—arrived at a British port today for assignment to various R. A. F. units.

British Attack U-boat Nest

R. A. F. Drops Bombs on Bordeaux Base—Reports Great Fire Started.

LONDON, Dec. 9 (A. P.).—British bomber pilots reported today that they had smashed at a nest of German submarines that prowl the Atlantic to attack British shipping and had dropped many high explosive bombs near if not actually upon submarines moored in the port of Bordeaux.

The attack was carried out in the face of heavy anti-aircraft fire last night, the Air Ministry reported today. British pilots, however, said they believed they had hit lock gates at the German-held port on France's southwestern coast, and had dropped other heavy bombs among warehouses, railway sidings and jetties with good effect.

The Air Ministry news service said that a great fire was started among buildings between two of the Bordeaux dock basins.

The Ministry asserted that the Germans have been using Bordeaux as a submarine base to prey on shipping in the Atlantic "as part of their much-advertised 'new phase of the war.'"

A bulletin describing the attack by a "strong force" of R. A. F. bombers on the French port last night said:

"The R. A. F. is tackling this new phase of the attempted blockade as they did the phase of projected invasion."

The Bordeaux raid was part of far-flung British air attacks last night in which, the Air Ministry said, R. A. F. bombers raided industrial and military targets in the Duesseldorf area of Germany, the submarine base at the French Atlantic port of Lorient, the harbors of Brest, Flushing, Dunkirk and Gravelines and several enemy airdromes.

A bulletin amplifying the communique said that Bordeaux had been heavily attacked by planes of the coastal command and that the raids on Brest and Lorient were the second within twenty-four hours.

British bomber pilots returning from the raid on Duesseldorf, repeated target of recent R. A. F. forays, said that a concentrated attack had been made on the German city and great destruction observed.

The Air Ministry News Service quoted one flyer as saying: "We clouted Duesseldorf good and hard."

[However, an Associated Press correspondent, flown from Berlin to Duesseldorf today in Reichsmarshal Goering's plane, said that he saw no evidence, either from the air or on the ground, that Germany's second most important steel center had been crippled by British bombs on Saturday and Sunday nights.]

Brest Is Hard Hit.

"At Lorient," the news service said, "sticks of bombs were distributed across docks and storehouses and one bomb burst threw up a shower of crimson sparks. A great blue flash was seen, too, after a salvo of bombs hit drydocks.

"Brest was lit up soon after the raid began by the flare of a burning dockside building. The roof fell in while the attack still was in progress and pilots overhead could see the flames reflected in the water."

Other bombs, the Air Ministry said, struck around the military port, the naval barracks and drydocks.

Steel Mills Pelted.

The Ministry said that the crew of one plane bombing Duesseldorf from several thousand feet up "actually was able to see flames streaming from the windows" of blast furnaces and steel works known to manufacture railroad and shipping equipment. It pictured three large fires and many small ones as following the first bomb bursts and continued:

"Our aircraft then crowded in, dropping their heavy bombs accurately on the steel works and pelting the entire area with hundreds of incendiaries.

"Flames blazed up in one factory long after our aircraft had gone away. Two minutes after one aircraft had discharged its load of incendiaries, three violent explosions were observed among fires started.

"Pilots stated that from thirty and forty miles away it was plain that many of the fires had taken firm hold."

The report also said that one British plane, after having bombed the steel works, dive-bombed a supply train and machine-gunned it from fifty feet.

The Ministry said two British planes were missing after the attacks.

Berlin Version of Raids.

BERLIN, Dec. 9 (A. P.).—Two British bombers were reported downed last night in the western Reich, where several persons were killed.

Solitary British planes, the high command communique said, dropped bombs at "numerous places in western Germany during the night."

"In Duesseldorf, Munich-Gladbach and several other spots," it added, "residential districts were hit and some houses were fired, nine civilians were killed, seventeen were severely wounded and twenty-four slightly wounded. No military nor war vital industrial damage was done."

No Gutted Factories Seen.

Foreign correspondents were flown today to Duesseldorf in Reichs Marshal Goering's own plane to see what damage British bombers did in raids Saturday and Sunday bombers did in raids Saturday and Sunday nights. They reported seeing no evidence either from the air or the ground that Duesseldorf's steel industry had been crippled by British bombs.

Except for a few old, shattered apartment houses and about one block of blown out windows, they reported nothing was seen to support claims of crushing damage.

The plane circled over the city of 500,000 and its vast steel mills at low altitude. No gutted factories were seen and all apparently were working at full blast.

Up and down the Rhine harbor, cranes were loading and unloading barges. There were no signs of damage to storehouses and Duesseldorf's extensive freight yards, other rail facilities and the Duisburg-Hamborn coal and ore mines were busy.

British Execute 2 Spies

London, Dec. 10 (AP).—Two German spies were executed just after dawn today at Pentonville Prison. They were Jose Waldberg, born at Mainz, and Karl Meier, a Dutch subject born at Koblenz, Germany. They had been arrested soon after they arrived in England. It was the first announcement since the war started that spies had been executed.

DUTCH SUBMARINE LOST

'War Operations' Responsible, London Announcement Says

LONDON, Dec. 9 (AP)—The loss of a submarine of the Netherland Navy "in war operations" was announced officially here today. Netherland warships are cooperating with the British.

A communiqué issued by the British Ministry of Information on behalf of the Netherland Government, in exile in Britain, said:

"The London headquarters of the Royal Netherlands Navy regret to announce the loss of a Netherlands submarine in war operations.

"Every endeavor has at once been made to inform the next of kin through the agency of the International Red Cross. It may be assumed that these messages have now reached their destination in Holland."

Mussolini Ousts Naval Chief

Land and Sea Force Under New Command —Riccardi Replaces Cavagnari.

ROME, Dec. 9 (A. P.).—The Italian Navy, as well as the army, functioned under new command today after a shake-up by which Premier Mussolini apparently intends to intensify the nation's war efforts.

Admiral Arturo Riccardi, 62 years old, became naval Chief of Staff and Under-Secretary of the Navy—Premier Mussolini holds the naval portfolio himself—following the resignation yesterday of Admiral Domenico Cavagnari. Admiral Angelo Jacchini was given the title "Commander of the Fleet on the Sea," and Admiral Inigo Campione was made vice chief of the naval staff.

In the midst of the series of changes—which placed two army leaders, Marshal Pietro Badoglio and Gen. Cesare Maria de Vecchi Count di Val Cismon, and a naval leader on the retired list in three days, all at their "own request"—Il Duce lost two of his generals in an airplane crash in northern Italy on Saturday.

One was Gen. Aldo Pellegrini, 52, his chief of civil aviation, the other Gen. Pietro Pintor, 60, head of the armistice commission dealing with vanquished France.

Political Changes Expected.

Changes in the political ranks of Mussolini's Fascist Government were expected in some quarters to be in the offing to complete the current replacements of key men.

Foreign quarters expressed belief that the overhauling of the Italian war machine was due as much to political as to military necessity.

Only the air command, headed by Gen. Francisco Pricolo, which has borne the brunt of the war in the Mediterranean, has remained intact.

[British naval observers expressed belief that Admiral Jacchini's appointment might foreshadow a greater spirit of offense in Fascist naval forces and said that Admiral Cavagnari might have been made the scapegoat for the raid on Taranto. Others said they felt the shakeups in Italy constituted another sign that Mussolini was on the toughest spot of his career. Some officers asserted Il Duce was losing his grip and said they placed credence in reports of unrest and disorders in Italy.]

Cause of Crash Undetermined.

The cause of the Saturday crash which killed Gen. Pintor and Gen. Pellegrini was reported to be undetermined. A communique said all aboard the military plane, including "some members" of the armistice commission—apparently in addition to the two generals—were killed.

This was the second plane crash taking the lives of armistice commission members this year and the second to take the life of a high Italian officer. Marshal Italo Balbo, with whom Gen. Pellegrini flew to Chicago in 1933, was killed in a crash in Libya on June 29. Three French and four German officers, members of the French-German armistice commission, and six German soldiers were killed on October 10, when their plane plunged into the Mediterranean.

STATEMENT DENIES DISCORD

Rome Predicts Shifts in Command Will Speed Up War Effort

ROME, Dec. 9 (AP)—Following is the text of today's official Italian statement on recent changes in the Italian High Command:

The uproar that has followed changes in the Italian High Command does not surprise or make any impression on the Italian people, accustomed since the economic siege [the period of sanctions during the Ethiopian war] to the clamorous agitation that was put in motion by the governments and press of fifty-two nations, plus the so-called neutral acolytes, in a campaign of poisonous insults, slanders and sarcasms against Italy, her soldiers and her chiefs.

This uproar, if anything, will only sharpen the will to victory of the Italian people and their reverent and absolute faith in the Duce and in the commanders who, in the name of the King-Emperor, have the responsibility and honor of conducting the nation toward its supreme military and historic objectives.

We are in war, and therefore we have no time to waste on considering too long the criticism, more or less malevolent and interested, that the enemy is developing about the political actions of our government. If changes have been judged opportune and necessary, the discipline of the Italian people welcomes them with that reverent faith that makes them all one bloc of will and force.

Moreover, Premier Mussolini and the Italian people know they can count on one another and are indissolubly bound in this great fight, in which the pilot has need of the greatest liberty of action, while the people are bound to place all their faith in the man who incarnates the virtues of the race and its capacity and will to power.

No one has ever thought of denying in Italy that the undertaking of its liberating war is vast and arduous and in it might be harder moments. But the same organs that have seized on the pretext of the change in the High Command to look for dangerous symptoms and indications of presumed discord and the possibility of delays are drawing from them with too evident joy catastrophe forecasts for the future or committing the imprudence of recalling the presumed catastrophe that was to come about in the Ethiopian campaign.

The imprudent revival instead gives the Italian public reason to hope for the same final outcome that—contrary to insinuations and predictions of enemy critics—crowned the Ethiopian undertaking.

More particularly with regard to the likelihood of delays or a slowing down that substitutions in commands might or would cause in the development of our war, the contrary instead may be foreseen, it being permissible to consider the changes that have taken place as stepping on the accelerator to give, if anything, swifter and more efficient rhythm to the Italian war machine.

Meanwhile, the Italian people, compact under the Duce's orders and with the most absolute faith in their army and the commanders who are guiding it, are drawing from this campaign of impotent rage reasons to intensify their effort and bend their discipline and will to achieve the Duce's slogan, which remains unchanged: "Win."

PRICE RISES DRAW SHARP FIRE IN ITALY

Magazine Protests Cost Of Necessities—Critics Of Shakeup Assailed

[By the Associated Press]

Rome, Dec. 9 — A sharp protest against steeply rising prices of necessities in Italy was published today in the Italian monthly magazine La Vita d'Italia.

La Vita, published by Roberto Farinacci, secretary of the Fascist and member of the Fascist Council, said it costs "more than double" to dress this year compared with last year's prices before Italy entered the war.

"Crescendo Continues"

"The crescendo continues," the publication said.

"With things increasing at this rate are wages and salaries to remain unaltered? Is there anyone who imagines prices are blocked and profiteers have disappeared, while the mass of people are submitting with admirable discipline to the limitation in their standard of living?"

Meanwhile, the day passed without new resignations in the military command or Government, although some observers expect further changes.

Whether a major battle was under way in Egypt as indicated by Cairo dispatches could not be confirmed in authoritative quarters.

Rumor Held Doubtful

Also, a British report that Marshal Rodolfo Graziani had asked to be relieved of his command in Africa could not be confirmed.

That report was said to appear doubtful, however, in view of a telegram Marshal Graziani sent Fascist headquarters thanking them for greetings sent two days ago and saying his troops joined him in "raising" their thoughts to Mussolini "in certainty of victory."

Authorities expressed confidence in the Italian morale. They said the shakeup in the high command would "give the gas" to the military machine for a faster and more efficient war.

Foreign reports of riots in Italian cities were denied as "ridiculous and without foundation."

"Uproar" Assailed

Taking notice of interpretations abroad that the shakeup showed a weakening of the Italian morale, Fascist authorities declared in a statement that "this uproar, if anything, will only sharpen the will to victory of the Italian people and their reverent and absolute faith" in Mussolini and his commanders.

"No one has ever thought of denying in Italy that the undertaking of its liberating war is vast and arduous and that in it might be harder moments," the statement said.

"But," it continued, "the same organs which have seized on the pretext of the change in the high command to look for dangerous symptoms and indications of presumed discord and the possibility of delays, are drawing from them, with too evident joy, catastrophic forecasts for the future. . . ."

Instead of foreign predictions of a slowing down in Italy's war effort, the statement said "the contrary may be foreseen, it being permissible to consider the changes which have taken place as stepping on the accelerator to give, if anything, swifter and more efficient rhythm to the Italian war machine."

"Clamorous Agitation"

The statement likened the current foreign reaction to what it described as "the clamorous agitation" accompanying League of Nations-sponsored sanctions against Italy during the Ethiopian war. It branded that campaign as one of "poisonous insults, slanders and sarcasms against Italy, her soldiers and her chiefs."

"The imprudent revival," it went on, "gives the Italian public the right to hope for the same final outcome which—contrary to insinuations and predictions of enemy critics—crowned the Ethiopian undertaking. . . .

"Meanwhile, the Italian people, compact under il Duce's orders and with the most absolute faith in their army and the commanders who are guiding it, are drawing from the campaign of impotent rage reasons to intensify their effort and bend their discipline and will to achieve il Duce's slogan, which remains: 'Win!'"

Duce Receives Badoglio

Il Duce, meanwhile, received Marshal Pietro Badoglio, whose resignation as chief of the army high command was the first in a series of changes in the army and navy commands. An official statement said merely that Mussolini received Badoglio "on a duty visit and held him in cordial conversation."

Another change in the army command was made with the appointment of Gen. Camillo Grossi, one of Italy's high ranking military leaders, as president of the Italian Armistice Commission to deal with vanquished France.

He succeeded Gen. Pietro Pintor, who was killed with Gen. Aldo Pellegrini, chief of Italian civil aviation, in an airplane crash in northern Italy Saturday.

Siamese Trade Air Raids With French Forces

Indo-China Border Towns on Both Sides Bombed; Gun Duels Are Reported

HANOI, French Indo-China, Dec. 9 (AP).—A trading of air blows between French Indo-China and Thailand (Siam) along their disputed frontier was reported officially here tonight. A communique said a Thai plane dropped seven bombs on the important border town of Savannkhet this morning, causing material damage but no casualties.

French Colonial officials withheld information on any counter-blow to this attack, but reiterated: "We will retaliate for any Thai attacks." Nevertheless, they said: "There still is a chance for a settlement."

Earlier French warplanes were reported to have dropped twenty-two bombs on the Thai town of Lakhon in "retaliation" for an alleged bombing of the Indo-China town of Vientiane by Thai planes yesterday.

French authorities announced officially that hostilities in the border dispute had flared to serious proportions and involved considerable bombing.

A three-hour machine-gun duel was reported along the Mekong River near Vientiane yesterday, but there were no casualties. That planes were said to have dropped ten bombs on the city.

Meanwhile officials here denied having received any new Japanese demands upon Indo-China which Chinese spokesmen said had been made last week. The Chinese reports said the Japanese demanded a place in all Government departments and a voice for the Japanese Army in the Indo-China police.

REGIME AT NANKING PLANS CENTRAL BANK

Its Notes Will Replace Those of Chungking as Legal Money

SHANGHAI, Dec. 9 (AP)—The Japanese-supported Nanking government of Wang Ching-wei announced today that it would open a new central bank Dec. 15 and that shortly thereafter notes of the new bank would replace those of the Chinese Government at Chungking as legal currency in Japanese-occupied parts of China.

Foreign observers interpreted this as part of a Japanese campaign to increase economic control in such parts of China.

After a brief period, a statement said, Chungking notes will be outlawed. The Nanking bank's (Chinese dollar) notes will be circulated at par with the Japanese military yen, now valued at about nine United States cents, or 50 per cent above the Chungking dollar.

Domei, Japanese news agency, said in a broadcast yesterday that 30.24—6335

Chinese police of the Nanking regime had boarded the British steamer Hsin Peking at Shanghai and seized gold ingots valued at $320,000, according to The Associated Press.

Orient Refugees Return; Felt Safe in War Zone

Most of 649 Puzzled by Order to Come Home

SAN PEDRO, Calif., Dec. 9 (AP).—Six hundred and forty-nine evacuees from the Orient returned today to American soil on the liner Monterey. Some told stories of bombings and harassments by Japanese airplanes, but most of them were puzzled by the United States government's act in ordering them home. They declared they felt safe in the Orient.

Most of the evacuees were wives and children of Army, Navy and Marine Corps personnel.

Mrs. William Glassford, wife of Rear Admiral Glassford, who is commanding the Yangtse patrol, said:

"All I can say is I wish the United States would do something over there. If you'd seen what I've seen, you'd know what I mean."

MATSUOKA SAYS JAPAN'S POLICY PIVOTS ON AXIS

And Declares Nation Will Not Quibble on Aiding Italy and Reich.

SILENT ON SOVIET RELATIONS

Foreign Minister Asserts Tokio Has Not Despaired of Gaining Better Relations With U. S.

TOKIO, Dec. 9 (A. P.).—Japanese Foreign Minister Yosuke Matsuoko told newspaper correspondents today that the German-Italian-Japanese alliance was the "pivot" around which Japan's foreign policy evolved, and said Japan would not "quibble" in going to the defense of Germany and Italy should occasion arise.

Matsuoko explained that point No. 3 of the military and economic which Japan signed with Germany and Italy last September 27 provided that all three of the Powers would determine which nation was the aggressor in the event of hostilities between any of the three and another nation not now involved in the war.

That point pledged the signers to aid any of their number if attacked by another Power.

The Foreign Minister said Japan "has not despaired of relations on a sounder basis with the United States—if both of us attend to our own business."

Answers Most Questions.

Speaking flawless English, Matsuoko answered readily most of the questions asked. He declined to answer only those questions which dealt with the status of negotiations with Soviet Russia, which he said were "going on," and which dealt with a definition of the extent of the "Greater East Asia" Japanese sphere, which he said "extended beyond Japan, Manchoukuo and China."

He repeated frequently that Japan has no territorial ambitions and seeks only to assure that all the peoples of East Asia "have their own places, each with freedom to determine its policies to the mutual benefit of all of us."

The Foreign Minister declared that Japan's interests to the south were "purely economic," and added:

"We Japanese are trying to confine ourselves to this part of the world."

Says Humanity Depends on U. S.

He said he believed "the fate of humanity" depended on whether the United States enters the war.

Japan, said Matsuoko, "stands or falls" upon elimination of the western "notion of conquest" which he said many Japanese have picked up from their education abroad.

"We are misunderstood now," he said discussing Japan's actions in China, "but give us time. Thirty years and the world may know we were sincere."

One European correspondent asked "what would be Japan's attitude if the United States fleet were stationed at Singapore?"

Matsuoko replied quickly that such a move would be given immediate and "serious consideration," then returned to the subject in a few minutes and commented, "at this moment I have no such eventuality in mind."

ASSERTS SUCH A CLASH WOULD BE 'FOOLISH'

Says He Will Make Every Effort To Keep Two Nations At Peace

But Adds Tokyo Will Fight For Axis If Necessity Arises

[By the Associated Press]

Tokyo, Dec. 9—Yosuke Matsuoka, Foreign Minister, declared today there is no need for current differences between Japan and the United States to lead to an armed clash "if both of us attend to our own business."

"It would be foolish for the United States and Japan to fight; I will make every effort to avoid such a conflict," Matsuoka said in an interview in which he freely discussed Japan's foreign relations with every nation except Soviet Russia.

Doesn't Blame Westeners

"I do not blame Westerners for misunderstanding our activities in China," he went on. "We are far away and it appears at present that we are not minding our own business, but the future will show our true intentions.

"However, I do not see any possibility at this time of altering our policy in China, even if it brings the prospect of bettering our relations with the United States, because we are convinced we are doing right."

Matsuoka declared the German-Italian-Japanese alliance to be the keystone of Japan's foreign policy and said his country would not "quibble" in going to the defense of Germany and Italy should the occasion arise.

Parries Talk On Russia

He answered most questions put to him, but parried those regarding the status of Japanese-Russian negotiations, saying merely that they are "going on." Also, in defining the extent of Japan's program for a "greater East Asia," he said only that it "extended beyond Japan, Manchoukuo and China."

Frequently he repeated that Japan has no "territorial ambitions," that her interests to the south are "purely economic," and that she wants only to assure that all the peoples of East Asia "have their own places, each with freedom to determine its policies to the mutual benefit of us all."

Fighting For Ideals

"We have many men in Japan educated in the Western way of conquest, oppression and exploitation," he went on. "At present a small group headed by Premier Prince Fumimaro Konoye, which still is a minority, is fighting for their elimination and a return to the ideals of old Japan. If we can't win that fight, Japan will go down."

Asked what would be Japan's attitude if the United States fleet were stationed at Singapore, Matsuoka responded quickly that it would be given immediate and "serious consideration." Later he commented that "at this moment I have no such eventuality in mind."

He said it was his firm belief that "the fate of humanity" depends on whether the United States gets involved in the war.

route to Spain.

The Cuban navy said the ship was reported sinking after being torpedoed, the crew escaping in small boats.

In Washington, however, the Navy Department said the crew of the Idarwald attempted to scuttle her and set her afire when the cruiser approached, but added that British sailors boarded her, put down the flames, hauled down the swastika flag and ran up their own.

Fate of Crew Not Known.

The fate of the crew was not known and the Cuban Navy Department said it had no reports from the south coast to indicate that the men had reached safety. The Cuban molasses tanker Mambi, south of the Isle of Pines, said she was en route to help, if possible. Cuban officials, meanwhile, awaited further reports from the Navy Department in Washington.

The cruiser intercepted the freighter about seventy-five miles from the south coast port of Cienfuegos, between the Isle of Pines and Grand Cayman Island, according to officials of the radio bureau of the Cuban Department of Communications. This is well within the American neutrality zone.

The distress signal from the Idarwald, picked up by Jose Arcali, a radio operator in Oriente province, said: "Being attacked by English warship off coast of Cuba . . . ship sinking south of Cuba . . . no time now . . . leaving ship."

There was no word from the 6,031-ton German freighter Rhein, which accompanied the Idarwald in the dash from Tampico. She once reported she was being followed by warships but nothing further has been heard from her. Both left Tampico once previously, with two other Nazi vessels, but turned back after sighting warships. One of the German ships, the Phrygia, was scuttled.

British Hold Nazi Freighter

U. S. Navy Says Idarwald Is in Possession of Warship Which Intercepted Her.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 9 (A. P.).—The Navy Department said today that the German freighter Idarwald was the captive of the British cruiser Diomede after an unsuccessful attempt to run the British blockade from Mexico.

Navy sources said the British warship seized the Idarwald after the crew of the German vessel had attempted to scuttle her, and that the British were in possession of the craft.

Navy officials declined today to discuss any further details.

Intercepted off Cuba.

HAVANA, Dec. 9 (A. P.).—The 5,033-ton German freighter Idarwald failed in her attempt to run the British blockade.

A British cruiser (possibly the 4,850-ton Diomede, which was reported in those waters) intercepted the Idarwald off the south Cuban coast yesterday.

Immediately after the seizure there were conflicting reports as to the vessel, which sailed from Tampico, Mexico, on November 29,

Official London Is Silent.

LONDON, Dec. 9 (A. P.).—British officials declined comment on the Idarwald incident, but one informed observer said a United States Navy Department report that the German merchantman had been captured "appeared more likely" than the Cuban report that she had been torpedoed.

Carnarvon Castle Repaired.

MONTEVIDEO, Dec. 9 (A. P.).—While other British warships were reported searching the South Atlantic today for the German raider whose shells punctured the Carnarvon Castle's steel hull, the damaged British auxiliary cruiser prepared to get back by tomorrow night into the fight for control of Great Britain's vital food lines.

Some of the Carnarvon Castle's crew were certain that other British ships already had caught up with the raider but so far, at least, there were only unconfirmed reports of a new sea battle.

The 20,122-ton Carnarvon Castle, her shell holes rapidly being sealed here with new plates, was being provisioned to sail before 6 P. M. tomorrow, which would be within seventy-two hours of her arrival for repair.

Reich Protests Uruguay's Stay To British Ship

Assails Grant of Extra Day to Carnarvon Castle, Under Repair in Port

MONTEVIDEO, Dec. 9 (AP).—While sailors patched battle scars on the British auxiliary cruiser Carnarvon Castle, Germany protested formally today to the Uruguayan government against granting twenty-four extra hours to make repairs to the ship.

Details of the protest delivered by the Nazi Minister, Otto Langmann, were not disclosed, but it was understood he said the British were making repairs other than those affecting her seaworthiness.

The Carnarvon Castle first received two days to complete repairs, but the time later was extended by twenty-four hours. Informed sources said the German action probably would not change plans by which the cruiser would sail tomorrow before 6 p. m. to resume her "normal duties" in the South Atlantic.

The Carnarvon Castle was battered by German shells in a running fight with a raider on Thursday, and put into Montevideo harbor on Saturday to make repairs.

A rumor said without confirmation today that the raider which damaged the Carnarvon Castle had been trapped by the British cruiser Enterprise. The Enterprise took up the chase when the Carnarvon Castle turned toward Montevideo.

Officially, the British Legation squelched all rumors with the flat statement: "There have been no developments of any kind since the Carnarvon Castle arrived that we know of."

One Report Is Discredited

One report—quickly put down—said the Carnarvon Castle herself put into Montevideo Harbor on terprise had caught and destroyed the raider. A British Admiralty official, denying that rumor, said: "Whoever started that one forgot that radio rooms on warships under neutrality regulations are sealed when the ships enter neutral ports."

Observers noticed considerable activity aboard the Italian merchantman Fausto, which took refuge in Montevideo Harbor when Italy entered the war last June. It was said the ship appeared to be making ready to depart, but officials said they had received no request for permission to sail.

One of the wounded sailors on the Carnarvon Castle was landed during the afternoon and taken to the Uruguayan Military Hospital.

CUBANS WATCHING FOR NAZI SEAMEN

Naval Launches On Guard For Possible Landings Of Idarwald Crew

Not Known Whether British Caught All Sailors From Captured Vessel

[By the Associated Press]

Havana, Dec. 9 — Cuban naval launches patrolled the south coast tonight, watching for possible landings by crewmen of the German merchantman Idarwald, which was intercepted by a British cruiser Sunday afternoon about seventy-five miles south of Cienfuegos.

Rumors that some seamen already had landed were denied officially, it was not known here whether some of the Idarwald's men had escaped in lifeboats or whether all were apprehended by the British.

The United States Navy Department reported that the Idarwald was in the possession of the British cruiser Diomede, and navy sources said the British got aboard quickly enough to thwart German attempts to scuttle the 5,033-ton freighter.

Said She Was Sinking

A wireless message from the Idarwald herself at the time of the incident had said she was "sinking." The Cuban navy had reported she had been torpedoed.

Diplomatic observers here said that, since the Idarwald apparently was seized well within the Pan-American neutrality zone, it was possible that the twenty-one American republics might make formal protest to Great Britain. Neither Britain nor Germany has recognized the neutrality belt, however.

The Cuban State Department maintained a strict reserve concerning the entire matter, but it was learned that a full record was being compiled.

Thought Seeking Refuge

Relief was expressed here that the Idarfald, which left Tampico, Mexico, November 29, was trying to take refuge in Cienfuegos when the British cruiser overtook her.

Marine circles here said the British prize crew probably headed the Idarwald to Jamaica.

There was no word concerning the Idarwald's fellow blockade runner, the 6,031-ton Rhein, which left Tampico at the same time. Two days later, the Rhein wirelessed that she was being followed by a warship. Nothing since has been heard.

Berlin Claims Cruiser Won Fight Unscathed

New York, Dec. 9 (AP)—The Berlin radio in a broadcast today said a German auxiliary cruiser which damaged the British auxiliary cruiser Carnarvon Castle off South America last Thursday emerged from the battle without a scratch.

The broadcast, quoting German quarters, said the German ship was a former commercial vessel converted into an auxiliary cruiser and not one of the Nazi pocket battleships as, it said, the British alleged.

The German sources were quoted as saying the Nazi ship won a victory over the Carnarvon Castle solely because of excellent gunnery.

Portugal Colonies Suffer Under British Blockade

Produce, Including 1940 Crops, Congest Ports

LISBON, Dec. 9 (AP).—An increasingly serious economic situation for Portuguese colonies owing to the British blockade was stressed today by "Diario de Noticias."

The newspaper said 150,000 tons of colonial produce was lying idle, congesting Lisbon dockyards and warehouses, while colonial ports also were clogged. The Cape Verde Islands, Portuguese East Africa and Portuguese West Africa are the principal colonies.

Some of the blockaded products include 1940 crops, "Diario de Noticias" said. Not a kilogram of colonial produce has been re-exported from Lisbon since Oct. 21 when "the exports restrictions and control law" was enforced, it added.

British mail censorship also was termed a serious difficulty to thousands of families, who received monthly income from the colonies. Mails are delayed two to three months en route by censorship, the paper said.

Petain, on Visit to Africa, Receives Tunis Cheers

KILL-DERROVEOUS

Met by Admiral and Troops and Acclaimed by Crowds

BERNE, Switzerland, Dec. 9 (AP).—A Havas (French new agency) report from Tunis, North Africa, said chief of state Henri Petain had arrived there this morning and had been acclaimed by enthusiastic crowds. The dispatch said he was met by Admiral Jean Esteva, resident general of Tunisia, and African troops.

ECC-STORY-DEC10

Petain Rebuff to Flandin Reported Work of Laval

Ex-Premier Asked Post to Tie Vichy Economy to Reich's

BERNE, Switzerland, Dec. 10 (Tuesday) (AP).—Attempts by former French Premier Pierre - Etienne Flandin to share Vice-Premier Pierre Laval's power and prestige in the Vichy government failed after a brief but bitter battle within Chief of State Marshal Henri Petain's Cabinet, diplomatic reports said today.

Flandin returned to Paris yesterday, these resoprts said, when his conditions for entering the Cabinet were rejected. He was said to have wanted the post of Minister of Economy and Finance, with headquarters in Paris and answerable only to Marshal Petain.

Flandin was reported to have advocated binding French economy close to Germany economy, thus integrating France immediately into the "new Europe" without waiting for the end of the war.

Laval was said to have threatened to resign rather than work with Flandin under his conditions, and Marshal Petain finally rejected Flandin.

Queen Helen Off For Germany

Florence, Italy, Dec. 9 (AP).—Queen Mother Helen, of Rumania, after a fifteen-day visit here, left tonight for Germany with her sister, Irene, the Duchess of Spoleto.

Mrs. Pandit Is Sentenced Under India Defense Act

Sister of Nehru Jailed for Planning Anti-War Speech

BOMBAY, Dec. 8 (AP). — Mrs. Vijalakshmi, pandit, former Congress (Nationalist party) minister in the United Provinces government and sister of the imprisoned pandit Jawaharlal Nehru, was sentenced today to four months in jail under the defense of India act.

She was arrested at Allahabad after informing police authorities she intended to make an anti-war speech, the same offense which brought about the arrest of Nehru, former president of the All-India National Congress, who is serving a four-year sentence.

Nehru, among men chosen by Mohandas K. Gandhi to make anti-war speeches as part of a nationalist plan of "limited civil disobedience," was sentenced on Nov. 5.

Mexico Sticks To Plan To Aid Spanish Refugees

Arrangements Made By Cardenas To Bring Over 100,000 Will Be Fulfilled By Successor

Mexico City, Dec. 9 (AP)—Miguel Aleman, Minister of the Interior, said today that arrangements made by ex-President Cardenas' regime to bring as many as 100,000 Spanish refugees here from France would be fulfilled by the new administration.

The Mexican consul in Vichy reached agreement some weeks ago with the Government of Henri Philippe Petain for releasing Spanish Republican exiles now in French concentration camps.

Aleman said he had not received notice that any of the refugees had yet departed for Mexico. Transportation facilities previously were reported being worked out in cooperation with the International Red Cross.

Bergson Quits College; Protests Anti-Semitism

French-Jew Philosopher, 81, Spurns Vichy's Offer

VICHY, Dec. 9 (AP).—Henri Bergson, French philosopher, has resigned from the College of France at Paris in a protest against anti-Semitic laws.

It was learned here today that Bergson, a Jew, refused exemption offered by the government from the laws for his "literary and artistic services to the nation."

Eighty-one years old, Henri Louis Bergson for years has been considered one of the foremost living philosophers. He is a strenuous opponent of the mechanical conception of life, and in his most profound work, "L'Evolution Creative," broke completely with the philosophic systems of the past.

British Seize French Boat

VICHY, Dec. 9 (AP).—The Petain government announced today that a French fishing boat returning from the Newfoundland banks with a cargo of codfish had been captured by the British off La Rochelle. The announcement said a similar boat was torpedoed by a British submarine a month ago and that a third had not been heard from for several days.

Fined for Price-Raising

PARIS, Dec. 3 (Delayed—Via Berlin) (AP).—Fines totaling 1,100,000 francs were imposed on three Paris business men today for illegal price-raising. [The franc now has only nominal value, but by pre-defeat standards this sum would equal $20,000.]

Gen. Dentz Named Syrian Commissioner

VICHY, Dec. 9 (A. P.).—Gen. Henri Dentz, commander of the military region of Marseilles, was appointed French High Commissioner to Syria and Lebanon today to replace Jean Chiappe, who was killed November 27 when his plane crashed in the Mediterranean.

Gen. Dentz also was named Commander-in-Chief of French forces in the Levant States. He served as a member of the French General Staff in Syria after the world war.

SWISS APPLY CAPITAL TAX

Emergency Levy for Defense Also Is Added to Rates on Incomes

BERNE, Switzerland, Dec. 9 (AP)—The Federal Government adopted special emergency capital and income taxes today for national defense, giving Switzerland her first tax on capital. The law becomes effective Jan. 1, 1941, for four years.

The present normal income tax frequently reaches 12 per cent.

The new capital tax ranges from 5 francs annually on minimum fortunes of 10,000 francs to 2,500 francs on 1,000,000 francs. [The Swiss franc was rated yesterday at 23.21 cents.]

A supplementary income tax is graduated from 8 francs to 2,750 francs on bachelors' incomes and from 12 francs to 2,240 francs on incomes of married persons. An exemption of 400 francs is allowed for each dependent.

Polish Legation Shut At Hungary's Request

BUDAPEST, Dec. 9 (A. P.).—The Polish legation closed its doors today by request of the Hungarian Government — once Poland's closest friend.

The reason was not announced, but it was generally believed that Hungary felt, as a signatory of the Axis pact, she could no longer tolerate the legation of a country absorbed by Germany.

The British Government protested. The Polish Minister, Leon Orlowski, will remain privately in Budapest.

Hungary and Yugoslavia Plan Negotiations.

BUDAPEST, Dec. 9 (A. P.).—Foreign Minister Count Istvan Csaky of Hungary will leave for Belgrade tomorrow night to negotiate a friend friendship pact with Yugoslavia, informed quarters announced today.

The meeting apparently has the blessing of both Rome and Berlin. The agreement will be purely political, informants said, without any military ties.

It was recalled that a similar understanding already exists between Yugoslavia and Bulgaria.

Windsors En Route To U. S. For Operation On Duchess

Latter To Start Treatment At Miami Today For Serious Dental Ailment

[By the Associated Press]

Nassau, Bahamas, Dec. 9—The Duke and Duchess of Windsor left Nassau aboard the yacht Southern Cross this afternoon, bound for Miami, where the Duchess will undergo a major dental operation to correct an ailment that has caused her increasing pain and has undermined her health generally.

The Windsors hope the brief, private visit won't interfere with their plans for a real tour of the United States, possibly next year. Aboard the yacht, which sailed at 3.30 P. M., were the owner, Axel Wenner-Gren; Mrs. Wenner-Gren, and Capt. Vyvyan Drury, the Duke's aide-de-camp.

The Duchess will submit to the operation at St. Francis Hospital soon after arrival tomorrow about 8 A. M. Then she and the Duke will spend three days at the Miami Biltmore Hotel before leaving late Friday aboard the steamer Munargo. Both have expressed the hope of an American trip ever since the Duke came here as Colonial Governor more than three months ago. Their plans have been delayed indefinitely because of wartime restrictions on travel outside the empire.

They made it clear that this week's four-day stay in Miami could not be considered the visit they had planned. To emphasize this point, they shunned all possible publicity on the trip, refused all invitations and decided against any public appearances.

Later, if good business reasons develop for the Duke to go to the United States or if war troubles lighten, they want to make a full-dress tour, including visits to the Duchess' former Baltimore home and to the places in New York that Windsor remembers only from his last United States appearance as Prince of Wales sixteen years ago.

NEW FRENCH ENVOY RECEIVED BY POPE

DEC 10 1940

Pius Offers Encouragement to Oppressed Nation.

VATICAN CITY, Dec. 9 (A. P.).—Pope Pius XII offered encouragement to France today, expressing the hope she would find better and happier days, in receiving the credentials of the new French Ambassador, Leon Berard.

M. Berard addressed the Pope with "emotion and sadness," which the pontiff said found "understanding, sympathy and encouragement" in his heart, especially for a "proposal to lead France back to better and more serene days."

The pontiff said that in the midst of events which were beginning to give new lineaments to the spiritual and outward aspects of Europe he remembered the image of Catholic France when he visited the grotto of the "Queen of Peace" at Lourrdes.

"Today this France is veiled with sorrow, struck by a test such as she seldom has encountered in the stormy history of the French nation," the Holy Father asserted.

He expressed hope that all those upon whom fell the mission of "dominating the present and laying spiritual and material bases for the future will develop in order and concord the riches of energy and sentiment accumulated in the deeper soul of the peoples."

With all his heart, the Pope said, he wished for France to have in the midst of her present test "moral force" with which to bear conditions.

After the official audience, the Pope talked with M. Berard in his private library.

French Art Treasures Which British Seized Removed To Ottawa

Hamilton, Bermuda, Dec. 9 (AP)—French art treasures valued at $500,000, taken by British authorities from the American Export liner Excalibur early in October while en route to the United States, have been transferred to Ottawa, it was stated officially tonight.

The Bermuda Supreme Court on November 8 dismissed an action instituted on behalf of Martin Fabiani, of New York, described as owner of the cargo consigned from Lisbon to a New York art gallery. The court had been asked to rule whether the pieces, for the most part paintings by modern French masters, were to be condemned as prizes of war.

Instead, the court ordered the case transferred to the British Prize Court.

WHOLLY TAXABLE ISSUE OF FEDERAL NOTES ANNOUNCED

$500,000,000 in Defense Securities Described by Morgenthau.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 9 (A. P.).—Secretary Morgenthau announced today the first wholly taxable securities issue in the history of the United States Treasury and a proposal to ask Congress to remove tax exemptions from all future Government securities.

He said that a $500,000,000 issue of national defense notes, previously announced for sale on Wednesday, would be the first wholly taxable issues of the Government. He explained that existing laws permit him to remove tax exemptions only from Government securities designated as "notes," but he would ask Congress to give him similar "discretionary authority" over all other types of Government securities.

Assailing what he called "slacker money," the Secretary said: "It is not fair to have our soldiers work eight to twelve hours a day in army camps for $30 a month while the man who lends money to the Government gets the privilege of being exempt from taxes."

He added that he would ask Congress also for powers to raise billions of dollars from ordinary citizens through the sale of small denomination securities such as the 25-cent stamps and $5 bonds sold during the world war.

"We have now about 2,500,000 people buying United States savings (baby) bonds now, and we would like to double or triple that figure. To do that we will ask Congress to give us authority to sell smaller denominations."

U. S. Army Attache In England Returning

WASHINGTON, Dec. 9 (A. P.)—The War Department disclosed today that the United States military attache in England, Brig.-Gen. Raymond E. Lee, would return soon for temporary duty in Washington. Officials would make no comment on the purpose of Gen. Lee's assignment here.

However, it will afford governmental officials an opportunity to obtain first-hand his observations of British and German fighting methods and his opinion as to England's most pressing needs and chances for survival.

Vladivostok To Get American Consulate

Angus I. Ward, Of Embassy Staff At Moscow, To Complete Arrangements

Washington, Dec. 9 (AP)—The State Department today announced Angus I. Ward, of the American Embassy staff at Moscow, had been ordered to Vladivostok to open the first American consulate outside the Russian capital since the Soviet Union was recognized by the United States.

The last American consulate in Vladivostok was closed in 1923 because of difficulties with Soviet authorities.

Ward has been consul and secretary of the Moscow embassy. He will complete arrangements for opening the new consulate and act temporarily as consul, the State Department said.

Roosevelt Calls At Antigua and Sees Officials

Leeward Islands Governor Discusses Plans for U. S. Plane Base With Him

ABOARD U. S. S. MAYRANT AT SEA, Dec. 9 (AP).—President Roosevelt, continuing his inspection tour of American defense bases, conferred for more than an hour today with British officials of the island of Antigua, discussing projected United States seaplane facilities on Parham Sound.

The President's cruiser, the Tuscaloosa, anchored this morning at the entrance of the bay off St. John's, and Sir Gordon J. Lethem, Governor of the British Leeward Islands, and Administrator Herbert Boon were brought aboard. The three discussed defense batteries, sanitary facilities and the use of Parham Sound for patrol planes.

After a luncheon on the communications deck of the cruiser the officials departed and the President resumed his voyage. As usual, his course was undisclosed.

Late Sunday the Chief Executive halted off the French island of Martinique, potential trouble spot. Lying hove to in full view of the French aircraft carrier Bearn at Fort de France, the Tuscaloosa was the scene of an hour's conference held by Mr. Roosevelt —with American Consul V. H. Brocker jr. and Capt. Ernest J. Blankenship, American Navy observer on the island.

Earlier the President had passed many hours inspecting strategic United States aviation outposts protecting the eastern approaches of the Caribbean at St. Lucia, a small British island in the Lesser Antilles. Facilities for seaplane operation acquired from Great Britain in the destroyer exchange already are in operation there.

Sunday morning the three vessels anchored off Castries, the picturesque capital of St. Lucia at the foot of cloud-shrouded mountains surrounding a small bay. The President toured the inner harbor in a small boat of the United States naval patrol anchored there with a seaplane tender.

Sir Henry B. Popham, Governor, and A. A. Wright, Administrator, lunched with the President aboard the Tuscaloosa and later proceeded through frequent tropical rain squalls to Gros Islet Bay, several miles along the coast from Castries, where the United States has acquired 120 acres for seaplane tender operations.

Martinique Reports on Visit

FORT DE FRANCE, Martinique, Dec. 8 (delayed) (AP).—The government of this little French insular possession issued the following communique tonight on the visit of President Roosevelt:

"Today, Sunday, at 1 p. m. High Commissioner Admiral Georges Robert was informed that President Roosevelt would pass off the coast of Martinique in the afternoon aboard the cruiser on which he is making a Caribbean cruise. The President also asked if the admiral would authorize American Consul V. H. Brocker jr. and American naval attache Ernest J. Blankenship, transported by American destroyer, to come outside territorial waters to meet him aboard his ship.

"The admiral cordially gave his permission, and about 2 p. m. the destroyer came to Pointe des Negres to take aboard the consul and naval attache. The Admiral High Commissioner sent his salutations to President Roosevelt through the American Consul.

"About 4 p. m. the meeting was ended and the destroyer brought back the two American officials, and then Comdr. Blankenship made a visit to the admiral to transmit the cordial salutations of President Roosevelt."

Canadian Destroyer Makes Port After Attack By Sub

Loses 21 Seamen In Eastern Atlantic Engagement. Presumably Safe In British Harbor

[By the Associated Press]

Ottawa, Tuesday, Dec. 10 — Naval Service headquarters announced early today that the Canadian destroyer Saguenay was damaged by a torpedo while engaging a submarine in the eastern Atlantic and that twenty-one seamen are missig and eighteen are wounded and in hospital.

The official announcement said the destroyer "has safely reached port where she will be taken in hand for the necessary repairs." The port is presumably a British harbor.

Canadian destroyers are known to have engaged German aircraft while carrying out convoy duties around the British Isles and presumably have dropped depth charges in the vicinity of submarines, but this was the first report of direct damage to a Canadian fighting ship by an enemy naval vessel.

Dominion's Total Now 281

The deaths brought to 281 the number of Canadian naval men reported dead and missing since the war began.

The destroyer Fraser sank in collision last June and the destroyer Margaree went the same way in October. But were lost through mishap in the blackout darkness in the war zone. The loss in the Margaree sinking was 142 officers and men including the commanding officer, Commander Joseph W. R. Roy, of Ottawa. Forty-five lives were lost with the Fraser.

The Frazer sank while aiding in evacuation operations off the French port of Bordeaux and the Margaree while escorting merchant ships in the North Atlantic.

Nothing was said in the day's naval announcement about the fate of the submarine, or the nature of the engagement between the Saguenay and the U-boat.

Launched In 1930

The Saguenay was launched in 1930. A vessel of 1,337 tons displacement, she exceeded 37 knots easily on trial runs. Armament included four 4.7-inch guns and eight torpedo tubes.

North Atlantic Becomes New Sea Battleground

New York, Dec. 9 (AP)—A story of continued attacks — twenty-three of them—against the sea lanes of the British Empire was told in the radio log of the American Export liner Exeter, which arrived today from Lisbon.

During the eighteen days in which the Exeter was on the Atlantic, bound to Lisbon and return, her radio heard thirty-one distress signals—telling of attacks from the air and by surface and underseas raiders on more than 100,000 tons of shipping.

Maritime circles here believed four of the calls indicated that at least two raiders were at work, one in the North Atlantic off Newfoundland and another near the Canary Islands.

Believed Mass Victims

Included in the record were calls heard in New York by Mackay Radio from such British merchantmen as the Loch Ranza, 4,958 tons; W. Hendrik, 4,360 tons; Victor Ross, 12,247 tons; Goodleigh, 5,448 tons, and Lady Glanely, 5,497 tons.

These vessels apparently were torpedoed victims of a mass U-boat attack on a convoy 500 miles west of Ireland December 2 in which Germany claimed to have sunk fifteen ships.

On November 23 the Exeter Radio picked up a distress signal from the 9,461-ton British freighter Glenbeg that she had "sighted suspicious vessel." Her position was 500 miles southwest of Santa Cruz, Canary Islands.

1,000 Miles Away

A week later a distress signal was heard from the 4,825-ton British freighter Llandaff, ordinarily in the West African trade. She said a "suspicious vessel" was following her 300 miles northeast of Ponta Delgada, the Azores, and 1,000 miles north of the scene of the Glenbeg call.

Maritime circles said the vessels may have been sunk before they could send further messages.

Two later calls indicated another raider, possibly the pocket battleship which attacked the Jervis Bay convoy of thirty-eight ships November 5 in the North Atlantic, was still at large in the same region.

Four Other Attacks

Approximately 350 miles northeast of Newfoundland on December 2, according to the log of the Exeter, the R. J. Cullen, 6-517-ton British freighter and formerly the American San Lucas, sighted a suspicious vessel; twenty-four hours later and from one hundred miles to the southeast, the Caperby (unlisted in Lloyd's register of shipping) sent a similar message.

The Exeter heard of two further attacks, previously unreported here. Both were from ships ordinarily trading between England and South America.

Last Saturday the Netherlands freighter Farmsun, 5,237 tons, radioed she had been torpedoed approximately 600 miles west of the southern tip of Ireland. The British freighter Treverbyn, 5,281 tons, signalled yesterday that she was "ok but still attacked" by planes 320 miles west of Londonderry, Ireland.

War Communiques

British

CAIRO, Egypt, Dec. 9 (AP).—A British command communique:

In the Western Desert, advanced elements of our forces are now in contact with the enemy on a broad front. In an engagement south of Sidi Barrani we captured 500 prisoners..

THE SUDAN: Last night our patrols continued extensive activities in the Gallabat area, while our artillery again successfully engaged enemy targets.

OTHER FRONTS: Nothing to report.

The London radio, as heard in the Herald Tribune radio room, broadcast the following special communique issued by British headquarters at Cairo:

Operations in the western desert are extending satisfactorily. Five hundred prisoners already have been captured in one area alone, while more are being rounded up. The commander of one of the Italian forces engaged has been killed and the second in command was captured.

The London broadcast added the following comment:

It was understood that the prisoners mentioned in the special communique ware in addition to the 500 whose capture was announced in an earlier Cairo communique.

CAIRO, Dec. 9 (AP).—The British Royal Air Force issued the following special communique tonight:

Working in close co-operation with the Army, R. A. F. aircraft harassed enemy troops in the western desert throughout the day. Heavy damage was caused to a motor transport and enemy personnel by continuous bombing and machine-gun fire. Successful offensive patrols were carried out over our advancing troops. Two enemy fighters were shot down. Enemy air dromes were raided, and at El Adem a hangar was demolished and other damage caused.

During the night of Dec. 8-9 bombing raids were made on various enemy air dromes in support of military operations. A particularly heavy attack was made on Benina, which was raided in waves from dusk to dawn. Over twenty tons of bombs fell in the target area. The first raiders created fires which increased throughout the night by the subsequent bombing until in the end the whole air drome appeared ablaze.

In addition, Sidi Barrani, Sollum and Bardia were attacked.

LONDON, Dec. 9 (AP).—An Air Ministry communique:

Last night Royal Air Force bombers renewed their attacks on industrial and military targets in the Duesseldorf area.

Other forces of aircraft bombed the submarine base at Lorient and the shipping and harbor installations at Bordeaux and Brest. Among other targets attacked were the ports of Flushing, Dunkerque and Gravelines and several enemy airdromes.

Two of our aircraft are missing.

Tonight's Air Ministry-Home Security Ministry communique:

There is nothing to report.

This morning's Air and Home Security Ministries communique:

During last night enemy aircraft made a heavy bombing attack on London and the surrounding districts. Many fires were caused. The fire services put out most of them while the attack was still in progress. Considerable damage was done to some buildings, including many dwelling houses. A number of people have been killed and others injured.

Bombs were also dropped in many districts between London and the southeast coast, as well as in a few other local towns in southern England. Many of these did no harm, but in some places fires were caused and damage was done to houses and other property. The number of casualties reported from these areas is not large.

Two enemy bombers have been destroyed.

Greek

ATHENS, Dec. 9 (AP).—The Greek high command communique:

Fighting continued successfully today.

We have advanced further.

A Ministry of Home Security communique:

No raids were made today on Greece.

Italian

ROME, Dec. 9 (AP).—The Italian high command communique:

On the Greek front in the sector of the 9th Army repeated enemy attacks were repulsed by our troops which had launched numerous victorious counter-attacks.

The 11th Army completed an orderly withdrawal without loss of men or material on a line north of Argyrokastron and minor surrounding localities.

Our air force, although hampered by unfavorable weather conditions, bombed military objectives at San Maura and the Gulf of Arta.

Wreckage of one enemy plane, reported as seriously hit in a previous bulletin, has been found in our territory. The English officer pilot who bailed out with a parachute was picked up seriously wounded.

In North Africa a column of the enemy mechanized forces was put to flight by the fire of our artillery southeast of Alem Rabia.

Enemy formations attacked an airport at Tripoli and localities at Gargaresc, Zenzur and Tarhuna, killing one and injuring five and causing some material damage. Other enemy planes attacked the airport at Bengasi, damaging the hangar, and at Ain Gazel without result. Three enemy planes were shot down by our fighters and a fourth by naval aircraft batteries.

In East Africa an enemy air raid on Gallabat and Gherille in Somaliland caused several deaths and injuries. Other raids on Aojale and Meje caused neither casualties nor damage.

German

BERLIN, Dec. 9 (AP).—The German high command communique:

As retaliation for English air attacks on west German cities, the German air force, in rolling waves last night from twilight to dawn, made a large scale attack on London with very heavy forces. In a good night, the planes dropped bombs on the city, some of the heaviest caliber, especially on vital supply centers.

In many places great fires started, which in the course of the night united and formed a great, glowing sea of fire. Gas containers flew into the air in gigantic flames, and oil tanks caughtt fire and smoked heavily.

Solitary British planes dropped bombs on numerous places in western Germany during the night. In Duesseldorf, Munich-Gladbach and several other spots, residential districts were hit and some houses were fired. Nine civilians were killed, seventeen were severely wounded and twenty-four slightly wounded. All dead or wounded persons were outside air raid shelters.

No military nor war-vital industrial damage was done.

Two English planes were shot down by anti-aircraft. One German plane was missing.

Dutch

LONDON, Dec. 9 (AP).—A communique issued by the British Ministry of Information on behalf of the Netherlands government in exile in Great Britain:

The London headquarters of the Royal Netherlands Navy regrets to announce the loss of a Netherlands submarine in war operations.

Every endeavor has at once been made to inform the next of kin through the International Red Cross. It may be assumed that these messages have now reached their destination in Holland.

Extent of Emergency Mussolini Is Meeting Not Yet Fully Disclosed

By DEWITT MACKENZIE

Italy's military and economic disorganization has injected an entirely new element into the war and created a serious position for the Axis Powers.

The measure of the Fascist difficulty is clearly marked by the extent of the upheaval in Mussolini's high command—a surprising turnover which Il Duce either has undertaken to meet some exceptional condition or has had thrust upon him. The Italian leader is in process of meeting an emergency which is not wholly explained by the defeat at the hands of the Greeks.

British officials in London, trying to read between the lines, claim to see indications of political troubles in Italy. Some British military officers even express belief in reports of disorders. However, we must not overlook that wishful thinking might bring them to that view in any event.

Perhaps the greatest reassurance which Mussolini's followers get in this trying moment is the vigor and authority with which he is attacking his problem. Certain it is that he will need the full power of his leadership for it is doubtful whether he has been on a tougher spot excepting perhaps when he defied world opinion and invaded Ethiopia, and again when he had to make the fateful decision as to whether he should take his people into the present war.

Hostility to Tie with Hitler.

One is bound to wonder whether his trouble is unconnected with his entrance into the conflict as an ally of Hitler. Having studied the position at first hand in Italy not long before the war, I am confident that the public as a whole was averse to entering into any partnership with Hitler.

Mussolini's trouble is, of course, his enemy's good fortune. This lucky break for Britain and her allies which (whatever the underlying causes) was brought to a head by the Greek show, might easily produce a big swing in the trend of the conflict. It's the greatest opportunity Britain has had thus far to strike a crippling blow at the Axis through Italy—as good a chance as she is likely to get at trying to force Italy's collapse.

Britain's task will be to marshal the strength to strike the blow. This must be achieved in face of such a fierce German aerial assault as was marked by last night's great raid on London and the continued sinking of Allied and neutral shipping which the British say has now reached a weekly average of 84,000 tons—a serious menace indeed.

A Race Against Time.

Fortunately for Britain the winter months all but preclude a German attempt at direct invasion. That may come in the spring, however, and it will be a race against time for the British to try to knock Mussolini out soon enough to release badly needed naval and air forces from the Mediterranean, both to check Hitler's effort to throw an army into the British Isles and to meet the submarine and bombing menaces.

London continues to look hopefully toward France's African colonies for help in the forthcoming offensive against the Fascists on the Dark Continent. That there is a growing pro-British feeling in these colonies there is no doubt, but whether it will reach the point of military co-operation is a matter of speculation at this juncture.

The French Government at Vichy naturally condemns any such action by the colonies. More than a few observers, however, incline to the belief that when all is said and done old Marshal Petain, as head of the Vichy Government and those who are fully in sympathy with his policies, wouldn't be at all averse to seeing the colonies join the British. There is a steadily growing undercurrent of feeling in France that her salvation lies in the victory of Britain and her allies.

Nazi Riviera

[By the Associated Press]

New York, Dec. 9—A passenger who returned from France today on the American Export liner said many wealthy Germans had been removed from the Ruhr and other industrial sections of Germany to Southern France along the Riviera.

Georges Bally, associate professor of French at Vanderbilt University, said the removal apparently followed upon the R. A. F.'s bombing of industrial Germany.

Bally, who arrived in his native France on sabbatical leave in July, 1939, to do research, was mobilized into the French army a month later and spent ten months as a lieutenant in the French artillery, stationed in Corsica.

Baby Born Aboard

He said the men in his regiment were "utterly stunned" when they were told of the armistice.

Bally was born in France. His wife is the former Vivien M. Cady, of Minneapolis. He plans to join her before returning to Vanderbilt.

The ship carried 182 passengers, one a boy born aboard last night to Mrs. Armando Contreras Unda, wife of a Venezuelan diplomat.

Capt. S. F. Ransone said the Exeter was stopped for identification the night she left Lisbon and while her Portuguese pilot was still aboard. He identified the British trawler with which blinker signals were exchanged as the same one that fired two shots across the liner's bow and boarded her on a previous trip.

British Capture 4,000 Italians In Egypt Drive

Churchill Announces Gain to Cheering House —4000 Prisoners and Many Tanks Taken —Free French Are Co-operating.

CAIRO, Dec. 10 (A. P.).—The latest reports from the western desert today said that the British had cut the Italian main lines of communications and had isolated a large number of troops in a wide encircling movement.

The British, the reports said, penetrated the Italian positions protecting the land approaches to Sidi Barrani and pushed on toward the coast.

[In London Prime Minister Churchill said that the British had reached the coast west of Sidi Barrani.]

The British encircling movement, reports from the desert said, had engulfed a number of small camps, in addition to the principal camp at Sidi Barrani. Four thousand prisoners, along with a large number of tanks and trucks, were reported captured, with the British still cleaning up small isolated concentrations of Italians.

The Italians were said to be resisting strongly at some points, but the British were holding the initiative throughout.

Bright moonlight helped the British last night as they brought up supplies and strengthened their positions before resuming the attack at dawn with the support of the R. A. F., the reports said.

All through yesterday R. A. F. bombers hammered at Marshal Rodolfo Graziani's rear positions, attacking every single airdrome in the western desert and in Libya.

A communique said that "immense damage" had been done in these attacks on airdromes, and added that the flyers paused only to refuel at their bases.

Other aircraft ranged far and wide over the whole area of operations, attacking enemy columns and motor transport in the coastal sector and covering the new road from Sidi Barrani to Bardia, in Libya, over which Graziani must send reenforcements.

Churchill Reports to House.

LONDON, Dec. 10 (A. P.).—Prime Minister Churchill told Commons today that the opening of the British offensive in western Egypt had carried British troops across seventy-five miles of desert to the Mediterranean, cutting a wide swath between the Italians at Sidi Barrani and the coastal town of Buqbuq. He declined to say, however, whether the Italian base at Sidi Barrani had been cut off.

At the same time a communiqué issued by the British African command announced that operations in the western desert were successfully continuing, that prisoners so far captured were reported to exceed 4,000 or roughly 5 per cent of the 80,000 Italians estimated to be in Egypt and that a number of medium tanks had been captured.

Italian Air Force Battered.

Tonight the Air Ministry announced that twenty-two Italian planes had been shot down in fighting over the western desert yesterday and that every Italian airdrome from Derna to Sidi Barrani had been heavily damaged by the R. A. F., which lost only three planes, with two pilots saved.

The Prime Minister's ruddy face was beaming as he announced the successful opening of the campaign against Marshal Rodolfo Graziani's army, which for months has been poised for an attack on Alexandria and Suez. Buqbuq is thirty-five miles west of Sidi Barrani, about halfway between that town and the Libyan-Egyptian border.

He said that Royal Air Force aid for Greece, which had proved "most important" in the Greek victories, had caused a temporary postponement of the assault against the Italians in Egypt.

He detailed two attacks on Italian fortified positions by forces of British, African and Free French troops under Sir Maitland Wilson. In the first of these, he said, an Italian General was killed and his second in command captured.

Too Early for a Forecast.

"It is too soon," he said, "to attempt to forecast either the scope or the result of the considerable operations which are in progress. But we can at any rate say that the preliminary phase has been successful."

The House cheered wildly as he concluded his report with the statement:

"We shall no doubt receive further news shortly."

Mr. Churchill said that the British Mediterranean fleet and the air force "are, of course, co-operating closely with the army," and added that British warships had bombarded the various coastal positions of the Italian forces, particularly Maktila and Sidi Barrani.

Meanwhile military observers here declared that the big surprise raid seemed to be developing toward a full-fledged offensive.

These spokesmen added, however, that so far the "strategic position of the Italians has not been greatly altered by the operations."

They said there could be no doubt that the British had met with initial success in the attack on the Italian advance posts in Northwest Egypt, but because of the great distances between scattered Italian positions the British could not be expected to register many similar gains immediately.

Latest advices from Cairo told of sharp fighting under bright moonlight last night as the British followed up their sudden assault.

Seen as Test of Morale.

The London newspapers published news of the engagement under banner headlines and speculated on the possibility of a full-fledged British offensive in north Africa timed to coincide with Italian difficulties on the Greek war front.

"The News suggests that Gen. Sir Archibald Wavell (British Near East commander) and Lieut.-Gen. Henry Maitland Wilson (commander of British forces in Egypt, judge the time has come to test not only the material strength of the enemy, but his moral strength as well," declared the London News Chronicle.

It said that the recent shakeup in the Italian general staff "must have had considerable effect on the enemy, and it is reasonable to suppose that Gen. Wilson has ordered British advance elements to take the offensive in order to discover to what extent Italian morale has fallen and by how much their powers of resistance have waned."

Eden Statement Recalled.

The London Daily Herald predicted that yesterday's attack may lead to a full-scale offensive.

The military correspondent for Reuters, the British news agency, said cautiously that the Egyptian operations are still in a preliminary stage, and that it was premature to discuss ultimate possibilities.

He recalled, however, the guarded statements made by the War Secretary, Major Anthony Eden, on his return from Egypt recently to the effect that when operations in Egypt started, they would resolve themselves into "a fierce struggle on a wide front." The correspondent suggested that "that fight has now begun."

The main British assault, which began at dawn yesterday and continued through the day and into the night, apparently was launched against the Italian right flank in the Sidi Barrani zone at a point about thirty miles from the Mediterranean seacoast.

Italians Tell of Attacking British.

ROME, Dec. 10 (A. P.).—Italian dispatches from the Egyptian front reported today that ten Italian planes attacked a British mechanized column of thirty machines in a sandstorm south of Sidi Barrani but indicated that there had been only small-scale fighting along the desert front.

The dispatches said that the British column was machine-gunned east of Bir Emba by scouting planes; that some of the vehicles stopped and others were scattered in the desert, and that the crews of some of the machines leaped out and fled.

The communique added that four British planes were shot down in the Egyptian war zone.

BRITISH POUND FRENCH COAST IN FIERCE RAID

Raging Fires Seen From Kent Long After Attack.

BOMB BREMEN PLANE WORKS

London Again Goes Unraided as Nazis Fail to Follow Up Sunday's Onslaught.

LONDON, Dec. 10 (A. P.).—A Bremen airplane factory, the Nazi naval base at Lorient, France, and the docks of Boulogne were heavily bombed by the Royal Air Force last night, the Air Ministry announced today.

A British bomber shot down a German fighting plane, the Ministry said. It also acknowledged that one British plane was missing.

Fires, started by the R. A. F. along the coast of France, could be seen from the Kentish coast today still burning fiercely.

The mid-channel haze and a drizzle passed by mid-morning and the sun, breaking through the clouds, revealed the fires, from which columns of black and white smoke were rising.

The fires were worst in and around Calais. Scores of people flocked to the Kentish seashore when word spread that the "R. A. F. had left some visiting cards across the Channel."

London Escapes Attack.

Meanwhile today Britons were pleased but puzzled by a new lull in the Nazi air siege when at 9 P. M., thirty-seven and one-half hours had passed without alarms or reports of bombings.

Throughout last night and today, roof-top spotters watched the sky over London for planes which failed to attempt any follow-up of the twelve-hour pounding given London on Sunday night.

Again tonight it appeared as though the capital would be raidless.

Nazi bombers usually come over as night falls, but there was no alarm now since the "all clear" at 7:30 A. M. yesterday.

The Dover area, however, was shaken by heavy gunfire tonight as British and German long-range batteries fought a coast-to-coast duel across the strait for half an hour. Sheets of red flame could be seen from the English coast and the distant rumble of explosions was taken as a sign that R. A. F. bombers again were attacking Nazi battery emplacements at Cape Gris Nez.

Last night, however, many Londoners went to the shelters—just in case. The weather was not unfavorable to raiding.

The Press Association speculated that the lull may have been caused by the Royal Air Force's blows at Germany and German air bases, or by a German strategy of massing forces for a heavy blow later, but added that guessing is still without any authentic answer.

Nazis Report Raids on Reich.

BERLIN, Dec. 10 (A. P.).—The German High Command said today that British air raiders dropped a number of high explosive and incendiary bombs over occupied regions and north Germany last night, but the damage was described as immaterial.

Unfavorable weather, the communique added, restricted German aerial activity over England yesterday largely to "armed reconnaissance flights."

The Germans also acknowledged the loss of three planes in what they called the monster air raid on London on Sunday night.

BRITISH TROOPS DRIVE AHEAD IN DESERT ATTACK

Cut Off Sidi Barrani, Seize 4,000 Fascists, And Isolate Many More

Adopt Blitzkrieg Tactics To Break Through To Mediterranean Coast

[By the Associated Press]

Cairo, Egypt, Dec. 10—The British army of Egypt, applying in the desert wastes the very tactics of extraordinary speed and shock used by the Germans in the Blitzkrieg of the west, has destroyed the communications between Italian advance and rear, and isolated great numbers of Fascist troops, it was reported tonight.

Reports from the front said the British broke through the Italian positions protecting the important Mediterranean base of Sidi Barrani—a main springboard of the Fascist invasion of Egypt begun weeks ago—and pushed on to the coast.

More Prisoners Being Taken.

A wide British encircling movement already had engulfed a number of smaller camps in addition to Sidi Barrani itself, it was said, and in cleaning up the pockets the British were declared to be adding more prisoners to the 4,000-odd already reported held. A number of tanks and motor trucks also were reported seized.

The British advance was in charging columns of tanks and armored cars supported by planes which machine-gunned Fascist columns just as the Nazi dive-bombers operated ahead of ground troops in France and Belgium.

During the night the British brought up supplies and strengthened their positions; at dawn today they resumed the offensive.

Fascist Airdromes Smashed

Yesterday British bombers smashed all during the day at Marshal Rodolfo Graziani's rear forces, assaulting every airdrome in the western desert and in Italian Libya, and in these raids "immense damage" was claimed officially.

The authorized description of air action made it clear that it was in three sections: Attacks upon Fascist troops, upon the bases of Italian air power and over the whole fighting area with special attention to Italian troop transport along the coastal sector.

The road from Sidi Barrani to Bardia, Italian Libya, which Graziani must keep open if material reinforcements are to come up, was reported under attack.

The British were said to have run into fighter-plane opposition chiefly in the forward areas. The Italians used three-engined Savoia bombers for dive-bombing the advancing British, and two of these were reported shot down.

Cairo Enthusiastic

Vast enthusiasm was expressed in Cairo. Newspapers carried banner headlines proclaiming in effect: "This is the beginning of the end for Mussolini." Stocks rose on the local exchanges.

While the British were active in the field, officers of the British Mediterranean fleet were understood to feel that Premier Mussolini's shakeup of the Italian naval command might mean the adoption of an aggressive Fascist policy which would bring what is left of their war fleet out in the open for a showdown fight.

German pressure on Mussolini was believed by the British to have precipitated the change in command—plus Adolf Hitler's supposed insistence that the Italians act at once to prevent the almost systematic destruction of their fleet and home bases, or let the Nazis take command.

Desert Attacks Are Still Going On, London Reports

London, Dec. 10 (AP)—Strong forces of the British army of the Nile have thrown a line of troops between two major Italian invasion bases in Egypt and already have taken 4,000 Fascist prisoners in a continuing offensive over an area stretching far into the desert from the Mediterranean coast, it was declared officially today.

This new operation, which required the British to advance northward seventy-five miles from their interior Egyptian positions to engage the Italians, was described to a shouting House of Commons today by Prime Minister Churchill with the concluding observation:

"We shall no doubt receive further news shortly."

Battle Still Going On

The British-African command itself, announcing the seizure of more than 4,000 Italian soldiers and "a number of tanks in three days of heavy fighting, limited its report on today's campaign to a single line:

"Operations in the Western desert are successfully continuing."

The British Mediterranean fleet and the Royal Air Force, Churchill told the house, are cooperating closely, and warships have shelled the Fascists' coastal positions.

The activity of the air arm was almost simultaneously illustrated by the announcement of the Air Ministry here that twenty-two Italian planes had been destroyed yesterday over the Western desert, against the loss of three British planes.

Spearhead Reaches Coast

These were the first successes made by the British counter-invasion as reported by the Prime Minister.

The spearhead arrived at the Mediterranean coast between Sidi Barrani and Bug Bug, the two main Italian coastal positions lying roughly seventy miles and thirty-five miles, respectively, within Egypt from the frontier of Italian Libya, from which the Fascists launched their invasion. Churchill would not say whether Sidi Barrani was wholly cut off.

Italian positions to the southward of Sidi Barrani fallen to the British, with 500 prisoners taken in that single engagement and the Italian commanding general killed; a second and more important position nearer the coast also occupied by the British.

Supported By De Gaulle

To begin this campaign, said Churchill, the British, supported by imperial troops and a detachment of the "free French" forces, crossed seventy-five miles of desert "almost in a single bound."

By late October, he explained, the British in the middle east had been in position to take the offensive, but the Italian invasion of Greece intervened and forced the dispatch of a considerable part of the British air force to aid the Greeks.

But at last, he said, the plan "had been matured"; the necessary planes were at hand.

Thus, he said, the men of the army on the Nile began on last Saturday night the long, hurried march toward the coast; yesterday, they fell upon the Italians "at various points over a wide front stretching from Sidi Barrani, on the coast, into the desert."

First Phase Successful

"It is too soon," he went on, "to attempt to forecast either the scope of the result of the considerable operations which are in progress but we can, at any rate, say that the preliminary phase has been successful."

To some observers it appeared clear that the British timed their thrust to coincide with Mussolini's current difficulties at home, which have been reflected in the shakeup of his high command and Italian reverses in Albania.

Some politicians long have urged that Italy could be knocked to her knees now if every available ounce of British power was turned against her. Thus it seemed likely that the campaign in the western desert was part of just such a grand strategy.

The story of the fleet's action was not complete in detail, but it was declared to have cenered its attacks on the Fascist bases at Sidi Barrani and Maktila.

Pilots' Story

The Air Ministry offered, however, a fairly complete account of the part played by British pilots in the offensive.

". . . December 9," said the Ministry, "every enemy airdrome from Derna to Sidi Barrani was heavily raided by our bombers, causing great damage.

"In addition, our fighters and bombers continually attacked enemy troop concentrations and motor transport over the whole operational area. Twenty-two enemy aircraft were reported shot down or destroyed—eighteen confirmed and four unconfirmed.

One Squadron Bags Four

"One squadron accounted for eleven of these, four of which were seen burning on the ground at the same time. Another fighter squadron caused great damage to enemy communications and inflicted numerous casualties on enemy personnel by diving machine-gun attacks.

"Later reconnaissance flights reported large fires west of Buqbuq and in other areas enemy motor transports were burning on the roads, causing dislocation to enemy troop movements.

"During these intensive air operations, carried out continuously from dawn to dusk, only three of our aircraft failed to return, but the pilots of two are safe within our territory."

Action In Africa Trivial, Version Of Fascists Has It

Italians Report Bombing Of British Below Sidi Barrani—Foe's Repulse In Albania Claimed

[By the Associated Press]

Rome, Dec. 10—Italian reports from the Egyptian desert acknowledged only small-scale action today—mainly the punishment of a British armored column by Italian flyers.

The high command said new Greek attacks were repulsed in Albania, and one newspaper came out with a sharp warning against defeatism.

British Machine-Gunned

Italian dispatches from Africa said ten Italian planes machine-gunned a British mechanized column of thirty machines south of Sidi Barrani. Some of the machines were reported stopped and others scattered in the desert.

The official high command report on the war with Greece said that "enemy attacks on our left and in the Usum river sector (north of Premet) were pushed back" and "suffered serious losses."

On all fronts in November Italian casualties in the war with Greece and England totaled 4,411, an official announcement said.

Criticizes Alarmists

The newspaper Il Popolo di Roma sharply criticized Italians who read Swiss newspapers and "enemy communiques and news from English sources" and recommended the beating of "defeatists, alarmists, pessimists and rumor mongers."

"It is not admissible," the paper said, "that while the real Italians are united in the homeland and on the war front under il Duce's orders, ready to face any sacrifice to pluck certain victory, that certain ones who take criminal liberties should be left unpunished. . . ."

ITALY WARNED ON DEFEATISM

Noted Paper Calls on People to Beat Up Pessimists.

RUMORMONGERS DENOUNCED

Article Singles Out Those Who Read Enemy Communiques.

ROME, Dec. 10 (A. P.).—A front-page editorial in Il Popolo di Roma recommended today the beating up of "defeatists, alarmists, pessimists and rumor mongers" in Italy.

The newspaper sharply criticized Italians who buy Swiss newspapers and read "enemy communiques and news from English sources," and denounced them as poor idiots and rascals.

"These gentlemen who smell of defeatism are those who read our war bulletins with the air of being fed up," the editorial said; "those who know everything, incorrigible rumor mongers who always have something to add when a communique of our High Command is read.

Time Beat Them Up.

"They are professional alarmists, prejudiced pessimists, empty-headed and sour-stomached, who still, here and there, spring up, alas, even among us.

"Now it is not admissible that while the real Italians are united in the homeland and on the war front under Il Duce's orders, ready to face any sacrifces to pluck certain victory, that certain ones who take criminal liberties should be left unpunished. . . .

"For which reason, it seems to us, the hour has come to beat them up, so it will leave a mark that will not soon be forgotten."

Rising Prices Lead to Outcry.

Meanwhile today the current issue of La Vita Italiana, protesting against steeply rising prices, said that the cost of wearing apparel has more than doubled since Italy entered the war.

The prices of other commodities also have risen, and the crescendo is continuing," this magazine declared.

"We do not live by bread alone," La Vita continued. "There are many other things of prime necessity. . . . With things increasing at this rate, are wages and salaries to remain unaltered?"

The magazine recalls Premier Mussolini's promise at the outset of the war that there would be no profiteers in Italy, and goes on to ask:

"Is there any one who imagines that prices are blocked, and that profiteers have disappeared, while the mass of the people are submitting with admirable discipline to the limitation in their standard of living? . . .

"Don't let us forget the question we are raising is part of the war's finances, which is going to put the corporative system to the test."

Fascist Losses

[By the Associated Press]

Rome, Dec. 10—Italian casualties in the war with Greece in November numbered 3,428, including 780 dead, 731 missing and 1,917 wounded, the high command announced today.

The November casualties on all fronts in the war against both England and Greece totaled 4,411, including 96 natives in Africa, the announcement said.

Albanians Lost

Among the casualties in the Greek conflict, it said, were a few Albanians fighting alongside the Italians.

The totals were 1,037 dead, 2,401 wounded and 1,044 missing.

The complete casualty list as published by the high command was:

On the Greek Front—772 Italians and 8 Albanians dead, 1,917 wounded, 731 missing.

Air Force—50 dead, 92 wounded, 162 missing.

Navy—89 dead, 182 wounded, 130 missing.

North Africa—42 dead, 107 wounded, 10 missing.

East Africa—26 dead, 70 wounded, 7 missing.

North African Native Casualties—50 dead, 33 wounded, 4 missing.

PATRIARCH SAID TO BE INTERNED

Report at Vatican Tells of Action by British.

ROME, Dec. 10 (A. P.).—It was said in Vatican quarters today that reports had been received from Palestine that the Italian-born Patriarch of Jerusalem, Mgr. Luigi Barlassina, had been subjected to coercive measures by the British. It was not indicated whether the reports were official.

The Patriarch, a sixty-eight-year-old native of Turin and an appointee of the late Pope Pius XI, was said at first to have been interned outside Jerusalem. Later, it was said, he was returned to his home and ordered not to leave. A guard was posted outside the residence.

MAKING UP TO SOVIET

Italy May Send Minister in Addition to Ambassador.

ROME, Dec. 10 (A. P.).—The Italian Government was reported reliably today to be considering the assignment of a Minister to the Embassy at Moscow, in addition to the present ambassador.

Informed Italians said that such a move would be intended to effect a further rapproachment with the Soviet Government. These spokesmen said that Filippi Anfuso, chief of Foreign Minister Count Ciano's staff, was considered the most likely choice for such a post.

Churchill's Report on Drive in Egy

By The Associated Press.

LONDON, Dec. 10—Following is the text of Prime Minister Winston Churchill's statement today to the House of Commons:

Some months ago the collapse of France seriously endangered our position in the Mediterranean and made the task of defending Egypt from an Italian invasion one of extreme difficulty, the more so as we were compelled to face the menace of invasion ourselves at home.

However, by the time the Secretary of State for War [Anthony Eden] paid his important visit to the Middle East in October, reinforcements of men and materiel had reached Sir Archibald Wavell, commanding the British and Imperial Army of the Nile, sufficient not not only to give a greater feeling of security, but to open the possibility of an assumption of the offensive.

However, at this moment the Italian invasion of Greece made it necessary for us to send a considerable part of our air force from Egypt to the aid of the Greek Army in their heroic defense of their native land. The part played by the R. A. F. in the Greek victories has been most important, and we have received the warmest expressions of gratitude from the Greek King and the government for the aid we were able to give.

Aid to Greece Delayed Drive

Serious temporary diminution of our air forces in Egypt made it necessary somewhat to delay the execution of the offensive plans which had been matured, and it was not until the beginning of this month that our air force in Egypt was once again in a position to afford the necessary support to a forward movement.

Accordingly, on the night of the 7th of December, a strong detachment from the Army of the Nile, under Lieut. Gen. Maitland Wilson, comprising British and Imperial troops and a detachment from the "Free French" forces, advanced toward positions which the Italians had fortified since their incursion across the Egyptian frontier three months ago.

It will be realized that the operation of advancing, almost in a single bound, across seventy-five miles of desert, is by no means free from hazard and complexity when considerable forces are employed. It was with satisfaction that His Majesty's Government learned that this long and rapid approach had been successfully accomplished.

Yesterday morning, the 9th, our forces came into contact with the enemy at various points over a wide front stretching from Sidi Barrani, on the coast, into the desert. An attack was delivered against the positions on the Italian center to the southward of Sidi Barrani.

In the first defended area which was assaulted and overrun 500 prisoners and some war material fell into our hands. The Italian general in command was killed and his second in command was captured.

Later in the day a farther advance was made into the second and stronger and more important position nearer to the coast, and more prisoners and material were taken.

Other British forces also reached the coast between Sidi Barrani and Buqbuq [Bagbag], making further captures of transport and prisoners.

It is too soon to attempt to forecast either the scope or the result of the considerable operations which are in progress, but we can, at any rate, say that the preliminary phase has been successful.

The British Mediterranean Fleet and the Royal Air Force are, of course, cooperating closely with the army. British warships have bombarded the various coastal positions involved in the fight, including particularly Maktila and Sidi Barrani.

Some details of the air action have been received. On the 8th a heavy attack was made by our bombers on the airdrome at Bengazi, where about twenty-five tons of bombs were dropped effectively on hangars and among aircraft.

On the same night air attacks were made on the Italian advanced airdromes as a prelude to the morning's action and throughout yesterday our bombers continually harassed the Italian advance airdromes, while our fighter aircraft, in which Hurricane squadrons are conspicuous, made low-flying machine-gun attacks on enemy troops and motor transport, causing substantial loss.

We shall no doubt receive further news shortly.

Large Quantities Of All Kinds Of Materials Declared Seized

Fascists Said To Have Suffered Heavy Casualties In Close Fighting

DEC 1 1940

[By the Associated Press]

Athens, Dec. 10—The retreating Italians suffered "heavy blows" along the northern front today and left more prisoners in Greek hands, a Greek Government spokesman said tonight.

Over the entire front, the spokesman declared, it was a familiar story: A continued Fascist retreat, with rearguard fighting by the Italians "overthrown" as it developed.

At Delvino, he said, "large quantities of all kinds of materials" abandoned by the Italians were collected by Greek troops.

The Italian retirement north of Argirocastro was pictured as hasty.

Resistance Crumbling

The Greek spokesman pictured Italian resistance as crumbling since Sunday night on the northern front, after stubborn defense of "peaks and heights very important from a strategic viewpoint."

"These forces," he said, "were obliged not only to retreat but to take to flight. If these forces have been able to avoid annihilation it will be due to bad weather which has prevailed.

Other Units In Flight

"Still more to the north, other units of the enemy also are in flight."

Along that inland front, the Greeks are heading toward Elbasani, road junction twenty-five miles south of Tirana, the Albanian capital, from their bases in the captured region around Lake Ochrida.

Greek forces on the southern front were said to be pressing an Italian retreat toward Chimara, in an advance toward the port the Valona.

GREEKS ROUT FOE IN HAND-TO-HAND BATTLE IN NORTH

Italian Ninth Division Is Reported Suffering Heavy Losses.

DEC 1 1940

ATHENS, Dec. 10 (A. P.).—The Greek forces were reported today to have captured important new positions after inflicting heavy losses on units of the Ninth Italian Division in a hand-to-hand battle.

This, apparently, was in the northern sector of the Albanian front, where the whole region around Lake Ochrida was said to have been cleaned up and the pace of the Greek drive generally accelerated. This drive is aimed at Elbasani, twenty-five miles from Tirana, the Albanian capital.

On the southern front also, the Italians were said to be retiring steadily toward Chimara, with the Greeks pressing hard on their heels toward the important port of Valona.

Greeks in Fierce Attack.

The Greek High Command declared tersely, "We have advanced further," and an official spokesman filled in these details:

"The entire army of the Italians' right wing was withdrawing yesterday toward the north and northwest of Porto Edda and Argyrokastron, while its rear guard was harassed and pursued by our advancing troops.

"More to the north the enemy has been compelled, after a fierce attack by our troops, to abandon important strategic positions and withdraw in full flight. Still further to the north, units of our army have been able to dislodge the enemy's forces which until Sunday had stubbornly defended peaks and heights very important from a strategic viewpoint.

"These forces were obliged not only to retreat, but to take to flight. If these forces have been able to avoid annihilation, it will be due to the bad weather which has prevailed.

"Still more to the north other units of the enemy also are in flight."

Greeks in Twin Drives.

The Greek advance apparently is divided into two twin drives.

In the southern sector the Greeks, chorusing "On to Valona," are reported converging on that port along the coastal road from Porto Edda, by way of Chimara, and along an inland road north from Argyrokastron, by way of Tepeleni.

In the northern sector, drives toward Elbasani are aimed along a mountain road north and west from Pogradetz and up the Devol River valley northwest of Moskopolis.

The British Royal Air Force issued a communique at Athens saying that British flyers carried out an "offensive in the vicinity of Valona," where bombs hit "the south jetty and buildings near the harbor."

The communique declared that there was no Italian fighter opposition, and that all the R. A. F. craft returned safely.

'Consolidating Positions.'

ROME, Dec. 10 (A. P.).—The Italian left wing in Albania repulsed Greek attacks while Fascist troops elsewhere along the battle-front consolidated new positions, the Italian High Command declared today.

The communique said that the attacks were beaten back with heavy losses along the Usum River, north of Premet.

"Enemy attacks on our left and in the Usum sector were pushed back," the communique declared. "The enemy, overpowered by our immediate reaction, suffered serious losses."

Col. Peare, an Alpine battalion commander, was reported killed in action.

London Hears of Gains in South.

LONDON, Dec. 10 (A. P.).—The Greeks were reported to have made their greatest gains yesterday against the Italian right wing, driving to Piqueras, fifteen miles north of Porto Edda on the coastal road.

In the central fighting front in Albania, military spokesmen said, Italians left the town of Kelcyre on the road north from Premet to Berat.

In the northern sector, against the Italian left wing, heavy snows and stiffening Italian resistance were said here to have slowed the Greek advance.

BELGRADE, Dec. 10 (A. P.).—Greek newspapers received at the Yugoslav border today said that the Italians were attempting to land troops at San Giovanni di Medua, north Albanian seaport, because of the fall of Porto Edda and heavy bomb damage to Durazzo and Valona.

Albania has only four principal ports on the Adriatic.

Ciano Reported Blamed For Defeat In Albania

New York, Dec. 10 (AP)—The British radio in a broadcast heard by NBC tonight quoted the Berlin correspondent of the Swedish newspaper Aftonbladet as saying Berlin information indicates Count Galeazzo Ciano, Italian Foreign Minister and son-in-law of Premier Mussolini, is being held responsible for the Italian defeat in Albania.

Count Ciano, it was said, was charged with not having sufficiently prepared the Greek campaign.

The broadcast said it was reported Count Ciano might be replaced by Count Dino Grandi, Italian Minister of Justice and former Italian Ambassador to London.

Hitler To 'Defeat Entire World' But He Says He'll Pick the Time

DEC 1 1940

Fuehrer Adjures Workers to Toil and Be Patient, Asserts It's a War of Labor Vs. Capitalism, Sneers at U. S. as One of 'Have' Nations

By The Associated Press

BERLIN, Dec. 10.—Fuehrer Adolf Hitler, demanding work and patience from the German people, said today that with work Germany would "defeat the entire world" as the champion of the "have-nots" in a war between two worlds of capitalism and labor.

Placing the United States among the "haves," the German leader made no offer of any kind to his enemies or to other nations, implying that the war with Great Britain would be fought to the finish.

From a pile of steel casings which looked like motor blocks, amid rows of gleaming steel cannon barrels, Hitler spoke to 12,000 workers in the Borsig munitions plant here. The speech was broadcast outside of Germany, but it was primarily for domestic consumption.

The ninety-minute oration, sprinkled with confident witticisms, left the impression that Hitler's chief purposes were to spur the German worker on to ever greater effort and to tell the Reich that there may be an indefinite period of waiting before Germany decides to make a final climactic effort in the war against Great Britain.

[After Hitler's speech, The United Press reported, Propaganda Minister Paul Joseph Goebbels, in an interview with foreign newspaper correspondents, said he believed Germany would bring the war to a victorious conclusion in a reasonably short time with "a great lightning offensive against Britain."]

Making little reference to foreign policy, Hitler termed the present conflict one between gold and labor—German labor. It did not matter that Germany had no gold, he said; "our capacity for work is our gold, our capital, and with it we will defeat the entire world."

Describing himself as a "little, simple, unknown soldier," in contrast to the leaders of other nations, he said that he rested his faith in Germany's common man, and that so long as "she has such men as these simple souls who fought side by side with me" Germany could not go under. Only fools, he said, could think that there could be any rift within Germany.

"In my lexicon," he said, "there is no such word as capitulation." Whatever happened, he said, Germany would be victorious, even though the war would not be won tomorrow.

Atop his platform of castings, Der Fuehrer stood at a small table. On the table lay a manuscript, two bot-

Excerpts From the Text of Hitler's Speech to Arms Workers

By The Associated Press.

BERLIN, Dec. 10—Following is an abridged text of Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler's address today to German workers:

My German Fellow Citizens, Women, My German Workers: I speak very seldom now, first, because I have little time to talk; second, because I believe it is better at this time to act than to speak.

We find ourselves amid a controversy which aims at more than victory of one or another country. In fact, it is a struggle of two worlds.

I shall start to give you a short insight into the reasons for this controversy.

Germans, English, Italians and Frenchmen are the core of the nations which stood in war against each other. If I now compare these peoples the following facts are revealed:

Forty-six million English rule and govern a total territory of roughly 40,000,000 square kilometers in this world.

Thirty-seven million French rule and govern a region roughly 10,000,000 square kilometers.

Forty-five million Italians have an area of useful region of hardly half a million square kilometers.

Eighty-five million Germans have a living space of hardly 600,000 square kilometers and these only through their own initiative.

That means that 85,000,000 Germans have 600,000 square kilometers at their disposal upon which they must make a living, capitalist economics, too, is at stake.

Hitler said nothing could move the German soldiers from Norway, Holland, Belgium or France against their will. He recalled that the late former Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain "talked about my missing the bus; well, I got there just long enough ahead to climb aboard before the British. Wherever the German soldier stands, nobody else can get."

He reiterated that the British had started "unrestricted air warfare," that "I didn't want to attack anything but military objectives . . . I waited one month for them to cease this sort of combat; I waited two and three months. Now we are conducting war as they wanted it."

"For fifteen years," he said in conclusion, "I solicited your confidence and trust. With your confidence behind me, I can erect a Germany of culture, of peace and of plenty."

His speech ended with the words: "I thank you."

Der Fuehrer started speaking at 12:08 P. M. (6:08 A. M. New York time).

nually. . . . Nowhere is the standard of the masses lower" than under democracy.

Hitler's loudest cheers, a storm of applause, came when he said the war had been conducted with an effort to hold the loss of life to a minimum.

"I believe," he said, "that the German people will thank me if I await the proper time for the final blow, and thereby reduce the sacrifice to a minimum. We want no prestige successes and no prestige attacks. But when the final thrust comes . . . we decide!"

A large part of the address was taken up with der Fuehrer's explanation of his plans for an ideal socialist state in which "every worker will reap the full benefit of his labor and every German will be able to participate in the delights of German culture."

He expressed impatience that the war should have held this up. Should Germany lose he said solemnly, the German people would face extinction. But, he added, the British realize that their system of ple also used up their entire force in a fight against one another, thus failing even to maintain their natural position in the Mediterranean.

Thus two strong nations suffered extreme shortcomings.

One could ask: Is that in any way deciding? Man lives not on phrases, not on declarations, not even on moral philosophies (Weltanschaungen); he lives on what the earth yields him through his labor in the form of foodstuffs and raw materials. Thus what he can work on and can eat. If his own vital basis offers too little, then his life will be poor. The first precondition for the present tensions thus lies in the fact that this world is unjustly distributed.

It is natural that in the life of peoples in general, things are developing along the same lines as in their domestic lives. Just as internally developing tensions between rich and poor must be balanced, thus in the life of the peoples one cannot claim everything and leave nothing to others.

Either this one is reasonable and agrees to regulation which is negotiable on common fundamentals or, suppressed and overwhelmed by misfortune, he will one day take what belongs to him.

Considers His Task Long One

This is inwardly the same with people and outwardly the same. Domestically, I put myself [illegible] the task of solving these pr[illegible] with an appeal to reason [illegible] the rift between too lar[illegible] on one side and too gr[illegible] on the other through and 46,000,000 English have 40,000,000 square kilometers.

This earth, however, was not distributed by Providence or by Almighty God.

This distribution is being taken care of by the peoples themselves and this distribution chiefly took place in the past 300 years at a time when our German people were domestically unconscious and torn apart.

Germany Split in Petty States

Following the outcome of the Thirty Years' War, Germany was split into hundreds of petty States by the Munster Treaty (the peace of Westphalia of 1648). Our people almost exclusively ate up their entire force internally.

During this time the rest of the world had been distributed not through treaties or arrangements, but exclusively through force.

England then built its gigantic empire.

The second people who had a slight share in the distribution are the Italians, who suffered the same fate as we. The Italian peoto insight of all, recognizing, however, that such procedures cannot be carried out between today and tomorrow, but that it is still preferable to bring classes, which have been excessively separated from each other, closer to each other than to bring about such a solution by force.

The right to live belongs to all nations. It won't do for one people to say: "We'll let you others take part in our life." It isn't a question of charity. It is a question of obtaining one's rights.

The essence of every realistic sense of order is to see to it that alms are not given, but instead that rights are established. It isn't a question of doling out alms as an act of mercy to peoples who are short changed on the distribution of the world, but it is a question of maintaining rights for human beings just as is the case in normal life.

The right to live constitutes a claim of fundamental nature. The right to live includes the right to the soil, which alone gives life. For this claim peoples have even fought when a lack of wisdom threatened to interfere with their relationship, for they knew that even bloody sacrifices are better than the gradual dying off of nations.

When we took over we demanded first national unity, as this was necessary for giving us the necessary strength to satisfy our claims.

Sought German Unity

National unity, therefore, was one of three objectives for us in order, first of all, to organize the entire German strength, to show the German people how great is its strength, in general that it would thus again become conscious of its power, then to make its demands and carry them through. This national unity I expected to attain by an appeal to reason. During that period of nearly fifteen years I was booed from both sides.

One side charged: "You want to pull us who belong to the intelligentsia—to the upper crust—down to the same level as those others." And so at the beginning of our national socialist revolution in 1933 we promulgated two demands. The first demand was that for national unity of our people, in the conviction that, without this decision to bring everybody together, the necessary force could not be mobilized for issuing, and especially for attaining, the necessary German claims to life.

Our people of that time faced collapse, our economy a destructive dissolution, our agriculture was ruined.

One side could not be convinced and still today there are people who cannot be convinced. But on the whole there is a steady rise in the number of those who recognize that with the disintegration of the German peoples and the body political all classes must perish.

I was also fought from another quarter. These people said we are conscious of our class. Human beings are the products of their upbringing and this unfortunately practically begins with birth. Every one wants to remain within the sphere which he attained through education. I know that whatever was done in three or four or five centuries a single person cannot move within two or three or five years.

The decisive thing is that some one start on the way to remove all this.

Fought Against Versailles

At that time I recognized the following essential: We must establish this German community of interest if we want to expect anything whatever from our peoples. That this was right was apparent from the facts that all of our enemies opposed this.

This national unity was our first demand. Piece by piece and move by move this was realized.

My second demand was: the removal of foreign political oppression as exemplified by the Treaty of Versailles whereby, among other things, our colonies and possessions were taken from us. In other words, my second demand was to fight against Versailles. I said this even when I was still a soldier.

The rest of the world didn't want our national unity, and it was determined to continue the Versailles system. My first lecture was a lecture against collapse, against the Versailles Treaty and in favor of re-erection of a strong German Reich. With that I began. What I achieved since then is therefore no new establishment of aims, but the oldest thing imaginable. Herein lies the first reason for the conflict in which we now find ourselves. The other world did not desire our domestic unity because it knew that then the demand for living space for the masses of our people could be converted into reality.

They decided upon retention of this law of Versailles wherein they saw a second Westfalian peace. Added hereto was another reason. I already said that the world was divided up unequally. American and English observers spoke of the haves and have-nots.

We English, we Americans, we French are the haves, and whoever hasn't must remain satisfied with not having. To some, I was the representative of the have-nots.

Represents the Have-Nots

Whoever hasn't anything won't get anything either. All my life I have been a have-not. I count myself as one of their number and have fought for them. Now again, I enter the fight as the representative of the have-nots. I will never recognize the claims of others to that which they have gained by force and robbery. In no case will I permit this claim to apply to what has been taken from us.

It is interesting to observe the mode of living of the rich. They had so-called democracy in the Anglo-French world. In reality, capitalism reigns supreme, that is, there's a band of several hundred people who possess unmeasurable fortunes and who, because of the peculiar construction of the state, are more or less completely independent and free.

It is said this means rule by the people. But when you look closer, the people as such have not an opinion—it is placed before them. Now, who places this viewpoint before them? Why, it is capitalism!

The slogan of liberty really means freedom of economy—namely, for everybody to grab for himself without state control. Capital first makes the newspapers subservient. The lord of the so-called press is the man who supplies the capital, this press molds public opinion, the papers appear according to political parties, but in reality there is no difference between them.

There's no real opposition—the opposition really holds the same view. These differ as little from each other as they used to differ with us in former times. You remember, no doubt, those old parties. It was the same thing. Usually they are divided up into families. One is Conservative, the other is Liberal and, in a third case, in England, one belongs to the Labor party.

Assails English Classes

In reality all three sit together as members of the same family and agree exactly on their future attitude. Added to this is the fact that the world's chosen people actually constitute one community and that they move and direct all these organizations.

No one might suppose that in lands of freedom and democracy everybody lived in plenty. The contrary is true. Nowhere is the standard of the masses lower.

That's your rich England: 40,000,000 square kilometers controlled by it. In return, for instance, 100,000,000 colonial workers must work in India under a miserable standard of living.

One might think that in England itself at least every individual must share these riches. On the contrary, in these countries differences between classes are the crassest imaginable. Poverty on one hand that baffles description, wealth on the other hand that equally baffles description. England for decades has had two and a half million unemployed.

Rich America has twelve to thirteen million unemployed annually.

What are we to say, then, about ourselves?

After * * * we over here have erected certain barriers it is said immediately: They are terrorizing liberty; in other words, we are terrorizing liberty at the expense of the common weal. These people, to give but one example, have the possibility of pocketing up to 160 per cent dividends from the ammunition industry. They say that if these German methods gain ground and prove victorious all this will stop. They're right. I believe 6 per cent sufficient.

It's natural for the English leaders to say they don't want their world to go under because they fear Germany's new ideas may spring over to England.

They say, "We don't like these methods." What were those methods? I am proud that the revolution occurred in 1933 without a single window being smashed.

They claim in England that we have terrorized liberty. Yes, that's true, namely, when freedom was at the expense of the common weal. Certainly, we won't permit anybody freely to dispose of his earnings if thereby the common weal is interfered with.

Gold No Factor of Value

Those others are right when they say, We can never be reconciled with this world. They are fighting, for instance, for the upkeep of the gold standard. I understand this. They have the gold. Our gold was robbed and squeezed out of us. When I came to power it wasn't malice on my part that prompted me to turn from the gold standard, for there wasn't any there any longer, nor was it difficult for me to carry out this turning away process.

When some one hasn't anything he can easily part with it. And I wasn't unhappy about it, either. Our economic structure is an entirely different one. For us gold is no factor of value, but a factor for subjugating and lording it over peoples. When I came to power I entertained but one hope in which I trusted.

We placed our confidence in the ability of the German people and the intelligence of our [illegible] of mineral water, which he did not touch, and a handkerchief, which he raised occasionally to his lips. He wore a gray coat and brown trousers. His only decorations were the Iron Cross and the Nazi party swastika badge.

High over his head, dim in the gloom, was a skylight, the glass painted green for the nightly blackout. An occasional drop of water from a drizzle of rain outside seeped through and splattered on Hitler's shoulders or on his table. This worried the Storm Troop officers beside him but Hitler paid no attention.

No troops were on parade and few soldiers were in the vast main plant of the arms works. On the steel platform were only two brown-uniformed officers and Propaganda Minister Goebbels, who stood quietly behind der Fuehrer throughout the address. Robert Ley, chief of the German Labor Front, and General Field Marshal Wilhelm Keitel, chief of the high command of the armed forces, had greeted him at the entrance.

All about were cannon, their barrels criss-crossed in all directions, and clinging to them were the overalled workers who had put down their wrenches to listen. The choice of the Borsig plant for the speech was, possibly, a bit of Hitlerian irony, for the British have announced bombing it several times.

Scornfully, he referred to the system of the "have" nations, as he put it, and declared: "The slogan of liberty really means freedom of economy, namely, for everybody to grab for himself without state control."

But that, he said, does not mean there is plenty for all of "we English, we Americans, we French." On the contrary, he remarked scornfully, "rich America has twelve to thirteen million unemployed an-cians, chemists, inventors, organizers of inventors, etc.

Two worlds are in conflict, two philosophies of life. They say we should help to keep up the gold standard—of course for they have the gold and we haven't it. In the course of fifteen years all our gold has been taken away from us.

Should we go to pieces, I asked myself, because we have no gold? Our capacity for work is our gold, our capital, and with it we will defeat the entire world.

[In the official version of the text of Herr Hitler's speech, according to The United Press, the foregoing passage reads: "If we already have no gold, then we have the power of work, and German power of work is our gold and our capital, and with this gold I can beat any other power in the world."]

I built up my entire economy on the conception of work. Those who have gold have failed completely. You can't get anybody to take the British pounds, even if you throw them after them. Our German mark without gold is worth more than gold.

Our mark, although at first there was no gold whatever, remained stable. Why? My compatriots, because you stood behind us.

If I had said publicly eight or nine years ago that our problem would be where to get enough labor, people would have said I was crazy. But today we have one problem—where do we get workers? Work creates work.

World of Cooperative Labor

What we are reconstructing is a world of cooperative labor, but also a world of cooperative duties. * * * for the first time in our own German history there exists a state which, in principle, has removed all social prejudices as regards appointment to positions.

This applies not only to civil life. I myself am the best document to prove this. I'm not even trained in the laws. Nevertheless I'm your leader. Above all we are feeling into the future. We have countless schools, national, political, educational institutions and Adolf Hitler schools. Adolf Hitler schools into which we bring talented children of our broad masses whose parents can never pay for their children to obtain their own education.

We have generals today who twenty-two or twenty-three years ago were privates or non-commissioned officers.

Our ideal is that every position in the country shall be filled by a true son of the people. We want a state in which birth matters nothing, achievement means everything. For this we are working with tremendous fanaticism. Contrasted with this is the idea of our enemies—a fight for egoism, for capital, for individual and family privileges.

Our enemies know that if they succumb then they have bought all their gold in vain, then family dynasties will be removed, and there will be a collapse.

One of these two worlds must break asunder. The traffic signals are now placed as follows: Gold versus labor.

I want to make our country beautiful. I want the theatres for everybody. For all this I wanted our manpower available—not for armaments.

Realizes the End if Beaten

We have, therefore, greater possibilities to fill this state from the bottom up. That is our aim, that is our joy in life. We are thinking of a state in the future in which every position will be filled by the ablest son of our people, irrespective of his origin.

Contrasting with this there is another struggle, another world where the final ideal is always the struggle for fortune and for capital, a fight for egotism of individuals.

We know perfectly well that if we succumb in this fight that is the end. That other world says, "If we lose then our world capitalistic structure will crumble."

I can also understand if they declare: We want to prevent this under all circumstances. Those are two worlds, and I believe one of these worlds must crack up. If we crack up, the German people should crack with us. If the other world cracks, I am convinced that it will only then become free. For our fight is not directed against Englishmen as men, nor against Frenchmen. We have no quarrel with them. We made no demands.

I demanded nothing from them except the right for Germans to unite, and secondly, to restore what was taken from them.

How often have I stretched out my hand! I was not in any mood to arm. That devours so much labor power. I wanted to use German labor power for other plans. My ambition is to make the German people rich and the German land beautiful. I would like us to have the most beautiful and best culture. * * *

I proposed limitations in certain categories of armament. That was declined. I proposed that the air force be taken entirely out of wars. That, too, was declined. I proposed limitation of the bombing weapon. All that was declined. They said the latter is exactly the weapon with which we want to force our regime upon you. Once it becomes necessary to defend oneself I defend myself with undaunted fanaticism.

I have no responsibility for the World War. But who are the people who today lead England? The same who even before the World War had been inciters.

The same Churchill who even in the world war was the meanest war inciter, the late Neville Chamberlain, who then incited twice as much, and clique belonging thereto, and of course the people who believe they can incite nations against each other with the profit of a Jericho. Against this I now have armed the German people.

I was determined to rear our structure in the world, to widen our position and, secondly, to arm at home that the German soldier must no longer stand alone on a front, lonely and the victim of superior forces.

Then I did everything humanly possible to avoid a conflict. I made offer after offer to the English, but there wasn't anything to be done—they wanted war. For seven years Churchill said "I want war." Now he has it.

I believe their awakening has already begun. Eighteen days—and the State which wanted to hack us to pieces, before Berlin, was removed. Then came the British attack upon Norway. * * * Then within a few days we secured this Norwegian position. And then they wanted to be faster in Holland and Belgium. This led to the unloosening of an offensive which was looked forward to by many of our men, especially older men, with grave concern.

But within six weeks this campaign was also finished. No power in the world can remove us from there against our will. Now, my fellow-citizens, the sacrifices.

Compares World War Sacrifices

They are very hard for individuals, but if we add and judge by sacrifices of the World War, how incomparably small are they. * * * Because for the first time men did not march with the feeling of having a smaller number of arms of inferior quality.

Our arms are better in every field. That's the difference between this and the World War.

In this fight the munitions problem has never been a problem at all. * * * Today we are armed for any eventuality. England may do what she will—she will sustain harder hits with each weapon.

She will receive a heftier blow every new week, and if she wants to gain a foothold somewhere on the Continent, then we will meet again. And I hope we haven't forgotten anything and the British will remember everything.

I did not want aerial warfare. We launched no night attacks, but then that great strategist Churchill decided to launch unrestricted air warfare, beginning at Freiburg. I waited one month for them to cease this sort of combat. I waited two months, three months—but now we are conducting the war as they want it.

We now accept the challenge; we shall conduct it to a finish.

During the entire Polish campaign we did not conduct this sort of fight. * * * I wanted military objectives attacked only at the front; to fight against soldiers, not against women and children. That's why we did not do it.

We did not do it in France, either. When we attacked Paris; only Parisian armaments objectives were singled out. Then, however, it occurred to that great strategist Churchill to begin unlimited air warfare at night. * * * But not a single munitions plant was put out of action. Many unhappy families, however, were struck.

Boasts of "Reprisals"

I could no longer take the responsibility before the German people of letting our own people perish while strangers were spared. Thereupon this warfare, too, had to be conducted.

And it will now be fought. It will be conducted with all the determination and courage at our disposal. We determine the hour for this conflict. I decide in such matters. * * * We do not desire to achieve any successes of prestige, but want to be guided solely by matter-of-fact military considerations.

Whatever must be done will be done, but anything beyond that we want to avoid. Beyond that we all have but one hope, namely, that the hour will come when common sense will again triumph and peace return.

I can fight today because I know the entire German people stands behind me. I am today guardian of its future life, I act accordingly. * * * My own life, my own health cuts no figure in this connection. I know that they'll stand behind me in this spirit and above all the German armed forces, man for man, officer for officer.

The world must take cognizance of one thing: there will be no defeat in Germany, either military or economic on the grounds of time. Whatever may happen, Germany will emerge victorious from this fight. I am not a man who, once he is engaged in a fight, breaks it off to his own disfavor. I have proven this in my life. * * * When I entered political life I told my followers that in our lexicon and in my lexicon there is no such word as capitulation.

All these fools who imagine that there could be rifts here have forgotten the Third Reich is no longer the Second Reich. Equally united stand the German people today. Here my thanks go before all to the German worker and the German farmer. These two enabled me to prepare this fight and, from the standpoint of munitions, to create pre-conditions for holding out.

Thanks German Women

These two also create the possibility for me to carry through the war no matter how long it may last. I especially thank also the German frau—those countless women who must in part take on the heavy work of men, who in so many positions replace men.

This fight not only is a struggle for the present but especially a fight for the future. * * * We are decided more and more to tear down barriers restraining the individual from unfolding his possibilites, acquiring that place which he deserves. * * *

The others fought their fight only for the damned plutocracy, those few dynasties which administer the capital market for those few hundred who, in the last analysis, direct these people. * * * When this war is over the great work of creation is to begin in Germany.

Then the German people will cease manufacturing cannon and will begin works of peace and reconstruction. * * *

This time will come again when we will struggle trustfully together for this great Reich of peace, work, prosperity and of the culture we desire to rear and shall rear.

BRITAIN BARS HOOVER'S PROPOSAL TO SHIP FOOD TO OCCUPIED COUNTRIES

Says Plan To Ease Blockade Would Aid German War Effort

Declares Risk Of Starvation Is "Greatly Exaggerated"

[By the Associated Press]

Washington, Dec. 10—Herbert Hoover's plan for feeding the civil population in German-occupied countries was rejected by the British Government tonight with an announcement here that it would refuse permission for the passage of food through the blockade.

The statement by the Marquis of Lothian, British Ambassador, apparently ended the prospect of any extensive American food relief to German-conquered nations, including France.

Lord Lothian, however, expressed his Government's willingness to facilitate the passage through the blockade of "medical supplies destined for distribution in territories occupied by Germany in unoccupied France by approved bodies."

Red Cross Problem

Whether the American Red Cross would be able to carry out a plan to send so-called medicated foods such as evaporated milk into unoccupied France for relief of children was not made clear in the British statement, but it was considered likely that only limited supplies of this character, if any, would be permitted.

Apparently unaffected directly by the British decision against relaxing the blockade was the plan now being considered here for sending about 10,000 tons of wheat to Spain for distribution by the Red Cross. This, it was expected, will be treated as a separate matter by the American and British governments.

Text Of Statement

Lord Lothian's statement said:

"When he was recently in England the British Ambassador reported fully to his Majesty's Government the proposals of Mr. Hoover and others for sending food to civil populations in certain of the German-subjugated nations in Europe.

"These proposals received most sympathetic attention, all the more so because his Majesty's Government have had in mind the noble services rendered by Mr. Hoover to the people of Belgium and other countries during and after the last war.

"After the most careful consideration, however, his Majesty's Government have been reluctantly forced to the conclusion that under present conditions any such scheme must be of material assistance to Germany's war effort and would thereby postpone the day of liberation of these peoples from German subjugation. They are therefore not able to give permission for the passage of food through the blockade.

Feel Deepest Sympathy

"The British Government and public feel the deepest sympathy with the Allied peoples, and their own people in the Channel Islands, who are now likely to endure privation in addition to the sufferings caused by German Nazi domination.

"But the British Government feels that the primary objective must be to bring about the release of the subjugated peoples from this alien oppression at the earliest possible moment.

"From the information at its disposal the risk of starvation has been greatly exaggerated. It would be at no service to these peoples to send in food if it means the prolongation of their slavery.

Moreover, any shortage of food from which they may suffer is solely due to German action. Until they were conquered by Germany they had ample food for their own needs. In conquering them and installing German control Germany has assumed responsibility for their welfare.

Hardship Fault Of Nazis

"The Nazi authorities, who state that their reserves are untouched by the blockade, persistently claim that they have plenty of food for Europe so that if there is hardship in these countries it is because the German Government has been depriving them of their own supplies and refusing to give them that share of European production to which they are entitled.

"Now that Germany is in control of the food supplies of almost all the continent west of Russia, the introduction of food from outside would add to the total amount of food available to Germany for whatever purposes she decides to allot it.

"Nor can it be forgotten that the German Government convert foodstuffs on a large scale into valuable war material.

Refers To Invasion Bases

"Moreover, it must be remembered that the war against Great Britain is being actively and ruthlessly prosecuted from the countries under German occupation which border on the North Sea and the Atlantic.

"In these countries are air fields and ground organizations which enable German aircraft to take off day and night to bomb British women and children and to conduct indiscriminate attacks on English towns and villages.

"All the resources of these territories are being relentlessly harnessed to the German war machine and it is certain that the Germans will not allow starvation to disorganize the social and economic structure upon which an important portion of their war effort depends.

"Equally it is clear that any food which was allowed to pass the blockade would merely permit the diversion of yet more of the indigenous stocks to Germany or for the use of the German troops of occupation.

No Safe Scheme Found

"His Majesty's Government have been unable to discover any scheme of distribution by neutral authorities in these countries which, in the light of Nazi record, could provide guarantees against the strengthening of the German war potential by the importation of foodstuffs.

"They feel, therefore, that they have no option but to stand by the decision announced by the Prime Minister in the House of Commons on August 20, that they will not agree to any lifting of the blockade for any country under German domination, or so long as that domination continues.

"Directly, however," Germany withdraws its troops and restores control of these countries to their own citizens, they will immediately arrange for ample supplies of food to reach their inhabitants.

Medical Supplies Exempt

"At the same time, as they have already announced, his Majesty's Government are at all times prepared to facilitate the passage through their blockade of medical supplies, destined for distribution in territories occupied by Germany and in unoccupied France by approved bodies.

"Great Britain is risking starvation and undergoing every conceivable hardship in the fight for freedom not only for herself but for all freedom-loving peoples. We cannot in these circumstances endanger our existence and imperil our cause by weakening our blockade.

"The British people who are in the firing line have through their representatives in Parliament expressed their determination not to give assistance to Germany such as would result from the adoption of Mr. Hoover's proposal.

"We trust that all those who share our love for freedom and hope for our victory will sympathize with and support our attitude."

Hoover Fears Famine

Hoover, who heads the newly formed National Committee on Food for the Five Small Democracies, has predicted widespread famine in Europe this winter unless aid is extended.

The food under his plan would be purchased by the exiled Governments of the countries to receive relief. Germany would have to agree to replace any food removed from these countries, to take no more food from them, to permit imports from Russia and the Balkan States, to allow free passage of ships without attack, and permit adequate control of distribution by the organization handling the relief.

Hoover has estimated that the amount of food on hand at any one time would be sufficient for Germany's needs for only three days, and that if Germany seized it it would not materially affect the outcome of the war.

The question of European relief generally has been receiving attention by Administration officials, including President Roosevelt and the Red Cross, but they have been silent as to their attitude toward the Hoover plan.

There have been indications, however, that the Government believed a limited amount of relief might be possible.

Fears 'Impoverished World'

The five countries embraced in the Hoover proposal were Finland, Norway, Holland, Belgium and central Poland.

Hoover told the National Industrial Council that whatever the outcome of the war the United States will encounter "an impoverished world."

He said American industry after the war would be forced to meet foreign competition and could best meet it on its scale of low prices through the application of science to production, "not by any lowering of the scale of living."

Hoover Receives News In N. Y. "With Interest"

New York, Dec. 10 (AP)—Former President Herbert Hoover, honorary chairman of the National Committee on Food for the Five Small Democracies, received "with interest" tonight news that Britain had rejected American-sponsored plans for sending food into German-occupied countries.

He said, however, that he had no comment to make at this time.

Organization of the food committee was announced last Saturday to "save millions" from the "inevitable famine and pestilence which confront them."

Pershing Included

Members of the committee were listed as including Gen. John J. Pershing, former Vice-President Charles G. Dawes and Col. Theodore Roosevelt.

At the same time opposition to the Hoover plan was announced by "twenty-five outstanding women," who argued that America's own national security would be endangered and Hitler's task of holding the conquered countries made easier if the populations were supplied with American food.

U-BOAT TORPEDOES CANADIAN WARSHIP

39 Casualties Reported—Makes Port for Repairs.

LONDON, Dec. 10 (A. P.).—The Canadian destroyer Saguenay, torpedoed by a submarine in the North Atlantic, has docked in an English port for repairs, it was disclosed today.

OTTAWA, Dec. 10 (A. P.).—The 1,337-ton Canadian destroyer Saguenay was damaged by a torpedo in an encounter with a submarine in the eastern Atlantic, with twenty-one men missing and eighteen wounded, Naval Service Headquarters disclosed today.

The Saguenay reached port for the necessary repairs, the announcement said.

This was the first report of direct damage to a Canadian fighting ship by an enemy vessel. Two destroyers—the Fraser and the Margaree—were lost in collisions.

Casualties on the Saguenay raised to 281 the number of Canada's naval men reported dead or missing since the war began.

sinking of two armed British merchant ships totaling 14,500 tons, this increasing "to 45,000 tons the enemy merchant shipping space his submarine has sunk."

Cites Raider's Success

"One warship operating overseas," its communique said, "of whose activity a partial account already has been given, increased its sinkings to more than 100,000 tons."

DNB reported a brush between a German submarine and the 1,337-ton Canadian destroyer Saguenay in the Atlantic, in which the destroyer was torpedoed and had to be towed to port for repairs.

[Associated Press Editor's Note—Canadian naval service headquarters at Ottawa said twenty-one of the crew of the Saguenay were missing and eighteen wounded.]

Places Not Given

The high command's communique did not specify where the new sinkings took place.

The communique said unfavorable weather limited activity of the German air arm and that bombs dropped on occupied regions and northern Germany during the night did only immaterial damage. It acknowledged loss of three planes in the Sunday night raid on London.

52,229 Tons Of Ships Sunk

London, Dec. 10 (AP)—The Admiralty announced today thirteen merchant ships totaling 52,229 tons were sunk by "enemy" action in the week ended December 1, compared with a weekly average of sixty-five weeks of war of approximately 62,000 tons.

The latest report included nine British ships totalling 41,360 tons, three Allied ships totalling 5,734 tons, and one neutral ship of 5,135 tons.

It was pointed out that the Germans had said they sank 227,500 tons of shipping in the week ended December 1.

[The German radio in a broadcast heard here said that Nazi warplanes had disabled and set afire a British ship in a raid today on a convoy near the entrance to the Thames Estuary, off Harwich, and that another ship had been attacked successfully off Ramsgate.]

Berlin Claims Big Total.

BERLIN, Dec. 10 (A. P.).—The High Command credited a German submarine today with sinking two armed British merchantmen totaling 14,500 tons and reported that a Nazi surface warship operating overseas had increased its toll of British and Allied shipping to more than 100,000 tons.

The announcement did not specify where the newest sinkings took place and identified the surface raider as "a warship of whose activity a partial account already has been given."

The successes scored by the submarine mentioned in the communique brought to 45,000 tons the total amount of shipping space accounted for by this craft, the High Command said.

Sails From Montevideo.

MONTEVIDEO, Dec. 10 (A. P.).—The Carnarvon Castle, Britain's shell-battered, 20,122-ton auxiliary cruiser, her more urgent repairs apparently completed, sailed at 4:45 P. M. (2:15 P. M., Eastern standard time) today for an undisclosed destination.

Repairs apparently were completed after a British legation spokesman said permission might be sought for the battle-damaged cruiser to remain here another day.

The spokesman added that the legation had no word of the fate of the German raider which fought the cruiser off the Brazilian coast on December 5.

"The raider which the Carnarvon Castle met is not the only one of its kind on the Atlantic Ocean," one official said. "There may be as many as four or five of these well-equipped raiders out stalking merchantmen. It is going to take a special squadron like that which destroyed the German raiding cruisers in the last war to handle those fellows."

The Uruguayan Government had set 6:30 o'clock tonight as the deadline for the vessel to leave.

OTTAWA GETS ART

$500,000 French Works Were Seized at Bermuda.

OTTAWA, Dec. 10 (A. P.).—Modern French art valued at $500,000, removed from the American Export liner Excalibur as contraband when the ship stopped at Bermuda in October, has arrived at the National Gallery here.

The paintings and drawings, once the property of Ambroise Vollard, were consigned to Martin Fabiani of New York. The Supreme Court of Bermuda dismissed an action to recover the works and transferred jurisdiction to the British prize court.

SECOND NIGHT WITHOUT BOMB: LONDON RESTS

London, Dec. 11 (Wednesday) (AP).—Londoners slept undisturbed by German bombers for the second successive night since the monster attack Sunday night, while the press warned them against false optimism.

By 12:30 A. M. (6:30 P. M. Tuesday, New York time) the capital had had 41 hours without alarm despite comparatively good weather conditions. The last alert sounded at 7:30 A. M. Monday.

RAF Raids Coast.

Early last night RAF bombers heavily raided the German invasion coast and long-range guns dueled across the Dover Straits, but no German planes were reported over British soil.

The authoritative Press Association suggested continental weather conditions apparently were responsible for the mysterious lack of Nazi air activity and cautioned "it would be a big mistake to imagine anything more optimistic."

In the shelling across Dover Strait several houses were severely damaged and three persons injured before the shelling ceased a half hour later.

RAF Raids Bases.

Then sheets of red flame, visible from the British coast as the rain ended and a brilliant moon appeared, indicated a resumption of last night's RAF raids on German bases [illegible] the French coast.

Nazi gun emplacements at Cap Gris Nez appeared to be the immediate targets.

The RAF's bombers were busy Tuesday. The German naval base at Lorient, docks at Boulogne and Calais, and an airplane plant in Bremen, Germany, were heavily bombed, the Air Ministry said.

Claim Rout of RAF Raiders Over Reich.

Berlin, Dec. 10 (AP).—British planes which attempted to fly over Germany during the night were quickly repulsed without doing any damage to essential objectives, informed sources reported today. The raiders were said to have confined their efforts to one particular locality, which was not identified.

London said the submarine base at Lorient, German-occupied France, was attacked.

The latest German air force activity over England, it was said, was limited largely to "disturbance and reconnoitering" flights.

Three British planes were reported downed yesterday.

Intercepted Off Cuba

The British cruiser Diomede intercepted her off the south coast of Cuba Sunday.

The incident happened about seventy-five miles from the south coast of Cienfuegoes, between the Isle of Pines and Grand Cayman Island. This is well within the American neutrality belt.

No Word From Rhein

There was no word from the 6,031-ton German freighter Rhein, which left Tampico with the Idarwald to make a dash across the Atlantic.

In a previous attempt to sneak through the British blockade, four German ships—including the Idarwald and the Rhein—sailed from Tampico.

Idarwald Sank, British Say; Nazi Crew Seized

[By the Associated Press]

London, Dec. 10—The 5,033-ton German freighter Idarwalk sank after a prize crew placed aboard by the British cruiser Diomede failed in an effort to prevent her scuttling by her own crew, an official announcement said today.

The German crew of forty-five now are prisoners aboard the Diomede, it was disclosed.

Naval circles, elaborating on the brief official statement, pointed to United States reports that the Idarwald was set afire by the Germans and these quarters said it was presumed they also opened her seacocks.

First Official Report

It was the first official report on the incident since it was reported by Cuban and United States naval departments that the ship had fallen into British hands.

The Cuban report was that the Idarwald had been torpedoed, but the United States version was that she had been boarded by a prize crew which foiled an attempt of the German crew to burn and scuttle her.

The 5,033-ton Idarwald attempted to

One of the vessels, the Phyrgia, was scuttled by her crew when a warship was sighted, and the other three fled back to harbor.

Churchill Asked to End Beaverbrook 'Intrigue'

LONDON, Dec. 10 (AP).—In debate on control of the RAF, which Lord Beaverbrook wants to split between the army and navy, Prime Minister Churchill was asked in Parliament today to end "newspaper intrigue in this connection, particularly in Beaverbrook's papers."

Churchill replied he had no control over the press except for war purposes.

"Cannot the Prime Minister exercise any control over his colleagues in the Cabinet?", asked Austin Hopkinson. (Beaverbrook is Minister for Aircraft Production).

"I think I can," Churchill replied amid laughter.

Tommy Atkins Told Shiny Buttons Are Out

LONDON, Dec. 10 (A. P.).—The "spit-and-polish" tradition of the British army joined horses and swords in the military limbo, as the Chatham Army Area today ordered that all parts of army uniforms be left unpolished in the field.

It was said that this would lessen the chance of troops being observed from the air.

Churchill Again Balks At Stating War Aims

LONDON, Dec. 10 (A. P.).—Prime Minister Winston Churchill declined in the House of Commons again today to give a statement of British war aims.

William Gallacher, the only Communist member of Commons, declared that "the imperial policy group . . . is proposing a new order in Europe which will be dominated by the pound sterling and the dollar."

"There are such a lot of new orders in Europe," Mr. Churchill replied, "that I really have to confine myself more directly to immediate business."

Says Reich Should Have Shot Hitler in 1923

LONDON, Dec. 10 (A. P.).—Herbert Morrison, Home Secretary, defending in Commons today the Government's treatment of fifth columnists, said "it would have been a very fine thing for Germany and for the world" if the former German Government had shot Adolf Hitler, following the 1923 putsch.

Arthur Bevanley Baxter, Conservative, charged that Mr. Morrison in his handling of fifth columnists was playing right into the hands of men like former Ambassador Joseph P. Kennedy, who was quoted in an American interview, which he later repudiated, as saying that democracy had ceased to exist here.

"I can only say I have expressed a view and I am afraid I cannot be moved from it by considerations of Mr. Joseph Kennedy," Mr. Morrison retorted.

100,000 Tons Of Ships Sunk By Lone Raider, Berlin Says

New Successes In War At Sea Claimed—Air-Raid Lull Laid To Bad Weather

[By the Associated Press]

New York, Dec. 10—The German radio in a broadcast heard here said Nazi warplanes disabled and set afire a British ship in a raid today on a convoy near the entrance to the Thames estuary, off Harwich, and that another ship was "attacked successfully" off Ramsgate.

[By the Associated Press]

Berlin, Dec. 10—German reported fresh successes at sea today in the Nazi counter-blockade of Britain, while explaining that unfavorable weather had limited aerial raids since the "monster" attack on London Sunday night.

Capt. Victor Schütze was singled out by the high command for praise as the commander of a U-boat reporting the

$63,000,000 Is Spent Daily by Britain

LONDON, Dec. 10 (A. P.).—The British Government spent the record sum of £15,730,191 (about $62,596,764) daily last week, published exchequer returns disclosed tonight.

London Stays Out of Shelters, Pleased and Puzzled by Lull

British Credit R. A. F. for Respite, but Fear Nazis Mass for Hard Blow

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Dec. 10.—Britons were pleased but puzzled today by a new lull of more than 24 hours in the Nazi air siege.

Throughout the night and early morning rooftop spotters watched the sky for planes expected to follow up the 12-hour pounding given London Sunday night.

Many persons went to shelters—just in case. Others stayed up late, then decided to sleep at home.

The weather was not unfavorable to raiding, although the bright moonlight of the early night gave way later to clouds and light mist.

Two planes were said to have flown some distance inland this morning through antiaircraft fire, but there were no reports of any bombs being dropped.

The authoritative British Press Assn. speculated that the lull might have been caused by the Royal Air Force's blows at Germany or by a German strategy of massing for a heavy blow later.

BRITISH GIVE CHINA $40,000,000 CREDIT

Help for Chiang Kai-shek Revealed in Commons.

LONDON, Dec. 10 (A. P.).—Financial aid totaling £10,000,000 ($40,000,000) has been granted to Chiang Kai-shek's Government by Great Britain, R. A. Butler, the Under-Secretary for Foreign Affairs, told the House of Commons today.

It will take two forms: £5,000,000 ($20,000,000) in credits to be used by China in countries within the sterling bloc, and an equal amount to strengthen the Chinese Stabilization Fund.

Mr. Butler noted that the United States Government had granted a credit of $100,000,000 to Chiang's Government.

He told the Commons that the credit granted by the British Government would be available "only for use in the sterling area," because "it is, of course, necessary for his Majesty's Government to conserve their gold and dollar assets for the essential war needs."

Of the aid granted by the United States, a credit of $50,000,000 was specified for general purposes and the other $50,000,000 to be allocated for the purposes of monetary protection and stabilization as between American and Chinese currencies.

BENES SAYS NAZIS HAVE LOST WAR

Czech Statesman Calls U. S. Aid to Britain a Factor.

LONDON, Dec. 10 (A. P.).—Germany has lost the war, former President Eduard Benes of Czecho-Slovakia said today at a press conference.

Announcing the formation of a Czecho-Slovak State Council to function here as an advisory body until Parliament takes over, Dr. Benes expressed his belief in "the certainty of British victory and the certainty of the re-establishment of the Republic" at Prague.

He said he felt the war was in its second half, "where the Axis will begin to descend," because: 1. "Only two countries in the world can be master of the seas—Great Britain and the United States; and 2. "The aviation potential in the hands of Great Britain and the United States is so big it cannot be equalized by Germany."

Dr. Benes listed further reasons for his confidence:

"The American presidential election which assured a continuation of American aid to Great Britain without a break; the victory of Great Britain in the battle of England; the enormous blunder of Italy in provoking war against Greece; the increasing difficulties of Germany in all occupied countries where Germans are facing an impossible task; the increasing difficulties of Germany from an economic, financial and moral point of view and as a consequence of the blockade."

Italy, said Dr. Benes, "is now only a liability and will be to the end."

WETTER ELECTED SWISS PRESIDENT

Former Teacher to Serve During 1941.

BERNE, Dec. 10 (A. P.).—Ernest Wetter, chief of the Finance Department, was today elected President of the Swiss Confederation for 1941.

Dr. Wetter, a bespectacled former Zurich Commercial College professor, had been given the job of directing Switzerland's fight for economic independence during the European war.

He came into the Swiss Federal Council in 1938 as a representative of the so-called Swiss Radical-Democratic party which, even in conservative Switzerland, is considered one of the more conservative parties.

Philippe Etter, chief of the Department of the Interior, was elected Vice-President of the Confederation. The Vice-President traditionally succeeds to the presidency in the following year.

Earlier, Edward de Steiger, a Berne lawyer, was chosen by the Swiss Federal Assembly as chief of the Department of National Defense to succeed Rudolf Minger, resigned.

Karl Kobelt, a Saint Gallen engineer, was named Chief of the Department of Justice Police to succeed Johannes Baumann, also resigned.

The Federal Assembly is composed of the National Council and the Council of States—upper and lower houses of the Swiss Parliament.

Petain Heads Toward Paris

He and Laval May Be Going to Berlin—De Gaulle Loses French Citizenship.

BERNE, Dec. 10 (A. P.).—The French Chief of State, Marshal Petain, and Vice-Premier Laval both left Vichy today heading toward Paris, according to diplomatic reports received here.

The reports said they may continue on to Berlin for talks with German Government officials.

Havas, the French news agency, reported last night from Tunis that Gen. Maxime Weygand, French military leader in Africa, had arrived there yesterday.

The dispatch said that he was welcomed by Admiral Jean Esteva, Resident-General of Tunisia, and acclaimed by the French African troops stationed there.

Earlier, it had been erroneously reported that Marshal Petain had arrived in Tunis.

De Gaulle Stripped of Rights.

VICHY, Dec. 10 (A. P.).—The official French Journal published a decree today depriving Gen. Charles de Gaulle, the Free French leader, and five of his followers of their French citizenship.

The others named were:

Gen. Georges Catroux, former commander of the Nineteenth Army Corps in Algeria, now head of the Free French movement in the Red Sea area;

Col. Edouard Rene Maria de Larminat, former Chief of Staff of the French Near East armies, lately active in Equatorial Africa;

Gen. Le Gentilhomme, former commander of the Allied forces in Somaliland;

Pierre Lapie, member of the French Parliament, now in London, and M. Antoine, former chief engineer of bridges and highways.

Another Government decree stipulated that no foreigner in France may travel outside his own and neighboring communities without a special police permit.

Petain, Laval Reported Heading Toward Paris

Possibility Of Berlin Trip Seen. Chief Of State "Satisfied" With Appearance Of French Troops

Vichy, Dec. 10 (AP)—Philippe Petain, chief of state, expressed his "fullest satisfaction" today with the appearance of the French troops he saw recently on an inspection tour of the Toulouse, Lyon and Marseille areas.

[According to diplomatic reports reaching Bern, Switzerland, both Petain and Pierre Laval, Vice-Premier, left Vichy this morning, heading toward Paris and, possibly, Berlin later. Previous reports in Bern that Petain had gone to Tunis were erroneous.]

Gen. Maxime Weygand, French leader in Africa, who has gone to Tunisia again on an "information" trip, was reported to have reached Susa yesterday. He had been in Tunis.

British Women in Paris Seized by French Police

Roundup Is Reported to Mean 'Indefinite Internment'

PARIS, Dec. 5 (delayed, via Berlin) (AP).—Women of British nationality remaining in Paris were taken into custody today for what authoritative sources said was "indefinite internment."

French police squads rounded up British nationals and conducted them to a special concentration center to await transportation to an undisclosed destination.

The British nationals, including those from the dominions, have been reporting each morning to police stations in response to an order issued shortly after the German occupation of Paris. Only a few had been interned previously.

Balkan Slavs Favor Russia

Newspaper Says Trend "Increases Importance of Rumania for Axis"

BUCHAREST, Dec. 10 (AP).—Commenting on current trends in the Balkans, the pro-German newspaper "Curentul" said today there was a tendency toward "solidarity among all Slavs in the Balkans under Russian leadership," adding that this "increases the importance of Rumania for the Axis."

"Curentul," whose editor has close connections with the Axis and now is in Rome, appealed to Rumanians to restore unity and solidarity quickly.

The same article warned against the spread of Communism on the Continent, especially in France.

Antonescu Gives Broad Powers To Army Staff

Permits Military To Control Any Institution Or Corporation If Deemed Necessary

Bucharest, Rumania, Wednesday, Dec. 11 (AP)—Rumania's chief of state, Gen. Ion Antonescu, issued decrees early today giving the army general staff the right to take control, to militarize and to manage any state or private institution or corporation where such action is deemed "in the superior interests of the state."

The employes of any institution or company thus taken over will wear military arm bands, submit to military discipline and be subject to court-martial.

New Quakes Shake Southern Rumania

BUCHAREST, Dec. 10 (A. P.).—Just one month to the hour after 1,000 to 2,000 persons had been killed in Rumania's worst earthquake, two new tremors shook the southern part of the country today.

No damage has been reported, but the quake was especially severe in the area around Galatz, a city of about 75,000 people and one of the chief grain ports on the Danube.

4,000,000 Lei Found In Lupescu Kin's Garden

BUCHAREST, Dec. 10 (A. P.).—The Rumanian Government asserted today it had found about 4,000,000 lei in the garden of the Bucharest home of Rudolph Lupescu, brother of Magda Lupescu, friend of exiled King Carol. (Rumanian currency is not quoted in New York markets.)

An investigation of the source of the Lupescu family income was started by the Government shortly after Mme. Lupescu fled with Carol to Spain.

NEW RUMANIAN LAW

Property of Emigrees May Be Confiscated.

BUCHAREST, Dec. 10 (A. P.).—Rumanians who work against the interests of the State abroad not only will lose t heir citizenship, but all their property, under a new decree by Premier Ion Antonescu. The property of their children will also be confiscated.

Many prominent Rumanians probably will be affected by the decree, informed quarters said.

It was learned that eight barges owned by Jews had been seized by the State and "rented to the German Society of Navigation on the Danube."

British Allow French Ships To Clear Lisbon

Navicerts Reported Given To Vessels Carrying Merchandise To Morocco

Lisbon, Portugal, Dec. 10 (AP)—Shipping circles said today British officials had granted navicerts to the French vessels Compiegne and Lieut. St. Loubert Bie, which sought permission to depart tomorrow for Casablanca, Morocco, with cargoes of fish and other merchandise.

Both entered the port of Tagus, Portugal, shortly after the French Government collapsed. Another French liner, the Killisy, which sailed last week with an escort of French destroyers for Morocco, was not molested.

Some officials here said approval of the shipping activity indicated the British did not want to place difficulties in the path of Gen. Maxime Weygand, commander of the French forces in North Africa.

TO BUY STEEL IN U. S.

India Notified British Are Transferring Orders Here.

BOMBAY, Dec. 10 (A. P.).—Because of heavy war demands in the United Kingdom, the British Government will be unable to accept orders from India for most classes of steel, it was announced today.

Arrangements will be made shortly, it was said, to place Indian orders in the United States through the British Purchasing Commission there.

Norwegian Prayer Omits Royalty

OSLO, Norway (A. P.).—The royal house and the Storthing (Parliament) are things of the past so far as prayers in Norwegian churches are concerned.

Lutheran bishops of Norway have been vested with power by the Government to devise a new common prayer in which King and Congress will be omitted.

Artillery and Bombers Widen Siam Border War

Japanese Troops Reported on Strategic Storm Island

HANOI, French Indo-China, Dec. 10 (AP).—Fighting between Thailand (Siamese) troops and French colonials on the Thai border is continuing with increased severity, an official announcement said today.

Tailand troops, the announcement said, fired scores of artillery shells across the Mekong River into the Indo-China border town of Savannakhet, but the damage was not disclosed.

Thai aircraft also bombed and machine-gunned Vientiane in a brief attack today. French anti-aircraft fire brought down one of the attacking planes in flames, it was reported. The French asserted that Vientiane suffered heavy material damage, but few casualties. They said they were preparing for air bombing reprisals.

NEW TOKYO THREAT REPORTED IN HANOI

Japanese Said to Be Massing Troops on Spratly, Deep in South China Sea

SINGAPORE MENACE SEEN

More Shelling and Bombing Maintain Border Tension in French Indo-China

HANOI, French Indo-China, Dec. 10 (AP)—Seemingly reliable reports indicated today that the Japanese were concentrating troops on or near Spratly Island, midway between North Borneo and the French Indo-China naval base at Cam Ranh Bay.

Observers here said that the Japanese might use such a base in the island-dotted South China Sea to attempt a blockade cutting off the British naval base at Singapore, should necessity arise, or in the event of a drive against Cam Ranh or the port of Saigon.

These reports recalled the report of a ship captain last Wednesday that he saw a fleet of Japanese transports steaming southward from Hainan Island past the coast of Indo-China.

Reports were circulated here that Japan already had 5,000 troops on Spratly Island.

French authorities reported, meanwhile, that bombs fell on a hospital grounds and damaged communications in an alleged attack by Thai planes on the border town of Savannaket yesterday. No casualties were reported.

A French statement said their forces retaliated with their first night air raid against Thailand.

The French planes were said to have dropped large quantities of bombs on a Thai air base at Udorn, twenty-five miles south of the border town of Vien Tiane.

One Thai plane was reported shot down and another damaged in an air battle yesterday.

Heavy Fighting Reported

HONGKONG, Dec. 10 (AP).—Central News (Chinese agency) reported today severe fighting was proceeding in sub-zero weather between Japanese and Chinese forces in Suiyuan Province, northern China.

A large Japanese force, it said, began a drive four days ago westward from Paotow, terminus of the Peiping-Suiyuan railway, but hard-fighting Chinese were stemming attacks.

Central News reported that in southeast China, meanwhile, Chinese guerrillas had carried out a bold raid against the Island of Amoy, crossing from the mainland during the night of Nov. 29. They succeeded in slaying Japanese sentries at an observation post, it said, and then raided a number of buildings, killing the officer who commanded the Japanese gendarmerie, the Japanese-sponsored Chinese chief of police and a number of soldiers, Chinese and Japanese. The guerrillas returned to the mainland with two Japanese prisoners, Central News added.

BOMBS KILL CHINESE

Several Hundred Slain by Japanese Flyers.

SHANGHAI, Dec. 10 (A. P.).—Several hundred persons were reported killed in a Japanese bombing of Kinhwa, Chekiang province, in a message received today by the Southern Baptist Mission Headquarters.

The Provincial Government has been situated at Kinhwa since the Japanese captured Hangchow in 1937.

The same source reported that bubonic plague had broken out in Kinhwa, taking many lives. Serums to combat the plague were urgently needed, the message said.

The plague was believed to have spread to Kinhwa from Ningpo, where it reached serious proportions last month, but later was brought under control.

WAKASUGI ADVISER FOR AMBASSADOR

Former Japanese Official Here Gets Post.

TOKIO, Dec. 10 (A. P.).—Kaname Wakasugi, recently called home from his post as consul-general at New York, has been appointed chief adviser to Admiral Kichisaburo Nomuro, the Japanese Ambassador to Washington, it was announced today.

The Ambassador plans to leave for the United States in January after an inspection tour in China.

Political spokesmen considered it significant that a man of Mr. Wakasugi's importance had been appointed to this position, particularly in view of Foreign Minister Yosuke Matsuoka's extended comments yesterday on relations between the United States and Japan.

Mr. Wakasugi is considered one of the best informed Japanese on American affairs. In addition to his post at New York, he was formerly Consul-General at San Francisco.

New Japanese System For Dealing With Press

TOKIO, Dec. 10 (A. P.).—The Japanese Government inaugurated today a new system for dealing with the world press, eliminating direct contact with its ministries.

Foreign correspondents were received at a new Cabinet Information Bureau, in which information departments of all the chief Government departments have been centralized under Nobufumi Ito, former Minister to Poland. Koh Ishii, former Vice-Consul in New York, handled the interviews as chief of press conferences.

The new arrangement means the passing of one of Japan's best known functionaries, the Foreign Office spokesman, or chief of the Foreign Office Information Bureau. The last to hold the position, Yakichiro Suma, has been named Minister to Spain.

Japanese Budget Set At About $352,000,000

Forty Per Sent. Of Amount To Be Allotted To Army And Navy, With More Needed

Tokyo, Dec. 10 (AP)—The Japanese Cabinet today approved a budget of approximately 1,500,000,000 yen ($352,500,000) for the fiscal year beginning April 1, 1941, with forty per cent allotted to the army and navy, but indicated heavy additional war funds would be needed.

The budget covers only "ordinary" expenditures of the fighting services, each getting about 300,000,000 yen ($70,500,000). Newspapers estimated that the army's extraordinary expenses (chiefly for the war in China) would exceed 1,000,000,000 yen ($235,000,000).

Revenue was estimated at 1,100,000,000yen ($258,500,000), leaving a big deficit to be met by loans.

Liner Brings 800 More Americans From Orient

Monterey Docks At San Francisco. Also Has Survivors Of Two Ships Lost In Pacific

San Francisco, Dec. 10 (AP)—The liner Monterey docked today with 800 more Americans returning home from the Orient and survivors of two ships which sank in the South Pacific. These ships were the City of Rayville, presumably sunk by a mine explosion, and the Director Second, exploratory vessel which ran on a reef.

The City of Rayville, under charter to the United States Lines, went down off Cape Otway in Bass Strait, about six hours out of Melbourne, Australia. Harry Carter, 27-year-old seaman who was lookout at the time, said she sank in forty-five minutes after an explosion at the bow. One man was killed. The remaining thirty-seven of her crew escaped and sixteen returned on the Monterey.

The Director Second, carrying the Fahnstock expedition which sailed from New York last February 1, struck an uncharted reef October 17 350 miles out of Brisbane, Australia. The 140-foot craft sank with the expedition's equipment.

MISSIONARIES RECALLED

Presbyterian Board in Nashville Orders 100 Home From Far East

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Dec. 10 (AP)—Temporary withdrawal of about 100 missionaries and their families from China, Japan and Chosen was announced today by the executive committee of Foreign Missions of the Presbyterian Church in the United States.

Dr. W. L. Caldwell, head of the committee, stated that the withdrawals were only temporary and ordered only after repeated urgent requests of Far East consular authorities acting under orders of the State Department in Washington.

Most of those withdrawn are the older missionaries and women and children. Small skeleton forces have been left at each of the missions.

War Threat From Japan

[By the Associated Press]

Honolulu, Dec. 10—Lieut. Gen. Hatsutaro Haraguchi (retired), member of the Japanese Diet, said in an interview today that the sending of even one American battleship to Singapore would precipitate war with Japan.

He is en route to Japan after "doing my best to soothe relations between the two countries."

Wheeler and Thomas Say U. S. Will Stay Out

HONOLULU, Dec. 10 (AP)—Congress and the country are overwhelmingly against entering the European war, Senators Burton K. Wheeler, Democrat, of Montana and Elmer Thomas, Democrat, of Oklahoma, said in an interview today, adding that it was likely this sentiment would prevail.

The Senators arrived on the transport Liggett to make an inquiry into defense and to obtain additional information on the question of statehood for the Hawaiian Islands, which voted in favor of statehood at the November election.

UNITY IS KEY TO DEFENSE, PRESIDENT SAYS

Roosevelt Asks Fair Return For Labor, Industry And Capital

Declares, In Message To N. Y. Club, Matter Is Vital One

[By the Associated Press]

New York, Dec. 10—President Roosevelt says that "no subject is of more vital concern to every man, woman and child in this nation" than "national unity for defense."

Mr. Roosevelt expressed his views in a message to David Sarnoff, president of the Economic Club, congratulating the club for selecting that subject for discussion at its meeting tonight.

"The very discussion of this problem in open forum highlights the contrast between the totalitarian and democratic concepts of government," the President wrote. "In the totalitarian scheme such a discussion has no place. There can be no real unity where the people have no voice."

Freedoms To Be Guarded

The President added that "the freedoms that we must and will protect in the United States are the freedoms which will make the individual paramount in a true democracy."

"In our American way of life political and economic freedom go hand in hand," he said. "Our freedoms must include freedom from want, freedom from insecurity, and freedom from fear.

"I firmly believe that we can best secure these freedoms by government and private enterprise working together for these common objectives. In this joint effort there must be provided proper reward for labor, proper incentive for enterprise, and a proper return on investment."

Among the speakers who discussed "national unity for defense" were Charles E. Adams, chairman of Air Reduction Company; Capt. Eddie Rickenbacker, president of Eastern Airlines, and Philip D. Reed, chairman of the board, General Electric Company.

Cites Defense Group

Adams, an executive assistant to Edward R. Stettinius, Jr., in charge of the materials division of the defense commission, said he believed that "national unity for defense has been exemplified in the work of the defense commission and its accomplishments so far."

Reviewing the work of the commission, he said he had seen "plenty of cases where mature executives have willingly done office-boy work on one day and tackled and solved most difficult and complex industrial problems on the next."

He spoke of some "unavoidable delays" in the early organization of the commission, but said that "everything is running smoothly and we are proceeding to our ultimate goal along a broad, level and well-marked boulevard."

Predicts U. S. Entry

After reviewing possible effects on the United States from the European conflict, Rickenbacker said:

". . . Should these gallant British withstand the terrific onslaught of the totalitarian states until the summer of 1941, it is my sincere conviction that by that time this nation will have declared war on the totalitarian states.

"I say to you and the rest of my fellow-Americans, we had better prepare today to die fighting, rather than to fight dying.

"I say to you tonight that you of this generation are enjoying liberties at this moment that you will never enjoy again as long as you live. You are enjoying a standard of living that you never again will enjoy, regardless of the outcome of world war No. 2."

Rickenbacker said Americans were profoundly concerned about our safety in the air.

"We are seeking for an element of security and for the method of obtaining that which will definitely place us beyond reasonable danger from any and all other nations," he said.

Madness, He Says

"I doubt very much if the right method consists of trying to hold first place in an armament race in the air. It seems madness to me to place our chief reliance on building plane for plane against potential enemies.

"We know perfectly well that the most important units of a competent air fleet become obsolete within two years.

"In view of these facts, it becomes essential that the foundation of defense in our military or commercial aviation program is an aviation transportation industry linking every community within our boundaries—of 2,000 population or more—for the purpose of transporting passengers, all first-class mail, express and light freight."

Two-Way Street

Reed told the assembly that "national unity is a two-way street," and "just as the management of a business can create or destroy company unity by its attitude toward and treatment of employes who may disagree with a particular program, so can the officers of government create and destroy national unity by their attitude toward and treatment of minority groups. . . ."

"Is industry assuming and discharging its full share of the burden imposed upon this nation by the rearmament program?" he asked.

"Being a member of industry, my emphatic 'yes' in answer to that question is not nearly so convincing as the equally emphatic corroboration that has repeatedly been voiced by high officials of the army, navy and the advisory defense commission. Indeed, any other answer in inconceivable."

Sailing in 'New Waters,' Roosevelt Keeps Busy

Works on Documents Flown to Ship From Washington

ABOARD U. S. S. MAYRANT AT SEA, Dec. 10 (AP by Radio).—Cruising leisurely in new waters, President Roosevelt was busy today with documents brought from Washington yesterday by seaplane.

(The dispatch did not identify the "new waters." Mr. Roosevelt previously had been in the Caribbean.)

The cruiser Tuscaloosa, which he is aboard, and the accompanying destroyers Mayrant and Trippe were back in formation after the destroyers had put in at San Juan for refueling.

The Tuscaloosa's officers dined with the President and his official party in the wardroom last night and saw motion pictures on the deck afterward.

Mr. Roosevelt will hold a press conference tomorrow or Thursday, when he may discuss his observations of United States defense measures taken in the Caribbean.

Knox Flies to Guantanamo To Inspect Naval Base

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico, Dec. 10 (A. P.)—Secretary of the Navy Frank Knox left by plane today for Guantanamo, Cuba, to inspect the United States naval base there. He came here after touring Panama Canal defenses.

PRESIDENT SAYS WEALTH MUST BE DISTRIBUTED

Declares Defense Demands Equitable Sharing From Natural Resources.

MESSAGE TO FARM CONVENTION

Wickard Pledges Administration's Aid to Help Enlarge Income of Agriculture.

BALTIMORE, Dec. 10 (A. P.).—President Roosevelt declared today that effective rearmament of the nation requires, in addition to mobilization of men and munitions, "an equitable distribution of the wealth from our unparalleled resources."

This statement was made in a presidential message before the twenty-second annual convention of the American Farm Bureau Federation. The convention was considering new proposals designed to give farmers a larger share of the national income.

Text of Statement.

Mr. Roosevelt said:

The first world war injured our entire national economy and no industry was hit harder than agriculture. But out of the troubles of farmers grew a better realization of what must be done to help make democracy effective. Farmers found that they must organize and work together. To some this may have seemed a slow process but out of it, among other things, have emerged national farm programs for agriculture. These programs are built from the bottom up.

Nowadays, the second world war is having an injurious effect upon our economy and the economy of the world. But out of this war already has emerged a clearer realization of the value of democracy and the danger to it from unbridled force and aggression. Using the democratic processes, this nation is arming to preserve freedom and to see to it that the enslavement of millions of human beings will pass like the nightmare that it is.

In this effort to meet the threat to our liberty, the nation can count upon your organization and farmers everywhere. In a time of crisis, America knows it can depend upon the men who live upon the land. It has been so in the past; it is so now; and it will be so in the future.

To rearm effectively, however, means more than men and munitions. It means an equitable distribution of the wealth from our unparalleled material resources, help for the underprivileged, security for workers and farmers and whatever else that is necessary to keep democracy a dynamic force.

It is good, therefore, to know that we can depend upon the American Farm Bureau Federation to do its part in the work all must do to preserve and enrich the American way of life.

Wickard Speaks.

Secretary of Agriculture Wickard pledged further administration efforts today to enlarge agriculture's share of the national income, but asked farmers to unite with other economic groups to make the country strong in the present world crisis.

"Agriculture today faces a new test," he told the delegates at the convention.

"We are called on for an intense effort to help defend the American democracy which gives us opportunity and freedom. There is loose in the world an evil idea totally opposed to democracy. It is dangerously clever and effective in destroying democracy."

"The nation's welfare and our group's welfare require consultation and unified action."

"As long as large groups of our producers do not have parity we must all continue to work for this goal," he said. "For my part, I pledge you and all other farmers my utmost effort as Secretary of Agriculture to achieve the purpose declared by Congress in the agricultural adjustment act of 1938—'assisting farmers to obtain, in so far as practicable, parity prices and parity of income.'"

Chester A. Davis, member of the National Defense Advisory Commission, asked the American farmers to forget their prejudices against Latin American agricultural imports in the interest of total defense against European dictatorships.

Southern farmers presented a resolution to the convention insisting that the Government use funds available for removal of farm surpluses to subsidize the export of raw cotton.

This action was taken after I. W. Duggan, director of the Agricultural Adjustment Administration's southern division, told a federation cotton conference that the American fiber crop was being undersold in world markets not closed by the war.

Mr. Duggan said that the outlook for export of American cotton this season was very dark. He said Government trade experts had forecast foreign sales of less than 2,000,000 bales. Last season about 6,200,000 bales were exported.

He said South American cotton was being sold in Canadian markets cheaper than the American crop. The present Government loan program was said to have pegged prices above world levels, thereby giving foreign growths an advantage.

U. S. PLACES NEW CURB ON EXPORT OF IRON AND STEEL

More Metals Put Under Licensing Control by White House.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 10 (A. P.).—President Roosevelt today ordered iron ore, pig iron, ferro alloys and "certain iron and steel manufactures and semi-manufactures" put under export license control.

The action was announced by the White House. The order was made effective as of December 30.

The White House announcement said:

"The President announced today that national defense requirements for iron and steel have increased to such extent that it has become necessary to subject, as of December 30, 1940, iron ore, pig iron, ferro alloys and certain iron and steel manufacturers and semi-manufactures to the licensing requirement.

"Licenses will be granted for exports to the British Empire and the Western Hemisphere, and for the present, so far as the interests of the national defense permit, for exports to other destinations in quantities approximating usual or prewar exports."

ASSERTS BRITAIN WOULD ARBITRATE

Sir Norman Angell Says Germany Refuses.

BOSTON, Dec. 10 (A. P.).—Declaring he believed that only arbitration could end the European hostilities, Sir Norman Angell, author, economist and former member of Parliament, said today that England was prepared to give "full consideration to arbitration."

"We are prepared," he said in an interview, to give full consideration to arbitration, to hear grievances, and to discuss how to create a third party judgment, but Germany is not prepared to do these things."

"Germany is fighting against the principle of third party judgment," the winner of the 1933-34 Nobel peace prize declared, "She must be the sole judge. We are prepared to give full consideration to her grievances, to discuss how to create a third party judgment. She is not prepared to discuss it. She repudiates the whole principle of third party judgment. Therefore, we must resist or surrender and lose the whole principle of freedom."

"If the enemy you (the United State) are arming against is the Nazi power," he added, "you will have to consider what is the best strategy for the defeat of that power. If you leave the outposts—by that I mean Britain and China—inadequate, you may become encircled. If that is the way you want to make your defenses, make them."

BRITAIN'S FISCAL REPORT IS READY

High U. S. Officials Called to Hear Facts.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 10 (A. P.).—High defense and fiscal officials of the administration were called in today to hear the facts about Great Britain's financal resources brought here by Sir Frederick Phillips, Under-Secretary of the British Treasury.

Ranking members of the War, Navy, State and Treasury departments and the National Defense Commission were invited to meet with Secretary Morgenthau at the Treasury. Mr. Morgenthau talked for two hours at his own home with Sir Frederick last night.

Although Treasury officials declined to comment on today's meeting, it was known that Sir Frederick was supposed to have presented to Mr. Morgenthau last night what the Briton described as a "balanced statement of our financial resources and costs of supply."

The call was sent out to the officials to meet at an undisclosed hour late this afternoon, and went out to the same group that met in Mr. Morgenthau's office the day before Sir Frederick arrived in the United States last week.

Similar meetings have been held before every important pronouncement of administration policy on aid to Great Britain, including the trade of fifty old navy destroyers for Atlantic sea and air bases, and the release of four-motored bombers to Great Britain.

Mr. Morgenthau had nothing to say after his talk with Sir Frederick last night.

Ahepa Will Help Raise $10,000,000 for Greece

Order Names Five to Assist in War-Relief Campaign

WASHINGTON, Dec. 10 (AP).—The supreme lodge of the Order of Ahepa named a five-member committee today to serve with members of the Greek War Relief Association in a drive for $10,000,000 for relief of Greek war victims.

Those named by the Ahepa governing body were Supreme President Van A. Nomikos, of Chicago; Supreme Vice-President George A. Vournas, of Washington; Past President Y. I. Chebilhes, of Dayton, Ohio; Dean Alfango, of Buffalo, and Achilles Catsonis, of Washington.

Mr. Nomikos announced that the order had adopted a resolution to turn over part of its reserve to the war relief association. He said the exact amount had not been determined, but would run into "tens of thousands of dollars."

Legation Also Says East Indies Officials And Socialists Are Being Imprisoned

Washington, Dec. 10 (AP).—The Netherlands Legation said today that "great numbers of Catholics are among the many permanent residents of Holland being rounded up and interned in concentration camps by German authorities."

The legation was advised by the Netherlands Government in London that officials of the Netherlands East Indies, who were home on leave, and members of the Socialist party also were being imprisoned.

Army To Test Revolutionary Rocket Motor For Warplanes

Inventor Of 4,000-H. P. Device Exhibited At New York Says It May Give U. S. World Air Supremacy

[By the Associated Press]

New York, Dec. 10—An inventor exhibited a rocket motor at New York University today which, he said, may revolutionize warplane speeds and give the United States world air supremacy.

The army has accepted the device as a subject for further experimentation.

Not Tested In Flight

The engineer-inventor, 50-year-old E. B. Myers, of New York, whose work has been supervised by Dr. Alexander Klemin, head of the university's school of aeronautics, said he would "not be surprised" to see an American warplane equipped with such a motor within a year.

He talked freely about the possibilities of rocket propulsion for airplanes which would permit much greater speeds and carrying power, but conceded that his motor actually had not been tested in flight.

Suggests Possibilities

This is what he said his motor would do:

Used as a secondary power source on a standard Martin bomber, it would reduce the takeoff time by thirty-eight per cent, and, employed in the same way on one of the army's four-engine bombers, would increase the pay load, or bomb load, by 57.7 per cent.

It could be used ultimately as the sole source of power for warplanes. As an auxiliary power plant it would increase the top speed at sea level of the Curtiss Hawk pursuit from 302 to 471 miles an hour and that of the four-engined bomber from 265 to 337 miles an hour.

Problems To Be Solved

Asked whether such speeds would not bring up fresh problems of wing and tail "flutter"—set up by vibration—he said such aspects of flight would remain to be solved.

The motor exhibited during the interview, a cylinder into which a mixture of nitrous oxide and carbon disulphide is shot and discharged by electricity, weighed only 148 pounds and developed a "thrust" of 4,000 horsepower, Myers said.

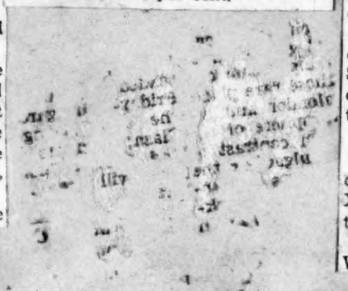
It differs from the ordinary rocket motor in that the cylinder develops a series of explosions, like a gasoline engine, instead of continuous combustion. That reduces detonation and cooling problems, Myers explained.

Expects 85% Efficiency

Rocket power comes from what is known as "jet reaction." Gases are discharged from a cylinder at enormous speed—5,000 to 6,000 feet a second. As the gases are pushed backward they push equally hard on the front walls of the combustion chamber.

Fastened to an airplane, that thrust would drive the machine forward. As an index to the speed possibilities in rocket propulsion even high-speed planes travel at only 500 feet a second.

Myers said he expected to get eighty-five per cent. efficiency out of his aircraft rocket motor, as against an overall efficiency for conventional gasoline engines and propellers of about thirty-two per cent.



Duchess Undergoes Major Dental Operation In Miami

Surgery More Serious Than Was Anticipated—Patient Reacts Favorably

[By the Associated Press]

Miami, Fla., Dec. 10—The Duchess of Windsor underwent a major dental surgery today and reacted promptly and favorably to the twenty-five-minute operation that developed more seriously than expected.

Four hours after she and the Duke arrived from Nassau to be greeted by a cheering, pushing crowd to which she smiled and waved, the Duchess was placed on an operating table at a Miami Beach hospital. Her physician, Dr. Horace L. Cartee, of Miami, announced afterward:

"The progress of the operation was most satisfactory. The condition of the jawbone was more serious than anticipated. The patient withstood the operation well and reacted promptly and favorably."

Duke Remains Near By

While the present condition of the Duchess was pronounced as satisfactory, Dr. Cartee said he had recommended that she stay at the hospital longer than previously planned. The Duke remained close by in the hospital during the operation.

The operation involved extraction of an infected lower right molar and the scraping away of that part of the bone softened by the abscess. The Duchess' entire system had been poisoned by the infection.

Shortly afterward the Duke, who is Bahamian Governor, announced through an aide that he had abandoned his original schedule calling for transfer to the Miami Biltmore Hotel tomorrow and return to Nassau on the S. S. Munargo Friday.

"Everyone has been so very kind," he said. "The Duchess and I are deeply appreciative."

After formalities attending arrival of the Windsors aboard the yacht Southern Cross, they chatted with officials and newsmen and then motored in an open car to the hospital.

X-Ray Tests Made

Almost immediately a staff of physicians, headed by Dr. Cartee, made X-ray examinations preliminary to the operation.

The Duchess looked well and happy. When asked how she felt, the Duke replied: "I think her appearance answers that."

The Windsors were greeted by H. V. Hemelt, of the State Department in Washington; Stephen L. Childs, of the British Embassy in Washington; Mrs. Mark Byron 3d, daughter of Gov. Fred P. Cone of Florida, British consular officers and Miami officials.

Alexis Wenner-Gren, owner of the Southern Cross, directed Capt. Alex Rothman to keep her ready for possible use on the return voyage.

War Communiques

British

LONDON, Dec. 10 (AP).—A communique issued at Cairo, Egypt, by the British African command:

Operations in the Western Desert are successfully continuing.

Prisoners so far captured are reported to exceed 4,000. Also a number of medium tanks (have been captured).

SUDAN; In the Gallabat area patrolling activity supported by our artillery fire continues.

An Air Ministry bulletin on activities of the Royal Air Force in the Middle East:

Detailed reports have now been received showing the part played by the R. A. F. in support of the military offensive in the Western Desert.

They show that on the first day, Dec. 9, every enemy airdrome from Derna to Sidi Barrani was heavily raided by our bombers, causing great damage. In addition, our fighters and bombers continually attacked enemy troop concentrations and motor transport over the whole operational area.

Twenty-two enemy aircraft were reported shot down or destroyed—eighteen are confirmed and four unconfirmed. One squadron accounted for eleven. Four of these were seen burning on the ground at the same time.

Another fighter squadron caused great damage to enemy communications and inflicted numerous casualties on enemy personnel by dive machine-gun attacks.

Later reconnaissance flights reported large fires west of Buqbuq and, in other areas, enemy motor transports burning on roads, causing dislocation to enemy troop movements.

During these intensive air operations, carried out continuously from dawn until dusk, only three of our aircraft failed to return to their bases, but the pilots of two are safe within our territory.

Bad weather conditions prevented operations in southern Albania yesterday, but bomber aircraft of the R. A. F. carried out extensive reconnaissance in the vicinity of Valona. Bombs fell south of the harbor jetty and others fell among buildings near by.

In Italian East Africa, aircraft of the Rhodesian Squadron attacked a defended position northeast of Kassala, causing considerable damage. Other aircraft of the same squadron raided enemy troop and motor transport concentrations at Khor Aftit on the Chown Chondar Road, southeast of Metemma. Many casualties were caused to enemy troops, as well as considerable damage to motor transport.

An Air Ministry-Home Security Ministry communique:

A few enemy aircraft have approached our coasts singly during the day, of which some penetrated into East Kent. Reports received indicate that only two bombs were dropped and they caused little damage and no casualties.

An Air Ministry communique:

Last night bombers of the Royal Air Force bombed an aircraft factory at Bremen, the naval base at Lorient, and the docks at Boulogne.

During these operations one of our bombers shot down an enemy fighter. One of our aircraft is missing.

A government communique:

An enemy bomber was shot down into the North Sea yesterday afternoon by our fighters. Apart from a reconnaissance flight near the south coast (of England), there was no activity during the night.

ATHENS, Dec. 10 (AP).—A communique issued by the Royal Air Force in Greece:

In bad weather conditions yesterday, R. A. F. bomber aircraft carried out an offensive in the vicinity of Valona. Bombs hit the south jetty, and a stick fell among buildings near the harbor. Anti-aircraft fire was met, but there was no fighter opposition. From all operations, all our aircraft returned safely.

Greek

ATHENS, Dec. 10 (AP).—The Greek command communique:

Our offensive activities continued all over the entire front. Strong enemy positions were occupied at bayonet point. The enemy suffered heavy losses. Three 100-millimeter guns have fallen into our hands.

The Greek Ministry of Home Security communique:

Enemy aviation bombed Corfu and a village in the western Peloponnesus today. No damage and no casualties reported.

Italian

ROME, Dec. 10 (AP).—The Italian high command communique:

On the Greek front, enemy attacks on our left and in the Usum River sector were pushed back. The enemy, overpowered by our immediate reaction, suffered serious losses.

On the rest of the front, our troops consolidated newly occupied positions.

Col. Psaro fell bravely at the head of his Alpine battalions.

Four enemy planes were shot down in North Africa.

In East Africa, the enemy made a raid in the Tessenei zone with a small detachment led by an English officer and traveling in motor trucks bearing the Italian flag. Despite that, the enemy was recognized and the attempted raid failed because of prompt intervention by half a company of our troops. The English detachment, whose officer was killed, quickly fell back with serious losses. An officer and several native Askari troops were wounded on our side.

Enemy air actions on Assab and along the Djibouti Railroad failed to cause noticeable damage.

German

BERLIN, Dec. 10 (AP).—The German high command communique:

One warship operating overseas, of whose activity a partial account already has been given, increased its sinkings to more than 100,000 tons.

A submarine reports sinking two armed merchant ships totaling 14,500 tons. This success, scored by Capt. Victor Schuetze on a recent cruise, increases to 35,000 tons the enemy merchant shipping space his submarine has sunk.

After the already reported especially successful retaliatory attack on London the night before Dec. 9, the air force's activities Dec. 9 and last night were restricted to armed reconnaissance because of unfavorable weather.

In the course of last night several British planes dropped a number of explosives and incendiaries over occupied regions and northern Germany, causing immaterial damage to buildings.

The enemy yesterday lost three planes, two of which were bagged in an air fight and one by anti-aircraft. Three of our own planes failed to return from the monster raid on London.

Rising to the Occasion

ROME, Dec. 10 (AP).—The Fascist party ordered all members today to rise to their feet when Italian high command communiques are read over the radio in public places.

America Advised to Decide How Far It Wants to Go to Aid England

By DEWITT MACKENZIE.

Some time ago this column recorded that it was apparent that we Americans shortly would be faced with the problem of deciding whether we wished to increase our war aid to England, since the British themselves were raising the question.

I suggested that it behooved us to get busy in advance of the event and make up our minds just what we wanted to do. This British appeal—which is developing strongly on both sides of the Atlantic—is too important for us to delay consideration until we have to give snap judgment.

And now I'm going a step further and call your attention to the growing intimations, from England and here at home, that our aid should carry us into the war.

A bit has been cut off this piece of cloth by Lady Nancy Astor, American-born member of the British Parliament and wife of Lord Astor. She didn't say right out in meeting that we ought to join the conflict, but in addressing the Eagle Squadron of American volunteers in the Royal Air Force in London, she exclaimed:

"I knew they would come. Thousands of young Americans are longing to get into this war. It is right that they should."

Further Call to be Expected.

"That's rather typical of the trend of thought in many quarters in Britain, and one encounters some of it here at home. So I say it's quite likely that before long we shall have to face a further call from England that we extend our aid to the battle field.

Again I suggest that we ought forthwith to devote to this momentous question our best thought so that we may have ready a considered answer and not a hysterical response evoked by some sensational incident. As I remarked in connection with the previous article, it naturally isn't within my province as a military and foreign affairs analyst to offer an opinion on such an issue. They can't do more than hang a fellow, though, for advocating careful consideration.

The first point we must settle is what our purpose would be in going to war. You've got to have a mighty good reason—not just a catchy slogan. Would we be rescuing a friend? Would we be fighting for democracy? Would we be battling for self-preservation?

Then we shall be confronted immediately by another great issue, namely, to what ends are we prepared to go to achieve our goal. Is it a fight to a finish? Nazidom has declared that it is out to destroy England; British Premier Churchill not long ago cried: We seek to beat the life and soul out of Hitler and Hitlerism—that alone."

Problem of Last War.

That question arose at the end of the last war and will come up again in this war. What's the answer? Let's consult Foch again. When asked if the armistice hadn't been concluded too soon he replied quietly:

"It was not possible to do otherwise, because the Germans gave us everything that we asked for at once.

"Now we must make a peace which will correspond with the magnitude of our victory. We must have a peace as absolute as was our success and which will guard us against all further aggression.

"We have no idea of attacking Germany or of recommencing the war. Democracies such as ours never attack. They ask but to live in peace and to grow in peace, but who can say that Germany—where democratic ideas are so recent and perhaps very superficial—will not quickly recover from its defeat?"

Farseeing Foch! Germany did recover, and twenty-one years later we have what we have. How far must this war go, say you? Hitler declared today in Berlin amidst cries of "Sieg Heil" from his audience:

"Never again a Versailles treaty!"

LONDON,DEC. 10-(AP)-A LONG RANGE GUN DUEL FOLLOWED BY HEAVY BOMB EXPLOSIONS ON THE "INVASION COAST" OF OCCUPIED FRANCE SHOOK THE CHANNEL AREA TONIGHT AS LONDONERS PUZZLED WITH PLEASURE OVER A LULL OF MORE THAN 37 HOURS IN NAZI AIR ATTACKS.

SHELLING ACROSS THE DOVER STRAIT BEGAN IN RAIN SHORTLY BEFORE 7:30 P.M. (1:30 P.M. E.S.T.) SEVERAL HOUSES WERE SEVERELY DAMAGED AND THREE PERSONS INJURED BEFORE THE SHELLING CEASED A HALF HOUR LATER.

THEN SHEETS OF RED FLAME, VISIBLE FROM THE BRITISH COAST AS THE RAIN ENDED AND A BRILLIANT MOON APPEARED, INDICATED A RESUMPTION OF LAST NIGHT'S RAF RAIDS ON GERMAN BASES ALONG THE NEARBY FRENCH COAST.

LONDON, DEC. 10--BRITAIN HANGED TWO GERMAN SPIES FROM THE GALLOWS IN GLOOMY, CENTURY-OLD PENTONVILLE PRISON TODAY IN HER FIRST EXECUTIONS ~~OF THE WAR~~ for espionage in this war.

THE TWO NAZIS, 25-YEAR-OLD JOSE WALDBERG, AND 24-YEAR-OLD KARL MEIER, WERE CONVICTED UNDER THE TREACHERY ACT NOV. 22 IN A CIVIL TRIAL AT THE CENTRAL CRIMINAL COURT. ITS PENALTY IS DEATH BY HANGING.

HAD THEY BEEN CONVICTED BY A COURT MARTIAL, THEY WOULD HAVE DIED BEFORE A FIRING SQUAD.

THE CHARGE WAS THAT THEY HAD ERECTED A RADIO TRANSMITTER BY NIGHT IN SECLUDED SPOTS IN THE COUNTRYSIDE. THE COURT WAS TOLD THAT THEIR APPARATUS--ENTIRELY OF GERMAN MANUFACTURE--WAS EXTRAORDINARILY LIGHT, BEING CARRIED IN TWO BLACK BAGS LIKE CAMERA CASES, AND COULD BE ADJUSTED TO SEND ON DIFFERENT WAVE-LENGTHS.

THE OFFICIAL ANNOUNCEMENT SAID THE MEN HAD BEEN LED TO BELIEVE THEY WOULD BE RELIEVED SHORTLY BY INVADING GERMAN TROOPS.

WALDBERG, IT SAID, WAS A GERMAN CITIZEN BORN AT MAINZ, BUT MEIER WAS A DUTCH SUBJECT OF GERMAN ORIGIN BORN AT KOBLENZ.

IT SAID THEY CAME TO ENGLAND PLENTIFULLY SUPPLIED WITH MONEY, APPARENTLY UNDER INSTRUCTIONS TO PICK UP WHATEVER MILITARY INFORMATION THEY COULD BY POSING AS REFUGEES FROM GERMAN-OCCUPIED TERRITORY.

WINDSOR WORKING ON 'NEW DEAL' FOR BAHAMAS

MAY BORROW CCC IDEA AS A STARTER

FACES OPPOSITION (680)

BY FRED L.STROZIER

(ADVANCE)..NASSAU, BAHAMAS, DEC 9-(AP)-THE DUKE OF WINDSOR AS ROYAL GOVERNOR HAS STARTED WORK ON A NEW DEAL OF HIS OWN TO RELIEVE UNEMPLOYMENT IN THIS BRITISH COLONY. HE'S TOYING WITH THE IDEA OF BORROWING THE CIVILIAN CONSERVATION CORPS PLAN FROM THE UNITED STATES AS A STARTER.

ALREADY THE FIRST RUMBLINGS OF A FIGHT OVER THE DETAILS HAVE BEEN HEARD IN THE VIGOROUSLY INDEPENDENT LEGISLATURE, AND MORE CAN BE EXPECTED IF THE DUKE COMES FORWARD WITH AN EXPENSIVE PROGRAM.

THERE IS GENERAL AGREEMENT THAT THE COLONY' NATIVE WORKERS FACE A SERIOUS PROBLEM. THOUSANDS WHO ONCE WORKED THE SPONGE BEDS WERE THROWN OUT OF THEIR JOBS BY A STRANGE MARINE BLIGHT. RECENT GOVERNMENT STUDIESINDICATE THE SPONGE BEDS WILL REQUIRE SEVERAL MORE YEARS TO RECOVER.

MEANWHILE, IT IS ESTIMATED RELIABLY THAT A MAJORITY OF THE 20,000 PERSONS LIVING ON NEW PROVIDENCE ISLAND, WHERE THIS CAPITAL IS SITUATED, GET BY AT A BARE SUBSISTENCE LEVEL AND THAT THE 40,000-ODD PERSONS ON THE OUT-ISLANDS ARE IN THE SAME SITUATION OR WORSE, WITH ONLY A FEW EXCEPTIONS.

FIRST OF ALL, EDWARD ARRANGED FOR A COMMITTEE TO STUDY UNEMPLOYMENT AND SEEK ADEQUATE STATISTICAL INFORMATION WITH WHICH TO PLAN A REMEDY. HE ASKED FOR A SECOND COMMITTEE TO STUDY WAGES IN THEIR RELATION TO LIVING COSTS.

FROM FRIENDS WITHIN THE UNITED STATES, HE OBTAINED VOLUMINOUS DATA ON OPERATIONS IN THE CCC AND, WITH THE AID OF HIS ADVISORS, BEGAN STUDYING COSTS AND RESULTS.

"THIS MAY NOT BE THE ANSWER TO OUR PROBLEMS," HE SAID. "I'M AFRAID I CAN'T TELL MERELY FROM READING THE REPORTS. I HOPE I CAN ARRANGE TO VISIT THE UNITED STATES TO SEE JUST HOW THE CAMPS OPERATE."

WINDSOR SAID HE HAD THIS IN MIND ON A RECENT OUT-ISLAND TRIP, WHEN

HE OBSERVED OPPORTUNITIES FOR REFORESTATION AND OTHER WORK THAT MIGHT BE DONE BY A CCC.

SOME LEGISLATORS IMMEDIATELY TOOK THE VIEW THAT ANY SUCH PROGRAM WOULD BE TOO EXPENSIVE FOR THE COLONY, EVEN THOUGH ITS FINANCIAL CONDITION IS CONSIDERED BEST IN THE BRITISH EMPIRE.

NORMALLY THE BAHAMAS MAINTAIN A CASH BALANCE OF £300,000 TO £400,000 (MORE THAN $1,250,000). ALREADY THE COLONY HAS LOANED £250,000 (MORE THAN $1,000,000) INTEREST-FREE TO THE ENGLISH GOVERNMENT FOR WAR NEEDS. EVEN WITH THIS DRAIN, THE TREASURY HAS MORE THAN £100,000, OR CLOSE TO HALF A MILLION DOLLARS, ON HAND.

LEGISLATIVE SOURCES INSIST THAT IT IS NECESSARY TO KEEP A GOOD CASH BALANCE TO MAKE CERTAIN THE COLONY CAN MAINTAIN ITS INDEPENDENT POSITION. WITH THE EXCEPTION OF THE THREE B'S -- THE BAHAMAS, BERMUDA AND BARBADOS -- ALL BRITISH COLONIES NOW OCCUPY CROWN STATUS AND, THEREFORE, TAKE CONSIDERABLE DICTATION FROM THE COLONIAL OFFICE.

IF THE BAHAMAS SHOULD FACE A DEFICIT JUST ONCE, SAY THE LEGISLATORS, LONDON WOULD STEP IN, PROVIDE THE NEEDED FUNDS AND THEN WOULD ASSUME BROAD ADDITIONAL POWERS OVER THE NOW INDEPENDENT LOCAL GOVERNMENT.

THIS CERTAINLY WOULD MEAN THE IMPOSITION OF AN INCOME TAX AND A REAL ESTATE TAX -- BOTH OF WHICH ARE ANATHEMA TO THIS TOURIST-SEEKING COLONY, FINAL SPOT IN THE EMPIRE WHERE NO TAX IS LEVIED ON INCOMES.

THE LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY, AN ELECTIVE BODY THAT JEALOUSLY GUARDS ITS PREROGATIVES, HAS SHOWN NO HESITATION TO TAKE SHARP ISSUE WITH THE COLONY'S NEW GOVERNOR, EVEN THOUGH HE IS THE FORMER KING AND A MEMBER OF THE ROYAL FAMILY.

AN ISSUE AROSE ALMOST AS SOON AS WINDSOR ASSUMED HIS NEW JOB. THE LEGISLATURE LEVIED A WARTIME TAX ON TELEGRAMS ORIGINATING IN THE COLONY. AFTER THE ASSEMBLY AND LEGISLATIVE COUNCIL ADJOURNED, IT WAS FOUND THAT THE LONDON GOVERNMENT HAD MADE AGREEMENTS THAT NO SUCH TAX WOULD BE LEVIED IN THE EMPIRE. WINDSOR FORTHWITH ISSUED INSTRUCTIONS THAT THE TAX BE CANCELED.

THE HOUSE, BACK IN SESSION, PROMPTLY AGREED TO REPEAL THE TAX, BUT AT THE SAME TIME UNANIMOUSLY ADOPTED A RESOLUTION TAKING THE GOVERNOR TO TASK IN THESE WORDS:

"THIS HOUSE TAKES A VERY GRAVE VIEW OF THE INSTRUCTIONS ISSUED TO THE TELECOMMUNICATIONS DEPARTMENT REFERRED TO IN THE LAST PARAGRAPH OF HIS ROYAL HIGHNESS THE GOVERNOR'S MESSAGE NO. 2.

"THE HOUSE WOULD RESPECTFULLY REMIND HIS ROYAL HIGHNESS THAT AN ACT OF THE BAHAMAS LEGISLATURE CANNOT BE ALTERED, SUSPENDED OR ABROGATED WITHOUT THE SANCTION OF THE THREE BRANCHES OF THE LEGISLATURE AND EARNESTLY HOPE THAT A SIMILAR INCIDENT WILL NOT OCCUR AGAIN."

WITHIN THE LEGISLATURE, THERE IS A MOVEMENT TO HEAD OFF ANY OUTSIDE DRIVE ON UNEMPLOYMENT BY PUSHING AHEAD WITH A BILL TO CREATE A GOVERNMENT FARM WHERE NATIVES OUT OF WORK COULD LIVE AND RAISE THEIR OWN FOODSTUFFS, WITH A MINIMUM OF FINANCIAL HELP FROM THE COLONY'S TREASURY.

SOVIET REGIMENTS BOYS

HALF MILLION MOBILIZED

IN LABOR CORPS

BEGIN TWO-YEAR COURSE

IN INDUSTRY AT AGE

OF FOURTEEN (520)

BY HENRY C.CASSIDY

(ADVANCE) MOSCOW--(CORRESPONDENCE OF THE ASSOCIATED PRESS)--SOVIET BOYS ARE BEING REGIMENTED, ALONG WITH THEIR FATHERS, TO STRENGTHEN NEUTRAL RUSSIA'S POSITION AMID THE NATIONS AT WAR.

MORE THAN HALF A MILLION YOUTHS, 14 TO 17 YEARS OLD, HAVE BEEN MOBILIZED TO FORM A STATE LABOR RESERVE CORPS.

THE CORPS HAS A SEMI-MILITARY BASIS WITH UNIFORMS, BARRACKS AND COMMANDANTS FOR THE BOYS.

THUS THE REFORMS ALREADY INTRODUCED IN SOVIET INDUSTRIES AND THE RED ARMY, TO TIGHTEN DISCIPLINE AND INCREASE EFFICIENCY, HAVE BEEN EXTENDED TO YOUTH.

THE OFFICIAL PRESS INTERPRETED THE ACTION AS ONE DESIGNED TO REINFORCE NATIONAL DEFENSE.

THE SUPREME SOVIET ORDER WHICH CREATED THE LABOR RESERVE PROVIDED THAT 800,000 TO 1,000,000 BOYS SHOULD BE CALLED UP EACH YEAR FROM COLLECTIVE FARMS AND CITY STREETS.

A TWO-YEAR COURSE IN INDUSTRIAL OR RAILWAY SCHOOLS WAS ESTABLISHED FOR BOYS 14 AND 15 AND A SIX-MONTH COURSE IN FACTORY SCHOOLS FOR BOYS 16 AND 17.

AFTER BEING TRAINED, THE BOYS MUST DO FOUR YEARS' WORK UNDER STATE ORDERS.

THE FIRST REGULATION ISSUED BY THE NEW LABOR RESERVE DEPARTMENT, HEADED BY P.G.MOSKATOFF, CALLED UP 600,000 BOYS, STARTING NOVEMBER 10.

THE DEPARTMENT PROVIDED SPECIAL CLOTHING AND HOUSES FOR THE BOYS, GRANTED THEM FREE SCHOOLING AND UNDERTOOK TO PAY THEIR PERSONAL EXPENSES. AFTER COMPLETING THEIR EDUCATION, THEY WERE TO BE OFFERED STANDARD WAGES IN THEIR TRADES.

THROUGHOUT THIS PERIOD, HOWEVER, IT WAS MADE PLAIN, THEY WOULD BE SUBJECT TO THE "RIGHTS AND DUTIES OF MOBILIZATION."

IN THE INDUSTRIAL AND RAILWAY DVHOOLS, SEVEN HOURS OF CLASSES DAILY WERE ARRANGED--FIVE HOURS OF MANUAL TRAINING AND TWO OF GENERAL EDUCATION. IN THE FACTORY SCHOOLS, EIGHT HOURS DAILY OF TRADE AND GENERAL CLASSES WERE PROVIDED.

FOR BOYS NOT CALLED TO THE LABOR RESERVE CORPS--SONS OF

DEC 11 1940

SKILLED WORKERS WERE GIVEN PREFERENCE--PAYMENT WAS REQUIRED TO CONTINUE EDUCATION IN HIGH SCHOOLS AND COLLEGES. THE FEES RAN FROM 150 TO 500 RUBLES (OFFICIALLY, $30 TO $100) A YEAR.

SCHOLARSHIPS, ONCE GRANTED LIBERALLY, WERE LIMITED UNDER THE NEW SYSTEM TO "PERFECT STUDENTS."

THE YOUTH REFORM WAS EXTENDED EVEN FURTHER--TO THE "PIONEERS," CHILDREN OF 9 TO 14, FORMING THE YOUNGEST BRANCH OF THE COMMUNIST MOVEMENT, WHICH INCLUDES NEXT COMSOMOLS, FROM 15 TO 24, AND, FINALLY, COMMUNIST PARTY MEMBERS.

THE PIONEER ORGANIZATION HAS EXISTED FOR 20 YEARS, WITH ITS OWN CODE, DRESS AND SALUTE, BUT THEY HAD FALLEN INTO DISUSE.

PARTY ORGANS REVIVED THEM WITH ARTICLES REMINDING THAT "PIONEERS MUST BE DISCIPLINED."

THE CHILDREN WERE ORDERED TO USE THEIR SALUTE OF FIVE FINGERS OUTSPREAD, AND HAND RAISED OVER THE HEAD, WHEN MEETING THEIR FRIENDS AND ORGANIZATION LEADERS. THE FIVE FINGERS STAND FOR THE WORLD'S CONTINENTS, AND THE UPRAISED HAND SIGNIFIES THAT THE INTERESTS OF ALL ARE HIGHER THAN SELF-INTERESTS.

THE OLD GREETING--"BE READY"--AND THE REPLY--"ALWAYS READY"--ALSO WERE REVIVED.

THE PARTY ORGAN, PRAVDA, REMINDED THAT THE CHILDREN'S CODE OF NO SMOKING, NO SWEARING AND RESPECT FOR ADULTS SHOULD BE OBEYED, AND THE RED NECKTIE OR SCARF OF THE MOVEMENT SHOULD BE WORN.

COMSOMOL PRAVDA, ORGAN OF THE YOUTH MOVEMENT, URGED CHILDREN TO PLAY MORE MILITARY GAMES AND PRACTICE MORE SPORTS, LIKE SKIING, WHICH WOULD PROVE USEFUL IN CASE OF WAR.

ALREADY JAPAN HAS GREATER ARMY AND AIR FORCE STRENGTH IN THE COLONY THAN ITS NOMINAL FRENCH MASTERS CAN MUSTER. AND THERE HAVE BEEN, ESPECIALLY IN THE SOUTH, IMPORTANT FRENCH ELEMENTS WHICH FAVOR CUTTING AWAY FROM VICHY AND JOINING THE DEGAULLIST "FREE FRENCH" AND THE BRITISH.

COMMERCIAL NEGOTIATIONS HAVE BEEN UNDERTAKEN WITH JAPAN IN THE HOPE THAT MIGHTY ORIENTAL EMPIRE CAN BE APPEASED, AND THAT AT THE

THE RIGHT TO OCCUPY SAIGON, THE GREAT PORT OF SOUTH INDO-CHINA, IS BELIEVED TO HAVE BEEN ONE OF JAPAN'S DEMANDS.)

FRENCH IN NORTHERN INDO-CHINA ARE PREPONDERANTLY CIVIL SERVANTS IMBUED WITH A NATURAL LOYALTY TO THE HOME GOVERNMENT, WHATEVER ITS POLITICAL COMPLEXION. FRENCH IN THE SOUTH ARE FOR THE MOST PART BUSINESS MEN, RUBBER PLANTERS, EXPORTERS OF RICE, TIN AND OTHER PRODUCTS. THEIR PROSPERITY HAS FOR DECADES BEEN CLOSELY AFFILIATED WITH THAT OF BRITAIN'S EASTERN EMPIRE.

MOST OF INDO-CHINA'S EXPORTS FORMERLY WENT TO FRANCE OR TO BRITISH POSSESSIONS, CHIEFLY IN BRITISH VESSELS. TRADE WITH THE HOMELAND ENDED WITH THE COLLAPSE OF FRENCH RESISTANCE IN EUROPE. VICHY DEALT A FURTHER BLOW TO INDO-CHINA'S PROSPERITY BY CLOSING ITS PORTS TO BRITISH SHIPPING AND SUSPENDING ALL SHIP CLEARANCES FOR BRITISH PORTS.

JAPAN NOW HAS STEPPED INTO THE PICTURE AS A SUBSTITUTE FOR BRITAIN, OFFERING BOTH MARKETS AND TRANSPORTATION FACILITIES FOR INDO-CHINA'S PRODUCTS. IN RETURN, IT CAN SEND INDO-CHINA MANY OF THE MANUFACTURED GOODS FOR WHICH THE COLONY WAS CHIEFLY DEPENDANT UPON FRANCE.

FRENCH OFFICIALS REALIZE THAT THE EXTENSION OF LARGE SCALE JAPANESE TRADE TO SOUTHERN INDO-CHINA MIGHT BE FOLLOWED BY JAPANESE DEMANDS FOR MILITARY FACILITIES AND NAVAL BASES OSTENSIBLY FOR THE PURPOSE OF SAFEGUARDING HER NEW TRADE ROUTES. AS LONG AS THE JAPANESE CONFINE THEIR MILITARY INTERESTS TO NORTHERN INDO-CHINA AND DIRECT THEIR OPERATIONS SOLELY AGAINST CHINA, THE FRENCH HOPE THEY CAN AVOID AN OPEN BREAK WITH GREAT BRITAIN AND THE RESULTING LOSS OF AMERICA'S GOOD WILL.

BUT EVEN THE MOST OPTIMISTIC INDO-CHINA FRENCHMEN, HOWEVER, CONCEDE THAT ESTABLISHMENT OF JAPANESE NAVAL BASES ON THE SOUTHERN COAST OF INDO-CHINA, 600 MILES SOUTH OF HAINAN ISLAND--SOUTHERNMOST JAPANESE BASE AT PRESENT--WOULD BE CONSIDERED BY BRITAIN AS A DIRECT THREAT TO SINGAPORE AND BY THE UNITED STATES AS A DANGER TO THE PHILIPPINES AND THE NETHERLANDS EAST INDIES.

BRITISH MINISTER OF AGRICULTURE HUDSON'S STATEMENT TODAY THAT BRITAIN'S FOOD SITUATION IS "JUST AS GRIM" AS IT WAS IN 1917 PRESENTS A GRAVE PICTURE.

THE UNRESTRICTED U-BOAT CAMPAIGN THEN ALL BUT EMPTIED ENGLAND'S PANTRY AND THREATENED HER WITH DEFEAT. I WAS IN ENGLAND AT THE TIME AND KNOW HOW CLOSE THE COUNTRY WAS TO REAL HUNGER.

MR.HUDSON INDICATES THAT THE POSITION IS THE SAME NOW. THAT GIVES US TO WONDER.

IT WOULD BE INTERESTING TO KNOW WHETHER HIS STATEMENT WAS INFLUENCED AT ALL BY THE FACT THAT HE WAS URGING BRITISH FARMERS TO GREATER FOOD PRODUCTION. IT WOULD BE PARTICULARLY INTERESTING IN VIEW OF THE STATEMENT AS LATE AS NOVEMBER 28 BY BRITISH FOOD MINISTER LORD WOOLTON THAT "WE ENTER THE SECOND WINTER OF THE WAR WITH CONFIDENCE IN OUR SUPPLIES."

WHICH ONE OF THESE GENTLEMEN IS RIGHT? IT STRIKES ME THAT MANY AMERICANS WILL ASK THAT THIS POINT BE CLEARED UP. THEY WILL WANT TO KNOW WHETHER IT HAS ANYTHING TO DO WITH THE FACT THAT BRITAIN IS URGING MORE AID THAN WE HAVE BEEN GIVING?

AMONG OTHER THINGS LONDON IS FISHING FOR U.S. WARSHIPS TO ACT AS CONVOYS. THE LACK OF ADEQUATE CONVOYS IS BRITAIN'S GREATEST HANDICAP IN MEETING THE NAZI COUNTER-BLOCKADE.

IN VIEW OF ALL THIS IT WOULD BE HELPFUL IF LORD WOOLTON AND MR. HUDSON WOULD SMOKE A PEACE-PIPE AND RECONCILE THEIR APPARENTLY DIVERGENT VIEWS ON THIS VITAL PROBLEM OF FOOD. THE POSITION NOW IS TOO CONFUSING.

MINISTER HUDSON SAYS THE BRITISH NAVY'S PROBLEM OF MEETING THE GERMAN AERIAL AND SUBMARINE BLOCKADE IS "NOW DOUBLY OR TREBLY AS DIFFICULT" AS IN 1917. WELL, APART FROM THAT RATHER ELASTIC "DOUBLY ORTREBLYJI ESTIMATE IT'S OR TREBLY" ESTIMATE IT'S NO NEWS THAT THE NAZI COUNTER-OFFENSIVE IS A GRAVE MENACE TO BRITAIN AND THAT SHE HAS BEEN BLOCKADING THE MEDITERRANEAN AND OTHER SEAS SO EFFECTIVELY THAT SHE LACKS ADEQUATE CONVOYS FOR ATLANTIC WATERS.

THAT IS ONE EXCELLENT REASON WHY BRITAIN IS NOW IN PROCESS OF TRYING TO MAKE A QUICK KILLING OF ITALY--TO RELEASE WARSHIPS AND WARPLANES FROM THE MEDITERRANEAN AREA TO MEET THE NAZI CHALLENGE.

BRITISH TAKE SIDI BARRANI

By EDWARD KENNEDY

Cairo, Egypt, Dec. 11 (AP).—British troops stormed and captured Sidi Barrani—strongest Italian base in Egypt—today and rolled westward in armored cars to occupy considerable additional areas, British General Headquarters announced tonight.

The official communique said "a large number" of prisoners were taken, including three Italian generals. They joined more than 6,000 prisoners taken on the first two days of the drive.

Reports reaching London, according to the United Press, said the total of prisoners taken was already well over 10,000 and that later information may show that nearly all the 15,000 Italian and Libyan troops in the area have been killed or captured.

Captured, said the official communique, were a large number of military prisoners, including three Fascist generals, who went into British custody, along with more than 6,000 prisoners of war already taken.

The Italians put up a stubborn resistance before the British finally took the town, and late tonight, on a 200-mile-square desert battleground, fighting still was going on between isolated groups, with the Italians holding out desperately. It was generally believed, however, that with the capture of the base, the present phase of operations is concluded satisfactorily for the British.

Fierce Battles Around Camps

South of the town, Fascist camps still holding out were areas of intense struggle. Each is protected by a deep outside trench and by anti-tank defenses, behind which, around the whole camp, there is a low but deep wall built of rocks and boulders and mounted with anti-tank, anti-aircraft and machine guns.

These dangerous little nests were being attacked by infantry under cover of heavy artillery bombardments, the R. A. F. supporting British armored columns and at the same time violently attacking the Italian rear.

Summing up air activity, it was declared tonight that in the past twenty-four hours at least ten Italian aircraft had been destroyed.

All Italians There Imperiled

The fall of Sidi Barrani, the greatest success yet reported in the spectacular British desert offensive, and the continuing thrust of British mechanized units to the west along the Mediterranean coast imperiled the entire Italian force in Egypt.

Just how far to the west this steel spearhead had been driven was not stated. At all events British advance forces already have been reported in occupation of areas near Buq Buq, which lies thirty-five miles west of Sidi Barrani toward the frontier of Italian Libya, and the next objective of the counter-invasion appeared to be the important Fascist base of Salum, which lies just within Egypt.

Sidi Barrani is seventy miles inside the frontier and between that point and the Italian divisions supporting it to the west of a wedge under Lieut. Gen. Sir Archibald P. Wavell has been driven.

Road For Fascist Supplies

That town, which had been reported strongly fortified, although it is but a collection of primitive hovels, is the roadhead through which all supplies must be funneled to the scattered Italian outposts in the desert.

Sidi Barrani was the major capture effected by the Italians themselves in their early fall offensive into Egypt—an offensive long stalled and apparently now being turned the other way. The Italians took the town September 17.

The British entered Sidi Barrani during this afternoon, said the high command's communique, and the circumstances suggested that the Italians may have been taken by surprise.

Beforehand, the British already had announced the capture since yesterday of 2,000 Fascist prisoners of war to add to the 4,000 reported in custody then. Too, the seizure of huge quantities of Italian war material was claimed.

2½ Days Of Fighting

All this was accomplished in two and a half days of fighting, the British having reached the scene in a forced march of unusual speed across seventy-five miles of desert from their interior Egyptian positions.

It became quickly a cooperative action between the field forces, the royal navy and the British Air Force. The British claimed to have taken Italian air power by the throat from the start, while the fleet shelled the coast.

With British troops now apparently firmly entrenched for miles along the coast, speculation arose that Italian Marshal Rodolfo Graziani must attempt soon to move up substantial forces from Libya for a major engagement in an effort to break the British wedge.

This attempt at relieving the forward Fascist detachments would come by way of the coastal road from Libya, and the British air arm is declared to be striking regularly at that area. The fleet is there, too.

R. A. F. Bombs Italian Bases

The British command announced that in the continuing aerial offensive R. A. F. pilots had bombed the steep road at Salum and the important Italian base of Bardia, Libya.

Air activity yesterday was heavy—the R. A. F. announced that six Fascist planes were shot down over the desert and three others probably destroyed and that all Italian airdromes in the entire area were again bombed, along with troop concentrations and trucks.

It was said that a number of Italian craft were smashed on the ground and that fires set off in some hangars were visible sixty miles away.

British Troops Assisted By 'Free French' Forces

London, Dec. 11 (AP)—Headquarters of the "Free French" forces of Gen. Charles de Gaulle announced tonight that French units had fought with the British in the capture of Sidi Barrani Egypt, from the Italians.

"We have taken a number of prisoners and war materials," it was added.

At the frontier of Italian Libya and the French territory of Chad, which lies to the south, "Free French" forces were declared to have "completely occupied a zone of French territory which should have been evacuated under the armistice terms."

This area was no more precisely located.

New Africa Air Chief

Cairo, Egypt, Dec. 11 (AP)—Air Marshal Arthur William Tedder arrived today to become deputy commander in chief of the middle east Royal Air Force, replacing Air Marshal Owen Tudor Boyd, who was captured by Italian soldiers when his plane was forced to land on the island of Sicily November 21.

Tedder had been diorector general of research and development to the Air Ministry since 1938.

CAIRO, Egypt, Dec. 11 (AP)—Credit for the success of the British drive in Western Egypt was given here to 59-year-old Lieut. Gen. Henry Maitland Wilson, who, as commander-in-chief of the troops in Egypt, has organized his forces into a swift-striking army.

General Wilson, six feet tall and an old Etonian, was the first man in the British Army to command a completely mechanized unit.

In 1935 he took command of the Sixth Infantry Brigade and whipped it into a modern, high-speed outfit that was a model for development of Great Britain's present armed forces.

He served as a lieutenant in the South African War with a crack infantry brigade and won the Queen's Medal with two clasps and the King's Medal with one clasp for his service in that campaign.

He was a regimental and staff officer during the World War, was thrice mentioned in dispatches and won the Distinguished Service Order. He was appointed commander-in-chief of British forces in Egypt last June.

Italians Admit Withdrawal.

ROME, Dec. 11 (A. P.).—Italian desert troops have been forced back by British armored divisions to Sidi Barrani, the main advance post of the Fascist invasion of Egypt, from a point to the southeast, the Italian High Command acknowledged today.

Gen. Maletti was killed while leading his Libyan troops, the communique said, adding that heavy casualties had been inflicted on the British in fierce fighting.

[The British previously had announced the death of an Italian general.]

The British assault began at dawn on Monday when "armored divisions attacked our line southeast of Sidi Barrani, held by Libyan troops," the High Command asserted, adding: "These troops at first resisted gallantly, but after some hours were overcome and retreated to Sidi Barrani."

The bulletin, the first official mention here of the engagement, said that fighting of exceptional violence continued all day Monday.

The conflict proceeded yesterday, it said, and the January Third Division of Blackshirt troops and the First Division of Libyans were said to have held out, and to have inflicted serious losses on the attackers.

"Fierce fighting is continuing in this zone," the communique said, and the Italian Air Force was aiding the ground troops by machine-gunning and bombing the British.

Compared to Jeb Stuart's Raid.

LONDON, Dec. 11 (A. P.).—British troops in Egypt now are dealing with pockets of Italian resistance around the camps in the Sidi Barrani zone, which they stormed earlier this week, military spokesmen reported today.

The British forays were likened to the raids of Gen. J. E. B. Stuart's Confederate cavalry in the American civil war, and were described as highly successful by these spokesmen, who cautioned against over-optimism, however.

Although the British armored units have smashed through to the Mediterranean coast at Buqbuq, some thirty-five miles west of Sidi Barrini, there is nothing to confirm the reports that two Italian divisions have been cut off, they said.

"We've done lots of damage," one informant said, "and demolition parties will do more to Italian communications, such as the coastal road, and to Italian bases. But it is too early to say whether a major offensive will be thrust home."

Not Desert But Rock.

The spokesman admitted that the preliminary operations opened a wide field of activities.

"If our officers find the Italian morale bad and the troops not fighting—and this seems true from early reports—there is little reason why the offensive can't continue on an even larger scale," they said.

At the same time they pointed out that the Italians would be able to use large numbers of tanks in counter-attacks which would relieve the Italian forces still fighting at points like Maktila.

They also said that "far from being desert," most of the terrain covered by the advancing British is windswept rock. Comparisons with the war in Europe cannot be taken seriously, they said, as the "Italians have no fixed lines, but merely a number of heavily-armed camps," which the British are attacking.

Called Exaggerated Episode.

BERLIN, Dec. 11 (A. P.).—Authorized spokesmen said today that British claims of success in Egypt merely proved that the British position is precarious.

"They exaggerate mere episodes into tragedies," these Germans said. "The Axis course, both military and economic, remains absolutely uninfluenced."

GRAZIANI'S PLIGHT LIKE NAPOLEON'S

Alexandria Hears He Would Not Obey Attack Order.

ALEXANDRIA, Dec. 11 (A. P.).—Italy's difficulties in attempting to supply and re-enforce her desert army while the British fleet controls the Mediterranean moved British military observers today to compare the lot of Marshal Rodolfo Graziani with that of Napoleon I when the Corsican invaded Egypt.

Graziani's army entered Egypt three months ago, moving seventy miles past the Libyan frontier to Sidi Barrani, only to be constantly harassed by the R. A. F. and to feel the effects of the Britisth blockade. Reports have long been current here that Premier Mussolini wished Graziani to drive toward Suez, but that the Marshal refused, even offering to resign.

Napoleon landed near Alexandria on July 1, 1798, but a month later Lord Nelson destroyed the French fleet. The Egyptian expedition, which Napoleon had planned as the beginning of a campaign to conquer England through her route to India, became a mere adventure. Napoleon's strategy was brilliant enough—he took Cairo and conquered the country in three weeks—but he realized that the campaign was a failure, and was more deeply convinced when he could not take Syria.

The French directory, meanwhile, was in difficulties at home and abroad. Napoleon boarded a frigate, slipped through the English cruisers and returned to France to accept the power, not of a mere general, but of a ruler.

ROME ADMITS REVERSES IN WAR IN EGYPT

Britain's Losses In Campaign, However, Termed "Extremely Serious"

Italy Claims Advantage In Recapitulation Of Sea And Air Toll

[By the Associated Press]

Rome, Dec. 11—The Italian high command acknowledged reverses in the Egyptian campaign about Sidi Barrani today, but said British armored divisions which made the swift attack on Fascist lines there suffered "extremely serious losses."

[Associated Press Editor's Note—The British officially announced the capture of Sidi Barrani, "with a large number of prisoners," this afternoon.]

Fighting of "exceptional violence" continued all day Monday in the desert struggle with Libyan advance troops "resisting gallantly" before their retreat to Sidi Barrani, the Government communique said in its first official mention in Rome of the engagement.

Italian General Killed

Two divisions of Italian troops held out and inflicted "serious losses" on the British, it was said.

Italian General Maletti was killed as he led his Libyan troops into battle.

On other phases of the war there were more encouraging reports.

An authoritative source said that up to December 10 thirty-seven British warships and thirty-three merchant vessels had been sunk against a loss of twenty-three Italian warships. This source said fifty-six British warships and forty-one merchantmen had been damaged, compared with damage to four Italian warships. Italian merchant shipping losses were not given.

Air And Land War Tall

Italian forces have shot down 667 "enemy" planes, it was said. The loss of 110 Italian planes was acknowledged.

Italy's war casualties, including dead, wounded and missing, from June 11, the day she entered the war, until November 30, totaled 18,824, an official announcement said.

Of the total, 14,078 were Italians, 4,669 native African soldiers and 77 were Albanians.

British Singing Too Soon, Rome Broadcast Asserts

New York, Dec. 11 (AP)—Rome radio in a broadcast heard here by CBS said the London radio "sings a victory song" about the Sidi Barrani engagement but that the "battle is now being fought and might very well become dangerous for the British forces themselves."

The radio added that a "reaction by the Italian forces is quite possible which will make the British pay very dearly."

It predicted the "episode" would turn to the "complete disadvantage of the British."

Italians: 3,655 dead, 7,538 wounded; 2,885 missing.

Africans: 862 dead; 2,474 wounded; 1,333 missing.

Albanians: 14 dead; 43 wounded; 20 missing.

Italian Attacked Canadian Ship.

BERLIN, Dec. 11 (A. P.).—DNB, the official German news agency, said today that it had received information that the 1,337-ton Canadian destroyer Saguenay was torpedoed and extensively damaged in the Atlantic by an Italian submarine—not German, as the agency reported yesterday.

DNB said the Fascist underseas raider entered a French Atlantic harbor undamaged after the attack.

London reported yesterday that the destroyer entered an English port for repairs. Twenty-one men were reported missing and eighteen wounded.

Italy Lists 70 Ships as Sunk

Says Total Includes 37 British Warships—Claims to Have Shot Down 667 Planes.

ROME, Dec. 11 (A. P.).—Italian forces were reported authoritatively today to have sunk thirty-seven British warships and thirty-three merchant vessels up to December 10. The reports also said that fifty-six British warships and forty-one merchant ships were damaged.

Twenty-three of the Italian navy's ships were sunk and four damaged, the authorities said. They did not give the merchant shipping losses.

Further, the Italians were said to have shot down 667 enemy planes. The loss of 110 Italian planes was acknowledged.

These British naval losses were reported:

Sunk—Four cruisers, thirteen destroyers and twenty submarines.

Damaged — Seven battleships, twenty-nine cruisers, eleven destroyers, six aircraft carriers and three submarines.

These Italian naval losses were listed:

Sunk—One cruiser, five destroyers, ten submarines, three light warships and four torpedo boats.

Damaged—Three battleships and one destroyer.

Italy's total war casualties numbered 18,824, including dead, wounded and missing, from June 11—the day she entered the war—until November 30, an official announcement said today. Of this number, the announcement said, 14,078 were Italians, 4,669 native African soldiers and seventy-seven Albanians.

The casualties were divided as follows:

460 ITALIAN PLANES CLAIMED

London Reports On Losses Since Fascists Entered War

London, Dec. 11 (AP)—The Air Ministry said tonight that 460 Italian airplanes had been destroyed since Italy's entry into the European war last June, while total British losses against the Italians were put at fifty-eight.

NAZIS REFUSE VISA TO U. S. OFFICIAL

Won't Let Envoy at Rome Enter Germany.

ROME, Dec. 11 (A. P.).—The German Government has refused a visa to Edward L. Reed, counselor of the United States embassy in Rome, who wished to return to the United States by way of Germany, a reliable source disclosed today.

Reed, who has been transferred to Washington, was told at the German embassy that the Nazi Government preferred that he not go through Germany, it was said.

Mr. Reed had planned to go to Stuttgart to take a plane next Monday for Lisbon, Portugal, because of the suspension of direct air service from Rome to Lisbon. He applied for a visa two weeks ago.

Mr. Reed has been Charge D'Affaires here since Ambassador William Phillips returned to the United States several months ago. The new Charge D'Affaires, Alexander Kirk, arrived Monday.

As a result of the delay caused by the refusal of a visa, Reed expects to miss Christmas with his family in the United States.

Mr. Reed is 45 years old, a native of Philadelphia and has been in the foreign service twenty years.

British Again Bombard Valona As Italians Retire in Albania

Fascist Troops Reported Moving Swiftly Up Coast Road—Athens Says Its Men Are Advancing on Two Flanks.

ATHENS, Dec. 11 (A. P.).—British bombers again have raided Valona, Italy's supply port on the Albanian coast, hitting a ship in the harbor, a munitions dump and some buildings, despite the presence of Italian fighting planes, an R. A. F. communique said today.

Valona, an ancient coastal town, is one of the principal ports of debarkation for the Italians.

The leader of the R. A. F. bombing squadron said that his flight had swooped from heavy clouds to find Italian planes guarding the city. The British dumped their bombs and roared back into the clouds before the Italians could strike. One British plane, he said, had a running fight with the Italians, but escaped.

Ialian Reserves Beaten.

Greek Government spokesmen said that details of fighting are slow in reaching Athens because many local engagements take place in rough, isolated mountain regions.

One dispatch said that bad weather, combined with British air activity, was making Italian airdromes in Albania useless for the present. Another report said that fighting still was going on north of Pogradetz, despite the resistance of the Italians.

"Nevertheless our troops have been able to occupy a mountainous area of the greatest importance, for the defense of which the Italians rushed re-enforcements by air," one report said.

These re-enforcements, according to the dispatch, were quickly attacked and compelled to withdraw.

In this particular area, the report said, skirted mountain units are taking over Italian machine-gun nests and forcing the Italians back steadily.

Italian Troops Fall Back.

Italian troops were reported still falling back steadily for a possible new stand on the heights around Chimara—almost half way up the coast from Porto Edda to Valona.

A Greek spokesman said that the Italians were moving rapidly along the coast road and north of fallen Argyrokastron and that heavy Greek blows had hastened their retreat through the tangle of snow-covered mountains between Pogradetz and Elbasani in middle Albania.

Although the positions were not disclosed, the Greeks apparently were already twice as deep in Albania on both flanks as the Italians were when they penetrated into Greece.

Active Along Entire Front.

The Greek High Command declared: "Our offensive activities continued all over the entire front. Strong enemy positions were occupied at bayonet point. The enemy suffered heavy losses. Three 100-milimeter guns have fallen into our hands."

A spokesman said that at certain strong points along the Italian line of retreat, rear guard forces offered resistance until they were driven out by Greek bayonet charges.

The Greeks were said to have captured an Italian officer and a number of Alpine troopers in the drive toward Elbasani, and to have found large quantities of abandoned war material at Delvino, wrested from the Italians between Porto Edda and Argyrokastron.

Rome Reports Nothing Notable.

ROME, Dec. 11 (A. P.).—The Italian High Command declared today that on the Greek front there were no operations yesterday worthy of particular notice.

Kodre Reported Captured.

LONDON, Dec. 11 (A. P.).—Military spokesmen declared here today that the Greeks have captured the town of Kodre, in the Tepelini area in Albania, giving them command of a lateral road and making the Italian problem of re-enforcement more difficult.

The Greeks have achieved a small advance near Progradetz in the north and a slow advance continues against the Italians in the central area, they said.

Knife-wielding Cretans Used Against Italians

ATHENS, Dec. 11 (A. P.).—Fierce knife-wielders from the wild hills of Crete, surpassed in toughness only by Greek's famous mountain troops, have been thrown into the Greek front line, it was disclosed today.

The Cretans already have engaged the retreating Italians, one dispatch from the front said, brandishing their long, gleaming knives which they prefer to bayonets in close fighting.

Their strength and ferocity seemed to terrify the Italians, the dispatch said.

It also was disclosed that Greek reservists who were living in Turkey when called to the colors are on their way to the front.

STEADY GAINS IN SOUTHERN AREA CLAIMED

Resistance In Premet Region Is Described As "Very Stubborn"

Counter-Attacking Fascists Declared Repelled With Serious Losses

[By the Associated Press]

Athens, Thursday, Dec. 12—Continued advances in southern Albania were claimed for Greek forces early today, but in the north, a spokesman indicated, picked Italian troops had succeeded in slowing the Greek offensive.

Last night's high command communique was brief. It said only:

"The advance continued on various sections of the front in spite of the fierce reactions of the enemy.

"Prisoners and booty have fallen into our hands."

No Raids On Greece

The Ministry of Home Security communique said merely:

"No raids on Greece today."

On their extreme left, north of fallen Agirocastro and Porto Edda, the spokesman said, the Greeks pushed ahead without even rear-guard action from an enemy retreating toward the Chimara Heights.

On snow-covered battle grounds of the north and central sections fierce fighting with heavy losses to the counter-attacking enemy was said to have failed to halt the Greeks.

Italian Resistance "Stubborn"

Italian resistance in the Premet region of the central sector was described as "very stubborn," but the Greeks were said to have occupied strategic heights in their drive toward Elbasani.

"More to the north, the enemy was thrown back from very strong positions 1,800 meters (about 6,000 feet) high which the enemy defended seriously. So great was the importance of this height that the Italians tried a counter-attack with choice troops, but they were repelled with serious losses," the spokesman added.

Cretan Troops In Action

Earlier, the Greek command, declared by a spokesman to be carrying out "important moves which are now in full development," sent shock troops armed with long knives into battle against the Italians today, and claimed uninterrupted advances in every sector.

These fresh units—dark and reckless men from the island of Crete—were declared in dispatches from the front to have terrified the Fascists with the ferocity of their charges.

30.24—636

From Turkey To The Front

The nature of the high command's new maneuver was not explained, but the use of these troops was made known simultaneously with a disclosure that Greek reservists who had been living in Turkey were now en route to the front.

From reports reaching here the picture of the day's fighting was one of many fierce local engagements spread out through the cold mountainous terrain of Albania. The heaviest fighting was reported from north of Pogradetz, where Fascist resistance was bitter.

Reinforcements Rushed By Air

"Nevertheless," said one report, "our troops have been able to occupy a mountainous area of the greatest importance for the defense of which the Italians rushed reinforcements by air."

These reinforcements, it was declared, themselves were forced to fall back, sometimes in the face of fire from Italian machine-gun nests seized by the Greeks.

Greek dispatches said that the continuing bad weather and the activities of the British air force had knocked the Italian airdromes in Albania substantially out of action for the time being.

New British Raid On Valona

The British themselves announced a new raid on Valona, an Italian supply port on the Albanian coast, in which it was declared that a ship in the harbor was hit along with a munitions dump and some buildings.

Every British plane participating was reported to have got away safely, despite the fact that Fascist fighter planes were patrolling the area.

Below Valona along the Adriatic coast the Italians appeared to be preparing to make a new major stand in the heights of Chimara.

Non-Resident Newsmen Must Leave Border Today

Bitolj, Yugoslavia, Dec. 11 (AP)—Police tonight ordered all non-resident newsmen covering the Italo-Greek war from the Yugoslavian border to leave the district tomorrow.

The step was explained as a measure to guard Yugoslavian neutrality. Local reporters, however, may continue to send out dispatches.

Resistance In North Reported Strengthened

Ohrid, Yugoslavia, Dec. 11 (AP)—Strengthened Italian resistance to a Greek attempt to extend their advances toward the Albanian town of Elbasani was reported today on the snow-clogged northern war front.

Information reaching the border said the Italians had counter-attacked and wiped out minor Greek gains northwest of Muskopole on the Devoli river; on the Skumbi river near the village of Malina, west of Pogradetz, and at Udiniste, about twelve miles north of Pogradetz on the Elbanani highway skirting Lake Ochrida.

Red Cross Aid For Greece

Washington, Dec. 11 (AP)—The American Red Cross announced today plans to ship $500,000 worth of war-relief supplies to Greece December 28. The shipment, of clothing, blankets, food and medical supplies, would be taken on at New York by a Greek vessel.

FOOD FOR BRITAIN WORRIES HUDSON

Situation "Just As Grim" As In 1917, Says Minister Of Agriculture

Immediate Overhauling Of Convoy System Urged In House Of Lords

[By the Associated Press]

London, Dec. 11—Britain's food situation was declared by R. S. Hudson, Minister of Agriculture, today to be "just as grim" as it was in the bleakest days of the World War when these islands came perilously close to starvation.

Hudson put this bleak picture before a farmers' meeting in a speech viewed by informed quarters principally as a pep talk. But the House of Lords, in debate on the same subject, heard declarations that the convoy system needed immediate overhauling to meet the Nazi threat to British shipping.

Navy's Task Now More Difficult

"The situation today is just as grim as when Mr. Lloyd George (the World War Prime Minister) started his intensive food-production campaign in 1917," Hudson told the farmers. "The Government is trying to adjust production so as to produce foodstuffs that will keep the people healthy as well as alive."

He said the British navy's task of defeating the German counter-blockade of submarines and long distance bombers now is "doubly or trebly" as difficult as in World War days.

Exhorting the farmers to increase home production, Hudson declared that farm labor would have to contribute to the steadily increasing demands of the armed services and that, except for conscientious objectors sent to farms, additional labor would have to be provided by English women.

"Serious" But Not "Desperate"

In the House of Lords, Lord Strabo', Labor peer, said the situation was "serious" but not "desperate." There are large accumulations of stores, he explained, and heavy cargoes "have come through unscathed."

Lord Woolton, Minister of Food, took an even more optimistic view, telling a private all-party meeting of M. P.'s tonight that Britain "has satisfactory stocks of wheat and other commodities" as well as a two-year supply of coffee.

Not Contradictory, Says Hudson

He said no further rationing of milk is contemplated and, in answer to a question, asserted he saw no likelihood of having to resort to synthetic foods.

Later, Hudson explained to the British Press Association that his and Lord Woolton's statements were not contradictory.

The Food Minister, Hudson said, was referring to the present position, while he was looking ahead to the problem of a year hence if sinkings by U-boats continue at the present rate.

Morrison Replies To Hitler

Apart from these discussions on one of Britain's most immediate problems, Herbert Morrison, Home Secretary, in a speech which amounted to a reply to Hitler's attack yesterday on the "have" nations, outlined his broad hopes for a cooperative post-war world "guaranteed by an international police air force" in which "never again shall it be possible for a thug with a bomber force to terrorize a continent."

Morrison, addressing a strangely mixed audience of society figures and workers at a Dorchester national defense meeting, said "many people would be ready to listen if Germany could hold out a convincing promise of a Europe enriched by economic unity and pacified by the removal of national rivalries."

He rejected by implication, however, any hope of peace in a Nazi-dominated world.

Would Revise Convoy System

Lord Strabolgi asserted before the peers that the present convoy system, modeled after that employed in the World War, needs overhauling; that "there is always the danger of relying too much on methods which were successful in the last war."

Lord Templemore said "energetic measures have been and are being taken" by the navy and air force against Hitler's surface and aerial raiders. He said the fifty destroyers obtained from the United States "will be of valuable assistance" in this direction.

Calls For More Naval Officers

The Admiralty, even as the debate was held, appealed for officers to expand the naval forces, asking for applications by mercantile officers, qualified engineers, yachting men, civilian air pilots, executives, former naval officers and medical and dental practitioners. The age limit was fixed at 55 years.

Most of the posts will be filled by men now serving as ratings (sailors), but the extensive recruiting campaign was aimed at obtaining as many volunteers as possible from civil life.

BRITON TELLS REASONS FOR FOOD SHIP BAN

Cross Says It's A Question Of "Their Stomachs Or Our Lives"

Tells U. S. Nazis Must Feed People In Countries They Have Occupied

[By the Associated Press]

London, Dec. 11—Ronald H. Cross, Minister of Shipping, said in a broadcast to the United States tonight that food could be sent to people now under German rule "only at the cost of the lives of British men, women and children."

The choice, he said, is between "their stomachs or our lives," and added, "we put the lives of our own people first."

"Germany has got to feed these people," he continued, "because it suits the German book that they should be fed, but it would suit Germany far better that somebody else should undertake the task and leave Germany with a greater margin of foodstuffs for her own use.

Sees War Prolonged

"And the greater the margin of foodstuffs at Germany's disposal, the longer she can carry on the war."

The British Government's object, Cross said, was to starve German industry, not the German people. The more vegetable fats the Reich had, he asserted, the more she'd be able to spare for high explosives.

"So the choice lies between hungry Germans—women and children included—and the lives and limbs of our own people—women and children included."

Ask Reich For Solution, Secretary Hull Suggests

Washington, Dec. 11 (AP)—Secretary Hull suggested today that persons interested in the relief of Euroge might do well to approach Germany and see what it would do to help solve the problem.

Hull commented on the general relief situation at a press conference, after Great Britain had refused to allow food to go through the blockade to German-conquered territory.

The United States, Hull said, was studying ways in which it might apply its policy of relieving suffering in all parts of the world.

Wonders About Deprivation

He suggested indirectly, however, that some one might approach the German Government on its attitude, to see to what extent, if any, it had deprived populations in occupied territory and if so whether it would be disposed to make a contribution to what he described as the immemorial custom of nations where one country conquers another.

Norman H. Davis, chairman of the Red Cross, disclosed that his organization is "exploring the possibility" of sending into unoccupied France "such aid as milk and vitamin concentrates for distribution to children."

Davis brought this out in his report to the annual Red Cross board meeting in which he stated that $13,792,000 in war relief has been sent eleven nations in the present European and Asiatic conflicts.

War Relief Oversubscribed

Davis reported that the $20,000,000 war relief campaign, begun May 10, was oversubscribed. "To date $21,588,000 has been collected with some additional reported contributions still to be received," he said.

The Red Cross announced plans to ship $500,000 worth of war clothing, blankets, food and other relief supplies to Greece December 28.

Meanwhile, it was learned that Finland is seeking a loan from the United States Government for the purchase of food and other supplies in this country. Some estimates placed the amount desired at from $8,000,000 to $10,000,000.

World Air Force Envisaged for Peace After War

Morrison Would Prevent Thug With Bombers From Terrorizing Continent

LONDON, Dec. 11 (AP).—Herbert Morrison, Home Secretary, in a speech which amounted to a reply to Fuehrer Adolf Hitler's oral attack yesterday on the "have" nations, envisioned today a co-operative post-war world, "guaranteed by an international police air force," in which "never again shall it be possible for a thug with a bomber force to terrorize a continent." By implication, however, he rejected any hope of peace in a world dominated by Nazi Germany.

Morrison said "many people would be ready to listen" if Germany "could hold out a convincing promise of a Europe enriched by economic unity and pacified by the removal of national rivalries." He added, however, that "the civilized world gasps at each revelation of the cold ferocity with which the Nazis are prepared to treat peoples whom they dominate." He spoke to a national defense meeting at Dorchester.

"Slave Plantation" in Continent

"The new European military order is a vast military monopoly," Morrison declared. "The organization which the Nazis offer Europe is that of a slave plantation.

"Unless this war ends with a preponderance of military striking power in the hands of the deemocracies, Europe can look forward to no constructive period from war to a better and permanent peace.

"I conceive us to be aiming at a co-operative international system, guaranteed by an international police air force. Never again shall it be possible for a thug with a bomber force to terrorize a continent, to smash homes and cities and crush the innocent bodies of women and children, to blast into powder the fruits of man's toil and the monuments of his greatness.

"Nations must be ready to sacrifice many of their independent rights, and they must feel genuinely moved to work together to create a better life for their citizens. It is not enough to abolish tariff walls and competitive armaments. These things are merely negations of evil. We need to go beyond them and find positive means to good."

Morrison envisoned a postwar world in which "class privilege will be indefensible and intolerable" and monopolies will be revised and adapted to the public good.

"Co-operative International Plan"

"I see no reasonable hope of freedom from the horrors of war until we can achieve the conscious and deliberate mobilization of our economic resources under a co-operative international plan," he said.

"If this spirit of sacrifice is not carried forward from war into peace, I am thoroughly convinced that the whole of our civilized social order will be endangered and that the whole world will stagger blindly into new wars or civil commotion at home and abroad.

"There must be no private monopoly, if monopolies there be. They must serve the state. We must look forward to a society that is rid of the twin pests of extreme riches and extreme poverty.'

He admitted that the postwar period might be one of the most dangerous in British history, but said he believed the British could make the change in "an orderly and constructive way."

LONDON CONSIDERS DAMAGE INSURANCE

Compulsory Contributions to Be Basis of Plan.

LONDON, Dec. 11 (A. P.).—The Government announced today a war damage bill containing a compulsory contributory scheme of compensation for damage to all buildings.

Other provisions of the measure are a compulsory scheme of insurance for business assets, such as plant machinery and office equipment, and a voluntary scheme of insurance for all personal chattels and furniture.

The Government is working out a compensation scheme for death and injury, which is to be announced later.

The estimated value of buildings to be insured is between $24,000,000,000 and $32,000,000,000. The plan provides for protection up to next fall, two years from the outbreak of the war.

Officials expected that contributions under the Government's plan would yield $800,000,000. The Treasury would meet any excess between $800,000,000 and $1,600,000,000.

If the total compensation exceeds $1,600,000,000, the Government would pay half the excess and the other half would be met by an increase in the contributions.

Under the Government's plan the premium to be paid on all property would be 10 per cent of the rateable value, estimated income on property for tax purposes, each year for five years.

The rate of premium under the voluntary scheme for personal property insurance is 7½ per cent a year.

Hitler Thanks Designers Of German Munitions

BERLIN, Dec. 11 (A. P.).—Adolf Hitler received a delegation of inventors, scientists and engineers at the Chancellery today and expressed his appreciation of their work in designing German arms.

Der Fuehrer, in his public address yesterday, thanked workers in munition factories for their efforts.

Today's delegation was headed by Dr. Fritz Todt, Armament and Munitions Minister, and General Field Marshal Wilhelm Keitel.

Teaches Blinded Raid Victims

Ex-officer Who Lost Own Sight in Boer War Carries On New Work in England.

LONDON, Dec. 11 (A. P.).—Each day along the walks of Long Meadow, the beautiful estate of a blinded veteran of the Boer War, a procession of men and women wind their shuffling, sometimes stumbling, way.

They are a new class of blind, created by a new war, using the new methods of bombing large cities from the air. They are civilians suffering a disablement once almost exclusively the risk of a front line soldier in wartime. The National Institute for the Blind is training them to resume their places in society—places from which they were literally bombed out.

Of twenty-eight men and women at Long Meadow, at Goring on the placid Thames, all earned their living before they were blinded. All but three were married, had homes and a variety of interests.

Plays Golf and Fishes.

As soon as they left the hospitals they came to Long Meadow and under the tutelage of its owner, the seventy-six-year-old Capt. Sir Beachcroft Towse, blinded himself by a bullet in the Boer war, they began to learn again to walk, to eat and to dress.

Almost brusque with outsiders, Sir Beachcroft is equally as gentle with the pupils he leads about the spacious estate which he threw open at the start of the war for the express purpose of rehabilitating the blind.

Bitterness Must First Go.

Patiently he walks them about, casually tells them that most of the furniture at Long Meadow has been made at his own carpentry bench, demonstrates his skill with golf clubs on his private course, and thus builds up the idea that blindness does not necessarily mean the end of a useful pleasurable life.

When the first bitterness passes, the patients become more sociable. Blind assistants help them plan their lives anew.

All the men invariably want work. They are sent to industrial and commercial schools and, once trained, are assigned to work in a factory or office along with other sightless employees. Usually the women turn to stenography, or relearn the household tasks they knew in a brighter day.

Blinded children are sent to one of three "Sunshine homes" to learn to live in darkness. Normal childish optimism helps in teaching them.

There was a girl of 5, just out of the hospital, being trained in manual dexterity. She laughed merrily when the teacher told her her she had fit pieces of wood into their correct holes in a board. If she fell while running about the garden, she never whimpered; and she seemed to enjoy being told about sunshine.

But the drone of a far-off plane suddenly set her crying.

NAZIS RAID LONDON AND MIDLANDS CITY

Fierce Assault On Town In Western England Tapers Off Toward Morning

Bombs End Two-Day Lull In Capital—City On Alert Long After Midnight

[By the Associated Press]

London, Thursday, Dec. 12—Nazi raiders struck at a west Midlands area in one-a-minute tempo late last night, but tapered off to occasional sorties by individual planes early today.

Authorities said all fires set by bombs in the section had been extinguished by midnight. A terrific anti-aircraft barrage kept the raiders high.

The attack was centered on a community which had been left alone for more than a week.

Bombs End London's 2-Day Lull

Bombs also broke London's two-day-and-two-night respite last evening, but toward morning there was a lull, and even the city's anti-aircraft fell silent.

Later the anti-aircraft guns began booming again and the city remained under the alert.

In the town in the Midlands a bus was hit, several homes were destroyed and there were a number of casualties, some of them fatal. There were at least four instances of people trapped in wreckage. Many fires sprang up, but were reported brought quickly under control.

There was a report that several other west Midlands areas were under attack.

Weather Limits R. A. F. Raids

Here in London, heavy anti-aircraft fire broke a calm which, save for an alert caused by the appearance of two reconnaissance planes before dawn today, had existed since early Monday.

Bad weather on the Continent had given London and the rest of Britain a respite and likewise had limited British operations against enemy bases in Germany and occupied France.

The Air Ministry, however, reported that R. A. F. flyers bombed railway junctions, an airdrome, a power station and docks in German-held territory.

Nazi War Plants In Paris Area

A possible indication of the widening of such operations appeared in the Ministry of Economic Warfare report that French automobile and airplane factories, particularly in the Paris area, were working full blast in behalf of the German war machine.

[Associated Press Editor's Note—The British Government's declared policy has been to concentrate attacks on plants, ships, and bases operated for the Nazis whether they are in Germany proper or occupied territory.]

The ministry's report said the distinction between occupied and unoccupied France is mainly fiction. It asserted that 15,000 French workers had been sent to man German war factories and that in occupied France, Germany controlled 95 per cent. of France's coal and steel output, 70 per cent. of her mineral oil, and 70 per cent. of her motor, dye and chemical industries.

GERMANS RENEW RAIDS ON LONDON

46-Hour Lull Ends With Day and Night Alerts.

LONDON, Dec. 11 (A. P.).—The first night alert since Sunday's heavy dawn-to-dusk assault sounded here early tonight and soon raiders droned over the capital.

Hardly had the wail of the sirens died out before anti-aircraft batteries broke the longest lull London as had since the air siege began.

Other raiders were reported over Liverpool, one northwest town and another in the southwest.

Earlier today some German planes, apparently mostly on scouting missions, were reported over England and London had a brief alarm—the first in more than forty-six hours. Two planes were heard high over the city before dawn, but they veered off when the anti-aircraft guns opened fire.

The lull still was unexplained, except by the possibility of bad weather over the Nazi air bases. The Press Association observed it would be a big mistake to "imagine anything more optimistic."

Berlin Reports Heavy Blows

BERLIN, Dec. 11 (A.).—Heavy blows were struck tonight by German raiders against important military objectives "somewhere in the (English) Midlands," informed persons stated here.

Hits on a factory between Canterbury and Folkestone in attacks on England last night and bombing of the port area at Frinton-on-Sea were reported by the high command today.

The assaults were said to have been made in the face of bad weather, which limited German aerial activity for the most part to "armed reconnaissance."

The communique said a merchant ship was attacked with bombs and gunfire by planes off Harwich on the English east coast.

German long-range batteries were said to have fired on "enemy vessels" in the Channel, then, after dusk, "successfully shelled military objectives of the Dover coastal region."

British bombers flew over Nazi-occupied territory and southwestern Germany during the night and dropped explosive and incendiary bombs, the high command said, from the air. Long range gun positions in the vicinity of Cap Gris Nez were attacked.

Two British planes failed to return from the attacks.

Incendiary Bombs Dropped.

BERLIN, Dec. 11 (A. P.).—A number of British bombers flew over Nazi-occupied territory and southwestern Germany during the night and dropped explosive and incendiary bombs, the High Command said today.

One children's home in a southwestern German city was considerably damaged, it was stated, and buildings in some localities of Eifel were slightly damaged. Two civilians were severely injured in the Reich and a child was killed and two civilians injured in the occupied region, the communique said.

There were no German plane losses, while two British aircraft were shot down, it was stated.

Germans Assail 'False' Version Of Hitler Talk

Say U. S. Twisted Contrast of Work Vs. Gold to Mean Nazis Seek World Rule

BERLIN, Dec. 11 (AP).—Authorized sources expressed grave disappointment today over the reaction in the United States to Fuehrer Adolf Hitler's speech yesterday to munitions workers. They said it had been misinterpreted to mean that Germany wanted to defeat the world.

These sources pointed out that Der Feuhrer merely pitted the German capacity for work against gold giving this translation of his remarks on this point: "The German capacity for work is our gold. It is our capital. And with this gold I defeat any other power in the world."

(The German text was, "Und die Deutsche Arbeitskraft, das ist unser Gold, das ist unser Kapital, und mit diesem Gold schlage ich jede andere Macht der Welt." The verb form here, "schlage," carries neither "can" nor "shall" as an auxiliary. Also, jede" can be rendered "every" as well as "any.")

The authorized sources said that, far from glorifying conquest, Hitler unfolded a picture of post-war peaceful pursuits when all German energies would be devoted to works of peace and culture.

Nazi Rail Junctions Bombed

German Airports, Docks and Power Plant Also Raided by R. A. F. Flyers.

LONDON, Dec. 11 (A. P.).—Railway junctions, airdromes, a power station and docks in Germany and German-occupied territory were attacked by British bombers last night, the Air Ministry announced today.

The German "invasion" ports along the English Channel were also raided, the Ministry said, after noting that the weather generally was unfavorable for operations

NAZIS HAIL BOOTY TAKEN IN FRANCE

Raw Materials Seized There Cited by Expert.

BERLIN, Dec. 11 (A. P.).—Germany is better off than a year ago for raw materials, Dr. Franz Reuter, economic expert in the supreme command, maintained today in a talk to foreign correspondents.

"There's no shortage whatever in any essential raw material," he added. "The reason is twofold: namely, our own increased production and our booty, especially in France."

He asserted that Germany fell heir to 30,000 tons of copper at one French production center alone, that 125,000 tons of manganese ore were found in Luxemburg and that so much rubber was taken in France that the Germans still are sorting out defective tires.

"But we are in no wise dependent on booty," Dr. Reuter continued, adding that synthetic rubber production was first class and that aluminum production had been increased by the availability of French and Norwegian bauxite.

LONDON, Dec. 11 (A. P.).—The British Ministry of Economic Warfare stated today that in the occupied territory of France Germany already has 95 per cent of France's coal and steel output, 70 per cent of her mineral oil, and 70 per cent of her motor industry, chemical and dye industries.

Also credited to the Germans are 80 per cent of France's wheat storage and the whole area where sugar is grown.

The Ministry said that French

banks had been instructed to provide Germans with a list of negotiable securities, which are to be exchanged for paper marks.

Narvik Admiral Gets High Naval Post

LONDON, Dec. 11 (A. P.).—Vice-Admiral William Whitworth has been appointed second in command of the British Home Fleet, the Admiralty announced today. He directed the second attack on Narvik, Norway, last April from aboard the battleship Warspite.

Acting Vice-Admiral Henry D. Pridham-Wippell was appointed second in command of the Mediterranean Fleet.

LONDON EDITOR FINED

Publishers Also Pay for Censorship 'Mistake.'

LONDON, Dec. 11 (A. P.).—The editor and publisher of Reynolds News, a London Sunday newspaper, were today fined £15 ($60) each and ordered to pay £10 ($40) costs on their conviction on two charges of violating the censorship regulations.

A third charge, involving an article concerning the "defense and fortifications of Malta," was withdrawn for lack of evidence.

The other two charges involved stories about the alleged sowing of mines in the Rhine and the movements of British aircraft in the Mediterranean. The magistrate accepted the prosecution's view that the case was not serious and that a mistake had been made.

In connection with the Malta article, the Government's case was based on the fact that the censor had made some cuts in a story submitted for censorship in the paper's London edition after it had apepared in full in the Scottish edition of August 11. The paper contended that the matter on which the article was based had been passed by the censor on previous occasions.

Asks More Evacuations

LONDON, Dec. 11 (AP).—Malcolm MacDonald, Health Minister, has appealed to "the many thousands" in London who have not registered their children for withdrawal to safer areas to do so immediately. "They should certainly not be put off doing so by the short succession of comparatively quiet nights in London," Mr. MacDonald said. He also urged diptheria inoculation of children.

ANDREWS AT LONDON

Irish Partition Pact May Be Price of Naval Bases.

BELFAST, Dec. 11 (A. P.).—J. M. Andrews, Premier of Northern Ireland, is expected back tonight from London, where he has been since Monday, conferring with Prime Minister Winston Churchill and other British Cabinet members, an official announcement disclosed today. It was his first visit to London since becoming Premier to succeed the late Lord Craigavon.

LONDON, Dec. 11 (A. P.).—Official spokesmen maintained silence today concerning the visit here of Premier J. M. Andrews of Northern Ireland, but it was disclosed that he had been received by King George and had had cordial talks with Prime Minister Churchill, Home Secretary Herbert Morrison and other ministers.

It was considered significant that he came to London at a time when Britain, harassed by German U-boat and air attacks on shipping, would find southern Irish coast bases highly advantageous. Some sections of the press have suggested that such bases may be obtained if an understanding was reached between Northern Ireland and Eire on the issue of partition.

Addis Ababa Railway Bombed

LONDON, Dec. 11 (AP)—Reuters, British news agency, in a dispatch from Aden today, said the Addis Ababa-Jibuti railway was believed damaged badly in a Royal Air Force raid on a station near the French Somaliland-Ethiopian frontier. It said the raid was announced in a communiqué.

JEWISH REFUGEE SHIP TOLL

55 Known Dead, 190 Missing, Questioner In Commons Told

London, Dec. 11 (AP)—R. A. Butler, Under Secretary for Foreign affairs, told a questioner in the House of Commons today that the sinking of the Jewish refugee liner Patria resulted in fifty-five known deaths, with 190 persons missing.

The Patria, carrying 1,711 refugee Jews, exploded and sank in the harbor of Haifa, Palestine, November 25. At that time it was reported twenty-two were known dead and twenty-five were injured.

British 'Who's Who' Still Includes Hitler

LONDON, Dec. 11 (AP).—The 1941 British "Who's Who," out tomorrow, will still list Adolf Hitler among its 40,000 "men and women most in the public eye today."

Although no one here can telephone to him, because of the censorship, the book reveals his telephone number is still 11 6191. His addresses are listed as Wilhelmstrasse 77, Berlin, W8, and Obersalzberg, Berchtesgaden, Bavaria.

SABOTAGE IN SYRIA

Anti-Vichy Actions Also Reported in Lebanon.

JERUSALEM, Dec. 11 (A. P.).—Widespread sabotage, centered mainly in France's military establishments throughout the mandated territories of Syria and Lebanon, were reported here today to have followed the recent appeal to Free Frenchmen made by Gen. Charles de Gaulle, fighting with Britain.

The greatest damage, was said to have occurred at Ryak, the biggest military airdrome in Syria, where a number of bombing and fighting planes were made practically useless.

The Government of Vichy, it also was reported, is sending 650 officers from France to take over positions in the civil and defense establishments, with orders to act quickly against "defaulters" and prevent any uprising which might follow Axis military reverses.

"Special service officers," attached to the Italian Armistice Commission, now are stationed at all border control stations in Lebanon and Syria, and all persons coming from Turkey, Palestine and Iraq or leaving for those countries are examined.

Nazis Explain: British Are Whistling in Dark

BERLIN, Dec. 11 (AP).—Authorized sources expressed the opinion today that British claims of successes in Egypt and Greek claims in Albania merely proved that the British position was precarious.

"They exaggerate mere episodes into tragedies," these German said. "They forget that prisoners taken are a mi[nor] tion of what England lost during a single day in the western campaign last summer.

"The Axis course, both military and economic, remains absolutely uninfluenced by these episodes."

ARMY CONTROL OVER RUMANIAN LIFE TIGHTENED

Decrees Follow Parades Of Picked Nazi Troops Through Cities

Right Granted To Militarize Any Institution Or Corporation

[By the Associated Press]

Bucharest, Dec. 11—The army tightened its control over nearly every phase of Rumanian life today with a series of emergency decrees by Premier Ion Antonescu.

The decrees came quickly after picked German troops had paraded through the streets of Bucharest, Brasov and other cities, and after the official press had warned that the nation must take seriously its promises of military aid for the Axis powers.

[Reports from abroad told of increasing tension between the two branches of the Iron Guardists. In other Balkan capitals the decrees were interpreted as designed to curb Iron Guard powers, with Antonescu pictured as believing that the army alone was capable of restoring order in Rumania.]

Can Militarize Any State

The increased powers granted the army include:

The right to militarize any State or private institution or corporation and the immediate militarization of the gendarmerie and police throughout the nation.

A demand that army officers immediately resign either from the Iron Guard or the army.

All commissioned and non-commissioned officers must disclose their political affiliations.

Troops To Get More Food

Antonescu also consolidated all war veterans organizations with the purpose of forming a strong bloc behind the army and increased the soldiers' food allowance from 7 to 10 cents a day.

Henceforth, only pictures of King Mihai may be displayed in military offices.

Tonight an Antonescu decree forbade Rumanians to listen to foreign broadcasts in public places. Nothing was said about radios in private homes.

Yugoslav-Hungarian Accord Expected Today

Belgrade, Yugoslavia, Dec. 11 (AP)—Informed sources said tonight that negotiations between the Hungarian and Yugoslav Foreign Ministers had reached the state where the signing of a pact of friendship and consultation might be expected, probably tomorrow.

Previously, it had been thought that conclusion of the agreement would await a visit to Budapest by Alksander Cincar-Markovic, Yugoslavian Foreign Minister, but it was said subsequently that this visit might be postponed until January, when there is a possibility of negotiations for a non-aggression pact.

Diplomatic circles predicted that Belgrade would be the host, possibly next week, to another Foreign Minister—Ivan Popoff of Bulgaria—but of this there was no official confirmation.

Held Part Of Axis Plan

Some political quarters saw a Hungarian-Yugoslavian rapprochement as forming the cornerstone of the Axis plan for a "new Europe." To this, Hungary is committed; Yugoslavia has offered to cooperate provided her independence and territorial integrity are not endangered.

Among the day's unconfirmed reports was one that Sukru Saracoglu, the Turkish Foreign Minister, would confer shortly with Popoff.

All this was interpreted by some neutral diplomats here as evidence of an Axis desire to bring Yugoslavia and eventually Bulgaria and Turkey closer to the tri-power alliance without asking Bulgaria and Turkey to join up outright.

Nationwide Blackout Canceled by Turkey

ANKARA, Dec. 11 (A. P.).—Evidence that the Turkish Government is confident that spreading of the Balkan war has been averted for the present was seen in an order, effective tonight, canceling the nationwide blackout in effect for weeks.

Meanwhile severe floods in European Turkey have forced abandonment of nearly 2,000 homes and suspension of international railway traffic. The floods were described as the worst in fifty years.

Vichy Authorizes New Coins.

VICHY, Dec. 11 (A. P.).—New French coins of five, ten and twenty francs in value, bearing a likeness of Chief of State Philippe Petain, have been authorized by the Government.

Gen. Weygand Arrives At Sfax, Tunisia

VICHY, Dec. 11 (A. P.).—Gen. Maxime Weygand, French military leader in Africa, arrived today in Sfax, Tunisia, from Sousse, it was announced here. He had arrived in Tunis on Monday.

Sfax is about 125 air-line miles from the Tunisian border with Italian Libya.

Children in Russia Will Stage War Games

MOSCOW, Dec. 11 (A. P.).—Soviet school children from 9 to 15 years old will engage in vast war games with wooden rifles, machine guns and cannon in their winter vacation, it was announced today. The vacation war games will be staged under the direction of the Pioneers movement of the Communist party.

Steinhardt Returns To Post in Moscow

MOSCOW, Dec. 11 (A. P.).—United States Ambassador Laurence A. Steinhardt returned today from a ten-day vacation in Sweden.

RUSSIANS ON ALERT

General Says They Must Stay Mobilized in West.

MOSCOW, Dec. 11 (A. P.).—Gen. G. K. Zhukov, commander of the Kiev military district, told a Communist party conference today that the Red Army in the western border area should stay constantly mobilized "so that no tricks of foreign enemies can catch us unprepared."

Urging intensive work to increase the Soviet defensive capacity, the General said: "We shall educate our fighters always to feel the deepest hatred and contempt for an enemy, no matter how he is disguised.

"The Kiev special military district is a frontier district and we are honored by the party government which intrusted to us the defense of these holy borders of the Soviet Union," Gen. Zhukov said. "We must work to make all units of the district the best in the Red army within the shortest possible period."

The Soviet press published Adolf Hitler's address briefly and without comment. Pravda gave it forty-six lines on the back page. Prime Minister Winston Churchill's House of Commons speech of yesterday was published at the same length just below Hitler's.

SAROJINI NAIDU FREED

Released From Jail in India Due to Ill Health.

BOMBAY, Dec. 11 (A. P.).—Mrs. Sarojini Naidu, former president of the National Congress of Justice, who was arrested December 1 under the defense of India act, has been released because of ill health, it was officially announced today.

She was arrested with about 100 others after an extended individual civil disobedience campaign under the guidance of Mohandas K. Gandhi.

Dutch Destroyer Off Cuba Coast Captures Fleeing Nazi Freighter

U. S. Navy Says the Van Kinsbergen Is Holding the Rhein, Which Tried to Run Blockade From Tampico; Attempted Scuttling Failed

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Dec. 11.—The Navy Department announced tonight that the German freighter Rhein, which slipped out of Tampico, Mexico, on Nov. 29 to run the British blockade, was "in possession of the 1,760-ton Dutch destroyer Van Kinsbergen this morning off the coast of Cuba."

The Nazi crew attempted to scuttle their ship, the Navy announcement said, before abandoning her. Another source had reported earlier that a Dutch warship "intercepted" the Rhein and that fire was observed aboard the freighter.

The location of the Rhein's interception apparently was somewhere in the vicinity of the place the British cruiser Diomede on Sunday took the 5,033-ton German freighter Idarwald, which left Tampico with the Rhein. The latter was a vessel of 6,031 tons. The Idarwald was scuttled by her crew.

The last word heard from the Rhein was a radio message sent several hours after she slipped out of Tampico, where she took refuge with the Idarwald early in the war. That message said: "Rhein being followed by warships."

The source which spoke of the Rhein's interception was unable to say whether it occurred within a day or two after the ship left port. Fire was observed on the freighter, he said, when the Dutch warship closed in, but he could not say whether the freighter sank or was taken as a prize.

The dash toward a German port which the Rhein started on Nov. 29 was the freighter's second attempt to slip through the British naval cordon around Western Hemisphere ports. On Nov. 15 the Rhein, with the Idarwald and the Phrygia, left Tampico to run the blockade, but they sighted unidentified warships a few hours later. The Rhein and the Idarwald scurried back to Tampico, but the Phrygia's crew scuttled her in the belief that the naval units sighted were members of a British patrol squadron.

The news that one or more Dutch naval units were working with the British in patrolling western Atlantic waters came as a surprise. There had been no previous indication that the Netherlands Navy was represented in New World operations.

Efforts to Escape Fail

MEXICO CITY, Dec. 11 (AP)—With the capture of the Rhein, the efforts of all Nazi vessels to escape from the refuge of Mexican ports has ended in failure except one—and that ship's fate remains unknown.

Heading the list was the huge passenger liner Columbus, 32,581 tons, the third largest German merchant ship. She was fired and scuttled by her crew in the Atlantic last year after being overtaken by a British warship and her crew was taken to New York by a United States cruiser.

The others have been scuttled at sea, captured or forced to flee into a neutral harbor except the freighter Havelland, which sailed this year from Manzanillo and has not been reported since.

Engine trouble halted the Orinoco when she attempted to leave Tampico, Nov. 15 with the Idarwald, Rhein and Phrygia and she put back into port. She is still there. The Phrygia was scuttled when, her captain said, he thought he was about to be captured by enemy ships.

Classified as Training Ship

The Netherland warship Van Kingsbergen, which captured the Nazi freighter Rhein is one of the latest and most modern in the navy. She is classified as a training vessel of 1,760 tons with the characteristics of a destroyer.

Constructed in January, 1939, the ship carries armament that consists of four 4.7 inch guns, four 40-mm anti-aircraft guns on twin mounts and four 12.7 mm anti-aircraft guns also on twin mounts. The vessel, furthermore, is registered as having only a slight protective armor, probably confined to an armored deck and control tower. Her normal complement is 190 men and she is capable of 25.5 knots.

Freighter Runs British Blockade, Nazis Report

New York, Dec. 11 (AP)—The small, fast German freighter Helgoland, 2,947 tons, which left Barranquilla, Colombia, October 28 without clerance papers, has arrived safely in an unnamed German port after a dash through the British blockade, the German radio reported tonight in a broadcast heard by NBC.

The motorship, built in 1939, was from Hamburg and took refuge in Colombian waters when the war began.

A radio message received December 4 in Bogota, Colombia, by the wife of the radio operator aboard her said he had arrived in Hamburg, indicating the ship might have reached that port.

Reports 3 British Ships As Having Been Sunk

Maritime Register List Includes La Brea, Formerly Of Baltimore-West Coast Trade

New York, Dec. 11 (AP)—The sinking of three British ships, one of them the 6,665-ton former American tanker La Brea, was reported today by the New York Maritime Register.

The La Brea, which traded between Baltimore and San Francisco before her sale to London interests last May, was torpedoed August 24 off Scotland. The master and fireman were killed. The crew landed in the Hebrides.

The 4,608-ton freighter Dalcairn was torpedoed and sunk while in convoy about 300 miles off Ireland. Planes bombed and fired the Foylebank, 5,582-ton freighter, last July.

Anti-Nazi Rumbling in Holland

Reaction to Ban on Queen's Name in Schools Brings Appeal for Calm.

AMSTERDAM (Via Berlin), Dec. 11 (A. P.).—The purging of all references to Queen Wilhelmina in Dutch schoolbooks has caused such reaction in Holland that it was necessary today for Dr. J. Van Dam, the new Secretary-General of Education, to broadcast an appeal for calm.

A number of books containing speeches and pictures of the Queen and other members of the house of Orange were withdrawn from the schools in a formal campaign to wipe out patriotic propaganda for the exiled ruling family.

Dr. Van Dam urged pupils to end political disputes even when there is a serious difference of opinion, and also directed an appeal for calm to students who engaged in protest strikes against the dismissal of Jewish professors—strikes which resulted in the Germans closing the universities of Leyden and Delft and the fixing of an earlier Christmas vacation date for students at Amsterdam University.

What New Rules Forbid.

Deep differences of opinion have appeared between the National Socialist groups and older persons, who still favor the exiled royal house.

New rules forbid any offense to the German Reich, army or people and any propaganda for Marxism, the League of Nations, Queen Wilhelmina or the House of Orange. The singing of the national anthem "Wilhelmus" also is forbidden. Pictures of the Queen, however, still hang in school rooms and most public buildings.

Mr. Van Dam's program includes improvement in teaching the Dutch and German languages and an exchange in teaching methods between Germany and Holland. He also promised to emphasize sports, popular in Germany's educational system, but hitherto neglected in Holland.

Hostilities Increase On Indo-China Border

TOKIO, Dec. 11 (A. P.).—A Domei dispatch from Hanoi, French Indo-China, said today that hostilities were increasing along the border of French Indo-China and Thailand (Siam), with considerable aerial activity and artillery action.

French authorities, Domei said, were reported willing to open negotiations for a peaceful settlement, but were determined to oppose any hostile action.

INDO-CHINA REVOLT RAISES NEW FEAR

May Give Japan Excuse To Move South To Flank Singapore, Observers Say

Travelers Reaching Manila Give Uncensored Account Of Native Uprisings

[By the Associated Press]

Manila, Dec. 11—French Indo-China, having yielded northern footholds to Japanese armed forces, now is fighting to put down native uprisings, which may give Japan an excuse to move into the south to flank British Singapore, a step toward control of the Dutch East Indies.

Faced by increased Japanese pressure for economic concessions, at least, and armed conflict with Thailand (Siam)—aside from the serious native risings—only a handful of French officers and administrators appear to be holding the colony together and under the power of the Vichy government.

Seems No Secret To Japan

Theirs is the task of keeping up the grip of a defeated colonial power on one of her most important possessions—an area of about 286,000 square miles with a population of about 23,000,000 natives.

This, broadly, was the reliable report as of late November, brought today to Manila by travelers. It did not pass through the strict censorship which the French have imposed, apparently in hope of concealing the situation from Japan, lest it move her to action.

[Associated Press Editor's Note—Nevertheless, the Japanese seem to be informed. Domei said today Maj. Gen. Raishiro Sumita, head of the Japanese military mission in Indo-China, would go shortly to Saigon to study the situation in "the disturbed region."]

4 Hours By Air From Singapore

Saigon, with one of the best airfields in the Far East and only four hours by plane from the British naval base at Singapore, would be virtually defenseless in case of attack. Nearly all the south Indo-China forces now are on the Thailand border.

American observers suppose that any Japanese move also would be directed at the colony's big naval base at Camranh. It is expected that British warships would bombard the air field and naval base if the Japanese took over.

One factor in the situation is the split between de Gaullist and pro-Vichy sympathizers in the ranks of army leaders as well as civilian officials.

20 Major Uprisings

The administration in November was trying to put down the worst native uprisings since 1937. Within a radius of one hundred miles of Saigon at least twenty major uprisings, officially attributed to Communists, took place in the week ending November 26, with as many as 10,000 natives participating in a single incident.

Planes left Saigon daily and were said to have bombed the rebellious natives each time they went out. Two hundred natives were reported lined up and shot at the Saigon airport November 22. A prominent planter named Arnaut, former member of the disbanded Indo-China planning board, was assassinated by natives on his plantation near Saigon November 23.

A church and part of the business district of Mytho, thirty miles from Saigon, were reported burned November 24.

Comments From Tokyo

[By the Associated Press]

Tokyo, Thursday, Dec. 12—The newspaper Nichi Nichi declared editorially today that Britain is "desperately seeking further United States help" because of the German offensive against Britain and added America is "making Britain follow her in East Asia" as the price for "special help in Europe."

The newspaper Asahi viewed Britain's offer of a loan to Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek of China with "serious concern in the sense that it is a deliberate oppression of joint Anglo-American making against Japan."

"Britain is forced to follow America because of the dependence on American help," Asahi said.

Paper Says U.S. Missions Give Properties to Japan

Tokio School, Hospital and Church Handed Over

TOKIO, Dec. 12 (Thursday) (AP).—The newspaper "Hochi" said today that Dr. C. S. Reifsnider and other American professors and missionaries were transferring to the Japanese gratis St. Paul's University, valued at $14,000,000; St. Luke's Hospital, valued at $2,500,000, and Holy Trinity Church, valued at $100,000, all in Tokio, giving up all American property rights.

Professor Ikuzo Takyama, dean of the faculty, was promoted to the presidency of sixty-six-year-old St. Paul's, replacing Dr. Reifsnider, the newspaper said.

"Hochi" did not explain the reason for the transfers, but observers recalled that Japan's recently enacted religious law requires that schools, hospitals and social institutions be entirely in Japanese hands.

Says French Started It

SINGAPORE, Straits Settlements, Dec. 11 (AP)—The Thai consulate charged today that a flare-up Monday in the Thailand-French Indo-China border fighting was started by the French, who were alleged to have bombed and machine-gunned the Thai border towns of Lakhon and Panom.

The Thai report said one of the French planes was shot down by a Thai pilot in an air battle.

It added that on the same day French artillery fired 100 shells across the Mekong River, the boundary between Thailand and Indo-China, damaging residence districts in the Thai town of Ban-Muk-Dahan, whereupon Thai planes were sent across the river and bombed French batteries.

TOKYO CHARGES BIAS IN OUR EXPORT CURB

Broadcast Declares Licensing Is Aimed at Japan

Domei, Japanese news agency with government connections, declared yesterday in a broadcast from Tokyo that the United States Government's extension of the export licensing system to iron ore, pig iron and certain steel products "is regarded here as a new economic measure expressly aimed at Japan," the Associated Press reported.

The extension of the licensing system, to go into effect Dec. 30, was disclosed in Washington on Tuesday.

Domei said that "newspapers unanimously pointed out that the appointment of Admiral Kichisaburo Nomura as Ambassador to Washington, which at first had appeared to bring about a decrease in the tension, has not resulted in any modification of the attitude of the United States Government."

"Political circles," it said, "emphasized that in their opinion President Roosevelt timed his announcement of the licensing extension to coincide" with the grant of a $100,000,000 credit to the Chungking [Chinese] Government.

On the other hand, the broadcast continued, "it was pointed out in commercial and industrial circles that the new license system will not have much effect on trade and industry, since importation by Japan from the United States of articles included in that system has hitherto been very small.

"Japan has already taken preparatory steps to protect herself even if the license system should eventually be replaced by a total embargo."

Declares New U.S. Bomber Is Fastest

Baltimore, Dec. 11 (AP).—Col. R. C. Candee, chief of information for the Army Air Corps, declared today the Army's new medium bomber, the Martin B-26, is "faster than most of the pursuit planes now fighting in Europe." Reports say the speed is 400 m. p. h. Col. Candee inspected the new ship and watched it in flight at the Glenn L. Martin airplane plant here.

Navicert Regulation Is Modified By Britain

Move Designed To Aid Shippers Reluctant To Manufacture Goods Until Sure Of Permits

Washington, Dec. 11 (AP)—The British Embassy announced today a modification of the two-month limitation on the validity of navicerts, shipping permits.

The modification is designed to assist shippers who are reluctant to manufacture the goods to be shipped until they can be sure of obtaining a navicert for them.

Under the optional plan of application, such shippers may submit a report on the prospective cargo for provisional approval, stating when the goods will be ready for shipment, and British authorities will fix a later date when the navicert may be claimed.

Says Conquest of Norway Cost Reich 67,000 Lives

O. J. Hambro Asserts Third of Nazi Navy Was Lost

SCHENECTADY, N. Y., Dec. 11 (AP).—Oscar J. Hambro, president of the Norwegian Parliament, said last night that at least 67,000 Germans died in conquering Norway last April.

He told the Sons of Norway, fraternal organization, that casualties exceeded the dead more than two-fold, and of the dead only officers were buried. Common soldiers were "piled in bunches and burned" or stuffed in Narvik sewers, Mr. Hambro said. When British troops arrived April 19, they were so poorly equipped and the ammunition they brought would not fit Norwegian arms, he explained, that they were of little aid. However, he added, Germany lost one-third of its navy in the invasion.

"Norway is still fighting on," Mr. Hambro asserted. "It is carrying on in England, in Canada and even in this country at meetings like these. In Canada we are training troops, and some of our men still fight on in England."

Mail Flown to Roosevelt At Island in Caribbean

President Stays on Cruiser to Work as Party Goes Ashore

ABOARD U. S. S. MAYRANT IN THE CARIBBEAN, Dec. 11 (AP) (By Radio).—The cruiser Tuscaloosa and her two destroyer-escorts stopped briefly today in the lea of a small, unidentified island while mail from a naval patrol bomber was delivered to President Roosevelt.

While the President stayed aboard the cruiser to check contents of the mail pouch, members of the Presidential party made a short trip to the island coast in small boats. A return pouch of mail was put aboard the plane, which took off again for Miami. The Tuscaloosa then resumed its cruise to an unannounced destination.

The President's weather luck continued, with favorable skies most of the time except for the usual brief rain squalls in this latitude.

Knox Arrives in Miami

MIAMI, Dec. 11 (AP).—Secretary of the Navy Frank Knox returned today from a week's flying inspection of American defenses in the Canal Zone and the Caribbean.

He said he did not consider the Panama Canal defenses adequate, but added: "I don't suppose we ever will be satisfied wtih them. There is always something new to do."

The Secretary planned an inspection late today of the Miami Naval Air Training Station. He will return to Washington by Navy plane tomorrow.

ARGENTINA GIVEN $60,000,000 LOAN

Uruguay Receives Advance of $7,500,000

WASHINGTON, Dec. 11 (A. P.).—Jesse Jones, Federal Loan Administrator, today announced loans of $60,000,000 to Argentina and $7,500,000 to Uruguay.

Both loans, Mr. Jones said, superseded smaller commitments made earlier this year but unused to date. Argentina previously had received a $20,000,000 credit and Uruguay a $4,000,000 credit, but those two credits were included in the new transaction.

The new loans, he explained, will be used for general purchases of merchandise in the United States.

The Argentine loan also would be in addition to a $50,000,000 credit from the stabilization fund which Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau said recently was being considered to fix exchange rates.

Discussions also are going on, Mr. Jones disclosed, with a number of other Latin American countries interested in the $500,000,000 Latin American loan fund of the Export-Import Bank, from which the new loans announced today were made.

Peru is one of the countries with which discussions are being held, he said, adding that he understood that Peru was considering, if it was financially feasible, the resumption of interest and principal payments on defaulted bonds owned by United States investors.

MONTEVIDEO, URUGUAY, DEC. 11-(AP)-PRESIDENT ALFREDO BALDOMIR SAID TODAY THE SOUTH AMERICAN CONTINENT MUST HAVE ADDITIONAL NAVAL AND AIR BASES.

Argentina-Uruguay Talks Open Tomorrow

MONTEVIDEO, Dec. 11 (A. P.).—Foreign Minister Julio of Argentina and Foreign Minister Alberto Guani of Uruguay will open a three-day conference tomorrow in the little Uruguayan town of Colonia Suiza.

President Alfredo Baldomir said in an interview with a correspondent of the Buenos Aires newspaper La Nacion that among other things the Foreign Ministers would exchange views on the question of establishing navy and air bases on the River Plate for the use of the American nations in event of aggression.

Colonia Suiza faces Buenos Aires across the River Plate.

U. S. Insists On Base Sites

Caribbean Authorities Oppose Trinidad Station Locations

Washington, Dec. 11 (AP)—The United States Government was reported today to be insisting upon placing its new air and naval bases in Trinidad where it wants them, although local authorities of the strategic Caribbean island have objected to some of the locations.

The authorities disclosing this information expressed confidence, however, that the controversy would be settled satisfactorily and with little delay to construction.

This view appeared to be borne out by Secretary Hull, who told his press conference that negotiations with British authorities over the Trinidad base were progressing normally. Hull said, however, that he was not advised as to any particular questions which might have arisen.

Britain Needs U.S. Naval Aid, Lothian Admits

Baltimore, Dec. 11 (AP).—Making a plea for American naval assistance in keeping supply routes open to the British Isles, Lord Lothian, British Ambassador, declared tonight that the issue of the war "now depends largely on what you decide to do."

Lord Lothian said he was not trying to tell the United States what it should do but was presenting the essential facts on which to form judgment.

"You have already declared your interest in the survival of Britain," he said. "It is for you to decide whether it is to your interest to give us whatever assistance may be necessary in order to make certain that Britain shall not fall.

Confident of Victory.

"If you back us you will not be backing a quitter," he asserted. "With your help in airplanes, munitions, in ships and on the sea and in the field of finance now being discussed between your Treasury and ours, we are sure of victory."

Lord Lothian made his remarks in a speech prepared for delivery to the American Farm Bureau Federation here. Because of a slight illness, he assigned Neville Butler, Embassy counselor, to read it for him.

Predicting greater German attacks on British shipping in the coming months, Lord Lothian declared the British Navy already "is strung out terribly thin."

Sees U. S. Vitally Concerned.

"We think that this is a situation which concerns you almost as much as it concerns us," he said. "It has long been clear that your security no less than ours depends upon our holding the Atlantic impregnably and you the Pacific."

The Axis-Japanese pact, he continued, raises the prospect of "a two-ocean attack on us both in the Atlantic and the Pacific." This, he said, would be launched simultaneously if an Italian or German army or fleet could occupy Gibraltar or Northwest Africa "or Great Britain's control of the Atlantic has been sufficiently weakened to cause doubt where the American fleet should be stationed.

"We have both, therefore, a vital interest in decisively defeating the now rapidly maturing naval attack on the communications of the British Isles. It is the very best way of preventing the spread of the war. And it is an essential step to that victory which will eventually follow the failure of Hitler to destroy Great Britain, both by air and sea, and the uninterrupted flow of American munitions to the British Isles."

Wants Us Spared.

Lord Lothian declared that no one who had seen what "steady and constant bombardment of great cities from the air means could wish any friendly country like the United States of America to undergo any similar experience . . .

"Almost alone among the nations you still have the chance of making your country immune from the devastation of war, not by pacifism or attempted appeasement of the dictators, but by helping to maintain the frontiers I have described . . .

"But if ramparts fall, the war will inevitably cross the oceans and roll up against your shores."

Text of Speech

Special to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BALTIMORE, Dec. 11—Following is the address of the Marquess of Lothian, British Ambassador, read for him at the annual dinner of the Farm Bureau Federation tonight:

It is now nearly five months since I made a public speech in the United States. Since then I have been home to consult with my Government and to find out for myself how things were going in Britain. I want tonight to give you some of the conclusions I have formed.

In these last five months there have been tremendous changes. When last I spoke we had just experienced the terrific shock of the overthrow of France. Hitler seemed irresistible. First Poland had been overwhelmed, then Norway, then Holland, then Belgium. Finally came the destruction in less than a month's fighting of what had been rated as the finest army for its size in Europe, and the disarmament and division of France.

If you recall those dismal days you will remember that there was something like despair in many diplomatic and business circles in Washington, New York and other cities in the United States. What could be the future of civilization if France, that beautiful child of liberty, had erased the rights of man established at the Revolution and defended in three immortal words Liberte, Egalite, Fraternite, from her escutcheon.

Further, Hitler had announced that he would dictate peace in London in August, or at latest by the middle of September. And had not he always been right about his military dates? Britain had saved her soldiers, it is true, by a miracle at Dunkerque. But they had lost all their equipment, guns, tanks, motor vehicles, machine guns and rifles. The German Air Force too was known to be far superior in numbers to the Royal Air Force, and its dive bombers had just crushed the resistance of the French Army. Was it not certain that England was going to be conquered and that with Hitler's crossing of the Channel the end of the British Commonwealth would come?

Recalls "Gloomy Speculations"

If these were the gloomy prophesies in circulation about us, there were hardly less gloomy speculations about the future of the United States. If Hitler conquered Britain the British fleet would be sunk or surrendered or scattered among the British nations overseas. Yet was it not clear that American security required two fleets, the British fleet, based on Britain blocking the entry of hostile European fleets into the Eastern Atlantic, and the United States fleet predominant in the Pacific.

It was this dual system which protected the Monroe Doctrine and which alone could keep war distant from American shores. That, too, was the time of the gloomy revelation in Congress that the United States was as unprepared for modern war as all the other democracies had been. It was said that she had full modern equipment only for 75,000 to 100,000 soldiers, an air force which was very good in quality but terribly small and with none of the reserves and organized manufacturing capacity of the nation behind it, and an excellent navy, but a one-ocean navy facing the possibility of a two-ocean war. The prospect, therefore, before the United States if the British fleet was sunk or surrendered or sailed away to the outer parts of the British Empire was not rosy.

With Hitler's and Mussolini's navies and the remains of the French fleet based on the eastern rim of the Atlantic and on strategic islands well out in the Atlantic, Iceland and the Faroes, the Azores and Teneriffe, would not the whole American fleet have to come back to the Atlantic, leaving the Pacific, both north and south, at the mercy of Japan.

"Period of Hitler's Triumph"

Moreover, even if some part of the British fleet passed across to North American ports it would not have a quarter as much value to North America. If Gibraltar and the West African ports fell into Axis hands how could the United States defend the Monroe Doctrine, especially if some thousands of planes were assembled at Dakar with Fifth Columns in the Americas, elated and arrogant at the downfall of Britain.

Finally what would happen to the rearmament program of the United States, if Hitler and his allies, with Britain conquered, in possession of nearly all the strategic positions and the industrial resources of the globe, was able to hold three battleships or tanks or aeroplanes for one against the United States.

Those June and July days were indeed gloomy days for us and for you. That was the period of Hitler's triumph—when he went to the Invalides to commune with an earlier conqueror of Europe, to the Eiffel Tower to survey his new empire and to Boulogne, where once before a grand army had been assembled for the conquest of Britain.

But that grim picture has been dispelled, at any rate for the present, by the action of the people of a small island in the North Sea, nobly and valiantly aided by the young nations of the British family across the seas. First, there was the retreat from Dunkerque, not an operation likely in itself to bring victory, but certainly a testimony to the undiminished toughness and fighting capacity of British soldiers and sailors.

Lauds Churchill's Courage

Then came Mr. Winston Churchill, with almost the whole of the rest of the world on the run, standing undaunted in the breach defying in matchless oratory the apparently irresistible power and prestige of Hitler and National Socialism, and inviting his fellow-countrymen not to appeasement or retreat, but to resistance, at the price of blood and suffering, sweat and tears.

Then came the reports of your own air attachés, that the Royal Air Force had taken the measure of the German Air Force, despite its superiority in numbers, and was on the high road to establishing its supremacy over the British Isles. Then followed the great air battles of August and September in which the Germans lost nearly 200 machines in a day and five or six to one in pilots.

Then came the brutal bombing of London, and especially of East London, by night. Few people realize what an inferno that was. The first attack set great fires alight, so that hour after hour, night after night, the German bombers could return the short distance to their bases in France to collect fresh cargoes of destruction to unload on the stricken people of Dockland.

But there was no flinching before Hitler's attempted intimidation, no crying for peace, no suggestion that, though we were almost alone, we had had enough. The simple victims, blown out of hearth and home, declared that they would stick it if only others did and it led to victory. The air raid wardens, men and women, the fire fighters, the police, the doctors and nurses, the voluntary services worked on hour after hour, day after day, amid the fires and the crashing of the bombs, with heavy casualties, until they had rescued and tended the wounded, fought down the flames, and the new resources of the barrage and other devices brought the bombing under some control.

Says Air Force Halted Invasion

And finally has come the gradual petering out of the much heralded invasion of Britain. That invasion was really broken in the great air battles, when Hitler tried to beat down our air force and open the way for his ships and his troops. But every day it is made more difficult as our armies increase and their equipment reaches modern standards, and as our squadrons multiply and our organization improves.

Thus if Hitler won the first round of the great battle which began in Norway in April, we have won the second. For without the conquest of Britain Hitler cannot win the war.

But the war is not yet won. Do not think that Hitler and Nazidom are going to be easily overthrown. Hitler is certainly going to make another attempt next year—and earlier rather than later—to beat down our resistance by new methods and still greater violence, and so open the way to world domination for the Nazis.

I do not think that even now we realize the true nature of National Socialism. The triumph of Hitler no doubt grew out of the despair which settled on Central Europe in the long years of war, defeat, inflation, revolutionary propaganda, and which grew out of the unemployment and frustration which followed from the absence of any real unity in Europe, the sudden restriction of immigration overseas and the attempt to combine the collections of reparations and war debts by the Allies and with the imposition of unjust tariffs after the war. That was what gave Hitler his chance.

Cites Prussian Tradition

But modern National Socialism is the reassertion of the strongest tradition in German and Prussian history, the belief in the all-powerful military state, creating order and discipline at home by ruthless gestapo methods and expanding its wealth and power by ruthless conquest abroad. Hitler has created a movement in Germany which is so unfamiliar to the western democracies as to be almost incomprehensible to us.

The central purpose of the democratic movement in the West of the last few centuries has been to enlarge the liberty and responsibility of the individual citizen. War and despotism have been anathema to the democratic mind just because they are both inherently destructive of individual liberty. We have almost lost the capacity to understand that war and conquest can be regarded and preached as heroic and legitimate ends in themselves.

Yet that is precisely what National Socialism under the leadership of Hitler does. Nazism is the application of the principle of army organization, obedience and discipline to a whole nation, to men, women and children alike, partly as the basis of order at home and partly so that it can be used in war, total war, war without limit and without mercy, with its concomitants, propaganda and fraud, as the means of the total subjugation of other nations to serve the Nazi will.

Sees Aim to "Subjugate" Others

I repeat it is almost impossible for us to believe that such a program can be made the central purpose of a modern nation. Yet it is beyond question that this is what Hitler's Germany stands for. Hitler and his party are not concerned to bring about juster frontiers in Europe between free peoples or a fairer distribution of colonial raw materials between the leading nations of the world. Their object is to subjugate others so that they and their resources can be organized on totalitarian lines for the benefit of the German military state.

And they believe that, provided they use that power with efficient ruthlessness, modern science and modern psychology have given them the means with which to create the greatest military empire the world has known. First, they demoralize and disintegrate their neighbors by the propaganda of fear, appeasement, pacifism and internal division. Then they knock them out by total war.

Hitler first used those methods to conquer the old Germany and to destroy all opposing forces within it. He then set out to organize Germany as a military state and propaganda machine of tremendous power. He then turned this terrific instrument on Europe to overthrow and enslave the peace-loving nations, one by one, first Austria, then Czecho-Slovakia, then Poland, then Norway, Denmark, Holland and Belgium until Europe, save for Britain and Russia, now lies prostrate before him.

But that is not going to satisfy Hitler and the National Socialists. If they are allowed to do so they will now go on to organize Europe itself for war and propaganda in order to use it for further expansion later on.

Stresses Fate of Lorraine

Under Hitler the free nations of Europe are never going to reappear. They are going to be reduced permanently to political impotence, so that they can act as the suppliers and serfs of the ruling German race. You can see the process beginning in the annexation of Lorraine and the transplantation of its people, and in the hideous treatment of the Poles. You can see it in the transportation of machine tools into Germany, so that Berlin will control all economic power and the rest of Europe has to toil for its masters.

Hitlerism cannot stop and become peaceful. Nazi Germany is organized for war and totalitarian economics and for nothing else. Its economic system, like everything else, is built on fraud. War and preparation for war are its only real remedy for unemployment.

This war, therefore, is not a war between nations like the last war. It is more of a revolution than a war—a revolutionary war waged by Hitler and his military totalitarian machine against all other nations and the free world in which we have lived, so as to make them military, political and economic satellites of a totalitarian world empire. Then Hitler will have given the world peace—the peace of death—and employment—the employment of a slave.

It is quite obvious that the only way of stopping the expansion of the Hitler Europe is to confront it somewhere with a power possessed of superior armaments and an impregnable strategic position. As we have found through bitter experience it will never be stopped by appeasement or concessions. It is equally obvious that there will be no freedom for the conquered peoples of Europe until the authority of the Nazi group and its brutal philosophy have been overthrown in Germany itself.

Predicts New Attacks at Sea

Today, however, we have still to build up the peace which will certainly be able to stop Hitler. Hitler, as we have seen, has lost the second round of the war. But we think that he certainly is going to renew the attack on Britain with all his might this Winter and Spring. Everything else is for him a side show. But if he can destroy Britain he and his friends will have won the basis of world domination.

But this time he is going to concentrate on the sea. He has failed to overwhelm us in the air and we are sure that he will continue to fail, while with your help our power to hit back with our bombers will steadily increase. But he is building submarines and long-distance planes with all his might and main with which to bomb the convoys and to announce their location to the submarines. He will base them on all the ports and aerodromes along that line which runs like a vast semi-circle round Britain, from Narvik down the northern and western coasts of France to Spain.

He will have two new 35,000-ton battleships, the Tirpitz and the Bismarck, and other vessels in the North Sea early next year. With these he will try to deliver a knock-out blow at our communications so as to prevent us getting the food, the raw materials and airplanes necessary to enable us to continue the war at full strength. The danger, of course, springs ultimately from the fact that in the last war we had the support of the Japanese, the Italian, the French and, after April, 1917, of your navy, whereas today, since the disappearance of the powerful French Navy, we are fighting alone. Our navy, therefore, with the tremendous tasks which rest upon it, no one of which it shirked or evaded, is strung out and terribly thin.

Warns on Our Security

We think that this is a situation which concerns you almost as much as it concerns us. It has long been clear that your security no less than ours depends upon our holding the Atlantic impregnably and you the Pacific. So long as this is so the way of life to which we are attached can continue and our free economic system can resist totalitarian attack. But if one of those two navies fails the unity of the British Commonwealth begins to disappear, control of the trade routes begins to pass to the Axis powers and those controlling bastions of sea power which now keep war away from America become the jumping off points from which it can be menaced.

Moreover, the Axis-Japanese pact of September last makes nakedly clear the ultimate objective of totalitarian strategy. As soon as an Italian or German army or fleet can occupy Gibraltar of Northwest Africa or Great Britain's control of the Atlantic has been sufficiently weakened to cause doubt where the American fleet should be stationed the two-ocean attack on us, both in the Atlantic and the Pacific, will be simultaneously launched. The more secure is our control of the Atlantic the less likely is the two-ocean war to break out.

We have both, therefore, a vital interest in decisively defeating the now rapidly maturing naval attack on the communications of the British Isles. It is the best way of preventing the spread of the war. And it is an essential step to that victory which will eventually follow the failure of Hitler to destroy Great Britain, both by air and by sea, and the uninterrupted flow of American munitions to the British Isles.

"A Hard and Dangerous Year"

We have no illusions, therefore, about 1941. It is going to be a hard and a dangerous year. Our shipping losses have recently been formidable. In one week British, Allied and neutral losses were nearly 200,000 tons. Only one of the two passages to Britain round Ireland is open to us, which enables Germany to concentrate its submarines on the other. We are suffering, on the average of October, 200 civilian deaths and 300 civilians mutilated every night from enemy bombardment, and our food supplies are gradually being more strictly rationed.

But we are not in the least dismayed. With help from you we are confident that we can win, and win decisively in 1942, if not before. We are confident, first of all, for spiritual reasons. The core of Hitlerism is moral rottenness, the belief that the use of utter brutality and ruthless power in the prosecution of domination is the road to greatness both in individuals and nations.

Hitlerism is the tragedy of Germany. Its doctrine is not true. All history proves it wrong. The Sermon on the Mount in the long run is much stronger than all Hitler's propaganda or Goering's guns and bombs. The core of the Allied creed, for all our mistakes of omission and commission, is liberty, justice and truth, and that we believe will infallibly prevail, if we have the resolution and the courage to resist to the end.

But on the side of armaments also we have great and growing assets. The curve of our munition and airplane production is steadily rising—despite the bombing. The number of our divisions, of our airplanes, of our pilots is also steadily going up.

Declares Empire Stronger

What is more important, the young nations of the Commonwealth, Canada, Australia, South Africa, New Zealand, are fast getting into their stride. The number of their divisions is increasing. You will soon hear of their prowess on more than one front, as you have heard of the New Zealand Achilles in the Graf Spee battle and the Australian Sydney in the Mediterranean.

The Canadian training scheme is rapidly coming into output. You will be staggered at what will come out of Canada shortly in the shape of trained pilots and men. And Canada produced perhaps the best airmen in our forces in the great war. Australia and New Zealand are producing pilots also in great numbers. South Africa is actively engaged both in the air and on land in Abyssinia, Kenya and in the Sudan.

Indian troops and Indian munitions are now coming into the battle fronts, and ever-increasing resources are coming from the colonies and territories, loyal to a man and proud of their membership of the Commonwealth.

The whole of this growing aggregation of power is now being mobilized. Its first task is to defend that great ring of defensive positions which lie around you, Britain itself, Gibraltar, Cape Town, Egypt, and the Suez Canal, Singapore, Australia and New Zealand. If Hitler and his friends could smash through these great positions his power could begin to spread over Africa and the Pacific, it would make the problem both of security and of bringing the war to a victorious end immeasurably more difficult.

Asserts Italy Is Cracking

But as long as we can hold these positions, we and the democratic world beyond them are safe. Napoleon saw that all war is a struggle for position. Our second task is to enable us to deliver increasingly formidable blows at Germany itself, at her allies, one of whom is already beginning to crack, and to bring assistance to the subjugated peoples now once more beginning to show signs of a resistance to Hitler's will. The heroic Greeks now striking a mortal blow at the prestige of Mussolini and his system are showing how much the position has already improved since the legend of totalitarian invulnerability was broken last September.

But that result is not yet secure. It will be put to the test in 1941. If we can now stave off the attack on Britain, if we can last out next year still holding all the positions I have mentioned, Hitlerism in the end must go down unless Admiral Mahan is all wrong. By ourselves we cannot be sure of this result—though we will try our best. Not only is there the situation in the North Atlantic I have described, but no one can yet tell when the constant pressure of Hitler both on the Vichy government to give him control of the French fleet and bases in the Mediterranean, and on Japan to extend the war in the Pacific, may lead to.

Urges More American Aid

But with your help in airplanes, munitions, in ships and on the sea, and in the field of finance now being discussed between your Treasury and ours, we are sure of victory—sure that the gangster menace to human freedom, the greatest the world has ever seen, will go down to the oblivion it deserves.

It is not for me to try to tell you what you ought to do. That is entirely for you to decide for yourselves. But it is my business to see that you are informed of the essential facts because unless you are so informed you cannot form a judgment and I and not you would be responsible for the consequences, hence this speech tonight. You have already declared your interest in the survival of Britain. It is for you to decide whether it is to your interest to give us whatever assistance may be necessary in order to make certain that Britain shall not fall.

There are only two more things I want to say in conclusion. The first is that nobody who, like myself, has seen what the steady and constant bombardment of great cities from the air means, could wish any friendly country like the United States of America to undergo any similar experience.

Hitler has let loose this kind of warfare on mankind and will have to take the consequences. And we for geographical reasons are in the firing line. But you and Canada and Australia and New Zealand and probably South Africa have the chance, if you take it, of saving yourselves from being the theatre of total war. You are the center of that great ring of fortresses, Britain, Gibraltar, Cape Town, Suez, Singapore and Australia, I have mentioned, to which I should add Hawaii and Panama.

So long as these fortresses stand, the war, with its aerial bombardment, cannot in any real sense of the word roll up to your shores or devastate your towns and cities.

I do not believe that a liberal civilization can develop under conditions of constant bombardment and war. Modern individual freedom developed first in England precisely because the Channel protected Britain from constant war, and later in America because the Atlantic did the same. Almost alone among the nations you still have the chance of making your country immune from the devastation of war, not by pacifism or attempted appeasement of the dictators, but by helping to maintain the frontiers I have described, all occupied by liberal democracies like yourselves and prepared to fight for their independence and yours, and with your help able collectively to generate more power than the totalitarian alliance can bring against them.

But if ramparts fall, the war will inevitably cross the oceans and roll up against your shores. If Britain and the eastern shores of the Atlantic and the islands which lie off its shores, Iceland, the Azores or bases like Dakar fall into the dictators' hands, or if you are unable to defend the island fortresses in the Pacific, then the jumping off grounds go against you, the oceans become a passageway and your power to strike back at an enemy disappears because you have no bases from which to do so.

The last thing I want to say concerns the future. There were two things which I found the ordinary citizen in Britain thinking about. The first was that all his and her suffering and sacrifice should, if possible, end, not all war, for human nature is probably not yet ready for that, but the kind of total war Hitler is waging, with its hideous mutilation and destruction from the air and its brutal persecution of conquered peoples.

Sees Social Problem After War

The second was that after this war no one who had done his duty should be thrown on the scrap heap of unemployment, with nothing but a bonus or dole. Somehow or other employment must be found for everybody. Some people are spreading the legend that democracy is disappearing from Britain and that she will come out at the end of the war a Fascist or a Communist State. Nothing could be further from the truth. I have never known Britain more truly democratic. The British are not going to change their essential character. It has shown itself in this war. They will move forward, of course, with the times, but without revolutionary violence.

But the more people think about the future the more they are drawn to the conclusion that all real hope depends upon some form of cooperation between the United States and the British Commonwealth of Nations. Even if we win a total victory there will be no chance of immediately creating an effective new League of Nations. There will be nothing in Europe out of which to make it. A majority of the younger generation consist of people who have been educated in such brutish doctrines as blood and earth, that might is right, that Jews are social poison or that business men are hyenas only fit for destruction. No man can even say what the France of tomorrow will be like.

The plain truth is that peace and order always depend not upon disarming the police but upon there being overwhelming power behind just law. The only place where that power can be found behind the laws of a liberal and democratic world is in the United States and in Great Britain supported by the Dominions and in some other free nations.

Would Avoid Post-War Mistakes

The only nucleus round which a stable and peaceful and democratic world can be built after this war is if the United States and Great Britain possess between them more aeroplanes and ships of war and the key positions of world power, such as I have described, than any possible totalitarian rival. Then and then only will political and industrial freedom be secure and will it be possible for a free economic system to prevail against the economics of totalitarianism.

If we are to set the world going again, not only must we have strength, but we must not adopt the fatal policies we all pursued after the last war, the establishment of prohibitive tariffs, trying to collect fantastic reparations and war debts across these tariffs, and then hoping to dodge the inevitable consequences of those follies by a policy of reckless lending. Markets and employment for all should be the main purpose of post-war economic policy.

I have done. I have endeavored to give you some idea of our present position, of the dangers and problems of 1941, of our hopes for the future. It is for you to decide whether you share our hopes and what support you will give us in realizing them. We are, I believe, doing all we can. Since May there is no challenge we have evaded, no challenge refused.

If you back us you will not be backing a quitter. The issue now depends largely on what you decide to do. Nobody can share that responsibility with you. It is the great strength of democracy that it brings responsibility down squarely to every citizen and every nation. And before the judgment seat of God each must answer for his own actions.

British Minister's Statement on Food Requires Some Explanation

By DEWITT MACKENZIE.

DEC 12 1940

The statement of the British Minister of Agriculture, R. S. Hudson, today, that Britain's food situation is "just as grim" as it was in 1917 presents a grave picture. The unrestricted U-boat campaign of early 1917 all but emptied England's pantry and threatened her with defeat. I was in England at the time and I know how close the country was to real hunger.

It would be interesting to know whether Mr. Hudson's statement was influenced by the fact that he was urging British farmers to greater food production—particularly so in view of the statement of the British Food Minister, Lord Woolton, who said only two weeks ago that "we enter the second winter of the war with confidence in our supplies."

Americans will want to know whether it has anything to do with the fact that Britain is urging more aid than we have been giving and is anxious, too, to have American warships act as convoys. Lack of adequate convoys is Britain's greatest weakness in meeting the Nazi counter-blockade.

In view of all this it would be helpful if Lord Woolton and Mr. Hudson would reconcile their apparently divergent views on this vital problem of food. The position now is too confusing.

Mr. Hudson says the British Navy's problem of meeting the German aerial and submarine blockade is now doubly or trebly as difficult as in 1917. Well it's no news that the Nazi counter-offensive is a grave menace to Britain, that she herself has been blockading the Mediterranean and other seas so effetcively that she lacks adequate convoys for Atlantic waters.

That is one excellent reason why Britain is now in process of trying to make a quick killing of Italy—to release warships and warplanes from the Mediterranean area to meet the Nazi challenge.

May Eliminate Il Duce.

The British drive begun with so much success in western Egypt looks very like the start of the major offensive which i scalculated to smash the Italians in Africa.

The extent of this operation, which was rendered opportune by the terrific beating the Greeks have been administering to the Italians, will depend on developments. Early indications gave promise of a big show.

This attack is of vast importance in the development of the battle of the Mediterranean. Upon it rests much of Britain's hope of knocking Mussolini out of the war in the comparatively near future.

The Italian dictator certainly is fighting with the sun in his eyes. Should he encounter a disaster in Africa, along with his many other troubles, he will indeed be in a bad way.

From Albania comes the report that the Greeks are continuing to smash the Italians back all along the line in an effort to forestall a rescue from Italy and oust the Fascists altogether from this strategically important Balkan base. But this isn't the half of Il Duce's troubles.

Communications Threatened.

His communications with Albania are threatened by the British Air Force. The blockade has virtually cut him off from rendering any aid to Marshal Graziani in Libya or even of sending food and military supplies to his army.

And in Italy itself we had the extraordinary circumstance yesterday of an important Italian newspaper—Il Popolo di Roma—recommending the beating up of "defeatists, alarmists, pessimists and rumor mongers." This editorial in effect says, of course, that there is pessimism and alarm abroad in Italy. Since the press is Government-controlled, it is fairly obvious that the paper wasn't just dispensing hot air.

All in all, it would appear that Mussolini is fighting with his back to the wall. He sure started a lot of bother when he stuck a stick in that Greek hornet's nest.

The Texts of the Day's Communiques on the War

British

LONDON, Dec. 11 (AP)—The Ministry of Information today released the following communiqué from Cairo, Egypt:

This afternoon Sidi Barrani was captured with a large number of prisoners, including three generals.

Advance elements of our mechanized forces are now operating to the westward and considerable additional captures have been made.

The British also issued this communiqué:

Serious damage is believed to have been done to the Addis Ababa-Jibuti railway when the Royal Air Force from Aden bombed Duanle station near the French Somaliland frontier on Sunday. The station buildings as well as the track were seen to have been hit.

Bombs were also dropped on the Red Sea port of Assab [in Eritrea] which, according to the evidence of photographs, was severely damaged in last month's heavy pounding.

A communiqué issued by the Air and Home Security Ministries:

Since the issue of this morning's Air Ministry and Ministry of Home Security communiqué it has been reported that bombs were dropped at a place in East Anglia. These damaged some houses and caused a very small number of casualties.

Another communiqué issued by the two Ministries:

During daylight today small numbers of enemy aircraft have been active over the Channel and the southeast coast of England.

Bombs which were dropped in a town on the southeast coast shortly after noon demolished some shops and houses and caused a small number of casualties.

O enemy aircraft was destroyed by our fighters this morning without loss to ourselves.

The text of an Air Ministry communiqué:

In the course of last night's operations one of our bombers shot down an enemy twin-engined fighter.

Another Air Ministry communiqué stated:

Weather conditions last night were very unfavorable for bombing operations. Bombers of the Royal Air Force, however, carried out attacks on a number of targets in Western Germany and in enemy-occupied territory. These included railway junctions, a power station, airdromes and inland docks.

The docks at invasion ports along the Channel and in enemy-occupied territory were also attacked by small forces of our bombers.

Two of our aircraft are missing.

CAIRO, Egypt, Dec. 11 (AP)—British Army headquarters issued this communiqué:

In Egypt operations are progressing satisfactorily in the Western Desert, where more than 6,000 Italian prisoners are now reported to have been captured, together with huge quantities of war material not yet sorted out.

Active patrolling continues on the Sudan frontier.

Other fronts—No change in the situation.

A Royal Air Force communiqué stated:

Throughout the whole of yesterday and the previous night, aircraft of the R. A. F. continued the bombardment of all Italian airdromes in the Libyan desert. In addition enemy camps, troop concentrations and motor transport were repeatedly attacked in support of army operations.

During yesterday five CR-42's and one RO-37 [Italian planes] were definitely shot down, while three other CR-42's were seen to go down out of control, but their destruction was not witnessed. Four confirmed and two unconfirmed of these enemy aircraft went to the credit of a squadron of Royal Australian Air Force.

In addition to these, a number of enemy aircraft were destroyed on El Adem as a result of a particularly heavy raid last night. High-explosive bombs set fire to several hangars and smaller buildings and direct hits were also registered on dispersed aircraft, a number of which were seen to explode. Fires started were visible at a distance of sixty miles as the last aircraft approached the target.

In the Bardia-Solum area last night many bombs were dropped on motor transport concentrations and retreating enemy troops.

At Bir Sofafi during the day an enemy camp was heavily bombed.

Aircraft of the Fleet Air Arm cooperating with the R. A. F. attacked the barracks at Bardia and the escarpment road at Solum, while other aircraft bombed the landing ground.

One enemy aircraft on the ground at Ain el Gazala was destroyed, bringing the total up to ten without taking into consideration the unknown number of enemy aircraft destroyed or badly damaged.

During these air operations, which were continuous throughout the whole twenty-four-hour period under review, only one of our aircraft failed to return.

Valona, in Southern Albania, was again raided yesterday and a ship in the harbor received direct hits. Other bombs fell among buildings and a munitions dump and a motor transport park.

All our aircraft engaged in these operations returned safely.

ATHENS, Dec. 11 (AP)—A British Royal Air Force communiqué issued today stated:

Royal Air Force bomber aircraft again raided Valona. A ship in the harbor was hit and other bombs fell among buildings, on a munitions dump and in a motor transport park.

From all operations all our aircraft returned safely.

The leader of the formation which attacked Valona said on his return:

"I came out of the clouds to find enemy fighters waiting for us, but we made our bombing attack and got back into the clouds before they could do any damage. One of our aircraft had a running fight with the enemy, but did his job and came away safely.

"As well as hitting the ship, some buildings including a bomb dump and a motor transport park, we saw a gap through which the sea was flowing into a jetty bombed a few days ago. There also was a ship ashore."

Free French

LONDON, Dec. 11 (Canadian Press)—A communiqué issued tonight by General Charles de Gaulle's "Free French" headquarters here follows:

In the district of Sidi Barrani advanced units of French troops are taking part in the successful offensive of our British allies. We have taken a number of prisoners and war material.

The First Battalion of Marines, which is fighting in Egypt, has been specially mentioned in an army order by General de Gaulle.

At the frontier of Chad and Libya, Free French forces have completely occupied a zone of French territory which should have been evacuated under armistice terms, north of the line, Fayafada.

Greek

ATHENS, Dec. 11 (AP)—Today's Greek High Command communiqué follows:

The advance continued on various sections of the front in spite of the fierce reactions of the enemy. Prisoners and booty have fallen into our hands.

The Greek Ministry of Home Security issued this communiqué:

No raids on Greece today.

Italian

ROME, Dec. 11 (AP)—Today's Italian High Command communiqué:

At dawn Dec. 9, English armored divisions attacked our line southeast of Sidi Barrani, held by formations of Libyan troops. These troops at first resisted gallantly, but after some hours were overcome and retreated to Sidi Barrani.

During the day of Dec. 9 and yesterday fighting of exceptional violence took place between our and enemy troops.

The "January Third" Division of Blackshirt troops and the First Division of Libyan troops held out against the attack, inflicting extremely serious losses on the enemy.

Fierce fights are continuing in the zone. In one of them General Maletti fell at the head of his Libyan battalions.

Our air force flew over the battle at all times, machine-gunning and bombing the enemy armored formation.

On the Greek front the day passed without actions worthy of particular notice.

German

BERLIN, Dec. 11 (AP)—Today's German High Command communiqué:

Bad weather limited our air force's activity yesterday and last night to armed reconnaissance.

At Frinton on the sea hits were observed in the port region, and large smoke clouds developed. Additional hits were made on a factory between Folkestone and Canterbury.

Off Harwich a merchantman was attacked with bombs and airplane guns.

Army and navy long-range batteries took enemy vessels trying to sail through the English Channel under effective fire. The army's long-range batteries at dusk successfully shelled military objectives in the Dover coastal region.

Last night a number of enemy bombers dropped incendiary and explosive bombs in the occupied region of Southwestern Germany. Outside of considerably damaging one children's home in a Southwestern German city and slightly damaging buildings in some localities of Eifel, no mentionable property damage was done.

Two civilians were severely injured and one slightly injured in the Reich; one child was killed an dtwo civilians injured in the occupied region.

Anti-aircraft fire yesterday downed two enemy planes of the Bristol Blenheim type. We suffered no losses.

Duchess' Condition Most Satisfactory After Dental Operation

[By the Associated Press]

Miami Beach, Fla., Dec. 11—In the privacy of a hospital suite packed with flowers sent by well-wishers, the Duchess of Windsor recovered slowly today from the effects of major dental surgery.

So many flowers poured into the east wing of St. Francis Hospital, where the Duke and Duchess are staying, that she ordered them distributed to fellow-patients.

Keeps Duke's Roses

One huge bouquet of American Beauty roses she kept beside her came from the Duke, who bought them at a florist's shop on a brief business trip downtown.

It was his first trip away from the hospital since he and the Duchess arrived yesterday. Otherwise, he insisted on strict privacy. At his request, the public and press stayed away from the hospital. Physicians gave out periodic information about the Duchess' condition from a nearby hotel.

They reported that she showed a "most satisfactory" condition in the twenty-four hour post-operative period, adding:

May Stay Longer

"However, the danger of complications, while slight, will not be passed for at least seventy-two hours."

This indicated the Windsors won't leave the hospital at least until Saturday and then may be in the United States a few more days, although they had hoped to embark for Nassau Friday.

The Duke issued a statement expressing appreciation for the privacy given his party at the hospital. He said there were so many messages that there would be delay in acknowledging them directly, and concluded:

"We should therefore like to take this opportunity of expressing our profound thanks to the senders through the medium of the press."

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS SPECIAL NEWS SERVICE

(ADVANCE)...MODERN WAR STRIKES HOME HARD AT MEAL TIME.

HUNDREDS OF MILLIONS IN THE WARRING NATIONS IN EUROPE AND ASIA TODAY ARE LIMITED IN WHAT THEY MAY EAT -- EITHER BY GOVERNMENT DECREE OR BY THE WORKINGS OF ECONOMIC LAWS.

FOOD SHORTAGES HAVE BEEN REPORTED IN MANY OF THE COUNTRIES AT WAR AND IN MANY NON-BELLIGERENT NATIONS AS WELL. IN MOST OF THE LANDS ACROSS THE SEA, FOOD RATIONING IS THE RULE.

AFTER THE HOLIDAYS, FOR INSTANCE, BRITONS PROBABLY WILL BE CALLED UPON TO TAKE ANOTHER HITCH IN THEIR BELTS SO AS TO HELP THEIR GOVERNMENT COPE WITH THE PROBLEM OF BRINGING SUPPLIES ACROSS THE U-BOAT INFESTED ATLANTIC.

THEY ARE BEING INDULGED FOR A WEEK BEFORE CHRISTMAS, HOWEVER, WITH MORE LIBERAL RATIONS OF THE TWO MOST CAREFULLY HOARDED COMMODITIES--12 OUNCES OF SUGAR AND FOUR OUNCES OF TEA, INSTEAD OF THE NORMAL RATION OF

30.24-6373

30.24—6373

EIGHT OUNCES OF SUGAR AND TWO OF TEA PER WEEK.

OTHER FOODS RATIONED ALIKE IN ENGLAND, SCOTLAND, WALES AND NORTHERN IRELAND ARE MEATS, ONE SHILLING TENPENCE WORTH (ABOUT 37 CENTS BUTTER, TWO OUNCES; MARGARINE, FOUR OUNCES; AND BACON, FOUR OUNCES, FOR EACH PERSON EACH WEEK.

THERE IS NO RATIONING AS YET IN NEUTRAL EIRE, BUT EXPORTING OF SUGAR, BUTTER AND TEA RECENTLY WAS PROHIBITED.

THERE ARE RESTRICTIONS ON SALES OF OTHER FOODS IN THE UNITED KINGDOM. DURING THE WINTER, WHEN THE MILK SUPPLY IS LOW, DAIRYMEN HAV BEEN RESTRICTING SALES BY 10 PER CENT.

BRITISH SHOPKEEPERS RATION THEIR CUSTOMERS ON SUCH FOODS AS EGGS, WHICH ARE ALMOST UNOBTAINABLE AT PRESENT, ONIONS AND IMPORTED FRUITS.

IN GERMANY, TOO, THE CHRISTMAS SPIRIT HAS RESULTED IN A SLIGHT RELAXATION OF RATIONING. THE CUSTOMARY SUGAR RATION OF 900 GRAMS (ABOUT 32 OUNCES) A MONTH HAS BEEN INCREASED BY 500 GRAMS (17.65 OUNCES) FOR CHRISTMAS BAKING.

OTHER FOODS RATIONED IN GERMANY INCLUDE SOME OF THOSE RATIONED IN BRITAIN, AND A COMPARISON OF RATIONS FOR A MONTH LOOKS LIKE THIS:

	BRITAIN	GERMANY
SUGAR	48 OZ.	32 OZ.
BUTTER AND MARGERINE	24 OZ.	18 OZ.
MEAT	$1.50 WORTH	70 OZ.
BREAD AND CAKE	NOT RATIONED	78 OZ.

THE GERMAN BUTTER AND FAT RATION USUALLY IS EXPANDED EACH MONTH BY DISTRIBUTION OF A LITTLE EXTRA MARGERINE.

ONE CAN BUY 8.8 OUNCES OF PEAS, BEANS OR RICE, IN GERMANY OR ELECT TO CHOOSE TWO CANS OF CONDENSED MILK INSTEAD. SOME COMMODITIES, NOTABLY EGGS AND COFFEE, DO NOT APPEAR ON RATION CARDS; CITIZENS GET TICKETS FULL OF NUMBERS, AND OCCASIONALLY ANNOUNCEMENT IS MADE THAT SPECIFIC NUMBERS ARE GOOD FOR SOME FOOD PRODUCTS. THUS ABOUT FOUR EGGS A MONTH, 4.4 OUNCES OF COFFEE AND AN OCCASIONAL CAN OF FRUIT MAY BE BOUGHT.

IN GERMANY, FRUIT AND WHOLE MILK ARE RESERVED ALMOST WHOLLY FOR CHILDREN. POTATOES AND FRESH VEGETABLES REMAIN UNRATIONED, BUT STORES OFTEN LIMIT THE AMOUNTS SOLD. DOG MEAT RECENTLY WAS LEGALIZED AS A FOOD FOR HUMAN CONSUMPTION IN THE REICH.

IN ITALY, WHERE ONLY LAST WEEK SPAGHETTI AND RICE WERE PLACED ON THE RATIONED LIST, AUTHORITIES SAY ITALIANS WILL HAVE PLENTY TO EAT, EVEN IF THE GREEK CAMPAIGN LASTS ALL WINTER. HOWEVER, THE U.S. DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE LAST MONTH PREDICTED A FOOD SHORTAGE THIS WINTER IN ITALY.

ITALY STILL IS EATING MEAT EVERY DAY, GETTING HER SUPPLY FROM HUNGARY AND YUGOSLAVIA. THE ITALIAN SUGAR RATION IS 21 OUNCES, WHILE THE BUTTER ALLOWANCE IS 10.5 OUNCES. COFFEE HAS BEEN STRINGENTLY LIMITED FOR MONTHS.

DEFEATED FRANCE, FACING A SERIOUS FOOD SHORTAGE, HAS RESORTED TO SEVERE RATIONING MEASURES. THE VICHY GOVERNMENT TIGHTENED RESTRICTIONS ALREADY IN FORCE ON NOV. 9 BY MAKING ANYONE LIABLE TO IMPRISONMENT AND HEAVY FINES FOR "ABANDONING SLICES OF BREAD AFTER MAKING THEM

UNFIT FOR EATING." RESTAURANT KEEPERS WERE FORBIDDEN TO SERVE MORE THAN ONE SLICE OF BREAD AT A TIME.

THIS LATEST MOVE TO CONSERVE FOOD WAS ONE RESULT OF A SERIOUS WHEAT SHORTAGE DUE TO A POOR CROP IN THE UNOCCUPIED ZONE.

THE NOV. 9 DECREE ALSO REDUCED THE BREAD RATION FOR ADULT FRENCHMEN FROM 350 GRAMS (12.35 OUNCES) TO 250 GRAMS (8.82 OUNCES) A DAY. SUCH FOODS AS NOODLES AND MACARONI MUST COME OUT OF THE BREAD ALLOWANCE.

THE FRENCH MEAT RATION IS 90 GRAMS (3.17 OUNCES), ON THE FOUR DAYS EACH WEEK THAT BUTCHER SHOPS ARE OPEN.

DESPITE THE STRICT RATIONING, MEAT SOMETIMES IS NOT TO BE HAD AT ALL INSOME REGIONS OF BOTH OCCUPIED AND UNOCCUPIED FRANCE.

TEN GRAMS OF FATS (3.17 OUNCES)--INCLUDING BUTTER, MARGARINE, OIL, LARD AND VEGETABLE COMPOUNDS--ARE PERMITTED WITH THE FOUR MEAT MEALS WITHIN A WEEK, WHILE ONLY FIVE GRAMS ARE ALLOWED WITH THE OTHER MEALS.

EACH PERSON IS ALLOWED 250 GRAMS (8.82 OUNCES) OF COFFEE MIXTURE A MONTH, INCLUDING 90 GRAMS OF REAL COFFEE. ABOUT ONE POUND OF SUGAR IS PERMITTED AN INDIVIDUAL A MONTH. MILK ALSO IS RATIONED FOR THE BENEFIT OF CHILDREN.

IN OTHER OCCUPIED LANDS, RATIONING MAY BE SUMMARIZED AS FOLLOWS:

POLAND--ALMOST DUPLICATES THAT OF GERMANY, EXCEPT THAT POLES GET A THIRD MORE MEAT AND A LITTLE LESS BREAD.

HOLLAND--VIRTUALLY NO MEAT AVAILABLE, BUT RATION CARDS ALLOW 70 OUNCES A MONTH. OTHER FOOD ALLOWANCES INCLUDE 35.3 OUNCES OF FATS, 28.24 OUNCES OF CEREAL, 70 OUNCES OF BREAD.

NORWAY--SUGAR ALLOWANCE 28.24 OUNCES A MONTH, BREAD AND FLOUR 35.3 OUNCES.

DENMARK--BUTTER ALLOWANCE ABOUT 50 OUNCES A MONTH, ALMOST FOUR TIMES AS MUCH AS IN GERMANY, AND 35.3 OUNCES OF WHIPPED CREAM. CHEESE IS A FORBIDDEN FOOD.

OCCUPIED FRANCE--BROADLY SPEAKING, SAME AS IN GERMANY EXCEPT THAT MORE BREAD IS PERMITTED.

BELGIUM--SAME PICTURE AS IN FRANCE.

BOHEMIA AND MORAVIA--SAME AS GERMANY, EXCEPT MORE MEAT, NOTABLY POULTRY.

GREECE NOW HAS FIVE MEATLESS DAYS A WEEK.

NEUTRAL COUNTRIES ALSO FEEL FOOD SHORTAGES. SWITZERLAND HAS HAD MANY PRODUCTS ON THE RATIONED LIST FOR MONTHS. HUNGARY HAS THREE MEATLESS DAYS A WEEK. TURKEY RECENTLY RATIONED GASOLINE AND LET IT BE KNOWN SHE WAS CONSIDERING FOOD RATIONING.

FINLAND RATIONS MEAT. SPAIN HAD RATIONING FOR A LONG TIME, BUT RECENTLY TOOK FISH, EGGS AND SOME OTHER PRODUCTS OFF THE LIST.

RUSSIA LIMITED THE BUYING OF BREAD, BUTTER, MEAT, POTATOES AND OTHER FOODSTUFFS LAST OCTOBER.

SWEDEN RECENTLY RATIONED PORK.

ON THE OTHER SIDE OF THE WORLD,--CHINA, AFTER THREE AND A HALF YEARS OF WAR, SO FAR HAS RATIONED ONLY SALT, BUT THE COST OF FOODSTUFFS IN "FREE CHINA" HAS RISEN 300 TO 1,500 PER CENT, AND THERE ARE SHORTAGES IN SOME AREAS.

IN SOME JAPANESE OCCUPIED AREAS, THE CHINESE SAY THE JAPANESE HAVE

30.24-6375

COMMANDEERED HUGE AMOUNTS OF RICE AND OTHER STAPLES, AND THAT THEY ARE REFUSING TO PERMIT AVAILABLE GRAINS TO REACH THE MARKET, RESULTING IN EXORBITANT PRICES AND SUFFERING AMONG THE POPULACE, UNABLE TO PAY.

SOUTH CHINA AND FRENCH INDO-CHINA ARE EXPERIENCING SHORTAGES OF FOOD AND OTHER PRODUCTS WITH PRICES SKYROCKETING. THE FRENCH COLONY, VIRTUALLY ISOLATED FROM SUPPLIES, IS REPORTED TO HAVE ONLY ENOUGH FOOD ON HAND TO LAST THREE MONTHS, WITH WHEAT, BUTTER AND MILK SHORTAGES ESPECIALLY ACUTE.

IN JAPAN, SUGAR, CHARCOAL AND MATCHES ARE THE ONLY THINGS CURRENTLY RATIONED. EACH PERSON IS PERMITTED A HALF POUND OF SUGAR A MONTH, AND THE COST IS FIXED AT SIX CENTS A POUND.

BUTTER IS SCARCE. BEEF COSTS 70 CENTS A POUND.

THERE IS PLENTY OF RICE, AND THE PRICE OF SOME CHEAPER FISH, SUCH AS HERRING, AND MACKEREL HAS BEEN FIXED TO KEEP IT IN RANGE FOR THE POOR.

BRITISH CAPTURE 20,000 IN EGYPT

THREE DIVISIONS REPORTED CUT OFF IN EGYPT

Churchill Says British Now Hold Virtually All of Coastal Region.

GENERAL RETREAT INDICATED

R. A. F. Machine-guns Retiring Fascists—Much Italian Equipment Seized.

LONDON, Dec. 12 (A.P.).—With the British claiming more than 20,000 prisoners and reports to London of a general Italian retreat, Prime Minister Churchill told the House of Commons today it would not be surprising if at least the best part of three Italian divisions were trapped in the Egyptian desert.

A communique from Cairo said "the latest estimate of prisoners taken exceeds 20,000 with tanks, guns and equipment of all types."

Thus was summed up briefly the British view of the results of the four-day British offensive which carried their mechanized forces to the Mediterranean coast and into the Italian base at Sidi Barrani, advance Egyptian post of Marshal Graziani's forces.

"The whole coastal region, with the exception of one or two points still holding out, is in the hands of British and Imperial troops," the Prime Minister reported.

Mr. Churchill, who was cheered wildly as he spoke, said 7,000 Italian prisoners already had reached Matruh, the British camp at the railhead of the line running eastward across the coast to Alexandria.

"It would not be surprising," he said, "if numerous Blackshirt formations had been either destroyed or captured."

The Prime Minister said the British were still pursuing the Italians westward, with the Royal Air Force supporting the attack and the navy shelling the principal road open to the Fascist forces.

[The three Italian divisions to which he referred may number from 42,000 to 51,000 men.]

Praises Wavell and Wilson.

"While it is too soon to measure the scale of these operations," Mr. Churchill observed it is clear they constitute a victory which, in this African theater of war is of the first order and which reflects the highest credit upon Sir Archibald Wavell, Sir Maitland Wilson, staff officers who planned this exceedingly complicated operation, and upon troops who performed the remarkable feat of endurance and daring which accompanied it.

"The whole episode must be judged upon the background of fact that it is only three or four months ago that our anxieties for the defense of Egypt were acute. These anxieties are now removed and the British guarantee and pledge that Egypt would effectively be defended against all comers has been in every way made good."

The Cairo communique said eight Italian planes were shot down yesterday, and "one unidentified aircraft on the ground was destroyed." One British plane failed to return to its base, but another reported missing Tuesday returned.

Retreating Men Machine-gunned.

The aerial activity, the communique reported, was intense, the R. A. F. bombing every Italian airdrome within range of their planes and machine-gunning Black Shirt troops in retreat. The Italians were thrown into "utter confusion," the communique declared.

The Italian force bottled up by the British break-through to the seacoast west of Sidi Barrani, consists of two divisions of from 14,000 to 17,000 men each, according to Ministry of Information spokesmen, who added that two divisional commanders and the corps commander have already been captured in Sidi Barrani, along with large stocks of war materials.

The corps commander was stated to be Gen. Sebastiano Gallina and the divisional commanders, Gen. Amando Pescatore and Gen. Mazzari.

DEC 13 1940

Sudden Attacks Win.

The spokesmen said that the British success had been won by three sudden attacks: A smash along the coastline at the Italian left flank, a heavy blow at Maktila in the center, and a thrust at the right flank which swept around northward to the coast at Buqbuq.

A large part of the prisoners taken were in Sidi Barrani, where the Italians had been building reserves of war material, it was stated, since they occupied the town on September 18. The Italians began their invasion of Egypt just three months ago today.

Close collaboration between the army, navy and Royal Air Force was a marked feature of the British operations, which were entirely successful, these spokesmen said.

Warships Blast Coast.

Meanwhile today the Admiralty reported that the Royal Navy "continually harassing Italian communications" in an effort to disorganize the Italian retreat in North Africa, had "heavily bombarded the focal points of the Italian retreat at Salum near the Libyan-Egyptian frontier and Bardia on the Libyan coast."

Other British ships, it was...

nounced, fought a duel with the Italian coastal batteries at Chisimaio, Italian Somaliland.

Headquarters of the Free French forces of Gen. Charles de Gaulle reported last night that Free French units participated in the capture of Sidi Barrani yesterday.

Reuters, the British news agency, declared in a dispatch from New Delhi today that Indian troops also played a prominent part in the Sidi Barrani operations.

Fierce Fighting at Buqbuq.

ROME, Dec. 12 (A. P.).—Fierce fighting in the Buqbuq zone of western Egypt, west of Sidi Barrani, with heavy losses on the British and Italian sides alike, was reported by the Italian High Command today.

The communique did not state whether Sidi Barrani had been evacuated by the Italians.

The High Command asserted in part:

"Operations are still under way in North Africa. Again yesterday fierce fights took place west of Sidi Barrani, in the Buqbuq zone. Losses in men and equipment inflicted on the enemy are considerable, as are also ours."

The communique also revealed that the British again attempted to invade the Tessenei zone in Eritrea with tanks and armored cars. They were repulsed, however, the report said.

A British post, identified only as being on the Sudan Frontier, was wiped out, it was reported.

A British cruiser appeared at Chisimaio, Italian Somaliland, the High Command asserted, and fired several shots on the city, without causing damage. The cruiser in turn was reported hit by the Italian coast defense batteries.

Surprised Foe at Breakfast

WITH THE BRITISH IN EGYPT, Dec. 10 (Delayed) (AP).—The advance British troops who opened the present offensive against Marshal Graziani's forces took the Italians entirely by surprise after skillfully executed preparatory moves had carried them undetected across seventy-five miles of desert wasteland.

So great was the surprise effected in the British operations that ordinary movements of provisions were intercepted in some of the Italian camps, and the men were surrounded while they were still eating breakfast.

On Monday morning the British attacked outposts of the seventy-mile long "beach" of desert which the Italians occupied just three months ago—Maktila, on the coast, fifteen miles east of Sidi Barrani, and Nibeiwa, fifteen miles south of Sidi Barrani, taking both places in a few hours' fighting.

Four hundred prisoners were taken Monday morning and, as the British pressed forward, the number ran well over a thousand. Through all that night the fighting went on, the British rounding up Italian units cut off from the main force.

On Tuesday the British shot forward again, principally in a big wheeling movement south of Sidi Barrani, then in a swift dash to the Mediterranean. This was highly successful.

The heaviest R. A. F. raid in the Near East since the war began was made on the Benina airfield Sunday night, when bombs were dropped for twelve hours straight.

BRITISH PUSH DESERT ATTACK TOWARD LIBYA

Prisoners Declared Falling By Thousands Into English Hands

Mop-Up Operations Are Reported Around Sidi Barrani

[By the Associated Press]

Cairo, Egypt, Dec. 12 — Italian prisoners of war were declared tonight by a British spokesman to be falling so rapidly by thousands into British hands that the problem of feeding and eventually moving them out of the desert is becoming troublesome.

The day's operations were twofold:

Around Sidi Barrani, the Italian base that fell yesterday, the British were occupied with clearing up a battlefield which had extended over 200 square miles.

Those Fascists who had escaped the British encirclement—and their number was said here to be small—were being pushed westward toward Italian Libya, harassed by the Royal Air Force and the navy as well as the land forces.

Over 20,000 Taken

A spokesman at British headquarters said the official estimate of at least 20,000 Italians already captured could not yet be extended because of the difficulty of keeping in touch with the continuing successes of British troops.

Among the vast quantities of tanks, lorries and arms of all sorts captured from the fleeing Italians, he said, the lorries would be especially helpful in the transport of British troops.

There was no confirmation of rumors that Salum, the Italian position just within Egypt, beyond the Libyan frontier, had fallen to the British.

Black Shirts Captured

It was understood that a number of Black Shirts (Fascist militiamen) were among the British prisoners, as well as some Libyan natives. Hundreds of officers have been taken.

In addition to attacking the retreating Italians, the Royal Air Force was declared to have kept up a constant series of raids upon all Fascist advanced airdromes in Libya, preventing aircraft from taking off in many instances and destroying planes on the ground.

The Italians appeared to be using their fighter craft mainly in defense against the British pilots who were supporting the British advance. Total Fascist plane losses in three days of fighting were put by the British at more than forty "for certain." In the same period the British acknowldged the loss of only four planes.

Wavell And Wilson Confer

General Sir Archibald P. Wavell, the British Middle Eastern commander, and Air Chief Sir Arthur Murray Longmore visited advanced headquarters in the desert today for a long conference with General Sir Maitland Wilson and Air Commodore Raymond Collishaw.

The Italian campaign in the East and the present British offensive is declared to have cost Italy five generals.

One, General Lustracci, was captured in Libya within a few days after Italy's declaration of war. Three others were taken prisoner in the region of Sidi Barrani yesterday. A fifth, Gen. Pietro Maletti, was killed on the first day of the British action. He was considered second only to Marshal Rodolfo Graziani as an expert in desert warfare.

Surprised At Breakfast

Edward Kennedy, Associated Press correspondent with the British forces, reported today in a delayed dispatch that the British fell upon the Italians with such suddenness at the beginning of the offensive Monday that many Fascist soldiers were surrounded at breakfast. Italian movements of provisions were intercepted, he said.

In the first morning of the fighting he added, 400 Italian prisoners were taken and that number soon ran to well above a thousand.

Reporting on operations as of Tuesday, Kennedy said that at that time more than 200 Italian cars had been captured or destroyed. So intensive had been British air action, he went on, that up to some time Tuesday not a single Italian plane had been observed over the desert camp where he is quartered.

Italians Reported Driven From Most Of Coastline

London, Dec. 12 (AP)—The British have driven the Italian invaders from virtually all of the Egyptian coastline, seized more than 20,000 prisoners—probably thousands more—and the royal navy and air force are pouring fire and steel upon the last of its from that area of Fascist disaster, it was officially declared today.

This outline of the first big British offensive of the war was drawn by Winston Churchill as victory "of the first order" after days of official reserve—was drawn by the Prime Minister himself and the communiques sent here by the Egyptian command.

Expect To Seize 3 Divisions

Aside from the 20,000-odd Fascist soldiers estimated by the British Middle Eastern headquarters to be prisoners of war, Churchill declared that in the rough noose now being drawn by British armored units "it would not be surprising if at least the best part of three Italian divisions, including numerous Blackshirt formations, had been either destroyed or captured."

He made no effort to put this hapless force in terms of numbers of men, but an Italian division usually runs from 14,000 to 17,000—and the total number of Italians in Egypt had been estimated by British sources in the past at 80,000.

Anxiety Now Removed

"The whole episode," the Prime Minister told the House of Commons in its most exultant session in many a day, "must be judged upon the background of the fact that it is only three or four months ago that our anxieties for the defense of Egypt were acute.

"These anxieties are now removed and the British guarantee and pledge that Egypt would be effectively defended against all comers has been in every way made good."

The position tonight, according to official sources both here and in Cairo, was this:

The Italians still held out at only one or two points along the eighty-five miles of Egyptian coast which they had taken in an offensive sprung early in the autumn from adjoining Italian Libya, and a general retreat was declared developing.

Smash Toward Libya

Some units of the British mechanized army were striking at the last of these Italian-held pockets; others, in pursuit of fleeing Italians, were smashing westward toward Libya; the Mediterranean fleet was shelling what the Admiralty called "the focal points of the Italian retreat" at Salum and at Bardia, on the Libyan coast.

The British air force, operating on a twenty-four-hour schedule, was declared already to have dropped several tons of bombs upon Salum, which lies just beyond the Libyan frontier within Egypt, and to have machine-gunned the retreating Fascist troops along the Salum road, along with a dozen other Italian outposts and air fields, throwing the Fascists "into utter confusion."

Sidi Barrani Victory Hailed by Eden

LONDON, Dec. 12 (A. P.).—Major Anthony Eden, the Secretary for War, and Lieut.-Gen. Sir John Dill, chief of the Imperial General Staff, sent the following message of congratulation today to Gen. Archibald P. Wavell, commander of British forces in the Middle East:

"On behalf of all ranks of the army serving at home and in other theaters, we send to you and all under your command congratulations on your victory (at Sidi Barrani). Your brilliant stroke has delighted us all and filled us with pride."

vaded Egypt, could effect a retreat.

The question then was whether the encircling positions which Gen. Wilson's forces had captured after their brilliantly executed desert march could be effectively maintained, and whether the net so drawn could be forced at all points to the seashore.

The strong position of Sidi Barrani and various fortified posts in this neighborhood appeared to be a considerable obstacle.

However, Sidi Barrani has been captured and the whole coastal region, with the exception of one or two points still holding out, is in the hands of British and Imperial troops.

Seven thousand prisoners have already reached Matruh so far. We do not know yet how many Italians were caught in the encirclement, but it would not be surprising if at least the best part of three Italian divisions, including numerous Black Shirt formations, had been either destroyed or captured.

As Sidi Barrani was the advanced base of all the Italian forces which had invaded Egypt and were preparing for further inroads, it seems probable that considerable masses of material may be found there.

I may be able next week to make a fuller statement.

In the mean while the pursuit to the westward continues with the greatest vigor. The air force are bombing and the navy are shelling the principal road open to the retreating enemy, and considerable additional captures have already been reported, besides those which fell in the original encirclement.

While it is too soon to measure the scale of these operations, it is clear they constitute a victory which, in this African theater of war, is of the first order and which reflects the highest credit upon Sir Archibald Wavell, Sir Maitland Wilson, staff officers who planned this exceedingly complicated operation, and upon troops who performed the remarkable feat of endurance and daring which accompanied it.

The whole episode must be judged upon the background of fact that it is only three or four months ago that our anxieties for the defense of Egypt were acute.

These anxieties are now removed, and the British guaranty and pledge that Egypt would effectively be defended against all comers has been in every way made good.

Churchill's Report on Victory

LONDON, Dec. 12 (AP).—The complete text of Prime Minister Winston Churchill's remarks in the House of Commons today on the British offensive in North Africa follows:

The House last Tuesday evidently appreciated the full significance of the fact which I announced, without commenting upon it, that a British column had reached the coast between Buqbuq and Sidi Barrani. That, of course, cut through the principal road by which the main body of the Italian Army, which had in-

Birmingham Heavily Raided

New Night Attack on Midlands Begun After Destructive Assault on Industrial City.

LONDON, Dec. 12 (A. P.).—Nazi warplanes opened an attack on the Midlands area tonight after thrusting twice during the day at London without penetrating the capital's defenses.

Bombs were dropped on one Midlands town. The planes then moved over to other areas, where they ran into fierce anti-aircraft fire. Additional planes were reported over the northeast section and over Liverpool.

The industrial Birmingham area and other Midlands towns were hammered last night with high explosives and incendiaries.

London was under air raid alarm overnight for fourteen hours.

Sirens sounded the almost nightly alert over London early tonight and gunfire broke out immediately. Three flares were dropped in a line over one London district.

Raiders also were reported over towns in the Midlands and over a city in northwest England.

Among buildings hit in the Birmingham area were six churches, eleven schools, two movie theaters, private homes and public shelters, according to British reports (which seldom tell of military objectives hit by raiders). Considering the scale of the Midlands attacks, the casualties were not believed to have been heavy.

Mother, Father and Son Killed.

Some casualties were suffered when an auxiliary fire service station was hit and the staff of an air raids precautions depot were buried under debris resulting from a direct hit, but all were rescued alive.

A war reserve policeman was killed in another section.

In another Midland town, a husband, wife and son were all killed when a bomb struck their home.

Following the usual pattern, the first night raiders dropped incendiaries, which guided the second wave with its explosives. Many fires were started, but were quickly extinguished or brought under control, the British said.

The anti-aircraft barrage in the Birmingham area was heavier than ever before there since the start of the air siege.

Four Enemy Planes Shot Down.

The Government reported four enemy aircraft destroyed today.

During the daylight stabs at London, Thames-side batteries blasted at the first formation, which flew too high to be seen by ordinary observers. The volume of the engine drone, however, indicated that it was large.

The second formation was heard flying up the estuary a few minutes later.

Then followed the noise of two separate air battles. They lasted only a short time and the raiders were repulsed.

Only one bomb was dropped on the London area during the day's raids. A German flying at a great height unleashed this harmlessly in an open field as he was being driven off by Hurricane fighters.

Shopping Center Machine-gunned.

While a lone Messerschmitt made a hit-and-run attack on a southeast coastal town before noon, machine-gunning one place and dropping one bomb which missed and fell into the sea, a number of other raiders crossed the coast at great height.

This afternoon two Messerschmitt 109 fighters machine-gunned the shopping centers of a southeast coastal town. The raiders dived in from the sea and skimmed the roof tops. They fired six bursts each which broke a few windows and shattered roof slates.

Many pedestrians had narrow escapes, but none was hurt.

The Germans flew at less than 300 feet for nearly three miles before they were forced into the clouds by machine-gun fire from cliff posts.

Last night's raid on London, which opened around 6 P. M., ended the longest bombless period—two days and two nights—which the capital has had since the aid siege began last August. Bad weather over the Nazi bases across the channel was said to have grounded the raiders.

Eton College Suffers.

Meanwhile today it was disclosed for the first time that parts of historic Eton College dating back to the fifteenth century, the Bristol Guild Hall and Assize Court and the Wembley Stadium pitch, used for the soccer cup finals, were damaged in recent raids.

Some of the oldest parts of Eton—including the schoolyard and the headmaster's house—were damaged. Valuable stained glass in the school chapel was blown out and shattered.

Classrooms built by Sir Christopher Wren and the school offices below them were wrecked by a delayed action bomb. The school's world war memorial also was damaged.

The old Crown Court at the Bristol Guild Hall was destroyed.

Munitions Plant Reported Hit

BERLIN, Dec. 12 (A. P.).—DNB, official German news agency, said today that strong units of the German air force bombed a munitions plant at Birmingham, England, last night "with success." Smaller groups attacked London and Liverpool, the agency said.

London, Friday, Dec. 13 (AP)—German bombers, guided to their targets by incendiaries, inflicted damage and a number of casualties last night and early today in raids on east Midlands and northeastern industrial areas which hitherto had escaped bombings.

A town in the northeast reported that high-explosive bombs, preceded by incendiaries, caused a number of casualties during the night in the first raid of the war on that community. Fires were started amidst industrial and commercial property, it was said, but were put out promptly.

British fighter planes went up to challenge the waves of Nazi craft which poured across the east coast and spread out to raid scattered areas.

Additional waves came over the southeast coast, and the Midlands again appeared to be getting it hard.

Fierce anti-aircraft barrages followed the path of high-flying raiders.

London's night-time alert was followed by hours of intermittent gunfire, but there were no reports of

Sheffield Chief Nazi Target In Night Raids, Says Berlin

Heavy Attack On Britain's Steel Center Reported. Other Areas Hitherto Unscathed, Bombed

[By the Associated Press]

Berlin, Friday, Dec. 13—Large German bombing units picked Sheffield, the great steel center in the east English Midlands, as the center of their night attacks on Britain, informed sources reported early today.

Since the fall of darkness, it was stated, German planes had been leaving bases in France and Belgium in uninterrupted succession for the assault. The weather was reported bad in the Channel region, but more favorable over the Midlands.

Bombs of the heaviest caliber were dropped on steel mills and other industrial plants, it was said. Returning pilots reported several large fires were seen within a few hours after the raid started.

The raid was described as comparable to the fierce ones against Coventry, Birmingham and London recently.

Nazis Bomb English Towns Heretofore Unscathed

bomb damage in the capital during the first four hours of the night raid.

The all-clear sounded before dawn in the London area after guns had been silent for some time and a heavy mist had developed.

A church and a furniture factory were destroyed in one Midlands town; incendiary bombs were dropped on a northeastern locality, but the result, authorities said, was not serious.

The east Midlands region was bombed both during the day and night, the raiders spreading after dark to other sections of the center of the kingdom.

They cruised across the island to Liverpool and were over the northeast, as well. It was the familiar follow up to Wednesday night's concentrated attack on Birmingham, which destroyed or damaged six churches, eleven schools, two theaters and many private homes and public shelters.

Kep High By Defense Fire

Again last night the Midlands anti-aircraft defenses kept the raiders high.

Small squadrons of German fighters and fighter-bombers stabbed across the Kentish coast at London during the day. The Air Ministry said that they were largely intercepted and that three were shot down, but some bombs were dropped in outer London and elsewhere in southeast England.

A fourth raider, this one a bomber, was downed in the southwest. Two fighters machine-gunned the shopping section of a coastal town in the southeast.

Parts Of Eton School Damaged

Early in the night London again was under attack, the sirens sounded before 6.30 P. M. and the anti-aircraft guns began to cough. Flares were dropped early in one district.

During the day it was disclosed that parts of famous Eton School had been damaged in recent air raids, also the Bristol Guild Hall and Assize Court and Wembley Stadium in outer London.

British Bomb Mannheim

British flyers for their part sprayed high explosive and incendiary bombs Wednesday night on Mannheim, important German inland port and chemical manufacturing center, the Air Ministry reported, and attacked French "invasion ports" and German airdromes.

Listing results of the raids, the ministry's news service said a power station at Mannheim was hit, that fires broke out in the city and heavy explosions were heard as the planes turned homeward.

Docks Hammered

Mannheim's docks on the Rhine river and its railroad yards likewise were bombed. The city is a shipping center for southwest Germany with a heavy trade in grain, coal and petroleum.

Bombs were loosed on docks at Calais and Boulogne, French Channel ports, and the much smaller wharves at Etaples, the Air Ministry said, adding that those ports were "badly knocked out" during Wednesday night.

Other German airdromes in French occupied territory were attacked along with additional power stations, inland docks and railway yards in western Germany, it was said.

One raiding plane was lost, the ministry acknowledged.

Sheffield Birthplace Of Modern Steel Industry

The city of Sheffield, reported by Berlin the latest target of Nazi air raiders, may well be called the birthplace of the modern steel industry.

As far back as the days of the Normans, and probably back to the Roman era, iron was made from the ores of the Don valleys around Sheffield. By the fourteenth century the town had become famous for its cutlery.

It was in Sheffield in 1740 that Benjamin Huntsman introduced his process for manufacture of cast steel and paved the way for the far more important Bessemer process, the foundation upon which the world's steel industry was built.

R. A. F. PILOT BLEW NAZI PLANE TO BITS

Relates Amazing Effect of New Fighter Cannon.

LONDON, Dec. 12 (A. P.).—The Air Ministry related today how a British fighting plane, newly equipped with cannon, shelled a German Messerschmitt raider which "exploded into little bits in the air like a bursting anti-aircraft shell."

A twenty-one-year-old R. A. F. pilot, the Air Ministry said, scored the first victory with the new armor-piercing cannon in an attack with three other R. A. F. planes against ten to fifteen Messerschmitt 109's.

"At fifteen miles over the channel, I got them within range with my cannon," the pilot said. "I fired a few rounds at one, but missed—perhaps because I was overtaking him so quickly. So I turned my attention to another German. This time, from dead astern, I fired very deliberately with my cannon.

"What happened was like nothing I had ever seen before—not even in the pictures. I gave him two short bursts. The cannon shells went boom-boom and one must have struck his petrol tank.

"The Messerschmitt 109 exploded in front of me like a bursting anti-aircraft shell. There was a quick flash, a cloud of black smoke, and bits were flying through the air. The stuff was simply dripping out of the sky.

"I broke away and looked around. The smoke quickly dispersed, and of all the pieces falling around me there wasn't one I could recognize as any part of an airplane.

"It was the most amazing sight I have ever seen."

CAPT. B. H. LIDDELL HART

Aldershot, England, Dec. 12 (AP)—A powerful mechanized army "operating under the wings of a supreme air force" is the only means of producing a military decision in the war with the Axis, Capt. B. H. Liddell Hart, noted British military commentator, declares in his latest book.

The sixty-four-page volume called "Dynamic Defense" has attracted wide attention in British military circles, and the Times termed it "an event."

Denouncing military conservatism which he said blocked for twenty years attempts to mechanize the British army, Liddell Hart wrote:

"Happily, this . . . belongs to the past. Its errors have been made manifest by events."

Juliana's Consort Buys Planes for Dutch

Birmingham to King: 'It's Nice To Be Alive'

LONDON, Dec. 12 (AP).—King George VI picked his way around bomb craters in the streets of Birmingham today, less than twelve hours after the third big German attack on that important Midlands industrial center. A crowd pressed around the monarch as he surveyed damaged buildings and flattened homes.

"We're not downhearted, your majesty; it's nice to be alive," said a Mrs. Ashford, who had just dug herself from the ruins of her home."

"It is, indeed," the King replied.

FIRM ON FOOD BAN

Britain Puts Lives of Its Own People First.

LONDON, Dec. 12 (A. P.).—The British Minister of Shipping, Ronald H. Cross, addressed a radio broadcast to the United States last night, on the subject of feeding Europeans now under German rule. He said the food could be sent "only at the cost of the lives of British men, women and children."

Thus, he continued, the choice lies between "their stomachs or our lives. We put the lives of our people first."

"Germany," he declared, "has got to feed these people."

Asks Planes for Royal Navy

Southby, in Commons, Demands Action to Guard Britain on West

LONDON, Dec. 12 (AP).—Sir Archibald R. Southby, Conservative, asked in the House of Commons today that immediate steps be taken to turn over adequate air bases and a proper supply of planes to the fleet air arm for the protection of the vital western approaches to the British Isles.

Clement R. Attlee, Lord Privy Seal, replied that aircraft and airdromes already were being administered by the coastal command, working in close co-operation with the Royal Navy.

The House went into executive session later to discuss the shipping problem.

Heights Near Tepeleni Stormed, Greeks Report

Desperate Italian Resistance In Region Declared Crushed—Many Alpine Troops Taken Captive, Says Athens

[By the Associated Press]

Athens, Dec. 12—The Greek southern army has crushed "desperate" Italian resistance in the region of Tepeleni and has stormed the heights to the northeast of that town, capturing a considerable number of Italy's Alpine troops, a Government spokesman said tonight.

The drive toward both Tepeleni and the coastal town of Chimara went on without setback, he added.

There were unconfirmed reports that an Italian colonel of Alpine troops was one of those who had fallen in the day's fighting.

Resistance Declared Crushed

"The news," said the spokesman, "is very good from all sectors of the front and our army is continuing its advance.

"Everywhere the Italians attempted to counter-attack they have failed.

"Thrusts against the Italian army continue in the direction of Chimara. More to the right the Italians are in retreat in the direction of Tepeleni. In this region the resistance has been stiff and sometimes desperate but has been crushed.

"Farther to the right the Italians offered strong resistance. They employed Alpine troops. Nevertheless, our army was able to occupy one after another of the heights which select units defended, and we captured a considerable number of them."

Prisoners And Booty Claimed

Two counter-attacks launched by the Italians on the northern front were declared thrown back and the Italians to have lost even their original positions. The capture of a large number of prisoners and much war material was claimed.

To the northeast, the Greeks said their troops occupied important heights around Premet. This column and the one nearer the coast apparently were coordinating drives aimed at the capture of Tepeleni, road junction twenty miles south of Tirana, Albanian capital.

[Associated Press Editor's Note—The Italian high command reported that its forces had repulsed sporadic Greek attacks and that Greek prisoners and arms had been captured.]

Italian prisoners were quoted as saying the British and Greek air forces had forced the Fascists to abandon the airdromes at Durazzo, main Italian port of debarkation, and Tirana. Temporary air bases were reported under construction farther behind the lines.

A reconnaissance pilot also brought back a report that bombing had made Valona, secondary port of entry into Albania, virtually useless for large vessels, with piers and jetties pulverized.

A communique of the Greek Ministry of Home Security said:

"Enemy aviation today bombed Lefka (on Cyprus). There were no casualties, and small damage to buildings."

Greeks Hurl Italians Back On North Front in Albania

Athens Reports Capture of Many Prisoners and Highly Important Peak—R. A. F. Pounds Fascist Airdromes.

ATHENS, Dec. 12 (A. P.).—Italian forces were reported today to have attempted counter-attacks at two points in the northern sector of the Albanian front, only to be driven back by the Greeks with heavy losses and lose the positions from which they attacked. The Greeks were said to have captured a large number of prisoners and much war material.

Italian prisoners were quoted as saying that British Royal Air Force and Greek attacks on the airdromes at Durazzo and Tirana, main port of entry into Albania and the capital, respectively, had been so effective that the Italians had abandoned the fields.

Fascist engineers were said to be building temporary fields from which to operate against and behind the encroaching Greek lines. Bad weather has curtailed air activity of both sides in the last two days.

A pilot of a reconnaissance plane reported that damage at Valona, a secondary port of entry into Albania, had rendered use of the harbor impracticable for large vessels. Piers and jetties were said to have been turned into masses of splinter wood and rubble.

The Greek forces driving up the south Albanian coast from Porto Edda toward the heights of Chimara, twenty miles to the north, are meeting no serious resistance from the retreating Italians, a Greek spokesman declared today.

"In the region of Premet and north of Premet the Greek drive toward the interior of Albania continued in spite of snow and rain, and Greek troops succeeded in occupying heights of very great strategic importance," he asserted.

"More to the north, the enemy was thrown back from very strong positions, 6,000 feet high, which the enemy defended seriously. So great was the importance of this height that the Italians tried a counter-attack with picked troops, but they were repelled with serious losses."

Hear of Greek Reverses.

BELGRADE, Dec. 12 (A. P.).—Advices from Ohrid, on the Yugoslav border, said today that the Italians had wiped out minor Greek gains northwest of Moskopole and west of Pogradetz, at the northern end of the Albanian front, where the Greeks are concentrating in a drive on Elbasani.

Says Attacks Were Repelled.

ROME, Dec. 11 (A. P.).—Reporting on the Albanian war, the Italian High Command stated today that the Italians had repulsed sporadic Greek attacks with the capture of prisoners and arms.

CLAIMS BRITISH ARE TRYING TO WRECK MORALE

Charges Agents Inside Italy Spread "Insidious" Propaganda

Radio Admits Fall Of Sidi Barrani, But Says "What Of It"

[By the Associated Press]

Rome, Dec. 12—Fascist newspapers warned the Italian people tonight against "false news of imaginary catastrophies" for Italian arms, which, it was charged, British agents inside Italy are spreading in an attempt to destroy morale.

Widespread publication was given to news that Adelchi Serena, secretary of the Fascist party, had talked with the former leaders of Fascist "action squads." These were the party's street-fighting forces in the early days of Fascism.

The Rome radio tonight conceded the fall of Sidi Barrani, the key Italian base in Egypt, although the high command did not. The speaker added:

"What of it?"

No Outward Signs Of Alarm

Outward signs of alarm over the British attack were lacking.

However, Virginio Gayda, the frequent press voice of Premier Mussolini, used three columns in il Giornale d'Italia to accuse British propaganda agents inside this country of combining with the foreign radio to retail "insidious" reports of Fascist reverses.

These agents are "more or less identified," he said, and are backing up an "unusual" concentration of armed forces with which the British hope to break Italy.

British "Need For Good News"

Gayda declared this underground action was motivated by the British "need for good news," British desire to increase American faith in a British victory, and a British design to impose "a war of nerves" on Italy.

He said the propaganda was cracking up on the rock of Italian firmness.

As for the Greek campaign, the press reported that the new chief of general staff, Gen. Ugo Cavallero, and the commander in chief in Albania, Gen. Ubaldo Soddu, were reestablishing a more favorable situation for the Italians.

Enemy Attacks "Smashed"

Regime Fascista asserted "new enemy attacks have been smashed by our heroic resistance and everything lets us hope for our imminent recovery."

The high command added that "sporadic" Greek attacks had been repelled, and that prisoners and arms had been captured.

Roberto Farinacci, outspoken editor of Regime Fascista, harked back to the recent resignation of Marshal Pietro Badoglio as chief of the general staff and indicated that Badoglio was telling friends he had opposed the Greek campaign from the start and that more divisions were needed to launch it than he possessed.

Today he stressed that no one must blame the "political command," in the hands of il Duce, for the reverses in Greece and Albania, since "it was the duty of the technical military organization to carry out the war."

General Replaced

Badoglio's resignation, on December 6, was followed the next day by the replacement of Gen. Cesare Mario de Vecchi, Count di val Cismon, as commander of the strategic Italian-fortified Dodecanese islands, which lie between Greece and Turkey.

In the same swift sequence, Italy decreed imprisonment and crop confiscation for recalcitrant farmers, threatened laggard mine owners with loss of their concessions and ordered a speed-up in the production of war materials.

Just previously Italy had effected an agreement under which she will increase her food exports to her German ally.

It is just over half a year since Italy went to war with Britain and her then-tottering ally, France. Now Fascism is engaged in critical combat, not only in the battle of Britain itself, but in Africa and Albania.

GAYDA ANNOYED BY PROPAGANDA

Says British Try to Break Italy on Home Front.

CHARGES AGENTS ARE USED

Farinacci Hints Badoglio Talked Against Invasion of Greece.

ROME, Dec. 12 (A. P.).—Virginio Gayda, authoritative Fascist editor, declared today that Britain had attempted to break Italy in the military field with "unusual armed forces" and on the home front by radio propaganda and "some agents more or less known."

The propaganda offensive, Gayda asserted, had failed. The editor did not say whether the "agents" were foreign or Italian.

"This insidious operation," the editor declared, "which the British would like to carry out today with the aid of foreign radio and some agents more or less known inside the country breaks again in face of the firmness of Italians."

30.24-6379

Editorials in all newspapers warned Italians against "false news of imaginary catastrophes" which Gayda, in his three-column editorial, said was British-inspired.

Echo of Street Fighting Days.

Widespread publication was given to the information that Public Works Minister Adelchi Serena had talked with former leaders of the Fascist action squads, which constituted the party's street fighting force in the early days of Fascism.

Gayda said that Britain's concentration of forces against Italy, which he described as exceptional, was motivated by three reasons, which he listed as follows:

1. Because the English needed good news badly.

2. Because they needed to increase American faith in Britain's chances of victory.

3. Because they wanted to impose a war of nerves on Italy.

The Gayda statements, an editorial in Il Giornale d'Italia, did not say whether by agents the editor meant foreign provocateurs or Italian pessimists, against whom other editorial writers have written.

FARINACCI TAKES SLAP AT BADOGLIO

Editor Hints Marshal Talked Against Greek Campaign.

ROME, Dec. 12 (A. P.).—Roberto Farinacci, editor of Il Regime Fascista, indicated today that Marshal Pietro Badoglio, who resigned last week as Italian Chief of Staff, had told friends that he was opposed to the Italian campaign in Greece and that more divisions were needed to start it than he had at his disposal.

The editor absolved "the political command" in the hands of Premier Mussolini of responsibility and indicated blame of Badoglio without using his name.

Farinacci, who first accused the High Command of "untimeliness and improvidence" on November 23, wrote today:

"Some one who should have had every reason to keep still went around declaring in drawing rooms, hunting preserves and to clusters of his beneficiaries that he did not want the undertaking and a greater number of divisions would be necessary to carry it out.

"It is well then that it be known that that 'some one' assumed the undertaking without reservations to carry out the action to the finish with forces already existing in Albania. Everything else is contrary to the truth."

It would be "infantile," Farinacci wrote, to try to lay responsibility on the political command when it is the duty of the technical military organization to carry out the war. The Government, he said, has not spared money on the army, having spent 170,000,000,000 lire (nominally $8,500,000,000) in preparing it.

It would be "infantile," Farinacci wrote, to try to lay responsibility on the political command when it is the duty of the technical military organization to carry out the war. The Government, he said, has not spared money on the army, having spent 170,000,000,000 lire (nominally $8,500,000,000) in preparing it.

Therefore the Government "had the right to armed forces which would find themselves in full war efficiency at a time of hard testing," Farinacci declared. Regime Fascista joined all other Italian papers in saying it was indispensable that the Italian people should be heart and soul with the army at this time.

NAZIS REPORT 6 SHIPS SUNK

U-Boat Claims 4 Vessels in Attack on Convoy.

NORWEGIAN SEIZED IN EAST

German Prize Crew Brings Freighter to Japan.

BERLIN, Dec. 12 (A. P.).—A German submarine was reported today to have ferreted out a British convoy and sunk four ships totaling 30,000 tons.

Also today a Nazi dive bomber was credited by DNB, the official German news agency, with sinking a 2,000-ton ship with two direct hits southeast of Clacton-on-Sea, and a tanker heading for the Thames was reported bombed and sunk.

A third ship of 1,500 tons was damaged by German planes and left sinking, DNB declared.

Seized by Nazis in Indian Ocean.

TOKIO, Dec. 12 (A. P.).—The 8,310-ton Norwegian tanker Ole Jacob was reported today to have been captured in the Indian Ocean by a German raider, brought to Kobe by a prize crew and then to have sailed for an unknown destination.

The whereabout of the Norwegian crew was unknown.

The reports said that the raider was flying the British Union Jack, and halted the Ole Jacob ostensibly for inspection purposes before disclosing her real identity. Official spokesmen here said they had no knowledge of the incident.

Dutch Destroyer Seizes Nazi.

LONDON, Dec. 12 (A. P.).—The Admiralty announced today that "the Royal Netherlands ship Van Kinsbergen, Commander J. L. K. Howeke, yesterday intercepted the German steamship Rhein, 6,031 tons, in West Indian waters."

Continuing, the communique said:

"The crew of the Rhein set their ship on fire and attempted to scuttle her. This was frustrated by the prompt and gallant action of the boarding party from the Van Kinsbergen.

"This incident in the western Atlantic illustrates the widespread and effective co-operation being rendered to the Royal Navy by the Royal Netherlands Navy."

Cruiser Due in Port.

MONTEVIDEO, Dec. 12 (A. P.).—The British cruiser Enterprise will arrive here tomorrow afternoon for a routine visit to take on fuel and provisions, it was announced officially today.

It also was learned officially that the Enterprise had not engaged in recent action, disposing of the supposition that she might have caught up with the German auxiliary cruiser which dueled with the British armed merchant cruiser Carnarvon Castle last week.

Last of Three Nazi Ships.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12 (A. P.).—The Dutch destroyer Van Kinsbergen, a surprise companion of British men-o'-war on Atlantic blockade duty, has accounted for the last of the three German merchant ships that recently slipped out of Tampico, Mexico. She captured the Rhein, 6,031 tons, off the coast of Cuba, the naval authorities here revealed last night, and their terse announcement was the first intimation here that Dutch warships were operating in western waters.

Another German freighter, the 5,033-ton Idarwald, which steamed out of Tampico with the Rhein on November 29, was scuttled by her crew on Sunday when intercepted by the British cruiser Diomede. On November 15 a sister ship, the Phrygia, attempted to steal out, but her master, believing he was about to be captured by enemy ships lurking outside the harbor bar, ordered his vessel scuttled. A fourth German freighter, the Orinoco, was halted by engine trouble before she could clear Tampico harbor, and is still there.

Pact Is Signed By Yugoslavia With Hungary

'Lasting Peace' Is Vowed; Both Promise to Consult on Mutual Problems

BELGRADE, Dec. 12 (AP).—Yugoslavia and Axis-aligned Hungary bound themselves today in a broad pact of "lasting peace and eternal friendship."

The accord, which provides that the two countries "consult on all questions which could concern their mutual interests," was signed after two days of negotiations between Foreign Minister Alexander Cincar-Markovich of Yugoslavia and Hungarian Foreign Minister Count Stephen Csaky.

A joint communique issued after the two officials put their signatures to the pact said the strengthening of Yugoslav-Hungarian relations would "serve the best interests of the two neighbor countries and also the well-being of the Danube Basin."

Csaky said further in a statement that the two countries "now are able to consecrate themselves to work for national consolidation, in order to do their utmost to aid the efforts of the powers whose aim it is to spare at least this part of Europe from catastrophe, and preserve values, which when bloodshed ends can be useful in re-creating the world."

In a toast at a banquet tonight Cincar-Markovich declared the accord put the basis for the whole consolidation of the Danube Basin "in harmony with two friendly and great neighbor ,powers—Germany and Italy."

Csaky said the pact "corresponds with Axis powers' idea of peaceful stablization of southeastern Europe."

The agreement, signed here by the Foreign Ministers of the two countries, read:

"Article 1. Lasting peace and eternal friendship shall exist between the kingdoms of Yugoslavia and Hungary.

"Article 2. The signatories agree to consult with regard to all questions which could concern their mutual interests.

"Article 3. The pact will become effective when the instruments of ratification have been exchanged with Budapest, and this will be done promptly."

Informed persons said that the conversations had not touched on the revision of frontiers. There were unconfirmed reports that the Bulgarian Foreign Minister, Ivan Popoff, might visit Belgrade soon in a possible Yugoslavian-Bulgarian rapprochement.

Plays Santa to War Prisoners

Claiborne Pell Leaves Lisbon for Germany With Supplies for Britons.

LISBON, Dec. 12 (A. P.).—Claiborne Pell, playing Santa Claus for British war prisoners in Germany, rolled out of Lisbon today in a motor car loaded with everything from plum puddings to bedroom slippers.

Mr. Pell, son of Herbert Claiborne Pell, the American Minister to Portugal, was accompanied by a Portuguese Red Cross mechanic, Alfredo Antonio Fonseca, in a machine owned by Anthony J. Drexel Biddle Jr., the American Ambassador to Poland. They hoped to reach the Swiss-German border by the end of next week.

The car, flying the flag of the Portuguese Red Cross, is loaded with 10,000 cigarettes, 150 plum puddings, some 440 pounds of woolen clothing, 70 pairs of shoes, 70 pairs of bedroom slippers and half a ton of foodstuff collected by the American-born Mrs. Ian Campbell, wife of a British prisoner of war.

Her husband, acknowledging receipt of the first weekly consignment of clothing, said "Every single garment is a godsend—'tis terribly cold here."

Pell's Mother Gets Letter.

Mrs. Hugo Koehler of 1140 Fifth avenue, mother of Claiborne Pell, said today she had received a letter from her son stating he had been interested in obtaining some sort of transportation to deliver packages for prisoners of war (not mentioning what prisoners) which had become piled up on piers at Lisbon. Since becoming divorced from the American Minister to Portugal, Mrs. Koehler married Hugo Koehler, former naval commander.

Young Pell, who is 2[illegible] years old was graduated from Princeton University last June. As he had a high draft number and was not likely to be called soon, he decided to visit his father in Portugal. The youth's grandmother, Mrs. Edward Padelford, mother of Mrs. Koehler, also lives at 1140 Fifth avenue.

Russia Dooms Terrorist

Sentences Dzikunsky, White Leader and Later Polish Agent

MOSCOW, Dec. 12 (AP).—The Kiev Provincial Court passed a death sentence today on Simeon Dzikunsky, chief of the Ukrainian White (anti-Soviet) Terrorist band in the Russian civil war and later an agent of the Polish Secret Service.

Dzikunsky was captured in the Soviet occupation of the western Ukraine in September, 1939. The prosecution charged that he led raids on Soviet settlements on the Kiev western frontier province in 1919 and 1920. Once, it was charged, he burned a synagogue after locking 200 persons inside.

MOSCOW REPORTS A BORDER CLASH

But Keeps Both Location and Date Secret.

MOSCOW, Dec. 12 (A. P.).—Red army border guards reported today that one man had been killed, two wounded and twenty-three captured in a frontier clash with an armed force of intruders. The location and date of the fight were not disclosed.

A dispatch to the newspaper Comsomol Pravda, describing the encounter briefly, said that two Soviet detachments halted the band at the border, received re-enforcements and then rounded up the band after a brief exchange of fire.

The Russian force was said to have suffered only one casualty, slight wounding of one of the guards.

Norway Papers Report Five Vessels Lost

Twenty-One Crew Members Missing From Tankers And Freighters, It Is Said

Oslo, Norway, Dec. 12 (Via Berlin, A.P.)—Norwegian newspapers reported today the loss of five freighters and tankers as a "result of the war." Twenty-one crew members were missing.

The freighters were listed as the Dokka, 1,168 tons; the Gro, 4,211 tons; the Snefjeld, 1,643 tons; the Filefjell, 7,616 tons, and the Strombus, 6,549 tons. The vessels had not been operating under local Norwegian control because of the war. (Presumably they were in British service.)

Tales Of Restrictions Denied At Jerusalem

Officials Join In Saying British Have Not Imposed Rules On Patriarch

Jerusalem, Dec. 12 (AP)—The Latin patriarchate and Government officials joined in emphatic assertions today that no restrictions had been imposed by the British upon the patriarch of Jerusalem, Msgr. Luigi Barlassina.

(A Vatican City news service said yesterday it had been confirmed that the British were holding the patriarch in the patriarchal palace.)

"His Beatitude's position has been respected and revered by British authorities here and absolutely no restrictions have been imposed," stated a patriarchate spokesman.

Interviewers visited the patriarchate in the old city of Jerusalem today and were neither molested nor questioned. They found Monsignor Barlassina in his book-lined study, deep in preparations for Christmas services.

Hertzog Resigns From South African Parliament

CAPE TOWN, Union of South Africa, Dec. 12 (A. P.).—Former Prime Minister J. B. M. Hertzog and N. C. Havenga, former Minister of Finance, announced their resignation today as Members of Parliament.

A few weeks ago M... signed as leade... th... Nationalist party (in which ca... ity he headed the so-called peace movement in the union, which is a British commonwealth).

Hungarian Loses First Of 7 Duels With Nazis Who Claim Insults

Budapest, Dec. 12 (AP)—Gen. Marton Lipcesy, the Hungarian Parliament's star fencer, lost the first of his seven duels today to Hungarian Nazi opponents who feel he insulted the honor or their ideology.

Lipcesy suffered a cut running from ear to mouth in four hard rounds with Ludwig Gruber.

He will wait until the wound heals before taking on his next opponent.

St. Gotthard Line Blocked

BERNE, Dec. 12 (AP).—Traffic on the railway line through famous St. Gotthard Pass between Italy and Switzerland was halted for several hours today by an avalanche, which derailed the locomotive of a freight train. The line normally carries considerable traffic in coal and other materials.

GEN. J. B. M. HERTZOG

Cape Town, Union of South Africa, Dec. 12 (AP)—Gen. J. B. M. Hertzog, who quit as Prime Minister of the Union of South Africa when Parliament rejected his plans to keep the dominion out of war, resigned from Parliament today as a result of another rebuff.

With him went his former Finance Minister, N. C. Havenga. In a joint letter to their constituents they said they were retiring to private life because the reunited Nationalist party recently disclosed a lack of confidence in them.

General Hertzog is 74, Havenga several years this junior.

Bones Of Napoleon's Son Carried To Paris On Orders Of Hitler

Vienna, Dec. 12 (AP)—... sarcophagus conta... bones ... Napoleon's only son, th... uke of Reichstadt, who was known as Napoleon II, was removed from a crypt in the Capucine Church today and carried to Paris at Adolf Hitler's orders, it was learned tonight.

With this gesture a long-cherished dream of a great number of Frenchmen was realized. For decades a French national organization has been trying to have the remains taken to the French capital to rest alongside those of Napoleon. The body of the latter was removed from St. Helena to Paris a hundred years ago.

Since his death in Vienna in 1832 the body of Napoleon's son had rested in the "Hapsburg vault" beneath the Capucine Church here, together with those of other members of the Hapsburg family.

DISPUTE IN URUGUAY OVER BASES WIDENS

Three More Ministers Quit In Opposition To U. S. Collaboration Policy

Senator Says Nation Does Not Want Repetition Of "Caribbean Treatment"

[By the Associated Press]

Montevideo, Dec. 12—The rift between President Alfredo Baldomir and opponents of collaboration with the United States in construction of naval bases for hemispheric use widened today with the resignation of three more Cabinet Ministers.

The three who quit in a body—Juan Jose Arteaga, minster of public works; Gervasio Posadas Belgrano, minister of industries, and Abalcazar Garcia, minister of public education—are members of the Nationalistic Herrerista party which has opposed the conversations with the United States.

Six Quit In 3 Weeks

They brought to six the number of Cabinet Ministers to quit within the last three weeks. Four have resigned in opposition to the policy on bases and the other two, Vice-President Cesar Charlone, Finance Minister, and Minister of Agriculture Esteban Elena, quit yesterday in a dispute over agricultural policy.

With the latest resignations came a denunciation of the United States by Senator Luis Alberto Herrera, leader of the Herreristas, who control half the votes in the Senate.

Repudiate "Yankee" Bases

"South American republics have plenty of reason to be on guard," Herrera said. "We do not want 'Caribbean treatment' repeated here. That's why we repudiate 'Yankee' bases here."

Despite the growing opposition, Baldomir, who yesterday defended the proposed bases, is confident of putting the final plan through Congress.

He could do this by the simple expedient of calling a joint session of Congress, in which his coalition would have a majority.

The resignations today came after Baldomir's pointed reference to Herrerista Cabinet members following the appearance of criticism of the United States conversations in pro-Herrerista newspapers.

Outside Opposition

Baldomir faced opposition from other South American countries as well as at home.

Argentina, Uruguay's powerful neighbor across the Rio de La Plata estuary, is understood to be the center of this opposition from abroad. The Buneos Aires Government is said to view with disfavor the prospect of a new and formidable military or naval power assuming a dominant position in the River Plata approaches.

Foreign Minister Alberto Guiani of Uurguay and Julio Roca, Argentine Foreign Minister, discussed the whole question of defense plans tonight in a meeting on the Uruguayan estate of a mutual Argentine friend.

Rumania May Seize Jewish Urban Property

BUCHAREST, Dec. 12 (A. P.).—Premier Ion Antonescu's government, which recently confiscated large Jewish properties in rural areas, was reported today to be considering expropriation of all Jewish urban real estate.

Under a new decree the government also was reported to have seized forty-five Danube ... er tugboats owned by Jews and to be preparing to seize all Jewish-owned radios.

New Russo-German Boundaries Are Approved

BERLIN, Dec. 12 (A. P.).—The boundary between Germany and Soviet Union, fixed by a mixed commission in ten months of negotiation, has been approved by both governments, DNB, official German news agency, announced today. Germany and Russia have a common frontier in Poland and along Russian-incorporated Lithuania.

RAIDS EXCHANGED OVER THAI BORDER

Hanoi Reports 2 Retaliatory Air Attacks After Town in Indo-China Is Assaulted

READY FOR A SETTLEMENT

Bangkok Says It Is Willing to Cease Fighting — Riots in Colony Ended, Vichy Says

HANOI, French Indo-China, Dec. 12 (AP)—Undeclared border warfare between French Indo-China and Thailand was reported today to have spread to the interior of both territories, with raids and counter-raids by rival air forces.

Officials here said that yesterday aircraft had raided Saravani, in the center of this French colony, and that a retaliatory attack was made immediately on Undorn and Sakolakon airports, about thirty-five miles inside Thailand.

Indo-Chinese officials said that three tons of bombs were unloaded by their pilots and that huge fires were started in both places. The extent of the damage at Saravani was not disclosed.

It was announced here, meanwhile, that communications had been re-established with Bangkok, the Thai capital, but officials said there was little prospect of a break in the diplomatic deadlock precipitated by Thai territorial claims.

Hanoi officials reiterated their willingness to attempt a negotiated settlement, but said Bangkok had shown no willingness to receive a Vichy-appointed peace and boundary commission. The commission was named in October.

Ready to Talk, Thailand Says

SINGAPORE, Straits Settlements, Dec. 12 (AP)—A Thai communique issued in Bangkok today asserted that the Thai High Command was willing to withhold further attacks in the two-month-old undeclared border warfare with French Indo-China if the French would agree to do likewise.

The communiqué also reiterated Thailand's readiness to define the frontier in accordance with international practice if the French would send negotiators to Bangkok.

A Thai Consulate official here reported that on Tuesday the Thai air force had bombed Vientiane, capital of Laos State, 280 miles southwest of Hanoi, as well as "many other" Indo-China airports, "with most satisfactory results," while Thai artillery shelled the border town of Thakhek, 265 miles southwest of Hanoi.

The report said the attacks had been reprisals for a French raid on a Thai border town in which two were killed and eight wounded. One Thai plane was reported missing after the series of raids.

FREE FRENCH LEADER

Des Chompre Establishes Headquarters in Asia.

SINGAPORE, Dec. 12 (A. P.).—Guy Quoniam des Chompre, a former French diplomatic official, established headquarters in Singapore today to direct and co-ordinate activities in the Far East of Gen. Charles de Gaulle's Free French movement.

He was on his way to join De Gaulle in London when he was ordered here.

The De Gaulle movement has been organized openly for some time in Hongkong, Shanghai and other centers in the Orient, except in French Indo-China, where a Vichy Government appointee, Admiral Jean Decoux, heads the Colonial Administration.

Axis Planning Schools To Train Nazi Police For Colonial Service

Berlin, Dec. 12 (AP)—Establishment of Axis schools to prepare German policemen for colonial service was announced today.

The instruction will start here and be continued later in Rome, and there will be several months of practical duty in the Italian colonies, the announcement said.

Training of prospective colonial officials in Germany has been going on for many months. The courses include studies in mining, forestry, medicine, transportation, native psychology, racial policies and administration.

Real Buried Treasure Arrives From China

[By the Associated Press]

New York, Dec. 12—Approximately $5,000,000 worth of antimony, buried in wooden cases years ago in the muddy bottom of the Chinese river to protect it from seizure by the Japanese, has arrived in New York by steamer and now lies in warehouses of the New York Foreign Trade Zone Operators, Inc., it was learned today.

Also newly landed in the foreign trade zone is $5,000,000 worth of tungsten ore from mines in Burma, which was rushed aboard ship at Rangoon a few weeks ago when the threat of war hung perilously low over the Far East.

Stored On Staten Island

The foreign trade zone's warehouses and piers are on Staten Island.

Antimony and tungsten both are important raw materials in the making of alloy metals.

China, an important producer of antimony, had been secretly preparing the antimony for market over a long period of years, then sinking the cases of the finished product in the China river unbeknownst to the Japanese. Resistance of the Japanese military penetration put a heavy drain on Chinese resources, so the Chinese, to raise cash, recently hauled up the cached treasure, and sent it to the United States for sale.

Tungsten Caravan

The tungsten ore from Burma was freighted over winding, mountainous Burmese roads and down to the harbor at Rangoon on the backs of donkeys, where it was loaded aboard steamer for its 8,000-mile sea voyage here.

A refinery is being set up in the foreign trade zone and the ore shortly will be taken out of the small clo... bags in which it was shipped, clea... and packed in 500-pound steel drum... to await consignment to buyers.

LORD LOTHIAN DIES SUDDENLY AFTER PLEA FOR AMERICAN HELP

British Ambassador's Demise Is Laid to Relapse From Uremic Infection--- Passes Away at Embassy.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12 (A. P.).—Lord Lothian, the British Ambassador, died today just a few hours after he had pleaded for American aid which he said would make England sure of victory over Nazi Germany. He had fought on diplomatic fronts since the war began.

Death came at 2 A. M. in the huge Georgian embassy on Washington's Massachusetts avenue. It was from there that yesterday his temporary successor, Neville Butler, carried this appeal by Lord Lothian to an audience in Baltimore:

"If you back us you will not be backing a quitter. It is for you to decide whether it is to your interest to give us whatever assistance may be necessary in order to make certain that Britain shall not fall."

Embassy Announces Death.

His embassy made this announcement on the decease of the man who has represented Great Britain's interests in the United States since four days before his country declared war on Germany:

"The British embassy deeply regrets to have to announce that the Marquess of Lothian died early this morning.

"Lord Lothian was taken ill on Sunday night and although he continued to improve during Monday and Tuesday, he suffered a relapse last night.

"The cause of death was a uremic infection."

Lord Lothian, 58 years old, had been indisposed several days. He canceled an appearance last night before the American Farm Bureau Federation in Baltimore and the speech he had prepared for delivery before the federation was read for him.

The Ambassador was attended by Luther P. Cudworth of Boston, C. S. B. (bachelor of Christian science), and Dr. Benjamin F. Weems, M. D., of Washington, who pronounced him dead and notified the coroner.

Lord Lothian was a Christian Scientist and had written much about that faith.

Hull Going to Embassy.

Secretary of State Hull, on whom Lord Lothian usually called at least once a week for long and informal talks on mutual Anglo-American problems throughout the world, arranged to go to the embassy to express his regrets. Word was sent President Roosevelt in the Caribbean.

Lord Lothian, returning recently from an official visit to London, raised publicly the question of financial aid to Great Britain by declaring his country needed "planes, munitions, ships and finances."

The question of whether to allow American food supplies to pass through the blockade for relief of civil population in German-occupied countries also was raised with his Government during his visit to London, and the Ambassador announced Tuesday night that it had been decided the blockade could not be relaxed.

The problems of the war and especially those of getting material American assistance imposed a heavy strain on the Ambassador and this was believed to have contributed to his death.

Avoiding large social functions in favor of small dinner discussions with select groups of Americans, Lord Lothian displayed an unusual understanding of Americans and American public opinion.

Opposed Propaganda.

He was said to have insisted at the beginning of the war that his country refrain from any propaganda in the United States and instead present only the facts of the war.

British censorship of American mail and shipping difficulties resulting from the blockade raised fresh problems with the United States in which the Ambassador was credited with adroit handling.

Informal and looking more like a Middle Western business man than a British Ambassador, Lord Lothian cut through diplomatic red tape in favor of direct discussion with President Roosevelt, Secretary of State Hull and other officials on many problems.

The Ambassador was a bachelor.

In the Baltimore speech Lord Lothian reiterated a stand he had taken with increasing seriousness in recent weeks—that England would triumph in the war if given American aid.

The six-foot envoy, who succeeded Sir Ronald Lindsay as the British Embassador here, had won a high place in the esteem of members of the diplomatic set.

As early as 1916 he took an important place in the British Government. In that year he became secretary to Prime Minister Lloyd George. He was known as Lloyd George's "Col. House," and was credited with having written many sections of the Versailles Treaty.

He received his title in 1930 on the death of a cousin. Besides being the Marquess of Lothian he is Lord Newbattle, Earl of Lothian, Baron Jedburgh, Earl of Ancrum, Baron Kerr of Nisbet, Baron Long-Newton and Dolphingston, Viscount of Brien, Baron Kerr of Neubattle and Baron Ker.

Lord Lothian was a Christian Scientist and had written much about that faith.

When he arrived here in August, 1939, it was his fifteenth journey to the United States. As secretary of the Rhodes Trust, he had visited forty-four of the States and prided himself on knowing something about American public opinion.

Once Believed Hitler.

Lord Lothian once believed that Adolf Hitler was "earnestly" desirous of peace, and he advocated an Anglo-German pact. He even suggested that Germany's colonies be restored to her. Then came Munich and Hitler's seizure, first of the Sudentenland, and then of all Czecho-Slovakia. From that time on, Lothian was convinced that the only way to deal with Hitler and Mussolini was through superior power.

Lord Lothian returned only recently from a visit in London and urged public discussion of financial aid to Great Britain by declaring that country's finances were running low.

Lord Lothian was attended by Dr. Luther T. Cudworth of Boston, C. S. B. (bachelor of Christian science), and Dr. Benjamin F. Weems, M. D., of Washington, who pronounced him dead and notified the coroner.

LONDON IS SHOCKED BY LOTHIAN DEATH

Envoy Was Considered Very Man Needed in U. S.

LONDON, Dec. 12 (A. P.).—The death of Lord Lothian, British Ambassador to the United States, came as a shock today to officials in London.

"It's like a plank had dropped out of things," said one.

The Ambassador had the highest confidence of his superior colleagues as the very man needed at a critical time to build up British-American relations. Official quarters said quite frankly that the death had created a severe gap in diplomatic ranks.

There was no immediate mention of possible successors.

However, the Government considered it vital that the post of Ambassador be filled without delay, it was learned reliably.

OTTAWA, Dec. 12 (A. P.).—Sir Gerald Campbell, British High Commissioner in Canada said today that the death of Lord Lothian "is a national loss suffered at a time when men of his directness, sincerity and energy are badly needed."

"His name can assuredly be inscribed on the casualty list of this war," the Commissioner said, "for he had not spared himself ever since the war broke out, and only recently he flew to Great Britain and back expressly to see for himself what the position is and thus be a better interpreter to our friends in the United States."

J. P. Moffat, the United States Minister to Canada, said: "I was shocked to learn of Lord Lothian's death in Washington. I had known him as a friend for many years. In the course of his service as British Ambassador to the United States he had won the admiration and confidence of all who dealt with him."

Tank Division's Test Run Marks It 'World's Best'

90-Mile Dash Writes Army History, General Asserts It Has No Rival Abroad

By The Associated Press

ABBEVILLE, Ala., Dec. 12.—The United States Army put a full armored division into the field today, writing a new page in Western Hemisphere military history with what officers called the world's most powerful striking force.

Ten thousand men moved out of Fort Benning after a leisurely breakfast, roared ninety miles in parallel columns by lunch time and settled down in bivouac areas at Blakely, Ga., and Abbeville, Ala.

The troops making up the 2d Armored Division traveled in 1,102 vehicles, tanks, combat cars, trucks, motorcycles and a few airplanes.

Commanded by Brig. Gen. George S. Patton jr., the march set several records.

It was the first time a full armored division had moved across country in the Western Hemisphere.

On the ninety-mile run only five tanks were stopped for repairs and four of these resumed the march before their organizations were settled in camp.

The 400 tanks were the largest concentration of this type of combat vehicles ever undertaken in the United States.

Gen. Patton, highly pleased by the performance of the division, asserted "There is nothing in the world equal to it."

He said the division was modeled somewhat along the lines of the German panzer divisions but "with improvements." The two American armored divisions are more powerful "than anything in Europe," he said, and have equipment superior both in performance and fire power.

Scout cars and combat cars are sturdier and are equipped with a mechanical device for ditch and embankment climbing "that nobody in Europe has," he added.

The 2d Armored Division moved ready to fight in any direction, on the ground or in the air. Combining training with the trip, the division sent observation cars ahead, aided by aviation.

Radio kept the officers in constant communication with all units. One tank column alone stretched over eight miles of highway. Troops were alert for "enemy" on the flanks as well as ahead.

Overcast skies apparently kept "enemy" aviation grounded but, as military police preceding the division marked off highways and blocked streets, crowds gathered.

Schools turned out when the first column roared by, and the children lined the roads, cheering and waving wildly. Negro field hands abandoned their plows and hurried for the roadside for a closer look. Two or three staring share-croppers crowded the doorway of nearly every cotton-patch shanty. Grinning tank drivers opened their sirens and made their machines fairly hop through the little towns.

More officers and men than first announced, 10,520, made the trip, which tomorrow will continue to Panama City, Fla. There were 5,250 in the Alabama column, the others in the Georgia route.

Hull Reaffirms Panama Policy On Neutral Zone

Remarks on Naval Incidents Seen Forecasting Protest by American Republics

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12 (AP).—A series of naval incidents within the Pan-American neutrality zone has agai nbrought the European war close to American shores, but there was no indication today whether concrete steps were planned to halt such occurrences.

Questioned about the seizure of the German freighter Rhein by the Netherlands destroyer Van Kinsbergen off the Cuban coast, Cordell Hull, Secretary of State, tersely reaffirmed the policy laid down under the Declaration of Panama. In that declaration, the American republics insisted that "the waters to a reasonable distance from their coasts shall remain free from the commission of hostile acts."

Mr. Hull's remarks today raised the possibility that a collective protest by all the American republics might be made to the belligerents involved in this and other recent incidents. This procedure was followed in earlier cases, including the naval battle which preceded the scuttling of the German pocket battleship Admiral Graf Spee at Montevideo.

Another possibility was a further strengthening of the neutrality patrol in American waters, but under the Panama declaration, warships engaged in this patrol have no authority to act against belligerent vessels.

The presence of Dutch warcraft in this hemisphere had not been generally known before the seizure of the Rhein by the Van Kinsbergen. The Netherlands has possessions in the West Indies — Dutch Guiana and Curacao—but it could not be learned here whether the Dutch destroyer and possibly other Netherlands warships were based at these points or in Allied British ports in that area.

Hull Denies Undue Rise In Nazi Consulate Staffs

Tells Representative Anderson Increase Are Normal

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12 (AP).—Cordell Hull, Secretary of State, told Representative John Z. Anderson, Republican, of California, in a letter today that increases in German consular officers in the Untied States "have not been out of proportion" to increases in the consular officers of other governments.

Secretary Hulls' statement was in reply to Representative Anderson's inquiry about a magazine article saying that many Germans newly in this country were operating from consular offices.

The secretary's letter which Representative Anderson placed in the Congressional Record, said in part:

"It may be mentioned that although there has been an increase in the staffs of the German consulates in the United States, these have not been out of proportion to increases in the staffs of other foreign establishments in this country.

"In view of press assertations made with specific regard to the German Consulate General at New York, I might mention that he records of the department indicate that as of October, 1939, there were nine officers and forty employees in that consulate and that as of Oct. 1, 1940, there were eight officers and forty employees.

"This department has not been unmindful of its responsibility to be informed of the activities of foreign consular representatives in this country and of determining whether such activities conform with their official status and duties in the United States."

Virgin Islands' Offer To Refugees Hits Snag

Ickes and Hull Seen at Cross Purposes on Proposal

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12 (AP).—An apparent hitch developed today over a proposal by the Virgin Islands to offer shelter there to European political refugees.

Harold L. Ickes, Secretary of the Interior, told his press conference that he favored the plan but that the State Department could not persuade itself to support it.

Cordell Hull, Secretary of State, in turn, told his press conference, in answer to a question "I don't know anything about it."

Both referred to a resolution adopted by the Islands' civic councils and forwarded to the White House and to the Interior Department offering a home on the islands to self-supporting refugees from Europe's wars.

"Naturally, the Virgin Islands couldn't take care of many refugees," Secretary Ickes said, even a few lives saved from firing squads or concentration camps worth while in these days—if only as evidence of our goodwill and our willingness to do what we can in the tragic world situation.

"I think it is regrettable to create the impression that the right of asylum for political refugees, of which this country used to be so proud, should die of inanition."

The Justice Department, he said, was amply able to weed out subversive elements and Fifth Columnists who might try to take advantage of the offer to gain eventual foothold on the mainland.

Meanwhile Rabbi Stephen S. Wise, Jewish leader, conferred with Mr. Hull on the subject of refugees. He said afterward that it was "great to find the State Department is of one mind with the Administration on the matter of fullest sympathy with the needs of refugees from Central European lands."

CONGRESS VOTE IS TO CONTROL A BRITISH LOAN

Morgenthau Will Not Seek Possible Loopholes in Johnson Act.

HAS GIVEN WORD TO SENATOR

Secretary Reiterates No Advance Has Been Asked by Agent of London Here.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12 (A. P.).—Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau declared today that the Treasury would consider lending money to Great Britain only if congressional consent was obtained.

Joining Jesse H. Jones, the Federal Loan Administrator, in defining this policy, Secretary Morgenthau said at a press conference:

"Irrespective of any interpretations any lawyers might give (of the Treasury's powers to lend money without the specific consent of Congress) I certainly would not be a party to any loan to Great Britain or any other country coming under the Johnson act without the direction of Congress."

Mr. Jones had first publicly declared the policy of congressional consent at a press conference yesterday.

Won't Seek Loopholes.

Mr. Morgenthau said that the Johnson act, which forbids loans to nations in default on world war debts, might contain some loophole permitting Government loans while prohibiting those of private interests. But the Secretary of the Treasury added:

"I don't care about the technicalities of it. I can understand the spirit of the law, and I told Senator Johnson several years ago that I would not violate the spirit of it."

Mr. Morgenthau has been conferring with Sir Frederick Phillips, Under-Secretary of the British Treasury, on the state of British finances, but he declined to say what stage the conversations had reached. He also refused to say whether President Roosevelt's return to Washington was awaited for any particular move. (Mr. Jones indicated yesterday that no decision would be made on moves to give the British financial aid until the Chief Executive returned here from his Caribbean cruise. He is expected back in a few days).

No Loan Asked Yet.

Asked whether he would go to Congress with a request for revision of the Johnson and neutrality acts to permit loans to Great Britain, Secretary Morgenthau said: "I am not prepared to say what I will or won't do. However, I must say again that no one has yet asked me for a loan."

On another aspect of international finance, Mr. Morgenthau was asked whether he would seek an extension for the $2,000,000,000 stabilization fund, the statutory life of which will expire next June 30.

"That's a couple of lifetimes away, at the pace we're living now," he replied.

Some speculation has arisen that this fund might figure in financial aid to Britain.

Question of Naval Aid.

A British plea for assistance from the United States on the seas posed a major question of aid short of war today for Mr. Roosevelt's decision upon his return from the Caribbean.

The need now for such assistance to maintain the vital food and supply lines to the beleaguered British Isles was emphasized in a speech read for the late Lord Lothian, British Ambassador, last night before the American Farm Bureau Association in Baltimore.

The speech implied that not only cargo vessels, but fighting ships, were needed for the critical year of war he saw ahead.

Some in official quarters here thought he meant merchant shipping to replace British losses and a bid for more destroyers to follow the fifty the Royal Navy obtained in the September trade which gave the United States defense base sites on British possessions in the Western Hemisphere.

Others, however, regarded it as an overture for help from the United States, perhaps in convoying ships, some arrangement for free British warships in [illegible] and elsewhere for European waters.

The latter [illegible] how the U[illegible] destroyers, of which 75 are world war ships of the type traded Britain for naval bases. New destroyers, of which 166 were listed as under construction on November 1, are joining the fleet at the rate of one every ten days.

May Be Seeking Destroyers.

There have been previous reports that the British were seeking more destroyers, but these lacked official confirmation.

President Roosevelt's great personal interest in the United States Navy was cited as an important factor to be considered. Even though a great expansion program is in progress looking to the creation of a two-ocean fleet, officials said that Mr. Roosevelt could be expected to study any such British request with extremely close care.

If the late envoy had outright naval assistance in mind, the veiled suggestion brought forth no outspoken advocates in congressional ranks immediately. The consensus of private views was that any such move would arouse a tempest on Capitol Hill.

If more limited help at sea was what he sought, his plea found support, in principle, from Senator Austin, Republican, of Vermont, the acting Republican leader.

Senator Austin told reporters that he believed the United States should grant credits to Britain and revise the neutrality act so that American ships could carry cargoes to England.

Senator Nye, Republican, of North Dakota, indicated recently that he would oppose any suggestion for American naval convoys.

C. I. O. ACCUSED OF DISRUPTING DEFENSE PLANS

Representative Ford From California Makes Charge on Floor of House

CITES STRIKE AT VULTEE

Says Labor Group Advocates and Puts in Effect Walkouts in Lumber Industries.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12 (A. P.).—Representative Leland M. Ford, Republican, of California, charged on the House floor today that the C. I. O. had done everything it possibly could to disturb, disrupt and destroy the national defense program.

In a sharp denunciation of the labor organization, Mr. Ford, answering a cry by Representative Voorhis, Democrat, of California, that he was making wild statements, declared:

"In their attempt to destroy airplane production they called a strike at Vultee; they stopped delivery of planes that are neccssary to our army for training our men.

"They are striking against the shipbuilding operators.

"There have been jurisdictional strikes that have slowed down and interfered with our national defense program.

"They are advocating and putting into effect strikes in the forests, interfering with our lumber industry.

"They have made the statement that they are going to take over all industry, including air plants, automobile plants, shipbuilding, steel plants, lumber industry and shipping, and I understand the substance of a remark made by Mr. Sidney Hillman was that 'industry had better get aboard or take the consequences.'"

Mr. Hillman, a member of the Defense Commission, also is head of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers, a C. I. O. affiliate.

"Does it seem possible, in what has been called free America," Mr. Ford asked, "that, through the leadership of the C. I. O and Sidney Hillman, this program can be stopped, our national defense program sabotaged, and this country not only left defenseless, but eventually turned over to the communists?"

Mr. Voorhis, rising just as Mr. Ford took his seat, said he objected to Mr. Ford's lumping Mr. Hillman with communists.

Mr. Ford declared that "the C. I. O. opposed the national defense program from its inception. They opposed the neutrality act," he said. "They opposed conscription, and I believe it will be conceded that [illegible] their every act they have done [illegible] possibly could to [illegible] and destroy the national defense program."

"The time has come," he added, "when the C. I. O. movement, with their sit-down strikes, their communistic European tactics, will have to go, and I hope before this program goes much further, before it is delayed and sabotaged, that legislation will be enacted which will throw the C. I. O.'s out of their dominating position."

Windsor Enjoying Rest And Privacy in Florida

Only Social Engagement Is a Call on Fred Snite

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., Dec. 12 (AP).—The Duke of Windsor is taking advantage of a week's visit to the United States to enjoy the sort of rest and privacy rarely permitted to one in his position.

Now that the duchess is well on the way to recovery from a serious dental operation, he is occupying his time with reading, short motor trips and a bit of unostentatious shopping in stores out of the principal business districts.

He acknowledged personally a request of Fred S. Snite jr., paralytic inmate of an iron lung, for permission to call upon him at the hospital, going to Mr. Snite's Miami Beach home for a private chat with "the boiler kid."

On this and similar trips the duke was driven about town by a Miami Beach policeman in a large sedan. On each occasion he was accompanied by his Scotland Yard bodyguard and an aide, Capt. Vyvyar Drury. Associates said he was recognized only rarely.

The duke passes much of his time with the duchess when she feels well enough to talk. At other times he reads in a near-by room of their hospital suite.

Aides said that he was catching up on books that had been piling up ever since he became Governor of the Bahamas almost four months ago. Although his duties in administering the small British colony have not been arduous, he has been fully occupied with learning details of the government, with conferences and with the renovation of his official residence, Government House.

A formal bulletin on the duchess's condition, the last to be issued, said: "No complications have developed, and a favorable recovery is expected."

However, she was ordered to stay in the hospital at least until Saturday.

The duke took the opportunity to undergo a physical examination and came through with flying colors. Physicians reported that, at forty-six, he is in excellent general health and physical condition.

NATIONAL AIRPORT PROGRAM APPROVED

$40,000,000 To Go For 51 New Fields, Improvements To 149

War, Navy, Commerce Secretaries Certify Move For Defense

[By the Associated Press]

Washington, Dec. 12—A $40,000,000 airport construction and improvement program was approved today as part of the nation's defense efforts.

A board consisting of the Secretaries of War, Navy and Commerce certified as "necessary to the national defense" a program involving construction of 51 new airports and improvements to 149 others.

Scattered throughout the States and the Territories of Hawaii and Alaska, the projects are limited to development of landing fields.

Explains Purpose

Col. Donald H. Connolly, Administrator of Civil Aeronautics, pointing out that no part of the funds would be used for buildings, hangars or other facilities not actually a part of a landing field, commented.

"Our purpose is to provide completed and useful improvement units at as many strategic locations as of funds will permit."

30,24-6383 30.24 — 6383

The program, he said, was designed to provide the maximum number of completed and usable units of improvement possible, rather than the ultimate completion of only a few airports.

Improvements Planned

Congress, in authorizing the $40,000,000 appropriation, specified that the money be spent on not more than 250 projects found to be necessary for national defense.

Improvements, Colonel Connolly said, will be undertaken only on land owned by a political subdivision of Government which is willing to make it available without cost to the Federal Government, and to pledge to maintain and operate the improved airport.

Colonel Connolly added that the program will be supplemented and enlarged by coordinating it with the work of other Federal agencies.

"On a number of projects," he said, "our funds will be used to extend or expand improvement work already being undertaken by the WPA. In some cases we can provide types of improvement not feasible on work-relief projects, but in no case will we permit our funds to be used in lieu of local contributions pledged by the sponsors of WPA projects."

7,600 FIRMS GIVE DEFENSE PLEDGES

National Manufacturers' Association Promises To Cooperate Fully

Same Concern Expressed Over Economic Adjustment In Post-War Era

[By the Associated Press]

New York, Dec. 12—The National Association of Manufacturers, representing 7,600 firms throughout the nation, pledged itself today to cooperate fully with the Government in the national defense program.

Some 4,000 delegates to its annual convention, the forty-fifth Congress of American Industry, unanimously adopted this pledge:

1. To continue to defend against attack from any source the American concept of freedom—constitutional representative democracy; private enterprise, and civil and religious liberty, including freedom, of speech and freedom of the press.
2. To exert its utmost effort in cooperation with the Government to carry out the program of national defense with all possible speed and efficiency.
3. To maintain at the same time, as far as possible, production of goods and services to meet normal needs.
4. To do its full part to prevent or cushion a threatened post-war economic depression by supporting and following practices which will contribute to the maintenance of a healthy economic life.
5. To continue to promote, within industry, recognition and fulfillment of the economic and social responsibilities which industrial management shares with other groups for the improvement and advancement of the general welfare.

Three Major Problems

Concerning military preparedness, the association membership stated:

Three major problems are involved:

To determine the vital interests to be defended, and how far beyond our continental borders these interests extend. This is the responsibility of Government.

To determine the nature and size of the military establishment, and the equipment and supplies required. This also is the responsibility of Government.

To produce the required equipment and supplies. This is the task of industry—of America at work.

Explains Breakdowns

Prior to adopting this platform the delegates heard Dr. Carl Snyder, economist, warn that each totalitarian nation has come into being as a result of breakdowns of industrial systems.

"In 1931," he said, "Germany went through a banking and industrial crisis closely paralleling that of our own. I have always thought it was this crash which paved the way for Hitler, just as our depression paved the way for the New Deal and all its fantastic concomitants.

"In a strict sense, our collapse in 1929 led directly to Hitler in 1933. The whole Western World has paid dearly for our economic and speculative debauch of the late twenties.

Thrown Away, He Says

"In chasing will-o'-the-wisps of 'social improvement,' we have literally thrown away in eleven years a sum equal to our entire industrial capital."

Philip D. Reed, chairman of the board of General Electric Company, described the present rise in industrial activity and said:

"The great bulge in the purchasing power of 50,000,000 workers will not reach its peak for some time to come. A realistic view must tell us that when the emergency phase of the defense program has passed we must anticipate some reaction in employment and in national income.

"On the rising side of the curve, it is important that as these billions of additional dollars begin to be spent, they be absorbed not by higher prices for a limited supply of useful goods, but by a greater volume of these goods.

Would Conserve Power

"There will be specific products and industries that, under the pressure of defense requirements, will not be able to respond in full.

"For this reason, and also with an eye to the day when we will be riding the other side of the curve, steps should be taken to conserve a considerable part of this purchasing power for a rainy day.

Fuller Named President

"I suggest a carefully planned and projected program, participated in by organized labor and by trade and civic organization throughout the country—with which, I am sure, Government would willingly cooperate—to encourage and promote the purchase of 'baby bonds' or the use of other vehicles for savings."

He suggested such savings would relieve "some part of the impending pressure on the producers of useful goods."

Walter D. Fuller, president of Curtiss Publishing Company, Philadelphia, was elected president of the association.

As president, Fuller will be chief executive for the coming year of an organization of 7,600 industrial firms which cover the entire United States.

He succeeds in office H. W. Prentis, Jr., president of Armstrong Cork Company, who has held office during the last year.

Fuller has been chairman of the important resolutions committee which today presented a program pledging the complete cooperation of industry with Government in national defense.

To Head Board

Prentis will serve next year as chairman of the association's board of directors.

Three new national vice-presidents were elected. They are: Robert E. Wood, chairman of Sears, Roebuck & Co., Chicago; Philip D. Reed, chairman of General Electric Company, New York, and J. Howard Pew, president of Sun Oil Company, Philadelphia.

Communiques of Belligerent Powers

British

LONDON, Dec. 12 (AP).—A Cairo communique issued here by the Ministry of Information:

In the western desert our advanced troops are in contact with Italian forces which are continuing their withdrawal westward.

Meanwhile clearance of the battlefield is proceeding.

It is still impossible to give accurate figures, but the latest estimate of prisoners taken exceeds 20,000, with tanks, guns and equipment of all types.

One corps commander and two general officers commanding divisions are among the hundreds of Italian officer prisoners now in our hands.

Our patrols continued successfully to harass the enemy on the Sudan frontier.

An Admiralty communique:

The Royal Navy continues to play its part in disorganizing the Italian retreat in north Africa. Both heavy and light units of the Mediterranean fleet are continually harassing the Italian communications. Our ships have heavily bombarded the focal points of the Italian retreat at Sollum, near the Libya-Egypt frontier, and Bardia, on the Libyan coast. No damage or casualties have been suffered by any of our units during these operations.

Other British naval units have carried out a bombardment of Chisimaio, Italian Somaliland, damaging Italian supplies. The enemy's coastal batteries replied ineffectively to our fire.

CAIRO, Egypt, Dec. 12 (AP).—A Royal Air Force communique:

Aerial activity was again intense in the western desert throughout Wednesday. Both bomber and fighter aircraft of the R. A. F. continued to support the army offensive by incessant bombing of every Italian advanced airdrome and by attacking enemy troops. Black Shirt tropos in large numbers retreating from Halfway House to Sollum were heavily machine - gunned and thrown into utter confusion. In the same area, a large quantity of mechanized transport was successfully bombed.

Several tons of bombs were dropped on Sollum, while enemy landing grounds at Gambut, Azeiz, Menasti, El Adem, El Gubbi, Derna, Tmimi and El Gazala were raided during the day and a number of enemy aircraft on the ground were destroyed. Full details of these raids are not yet available.

R. A. F. fighter aircraft also were in action and during the whole day were in constant patrol over our troops. Eight enemy aircraft were shot down, six confirmed and two unconfirmed. In addition, one unidentified aircraft on the ground was destroyed, making a total of nine in all.

Of these, one of our eight-run fighter squadrons accounted for four destroyed for certain and two possibly. They included one S-79, three CR-42's and two Bredas, and another fighter squadron shot down one S-79 and one CR-2, the latter in flames.

Throughout these intensive operations, which continued during the whole of the twenty-four hours under review, only one of our aircraft failed to return. One of our aircraft reported as missing in the communique issued Dec. 10 has returned safely to its base.

LONDON, Dec. 12 (AP).—A communique of the Ministries of Air and Home Security:

This morning small formations of enemy fighters and fighter-bombers crossed the Kent coast and flew toward London. They were intercepted by our fighters, and three enemy aircraft were shot down. We suffered no loss.

A small number of bombs were dropped on the outskirts of the London area and places in southeast England. These did little damage and caused few casualties.

Otherwise, enemy activity today has been slight.

An enemy bomber was shot down off the southwest coast this morning. During last night one enemy bomber was destroyed.

An earlier Air Ministry-Home Security Ministry communique:

Enemy attacks on a fairly heavy scale were made during the night, being mainly concentrated on a town in the Midlands. Elsewhere activity was less, though a certain amount of damage was done. In the main attack, which lasted throughout the night, a number of fires were caused, all of which were quickly brought under control and most of them extinguished.

An Air Ministry communique:

Last night bombers of the R. A. F. bombed invasion ports and a number of airdromes in enemy-occupied territory. Targets in western Germany, which included power stations, inland [illegible] and railway yards were also attacked. In the operation one of our aircraft [illegible] lost.

An Admiralty communique:

The Royal Netherlands ship Van Kinsbergen, Comdr. J. L. K. Howeke, yesterday intercepted the German steamship Rhein, 6,031 tons, in West Indian waters. The crew of the Rhein set their ship on fire and attempted to scuttle her. This was frustrated by the prompt and gallant action of the boarding party from the Van Kinsbergen.

This incident in the western Atlantic illustrates the widespread and effective co-operation being rendered to the Royal Navy by the Royal Netherlands Navy.

German

BERLIN, Dec. 12 (AP).—The German high command communique:

A submarine sank four merchant ships, totaling 30,000 tons, from a strongly protected convoy. The convoy was dispersed.

In the course of armed reconnaissance yesterday the air force's attacks were primarily directed against ship targets. Near the Kentishknock fireship we succeeded in severely damaging a ship which was being towed by a freighter. Southwest of Clacton-on-the Sea, one 1,500-ton merchantman was sunk, a tanker was attacked with cannons and machine guns and another 1,500-ton merchantman, in an attack from a low altitude, was so badly hit that it stopped with a list and in a sinking condition.

Last night strong units successfully raided war-essential objectives in central and southern England.

Several British planes last night dropped bombs and incendiaries on several places in the occupied region and southwestern Germany which caused slight property damage. The boiler house of a small factory was damaged by fire. In the occupied region, one Frenchman and one Belgian were killed and several civilians wounded.

Anti-aircraft downed four enemy planes. Two of our own planes are missing.

Italian

ROME, Dec. 12 (AP).—The Italian high command communique:

On the Greek front several spo[illegible] attempts by the enemy to at[illegible] were repelled.

We [illegible] prisoners and automatic arms.

Our air forces, despite prohibitive weather conditions, carried out bombardments on troop concentrations in the Boruva zone and on steamers in harbor in the Gulf of Patras.

Operations still are under way in north Africa. Again yesterday fierce fighting took place west of Sidi Barrani in the Buqbuq zone. Losses in men and equipment inflicted on the enemy are considerable, as are also our own.

In air fighting reported Dec. 10, instead of four enemy planes shot down there were thirteen smashed on the ground. Seven of our planes failed to return.

In East Africa small detachments were active. One of our patrols surprised and wiped out an enemy post on the Sudan border.

In the Tessenei zone of Eritrea an enemy infiltration headed by several tanks and five armored cars was halted and repelled by our troops and anti-tank guns.

One of our scouting planes, attacked by seven enemy fighters, shot one down in flames and returned undamaged.

An English cruiser which appeared at Chisimaio fired several shots on the city without causing damage. It was hit in turn by our coast defense batteries.

Enemy planes bombed the zones of Argheza and El Uak in British Somaliland.

Greek

ATHENS, Dec. 12 (AP).—Tonight's Greek command communique:

There were local operations a[illegible] various points of the fron[illegible] Reconnaissance patrols capture[illegible] about 150 prisoners, among whom [illegible] were a number of officers.

A communique of the Gree[illegible] Ministry of Home Security:

Enemy aviation today bomb[illegible] Lefka (on Cyprus). There wa[illegible] no casualties and small damage [illegible] buildings.

In the War Zone

Italian Defeat in Egypt Is Not a Disaster, But It May Portend Catastrophe

By DEWITT MACKENZIE.

The British victory over the Italians at the desert station of Sidi Barrani continued to swell rapidly today and, while in itself it doesn't constitute a disaster for the Fascists, the lack of resistance may portend a major catastrophe for Mussolini's dream of empire [illegible]ntrol of the Mediterranean.

The toll of prisoners early passed a score of thousands and rose toward double that number.

Meanwhile other Italian troops were falling back toward their home grounds in Libya. This withdrawal was made necessary by the loss of their main base at Sidi Barrani, and by the threat that their line of communications may be severed. The retreating forces were harassed by warplanes and by the guns of British warships close to the coastal military highway.

It is too early to estimate the scope of the British offensive. They have made a brilliant start, but much will depend on their ability to capitalize on this achievement and carry the war to the Fascist commander in his own Libyan stronghold.

Marshal Graziani would seem to me to be facing three possible handicaps which, if they exist, are most serious. They are:

1. Shortage of supplies of all sorts, owing to the virtual severance of his communications with Italy by the British blockade.

2. Lowering of the morale of his troops due to inactivity and that same need of essential supplies.

3. Lack of sufficient fighting planes, owing to the urgent calls imposed on Italy now from Albania and other fronts.

Marshal Graziani invaded Egypt from Libya September 14 with a fanfare from Rome. He reached Sidi Barrani after a heroic forced march in which his troops endured the terrific desert heat (the soil temperature often touches 175 degrees Fahrenheit) and choking sandstorms on short rations of water. Having achieved this sensational feat, the Marshal sat himself down and has waited three months.

Why? He had a force far superior numerically (and still has) to that of the British. He is well equipped mechanically. According to report Mussolini was urging the commander to continue his drive for the Suez Canal and imperial glory, but the Marshal refused.

I believe the answer is that Graziani was short of supplies and wouldn't venture farther into the killing desert waste without them.

The Italian Marshal is practical and efficient, and never has been willing to stage any military shows. During the Ethiopian campaign, where Graziani shone, Mussolini was said to have urged that the General start the Italian offensive against the Ethiopians from Dolo on the south, a full two months before the Marshal would move.

The hard-boiled old soldier, who doesn't give a tinker's dam for man or devil, wouldn't budge an inch until he got two more divisions of troops and additional supplies. It's quite possible we have a somewhat similar case now.

Only Remnants Of Strong Force Are Reported Left Still Fighting

[By the Associated Press]

Cairo, Egypt, Dec. 13—The great shock power of Britain's imperial forces of the Middle East—troops, navy and air force—was declared today to be driving the last lingering Fascists out of Egypt, and to the fleeing and much reduced Italian army the British command applied the flat word "Beaten!"

"Only remnants" of the forces which Marshal Rodolfo Graziani led into Egypt along the coastline last September were still holding out there, general headquarters said, and those remnants were declared to be withdrawing toward Italian Libya in desperate rear-guard fighting "closely followed by our advance troops."

[The Reuters (British) News Agency reported that the British had seized the entire stock of fuel and food which the Italians had assembled for their invasion of Egypt.]

The first phase of the British offensive, a spectacular example of desert warfare, clearly was nearing an end, but there were signs that after a necessary breather, to repair damage to machines and rest the British troops, the operation might be turned into a counter-invasion of Libya.

This word was given to an Associated Press correspondent aboard a British destroyer. He told of a mighty and continuing British attack from the sea, a series of bombardments which British naval authorities said had placed the fleeing Fascists along the Mediterranean coast under one of the most destructive naval shellings in history, supporting the British armored units which fell so suddenly last Monday upon the Italian fortified bases along the coast.

Planes Give Foe No Respite

The town of Tobruk and its harbor were declared hit by many tons of bombs, setting off fires and explosions, some of them near gasoline storages; altogether a dozen Italian airdromes and landing fields were reported damaged. An unstated number of Italian planes were declared destroyed on the ground.

Before this raid, Italian plane losses for the whole campaign had been declared nearly half a hundred.

R. A. F. Casualties Small

R. A. F. casualties were said by a military spokesman to have been "incredibly small" and casualties among British field troops were described as very light.

Reports were current that the Italian frontier base of Salum had fallen and that Fort Capuzzo, over the border in Libya, had been captured, but these were not confirmed by the spokesman.

He said, however, that tonight little fighting could be proceeding on Egyptian soil, and added that British advance mobile forces were "going very well."

British soldiers reaching base headquarters were quoted as saying that neither the Italians nor their Libyan conscripts had "their hearts one hundred per cent. in the war."

Striking throughout last night and yesterday, the High Command said, the R. A. F. attacked Italy's main war base of Tobruk, on the Libyan coast, and "completely gutted" hangars at El Adem airdrome near Tobruk.

Tons Of Bombs Dropped

"Many tons of bombs were dropped on the town of Tobruk and harbor," the report said.

"Fires were observed burning fiercely in many places and violent explosions and fires near petrol dumps were seen from Salum Bay by our aircraft on the return journey. There were also heavy explosions in the vicinity of ammunition stores."

At El Adem airdrome, "aircraft on the ground were heavily machine-gunned by our reconnaissance machines."

Heavy raids were also made on Bardia, about fifteen miles inside the Libyan border, the report said, and bomb hits set off a violent explosion in a "stores dump which resulted in flames rising to a thousand feet."

The high command said Italian aircraft on the ground were machine-gunned and three CR-42's destroyed.

"At El Tmimi one S-79 was shot up and other aircraft badly damaged. In all, over a dozen enemy airdromes or landing grounds were raided and considerable damage done," the account continued.

Fighters Cover Troops

"Fighter aircraft patrolled throughout the day, covering our troops who were pursuing and harassing the retreating enemy. Much mechanical transport was destroyed and troops on the lines of communication were demoralized.

"Aircraft of the Royal Australian Air Force added to their previous successes by shooting down three CR-42's. One of our eight-gun fighters attacked two S-78's single-handed, despite the fact the enemy bombers were escorted by a large number of CR-42's. One of the S-79's was shot down and the other is believed to have been destroyed.

British Mop Up Routed Italians, Driving Them Into Coastal Trap; May Continue Attack Into Libya

BRITISH PLANES, SHIPS AND MEN CHASE ITALIANS

Drive Enemy Out Of Egypt And Across Frontier Into Libya

30,000 Reported Captured

Capture of uncounted thousands of Italian soldiers, for a total of perhaps 30,000, was reported. The British made no attempt to give a precise figure officially because of the wide extent of the area of isolated battles, ranging over 500 square miles of sand and rock. Among the captives were five generals.

[At London military sources estimated the number of Italians captured at 40,000.]

The air arm told a story of uninterrupted destruction of the Italian organization. In operations through the night—operations that have not really ended since the beginning of the offensive—British pilots were declared to have struck heavily at Italian bases all over the Egyptian and Libyan area.

Attacked, said the British, were the chief Italian position at Tobruk, on the Libyan coast, where hangars at a near-by airdrome were "completely gutted"; Bardia, Libya, where an ammunition dump went up in a great explosion that spurted flames a thousand feet aloft, and many other objectives.

R. A. F. Blasts Bases

London, Dec. 13 (AP)—British forces in Egypt's western desert were reported tonight by Reuters, British news agency, in a Cairo dispatch to have captured the entire stock of fuel and food which the Italians had for the invasion of Egypt.

[By the Associated Press]

Cairo, Dec. 13—British R. A. F. bombers and fighting planes blasted Italian bases, ammunition dumps, troops, communications and grounded aircraft in the 5-day-old battle of Egypt, the British Middle Eastern Command news service reported today. More than twelve Italian airfields were said to have been bombed.

3924-6385

30.24-6385

"Two of our bombers and one fighter have failed to return to their bases, but in view of the intensive operations it is possible that they are safe.

Iavello's Ninth Raid

"In Italian East Africa, Iavello was raided for the ninth time on December 11 by aircraft of the South African air command. One three-engined enemy bomber received a direct hit and exploded, and two others were set on fire. Three more Caproni aircraft received extensive damage.

"Aircraft of a Rhodesian squadron cooperating with R. A. F. bombers carried out raids on the enemy camp at Gubba. Many huts were destroyed by direct hits and large fires were started which were seen forty miles from the target.

Almost All Camp Fired

"One of our aircraft reported that three quarters of the camp was on fire and that the flames were spreading rapidly.

"Motor transport workshops were attacked at Lagarre, near Diredawa, where two large sheds were bombed and set one fire. Enemy aircraft raided Poz Reghed, causing some damage. One enemy aircraft was last seen flying low in flames."

The British victory at Sidi Barrani has broken any immediate threat to the Suez Canal, British military quarters said today, as Britain's forces were reported still rolling forward in the western desert.

There was no indication yet how far the British intend to go or whether they will try to push across the Libyan border into Italian territory, but they were reported still progressing, taking an ever-growing amount of material and captives.

Major Axis Setback

Security, for the present at least, for the Suez was counted as one of the major accomplishments of the British offensive, seen here already as a major setback for the Axis powers.

In three days British forces were said to have smashed what Italian Marshal Rodolfo Graziani laboriously built up in as many months.

The extent of Marshal Graziani's land casualties are not yet fully known. Some parts of his forces, it was acknowledged, are solidly entrenched in machine-gun nests and have resisted fiercely.

British land casualties, however, were said to be few and only four R. A. F. planes were reported lost against more than forty Italian craft said to have been shot down or destroyed.

Fleet Undamaged

Britain's fleet has reported no casualties or damages to the heavy and medium-weight warships which have bombarded Italian positions throughout the offensive.

An official announcement placing the total of Italian prisoners at 20,000 since Monday, a military spokesman said, is likely to prove an underestimate when a more accurate tally is possible. (London sources estimated that the number might reach 40,000.)

The blow, coupled with Greek victories in the Albanian campaign, was expected to have resounding effects throughout the Near East.

Reinforcement Query

Why, it has been asked here repeatedly in the past three days, did not Graziani rush reinforcements to the front when his first camps were taken on the opening day of the British offensive?

According to the British, the answer was that he simply did not have time.

The British already had reached the sea on the second day, they pointed out, blocking the main channel of communications between Sidi Barrani and Graziani's rear.

Held Air Mastery

The Royal Air Force had gained mastery of the air over Libya from the outset and kept it, they said.

The possibility of sending reinforcements by sea from Bardia or Tobruk to Salum was blocked by Britain's fleet, which kept a constant patrol of the coasts and shelled the Italian ports heavily, harassing troops moving between them.

Troops Mop Up

(Although scattered units of British troops were said in London to be mopping up in an area of about 500 square miles, there were indications there that the pace would slacken because of the strain on men and machines of more than a week at battle pitch over wide areas of desert.)

A communique said:

"Egypt—In the western desert remnants of the beaten Italian Army continue their withdrawal, closely followed up by our advanced troops.

Five Generals Now Held

"In addition to the three senior generals reported as captured yesterday, two further general officers commanding divisions are now in our hands.

"The number of prisoners has also been increased by several thousands, but, owing to the area of the battlefield, it is still impossible to give any precise figures.

"All along the Sudan frontier our patrols continue to harass the enemy and to inflict casualties upon him."

In London, military circles said the capture of a twelfth of Italy's force in Libya also had raised a major problem of how to guard and feed the prisoners.

This problem, plus exhaustion of British troops after a week of marching and fighting and the vast distances covered, would tend to slow down the tempo of the attack, they said.

At the same time "bits" of hot fighting were reported in the Sidi Barrani quadrilateral, the 500 square mile area. Although Italian morale was termed "shaky," some units were said to be fighting fiercely in this area.

Ethiopians Rebel

Military circles said they possessed information that rebel action in Italian East Africa, including Ethiopia, was on the increase. It was known, they said, that five separate rebel forces were harassing Italian outposts and blockhouses throughout Ethiopia as much as a month ago.

Sir Archibald, who was accompanied by Marshal Sir Arthur Murray Longmore, commander of all British air forces in the Mediterranean, had a lengthy conference with Gen. Sir Henry Maitland Wilson, commander in chief of the British army in Egypt, and Air Commodore Raymond Collishaw.

Generals In Cairo

The three Italian generals who were seized when British troops swarmed into Sidi Barrani were brought to Cairo by airplane today.

Amid great enthusiasm there was considerable speculation on the effect which the British successes might have on Italian resistance in Ethiopia.

Hail of Fire From British Fleet Turns Italian Retreat to Rout

Guns Blast Troop Concentrations, Rip Up Roads, Shatter All Attempts to Rally as Fascists, in Panic, Drop Guns and Beg To Be Captured

By Larry Allen

ABOARD A BRITISH DESTROYER OFF EGYPT AND LIBYA, Dec 13 (AP).—From the sea and on land I have seen glimpses of the panicky rout of the sandstormed, harassed and disillusioned Italian army in Egypt, a rout that now seems comparable only to those of Caporetto and Guadalajara.

Scores of shells of 6 to 15 inch size, poured from British warships into the ranks of the Italians on both sides of the Egyptian-Libyan border, first wrecked any attempt to reinforce the trapped troops in the Italian advance positions.

Sweeping, then, within half a mile of the Libyan port of Bardia, the British warships pumped one-ton high explosive shells ashore. They started huge fires, and their explosions blasted motor transport sky-high and smashed troop concentrations.

This was to destroy as much of the Italian base as possible, prevent any reorganizing of the retreating forces at that point and keep the Italians on the run far into Libya, perhaps as far as Derna, 150 miles from Bardia.

The whole coastline from Sollum, on the Egyptian side of the border, to Bardia, thirty-seven miles away, was subjected to a devastating bombardment, some single attacks lasting more than an hour. Shells falling on the main highway ripped open huge craters, blocking the way for Italian mechanized units.

The bombardment constituted the Mediterranean Fleet's share in the defeat of Marshal Rodolfo Graziani's army, touched off last Monday and still pressed by the British land and air forces which had waited fourteen months for just this swoop.

Thousands of green-uniformed Italian soldiers dropped rifles and packs in the desert sands and ran toward Egypt. The prisoners may reach 30,000. They are now pouring behind the British lines so rapidly that there has been no accurate count as yet. Huge quantities of war supplies have been seized.

Indeed, there is a good possibility that the British offensive will not halt at the Libyan frontier but that the troops will continue the push to mop up the Italians completely while they are still on the run.

I boarded this destroyer at an Egyptian port after struggling through a blinding sandstorm for fourteen hours and sleeping one night in a cold concrete dugout of the British Army in the western desert.

Behind barbed-wire entanglements, herded together on the sand near Mersa Matruh, more than 2000 Italian prisoners shivered in British Army blankets, trying to protect themselves from the gusts of sand that whipped into their faces.

Many of these crack Bersaglieri troops were taken prisoner in the British surprise attack on the rear of the Italian divisions stationed at Sidi Barrani. It is known 14,000 prisoners were taken even before Sidi Barrani fell, and one captured Italian general told British officers that when that place was taken at least 15,000 would fall into their hands.

Radio messages from the British tanks operating in the desert, picked up aboard this destroyer, emphasized the Italian willingness to quit the fight. An officer in a tank column which was pushing beyond Sidi Barrani radioed: "I am in the middle of 500 infantrymen, all with their hands up, but I cannot hold them much longer. Send infantry quickly."

Shore Batteries Defied

Meanwhile, with other naval units, this destroyer was negotiating mine fields to within half a mile of the shore batteries which Graziani had prepared hastily to protect his now-disrupted drive into Egypt. These ships threw everything but the gun turrets at the Italians giving the units moving along the seashore a most destructive pounding.

The first warships to go into action turned their big guns upon Maktila, fifteen miles east of Sidi Barrani, Graziani's most advanced point. That armed camp was shattered by the bombardment and the British land attack was facilitated.

Fire For Over Hour

By the first red light of the sun, then in broad daylight, the British warships pumped shells for more than an hour into the Italian positions, wrecking motor transports, blasting troop columns out of existence and tearing big gaps in the hard road that Graziani built.

The guns of this destroyer, too, flung high-explosive projectiles upon the enemy advanced columns, started huge fires at many Italian bases, and then swept westward along the coast to Salum, seven miles from the Egypt-Libyan frontier, to deliver a fresh assault.

The Italian batteries at Sidi Barrani and Salum answered the fire of the British warships with vigor, but the closest miss was twenty yards away, sending heavy spray over the sides of the ship. There was no damage.

Fire From Shore Batteries

At Bardia, too, the naval forces frequently faced heavy fire from shore batteries, but the assault was the same.

Warcraft trains also were helping transport prisoners to Alexandria from other coastal points. They will be taken later to concentration camps in upper Egypt.

This destroyer took aboard 200 and dumped them at Alexandria. They slept through a cold windy night on the top deck, covered with heavy blankets.

NAVY AND AIRMEN HELP TO ROUT FOE

Bases at Salum, Tobruk and Bardia Pounded From Sea and Air as Army Mops Up—Rome Says It Will Defend Its Lines.

By [illegible]

ABOARD A BRITISH DESTROYER OFF EGYPT, Dec. 13 (A. P.).—With British sea, air and land forces combining in an attempt to blast the Italian expeditionary force off Egyptian soil, British sources declared today that the offensive might be turned to a counter-invasion of Libya.

The British appeared to be turning their victory into a complete route of the Fascists and some said that there was a good chance that the drive would not stop at the Egyptian-Libyan border "while the Fascists are on the run."

[Rome reported that the Italians expected to defend their lines in Libya and Albania all winter, come what may, but thought that the British would stop at the Egyptian-Libyan frontier.]

The order to take the offensive against Marshal Graziani's legions, seventy miles inside Egypt, was a shot in the arm for the whole British Imperial Army of the Nile, it appeared from advices reaching this destroyer participating in the naval offensive.

For weeks, desert-hardened troops—Britons, Australians, New Zealanders, Indians, Poles and Frenchmen—have been chafing at long inactivity. Now, with the initiative in British hands, their hour for a grand offensive may have come.

Swinging into action to help the army's big push, British warships have hurled tons of high explosives into Marshal Graziani's advance bases, forcing thousands of soldiers to flee in disorder toward the Libyan frontier.

Bardia Is Badly Battered.

Meanwhile the navy continued its relentless pounding of the Port of Bardia, Italy's main Libyan base, harassing the Fascists' retreating, sand-whipped legions with one-ton high explosive shells.

Repeating in daylight their daring pre-dawn attacks, Britain's warships swept to within a half-mile of Bardia and opened a terrific barrage with six-inch and fifteen-inch guns. There were shattering explosions and huge fires.

The bombardment, described as extremely successful, was intended both to keep the Italians on the run far into Libya, giving them no respite for reorganization, and to destroy as much of the base as possible.

The whole coastline from Salum, thirty-seven miles west of Bardia, was put under heavy fire, some attacks lasting more than an hour. Shells falling in the main highway and ripping out huge craters hampered movements of Italian motorized units.

Sweep Over Mine Fields.

The units of the British Navy swept over mine fields to within a half mile of the hastily prepared shore batteries and threw heavy fire at the Italians.

The Fascist army moving along the Egyptian seaboard underwent what British naval authorities declared to be one of the most destructive naval shellings in history.

The warships turned their big guns first on Maktila, fifteen miles east of Graziani's advance base established at Sidi Barrani when he moved across the Egyptian border ninety days ago. The British shattered that big armed camp, making it easier for the initial land attack.

The British began their attack at dawn and pumped shells for more than an hour into the Fascist position as the blazing sun climbed above the horizon. Italian motor transports were blown to pieces, troop columns were obliterated and huge pieces of the macadamized road Graziani had just completed were sent hurling into the desert sky.

Shore Batteries Answer Fire.

This destroyer shivered and shook as it flung high explosives at the Italian columns, starting fires here and there. Then the destroyer swept eastward along the coast to Salum, at the Egyptian-Libyan border and started all over again. There it was the same story.

Italian batteries both at Sidi Barrani and Salum answered the British shellfire, but the closest Fascist projectiles fell twenty yards away, sending a heavy spray over the sides of the ship.

While this destroyer shelled Salum, advance units of the British Army smashed through Italian fortifications beyond Sidi Barrani, taking prisoners by the thousands. The rest of Graziani's legions were forced into a headlong dash toward the Libyan frontier.

Simultaneously, R. A. F. bombers loosed cargoes of bombs which fell among the retreating troops, tanks, armored cars and motor transports.

American Reporter Asserts Fascist Forces Made Successful Stand Nowhere In Africa

[By the Associated Press]

Cairo, Dec. 13—A crushing defeat of the Italian army in North Africa "may shorten the war by very many months," General Sir Archibald Wavell, British Middle Eastern commander, told his troops on the eve of the present campaign, it was disclosed tonight.

"In everything but numbers we are superior to the enemy," the order of the day said. "A signal and crushing defeat of the Italian forces will have an incalculable effect not only on the whole position in the Middle East, not only on the military situation everywhere, but on the future of freedom and civilization throughout the world."

By EDWARD KENNEDY
Associated Press Correspondent

With British Desert Forces in Egypt, Dec. 11 (Delayed)—Here in the desert today, Mussolini's attempted invasion of Egypt was smashed by countless British sledge-hammer blows dealt with lightning rapidity over several hundred square miles of the meanest country.

General Sir Archibald Wavell's army, supported by strong air attacks and heavy sea bombardments, routed the Italian forces in Egypt, took thousands and thousands of prisoners, inflicted heavy casualties, captured tanks and other vehicles and sent remnants of Marshal Rodolfo Graziani's army fleeing toward Libya.

The Sahara Desert—even this Egyptian neck of it alone—is an enormous place, and after a long hard day of rushing around behind troops advancing too fast to be caught up with, I have only scattered fragments of the epochal events which took place on these wastes today.

Picture Of Victory's Extent

But these fragments, pieced together under a dim oil lamp in a chilly desert tent within sound of the bombs, give an ample picture of the extent of the British victory.

This dispatch must be carried to civilization by courier and the main part of the story will be known to the world by the time it arrives. Here are some details from the spot.

Nowhere, according to all accounts gathered during the day, did Italian forces make any successful stand against the British.

It was the third and culminating day of the operation, which was described by Sir Archibald merely as a great raid at its start, but which increased hourly in fury and today raged as nothing ever has before on these sands.

Stores Taken By British

Almost all the vast stores the Italians had accumulated in Egypt for invasion of this country fell into British hands.

Prisoners by the thousands are shivering in the desert's night cold, waiting to be taken somewhere. Hundreds of trucks, carrying thirty each, have rolled past here to the railhead, where they will be put on trains.

In a barbed-wire inclosure reserved for generals, colonels and majors, half a dozen officers of this rank paced disconsolately up and down, their hands behind them.

Among them were General Pescatori, commander of the Second Libyan Division, and a Colonel Giusfreda, aide to Gen. Pietro Malletti, commander killed at Nibeiwa, important outpost which was the point of the first British attack at dawn Monday.

Admits Attack Was Brilliant

Giusfreda said the attack "was brilliantly conceived and even more brilliantly executed. We were taken by such surprise we couldn't do anything about it."

He said the Italians heard shots at dawn and returned them, but as the firing died down dismissed it as the work of a small raiding party.

The British, meanwhile, were surrounding the post and charged in as the garrison breakfasted peacefully. It was reduced by 8 A. M.

Nibeiwa had a strong concrete fortification on the east. The British entered from the west.

Enemy Doctors Work Together

British and Italian doctors worked together in caring for the wounded at Nibeiwa, where Malletti's son, a captain on his father's staff, was among the prisoners.

"We also found tents filled with tinned goods and other provisions," a British officer told me. "It looked like a department store," he added.

The rout was not confined to the seventy-mile long Egyptian strip the Italians occupied three months ago, but extended to Libya, where Italian headquarters were moved back from Bardia, near the frontier, to Tobruk.

Five motor transports moving toward Tobruk were destroyed by R. A. F. flyers, who used power-house tactics in keeping enemy planes either on the ground or too high to enable them to machine-gun British land forces.

Scarcely a single Italian bomber showed up, so well was the air filled with British planes shuttling back and forth from targets to bomb supplies.

A captured Italian airman was asked why the Fascists' planes were not more active.

"I don't know," he replied, "we only went out when we got orders and we weren't ordered out very much. Besides, what could our two guns do against eight of yours?" This was apparently a reference to the superior number of guns on British fighter planes.

After taking Nibeiwa, the column shot north and cleaned up the strong forts in the Tumnar region.

Then, amid fierce fighting, the British proceeded toward Sidi Barrani, main Italian stronghold on the coast.

Meanwhile, an armored unit had charged northward to the coast farther west, cutting off Sidi Barrani from the rest of the coastal strip.

Natives Desert Officers

At Maktila, fifteen miles east of Sidi Barrani, Libyan troops, terrified by the bombardment of the fleet's 15-inch guns, deserted their Italian officers.

By noon Wednesday, after desperate resistance by the Black Shirts, Sidi Barrani was completely occupied by British troops under command of an Australian-born brigadier general.

Sidi Barrani was entered from the east, southeast, south and west.

Sofafi, another important post, about ten miles west of Nibeiwa, was abandoned by 9 o'clock Wednesday morning. There the Italians left many vehicles behind.

R. A. F. Raids Troops

A column of marching and motoring Italians in flight was bombed and machine-gunned heavily by the British airmen, and when last seen was heading into a tank unit sent to intercept them.

While the Britons closed in on Sidi Barrani, a British tank unit reached Buq Buq, where the befuddled Italians bombed so indiscriminately that they killed many of their own fleeing troops.

The captain commanding a big Italian motor transport column which ran into the British tanks near Buq Buq said he had heard firing, but paid no attention since he had no idea the British were in the vicinity.

"Thought it must have been the Italians practicing," he said.

The British found one Colonel with his duffle bag all packed, resignedly waiting to be carried off as a prisoner. His unit had given up.

Captured Italian Says 'Maybe War'll End Soon'

Tells British 'None of Us Cared Much About Fighting'

ABOARD A BRITISH DESTROYER, OFF EGYPT, Dec. 13 (AP).—A captured Italian officer, amazed at the fury of the British offensive in western Egypt, said today that "maybe this war will end soon now."

Philosophical in defeat, the officer declared: "None of us cared much about fighting this war."

"We've had little news from home," he went on, "and I'm surprised—I can hardly believe the Greek victories in Albania or that the British are now beyond Sidi Barrani.

"This all happened so suddenly we did not know what to think. The British gave us a big shock, attacking from the rear. Well, what we want right now is to get some place where we can write letters to our families."

1000 Hands Are Raised For One British Tank

ABOARD A BRITISH DESTROYER OFF THE EGYPTIAN COAST, Dec. 13 (A. P.).—A radio message picked up today by this warship from the officer of a British tank taking part in the offensive beyond Sidi Barrani said:

"I am in the middle of 500 infantrymen, all with their hands up, but cannot hold them much longer. Send infantry quickly."

O'Connor in Command.

LONDON, Dec. 13 (A. P.).—Scattered units of British troops are mopping up Italian detachments over some 500 square miles of the western Egyptian desert, British military spokesmen asserted today.

Major-Gen. Richard Nugent O'Connor has been in immediate command of the operations, they said. He won the Italian Silver Medal for Valor during the world war.

Holder also of the British D. S. O. and Military Cross, Gen. O'Connor served in France and Belgium until the end of 1917 and then in Italy until the Armistice. He became a major in 1917.

He has held various staff appointments, including command of the company of gentlemen cadets at Sandhurst, Great Britain's West Point, and at the staff college. From 1936 to 1938, he commanded a brigade in India and since then he has commanded a division. He is fifty-one years old.

There were strong indications here that the offensive launched on Monday would now slacken because of the great strain imposed on the troops and the difficulty of maintaining armored fighting vehicles at combat pitch for more than a week without overhauling.

"A pause is to be expected and the public should not be surprised or disappointed," one spokesman said.

Italians Fighting Fiercely.

Military spokesmen said that the capture of a twelfth of Italy's total force in Libya had also raised a major problem of how to guard and feed the prisoners. This problem, plus the exhaustion of the British troops after a week of marching and fighting and the vast distances covered, would tend to slow down the tempo of the attack, they said.

At the same time bits of hot fighting were reported in the Sidi Barrani quadrilateral, which covers about 500 square miles. Although the Italian morale was described as shaky, some units were said to be fighting fiercely in this area.

Military spokesmen said they possessed information that rebel action in Italian East Africa, including Ethiopia, was on the increase. It was known, they said, that five separate rebel forces were harassing Italian outposts and blockhouses throughout Ethiopia as much as a month ago.

DOUBT BRITISH WILL TRY TO INVADE LIBYA

Italians Believe Aim Is To Push Fascists Back Behind Frontier

Defeatists And Hoarders Face Rough Treatment; Shooting Advocated

[By the Associated Press]

Rome, Dec. 13—Usually well-informed persons predicted tonight that the Italian armies would defend their lines in both Libya and Albania for the rest of the winter.

At home, Italian defeatists and hoarders may face rough handling by Fascism's early-day strong-arm squads. One extremist newspaper declared hoarders and profiteers should be shot.

In the view of today's informants, the aim of the present British offensive in Egypt is believed to be to push the Italians back behind their Libyan frontier, from which they advanced early last autumn to and beyond Sidi Barrani, seventy miles inside Egypt.

Incursion Into Libya Doubted

It is not believed here that the British will attempt a serious incursion into Libya itself.

Today the high command reported a violent battle amid sandstorms "in the zone between Salum (on the Libyan frontier), Sidi Barrani and the desert zone to the southeast." The high command has not specifically conceded the fall of Sidi Barrani, although the Rome radio did so last night, adding: "What of it?"

The Italians were fighting with great gallantry against the British armored columns, the communique said, telling of yesterday's action. Dawn-to-sundown bombing of the British units was reported to have set fires among them. The toll in planes yesterday was placed at eighteen British, twelve Italian.

Any Truce Declared Precluded

On the Albanian front, the high command said merely: "Nothing worthy of special report; small attacks of local character repelled." A rumor supposed to have originated in Athens concerning a possible Greek-Italian armistice was discredited in authoritative circles; Fascists said Mussolini's announced determination to "break the back of Greece," whether it takes two months or twelve, precluded any truce.

A Berlin report that Benito Mussolini might visit Hitler soon was taken in usually informed quarters as possible, but doubt was expressed that the trip would take place within the next few days. (Mention of the Premier's movements is forbidden unless it takes the form of an official announcement.

Would Shoot Hoarders

As for defeatist elements and hoarders, it was disclosed in Il Regime Fascista, the newspaper of Roberto Farinacci, Fascist extremist, that the purpose of the recent summoning of leaders of the early-day "action" squads of the Fascist party by Adelchi Serena, secretary general of the party, was to impart orders "to react against all those who are forgetting that Italy is at war and who have a deplorable attitude."

Going beyond Il Popolo di Roma's recent suggestion that pessimists and alarmists be beaten up, Il Regime Fascista said:

"It is not sufficient to shoot only robbers, it is necessary to stand hoarders and profiteers against the wall."

This outburst was part of a general press campaign against what Lavoro Fascista called "enemies" within Italy.

Hitler On Mystery Trip

New York, Dec. 13 (AP)—Adolf Hitler and Foreign Minister Joachim von Ribbentrop have left Berlin for an unknown destination, a CBS broadcast reported from Berlin today.

Earlier dispatches from Berlin had told of rumors there—denied in authorized quarters—of an imminent meeting between Hitler and Benito Mussolini.

Berlin Denies Rumors Of Duce-Hitler Parley

Berlin, Dec. 13 (AP)—The authoritative commentary service Dienst aus Deutschland joined other spokesmen tonight in denying reports of an immediate meeting between Benito Mussolini and Adolf Hitler.

"Rumors abroad that a new meeting between Hitler and Mussolini is about to take place remain unverified in informed German quarters," said Dienst.

"On the contrary, it is said that absolutely nothing is known of such a proposed meeting."

Fascists To Fight On

[By the Associated Press]

Rome, Dec. 13—The Italians expect to defend their lines in Albania and Libya all winter, come what may, usually well-informed sources said today.

The British aim in their Eyptian offensive, these informants said, is believed to be to push the Italians back behind the Libyan frontier without any intention of attempting a drive into Libya itself.

(There are indications, however, that the British may intend to drive on into Libya once Italians are off Egyptian soil.)

Any possibility of an Italian armistice with Greece was authoritatively discredited. They pointed to Premier Mussolini's November 18 declaration that he would "break Greece's back, whether in two months or twelve," as precluding an armistice.

A battle is raging between British and Italian forces in a desert sandstorm between Sidi Barrani, Egypt, and the Libyan frontier, the Italian high command reported today.

Italian warplanes, joining the battle in support of ground troops, were said to have bombed and set fire to "enemy units," presumed by observers to be British warships engaged in shelling the Fascist forces from positions off the Egyptian coast.

A communique said the Italians had shot down eighteen British planes and lost twelve themselves since the battle began last Monday.

On the Albanian front, action was said to have been limited to small, localized attacks by the Greeks, which the Italians said they had repulsed.

On the East African front, the high command said, Italian patrols, acting in conjunction with the air force, inflicted losses on British mechanized forces along the border of the Anglo-Egyptian Sudan. One British plan was reported shot down in flames i this action.

ITALIANS WARNED ON WAR ATTITUDE

Defeatists and Hoarders Face Strong-arm Squads.

ROME, Dec. 13 (A. P.).—Italian defeatists and hoarders may soon face rough handling by Fascist strongarm squads, it was indicated today.

Il Regime Fascista, edited by the out-spoken Roberto Farinacci, former secretary of the party, said that Adelchi Serena, the present secretary, had recently given orders to squadrici leaders to "react against all those who are forgetting that Italy is at war and have a deplorable attitude."

The newspaper declared that hoarders should be shot.

"It is not sufficient to shoot robbers," it declared. "It is necessary to stand hoarders and profiteers against a wall."

This was a part of a general press campaign against what Il Lavoro Fascista called "enemies from within." That newspaper's attack was directed particularly against the "bourgeois mentality."

Earlier this week Il Popolo di Roma said that alarmists and defeatists should be beaten up.

Italy Admonishes British: 'Careful or We'll Get Mad'

Radio Says Nation's Warriors Are Dangerous When Aroused

The Italian radio warned Great Britain in effect last night: "Be careful, or we'll get mad."

In a broadcast heard here by the Columbia Broadcasting System the Italian announcer said:

"There is one thing that British propaganda fails to take into account, and that is the peculiar temper of the Italians. The Italian is a light-hearted and easy-going fellow until he is aroused. Sometimes what he needs is just a little slap, then he stands up and fights to a finish, and the more blows the more dangerous he becomes. The British ought to remember this."

EDGING ENEMY BACK TO SEA, GREEKS CLAIM

Italians' Last Two Ports Of Escape In South Declared Threatened

Desperate Fighting In North—Area Said To Be Strewn With Dead

DEC 14 1940

[By the Associated Press]

Athens, Dec. 13—The Greeks were reported edging desperately fighting Italians back against the sea tonight in a two-pronged drive that threatened the last two ports of escape for Fascist forces in southern Albania.

Despite fresh troops thrown into the vital Klisura pass protecting Tepeleni and the heights around coastal Chimara and Palermo, dispatches from the front said, the Greeks pushed steadily on, taking new prisoners and inflicting heavy losses on counter-attacking foes.

[Associated Press Editor's Note—An Exchange Telegraph dispatch to London said the Italians were evacuating Tepeleni after a fierce fight and British military circles said the capture of that town and Klisura remained "merely a matter of time."]

Viewed As Vital To Italians

Klisura lies about ten miles northeast of Tepeleni, which is an important junction of the road leading to the port of Valona. The Greeks yesterday said Valona, second in importance only to Durazzo, was virtually useless as port as a result of heavy bombing.

Greeks quote Italian captives as saying there is doubt that the Italians can continue the struggle if Klisura falls.

Likewise, the capture of Chimara would be a grave blow, for it would hem in Palermo, just north of captured Porto Edda, between two prongs of the Greek advance and would cut the coastal road of escape toward Valona.

"Insurmountable" For Italians

"The situation has developed creating insurmountable difficulties for the Italians who are trying to find a way out," a Greek spokesman said.

"Bad weather hinders not only their activity but also Italian transport."

In the north, however, the Greeks acknowledged stiffer Italian resistance in the mountain passes near captured Pogradetz, but added that defenders there had begun to give way under steady pressure.

Prisoners And Booty Listed

A Government spokesman declared tonight that the aggregate number of Italian prisoners as listed in Greek communiques—not including the most recently captured—was 250 officers and 7,000 men.

In addition, he said, the Greeks had seized 120 guns, 55 anti-aircraft and anti-tank guns, a large number of tanks and howitzers, thousands of automatic weapons, 250 vehicles, more than 1,500 bicycles and motorcycles, a large number of horses and mules and important quantities of munitions.

[Associated Press Editor's Note—The Italians say that in November on all Greek-Albanian fronts only 731 men were "missing."]

Two Ionian Islands Bombed

Meantime, the Ministry of Home Security issued the following communique:

"Enemy aviation today carried out raids on Greece on a reduced scale. Bombs were dropped on two Ionian islands. There were very few casualties and small damage to buildings. Bombs were dropped on the country area of Salonika. There were no casualties or damage."

Battle Area In North Strewn With Dead, Report

Bitolj, Yugoslavia (near the Albanian Frontier), Dec. 13 — The Greeks lashed out against the Italians with a big push along the entire northern Albania front today, and the worst fighting of the war raged in that sector, advices from the front said tonight.

The battle area was declared strewn with the dead of both sides as opposing infantrymen fought hand to hand, with the Greeks driving the Fascists deeper into the snow-capped mountains.

Rival Artillery In Action

The fighting ranged over a wide arc from west of Muskopole to Uduniste, on Lake Ochrida. Backing up the Greek infantry charges, Greek artillery pounded the Italians with a day-long bombardment. The Italians themselves replied wtih heavy artillery fire, and Mussolini's infantry put up the stiffest resistance yet witnessed in the north.

The Greeks apparently were attempting to make quick work of their drives against Elbasani, twenty miles south of Tirana, Albanian capital, and Berat, some thirty miles farther to the southeast, to fulfill their battle cry of "Tirana by Christmas."

"But even these new Italian forces received serious blows and there already are many prisoners from these new units."

Officers Pessimistic

Captured Italian officers were said by the Greeks to have expressed doubt of Italy's ability to continue the struggle after the likely fall of Klisura Pass, where they had hoped to check the Greek advance toward Tepeleni, road junction twenty miles north of Greek-held Argirocastro. Klisura is ten miles northeast of Tepeleni.

(Italian forces, after a fierce fight, have started withdrawing from Tepeleni, Albania, Exchange Telegraph, British news agency, reported today. The Italians were said to be suffering heavy losses.)

"This statement coincides with other reports of internal dissensions in Italy," the Greeks said, "and a situation has developed creating insurmountable difficulties for the Italians who are trying to find a way out.

"On the other hand, bad weather hinders not only their activity but also Italian transport."

"Despite this bad weather furious fighting continues, mainly at two points, developing into a new Greek victory.

"The Italians are putting up stiffer resistance also in the mountainous area northwest of Pogradetz, on the northern front, but, according to latest reports, they have begun to give way.

"The Greek advance is more accelerated toward Chimara and Greek troops already have occupied many strong enemy positions along the coastal road. The Italians have started concentrating on the heights in front of Chimara with the apparent intention of making a last effort to resist before abandoning this historic town."

Strategic heights northeast of Tepeleni were in Greek hands as Greek troops thrust a two-pronged drive in the direction of Valona, one of three Albanian ports still held by Italian forces.

Valona Called Useless

A reconnaissance pilot reported yesterday that Valona, second only to Durazzo in importance to the Fascists, had been made virtually useless for large vessels by bombs which smashed piers and jetties.

The spokesman acknowledged "stiff and sometimes desperate" resistance in the Italian retreat toward Tepeleni but said it had been "crushed."

Good News Everywhere.

"Further to the right the Italians offered strong resistance," the spokesman continued. "They employed Alpine troops. Nevertheless, our army was able to occupy one after another of the heights. . . . A considerable number of them."

There was an unconfirmed report, he said, that Col. Sardo of the Alpine Division had been killed.

"Wherever the Italians attempted to counter-attack they have failed," he added. "The news is very good from all sectors of the front."

"News Is Good"

"Everywhere the Italians attempted to counter-attack they have failed," the spokesman said. "The news is very good from all sectors of the front."

The Greek high command reported the capture of about 150 Italian prisoners, including "a number" of officers, by reconnaissance patrols, while the Ministry of Home Security said Italian planes bombed Lefka, on Cyprus, inflicting "no casualties" but doing some damage to buildings.

Bombing Near Dubrovnik

BELGRADE, Dec. 13 (AP).—Heavy explosions were heard in the Adriatic off the Yugoslav port of Dubrovnik today. Dubrovnik is eighty miles above the Yugoslav-Albanian border. Shortly before the blasts a plane of undetermined nationality flew low over the sea then rose to a high altitude and disappeared.

Retreat In Albania

A series of maps and an article describing the Greek advance in Albania will be found on Page 2.

[By the Associated Press]

Athens, Dec. 13—Fresh Italian troops thrown into the battle in Albania were reported today to have failed to halt the slashing Greek advance against heights surrounding the coastal town of Chimara, north of captured Porto Edda, despite desperate resistance.

Here and elsewhere the Greeks said that the Italians were replacing large units with new troops, but that the latter were no more successful in checking the Greeks. Especially large Italian concentrations were declared thrown into the fight along the coast in a desperate effort to halt the Greeks.

(British military circles said fourteen Italian divisions—about 175,000 men—were in the lines against the Greeks. Some of these, they added, had been "severely handled." Bad weather was said to be slowing operations in Albania.)

Greeks Hold Initiative

One dispatch from the front said that after the Greeks repulsed Fascist counter-attacks at various points "the initiative along the entire front passed once again to Greek troops and the enemy is continuing to retreat."

"At many places the Italian command replaced entire units with fresh forces because the morale of the older forces was seriously impaired and they were considered unfit for further fighting," this dispatch went on.

NAZIS DELIVER FURIOUS BLOW AT SHEFFIELD

Men Battling Fires in Steel Center of England Are Machine-gunned.

BERLIN CLAIMS NEW COVENTRY

Meanwhile Docks at Brest Are Attacked by R. A. F. and Ship Off Holland Is Reported Hit.

Tonight screaming sirens warned Londoners to shelter after a day in which the Government announced not a single bomb was dropped anywhere in England from dawn to dusk and later German planes were reported over two towns in East Anglia.

Several persons were killed during the day by the explosion of a time bomb in a London district.

From early last night until early today, large formations of Nazi raiders scattered incendiary, high explosive and delayed-action bombs on Sheffield, and the Exchange Telegraph, a British news agency, said that the Germans machine-gunned firemen as they fought the blazes. Most of the fires were extinguished quickly, however, though some of the larger ones burned for hours.

Bodies Still in Ruins.

The number of persons killed or injured, the Exchange Telegraph said, while considerable, was amazingly low considering the consistency and weight of the raid."

A number of bodies had still to be taken from widespread wreckage in commercial, shopping and residential areas.

"Large numbers of incendiary bombs were as usual employed," a communique said, "but the fire situation was soon well in hand. Reports are as yet incomplete, but do not suggest heavy casualties and elsewhere in the region casualties were very few."

Other Areas Bombed

Sheffield often is called the birthplace of the modern steel industry, since Sir Henry Bessemer pioneered there three-quarters of a century ago in the steel manufacturing process which bears his name. It is a city of about 500,000 population, 140 miles north of London.

Other parts of the Midlands were hit and London had an alert which lasted most of the night, but there was little air activity in the capital after a mist developed midway in the night.

There were no reports of damage in London, but a church and a furniture factory were destroyed in a Midland town. The southeast coast and other areas also reported raiders overhead.

Italians Retreating in Albania

London Hears They Have Given Up Tepelini —Athens Expects Stand at Chimara.

LONDON, Dec. 13 (A. P.).—Italian forces in Albania, after fierce fighting have begun withdrawing from Tepeleni, Exchange Telegraph, a British news agency, reported today from Athens. The Italians were said to be suffering heavy losses.

Earlier today British military spokesmen declared that the capture of Tepeleni and Klisura by the Greeks was "merely a matter of time."

They said that fourteen Italian divisions—about 175,000 men—were in the lines against the Greeks. Some of these, they added, have been "severely handled."

Bad weather was said to be slowing down operations in Albania.

LONDON, Dec. 13 (A. P.).—Sheffield, the great steel center in the industrial North of England, caught the concentrated blows of last night's air attack on Britain, and today the British Government acknowledged that a number of buildings were destroyed and that roads were damaged or temporarily blocked.

30.24-6389

Yesterday King George VI visited rubble-strewn Birmingham less than twelve hours after that industrial city had suffered its third intense bombing attack. A crowd pressed around the monarch as he looked at flattened buildings and wrecked homes, and a woman who had just dug herself out of the ruins of her home cried: "We're not downhearted, your Majesty; it's nice to be alive."

"It is indeed," the King replied.

A direct hit on an enemy supply ship off the Dutch coast also was claimed for British airmen.

So swiftly did the Germans attack, these sources said, that the British were taken completely by surprise and their anti-aircraft fire was so weak that not a single Nazi plane was lost.

Important Artery

Detonations from explosions caused by bombs could be heard as far as The Wash, sixty miles away, the Germans said.

Authorized Nazis asserted that Sheffield produces fifteen per cent. of England's steel, and, therefore, one of the most important arteries of her heavy industry was hit.

Bristol's Damage

Informed German sources said aerial photographs showed an area of 1,721,344 square yards had been burned out or destroyed by the German air force in three large-scale attacks on the British port of Bristol.

Two British airplanes were shot down in air fights yesterday and two more by German anti-aircraft batteries, the high command said. Four Nazi planes were listed as missing.

Great Britain Goes All Day Without An Air-Raid Alarm

Only Casualties Are Those From Time Bomb In London—Sheffield Fires Still Burning

[By the Associated Press]

London, Saturday, Dec. 14—A brief air-raid alert in London ended before midnight and the city was calm early today.

All during the daylight yesterday, it was officially stated, the country was wholly free of raiders, and the only casualties were several persons killed by the explosion of a time bomb here.

The day had brought, however, a melancholy assessment of the damage done to the great British steel center of Sheffield by dusk-to-dawn bombing which ended in the early morning.

"Super-Coventry" Raids

German bombers by the hundreds pounded Sheffield for the first time in raids which Berlin said were "super-Coventry" and which the British acknowledged were destructive.

The Air Ministry reported a number of buildings destroyed and roads blocked by debris, and an Exchange Telegraph report said some of the large fires burned for hours.

The dead and injured were said to be few considering the weight of the raid, but rescue workers still were digging bodies from ruins tonight.

Famed As Steel Center

Sheffield, about 140 miles north and slightly west of London, is famed as the birthplace of the modern steel industry and as a cutlery center. It manufactures ship machinery, rifle steel, sheet steel and a number of other essential war articles.

While Sheffield was being bombed, a small formation of R. A. F. flyers raided the docks at Brest, Atlantic port in German-occupied France, the Air Ministry reported.

R. A. F. Bombs Brest

London, Dec. 13 (AP)—A raid on the docks at Brest, Nazi-held French port on the Atlantic, by "a small formation of aircraft of the coastal command" was reported by the Air Ministry today.

The Ministry also reported an attack by a British plane on "an enemy supply ship" off the Dutch coast last night in which "a direct hit on the ship was obtained."

Other bombing operations of the Royal Air Force were canceled last night owing to unfavorable weather, said another announcement.

Sheffield's Plight: 'A Super Coventry'

[By the Associated Press]

Berlin, Dec. 13—German bombers by the hundreds pounded Britain's great steel center of Sheffield last night and early today in a "super Coventry" raid which set at least sixty fires raging, informed Nazis declared today.

When the last planes finished off the raid, returning pilots reported, the flames could be seen twenty miles away. The middle and northeastern sections of Sheffield were said to have suffered heaviest.

Pilots' Description

The bomber crews said the slugging administered to the steel city was heavier than the massive attack on Coventry, in Birmingham's industrial midlands.

Quays, harbor facilities and nearby gas works on the Avonmouth also were shown to have been heavily damaged, they said.

In the war at sea one German submarine was reported to have sunk 27,000 tons of shipping. The period covered was not given.

Harbors Mined

Nazi warplanes continued the mining of British harbors during the night, a communique declared.

Daylight raids yesterday, the high command said, were aimed at various objectives in southern England. A 3,000-ton steamer was reported damaged and probably sunk by bomb hits off Harwich, and another merchant ship was said to have been "badly hit."

Minister Of Supply Mentioned As Lord Lothian's Successor

London Speculation Over New Envoy Centers On Sir Arthur Rae Duncan, Identified With Big Business

By Wilson T. Humphrey

[By the Associated Press]

London, Dec. 13—Speculation centered tonight upon Sir Andrew Rae Duncan, a former corporation lawyer and industrialist and now British Minister of Supply, as a probable successor to the late Lord Lothian as Ambassador to the United States.

In one quarter it was even suggested that he might be named within a few days.

War Minister Anthony Eden had been mentioned prominently earlier, but his name receded from private discussions. It was considered that the Washington post is not now essentially diplomatic—since it is felt by some here that the United States and Britain see more or less eye to eye on the war—but one requiring mainly a man skilled in business and finance.

Identified With Big Business

In this respect Sir Andrew fills the bill. He has spent most of an adult lifetime in big business; has been a director of the Bank of England and chairman of the executive committee of the British Iron and Steel Federation, among other posts.

In the government of the late Prime Minister Andrew Bonar Law his appointment as coal controller caused much criticism from Labor members of Commons. That was in 1919, and the next year he returned to the shipbuilding federation as its vice-president and spokesman.

Many of the biggest concerns in the British Isles have been his clients. He is a former chairman of the British Board of Trade.

Son Killed At Dunkerque

Sir Andrew, who is 56, was born in Scotland. He is married and had two sons, one of whom was killed at Dunkerque.

Sir Andrew, who has headed many Government commissions, entered the Cabinet when Winston Churchill became Prime Minister.

In 1927, as chairman of the Central Electricity Board, he reorganized utilities throughout the British Isles, and he became chairman of the British Iron and Steel Federation upon its reorganization in 1934.

Headed Probe In Nova Scotia

Earlier, he headed a Royal commission which investigated the coal industry in Nova Scotia, and another which considered the grievances of the Eastern Maritime Provinces of Canada.

Among other business posts, he has held a directorship of Imperial Chemical Industries.

Sir Andrew, a brawny and square-faced man, knows Britain's material war needs inside out. He is recognized in Commons for his knowledge of commerce and economics generally, both on the export and home fronts.

Sir Andrew Duncan Considered.

LONDON, Dec. 13 (A. P.).—Sir Andrew Duncan, former president of the British Board of Trade who now is Minister of Supply, was being prominently discussed tonight as a likely successor to the late Lord Lothian as Ambassador to Washington. One report went so far as to suggest that he might be named tonight.

The Board of Trade corresponds to the Department of Commerce in the United States Government.

London newspapers asserted today that the selection of a new Ambassador to Washington would be a difficult task.

A great number of names were mentioned, including:

Anthony Eden, Minister of War; David Lloyd George, World War Prime Minister; Alfred Duff Cooper, Minister of Information; Lord Beaverbrook, Minister of Aircraft Production; Lord Chatfield, former Minister for Co-ordination of Defense; Lord Cranborne, Dominions Secretary; Sir Robert Vansittart, chief diplomatic adviser to the Cabinet; Lord Halifax, Foreign Secretary; Sir Gerald Campbell, former Consul General in New York; Richard Casey, Australian Minister of Supply.

London Believes Bases Topic

London, Dec. 13 (AP)—Official circles withheld comment today on American predictions that the Duke of Windsor might be named Lord Lothian's successor as British Ambassador to Washington, but one reliable source expressed doubt that he would get the job.

No definite action on a successor was expected for several days.

It was learned reliably that the Duke's reported visit to President Roosevelt was arranged before Lord Lothian died and had no connection with the Ambassadorship. It was believed that the meeting concerns naval-base leases.

Lord Lothian's Ashes To Rest in Arlington

Washington, D. C., Dec. 13 (AP).—The unique honor of a temporary resting place in Arlington National Cemetery with America's Unknown Soldier and other military heroes will be accorded to the late Marquess of Lothian, British Ambassador to the United States.

Funeral services for Lord Lothian, who died unexpectedly early yesterday, will be held at 2:30 P. M. Sunday in the famous Washington Cathedral, the "house of prayer for all people," where Woodrow Wilson and other distinguished persons are buried.

Afterwards a cremation ceremony will be held, and on Monday the ashes will be borne to Arlington, across the Potomac in Virginia, and placed with full military honors in the vault under the mast of the U. S. S. Maine.

They will remain there "for an indefinite period until arrangements can be made for final disposition," the State Department announced.

Whether the ashes would be taken later to England aboard an American warship, an honor accorded foreign envoys in the past, awaited a decision by President Roosevelt.

Berlin On Lothian

Interesting Information In Official Hands, Radio States

New York, Dec. 13 (AP)—The Berlin radio broadcast today the following comment on the death of Lord Lothian, British Ambassador to the United States:

"While official German quarters decline to comment on the sudden death of Lord Lothian, it is understood that certain very interesting informations have reached Berlin in regards to this event.

"Their contents are not revealed because, as it is said, the information must first be examined.

"It is said only in Berlin that Lord Lothian's death, if it was a natural one, must certainly not have been an easy one because Englishmen who, like him, knew the present situation of his country and who loved his country could not die peacefully."

PETAIN AND LAVAL BACK FROM PARIS

French Colonial Governors in Sweeping Shake-up.

VICHY, Dec. 13 (A. P.).—The Chief of State, Marshal Philippe Petain, and the Vice-Premier, Pierre Laval, returned here today from a visit to Paris.

Meanwhile new Governors for Martinique, Guadeloupe, Madagascar, Cochin China, Niger and other French colonies were appointed today in a sweeping degree issued by the Minister of Colonies. Numerous residents-superior were retired.

The decree appointed Armand Annet to be Governor-General of Madagascar, replacing Leon Cayla; Henry Rivoal to replace Gov. Verber in Cochin China, and Brig.-Gen. Falvey to the place of Leon Solomiac as Governor of Niger.

Yves Nicol was promoted to the rank of Governor of Martinique and Constant Sorin was given Governor's rank in Guadeloupe.

Three other Governors were retired on pension.

In French Indo-China two new residents-superior were appointed, two others promoted and still another retired.

The decree affected numerous other high colonial officials.

REPORTS TO PETAIN

Carde Gives Results of His Trip to Caribbean.

VICHY, France, Dec. 13 (A. P.).—Governor-General Jules Carde of Algeria conferred today with Chief of State Marshal Petain after his return from a mission to French Guiana, Martinique and Guadalupe.

An official announcement said M. Carde gave Marshal Petain a "comforting" impression of his trip, not only in the French possessions, where he explained France's defeat and discussed the supply problem, but also in the United States and the British Antilles. It said, however, that he was arrested twice by the British.

M. Carde, who left here in August, was arrested at Antigue, capital of the Leeward Islands, and at Bermuda.

At Antigua, it said, he was held three weeks and treated well, but at Bermuda he was put in a concentration camp for a week despite a transit visa issued by the British in Washington and then let free without explanations or excuses.

French Repairing Railways

Normal Traffic on War-Torn Lines Will Be Resumed by Jan. 31

VICHY, Dec. 13 (AP).—Minister of Communications Jean Berthelot announced today that repairs to French railways damaged during the war are nearing completion and normal traffic will be resumed next Jan. 31. Normal traffic on damaged canals will be restored by Feb. 2, he said.

Extensive road construction will begin in the spring and will include a new automobile highway to the west and a circular boulevard around Paris.

Approximately 100,000 unemployed men are beng used on public works in the occupied and unoccupied zones.

VICHY EXEMPTS BLOCH

Jewish General Authorized to Keep Army Post.

VICHY, Dec. 13 (A. P.).—Corps Gen. Darius Bloch was exempted from the French anti-Semitic law today by a special decree on the intervention of the War Minister, Gen. Charles Huntziger.

Otherwise Gen. Bloch would have been compelled to leave the army as a Jew.

Besides his good war record, he won distinction as Chief of the Armament and Technical Research Section of the General Staff and developed improvements in anti-tank guns.

Gen. Bloch was the second Frenchman of Jewish ancestry to be offered exemption for his services to the nation. The philosopher and academician, Henri Louis Bergson, refused, however, and resigned his honorary chair in the College de France.

SWISS CURB TRAVEL ACROSS FRONTIER

Decree Believed Intended as Bar to Refugees.

BERNE, Dec. 13 (A. P.).—Restrictions on travel across the Swiss frontiers with Germany, Italy and France were tightened today by a decree increasing military control at certain frontier posts.

The decree gave no official reasons for the new measure. It was believed to have been inspired, however, by efforts to keep refugees from crossing secretly into Switzerland.

Among the new regulations to go into force on December 19 is one requiring special cards issued by the military commanders for crossing Rhine River bridges near Liechtenstein and the old Austrian border.

The passage of freight and merchandise across the frontiers is permitted only during the working hours of full border control staffs. Trucks, automobiles and horse-drawn vehicles are limited to specified roads while other roads are reserved for pedestrians and cyclists.

AVALANCHES IN ALPS

Two Killed, Power and Rail Lines Severed by Slides.

BERNE, Switzerland, Dec. 13 (A. P.). — Avalanches sweeping down Alpine slopes, where heavy snows were loosened by a warm sun, killed two persons and spread heavy damage today in several sections of Switzerland.

A dozen chalets were swept away near Diablerets, in French-speaking Switzerland. Another avalanche carried away a chapel and farm buildings and damaged a schoolhouse and cemetery, near Washed, in the German-speaking zone.

Two woodchoppers were buried under snow in the Tiniere valley in the south, while snow slides cut power, telephone and rail lines at several places in mountain districts.

VICHY, Dec. 13 (A. P.).—Heavy snows and avalanches were reported today to have cut railway communications between a number of villages in the French Alps.

Gets Information Post

Walter Monckton, Windsor's Lawyer, Heads Ministry in London

LONDON, Dec. 13 (AP).—Sir Walter Monckton succeeded Frank Pick as director-general of the Ministry of Information in a "routine" change today.

The Press Association, however, referred to the change as a "surprise."

Sir Walter is attorney for the Duke of Windsor, and reportedly visited him recently in the Bahamas.

Belgians in Exile Called to War

LONDON, Dec. 13 (AP).—Belgians who are in Great Britain and territory unoccupied by the Axis powers and who belong in the 1925-'41 military classes were called up for service today by a decree of the Belgian government-in-exile.

Say 'Serious Situation' May Arise At Tangier

British Circles Point Out This Might Develop From Spanish Action

London, Dec. 13 (AP)—Spain's formal assumption of government services in the former international zone of Tangier opposite Gibraltar might lead to a "serious situation," responsible British circles said tonight.

Spain ordered dissolution of the four-power control commission early last month to erase international jurisdiction set up by the Algeciras Treaty of 1911.

The departure of two Italian submarines from Tangier today was regarded by the British was wholly within the scope of international law, but the view was expressed the Spaniards had given the Italians "more than enough time to permit repairs" after the submarines had been chased into the neutral harbor by the British navy.

20,000 Belgian Prisoners Repatriated for Christmas

BERLIN, Dec. 13 (A. P.).—Twenty thousand Belgian prisoners of war will be returned to their homes before Christmas, authorized sources said today. They will be moved from Germany as soon as transportation is available.

After Christmas an additional 70,000 will be sent to their homes which, it was pointed out, mostly are in agricultural districts.

POPE PLANS BROADCAST

Pontiff To Deliver Address On Christmas Eve

Vatican City, Dec. 13 (AP)—The Christmas Eve broadcast by Pope Pius XII this year is expected to be as important as that in 1939 in which the Pontiff outlined five points for peace, it was said here tonight.

The Pope in the address replies to the traditional Christmas greetings from the cardinals. Precise broadcasting plans have not been announced.

Moscow Paper Sees Plot To Poison Agriculture

Says Capitalist World Ships Diseased Seeds, Produce

MOSCOW, Dec. 13 (AP).—The newspaper "Socialist Agriculture" charged today that diseased seeds, soil, fruit and vegetables were being brought to Russia by foreign travelers or sent in pouches.

"The capitalist world is trying to send to our country not only spies and trerorists; the enemy is trying to wreck with anything possible, trying to find the most subtle ways," the newspaper declared.

"Seeds infected with pink worms, lemons with larva of the Mediterranean fruit fly and infected potatoes were sent as luggage, all accompanied by various certificates with letters of guaranty enclosed.

"But the malicious plots of the enemy will not be realized. A large army of quarantine workers stands vigilantly on guard for the interest of socialist agriculture."

The newspaper cited cotton which, it said, came from America and contained a dangerous disease. Other harmful matter, it asserted, had been sent from England and the Netherlands.

"Socialist Agriculture" said the Leningrad laboratory had tested 1,200,000 samples of seeds and plants from sixty-seven countries in the last nine years and had detected 6,000 insects and diseases.

Way Of Making Rayon From Seaweed Found

Professor At Leeds University Reports On Result Of Research For British Firm

Leeds, Yorkshire, England, Dec. 13 (AP)—A method to make rayon from seaweed is announced by Prof. O. B. Speakman, of Leeds University.

Professor Speakman says the seaweed rayon is cheaper to manufacture than the present rayons. He did the research for a British firm whose name has not been made public. The announcement said that production of the new material is expected to start within a month.

One advantage of the fabric, Professor Speakman said, is resistance to fire. A piece of this rayon, soaked in gasoline and burned, retained its strength and texture. Details of the fire experiment were not made public but Professor Speakman suggested that the fire test indicated possible war uses for the seaweed fabric.

NORWAY'S LARGEST SHIP SUNK BY MINE

Oslofjord Reported Destroyed Off Newcastle Two Days Ago

British Admiralty Also Admits Loss Of Armed Merchant Cruiser

30,24-6391

30.24-6391

[By the Associated Press]

New York, Dec. 13—Norway's largest ship, the 18,673-ton Oslofjord—chartered recently by the British—has been sunk, it was learned today.

At the same time the British Admiralty announced the loss of the armed merchant cruiser Forfar, and Mackay radio here picked up a message from the British freighter Orari saying she had been torpedoed.

Although London remained silent on the sinking of the Oslofjord, authoritative shipping circles in New York said that Norway's finest and newest liner struck a mine and sank off Newcastle, England, two days ago.

Loss Confirmed

The Norwegian Shipping and Trade Commission later confirmed her loss, but said no details were available.

Laid up in New York last January because of the war, the Oslofjord sailed secretly for Halifax October 26 under British charter.

Shipping circles said that on her last voyage to England she carried Canadian aviators. She was en route back to Canada when the accident occurred.

Carrying Beef

The Orari, a 10,350-ton refrigerated motor ship carrying beef from Australia to England, radioed that she had been torpedoed about 750 miles west of Brest, France.

The British Admiralty announcement that the Forfar had been torpedoed said there were some casualties. The Admiralty did not give the tonnage of the vessel or further details, but New York shipping circles believed she might have been the liner Scythia, 19,761 tons, or the Cameronia, 16,297 tons.

Both ships sailed between England and New York after the war started and were recently withdrawn from that service by the Admiralty.

Nazi Supply Ship Sunk

Inasmuch as Lloyd's register of shipping does not list a Forfar, it was assumed it was a new name given a ship requisitioned by the Admiralty.

On the brighter side of the British ledger, the Admiralty announced that the submarine Sunfish had sunk a 4,000-ton German supply ship off the Norwegian coast and had damaged a German oil tanker.

English naval sources said Britain's warfare against Nazi U-boats "is taking a very good toll."

Germany announced that one of her pocket U-boats had sunk three armed British merchant ships totaling 15,800 tons.

BRITISH MERCHANT CRUISER IS SUNK

Nazi Supply Ship Torpedoed by English Submarine.

LONDON, Dec. 13 (A. P.).—The British armed merchant cruiser Forfar, commanded by Capt. N. A. C. Hardy, R. N., has been torpedoed and sunk, an Admiralty communique said tonight.

Lloyd register of shipping lists no merchant ship of that name.

The British submarine Sunfish has sunk a heavily laden German supply ship off the Norwegian coast, the Admiralty announced today.

The communique stated:

"H. M. submarine Sunfish (Lieut. G. R. Colvin, R. N.) while operating close to the Norwegian coast has torpedoed and sunk a German supply ship of about 4,000 tons. The enemy ship was deeply laden and it is probable that she was carrying a large cargo of ore to Germany. . . . The enemy ship broke up and sank immediately.

"H. M. S. Sunfish also attacked a German oil tanker of about 4,000 tons. This ship was hit and damaged."

Swedish Vessel Torpedoed

LONDON, Dec. 13 (AP).—A Reuters dispatch from Stockholm said tonight the Swedish steamship Daphne, 1,514 tons, was torpedoed off the Spanish Atlantic coast and eighteen of the crew of nineteen were lost. (Lloyd's Register lists two Daphnes, one Finnish and one French, but no Swedish vessel by that name.)

Drifter Downs Axis Plane

English Fishing Boat, Undamaged, Hears Attacker Crash

LONDON, Dec. 13 (AP).—An Admiralty communique said today that the British drifter Evening Primrose destroyed an Axis warplane which attacked her yesterday in the North Sea.

"The enemy was seen to be hit and set on fire," the Admiralty said. "Visibility was so low that the enemy aircraft was not seen to crash into the water, but almost immediately after the burning aircraft had disappeared in the mist, a crash and explosion were heard."

The Evening Primrose escaped damage or casualties.

BERLIN, Dec. 13 (A. P.).—One of Germany's pocket U-boats was reported today to have sunk three armed British merchant ships totaling 15,800 tons.

British Drive on U-Boats 'Is Taking a Good Toll'

Naval Source Sees Success in Attacks on Bases

LONDON, Dec. 13 (AP).—A high naval source expressed the conviction today that Great Britain's warfare against German submarines "is taking a very good toll." In addition to the relentless search at sea, he said, there was evidence that almost daily bomber attacks on U-boat bases in France had destroyed or damaged undersea craft.

He emphasized, however, that unless such factual evidence as prisoners can be obtained it is difficult to assess fully the damage being inflicted. The Admiralty—"the silent service"—is not issuing detailed reports on submarine sinkings on the ground that such information would be of value to the Germans.

This informant made it plain that Britain is sparing no pains in applying various methods and devices against the U-boat menace.

U.S. Liner Leaves Lisbon Filled To Overflowing

47 Child Refugees Included In Passenger List Of 186 Taxing Facilities Of Excambion

Lisbon, Dec. 13 (AP)—The United States liner Excambion sailed today with an overflow passenger list of 186, including 47 child refugees.

Mattresses again had to be placed in the salons to provide sleeping facilities. Of the youngsters aboard, thirty-seven are being sent by the Unitarian Service Committee to join relatives in the New World and ten are being evacuated from warring countries by the United States Committee for the Care of European Children.

200 Dead Or Missing In Wreck Of Refugee Ship

Many Women And Children Among Passengers On Motor Ship In Storm Near Instanbul

Istanbul, Turkey, Dec. 13 (AP)—More than 200 Jewish refugees were dead or missing in the storm-lashed Sea of Marmora today following the foundering of a motor ship crowded with 300 passengers bound from Bulgaria to Palestine.

Seventy-one bodies were recovered today and 137 persons were listed as missing. Many were women and children. A total of 122 passengers were saved.

The ship went to pieces near the Turkish shore. The captain swam ashore and was held pending an investigation.

Information reaching here said the ship went down so quickly the passengers had no time to take to boats.

EXILES' SHIP SINKS IN SEA OF MARMORA

Bodies of 69 Are Found--- 169 Persons Missing.

ISTANBUL, Dec. 13 (A. P.).—The stormy sea of Marmora gave up the bodies of sixty-nine Jewish refugees today and 169 more were missing feared drowned following upon the break-up of a ship carrying more than 400 passengers from Bulgaria to Palestine.

Unofficial reports said that 114 of the refugees were known to be safe. The recovered bodies included those of 38 women, 15 children and 16 men.

The little steamship broke up in high seas near Istanbul.

The name of the foundered vessel had not been learned here late tonight. One report said that it was flying the Uruguayan flag and that it bore the name Uruguay, but the Uruguayan Consulate said it did not know of such a ship.

Little hope was held for the 169 missing. The captain of the little motor vessel, which sailed recently from Varna, Bulgaria, swam ashore and was being detained pending an inquest.

The Turkish government was aiding the survivors, many of whom were taken to hospitals. Food, clothing and beds were provided for others.

Only meager details of the disaster reached Istanbul because the village where the survivors were landed has no telephone. Reports relayed from the scene said the passengers were thrown into the sea when the ship broke up near the shore, and that the storm-tossed waves swept them out to sea.

AFLAME FOR HOURS, RHEIN SUNK BY BRITISH

U.S. Naval Officer Says Warship Shelled Hulk of Nazi Vessel

KEY WEST, Fla., Dec. 13 (AP)—A United States naval officer said today that shots fired broadside into the German tanker Rhein by the British cruiser Caradoc sank the tanker after she had been burning for more than fifteen hours.

He was aboard the destroyer MacLeish of the Key West neutrality patrol. Officers and crew of the destroyer saw the capture of the tanker and the attempted scuttling by her German crew. The officer's account was the first eyewitness description of the incident.

[This was the first report of the sinking of the Rhein, whose capture, first disclosed in Washington, has been confirmed by the British Admiralty. However, the Admiralty report said the crew of the Netherland warship Van Kinsbergen had extinguished the fire on the Rhein and averted her sinking.]

"The Rhein was fired by her crew about 1:30 A. M. Wednesday, well within the American neutrality zone," the naval officer said. "When the MacLeish arrived at the scene the Dutch training ship Van Kinsbergen, which is slightly larger than a destroyer, was in close pursuit of the tanker.

"Suddenly flames shot from forward and stern and the German ship was a blazing inferno. Lifeboats were lowered and the crew abandoned ship. The Dutch crew did not board the Rhein until after she had been fired. They did not remain aboard long, as they realized that it was impossible to extinguish the fire.

"The crewmen of the Rhein were removed from their lifeboats by Dutch sailors and taken aboard the Van Kinsbergen. Later they were transferred to the British cruiser Caradoc as prisoners. The Caradoc did not arrive until the tanker was aflame."

The officer added that "United States destroyers followed the Rhein and the German ship Idarwald from the time they left Tampico, Mexico, in an unsuccessful attempt to run the British blockade."

U.S. Seamen Describes Burning Of Nazi Tanker Off Florida

Mate Asserts Crafts Was Ablaze On Both Ends, With Fire Heating Sea All Around

(Editor's Note—The following eyewitness account of the attempted scuttling of the German freighter Rhein off the Florida coast was written exclusively for the Associated Press by Daniel F. Hagerty, mate of the steamship Comol Rico.)

By DANIEL F. HAGERTY
[By the Associated Press]

New Orleans, Dec. 13 — We were bound from Cuba to New Orleans last Wednesday when, about 10.30 A. M., we sighted a burning vessel in front of us which I judged to be about ten miles away.

As we drew closer we could see that the ship ha da heavy port list—about 40 degrees—and was burning furiously.

The position of the vessel was latitude 24-55 north longitude 83-33 west, which is a point thirty-seven nautical miles west-northwest of Tortugas light, the last light on the end of the reefs off Key West, Fla.

Air Filled With Sparks

As we came close to the burning ship, we were forced to go on the weather side, that is, on the windward side of the ship, because we would be in great danger if we got close to th eburning ship on the lee side. The air on the lee side was filled with sparks and smoke, and the heat must have been great.

Even on the windward side, the water was heated by the burning ship, and vapor was rising along the path the crippled ship had made. We noted the ship had a heavy fire in the after holds and the poop deck. The forward hold, bridge and forecastle head looked as if the fire was just starting there. It was blazing lightly. In the after holds, however, the blaze had gained tremendous headway.

We noted that all the booms had been swung over the side, and there were no life boats on the boat, indicating that the ship had been abandoned. Jacob's ladders hung over the poop deck. There could have been no life on the boat, the heat was so terrific.

No Effort At Comouflage

We established that the vessel was the Rhein, out of Hamburg, Germany, by observing its name on the stern. The name was easy to read, and there had been no effort to camouflage the boat. She was in a regular shipping lone.

All of the plates on the starboard side of the blazing boat were buckled from the intense heat. Some of the plates were red hot.

A Dutch destroyer lay about a half mile off the Rhein. Another destroyer—we could not tell whether she was a British destroyer or an American—lay a mile away. Neither craft attempted to communicate with us, and we passed unmolested by either.

British Celebrating Graf Spee Anniversary

MONTEVIDEO, Dec. 13 (A. P.).—The British colony here held victory parties today on the first anniversary of the battle between the German pocket battleship Admiral Graf Spee and British cruisers.

Germans held memorial services for the Graf Spee's dead, who are buried here. The battleship was scuttled by her own crew after the battle.

Fishermen's Relief Ship

Boston, Dec. 13 (AP)—Prospects of a drab Christmas for some 1,500 war-stranded French fishermen on two tiny islands off Newfoundland were alleviated today as the British schooner Robert Esdale plowed toward them with supplies from Boston.

The sturdy two-master left yesterday for the French possessions of St. Pierre and Miquelon with food, warm clothing, fifty-five tons of coal and such gifts as cigarettes, pipes and tobacco. Francois Briere, French consul in Boston, planned the expedition.

Reports received here said the fishermen, working at the Grand Banks when they received word of their homeland's defeat, took their fleet to the islands rather than attempt to return through blockaded waters.

British Report Fruitless Hunt For Atlantic Raider

Montevideo, Uruguay, Dec. 13 (AP). An extensive British search for the unidentified German raider which fought and damaged the British armed merchant cruiser Carnarvon Castle off the Brazilian coast last week has been futile, Commodore Frank Pegram, commander of the South Atlantic Squadron, confirmed today as his flagship, the cruiser Enterprise, docked.

"Had we located the raider, there would not be a raider any more," Pegram said.

He declined to comment further on the general search for German raiders in the South Atlantic. Some naval men believe that at least four are operating there.

The Enterprise will be here about forty-eight hours, taking on fuel and provisions.

objections to continued Uruguayan-United States defense conversations but reserved the right to raise objections on any proposals threatening domination of the vital River Plate between the two countries.

The statement also revealed that Argentina and Uruguay hoped to reach a new treaty calling for increased trade.

Roca had planned to return to Buenos Aires tonight, but postponed his departure until Sunday to allow for another day of conversations with Guani.

Uruguayan Base Dispute

[By the Associated Press]

Montevideo, Uruguay, Dec. 13—Three Cabinet members who resigned in protest against a projected policy of collaborating with the United States in the construction of bases for hemisphere defense were summoned to a conference by President Alfredo Baldomir today in an effort to heal quickly the breach in the Government.

Baldomir said he hoped such a conference would cause them to reconsider their resignations, probably with assurances that Uruguay's participation in any continental defense plan would not create a threat of United States control over the River Plate's approaches.

But Argentina Reserves Right To Object To Any Proposals Threatening Domination Of Vital River Plate

[By the Associated Press]

Colonia, Uruguay, Dec. 13—Foreign Ministers Alberto Guani of Uruguay and Julio Roca of Argentina, conferring here on mutual defense problems, announced tonight that they were considering inviting Brazil, Chile, Bolivia and Paraguay to participate in the decisions.

The first official announcement of the two-day conversations between the foreign ministers said "the question of continental defense" as well as "problems related to security of the River Plate" were reviewed.

It was understood Argentina had no objections to continued Uruguayan-United States defense conversations but reserved the right to raise objections on any proposals threatening domination of the vital River Plate between the two countries.

The three Ministers—all members of the Herrerista (minority) party—were Minister of Public Works Juan José Arteaga, Minister of Industries Gervasio Posadas Belgrano and Minister of Public Education Abalcazar Garcia.

Their resignations yesterday brought to six the number of Cabinet members to quit within the last two weeks, four in all over the bases issue and two over agricultural policy.

Siam Says French Drives On Her Frontier Failed

Reports Repulsing Series of Land and Air Attacks

BANGKOK, Thailand (Siam), Dec. 13 (AP).—A series of French attempts to penetrate the Thai frontier by land and air from Indo-China was repulsed yesterday, according to the latest communique of Thailand's high command.

A French plane was reported to have dropped fourteen bombs on the town of Mukdaharn, on the Mekong River, but only a horse was said to have been killed.

French guerrilla parties were said to be harassing civilians along the river, and one party, which had two elephants and three horses for mounts, was said to have attempted to cross into Thailand to gather supplies. One French soldier was shot and killed, it was said, and the others fled.

Churches Given Over in Japan

DEC 14 1940

American-owned University and Hospital Also Change Hands Under New Law.

TOKIO, Dec. 13 (A. P.).—Major American, British and Canadian church properties, valued at millions of dollars, are in the process of being turned over to the Japanese, foreign church officials announced today, as a result of Japan's recently enacted religious law.

Bishop Charles S. Reifsnider, president of St. Paul's Episcopal University, said that this institution along with St. Luke's Episcopal Hospital, one of the finest in the Orient, and Holy Trinity Church—all American-owned—are among the properties affected. He placed the value of the hospital alone at more than $1,500,000.

Bishop Reifsnider has been replaced as president of the sixty-seven-year-old institution by Prof. Ikuzo Takyama, dean of the faculty.

Because of complicated legalities, the actual transfer of the church properties may not be completed for several months, it was explained, although the Japanese were said to be in complete control of many institutions already.

Several American-owned properties have not yet been affected, among them the Tokio American School, which is secular; the Y. M. C. A. and the Catholic Boys' School of Yokohama.

The Japan Times, mouthpiece of the Tokio Foreign Office, said that the transfer may have been hastened by the recent movement to eliminate foreign control of church activities, but that "the taking over process has been proceeding apace for years." It added:

"From the beginning of all missionary work in Japan, it was hoped and expected that Japanese would take over their own work, and it is a great sign of trust that so much confidence can be reposed today in the Japanese clergy and Japanese hospital men. It is a case of free charitable giving (of the original American funds for establishment of the institutions) and a responsible acceptance of these duties."

Japan's new religious law stipulates the stoppage of foreign financial assistance and places control of mission schools, hospitals and social enterprises entirely in Japanese hands.

Tokio to Study 5 Decrees To Rule Press and Prices

Measures Up Today Before Government Board

TOKIO, Dec 13 (AP).—Five decrees to tighten government control of Japan's economy and newspapers will be considered by the government's general mobilization committee tomorrow, it was announced today. If approved, they will be promulgated as imperial ordinances.

The newspaper "Asahi" said one decree, providing for "control of press reports, would enable the government to prohibit or restrict if considered necessary, publication of news items dealing with foreign and economic policy.

The other decrees would enable the government to control the prices of farm lands, forest lands and untilled fields and of daily necessities and essential materials.

NIGHT LEAD DECREES

TOKYO, DEC 14 (SATURDAY) (AP)-THE GOVERNMENT'S GENERAL MOBILIZATION COMMITTEE CONSIDERED TODAY ADOPTION OF A SERIES OF DECREES DESIGNED TO STRENGTHEN GOVERNMENT CONTROL OF AGRICULTURE AND STAPLE COMMODITIES.

THE DECREES, WHICH WOULD BE PROMULGATED AS IMPERIAL ORDINANCES IF APPROVED, WOULD:

1-- FORBID THE HOARDING OF RICE, CHARCOAL AND OTHER STAPLES.

2-- MAKE IT ILLEGAL TO HOLD AGRICULTURAL LANDS FALLOW.

3-- STRICTLY REGULATE AGRICULTURAL PRODUCTION TO INSURE MAXIMUM OUTPUT OF STAPLE FOODS.

Canada Military Forces Put Under One Name

Dominion Has 'Army' Officially for the First Time

OTTAWA, Dec. 13 (AP).—An order-in-council has been passed declaring all the military porces of Canada are to be called "The Canadian Army." It is the first time in Canadian history that the dominion officially has had an "army."

The new designation puts an end to the term "Canadian Active Service Force," used since the start of the present war to designate the forces fully employed on military duties or on active service, and the term "Non-permanent Active Militia," used for years to designate the troops who spend part of their time on military duties while carrying on with civilan occupatons.

In the World War the active army was called "The Canadian Expeditionary Force."

England To Resume Evacuations To Canada

Edmonton, Alberta, Dec. 13 (AP)—More than 2,500,000 applications have been received by the British Government for removal of children to Canada, and the Government has every intention of resuming the movement in the spring, R. Keith Jopson, of London, representative in Canada for the children's overseas reception board, said today.

So far, 1,532 British children have been placed in Canadian homes.

R. C. A. F. Loses 3 Planes, Appeals for Public's Aid

Two of 27 Craft Missing in Search for Another

TORONTO, Dec. 13 (CP).—Royal Canadian Air Force officials at Camp Borden, Ont., tonight asked the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation to broadcast an appeal for information on the whereabouts of three R. C. A. F. low-wing monoplanes, reported lost in Ontario. Persons having knowledge of the planes were asked to communicate with the duty officer, R. C. A. F., at Camp Borden.

DEC 14 1940

Yesterday one of the planes, piloted by C.fl P. Hopton, leading aircraftsman, of Cabri, Sask., became lost on a routine formation flight. Today twenty-seven planes, fifteen from Camp Borden and twelve from Malton Airport, took part in a widespread search for it.

The two planes missing today were engaged in the search.

Day's War Communiques

British

CAIRO, Egypt, Dec. 13 (AP).—A British communique:

Egypt: In the Western desert remnants of the beaten Italian army continue their withdrawal, closely followed up by our advance troops.

In addition to the three senior generals reported as captured yesterday, two further general officers commanding divisions are now in our hands.

The number of prisoners has also been increased by several thousands, but owing to the area of the battlefield it is still impossible to give any precise figures.

All along the Sudan frontier our patrols continue to harass the enemy and to inflict casualties upon him.

LONDON, Dec. 13 (AP).—An Air Ministry communique:

Yesterday evening a small formation of aircraft of the Coastal Command bombed the docks at Brest.

While on patrol off the Dutch coast last night a Coastal Command aircraft attacked an enemy supply ship. A direct hit on the ship was obtained.

An Admiralty communique:

The Board of Admiralty regrets to announce that the armed merchant cruiser H. M. S. Forfar (Capt. N. A. C. Hardy, R. N.) has been torpedoed and subsequently sunk. The next of kin of the casualties have been informed.

An Admiralty communique:

H. M. submarine Sunfish (Lieut. G. R. Colvin, R. N.), while operating close to the Norwegian coast, has torpedoed and sunk a German supply ship of about 4,000 tons. The enemy ship was deeply laden, and it is probable that she was carrying a large cargo of ore to Germany. Two torpedoes from H. M. S. Sunfish were seen to hit, and the enemy ship broke up and sank immediately.

H. M. S. Sunfish also attacked a German oil tanker of about 4,000 tons. This ship was hit and damaged.

Italian

ROME, Dec. 13 (AP).—The Italian high command communique:

On the Cirenaica (Libyan) frontier in the zone between Sollum and Sidi Barrani and the desert zone to the southeast the battle continued violently yesterday between our troops, who are fighting with great gallantry, and enemy armored columns.

Our squadrons of fighters and bombing planes, despite sand storms, flew without interruption from dawn to sundown, bombing and setting fire to enemy units.

The total of enemy planes shot down in the fighting since Dec. 9 reached eighteen. Since the same day twelve of our planes have failed to return.

In East Africa activity of our patrols on the Sudan border with the aid of our air force inflicted losses on enemy mechanized forces. An enemy plane was shot down in flames.

On the Greek front there was nothing worthy of special report. Small attacks of a local character were repelled.

German

BERLIN, Dec. 13 (AP).—The German high command communique:

On the night of Dec. 11-12 another monster attack of strong German air force units was directed against Birmingham, as previously reported. Strong explosions in the southern sections, hits on rail and industrial facilities, the explosion of gas works with spreading conflagrations as well as numerous large, medium and smaller fires were observed.

The day's raids in the course of Dec. 12 were directed against London and several other objectives in southern England.

Near Harwich on the English east coast we succeeded in bombing a 3,000-ton steamer in convoy. Square hits on the bow and stern so incapacitated the ship that loss is probable. Another merchantman was badly hit.

Last night very strong German combat units made rolling attacks with the greatest success on heavy industry in Sheffield.

One submarine, of whose operations a partial result already has been announced, reports as her total success the sinking of 27,000 tons.

Last night only one British plane flew over Reich's territory, without dropping bombs.

Our opponent's total losses Dec. 10 were four planes, of which two were downed by anti-aircraft fire and two in an air fight by a reconnaissance plane. Four of our own planes failed to return.

Greek

ATHENS, Dec. 13 (AP).—A Greek Army headquarters communique:

Lively action by our troops at various points on the front, with favorable results.

A Ministry of Home Security communique:

Enemy aviation today carried out raids on Greece on a reduced scale. Bombs were dropped on two Ionian islands. There were very few casualties and small damage to buildings. Bombs were dropped on the country area of Salonica. There were no casualties or damage.

Duke Flies To Parley In Caribbean—Pledges Defense Cooperation

President Reviews Tour Of Sites In British Waters, Heads Home

By DOUGLAS B. CORNELL
Associated Press Correspondent

Aboard the U. S. S. Tuscaloosa, Eleuthera Island, the Bahamas, Dec. 13 (By Radio)—President Roosevelt and the Duke of Windsor conferred for nearly three hours today aboard the Presidential flagship concerning United States defense outposts protecting the Panama Canal and the mainland of the three Americas.

The Duke told newsmen that the people of the Bahamas looked with great favor on establishment of the bases and that "we are ready to do what the President wants when he gives the word."

None Entirely Satisfactory

The President disclosed at an informal press conference that plans for the establishment of a Bahamas base were being held in abeyance because of unfavorable anchorage and other conditions at Mayaguana Island, which he inspected yesterday.

He also has seen little San Salvador, Long and Eleuthera islands, but said none was entirely satisfactory for a base site, and the problem required further study.

During the conference, the Tuscaloosa was anchored off this British island, about seventy miles from Nassau, the headquarters of the Duke, who is Governor General of the Bahamas.

CCC Idea For The Bahamas

The Duke arrived at 11.15 A. M. from Miami in a four-engined naval patrol bomber. He was welcomed aboard the Tuscaloosa with full honors, and immediately went into conference.

The President and the Duke discussed economic and defense conditions of the islands. Windsor said he expected to come to the United States early next year to study the CCC and probably would establish something similar for unskilled Bahamas Negroes. He said he expected to lay the matter before his executive council.

Roosevelt Discusses Tour

Discussing his eleven-day inspection tour of Caribbean defense sites, including those at Jamaica, St. Lucia Antigua and the Bahamas, the President told reporters that obviously the further you kept from the American continent a potential attack against it, the safer it would be for the continent.

That means, he said, that we wanted to be as far out as we could be. Newfoundland, he said, was as far as we could go in the North, and Bermuda as far off the coast as we could go.

With no island between Bermuda and Puerto Rico, he said, the Bahamas was the next best thing and would serve also as a stepping stone for the maintenance of the southern end of the outer defense line in the Windward and Leeward islands in case of attack.

No American Gibraltar

The President said there would be no such thing as a Gibraltar and the United States must have many bases because naval war in these waters would be more mobile than in such a strait as Gibraltar.

If Puerto Rico were fortified all around and had 1,000,000 men defending it, the attacking force could go around it, the President said. He added that he knew Newfoundland and Trinidad waters well but wanted to see St. Lucia and Antigua because he had never been close inshore there.

Summing up his inspections, the President likened the sites to stepping stones good for three things, namely, sea planes, land planes and ships, with the ships providing supplies and maintenance.

Jamaica As Stepping Stone

Jamaica, inside the outer defense line, he called a stepping stone to the Panama Canal, Central America and Colombia. He said the harbor was excellent but needed some dredging and could be made submarine proof by nets.

St. Lucia had good anchorage and a lee for smaller ships and was apparently satisfactory in every way, he said, for sea and land planes.

Antigua was very good for both types of planes but not so good for ships, but Mayaguana was by no means satisfactory, he said, because ships must anchor on the beach or in a thousand fathoms.

Economic Angles Discussed

Concerning his discussion of the Bahamas with the Duke, the President said the economics of the islands fitted into the economics of the American islands.

Mr. Roosevelt said he discussed economics also with the Governor of Jamaica and Antigua, telling the Jamaican Governor that Puerto Ricans could eat their rice, and the Antiguan

Governor that a dairy industry could be established to serve the United States officers and men based there.

The plane which brought the Duke was set down on a smooth sea after a 240-mile flight from Miami. Windsor, accompanied by his aide-de-camp, Capt. Vyvyan Drury, retired British army officer, transferred to a whale boat and then the Tuscaloosa captain's gig.

Headed Back Toward U. S.

With a yachtsman's cap in his hand, Windsor stood bareheaded in a rain squall while he was piped aboard the Tuscaloosa. The band played "God Save the King." The ceremonies were repeated when the Duke left the ship and boarded the plane for Miami.

The President and his party and the Duke lunched on the Tuscaloosa's communication deck under awnings.

The Tuscaloosa and her escorts, the destroyers Mayrant and Trippe, headed tonight toward the United States.

[Associated Press Editor's Note—At Charleston, S. C., it was reported the President's ship would dock there Saturday.]

DEC 14 1940

West Indies' Economic Future Also Discussed

Miami, Fla., Dec. 13 (AP)—Returning by plane today from his conference in the Caribbean with President Roosevelt, the Duke of Windsor said:

"I visited the President in my capacity as Governor of the Bahamas," and revealed that the meeting was planned before he brought the Duchess here for a major dental operation.

"We discussed naval bases in the whole of the West Indies," he continued. "We also talked about the economic future of the West Indies and how America might cooperate with Great Britain in their development."

Not until the former King returned to Miami was it learned definitely he had met the President, for the first time in twenty-one years. During his seven-hour and thirty-five-minute absence there was no public information about the flight, unexpectedly announced early this morning.

No Comment On Envoy Post

The Duke said all talk about the international situation was "very general." He declared he could make no comment on a rumor that he is to become British Ambassador to the United States.

Reliable sources in London expressed doubt the rendezvous involved any chance that the Duke might succeed Lord Lothian as Ambassador to the United States. They indicated the meeting was arranged before Lord Lothian's death Wednesday.

Windsor said he asked the President "if after New Year's he could make arrangements for me to visit CCC camps." He indicated the reply was a cordial invitation and he "wouldn't be surprised" if he makes the inspection.

He remarked that Mr. Roosevel "looked well."

"He is enjoying his cruise," th slender Governor added. "He is having a great rest, and I think he has been fishing quite a good deal."

Mr. Roosevelt, the Duke continued, is "greatly interested" in the West Indies and has considerable knowledge of the problems.

"He has been there a number of times, you know," the Duke added.

Duchess Much 'Improved'

After a launch brought him ashore from the four-motored navy patrol plane, he talked a few minutes with reporters, then hurried off to Miami Beach to join his wife at St. Francis Hospital.

Much improved, the Duchess took an automobile ride today and visited a landscape gardener.

Charleston Awaits Roosevelt

CHARLESTON, S. C., Dec. 13 (AP).—The cruiser Tuscaloosa, with President Roosevelt aboard, is now headed toward Charleston and is expected to arrive here tomorrow. Unless a last-minute change in plans is made by the President, he will end his 3,000-mile defense base inspection cruise at this port tomorrow afternoon, it was learned here today. He will leave by special train for Washington.

Planes For January 30% Below Estimate, Defense Commission Head Reveals — Calls For Harder Work To Save U. S. From Barbarism

[By the Associated Press]

New York, Dec. 13—William S. Knudsen, production chief of the National Defense Advisory Commission, tonight bluntly warned both industry and labor that any failure on their part to cooperate for the utmost speed in defense production might have grave consequences for the nation.

"Frankly," he said, "we are not doing anything compared to the forecast by the manufacturers and the commission in July, and our hoped-for production figures for January 1, 1941, of 1,000 planes per month, have to be scaled down by thirty per cent. to be correct."

DEC 14 1940

Makes Plea For Speed

The former General Motors head made a strong plea for "speed and more speed" in defense effort in a speech at the annual dinner of the National Association of Manufacturers, which was attended by a large number of leading industrialists.

"Talk to your men," he told them. "Make them feel that it is their responsibility as well as yours. Ask them what they think of a civilization that drives women and children to live in cold, wet holes in the ground.

Turned Back 1,000 Years

"We have gone back a thousand years in the last year. Why? Because a few individuals decide the actions of totalitarian nations, and democracy is fighting for its life.

"Let us work and work harder so that the possibility of such barbarism spreading to our shores will be an impossibility forever."

Knudsen asserted the public generally is "sold on defense," but he wondered whether it had been sufficiently sold to industry and labor.

Says 20 Per Cent. Is Lost

Contending that week-end factory shutdowns tended to defeat defense production aims, Knudsen said:

"Friday night has become the big night in most of our industrial picture. It used to be Saturday night—we have cut twenty per cent. off our machine time. Can we afford to do this?

"Can't we stop this blackout, this lack of production, from Friday to Monday, and get more use out of the equipment? We can train the men to operate it. Isn't it possible to put the defense job on a war basis even if we are at peace?

"When I think of the seriousness of the whole world situation, where the Americas are the only spot where freedom and law still have a foothold, I wonder if we are not justified in doing just that."

Production Now "Blacked Out" 3 Days Weekly, He Warns Nation, And Pleads For Cooperation Of Labor And Manufacturers

U. S. 'Slave Nation' If Britain Falls

[By the Associated Press]

New York, Dec. 13—Lewis W. Douglas, former director of the budget and now president of Mutual Insurance Company of New York, told the nation's industrialists today that if the British were defeated "we will then be the most vulnerable of nations."

Speaking before the National Association of Manufacturers, Douglas said that if the "forces of organized violence" were able to "sweep the British fleet from the seas and dismember the British empire . . . we would be encircled in the Pacific, restricted in the Atlantic, circumscribed to the south of us, either by the establishment by the puppet governments taking their orders from Central Europe or by governments openly swearing allegiance to Berlin."

"Alone In The World"

Douglas continued:

"We would then be alone in the world, confronted by power aimed at recasting the civilization of the world, controlling all of two continents, a part of a third, holding under their dictation all of the raw materials necessary, not only to subsistence but to the successful enforcement of their will, operating industrial facilities with a capacity greater than ours, ship building facilities many times in excess of ours, production possibilities and by what one might almost call conscript labor.

"And all of it—raw materials, industries, ship yards airplane factories—all of it controlled by a State whose purposes are world power, willed revolution. . . .

The Real Issue

"The issue for America to decide is not peace or war. Others will make this decision to suit their pleasure and to serve their purpose. . . . The issue for us to decide is whether this nation, conceived in liberty, should be left alone to face a brutal, revolutionary world; whether we can afford to let the Axis powers win; whether it should not be our policy to do whatever may be necessary to insure the defeat of those powers."

"Defense Insurance"

The association believes proper national defense "insurance" can be obtained without a reduction of living standards "only if labor, capital and management work together with a united purpose for production, more production and still more production."

The organization, representing 7,600 firms, adopted a "platform of American industry" yesterday pledging fullest cooperation with the Government in the perparedness program.

For Free Enterprise

"It is to the free enterprise system," the platform said, "that the people must look if the nation's defenses are to be provided in a manner which will preserve, and not destroy, the way of life they are designed to defend."

The nation should begin now to map a program to avoid a possible depression after the defense emergency is over and millions of defense workers and soldiers are released, the platform emphasized.

HILLMAN PROTESTS CONTRACT TO FORD

Objects On Grounds Order Carries No Stipulation On Labor Laws

$2,000,000 Award Is For Number Of Autos—Papers Yet Unsigned

DEC 14 1940

[By the Associated Press]

Washington, Dec. 13—The long controversy as to whether firms accused of violating the Wagner Act should be denied defense contracts came to a head today with the disclosure that Sidney Hillman, labor member of the Defense Commission, had protested against a $2,000,000 award to the Ford Motor Company.

The order calls for some 1,500 midget cars, designed for high speed scout work, and a number of other automobiles.

Tell Of Protest

Aides of Hillman said the protest had been made about two weeks ago on the ground that the award carried no stipulation for compliance with the labor laws, particularly the Wagner Act concerning the right of labor to organize and bargain collectively without employer interference.

War Department officials commented that William S. Knudsen, production chief of the Defense Commission, had cleared the project in question. They said the Ford Company had been ordered to proceed with the work pending completion of the actual contract, but that the contract had not yet been signed either by Ford or the department.

Robert P. Patterson, Assistant Secretary of War in charge of industrial procurement, said merely that he knew some protest had been lodged. He declined further comment.

Stipulation Of Clause

Other officials of the department declared that the contemplated contract with Ford included the same labor clause as in other normal contracts. This clause stipulated, they said, that the manufacturer must comply with the Walsh-Healey Act regulating the wages and hours of employes working on Government contracts.

M. Brandwen, of New York, executive assistant to Hillman, said that the labor division of the National Defense Commission did not want the War Department to go through with the contract.

"The protest was made," he said, "because the ward of the contract to this firm would not be in accordance with the statement of policy enunciated by the commission last September, which provides among other things for compliance with and observance of all applicable labor laws on defense work."

Knudsen, former president of General Motors, has opposed the idea of withholding contracts from alleged labor law violators until the courts have passed finally upon the allegations.

Action Of Court

A Labor Board decision against the Ford Motor Company was upheld in part and overturned in part by the Sixth Circuit Court of Appeals last October 8. The Appellate Court refused to enforce the board's order that the company cease distributing pamphlets among its workers outlining the firm's views concerning unions.

At the same time, the appellate judges granted the board an order requiring that the company cease its alleged interference with the right of collective bargaining. The case has not yet been settled by the Supreme Court.

Associates of Hillman said the War Department had justified a previous award of $122,000,000 to Ford for airplane engines on the ground that no alternative facilities were available and that speed was essential.

Hillman had protested, they continued, but had more or less agreed in this case to await a Supreme Court decision as to the Labor Board's charges against the Ford company.

But, Hillman aides declared, the automobiles involved in the current $2,000,000 award could have been obtained from anyone of several manufacturers.

R. P. Patterson Avers America Could Win Any War Without Fighting

Holds This Would Be Possible If There Were Time For Training

[By the Associated Press]

Philadelphia, Dec. 13—Robert P. Patterson, Assistant Secretary of War, said today if the United States were given sufficient time to train its conscription army it could win any war without fighting, "for only an insane despot would think of attacking us."

"Complaisance," said Patterson in an address at the Wharton School of Finance ,of the University of Pennsylvania, "is the only foe the people of the United States have to fear.

Describes Crisis'

"We have got to look at this crisis for what it is: The greatest peace-time emergency that has ever confronted America."

Declaring the army of 1,500,000 men which the United States is raising "is the last great reserve of civilization," Patterson said the one hope left to the enemies of democracy was that "America may yet fail to evaluate the gravity of her situation."

Predicts Changes In Law

In discussing what may happen after July 1, 1941—the dead line for deferment under the Conscription Act for college students, Patterson said:

"If the student can best serve the nation by continuing his studies, he will certainly be allowed to do so. But the nation's interests, not his own, must come first. And that is true not alone of college students but of every man and woman in the country."

In an interview after his lecture, Patterson predicted far-reaching changes would be made in the draft law. He did not elaborate.

U. S. TO DELAY FOOD DECISION UNTIL SPRING

DEC 14 1940

State Department Learns Supply Abroad Will Last Six Months.

CARGOES FOR SPAIN LIKELY

Administration Believes That Developments May Make Relief Unnecessary.

By LLOYD LEHRBAS

WASHINGTON, Dec. 13 (A. P.).—State Department intervention in behalf of food relief for Europe is unlikely for at least three months, a high official said today, because the department has information that there is enough supplies abroad to last until late next spring.

A survey of food conditions, compiled for the department by authoritative Americans, shows that Europe faces no starvation for a minimum of five or six months, the official reported.

This information, he said, coupled with Great Britain's recent refusal to pass food shipments through her blockade, has virtually decided the State Department to defer any general action on the subject until the end of the winter.

Spain May Get Food.

An exception may be made, informed sources said, in behalf of Red Cross efforts to send supplies to Spain, where the food situation is believed critical, and for shipments of condensed milk and concentrated vitamin foods for infants and children in unoccupied France.

"Since our most authoritative reports indicate that the food situation in those countries which have been overrun by German invaders will not reach the critical stage for approximately six months," one official said, "it is felt that, unless the situation changes suddenly, we can study the problem another two or three months before making a final decision."

By spring there may be developments in Europe, the official added, which would change the whole picture and either obviate the necessity of food ships, or cause them to be rushed. Even in the latter event, it was said, the relief cargoes would arrive in ample time to ward off extreme privation or actual starvation.

Seeking German Stand.

Herbert Hoover, the former President, and the national committee on food for the five small democracies (Finland, Norway, the Netherlands, Belgium and central Poland) have not emphasized the need for immediate shipments in their campaign for food to feed an estimated 37,000,000 facing eventual hunger in those countries.

One of the questions officials here would like to see clarified in the meantime is what, if any, action Germany will take in insuring food for the peoples in the nations German troops have occupied. Many officials here feel—as intimated by Secretary of State Hull—that Germany is primarily responsible for the plight of these people, and should be the first to make sure they do not starve.

"The British are now living like wild animals," one ranking official said today, "spending many hours in damp cellars, eating short rations and suffering severely rather than give up their liberty to Hitler. It's hardly the time for the United States Government to bring pressure to bear on Great Britain to permit foodstuffs to reach German-occupied areas, especially since the foodstuffs there will last several months longer."

DEC 14 1940

Still Favor Food Ships.

HARTFORD, Dec. 13 (A. P.).—A representative of the American Friends Service Committee has suggested that it would be embarrassing to the British if a relief ship, manned by American Quakers, was destroyed while attempting to sail through the blockade with food for starving France.

Prof. Henry J. Cadbury of Harvard told Connecticut Quakers last night that an attempt to buy a ship for such a venture had not been made yet, but added that the recent British refusal to permit food for war victims to pass the blockade must not be permitted "to put the quietus on what we know we ought to do."

Sir Frederick Phillips Sees Morgenthau Again

Discussion on Aid to Britain Resumed in Brief Parley

WASHINGTON, Dec. 13 (AP).—Sir Frederick Phillips, Under Secretary of the British Treasury, renewed today discussions with Henry Morgenthau jr., Secretary of the Treasury, on British resources to buy supplies in the United States.

Sir Frederick saw Mr. Morgenthau in a brief interview, but neither would comment afterward.

The meeting was the first between the pair since Mr. Morgenthau on Tuesday spread before ranking officials of the defense and diplomatic departments information which Sir Frederick already had given him.

ANOTHER U. S. WOMAN IS HELD BY PARIS NAZIS

Widow Of Former N. Y. City Editor Is Reported In Custody

American Embassy Unable To Learn Nature Of Charges

DEC 14 1940

[By the Associated Press]

Washington, Dec. 13—Word that a second American woman had been taken into custody by German authorities in occupied France has been received by the State Department.

Department officials said tonight they had been advised through diplomatic channels that Mrs. Etta Kahn Shiber, an American citizen, was being held by the German authorities.

The Embassy in Paris reported it was making every effort in behalf of Mrs. Shiber, but that it had been unable to learn the nature of the charges against her or secure her release. Where in France Mrs. Shiber was detained was not disclosed, nor was her home address known here.

U. S. Told Week Ago

The Embassy advised the State Department December 6 of Mrs. Shiber's detention, it was learned, although the exact date of the incident was not given.

On December 1, German authorities in Paris detained Mrs. Elizabeth Deegan, clerk of the Embassy. A week later Maynard Barnes, charge d'affaires at the Embassy, succeeded in locating Mrs. Deegan in a small hotel where she was being held in the custody of German police.

State Department officials said tonight that they still had no word of Mrs. Deegan's release. It was understood she had been accused of helping British officers escape from occupied France.

Brother In Syracuse Is Notified Of Arrest

Syracuse, N. Y., Dec. 13 (AP)—Chester A. Kahn said tonight he was informed by the State Department at Washington that his sister, Mrs. Etta Kahn Shiber, was in custody of German authorities in occupied France.

The communication, he said, gave the first information he had received in four months of the whereabouts of Mrs. Shiber, widow of a former New York city newspaper editor and resident of Paris for three years.

The notification, Kahn added, said the "charges against her had not been ascertained" and that the State Department is "making every effort to be of assistance to her."

PROPOSE OUTRIGHT HELP TO BRITAIN

Landon and Pepper Join Plea for Arms and Cash.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 13 (A. P.).—Alf M. Landon and Senator Pepper, Democrat, of Florida, agreed today that the United States should give Great Britain outright help in supplies, equipment and finances rather than see her defeated.

The two men stated their positions in independent statements. Mr. Landon, however, implied the gifts should not be long delayed. Senator Pepper advocated that Britain exhaust her liquid assets and turn over key naval bases to this country before any gratis help was considered.

Mr. Landon, Republican presidential nominee in 1936, took this stand yesterday on credits for Britain:

"No matter how the war turns out Great Britain will never be able to pay us. If it's to the interest of America, and I believe it is, to help the British, let's subsidize them and charge it up to the cost of national defense."

Senator Pepper said that his naval base reference included the British stronghold at Singapore.

Somervell Takes Over Army's $1,147,000,000 Construction Program

Washington, Dec. 13 (AP)—The $1,147,000,000 construction program of the War Department, which has fallen behind schedule in a number of respects, today was placed in the charge of Lieut. Col. Brehon B. Somervell, who has built up a reputation as a forceful administrator.

He took over the work from Brig. Gen. Charles D. Hartman, who, the department said, entered Walter Reed Hospital Wednesday "for observation and treatment following a long period of overwork."

Gen. George C. Marshall, chief of the army's general staff, said that delays which had occurred in certain construction projects "had no bearing on the assignment of Colonel Somervell." He said the causes of the delays were beyond the control of the construction division.

Colonel Somervell has been assigned in recent years to the post of WPA director at New York city.

Will Seek To Mobilize Indians Of Americas

U. S. Commissioner Lauds 30,000,000 As "Dynamic Factors" In Fight For Democracy

New Haven, Conn., Dec. 13 (AP). John Collier, Federal Commissioner of Indian Affairs, disclosed tonight a "determined and sustained effort" would be made to mobilize the 30,000,000 Indians of the Americas "into one of the decisive units of defense of the hemisphere and the defense of freedom within the hemisphere."

Collier told the Sociology Club of Yale's graduate school the general impression that the Indians were a vanishing race was false. He lauded the red men as dynamic factors in the "battle of democracy versus dictators."

The Indian, he said, "now seems destined to play an even larger part in shaping the course of representative government."

Aspect of Mediterranean Situation Reversed by British Successes

By DEWITT MACKENZIE.

The heavy defeat administered to the Italians at Sidi Barrani by British and allied forces, coupled with the Fascist debacle in Greece, has vastly altered the complexion of the battle of the Mediterranean and consequently of the war.

We can say that the advantage in this all-important Mediterranean area has, for the moment at least, swung to the British.

Moreover, whether they are able to capitalize their victory at Sidi Barrani and invade Italian Libya, the fact remains that already they have struck a telling blow at the Fascist power of attack in Egypt and all northern Africa.

It is important to keep in mind that Mussolini's purpose in invading Egypt was to drive through to the key position of the Suez Canal, thereby smashing Britain's grip on Egypt. Success of this operation might have spelled the end for England.

And defeat of the British was becoming increasingly necessary for another reason: the British blockade has cut communications between Italy and its forces in Africa, thereby creating a serious situation for the armies which had no way of replenishing supplies or getting re-enforcements.

Peril to Italy in East Africa.

Not only was Graziani's life-line severed, but so were those of the forces in Italy's East African possessions.

Mussolini looked to Graziani to remove this menace. That hope vanished for the time being with the defeat at Sidi Barrani, and the Fascist African armies face a precarious existence.

Already the moral effect of the victory is apparent in many countries. The people of Britain, hard pressed by the German bombing and submarine campaign, have been tremendously cheered. The reverse is true in Italy, where the facts of the recent Italian reverses in Greece and Africa are beginning to become known.

Newspapers in Rome are warning the public against "false news of imaginary catastrophes" for Italian arms. They charge that British agents are spreading propaganda in Italy in an effort to destroy Italian morale. All this indicates concern as to the attitude of the people.

Of equally grave concern to Italy and Germany must be the question of whether the morale of the Fascist troops in Africa will stand this smashing defeat, on top of the severance of the total communications with home. The great number of prisoners captured by the British, and the rapid retreat of the other Fascist forces, emphasize this point.

Three Knots Still Hold.

One of the most striking aspects of this whole situation is the astonishing power of resistance and recovery exhibited by the British. Six months ago, when Italy entered the war, John Bull was rocking on his heels, as close to being knocked out as possible and still keep his feet.

At that time great posters displayed to the Italian people a picture of three knots which were making Italy a prisoner in the Mediterranean—Mare Nostrum. Those knots were the British control of Gibraltar, the Suez and the Dardanelles. Jubilant Italy was about to cut those knots.

Now the Italian defeat in Greece has given Britain the great island of Crete and other bases which protect the Dardanelles. Graziani's drive for Suez has been knocked into a cocked hat. Spain, casting a weather eye over the growing British strength, is withholding co-operation with the Axis in the projected assault on Gibraltar.

The three knots still hold. Just so long as they hold, Britain will remain undefeated by the Axis, and the threat to Italy will multiply rapidly.

Chavez Predicts Avila Camacho Will Co-operate With U. S. Policy.

ALBUQUERQUE, N. M., Dec. 13 (AP).—Senator Dennis Chavez, Democrat of New Mexico, predicted today that Gen. Manuel Avila Camacho, new President of Mexico, would co-operate with the United States in its foreign policy, and would aid this nation also in its program of hemisphere defense.

Senator Chavez's observations were made in an interview following his return from Mexico City, where he was one of the United States delegation, headed by Vice-President-elect Henry A. Wallace, which attended Camacho's inauguration.

"I am convinced that Mexico not only will participate in the program of American national defense and hemisphere defense, but will do its share to provide the raw materials needed for this program," he said.

MACKENZIE KING

CANADIAN LEADER BOOSTS
COOPERATION WITH U.S. (820)

BY WADE WERNER

(ADVANCE)..OTTAWA--(CORRESPONDENCE OF THE ASSOCIATED PRESS)--IRONICALLY, THE CLIMAX OF PRIME MINISTER W.L.MACKENZIE KING'S LONG CAREER AS AN ADVOCATE OF SOCIAL AND INTERNATIONAL PEACE THROUGH BETTER UNDERSTANDING FINDS HIM LEADING HIS COUNTRY IN WAR.

THE PRIME MINISTER WILL BE 66 YEARS OLD NEXT TUESDAY.

30.24 — 6401

NO DOUBT FEW OF THE STATESMEN THRUST INTO NEW PROMINENCE BY THE CONFLICT WHICH BEGAN LAST YEAR EVER HANKERED TO MAKE HISTORY AT THE COST OF WAR, BUT IT WOULD BE HARD TO NAME ONE WHO HATED THE PROSPECT MORE THAN MACKENZIE KING. IN FACT, SOME CANADIANS PREDICTED THAT IF WAR CAME IN EUROPE, MACKENZIE KING WOULD RESIGN RATHER THAN TAKE HIS COUNTRY INTO IT.

ONLY A FEW MONTHS BEFORE THE CONFLICT HE HAD SAID IN PARLIAMENT THAT "THE IDEA THAT EVERY 20 YEARS THIS COUNTRY SHOULD AUTOMATICALLY AND AS A MATTER OF COURSE TAKE PART IN A WAR OVERSEAS FOR DEMOCRACY AND THE SELF-DETERMINATION OF OTHER SMALL NATIONS, THAT A COUNTRY WHICH HAS ALL IT CAN DO TO RUN ITSELF SHOULD FEEL CALLED UPON TO SAVE, PERIODICALLY, A CONTINENT THAT CANNOT RUN ITSELF, AND TO THESE ENDS RISK THE LIVES OF ITS PEOPLE, RISK BANKRUPTCY AND POLITICAL DISUNION, SEEMS TO MANY A NIGHTMARE AND SHEER MADNESS."

WHEN THE SHOWDOWN CAME, HOWEVER, AND CANADA HAD TO CHOOSE, HER CHOICE UNDER THE LEADERSHIP OF PRIME MINISTER KING WAS FOR WAR AT THE SIDE OF BRITAIN.

DEC 14 1940

D74

BUT WHILE HE SHOULDERED THE RESPONSIBILITIES OF WAR LEADERSHIP, HE DID NOT SEEK THEN, AND HAS NOT SOUGHT SINCE THEN, TO PICTURE THE NATION'S WAR EFFORT AS ANYTHING BUT A GRIM AND DANGEROUS DUTY TO BE DONE.

HE HAS SHOWN NONE OF THE IMPETUOUSNESS OF THE CRUSADER. HE WOULD HAVE BEEN GLARINGLY OUT OF CHARACTER IF HE HAD; FOR HIS WHOLE CAREER HAS BEEN ONE LONG EFFORT TO UNDERSTAND PROBLEMS AND THEN TO WORK TOWARD THEIR SOLUTION WITH THE MIND, NOT THE EMOTIONS.

CONSEQUENTLY THE PROBLEM OF MAKING CANADA'S SUPPORT OF GREAT BRITAIN AS EFFECTIVE AS POSSIBLE HAS BEEN APPROACHED BY MR.KING AS A TECHNICAL TASK TO BE TACKLED WITH UTMOST INDUSTRY, SKILL, COOL CALCULATION AND COOPERATION WITH THE UNITED KINGDOM GOVERNMENT, AND AS LITTLE ORATORY AS POSSIBLE.

IN PARLIAMENT, DURING THE RECENT DEBATE ON CANADA'S WAR EFFORT, THE PRIME MINISTER CONSISTENTLY MAINTAINED THIS PRACTICAL, HERE-IS-A-JOB-TO-BE-DONE ATTITUDE TOWARD QUESTIONS, COMPLAINTS AND PROPOSALS BEARING ON THE WAR EFFORT. EVEN QUESTIONS OBVIOUSLY INTENDED PRIMARILY TO HECKLE THE GOVERNMENT AND ONLY INCIDENTALLY TO EXTRACT INFORMATION WERE CONSCIENTIOUSLY ANSWERED POINT BY POINT.

MR.KING'S MANNER ON SUCH OCCASIONS IS SOMETHING LIKE THAT OF THE PATIENT PROFESSOR CONSCIENTIOUSLY TRYING TO CLARIFY SOME POINT WHICH A STUDENT HAS RAISED, WITHOUT TRYING TO PASS JUDGMENT ON THE MOTIVE OR MENTALITY OF THE QUESTIONER.

BUT HE CAN PRESS HOME HIS POINTS WITH GREAT FORCE AND EARNESTNESS WHEN AROUSED.

HE HAS BEEN FORCEFUL SEVERAL TIMES LATELY IN HIS APPEALS TO MEMBERS OF PARLIAMENT NOT TO "MAKE A BAD SITUATION WORSE" WITH IMPULSIVE MARKS ABOUT THIS OR THAT COUNTRY AND ITS POLICIES.

"I DO NOT THINK THAT WE CAN BE TOO CAREFUL IN THIS HOUSE OF COMMONS," HE SAID ON ONE OCCASION, "ABOUT WHAT ANY OF US SAY WITH REGARD TO OTHER COUNTRIES AND THEIR PART AT THIS TIME IN THE MATTER OF WAR. WE CANNOT BE TOO CAREFUL WHAT WE SAY ABOUT JAPAN."

URGING MEMBERS TO USE RESTRAINT IN DISCUSSING THE STATUS OF DEFEATED FRANCE, HE APPEALED TO THEM TO LET "NO WORD FROM CANADIAN LIPS ADD TO THE AGONY OF HER OPEN WOUNDS. LET US INFLICT NO NEW PAIN."

D75

CANADA'S RELATIONS WITH THE UNITED STATES HAVE BECOME MUCH CLOSER UNDER THE PRESSURE OF WAR DEVELOPMENTS AND THE TENDENCY OF BOTH PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT AND PRIME MINISTER KING TO SEEK NEW OPPORTUNITIES FOR CANADIAN-AMERICAN COLLABORATION.

EVEN DURING THE LAST WAR MR.KING WAS LAYING FOUNDATIONS FOR CANADIAN-AMERICAN COLLABORATION, ALTHOUGH AT THAT TIME HE WAS NOT IN OFFICE. ALREADY AN AUTHORITY ON LABOR PROBLEMS BEFORE HIS ELECTION TO PARLIAMENT IN 1908, HE BECAME MINISTER OF LABOR IN THE LAURIER CABINET IN 1909 BUT WENT OUT OF OFFICE WITH THE DEFEAT OF THE LIBERALS IN 1911.

WHEN WAR CAME IN 1914 HE WAS HARD AT WORK IN THE SPECIALIZED FIELD OF INDUSTRIAL RELATIONS, INVESTIGATING LABOR PROBLEMS UNDER THE AUSPICES OF THE ROCKEFELLER FOUNDATION.

AS THE CONFLICT WIDENED, HE PLAYED AN INCREASINGLY IMPORTANT ROLE ASSISTING KEY INDUSTRIES IN THE UNITED STATES TO MAINTAIN A CONTINUOUS MAXIMUM OUTPUT OF ESSENTIAL WAR MATERIALS.

SO WHEN HE RETURNED TO POLITICAL LIFE AFTER THE WAR (HE BECAME LEADER OF THE LIBERAL PARTY IN 1919 AND PRIME MINISTER IN 1921) IT WAS WITH A NEW BACKGROUND OF EXPERIENCE IN THE UNITED STATES. HE HAD BECOME ACCUSTOMED TO VIEWING NORTH AMERICAN PROBLEMS AS A WHOLE, INSTEAD OF FROM THE VIEWPOINT OF ONE COUNTRY. WHEN THE TIME CAME TO HIM TO COLLABORATE AS PRIME MINISTER WITH THE PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED STATES IN PROBLEMS OF NORTH AMERICAN DEFENSE HE WAS PECULIARLY FITTED TO FUNCTION AS CANADA'S CHIEF ADVOCATE OF COLLABORATION.

PRIME MINISTER KING HAS NOT ESCAPED VIGOROUS CRITICISM OF HIS ADMINISTRATION OF CANADA'S WAR EFFORT, BUT WHERE CANADIAN-UNITED STATES RELATIONS ARE CONCERNED HIS LEADERSHIP IS RECOGNIZED EVEN IN POLITICAL QUARTERS FIGHTING HIM TOOTH AND NAIL ON OTHER ISSUES.

THIS WAS VIVIDLY DEMONSTRATED IN PARLIAMENT ON ONE OCCASION WHEN THE SUBJECT OF CANADIAN-UNITED STATES COLLABORATION CAME UP. WHEN AN OPPOSITION SPEAKER STARTED AN OBLIQUE ATTACK BY SUGGESTING THAT MR. KING WAS "TAKING TO HIMSELF THE CREDIT" FOR CLOSER RELATIONS WITH THE UNITED STATES, HIS REMARK SET OFF A STORM OF APPLAUSE FOR THE PRIME MINISTER WHICH CAME FROM OPPOSITION AS WELL AS GOVERNMENT BENCHES.

Report Laval In Custody After Quitting

EXTRA!

By the Associated Press.

BERNE, Dec. 14.—Authoritative diplomatic sources reported today that Vice Premier Pierre Laval of the French government at Vichy had tendered his resignation to Premier Petain.

It was not at once learned whether the resignation had been accepted.

The same reports said that M. Laval had been placed in custody and that the Petain government had been meeting all day, discussing choice of a successor who would be acceptable to the Germans on one hand and Premier Petain and Gen. Maxime Weygand on the other.

By the Associated Press.

BERNE, Dec. 14.—All telephone communication between Switzerland and Vichy, capital of unoccupied France, was cut today without explanation.

The Associated Press was momentarily in contact with Vichy before the interruption and heard only the words "something big is coming up" before the connection was broken.

The break in communications also applied to official calls, including thoses of the French embassy here.

OUSTING OF LAVAL LAID TO ADVOCACY OF FRENCH HELP FOR NAZIS IN WAR

Use Of Fleet Against England As Part Of Peace Terms Rejected By Petain, Swiss Hear—Deposed Vice-Premier Reported In Vichy Jail

[By the Associated Press]

New York, Dec. 14—Max Jordan, NBC correspondent, in a broadcast from Basel, Switzerland, said tonight that Pierre Laval was lodged in a jail at Vichy, France, and that his resignation as Vice-Premier resulted from an unsuccessful attempt to persuade Marshal Petain to give Germany the aid of the French fleet against Britain in return for liberal Nazi peace terms.

Two plain-clothes men entered the Hotel du Parc in Vichy and led Laval to jail about midnight, he said.

Petain was quoted as saying Germany's latest peace proposal as advocated by Laval came at too high a price, Jordan said.

Flandin Denounced By British

[By the Associated Press]

New York, Dec. 14—The British radio said tonight that Pierre-Etienne Flandin, new Foreign Minister of the Vichy Government, "has been most consistent in his intrigues for the German oppressors," CBS reported.

"M. Flandin is no more likely to represent the spirit of France than the man he has replaced," the broadcast said, adding:

"As long ago as October, 1938, he had shown his Nazi sympathies by sending a telegram of congratulations to Hitler after the Munich agreement. . . ."

Plot To Head New Regime And Join In War Laid To Laval

BY CHAS. S. FOLTZ, JR

[By the Associated Press]

Bern, Switzerland, Dec. 14—Charges that Pierre Laval plotted to set up a separate government with himself as head and even lead France into war against Britain were behind his dismissal from the Vichy Government, authoritative sources declared tonight.

Marcel Peyrouton, Interior Minister, and other ministers, these sources said, accused Laval of scheming to set himself up as leader of an independent regime at Paris and of using his ministerial rank to build up his prestige for war on Britain.

The one-man purge which washed Laval out of the Vichy Cabinet left Peyrouton, chief of police as well as Interior Minister, as the strong man under Marshal Petain.

Laval Reported A Prisoner

Laval, yesterday's "crown prince," is said to be a prisoner in his estate, guarded by soldiers and "GP" men—agents of the Groupe de Protection, strong-arm squads built up by Peyrouton and other French leaders who distrusted Laval.

Diplomatic sources said the straw which broke the camel's back of Petain's toleration of his Vice-Premier and Foreign Minister was the simple question of who should go to Paris to represent the Vichy Government when the remains of Napoleon's son are returned from Germany to the Invalides at Adolf Hitler's order.

According to these reports, Laval said Petain himself should go. Petain refused, they said, and was backed up by other ministers, but that was only an incident following the graver charges against Laval.

The stage was set for his ouster Friday afternoon.

Angered, Laval Stalks Out

Here is the sequence of events, according to authoritative diplomatic reports:

The other ministers' insistence that Petain should not go to Paris for the ceremonies Sunday surrounding the return of "L'Aiglon's" remains angered Laval, who made an issue of it.

He stalked from the Cabinet meeting accompanied by several friends, including Education Minister Georges Ripert—(now also ousted)—and went to his suite in the Hotel du Paro where he conferred with his chief aide, Fernand de Brinon.

Peyrouton, Gen. Charles Huntziger, War Minister, and other members of the anti-Laval group continued to talk with Petain.

Then Action Begins

Suddenly, during the evening, they emerged and action began.

As though by magic, hard-boiled former mobile guardsmen and members of Jacques Doriot's extreme Rightist French Popular party appeared on the streets. They bore armbands with the letters "GP" on them and wore leather jackets and leather motorcyclists' helmets.

They were the mysterious "groupe de protection" which had appeared only once before—to guard Petain when he visited Marseille.

At the same time, about one hundred picked soldiers in regular army uniforms surrounded the Hotel du Parc. Three high officials of the Surete Nationale walked in.

Laval Whisked Away

When they came out a few minutes later they had Laval and de Brinon with them. The two were placed in an automobile and whisked out of Vichy accompanied by a motorcycle escort.

Even before the "GP" appeared, Vichy was cut off from the outside world—even from official Government calls—by Peyrouton's police.

No telephone calls and no telegrams could be sent out of Vichy Friday night and through most of today. Roads were guarded by troops and the "GP." No one was allowed to leave the city.

Cabinet Fills In Gaps

Today the Cabinet met, with Petain presiding, and filled the gaps left by the elimination of Laval and Ripert.

Pierre-Etienne Flandin, who talked with Petain last week end but found Laval unwilling to give him an independent position in the Cabinet, was called in as Foreign Minister with Berlin's approval.

Germany, according to informed sources, apparently realized that Laval was not strong enough to stay and had no intention of raising a helping hand for him. They said Berlin regards Flandin as equally suitable for the post, he having been the man who publicly sought French-German collaboration before the war began.

Laval Far From Popular

Laval apparently has vanished without bloodshed. As far as could be learned tonight, he is under guard at his home while Ripert, de Brinon and other Laval associates also are guarded but not officially under arrest.

It is no secret in France or outside that Laval, who was a man not only without a party but also without a public following, was far from popular.

LAVAL OUSTED AS VICHY AIDE

Out 'In Interest Of Country'; Reported Under Arrest

DEC 15 1940

BY ROBERT OKIN
[By the Associated Press]

Vichy, France, Dec. 14—Old Marshal Philippe Petain ousted swarthy Pierre Laval, prime "collaborator" with Adolf Hitler, from all connection with the Government of France today, but insisted it made no difference to his avowed desire to get along with Germany.

(Bern diplomats heard that Petain had also ordered Laval's arrest.)

Sudden decrees and a speech by Petain following a blackout of all communication between France and the outside world, disclosed that former Premier Pierre Etienne-Flandin had replaced Laval as Foreign Minister and that Hitler already had been told about the change.

Laval's rights of succession as Chief of State were annulled.

Petain, in a remarkably short message to the people over the radio, declared the decision was made purely for "high reasons of interior policy." Subsequently it was explained officially that Laval's resignation was intended to further unify France.

The following is the text of Petain's message:

"I have taken a decision which I consider conforms to the interest of the country.

"Pierre Laval is no longer part of the Government.

"The Revolution Continues"

"Pierre Etienne Flandin receives the portfolio of Foreign Affairs.

"Constitutional Act No. 4, which designated my successor, is annulled.

"It is for high reasons of interior policy that I resolved to take this action. It has no effect upon our relations with Germany.

"I remain at the helm. The national revolution continues."

Flandin, Rightist politician who long has favored French-German collaboration, presumably will continue the negotiations with Hitler. Petain, it was stated, told Hitler that Flandin would be even a better collaborator than Laval.

(The Bern reports connected the shakeup with persistent rumors of a meeting somewhere in Europe between Hitler and Mussolini, which have been emphatically denied in Berlin. Petain and Laval returned to Vichy only yesterday from a trip to German-occupied Paris.

Weygand Reported Hostile

(French foreign policy has been almost entirely in the hands of Laval, with only Petain to check him [illegible] had to have Petain's [illegible] former had no par[illegible] approval behind [illegible]

(There have been persistent indications that Petain has not entirely ousted Laval and that Gen. Maxime Weygand, in Africa, liked Laval still less. However, the specific incident which led to Laval's removal remains a mystery.)

Laval Initiated Collaboration

It was Laval, the constant appeaser, who initiated post-armistice collaboration with Hitler by defeated France.

An official commentary reiterated that Laval left the Government only for "interior political motives" and that Petain would now give a more unified character to his Government.

The commentary also said that Petain had notified Hitler of Flandin's nomination and that he appeared "more apt" than his predecessor to follow a policy of collaboration between France and Germany.

Other Cabinet Changes

Under a constitutional act, Laval would have succeeded Petain if anything happened to the old marshal. This provision now has been annulled. Petain's successor will be chosen by the Council of Ministers when that becomes necessary.

(Diplomatic sources in Bern, Switzerland, reported that Laval had been forced to resign.)

Paul Baudouin was named Secretary of State for the Presidency of the Council and given the information services—press, radio and cinema—which formerly were Laval's charge.

Minister of Education Ripert replaced by Jacques Chevalier.

Flandin Successor; Petain Declares Tie With Nazis 'Unchanged'

CALL GUARDS

BY ROBERT OKIN

VICHY, Dec. 14 (AP).—The world was permitted to learn tonight that Pierre Laval, No. 2 man of the Vichy government, had been forcibly shown the door, but that his policy of collaboration with Germany will be continued under Pierre-Etienne Flandin.

Laval was ousted as Vice-Premier and Foreign Minister last night. Flandin took over the foreign ministry. The Vice-Premiership was left empty.

As the hectic events of the last 24 hours unfolded—their full story still may not be told—informed persons said the action was directed mainly against Laval's activity at home and not against the principle of German collaboration, which Chief of State Marshal Petain has endorsed.

[In Berne, Switzerland, authoritative diplomatic sources said Laval was accused by his colleagues of scheming to set himself up as head of an independent government at Paris and even of plotting to lead France into war against Britain. He was reported under guard at his estate.]

[A broadcast from the NBC correspondent at Basle, Switzerland, said that shortly after midnight Saturday Laval was lodged in a Vichy jail.]

HITLER INFORMED FIRST.

Significant was the official announcement that the change had been communicated to Chancellor Hitler before the public was told, informing him that pro-German, Rightist, Flandin was "more apt" than his predecessor at "collaboration."

The old Marshal himself told the people that the change would not affect French relations with Germany, although Laval was the man who had done more than any one to bring France close to the Axis.

Yet Petain, in words weighty with significance, explained to France that the "resignation" of Laval was essential for reasons of interior policy, for the country's unity, and went on:

"I remain at the helm! The national revolution continues!"

LAVAL DISTRUSTED.

The best available diplomatic opinion saw behind the ouster a growing distrust by both Petain and General Maxime Weygand, the powerful supreme commander in Africa, of Laval's negotiations with Germany. Weygand, it is known, has been afraid France might lose sovereignty over some of her African possessions, and has spoken out against any cession. Behind him is the undefeated French army in Africa.

[Laval, on the other hand, is known to despise the British and has indicated his desire to see them crushed, perhaps even with the active help of the French, their former ally.

[Petain, naturally, can make no open break with the Germans at this time nor even withdraw from the more or less vague "collaboration" which he has pledged Hitler. However, it is obvious that he feels Flandin, despite his known pro-Axis views, will not go beyond Petain's own decisions in pursuing this "collaboration."]

REVEALED BY PETAIN.

"Pierre Laval," said the old Marshal over the radio, "is no longer a part of the government."

Then he announced that the constitutional act under which Laval would have succeeded Petain as Chief of State if anything happened to the aged man "is annulled."

Petain's successor now will be selected by the Council of Ministers, if the necessity arises.

Official announcements of the changes were read to the press after a day in which France had been cut off from all communication with the outside world.

They were read by Marcel Peyrouton, the Interior Minister who now is a strong man in the government. It was he who cut off the communications yesterday, even those of embassies and ministries.

Laval's powers over press, radio and motion pictures were given, by decree, to Paul Baudouin, Secretary of State for the president of the council. Jacques Chevalier was named Minister of Education, succeeding Georges Ripert.

Thus the swarthy, white-tied Laval, who made the first personal contact with Hitler after the defeat of France, depa[rted] completely from the political pi[cture].

HITLER INFORMED.

Hitler was told about this some hours before communications from France were restored. Petain sent him a personal message. With Laval, Petain returned only yesterday from Paris, scene of most of the French-German negotiations.

The Petain message to Hitler followed one from the Fuehrer which, "with the highest courtesy," said the ashes of Napoleon's son, the Duke of Reichstadt, or "King of Rome," would be returned from Vienna to France to rest beside the remains of his father in the Invalides in Paris.

[Berlin, semi-officially, indicated its approval of Flandin's

[e]lection. Only yesterday the [G]erman radio in the Netherlands broadcast an interview [w]hich Flandin gave to the Paris [n]ewspaper Le Matin, inveighing [a]gainst Edouard Daladier, the [f]ormer Premier, for "war responsibility" and contending he [h]ad told Daladier Aug. 27, 1939, [t]hat it would be "a crime" to go [to] war against Germany.]

Tonight, immediately afer the announcement of the one-man purge, new "protection groups," a French version of the German Schutz Staffel, were on guard at strategic points in Vichy.

They wore leather helmets and arm-bands marked "GP" (Groupe de Protection.)

SUPERSEDE POLICE.

Peyrouton organized this official group of vigilantes to take precedence over police in the unoccupied zone whenever they are called in. There are perhaps 1,000 "GP" men at Marseille and 500 at Lyon, many of them members of the former Mobile Guard.

Laval Staked All On Tieup With Nazis

Laval has been a sort of agent between the Vichy government and Germany. On Oct. 24, before a long interview with Hitler, he said that he believed democracy was dead in all the modern world and that he was prepared to stake France's future upon collaboration with Germany. He gave a strong impression at that time that in connection with that "collaboration" he earnestly hoped for the defeat of England.

WEYGAND KEY.

The question of French collaboration with Germany is believed to pivot largely on the attitude of Weygand, who was called from the Near East in the dying days of France's defense to be her generalissimo.

After the armistice of Compiegne, at his own insistence, it is said, Weygand was sent to take charge of French North Africa, to keep that important part of the French Empire together against the inroads of the "Free French" leader, General Charles De Gaulle, who is a British ally.

Weygand's friends often have [s]aid that he is neither pro-German [n]or pro-British, but strictly "pro-[F]rench" and ready to defend North [A]frica against all enemies of [F]rance.

Nothing he has said or done publicly has indicated he is not wholly loyal to the Vichy regime of Marshal Petain.

Flandin Well Versed In Ministerial Duties

In six-footer, English-speaking Pierre-Etienne Flandin, a pre-war exponent of understanding with Germany, Laval turns over the Vichy government's foreign affairs portfolio to an old colleague, an ex-Premier of France and a veteran of many ministerial posts in the vanquished republic.

Flandin had advocated French refusal to honor the pledge of the French-Czecho-Slovak mutual assistance threaty and became a storm center in the Chamber of Deputies when a telegram to him from Adolf Hitler, expressing thanks for his efforts to avert war over the Sudeten issue, was read Oct. 6, 1938.

'REGULAR'—HITLER.

"I thank you sincerely for the amiable felicitations which you transmitted to me in your telegram," the Fuehrer messaged Oct. 2, 1938, three days after the fateful big four Munich meeting.

"I hereby assure you of my thanks for your energetic efforts in favor of an entente and complete collaboration between France and Germany. I have followed them with sincere interest. I hope they have wider effects.

"With my best regards,

"Hitler."

SPLIT PARTY.

Flandin was a Rightist influence at that time and one immediate repercussion of the telegram, whose authority he acknowledged, was a wave of resignations from his party. Paul Reynaud, then Justice Minister and co-founder with Flandin of the Democratic Alliance Party, was one of those who quit it.

Months earlier, in February, 1938, when the Spanish civil war still was an issue, Flandin urged reconciliation with Germany and Italy and on one occasion, when he rose to speak in the Chamber, he was greeted with Leftists' shouts of "Heil Hitler!"

Since the fall of the republic he has been either in Paris or in the provinces most of the time, having shunned Vichy until just a week ago.

Flandin, a native Parisian, became French Premier in 1934 when the Doumergue government was overthrown. Born April 12, 1889, he was then 45 years old and had been a minister six times before.

Flandin was one of the first French youths to take up aviation seriously and when the World War started he enlisted in the air corps. One of his first big posts after the war was as Under-Secretary of State for Air and later, even after he became a cabinet member, he often piloted his own plane.

Reasons Behind Ouster Of Laval Suggested

[By the Associated Press]

The best available diplomatic opinion saw behind the ouster of Laval a growing distrust by both Petain and Gen. Maxime Weygand, the powerful supreme commander in Africa, for Laval's negotiations with Germany.

Weygand, it is known, has been afraid France might lose sovereignty over some of her African possessions, and has spoken out against any cession. Behind him is the undefeated French army in Africa.

Laval, on the other hand, is known to despise the British and has indicated his desire to see them crushed, perhaps even with the active help of the French, their former ally.

Petain, naturally, can make no open break with the Germans at this time nor even withdraw them from the more or less vague "collaboration" which he has pledged to Hitler. However, it is obvious that he feels Flandin, despite his known pro-Axis views, will not go beyond Petain's own decisions in pursuing this "collaboration."

Berlin Press Stresses Flandin's Views on War

Indicate Approval by Quoting His Attack on Daladier

BERLIN, Dec. 14 (AP).—Official comment here on the selection of Pierre-Etienne Flandin as Foreign Minister in the Vichy government was withheld tonight, but it was indicated the appointment was widely approved.

German newspapers published extensive quotations from an interview Flandin gave to the Paris newspaper "Le Matin" yesterday in which he was quoted as placing much of the blame for the war on former Premier Edouard Daladier.

The "Lokalanzeiger" asserted Flandin opposed Daladier's course which led to the break with Germany.

Other Berlin newspapers attributed to Flandin the assertion that the former British and French envoys to Germany, Sir Nevile Henderson and Robert Coulondre, had failed to let Poland know, before the outbreak of the war, about proposals by Germany for peace.

GERMANS IN PARIS FREE MRS. DEEGAN

U. S. Embassy Employee Was Held a Week

VICHY, Dec. 14 (A. P.).—Mrs. Elizabeth Deegan, a receptionist at the United States embassy in Paris, was freed today by the Germans after having been held in custody for more than a week on the charge of helping British officers escape from Nazi-occupied France.

Mrs. Deegan, a former resident of Asheville, N. C., had been held for questioning by the German military authorities. Her detention became known, apparently, only after she had been held several days, and the Paris embassy was reported on December 6 to have protested vainly for her release.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 14 (A. P.).—The United States embassy in Paris, the State Department said today, is making a determined effort to secure the release of Mrs. Etta Kahn Shiber, the second American woman to be taken into German custody in occupied France within two weeks.

Beyond the fact that Mrs. Shiber was detained by German authorities, little was known here. The Paris embassy was not able to determine the nature of the charges against her, or where she was held.

Mrs. Shiber's brother, Chester A. Kahn of Syracuse, N. Y., said that the notification he received from the State Department yesterday, informing him that his sister was held, was the first word of her he had received in four months.

He said that she was 62 years old, and was the widow of William Shiber, an editor of the New York Journal. She had been living in Paris with an Englishwoman, who was married to a Frenchman. Mr. Kahn said that the State Department told him it was "making every effort to be of assistance to her."

Bremen, Kiel Bombed; Huge Fires Reported

[By the Associated Press]

London, Dec. 14—British bombers blasted the German naval base at Kiel and attacked Bremen in intensive raids during the night, the Air Ministry announced today.

Heavy assaults also were made, a communique said, on German airdromes and docks in the Netherlands and on the Nazi submarine base at Bordeaux, in the occupied region of France.

Raiders Over Liverpool

All the British aircraft returned safely from the raids, which were carried out in adverse weather, the Ministry said.

Nazi planes were reported over Liverpool and northeast England today after many hours of quiet.

German long-range guns mounted on the French coast shelled the Dover Strait for nearly an hour this afternoon. The shells came at five-minute intervals. No casualties were reported.

"Strong Fires Lit Clouds"

An Air Ministry news service account said incendiary and explosive bombs were dropped on Bremen, despite heavy clouds. Bombers were detailed to attack the railway, factories and warehouses.

After the bombs were dropped, the "glow of strong fires penetrated and lit up the clouds," the news service added.

At Kiel, docks and shipyards were reported to have been raided, and the news service said "our pilots made certain that heavy bombs fell in the target area."

The attack on the Bordeaux U-boat base was described as "a short, destructive raid with heavy bombs" which started two fires and caused explosions.

"The first pilot to go in got a hit on the big quayside building," the Ministry said. "His observer saw a succession of brilliant blue flashes along the dock wall lasting for fifteen seconds.

"Dozen Explosions"

"The later stages of the raid were even more spectacular. A great explosion near the gates of the dock was followed by a dozen others along the edge of the basin.

"When the Coastal Command pilot turned for home the submarine base was lit up by two fires and overhung by swirling clouds of smoke."

London had a brief night alert, which ended before midnight. During the early morning hours a single Nazi raider glided in from the sea to drop a bomb on a northeast coast town. The bomb split a house in half but caused no casualties and gunfire drove the plane away.

Nazi Bomb Kills Former American

WEST BROOKFIELD, Mass., Dec. 14 (A. P.).—Paul C. Chamberlain, son of the late Gov. Daniel H. Chamberlain of South Carolina, and his wife were killed by a bomb in London last Sunday, according to word received by friends here today.

Mr. Chamberlain, an artillery officer in the world war, became a British citizen subsequently and was a member of the Home Guard of London at the time of his death.

Liner Torpedoed

[By the Associated Press]

New York, Dec. 14—Mackay Radio reported today it had intercepted a message from the Portpatrick (Scotland) radio station that the 10,926-ton British liner Western Prince had been torpedoed about 400 miles northwest of the Irish coast.

The 496-foot Western Prince, with London as her home port, was built in 1929 at Glasgow and is owned by the Prince Line, Ltd., and managed by Furness, Withy & Co.

Carried Refugees

A passenger vessel, she was recently in the New York-South American run and was last reported in Rio de Janeiro on September 19. She made several trips from Liverpool to New York, carrying war refugees, including many children.

When Capt. John Reed, master of the Western Prince, docked the vessel here November 22, he disclosed that another ship had been bombed fifty miles from his, and remarked, "The danger these days is from overhead. In the last war, I was torpedoed and survived."

Canadian Lost

C. D. Howe, Canadian Minister of Munitions and Supply, was aboard the Western Prince when the vessel sailed from New York December 6, an official of the liner's management said.

The torpedoing of the Western Prince followed a triple blow against British shipping yesterday.

The destruction of the 18,673-ton Norwegian liner Oslofjord—chartered to the British for troop service—by mine on the coast of England was learned by New York maritime sources.

Armed Cruiser Loss

The British Admiralty at the same time announced the loss of the armed merchant cruiser Forfar—believed by shipping men to be either the 19,671-ton Scythia or the Cameronia, 16,297 tons.

Mackay Radio also picked up a message yesterday from the British Orari, a 10,350-ton refrigerated motor ship carrying Australian beef, saying she had been torpedoed about 750 miles west of Brest, France.

RAF Claims Ruinous Raid on Submarine Base

DEC 15 1940

LATEST BLOW HITS BORDEAUX U-BOAT HAVEN

Series of Bombings Has Nazis Worried, British Assert; Kiel and Bremen Yards Blasted

BY J. NORMAN LODGE

LONDON, Dec. 14 (AP) — A swift and destructive raid on the submarine base of the great southwest French port of Bordeaux was credited officially today to the bombers of the RAF coastal command.

It was the newest British counter-stroke at the U-boat menace, which is the outstanding peril in the siege of this island kingdom—one of a series of raids which authoritative sources declare are causing "grave concern" to German military leaders.

FIRST-HAND PICTURE.

Pilots' reports told of these results of the raid:

"A succession of brilliant blue flashes along the dock wall. A hit on the big quayside building. A great explosion near the gates of the dock, followed by a dozen others along the edge of the basin. The submarine base lit up by two fires and overhung by swirling smoke."

On the German North Sea coast, the shipyards and docks of Kiel and the factories of Bremen were bombed by other British raiders, and docks and airdromes in the Netherlands were attacked.

The glow of strong fires from incendiary bombs penetrated the heavy clouds over Bremem, the Air Ministry said. At Kiel, the weather was bad, but "our pilots made certain that heavy bombs fell in the target area," it was related.

BERLIN BOMBED.

Authoritative sources said today the RAF has made 35 raids on Berlin alone and that the Hamm railway has been bombed no fewer that 85 times "in the operations against Berlin."

The railway network across Germany has been severely disorganized, these sources declared.

Since October, it also was said, the Nazi submarine base at Lorient, France, has been "plastered" by bombs 30 times.

They listed these additional results of RAF forays:

More than 60 raids have been made on Hamburg, greatest shipping port of the European Continent, and the port is now "almost unrecognizable" and "practically useless."

CANALS ATTACKED.

The Dortmund-Ems Canal, vital junction of the German canal system, has been attacked more than 30 times and industrial works, munitions factories and oil plants have been "destroyed" in nearly 60 raids on Cologne in the Rhineland.

RAF flights have dropped bombs on Essen, site of the Krupp munitions plant, 36 times. The Bremen wireless base, where "Lord Haw Haw" nightly jibes at Britain, has been under attack more than 50 times.

In the Middle East, the sources said, Tobruk, Libya, has been bombed 43 times, and Turin, Italy, housing the great Fiat works, has been raided 14 times.

"In addition," these sources said, "no effort has been spared to help the Greeks drive the Italians into the Adriatic."

Several Killed In Midlands Town

LONDON, Dec. 15 (Sunday) (AP).—Several persons in a west Midlands town were killed by high explosive bombs and others were taken to a hospital after a raid by a single German plane early last night, it was reported today.

Rescue workers still toiled this morning to free others trapped in wreckage in the town. Censorship concealed the name of the town.

The raid was one of the few German attacks on the British Isles yesterday and last night.

A southwesterly gale lashing Dover Strait was believed responsible for the lack of German activity.

A number of houses were destroyed by a solitary raider in a working class area in a Thames estuary town, but it was believed no fatalities resulted.

London had its usual night air raid alarm in the early evening but the "all clear" was sounded an hour later.

During the day, Nazi planes were reported over Liverpool and northeast England.

BULLETIN

Ottawa, Dec. 15 (AP)—The Prime Minister's office tonight reported receipt of a message that "most of the persons aboard the Western Prince were saved." No further details were available.

TORPEDOED SHIP CARRIED PLANES

Four Bombers On Deck Of Heavily Loaded Western Prince

New York, Dec. 14 (AP)—The 4,798-ton Greek steamer Orion sent out urgent distress signals tonight, intercepted by Mackay Radio, which said she had a broken steering gear in a North Atlantic storm. The Orion reported at 7.28 P. M. that she needed help immediately, Mackay said. The ship's position was about 700 miles northeast of St. John's, N. F.

[By the Associated Press]

New York, Dec. 14—The British liner Western Prince, loaded with a heavy cargo, including airplanes, and carrying British officials home for the Christmas holidays, was torpedoed today about 550 miles northwest of Londonderry, Ireland.

Mackay radio here picked up an SSS call that the 10,926-ton ship had been "torpedoed" at 2.02 A. M. (EST). Nothing further was heard after the first call, relayed by the Portpatrick, Scotland, station.

Furness, Withy & Co., managers of the Western Prince, identified one of the sixty passengers as C. D. Howe, Canadian Minister of Munitions and Supply. Also aboard was Capt. W. A. Charlton, one-time master of the Queen of Bermuda. The ship had a crew of eighty when she left here December 6.

[Editor's Note—James Bone, London editor of the Manchester Guardian, who was returning home after an extended visit to the United States, was on the passenger list.]

Had No Information

John Gammie, associate director of Cunard White Star Lines, passenger agents, said he had "no information" on the liner.

The vessel carried a 10,000-ton general cargo and a large quantity of mail. Four twin-motored bombers were lashed to her deck. She was due at an English port tomorrow.

The 496-foot Western Prince was built in 1929 at Port Glasgow for trade between New York and South America. After the war began, she was armed with two defensive guns aft and placed in transatlantic service, bringing hundreds of refugees here from Liverpool. Crew members reported she sailed alone, counting on her speed for safety.

Termed Danger Overhead

When she arrived last November 21, Capt. John Reed, noting that another ship had been bombed fifty miles from his, said:

"There's a lot of difference in navigating a ship now than there was in the last war. Then I was torpedoed and survived, but the danger these days is from overhead."

The Western Prince was the fourth blow to British shipping in two days. The British Admiralty announced yesterday the torpedoing of the armed merchant cruiser Forfar, believed by shipping men to be 19,671-ton Scythia, or the 16,297-ton Cameronia. The destruction by a mine of the British-chartered Norwegian liner Oslofjord, 18,673 tons, was learned by New York maritime sources. The 10,250-ton British freigter Osari radioed she had been torpedoed about 750 miles west of Brest, France.

MEAT RATION CUT AGAIN IN BRITAIN

Food Ministry Withdraws Temporary Increase.

LONDON, Dec. 14 (A. P.).—The Food Ministry announced today a reduction in the British meat ration.

Effective Monday, the quantity allowable per week per person will revert to what can be bought for 1 shilling 10 pence (36 cents), instead of 2 shillings 2 pence (43 cents) permitted under a temporary increase.

The situation, arising in part from the decline in volume of home-killed meat supplied by British farmers, may make it necessary for England to tap supplies in cold storage.

Irish Internees Riot Over Butter

DUBLIN, Dec. 14 (AP)—A reduction in the army butter ration today caused some 200 interned persons at Camp Curragh to riot today. Several officers and two interned men were injured and six internment huts were burned. The interned men are Irish Republican Army men suspected of German sympathies.

BRITISH INVASION OF REICH FORECAST

Possibility Of Continental Offensive Discussed By War Correspondent

Netherlands Regarded Most Logical Bridgehead For Thrust At Germany

Fred Vanderschmidt, who has served in England, the Netherlands and France during the war as an Associated Press correspondent, in the following article discusses the possibilities of Britain's invasion of Germany.

By FRED VANDERSCHMIDT
Associated Press Corespondent

New York, Dec. 14—"If she (England) wants to gain a foothold somewhere on the Continent, then we shall meet again . . . and I hope we haven't forgotten anything, and the British will remember everything."

That is Adolf Hitler speaking this week. It is further evidence that not only the British are thinking about the day when Britain will strike back in the west, not probably in 1941, but in 1942 or 1943.

Barring the miracle of utter German collapse, the British can't win this war without a fairly successful continental offensive.

France And Belgium Unlikely

But where?

France is not likely, for there the British would find a hostile Government in the unoccupied zone, a heartbroken, disillusioned people, a tremendous army of occupation operating from well-prepared bases and wide open flanks from which their expeditionary force might be squeezed mercilessly.

Belgium?

Again no protection on the flanks, a doubtful reception from the people and an unfriendly King to deal with: A King who, undoubtedly, still commands the respect and confidence of millions of his people, despite his capitulation in the thick of the Flanders defeat.

The British tried to find a battlefield in Norway. The result was disastrous. Even with air superiority, the result might not be different, for Norway is deep in the German sphere of defense and its coasts are naturally hostile to an invader by sea.

Thrust From South Suggested

If the combination of British offensive successes in the Mediterranean—hand in hand with the Greeks in Albania, and in the western desert of Egypt—should knock Italy out of the war, the British might go back to the Continent from the south, through the Balkans or even through Italy.

The Turks probably could be counted on to help. But such an offensive would entail tremendous movements of men, material and supplies over great stretches of land and water. 'Twould be "far from 'ome," as the British Tommy puts it, and, moreover, the World War lesson of Gallipoli still is a mighty deterrent to Winston Churchill in that corner of the globe.

Netherlands Most Logical

Even by the process of elimination, and for other reasons as well—that leaves the Netherlands as the most logical bridgehead for the "campaigns of 1942 and 1943," which are constantly in the back of Winston Churchill's brilliant, unpredictable brain.

Is this fantastic, with Germany holding tightly to every inch of continental coastline from the North Cape to the Bay of Biscay?

Holland forms the curving, northwest corner of the continent proper. Given air superiority in an offensive sense, operating from British bases scarcely one hundred miles away, given continued protection on all sides by the Home Fleet, a British expeditionary force might strike at two or more points on the west coast of the province of North Holland, above Amsterdam, and gain a foothold.

Islands Might Be Occupied

The North Sea islands of Texel, Vlieland, Ameland and Schiermonikoog might be occupied by the fleet alone, they lie in a protective curve above the Waddenzee and the strange blue Ijsselmeer (Zuider Zee), which makes a broad, deep pocket into the northern Netherlands.

These islands and waters would protect the British left flank. One great dike bridges the top of the Ijsselmeer, or did if it isn't already blown up. It would be a setup for British dive bombers to demolish it and impede any German counterthrust from Friesland to the east, across the inland lake.

Once the foothold were consolidated, it probably would be the British strategy to cut east and south in a wide arc, in the reverse direction of the German scythe which descended through the Lowlands at the beginning of last spring's invasion.

Question Of Many Factors

That would be a question of planes, of many men, of much equipment, of engineering skill and of cooperation from the people on the ground.

Britain is training the men and amassing the equipment. She cannot expect to raise troops in numbers to equal those of the Germans; hence their equipment must be superior. With American help, the British are confident of eventually having air superiority in any offensive punch.

Britain has lost few bombers in this war, and they are coming off the assembly lines for her on both sides of the Atlantic.

Dutch Water Control System

It must not be forgotten, also, that the Netherlands is a country which rises out of the sea largely by grace of superb feats of engineering. The dikes, canals and poulders of Holland control waters which can help or hinder a military force.

It seems logical to suppose that many of the secrets of this complicated control over the inland waterways of the Netherlands still are in the hands of the Dutch emigre Government and Queen in London.

The Dutch water line, a series of flood defenses extending from the lower shores of the Ijsselmeer down through the middle of the country, failed to stop the German invaders last May because these defenses were sabotaged by treachery.

Vital Bridges And Dams Stand

Fifth columnists and the parachute troops prevented the demolition of vital bridges and dams.

But Holland is such a maze of integrated canals that even a layman can see how the waters that course through any part of it might, with enough skill and luck, be turned to the advantage of an expeditionary force.

On the other hand the Germans might, of course, turn these waters effectively against the invaders. But the Germans do not know them as do the Dutch.

The strict and understandable neutrality of the Netherlands prevented any sort of defensive cooperation with the British, the French or even the Belgians prior to the German invasion of May 10.

Governments Now In Alliance

Thus this neutrality was a powerful weapon in the hands of the German invaders, for the British scarcely knew how to help; the Belgians and the French were unable to do so.

Now the British and the Dutch Government are in alliance to the finish; their resources, skill and knowledge are in a common pool.

It may be that the Dutch people themselves upon whom the British are counting the most.

It is clear that the Dutch are not cooperating with the invader.

The Germans have had to adopt the most stringent measures, up to the death penalty, to prevent Dutchmen from aiding the British, even though the British have dropped many bombs on occupied military centers of Holland.

Dutch Very Logical People

British pilots actually have landed in the Netherlands at night to obtain information—the Germans acknowledge this fact.

The Dutch are a very logical people. They had peace and plenty for a century, the highest standard of living in Europe. They believed in neutrality and fair, aloof dealings with both belligerents—until May 10.

Now there is scarcely any meat to eat in Holland; only a week ago dog-meat sausages had to be confiscated in The Hague because they were tainted. Holland's immensely rich dairy business is in ruins. Much of the live stock had to be slaughtered because there was nothing to feed it. Most of Holland's fodder came from England.

Holland is a country of young men—unique in western Europe. Peace throughout the World War took no tragic toll of fathers. Now these young men, or those of them who are free, are disarmed, stripped of the fine equipment of their new sketchily trained army.

Most of them never saw a battle before their country fell. Unquestionably they are restless, largely unemployed and profoundly yearning for the real freedom that was theirs.

This may be Britain's "f[illegible]lumn" when the day comes to strike.

British Cross Into Libya at Italians' Heels

Chase Becomes Counter-Invasion, Italians Trying to Make Border Stand

BY ERIC [illegible]
By The Associated Press

CAIRO, Dec. 14.—The Italian African army, broken into bits, harassed by unending air attack and declared here to have been effectively driven from Egypt, fought "on and about" its own colonial frontier of Libya tonight in an action that had become a defense of Fascist soil instead of an Italian invasion.

The term "on and about" was used by the British command itself in an official communique which did not add the obvious implication that something very near to a British counter-invasion was developing with the apparent purpose of destroying the entire Fascist force, whose defeat was called a "rout" by the high command.

While no military authority would discuss British plans, it was indicated that at some points fighting already was going on within Libya, but a military spokesman would not confirm rumors that Sollum, just within Egypt, and Fort Capuzzo, just within Libya, had fallen to the British.

DEC 15 1940

Supplies Paramount Question

One informant pointed out that the question of supplies, particularly water, was a dominant one, and said that a continuation of the British offensive probably would involve an effort to restrict the fighting to the hill regions beyond the Libyan borders.

He said the Italians would be seriously hampered by the loss of huge amounts of equipment, which British control of the Mediterranean would make exceedingly difficult of replacement.

The action in Egypt itself, as summarized by general headquarters, was simply one of "clearance"—a process of rounding up the stray Fascist units still in the country. The land forces were said to be ...topping up Marshal Rodolfo Graziani's army as "a Christmas present for the folks back home."

Gen. Sir Archibald P. Wavell, it was declared, had sent his troops to the attack with the statement "In everything but numbers we are superior to the enemy. A signal and crushing defeat of the Italian forces . . . may shorten the war by very many months."

Planes Take Heavy Toll

British fighting planes, mounting eight machine guns in their wings were said to have swooped down on the Tobruk-Bardia road, in Libya, spraying fire into the retreating troops. The communique said the planes "took a heavy toll of the enemy."

As usual, there was no definite figure as to the number of prisoners captured. An incomplete official estimate put it at 26,000, together with vast quantities of guns, tanks, arms and equipment of all sorts.

This estimate, which the British said was conservative, would mean that they held in custody more than one-fourth of the Fascist army which invaded Egypt in the early autumn—an army which at its peak strength had been estimated by the British at 80,000. The troops which had escaped capture in the flight into Libya were pictured as so disorganized as to be of little account.

British air activity continued to set a high tempo for the whole operation. Continuous assaults with bomb and machine-gun fire on Italian positions far within Libya—at Derna, for example, 150 miles beyond the frontier — were reported by the Royal Air Force. Hard hit, said the British, were the Derna barracks, wireless station and other military buildings, and spreading fires were left in the area.

Among the announced results elsewhere in this furious aerial campaign were these:

Bardai, the important Libyan coastal base, hit again; military stores bombed at half a dozen points and airdromes, landing fields, gasoline storages and the like pounded over a wide area; retreating Italians heavily machine-gunned.

During the day, a communique put at fifteen the number of Italian aircraft shot down in action in a twenty-four hour period. This was in addition to whatever destruction was caused among grounded planes. The total British plane losses were said to have been four.

No recapitulation was made, but the cumulative total as derived from successive R. A. F. announcements placed the aggregate Fascist plane losses since the beginning of the British offensive at least at sixty-five to seventy.

Despite their job on the Egyptian front, the British flyers also raided several points in Italian East Africa, including the Eritrean port of Asmara. Direct hits were reported on Caproni workshops at Mai Adaga.

R. A. F. Bombs Foe From Egypt; Attacks Italians Deep in Libya

Missiles Rained on Derna, 150 Miles Across Border—Many Other Bases Attacked From Air—Fall of Salum Reported.

CAIRO, Dec. 14 (A. P.).—An unceasing R. A. F. bombardment and machine-gun strafing of Italian landing fields, supply depots, transport and troops was reported today by the British in their grand assault to clear the Egyptian sands of the Fascist invaders.

A military spokesman said that he could not confirm reports that the pursuit of the Italians already had resulted in the recapture of Salum, seven miles inside the Egyptian border, or that Fort Capuzzo, in Libya itself, had fallen.

Whether the British intend to keep on chasing the Italians within Libya was a question which no officers would discuss. Were such a course pursued, the only objective, it was learned, would be destruction of the Italian main army.

Derna Heavily Attacked.

Derna, Italian base more than 150 miles within adjacent Libya, was pounded by several tons of bombs last night, the R. A. F. communique reported. The missiles fell on barracks, wireless stations and other military buildings, it was said.

Bardia, also in Libya, was attacked again; direct hits were scored on supply depots at Gubbi, Gambut, Tmimi and Bomba, and Gazala also was raided.

British fighting planes, mounting eight machine-guns in their wings, were said to have swooped down on the Tobruk-Bardia road in Libya, spraying fire into retreating troops. The communique said that the planes took a heavy toll of the enemy.

Italians Lose Fifteen Planes.

Land forces, aided by this aerial assault since the British surprise offensive started five days ago, were reported today to be mopping up Marshal Rodolfo Graziani's expeditionary force as "a Christmas present for the folks back home." The advanced British units already may have driven a wedge into Libya.

Yesterday, the British said, they shot down fifteen Italian planes and lost four of their own Gladiator fighters. The pilots of three of the latter were saved.

Despite their job on the Egyptian front, the British flyers also raided several points in Italian East Africa, including the Eritrean port of Asmara. Direct hits were claimed on Caproni workshops at Mai Adaga.

Reports from the sand-swept battle zone said that the fast-moving British advance units were still on the heels of the retreating Italian forces, while the main British force relayed truck caravans of prisoners to the rear and consolidated its position against any possible counter-attack.

Official Estimate 26,000.

A British communique said that clearance of the vast battlefield continued and that the number of prisoners was steadily mounting as desert forces still pressed the Italians back.

The communique estimated that 26,000 Italians were prisoners, though unofficial estimates ran higher, since the British have had difficulty counting the new ones.

Along with its continuous job of smashing at the Italians fleeing along the coastal road past Bardia and pounding Fascist reserve and supply bases important to any counter thrust, the British Navy helped in the transport of the prisoners.

British bombers kept at their work behind the Italian lines, and a correspondent for Reuters, the British news agency, quoted returning pilots as saying that large fires were burning in Salum and long columns of trucks were hurrying back through Libya on the road from Bardia to Tobruk. The correspondent reported that the Italian Tenth Army headquarters also was being moved hastily back from Bardia, only a few miles from the Egyptian frontier.

The British were on the alert for any counter-attack Marshal Graziani may attempt to catch the British too far extended.

Felicitations Sent By King To Wavell

London, Dec. 14 (AP)—King George tonight sent this message of felicitation to General Sir Archibald P. Wavell, commander of the British Egyptian forces:

"Please convey to all ranks of the force under your command my heartiest congratulations on the victory in the western desert.

"The skill in planning this complicated operation—for which the greatest credit is due to yourself and to the commanders and staff of all three services—was equaled by the efficiency and dash of the troops carrying it out.

"The whole Empire will, I am sure, be proud that contingents from the Dominions and India, as well as those of our Free French allies, played a distinguished part in the supremely successful encounter with an enemy vastly superior in number."

Today was the King's forty-fifth birthday.

Rome Denies Defeat

[By the Associated Press]

Rome, Dec. 14—Italian authorities refused today to concede a British victory in Egypt, the high command contending that Fascist counter-attacks along the Egyptian-Libyan frontier had lightened the pressure of the westward British drive.

Virginio Gayda, Fascist editor of Il Giornale d'Italia, reflecting the Government view, said the desert battle which began last Monday was not yet over and the results could be measured only weeks or months from now.

"Mere Episodes"

Fascist commentators emphasized that the fighting still was in full swing over an immense front.

Gayda said "Greece and Egypt are mere episodes in a war which has not exhausted Italy's power of attacks."

"No peace offer ever will be forthcoming from Italy," the Rome radio said.

In Albania, the high command said, vigorous Italian counter attacks smashed Greek drives, especially in the Usum River (central) sector, where Greek losses were reported especially heavy.

Italian planes, including dive bombers, were said to have attacked Greek troop concentrations and columns on the march.

The communique reported the sinking of a 12,000-ton steamer in a British convoy in the Atlantic by an Italian submarine December 5.

It said also that British bombers raided the southern Italian city of Crotoni last night, damaging one house, setting fire to two sheds and injuring two persons.

Italian planes, the high command declared, again bombed Micabba air field on the British island of Malta.

Rome Claims Air Victory

[By the Associated Press]

Rome, Dec. 14—Six Gloster (British) fighter planes were shot down in air fights in which the Italians lost no planes although some returned to their bases with some of the crew members killed and wounded, a communique said.

The communique told of a "daring rescue" of the commander of an Italian air formation whose damaged plane was forced down in enemy territory during a raid on Goz Regeb air field in East Africa.

It said another plane in the formation landed alongside the damaged plane, took the flight commander aboard and got away safely.

ARMY REPORTS PRESSURE BY FOE SLOWED UP

Setbacks In Desert Far From Decisive, Commentators Contend

Both Egypt And Greece Mere Episodes To Italy, Gayda Declares

Bruno Mussolini Declared Safe

Rome, Dec. 14 (AP)—An authoritative source, replying to foreign reports that Bruno Mussolini, son of il Duce, had been shot down in an air fight over Greece or Albania, said tonight that he was safe and on duty at an air base in Southern Italy.

[By the Associated Press]

Rome, Dec. 14—The Italians announced to the world today through the Rome radio that "no peace offer will ever be forthcoming from Italy," and refused to acknowledge defeat in Africa.

The high command's daily communique asserted Fascist counter-attacks had "slowed up enemy pressure" in Egypt, but laid no further claim to success in the field, and authoritative commentators took the line that what was happening in the desert was a long way from any decision.

British Force "Enormous"

They spoke of it as an action still raging over a vast area and described the British force as enormous.

It was observed that the outcome of the struggle appeared to depend on the ability of the two armies to maneuver and to keep supplied with the essentials of war.

"So long as the forces are intact or efficient, so long as water, gasoline, munitions and men last, the war continues," said the newspaper Il Popolo di Roma. If the maneuver fails, however, and the enemy keeps his force then the tactical result and a little local triumph lose importance."

Mere Episodes, Says Gayda

Writing in Il Giornale d'Italia, and speaking the Government's views, Virginio Gayda asserted the results of the bottle could be measured only weeks and months from now.

Both Egypt and Greece, he declared, were mere episodes to Italy, and her attacking power has not been exhausted.

There would come a time, perhaps months hence, he went on, when the British attack in Egypt would threaten to "impoverish" the empire of its best troops—and at that time the British Isles still would be "threatened with enemy invasion."

As To Albanian Campaign

The high command's report on the situation in Albania was little more detailed than that on the Egyptian campaign.

It spoke of "vigorous" counter-attacks by the Fascists in Albania, without stating just what had been the result, and declared that the Greeks had suffered "considerable losses."

British See Time At Hand For Hitler To Help Duce

New York, Dec. 14 (AP)—The British Broadcasting Corporation said today that it is "widely thought that the time has come when Herr Hitler must attempt to rescue his partner—Premier Mussolini.

"There has been no news today," the B. B. C. said in a broadcast heard by C. B. S., "on the movements of Herr Hitler and Herr von Ribbentrop, who were reported yesterday to have left Berlin and who are rumored to be on their way to see Signor Mussolini.

"It will cause no surprise if such a meeting takes places, since it is widely thought that the time has come when Herr Hitler must, at whatever cost, attempt to rescue his partner."

Italians Getting Mad

Rome Radio Warns Britain Against Terrors Of Latin Temper

New York, Dec. 14 (AP)—The Italian radio warned Britain, in effect, last night: "Be careful or we'll get mad."

In a broadcast heard here by CBS the Italian announcer said:

"There is one thing that British propaganda fails to take into account, and that is the peculiar temper of the Italians. The Italian is a lighthearted and easy-going fellow until he is aroused. Sometimes what he needs is just a little slap; then he stands up and fights to a finish. And the more blows, the more dangerous he becomes. The British ought to remember this."

Needs of Italy Seen as Drain Upon Germany

U.S. Commerce Information Official Cites Economic Plight of Reich's Partner

WASHINGTON, Dec. 14 (AP).—Indications that Italy is proving a heavy economic drain on her German Axis partner were reported today by the Commerce Department.

Writing in "The Foreign Commerce Weekly," Louis Domeratzky, chief of the department's regional information division, said hat an analysis showed "not only the great economic disparity between the two countries but also the high degree of dependence of Italy on German resources."

The full measure of German assistance to her partner cannot be ascertained because of lack of current trade statistics, he said, but the "fundamental charact and scope" is disclosed in a review of their economic relations appearing in a German publication which is regarded as representing Nazi economic theories and policies.

Mr. Domeratzky said that while the article was intended to show Italy's growing economic strength, that purpose was "definitely overshadowed by the revelation of the degree of dependence of Italy on the senior totalitarian partner as a source of supply and a market."

Coal occupies first rank among commodities which Italy must import from Germany, he said, and is being supplied at a rate of 1,000,000 tons a month, which "involves considerable strain" on railway facilities.

Germany is also Italy's chief supplier of metals and metal manufactures, lumber, petroleum and chemicals, he added.

At the same time, Germany is the chief market for Italy's agricultural exports, taking one-third of her total shipments.

"It should be pointed out," he said, "that while the supplies that Germany obtains from Italy are of some importance, and include such essential products as mercury and sulphur, on the whole they are of much less importance than those for which Italy is absolutely dependent on Germany."

Mr. Domeratzky said Germany also had become Italy's chief source of lumber and was "sharing with her petroleum resources of certain countries, particularly Rumania."

Pointing out that Italy, before entering the war, got from other sources part of the vital supplies which now must come from Germany, he observed:

"In addition to the extension of German control over countries in which Italy has an important interest as a supplier or consumer, consideration must be given to the elimination of alternative sources of supply by the blockade and the intensification of the Italian demand for war munitions and supplies and the consequent increase in the importance of the superior productive facilities of Germany."

5424 Italian Jews Reported in Exile

ROME, Dec. 14 (A. P.).—The police announced today that 5,424 Italian Jews had voluntarily left Italy between the beginning of the anti-Semitic campaign in 1938 and June 30, 1940, and that departures are still continuing.

The Government in 1938 estimated that there were 57,425 Italian Jews. Early in 1939 approximately 6,000 foreign Jewish refugees, mostly Germans, were seeking to leave Italy under a blanket expulsion order and most of them are believed to have gone, although definite figures are not available.

A submarine commanded by Commander Lehmann-Willenbrock was credited with sinking a total of 40,900 tons of "enemy merchant shipping" in a recent cruise. Another small submarine was reported to have sunk three armed enemy merchant vessels.

NAZIS CLAIM FOOD SUPPLY IS FAR UP

Agriculture Minister Calls Increase Extraordinary

BERLIN, Dec. 14 (A. P.).—The German Minister of Agriculture, the Argentine-born Walther Darre, declared today that Germany, in the second year of war, has the highest food standard in all Europe, thanks to the efforts of her farmers.

He exhorted the farmers, in a nationwide radio broadcast, to cling to Nazi farming principles, to boost production and contribute their share to the German war effort. Despite hardships, he said, the German farmers had scored extraordinary increases in certain vital products.

He made public no complete figures but claimed that Germany's butter production was 30 per cent higher than before the war.

Germany's "milk production battle has frustrated England's hope of decisively hitting us in the field of fat supplies through the blockade," he asserted.

He emphasized that the per capita weekly fat rations throughout the present war have been approximately ten ounces (butter, margarine and other edible oils and fats) as compared with 4½ ounces in the world war. He said the increased milk production balanced the lacking fat imports.

Nazis List Sinkings, Admit British Raids

[By the Associated Press]

Berlin, Dec. 14—DNB, the official German news agency, said today that the 18,000-ton Norwegian liner Oslofjord, reported sunk while en route to Canada under the British flag, "probably" had struck a mine.

(Loss of the Oslofjord was reported in New York shipping circles yesterday without confirmation.)

DNB said another 10,000-ton merchant vessel had been torpedoed and sunk 450 miles off France.

British Raids Admitted

A few British flights over Germany and occupied territory were reported. A high command communique said the British planes were over northern and western Germany, but did only "insignificant" damage in two places, wrecking homes and slightly injuring eight persons.

Report On U-Boats

The communique said German airforce activities yesterday were limited to reconnaissance flights because of unfavorable weather.

Danish Pupils to Get Carrots

BERLIN, Dec. 14 (AP).—N. N. B., the German official news agency, reported today that Danish school children would be fed 4,000 tons of carrots to replace vitamins unobtainable because of a shortage of butter, margarine and cod liver oil.

Red Cross in Charge of Boy Who Missed Boat in August

OSLO, Dec. 14 (AP).—Five-and-one-half-year-old Axel Gorm Andersen left for New York today with the following Red Cross label tied around his neck:

"Oslo - Malmoe - Trelleborg - Sassnitz-Berlin, air passenger Berlin-Lisbon, by steamer Siborny Lisbon-New York, to Mr. Axel Andersen, 4137-70 Street, Woodside, Long Island, New York."

Axel, American-born, caught by the war while visiting his grandparents in the Trondheim district of Norway, tried to go home last August, when he traveled alone to Petsamo, Finland, but he missed by twenty-four hours the American transport American Legion, which repatriated refugees from Scandinavia and Finland.

Under an arrangement made by the Norwegian Red Cross, he will arrive at Lisbon Dec. 19, where the American Red Cross will out him aboard the American Export liner Siboney.

Quisling As Educator

New York, Dec. 14 (AP)—The Scandinavian wireless tonight attributed to the newspaper Social Democraten reports that the Norwegian Government of the Nazi Vidkun Quisling had acknowledged officially the establishment of concentration camps to "educate" masses of arrested Norwegians.

This, it was stated, was "regarded as Quisling's final attempt to show his Nazi master that he is able to force the Norwegians to accept the Nazi yoke.

"Nevertheless, the distribution and posting of anti-Quisling posters is assuming such proportions that special squads of poster removers are unable to keep pace with the posterers," said the radio.

"It is generally believed," the broadcast continued, "that if Quisling is ousted the Nazis will abandon the fiction of a national Government and declare a protectorate."

Greeks Advance

[By the Associated Press]

Athens, Greece, Dec. 14—Italian resistance to Greek attacks in strategic mountain passes on the northern Albanian battlefront was reported crumbling today while Greek forces on the southern front were said to be edging steadily forward in a drive aimed at the important port of Valona.

(A dispatch from Bitolj, Yugoslavia, on the Albanian frontier, said the Greeks had launched a big push along the entire northern front and that the bloodiest fighting of the war was raging there.

Resistance Stiff

(The Greeks apparently were striving to make quick work of drives on Elbasani and Berat in fulfillment of their battle cry: "Tirana by Christmas," the Bitolj dispatch said.)

Italian planes attempted to bomb Salonika again today after a lull of several weeks but were driven off by Greek pursuit planes. There were brief alarms both yesterday and today but the raiders were unable to approach the city.

The Greeks acknowledged stiffened resistance around Pogradetz, which is about seventy miles southeast of the Albanian capital, but said the Italian defenders were beginning to give way under steady pressure.

Fighting In South

In the south the stiffest fighting was reported around Telepeni and Klisura Pass and on the coastal road toward Chimara, as the Greeks pressed toward the vital port of Valona.

(British military circles said yesterday it was "merely a matter of time" before both Klisura and Tepeleni were taken.)

A Government spokesman said the total number of Italian prisoners taken thus far—not including the most recent captures—was 250 officers and 7,000 men. Also taken, he said, were 120 guns, 55 anti-aircraft and anti-tank guns, a large number of tanks, thousands of automatic weapons, 250 vehicles, more than 1,500 bicycles and motorcycles, a large number of horses and mules, and quantities of munitions.

(From Belgrade, Yugoslavia, came a report last night that heavy explosions had been heard in the Adriatic off Dubrovnik, Yugoslavia, possibly indicating a British-Italian naval engagement.)

Greeks Push On In North, Aim at Valona in South

Advance Through Snow to Take Mountain Defenses All Along Albanian Front

By The Associated Press

ATHENS, Dec. 15 (Sunday).—Greek troops, slogging through heavy snowfalls, have crushed Italian mountain-top defenses all along the Albanian front, capturing more prisoners and armament, the Greeks declared officially early today.

Italian resistance was said to be especially stiff in the northern Pogradetz area on the route leading to Elbasani, but a government spokesman said it was not holding up the Greek advance.

Other Greek units were battling their way northward along the Adriatic coastline toward Khimara, en route to Valona, and also cutting toward those ports from inland trails in the Tepeleni region, reports here said.

The Greeks already have said they captured a total of 7,250 troops, and the high command said additional prisoners were taken in Saturday's fighting, along with sixty automatic weapons.

"The news from the front is highly satisfactory," the spokesman said. "In some places we are making the usual advances, whereas in others the Italians are putting up stiff resistance, but everywhere it has been crushed, despite the fact that snow is very heavy in the fighting regions."

[A dispatch from Monastir (Bitolj), Yugoslavia, on the Albanian frontier, said the Greeks had launched a big push along the entire northern front and that the most sanguinary fighting of the war was raging there.

[Fierce hand-to-hand fighting left the battle area—ranging over a wide arc from west of Moskopolis to Udiniste, on Lake Ochrida—strewn with dead of both sides, this report said, as the Fascist forces put up the sturdiest resistance yet seen in the north. The Greeks apparently were striving to make quick work of drives on Elbasani and Berat to fulfill their battle cry: "Tirana by Christmas," the dispatch said.]

In the south the stiffest fighting was reported around Tepeleni and Klisoura Pass and on the coastal road toward Khimara.

OFFICIAL SOURCES IN ATHENS SAID SMALL GREEK FORCES MET AND PUT TO FLIGHT EARLY IN THE WAR LARGE ITALIAN FORCES DEPLOYED ALONG THE GREEK-ALBANIAN BORDER WHEN ITALY ISSUED HER ULTIMATUM TO GREECE IN OCTOBER.

THESE SOURCES SAID THEY SPOKE IN ORDER TO "PUT A STOP TO ITALIAN ALLEGATIONS THAN WHEN GREECE RECEIVED THE ULTIMATUM GREECE WAS ENTIRELY PREPARED FOR WAR AND MOBILIZED."

THEY ADDED THAT THE ITALIAN ATTACK WAS MADE AFTER "MANY MONTHS OF PREPARATION" AND THAT ITALIAN ARMAMENT WAS "UNPRECEDENTEDLY HEAVY."

Greek Lines Bombed

OCHRIDA, Yugoslavia, Dec. 14 (AP).—Italian planes heavily bombed Greek positions in Pogradetz and on the northern sector of the Greek advance line in Albania today, causing heavy explosions which border reports said might have been exploding ammunition dumps.

Reports heard in this frontier said damage was heavy in Pogradetz, which was captured by the Greeks Nov. 29.

The Greeks were said to be gaining some local successes in the northern front despite the bombings, and British and Greek planes bombed the Italian supply line on the Pogradetz-Elbasani road.

[Italian planes again attempted to bomb Salonica, Greek port on the Aegean Sea, after giving the city a rest of several weeks. They were driven off by Greek pursuit planes without getting near the city.]

Some observers along the Yugoslav border said Italian planes harmlessly jettisoned a great number of bombs in three lakes along the border — Prepa, Malik and Ochrida.

Former General Staff Man on Way to Washington.

LISBON, Portugal, Dec. 14 (A. P.).—Col. E. Papvassiliou, formerly of the Greek General Staff, who recently arrived here from Athens, has been appointed Greek military attache at Washington and will leave shortly by trans-Atlantic clipper on what he termed a special important mission.

War Powers' Communiques

British

LONDON, Dec. 14 (AP).—The Air Ministry communique this evening:

Enemy activity over this country during daylight today has again been on a very small scale. A single enemy aircraft dropped bombs late this afternoon at a place in the west Midlands. Shops and houses were damaged and a small number of people was killed and some others were injured. The only other bombs which have been reported fell near a farm in the Home Counties, but they did little damage and no one was hurt.

An earlier Air Ministry communique:

Last night aircraft of the bomber command, operating in difficult weather conditions, made attacks on shipbuilding yards at Kiel and on factories and other targets at Bremen.

Throughout the last twenty-four hours fighters and bomber aircraft of the R. A. F. continued without respite to support the army in its successful operation in the western desert. Airdromes, landing grounds, fuel dumps and stores of all kinds, including motors transport and troops, were bombed and machine-gunned.

Derna was very heavily raided last (Friday) night and several tons of the bombs fell on barracks, wireless stations and other military buildings.

Fierce fires were caused, which spread rapidly. Bardia was again attacked, and direct hits were made on stores at Gubbi, Gambut, Derna, Tmimi and Bomba. Gazala was also raided and one CR42 and three S79's (Italian planes) were destroyed on the ground and other enemy aircraft made unserviceable.

Docks and airdromes in Holland also were bombed. Aircraft of the coastal command attacked submarine bases at Bordeaux. None of our aircraft was lost in these operations.

CAIRO, Egypt, Dec. 14 (AP).—The British general headquarters communique today:

In the western desert our advance forces continued to press back the enemy who are endeavoring to stem the tide of their rout on and about the Libyan frontier.

Clearance of the vast battlefield continues and the number of prisoners is steadily mounting.

It is estimated that some 26,000 are now in our hands, together with guns, tanks and large quantities of equipment of all types. Our harassing activities on the Sudan frontier continued unabated.

The Royal Air Force communique today:

On the Tobruk-Bardin road our eight-gun fighters took heavy toll of the enemy.

While continuing to give fighter protection to our advancing troops, our aircraft shot down five CR42's, making a total for the day of fifteen. Four of our Gladiators were lost, but three of the pilots escaped safely by parachute.

One of the two bombers announced in yesterday's communique as having failed to return to their base is now reported safe. In Italian East Africa, Gura was attacked, many bombs falling on the airport. One incendiary started a fire which was followed by loud explosions.

At Diredawa the pumping station was attacked, all the bombs falling well within the target area.

Asmara was also attacked heavily, but weather conditions here prevented an accurate estimate of damage caused.

The Caproni workshops at Mai Adaga suffered direct hits, while the landing grounds were heavily bombed. No bombing operations were possible in Albania by our aircraft, owing to very bad weather conditions.

German

BERLIN, Dec. 14 (AP).—The German high command communique today:

The night of Dec. 12-13 strong attacks carried out by our troops in the afternoon slowed up enemy pressure.

Our air formations flew continuously over the battlefield. Our fighter planes shot down six Glosters in combat. All our planes returned.

In East Africa, patrol and artillery activity was reported on the Sudan border. Our planes dropped shrapnel bombs on an armored car, immobilizing it, and machine-gunned and bombed supply columns.

A formation of fighters and bombers carried out low-flying action on the Goz Rageb flying field, setting fire to five planes on the field and scattered in the woods.

During this action a commander of the formation was forced to land in enemy territory because of damage to his plane. One of his flyers with daring succeeded in landing near by, took him aboard and carried him uninjured to his base.

On the Greek front, enemy attacks launched in various sectors were broken by our troops, who vigorously counter-attacked. The enemy suffered considerable losses, particularly in the Usum sector.

The Tridentina Alpine division particularly distinguished itself in fighting in the last two days.

Our air force, using successive waves of bombers and dive-bombers, effectively hit troop concentrations and marching columns.

During the night our bombing planes, despite unfavorable weather conditions, hit the Micabra airfield at Malta with visible effects.

Enemy planes made a raid on Crotoni on the evening of Dec. 13, dropping several bombs which caused some damage to a house and set fire to two sheds. Two persons were slightly injured.

The submarine Argo, commanded by Lieut. Alberto Crepas, which torpedoed the Canadian destroyer Saguenay in the Atlantic on Dec. 1, as reported on Dec. 4, attacked an escorted enemy convoy on Dec. 5, torpedoing a 12,000-ton steamer, which overturned and sank.

A submarine commanded by Comdr. Lehmann-Willenbrock, during a cruise against enemy shipping, sank a total of 40,900 tons. Partial results of his operations were announced earlier.

A small U-boat sank three armed enemy merchant vessels.

Scattered British planes last night bombed northern and western Germany, causing insignificant damage to houses at only two places. Eight persons were wounded slightly

Greek

ATHENS, Dec. 15 (Sunday) (AP).—The Greek high command communique today:

Our offensive activity (on Saturday) contineus successfully. Important heights were occupied, numerous prisoners were taken and more than sixty automatic weapons, mortars and so forth fell into our hands.

A communique of the Ministry of Home Security:

Enemy aviation bombed some villages but no casualties or damages were reported. In one of these villages, enemy aircraft flew low and machine-gunned a fishing boat and grazing herds.

According to a supplementary telegram from appropriate police authorities, among those abducted as hostages by Italians when they retreated from Greek territory were four more Greek notables from the Igoumenitsa district.

Italian

ROME, Dec. 14 (AP).—The Italian high command communique today:

Fighting continued all day yesterday in the Cirenaica (Libya) frontier zone, and several counter-combat formations attacked heavy industry at Sheffied with great success, as previously announced. The raid was carried out during favorable weather, with ground visibility so that the ordered targets were spotted and perfect hits in the target area could be observed clearly.

Numerous fires and explosions in factories of the steel industry and other armament plants as well as war-vital works in the northeastern part and in the center of the city were observed.

British armaments were especially effectively hit through the destructions in the Sheffield industrial region.

The air force's activity Dec. 13 was limited to armed reconnaissance due to unfavorable weather.

Col. Donovan Arrives At Lisbon; Says He Hopes To Go To London

Lisbon, Portugal, Dec. 14 (AP)—Col. William J. (Wild Bill) Donovan, en route to Europe on a mission that has not been publicly explained, arrived here by airplane late today.

He declined to discuss his trip in any way save to remark:

"I am hoping to go to London."

Among the other passengers was a British diplomatic courier.

Hamilton, Bermuda, Dec. 14 (AP)—Col. William J. Donovan, who left for Lisbon by clipper yesterday, arrived in Bermuda a week ago from Baltimore, traveling under the name of Donald Williams.

[Associated Press Editor's Note—At that time the Baltimore Sun said he was traveling with three Englishmen, one of whom, The Sun said, was "supposed to be attached to the British Embassy."]

SPANISH TREASURES RETURNED BY VICHY

Napoleon's Loot Exchanged for Francois's Gold Tent

MADRID, Dec. 14 (A. P.).—Fifty thousand art treasures and historical documents taken from Spanish museums by Napoleon are being returned by the Vichy Government at the order of French Chief of State Philippe Petain, it was disclosed here today.

The treasures include several of Murillo's works, among them the "Imaculada"; jeweled crowns and tapestries.

In return for the archives the Spanish Government will send back to France part of the golden tent which King Francois I of France used at the battle of Pavia in 1525. That relic is made of golden cloth studded with gems.

NOBEL SUM TO RED CROSS

Swedish Setup To Get Amount Usually Spent On Festivities

Stockholm, Dec. 14 (AP)—The Government announced today that 10,000 kronor (about $2,386) of Nobel funds would be given to the Swedish Red Cross because of the cancellation of prize awards and ceremonies this year.

That amount represents the usual sum spent on annual festivities attending the prize awards.

DEAD ON CAPSIZED REFUGEE SHIP 223

Surviving Jews Encamped on Turkish Shore.

ISTANBUL, Dec. 14 (A. P.).—The death list from the capsizing of a Jewish refugee ship on a reef in the Sea of Marmora mounted to 223 today and officials said about one-half of the bodies had been recovered.

Survivors of the wreck of the 100-ton wooden vessel huddled in temporary camps near the shore.

The White Russian captain of the ship, who was detained pending an investigation, said he had been sailing in Turkish waters since 1917.

Nearly 400 passengers boarded the boat at Varna, Bulgaria, including Rumanian, Polish, Czech and German Jews. Survivors said each paid $750 for the passage, with the guaranty that they would be landed in Palestine.

A physician who headed the expedition was among the victims.

RUMANIA SEIZES REDS

Charges the Circulation of Subversive Leaflets.

BUCHAREST, Dec. 14 (A. P.).—The arrest of numerous communists, most of them Jews, in Bucharest and other cities throughout Rumania on charges of circulating leaflets against the public order was announced today by Premier Gen. Ion Antonescu.

OIL FIRE DISRUPTS RUMANIAN TRAFFIC

Railroad Tracks Destroyed, Says Communique.

BUCHAREST, Rumania, Dec. 14 (A. P.).—A communique issued by the Rumanian Railroad said today that all traffic in the oil district between Ploesti and Buzau had either been suspended or rerouted because of the destruction of the railroad tracks over a bridge as a result of an oil pipe line fire.

The communique said the traffic would be interrupted five or six days.

BOMBAY, India, Dec. 14 (AP)—Mrs. Sarojini Naidu, former president of the Congress [Nationalist party], who was arrested on Dec. 1 under Defense of India Regulations for "individual" civil disobedience, was released today by the government because of the state of her health. Pyaralel Sharma, Mohandas K. Gandhi's secretary, was arrested today near Wardha for spreading anti-war propaganda.

Tea For The Guns Of China

[By the Associated Press]

New York, Dec. 14—The British radio reported tonight that China and the Soviet Union have signed an agreement under which China is to sell $100,000,000 worth of tea to the U. S. S. R., "making it possible for the Chinese Government to buy war material from Russia which it needs for the war against Japan." CBS recorded the report here.

One Towel a Year Decreed

TOKIO, Dec. 14 (AP).—Japanese will have to get along on one towel a year, starting in January, under a rationing system decreed by the Ministry of Commerce, Tokio newspapers reported today.

A ration-card system already is in effect for bleached cotton and infants' underwear. Stricter rationing of gauze, absorbent cotton and condensed and powdered milk also is imminent, the press said.

Japan's "Triangle" Plan

[By the Associated Press]

Tokyo, Dec. 14—The Japanese Navy is drawing on its charts a huge "defensive triangle" to secure the empire's hold on the riches of "greater East Asia" and prevent any American or British interference with its expansion program in that part of the world.

High officials make no secret of a plan to complete the triangle by acquisition of Camranh Bay, on French Indo-China's eastern coast, which Japanese believe they can make one of the great naval fortresses of history.

The other corners of the triangle, each side of which would be more than 2,000 miles long, would be the bases of the Japanese homeland and the island chains of the equatorial Pacific which Japan got from Germany as World War spoils.

Philippines Included

Inclosed within—and thereby, the Japanese hope, made strategically useless—would be the Philippine Islands and Guam.

Its admitted purposes are two: (1) To prevent any thrust from Britain's naval base at Singapore into the western Pacific or the China Seas—which Japan considers her own preserves; (2) to prevent any move by the United States to join hands with the British at Singapore in opposition to Japan's imperial plans.

A third purpose, not openly avowed but strongly suggested by the map, is to provide protection for the move many Japanese advocate, seizure of the Netherlands East Indies, richest of all Far Eastern colonies, especially in oil, which Japan sorely needs.

Japanese strategists believe Britain would have to oppose such a move and they consider United States intervention almost as likely as British. They have made an alliance with Germany and Italy providing for a common front against intervention.

Would Isolate Units

Any United States units rash enough to venture to Singapore would be isolated, the informants said, adding, "it would be a great mistake if the United States sent ships there."

The triangle lies athwart all direct routes from continental United States, the Panama Canal and Hawaii to the possible conflict area in the south China Sea.

Camranh, 1,200 miles due north of Batavia, capital of the Indies, and 800 miles northeast of Singapore, would be the natural jump-off point for a move against the Dutch islands.

The Japanese strategists apparently believe that the threats to their own naval lines of communications which would persist as long as the British held Singapore, the United States held Manila and the Dutch held their base on the north Java coast, could be nullified by bold, swift seizure of the initiative.

The French already have begun development of Camranh. The Japanese believe they can make it capable of docking capital ships as well as smaller raiding and scouting units. They say that, for the present, at least, they would seek only by diplomatic methods to obtain use of it from the French. Already they have succeeded in obtaining army and air bases in northern Indo-China.

Would Command Seaways

The mandated Pacific islands, second anchor of the triangle, would, Japanese believe, command the American seaways to the Orient.

They remarked that hopes of improving United States-Japanese relations would not die as long as the United States fleet remained east of the one hundred and eightieth meridian—some 1,400 miles west of Hawaii. They indicated the Japanese Navy planned quick action if the United States Navy moved in force toward Singapore or the Philippines.

For the present it was indicated that Japan's battle fleet, the world's third strongest, would continue to be based on the home ports. Fear of Russia keeps them there. Only the most ironclad non-aggression pact with the Soviet would release them.

Counting On Axis

But the Japanese feel that neither the United States nor Britain could spare large capital ship forces for any Pacific conflict.

They count on their Axis allies to keep the battleships occupied elsewhere.

Thus they conceive of a Pacific conflict as naval guerrilla warfare in which their triangle, especially the Camranh base, would give them a great advantage.

An outbreak of hostilities presumably would cut off Japan's normal supplies from the United States and the Dutch Indies, and the navy would have to operate largely on reserves. Long-range fighting would cut rapidly into available stocks. China might strike with redoubled vigor against her Japanese invaders to create a diversion.

Even a quick Japanese conquest of the Dutch islands would not necessarily mean immediate oil riches, for the Dutch are known to have prepared to demolish their wells and refineries so that six months or a year would be required to restore production.

Argentina, In Policy Shift, Signs Defense Pact With Uruguay

Colonia, Uruguay, Dec. 14 (AP)—The Argentine and Uruguayan foreign ministers signed a joint declaration here tonight advocating cooperation between their countries in preparing for any defense of the Americas against outside aggression.

Long strides toward understanding and achieving an adequate defense program were made by the two ministers of the neighboring River Plate countries, Julio Roca of Argentina and Alfredo Guani of Uruguay in their two-day meeting here.

Argentina, which has been aloof from defense consultations, evidently is ready now to join her neighbors in discussing "continental defense" needs.

Duchess Improved

[By the Associated Press]

Miami Beach, Fla., Dec. 14—Back from a flying visit to President Roosevelt that may pave the way for an official tour of the United States, the Duke of Windsor found his Duchess almost completely recovered from a dental operation and removed her from St. Francis Hospital today.

Together Edward and Wallis motored from the hospital where they had been since Tuesday. They went on their first sight-seeing trip together and then drove to the Miami Biltmore Hotel for a weekend stay.

Plan Return To Nassau

After a few days' rest there as guests of George MacDonald, a papal Marquis and owner of the hotel, they will return to Nassau where the Duke is to appear before the Bahamian Legislature Wednesday night.

Before leaving the hospital, the Duke posed for several newsreel men who missed his return on a naval bomber yesterday from his talk with the President.

Windsor said he asked the President during their talk aboard the cruiser Tuscaloosa whether "after New Year's he could make arrangements for me to visit CCC camps."

May Set Up CCC In Islands

Edward indicated that the reply was a cordial invitation, and added that he "wouldn't be surprised" if he saw the President again.

The Duke, Governor of the Bahama Islands, has expressed deep interest in the CCC program because, he says, he sees in it a possible aid for Bahama Islanders.

It was as Governor that he flew from Miami in a United States Navy plane to see the President.

"We discussed naval bases in the whole of the West Indies," he said. "We also talked about the economic future of the West Indies and how America might cooperate with Great Britain in their development."

Windsors Move From Hospital To Miami Hotel

Duchess Nearly Recovered, They'll Rest a Few Days Before Return to Nassau

MIAMI, Fla., Dec. 14 (AP).—Nearing complete recovery from her operation for removal of an infected tooth, the Duchess of Windsor and her husband went to a tower apartment in the Miami Biltmore Hotel, Coral Gables, today for a few days' rest before returning to Nassau.

Followed by a van carrying twenty-seven pieces of luggage, they motored from St. Francis Hospital at Miami Beach in a big sedan, making a two-hour sightseeing jaunt of the drive through Miami, Miami Beach and Coral Gables.

The Duchess, after four days abed in a waterfront suite of the hospital, appeared strong.

A crowd gathered at the private entrance from which their car left St. Francis and cheered as the Windsors departed.

Before leaving the hospital they presented autographs to members of the staff. A delighted waiter, Jose Garcia, who served them throughout their stay, received a sheet on which were typed all their menus and on which they had written "Edward" and "Wallis Windsor."

The Duke posed for camera men, who missed his return yesterday from a flying visit to President Roosevelt aboard the cruiser Tuscaloosa. He thanked the photographers for having respected his privacy, and said:

"Now we expect to relax and see some of the beauties of this section. After all, we've both had a very strenuous time the last few months."

The Duke said he would play some golf, but would have to miss seeing the Miami Open Golf Tournament now in progress.

After a few days' rest as guests of George MacDonald, a Papal Marquis and owner of the hotel, they will return to Nassau, where the Duke is to appear before the Bahamian Legislature Wednesday night.

LOTHIAN RITES ARE ARRANGED

DEC 15 1940

Ashes of Ambassador to Rest in Arlington.

PRESIDENT TO BE ABSENT

Naming of Successor to Wait Until After Funeral.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 14 (A. P.).—The ashes of Lord Lothian, Great Britain's wartime Ambassador to the United States, will repose indefinitely in a vault in Arlington National Cemetery.

This was announced late yesterday by the State Department, along with plans for an Anglican service in Washington Cathedral, where Woodrow Wilson and other distinguished Americans are entombed.

The rites at the Cathedral were arranged for 2:30 P. M. tomorrow. An army caisson will bear the beachelor nobleman's body from the British embassy.

Seats in the cathedral were reserved for American and British officials, and the diplomatic corps.

The White House announced today that President Roosevelt, homeward bound from an inspection of defense bases in the Caribbean, had requested Stephen Early, the White House press secretary, to represent him at the funeral.

Private cremation will follow the funeral. Then at noon Monday an army bugler will sound taps. A firing squad will fire three volleys and Lord Lothian's remains will be placed in the Arlington vault, located under the mast of the famous battleship Maine.

To Remain Indefinitely.

There, said State Department officials, the ashes will remain until arrangements can be made for final disposition.

The State Department made public a message from King George VI in reply to President Roosevelt's condolences on the death of Lord Lothian.

"I am very grateful for your kind message on the tragic death of my Ambassador Lord Lothian," the King's message said.

"It was always most gratifying to me that his personal relations with you were so happy and cordial, and I know, as you do, how devoted he was to the ideals which inspire our two peoples."

Formal action in London toward appointment of a new Ambassador was held in abeyance until conclusion of the religious rites. However, diplomatic sources there centered their attention on Sir Andrew Rae Duncan, British Minister of Supply, as a likely successor to Lord Lothian.

Brawny, fifty-six-year-old Sir Andrew formerly was chairman of the British Board of Trade. He has headed a number of government commissions, and went into the Cabinet when Winston Churchill became Prime Minister.

Native of Scotland.

A native of Scotland, he is married and the father of two sons, one of whom was killed at Dunkirk.

Sir Andrew's industrial background, including experience in coal, shipping, steel, utilities and banking, was seen as fitting him for the Washington position. For that reason, there was less talk that the post might go to War Minister Anthony Eden.

Mahoney to Represent Canada.

OTTAWA, Dec. 14 (A. P.).—Merchant Mahoney, charge d'affaires at the Canadian legation in Washington, will represent the Dominion Government at the funeral services in Washington tomorrow of Lord Lothian, late British Ambassador to the United States.

Mr. Mahoney will act in the absence of Loring Christie, Canadian Minister in Washington, who has been ill and now is convalescent.

Among the flowers will be a wreath from the Government and people of Canada.

Lothian True to 'Our Ideals'—King to F.D.R.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 14 (AP).—The State Department today made public a message from King George VI in reply to President Roosevelt's condolences on the death of the Marquess of Lothian, the British Ambassador.

"I am very grateful for your kind message on the tragic death of my Ambassador Lord Lothian," the King's message said.

"It was always most gratifying to me that his personal relations with you were so happy and cordial, and I know, as you do, how devoted he was to the ideals which inspire our two peoples."

STATES NAVAL BASE POLICY

President Says Strategy Is to Keep Attack Far Out.

SOME LOCATIONS CRITICIZED

Bahamas Seen as Stepping Stone of Caribbean Defense Line.

ABOARD U. S. S. TUSCALOOSA AT SEA, Dec. 14 (A. P. by Radio).—Rested and relaxed, President Roosevelt headed today for Charleston, S. C., after describing the newly-acquired Caribbean outposts he has been inspecting as stepping stones for United States defense.

Expressing satisfaction with some bases and dissatisfaction with others, he told a press conference yesterday that the further an attack is kept from the American continent, the safer the continent would be.

That meant, he said, that we wanted to be as far out as possible. Newfoundland, he pointed out, was as far as we could go in the North, and Bermuda as far off the coast.

With no island between Bermuda and Porto Rico, he said, the next best thing was the Bahamas, which would serve also as a stepping stone for the maintenance of the southern end of the outer defense line in the indward and Leeward islands.

No American Gibraltar.

The President said there would be no such thing as an American Gibraltar and that the United States must have many bases because a naval war in Caribbean waters would be more mobile than in a strait such as Gibraltar.

Earlier in the day he conferred with the Duke of Windsor, who told correspondents that the people of the Bahamas looked with great favor on establishment of the bases, and said "we are ready to do what the President wants when he gives the word."

At his press conference, the President disclosed that plans for a Bahamas base were being held in abeyance because of unfavorable anthorage and other conditions at Mayaguana Island, which he inspected Thursday.

Little San Salvador, Long and Eleuthera islands likewise were not entirely satisfactory, he added, saying the problem required further study.

Mr. Roosevelt said that Jamaica, inside the outer defense line, was a stepping stone to the Panama Canal, Central America and Colombia, and that the harbor there was excellent. It needed some dredging, he said, and could be made submarine proof by nets.

Mayaguana Not Suitable.

Of St. Lucia, he asserted it had a good anchorage and lee for smaller ships, and apparently was satisfactory in every way for sea and land planes. Antigua was very good for both types of planes, but not so good for ships, he said.

Mayaguana was by no means satisfactory, he added, because ships must anchor either off the beach or in a thousand fathoms.

The 4,000-mile cruise is expected to end at Charleston this afternoon, when the President will board a special train, arriving at Warm Springs, Ga., Sunday morning and leaving for Washington Sunday afternoon. This would put him back in the capital some time Monday afternoon.

ONE BASE SITE TERMED POOR BY ROOSEVELT

Returns From Trip Skeptical Of Facilities For Plan In Bahamas

Arrives At Charleston And Heads For Warm Springs For Day's Visit

[By the Associated Press]

Aboard Roosevelt Train En route to Warm Springs, Ga., Dec. 14—President Roosevelt ended a cruise over nearly 4,000 miles of the Caribbean and Atlantic today, assured by a personal inspection that sites for American defense bases in Jamaica, St. Lucia and Antigua were satisfactory, but skeptical about facilities in the Bahamas.

Pointing up evidence of Anglo-American friendship, the cruise took the President into the waters of a belligerent power for the first time since the current conflict began in Europe. He paused at more than half a dozen British islands, and also at the French Island of Martinique.

Leaves For Georgia.

Mr. Roosevelt came ashore from the cruiser Tuscaloosa at the Charleston (S. C.) Navy Yard this afternoon, tanned by a tropical sun and salt-laden breezes, after twelve days at sea.

Immediately he left by special train for Warm Springs, Ga., to spend Sunday at the foundation for infantile paralysis victims and then return to Washington Monday.

The President held a press conference aboard ship, then made a tour of the navy yards which has five destroyers under construction and orders for nine more.

He had little to offer in elaboration on his inspection of the base sites on the cruise, and said that he knew nothing besides what he had seen in the Tuscaloosa's radio "newspaper" about difficulties in reaching an agreement with Britain on a site in Trinidad.

Declines Comment.

Nor did he have anything to say about the kind of report made to him at Martinique by Capt. Ernest J. Blankenship, of the United States Navy, a Government observer on the French island.

Reporters, he said, probably know more than he does about the subject of aid to Britain and the conferences Henry Morgenthau, Secretary of the Treasury, has been having with Sir Frederick Phillips, a British Treasury expert.

A reporter remarked that William Knudsen, of the National Defense Commission, had said plane production was thirty per cent. behind schedule and Henry L. Stimson, Secretary of the Navy, had said construction of barracks for conscripts was two months behind. And he was asked whether he planned to do anything about speeding up the work.

Mr. Roosevelt's only reply was that that was not the way he had heard about the matters through the ship's newspaper.

Received Aboard Tuscaloosa

Gov. Burnet Maybank of South Carolina, and Rear Admiral William H. Allen, commandant of the navy yard, had been received aboard the Tuscaloosa, and Mr. Roosevelt said he was pleased to learn of progress being made in expanding the yards and its shipbuilding facilities.

As for strengthening coast defense batteries in the vicinity, the Chief Executive dismissed that as Spanish War stuff, out of date, and not the way to defend the nation.

To an inquiry whether the South could play any special part in the defense program, the President replied by suggesting that a check be made on how many of the 1,400,000 men to be trained for the armed forces would be trained in the South. That, he said, would supply the answer.

Visited Sites For Bases

The cruise took him to four of the eight spots where the United States obtained rights, by turning over fifty old destroyers to Britain, to establish plane and naval bases in British territory and thereby forge a chain of outlying defenses for the continent and the Panama Canal.

Mr. Roosevelt found the sites at the islands of Jamaica, St. Lucia and Antigua in the Caribbean met the qualifications of supplying anchorage for essential maintenance and supply ships and areas for sea and land plane operations.

But at Mayaguana Island in the Bahamas, where a special board had recommended that a plane base be located at shallow, reef-sheltered Abrahams Bay, he said anchorages were poor and that efforts would be made to find something better.

That was one of the matters he discussed yesterday when he had his first meeting since 1919 with the Duke of Windsor.

The former King of England, now Governor of the Bahamas, flew out from Miami and conferred with the President aboard the Tuscaloosa while it was anchored at Eleuthera Island—one of those over which Edward has jurisdiction.

Exceptional secrecy was maintained about the cruise as a precaution against the possibility that the Tuscaloosa and her escort destroyers, the Mayrant and Trippe, might be mistaken for hostile vessels by a submarine or raider of one of the European belligerents.

Precautions Taken

Reporters aboard the Mayrant were permitted to file stories about the stops at various points only after the vessels had left them and were unable to disclose destinations in advance. Since their dispatches had to clear through the Tuscaloosa, the President had an opportunity to change them if he saw fit.

The ships steamed along in a triangle, the destroyers leading and forming an anti-submarine screen for the cruiser. Spotlights played all night on American flags, gun crews kept watches around the clock and torpedoes and depth charges were ready for instant use.

Fishing, Mr. Roosevelt's favorite type of recreation, was a side line on the cruise. There were no days devoted entirely to it, as on previous cruises, but occasionally the ships slowed to permit an hour of trolling or small boats were put over the side while the Presidential party tried their skill with rod and reel.

Many Large Problems Await President's Return

[By the Associated Press]

Washington, Dec. 14—Many weighty problems and a desk piled high with work await President Roosevelt when he returns to the White House Monday from his Caribbean cruise.

Within the next three weeks, the Chief Executive must prepare two important documents for presentation to the new Congress meeting in January. The first is the budget for the fiscal year beginning next June 1 and the other is his annual message on "the state of the Union."

Send Data To White House

Executive departments already have sent data to the White House for Mr. Roosevelt's use in preparing these messages.

The President also will find on his desk the Walter-Logan bill, a measure highly distasteful to some Administration aides. He must act upon it by Wednesday, or allow it to become law without his signature, and Washington, generally, expects a veto.

This bill would broaden the jurisdiction of the courts over the decisions and procedure of such governmental agencies as the National Labor Relations and Communications commissions.

Foremost among policy matters which appear pressing for decisions are the questions of financial aid for Great Britain and energizing the defense program.

Defense Efforts Lagging

Defense efforts admittedly are lagging. William S. Knudsen, Defense Commissioner in charge of production, disclosed last night that airplane production was thirty per cent. behind estimates made last July.

In connection with the talk of ways to whip the rearmament program into top speed, some are predicting the appointment of a defense head, possibly Knudsen, with authority to go into the factories themselves, search out production bottlenecks and show the manufacturer how to eliminate them.

The President's lieutenants have gone as far as they feel that they can on the question of lending money to England, and the next step is up to the President. This week they received from Sir Frederick Phillips, Under Secretary of the British Treasury, a "balance sheet" contrasting Britain's buying resources here with the cost of orders already placed and in prospect.

Loans Sought

The British claim that before long they are going to run out of American dollars and that loans will then be necessary if they are to continue their war effort.

Henry Morgenthau, Secretary of the Treasury, and Jesse H. Jones, Secretary of Commerce, insist that nothing should be done without Congressional authorization. If Mr. Roosevelt is of their view, he may make recommendations concerning this question in his message on the state of the nation.

The question of other aid to the British also appears to be fast developing. Various advocates of increased American assistance are understood to have formulated two proposals:

That United States warships convoy supplies to Britain.

That the United States bring about the sale to Britain of some 143 foreign-flag cargo vessels, such as those of Denmark, which are tied up in American ports.

Both proposals would require Congressional action and have not as yet, it was said, been formally laid before the State Department or the President.

NIGHT LEAD DEFENSE

WASHINGTON, DEC 14-(AP)-THE ARMY COMPLETED MAJOR PRELIMINARIES TODAY FOR AN IMMEDIATE START ON CONSTRUCTING THE EIGHT ATLANTIC NAVAL AND AIR BASES ACQUIRED FROM GREAT BRITAIN.

ENGINEERS ALREADY HAVE SAILED TO PREPARE THE BASE ON THE CARIBBEAN ISLAND OF JAMAICA, THE WAR DEPARTMENT DISCLOSED, ANNOUNCING THAT ADVANCED PARTIES WOULD BE SENT BEFORE THE YEAR'S END TO OTHER ISLANDS AND TO BRITISH GUIANA, ON THE SOUTH AMERICAN MAINLAND. WORK ALREADY IS PROGRESSING IN NEWFOUNDLAND AND BERMUDA, WHICH DID NOT FIGURE DIRECTLY IN THE EXCHANGE OF 50 AMERICAN NAVAL DESTROYERS FOR BASE SITES.

DEC 15 1940

BOTH THE ARMY AND NAVY ARE INVOLVED IN THE DEVELOPMENT OF THE BASES, THE ARMY'S PRIMARY TASK BEING TO GARRISON AND DEFEND THEM.

TO OBTAIN EXPERIENCED MEN TO HELP "CARRY THE LOAD OF TRAINING THE NEW ARMY," THE WAR DEPARTMENT ALSO ANNOUNCED THAT ALL THE 23,739 MEMBERS OF THE REGULAR ARMY RESERVE WHO DO NOT HAVE DEPENDENTS WOULD BE ORDERED INTO ACTIVE SERVICE PROBABLY BY FEBRUARY 15. THE RESERVE IS MADE UP OF FORMER ENLISTED MEN.

AT THE SAME TIME, THE GOVERNMENT'S PROGRAM FOR EXPANSION OF MUNITIONS FACILITIES WAS ADVANCED BY AN ORDER TO START WORK ON A SMALL ARMS AMMUNITION PLANT AT ST.LOUIS, AND BY SELECTION OF SITES FOR FOUR ADDITIONAL NAVAL ORDNANCE PLANTS.

THE ARMY'S ST.LOUIS PLANT WILL BE CONSTRUCTED ON 134 ACRES NOW BEING ACQUIRED, AND WILL EMPLOY FROM 10,000 TO 12,000 PERSONS WHEN PRODUCTION STARTS, PROBABLY EARLY NEXT FALL.

THE WESTERN CARTRIDGE COMPANY OF EAST ALTON, ILL., WAS AWARDED A $18,600,000 CONTRACT TO ENGINEER THE PLANT AND PROCURE EQUIPMENT. THE UNITED STATES CARTRIDGE COMPANY OF BALTIMORE, A NEWLY-CREATED SUBSIDIARY, WAS GIVEN AN INITIAL $87,279,790 ORDER FOR THE FIRST OUTPUT OF THE PLANT.

THE FOUR NEW NAVY ORDNANCE PLANTS WILL BE IN ADDITION TO A $5,000,000 ESTABLISHMENT ALREADY DESIGNATED FOR LOUISVILLE, KY. THE ADDITIONAL PLANTS, WHICH WILL COST APPROXIMATELY $34,800,000 AND EMPLOY 8,350 PERSONS, WILL BE LOCATED AS FOLLOWS:

DETROIT, MICH., VICINITY TO COST ABOUT $12,000,000; CANTON, OHIO, ABOUT $16,000,000; INDIANAPOLIS, ABOUT $6,000,000; AND MACON, GA., ABOUT $800,000.

OFFICIALS SAID THE NEW FACILITIES WOULD PRODUCE SUCH ORDNANCE AS GUNS, MOUNTS, AND ARMOR PLATE, BUT DECLINED SPECIFIC DETAILS UNTIL LAND IS PURCHASED AND CONTRACTS AWARDED.

IN ANNOUNCING PLANS FOR WORK ON THE NEW BASES, THE WAR DEPARTMENT S[illegible] MAJOR R.G.LOVETT OF THE ENGINEER CORPS AND A GROUP OF TEN CIVILIAN ENGINEERS WOULD ESTABLISH AN ENGINEER DISTRICT OFFICE, PROBABLY AT KINGSTON, TO SUPERVISE THE WORK IN JAMAICA.

THE TRINIDAD DISTRICT HAS BEEN ESTABLISHED TO DIRECT ARMY CONSTRUCTION ON THE ISLANDS OF TRINIDAD, ST.LUCIA, ANTIGUA AND IN BRITISH GUIANA WITH MAJOR DAVID A.D.OGDEN IN CHARGE.

OFFICES WILL BE ESTABLISHED AT PORT OF SPAIN, TRINIDAD, ON DECEMBER 27; AT PORT CASTRIES, ST.LUCIA, ON DECEMBER 25; AT ST.JOHN'S, ANTIGUA, ON DECEMBER 21; AND AT GEORGETOWN, BRITISH GUIANA, ON DECEMBER 28.

U.S. Convoying Of Supplies to Britain Urged

Roosevelt May Get Plans for Use of Navy and Sale of Alien Ships Now in Ports

WASHINGTON, Dec. 14 (AP).—Various advocates of greater United States assistance in the British war effort were reported authoritatively today to have formulated plans for two new types of aid, one of which would involve use of United States naval escorts for supply ships.

The two proposals, which may be brought to the attention of President Roosevelt after his return here next week from his cruise in the Caribbean ,are:

1. Convoying of supplies to the British Isles in United States ships protected by escorts of United States war vessels.

2. Bringing about the sale to Great Britain of some or all of 143 foreign-flag cargo vessels, such as those of Denmark, which were tied up in American ports to escape an uncertain fate after German occupation of the home lands.

Informed persons emphasized that both proposals were still in the "mulling over" stage and, while under consideration, have not been placed formally before either the State Department or the President.

Suggestion by Lothian

While official comment thus was lacking, these persons recalled that the Marquess of Lothian, the late British Ambassador, made an implied plea for American naval assistance in keeping supply routes open to the British Isles in an address which was read for him before the American Farm Bureau Association in Baltimore Wednesday night, a few hours before the Ambassador died.

He said that the British Navy "is terribly strung out." He predicted still greater German attacks on British shipping in the coming months unless Britain received help "in ships and on the sea" from the United States.

Authorities who have studied both plans said it would be necessary to have Congressional action before either could be put into effect. They explained that the convoy system would require amendment of the neutrality law, which forbids American shipping to enter European war zones, and the sale of foreign-flag vessels would call for special enabling legislation.

Still a third proposal much discussed here has been to sell or trade to Britain more World war destroyers of the type exchanged far air and naval base sites on British territories in the Western Hemisphere. The Navy still has seventy-five old destroyers of that type.

All these matters, of course, are aside from the question of giving Britain financial assistance—a question which furnished the motivation for the current series of conversations between Henry Morgenthau, Secretary of the Treasury and Sir Frederick Phillips, Under Secretary of the British Treasury.

Warnings Issued

Foreseeing the possibility of American ships being attacked should they transport cargoes into the war zone, several members of Congress already have warned against adoption of convoys.

Senator Gerald Nye, Republican, of North Dakota, opposed financial aid to Britain on the ground that it would result in the use of American convoys to carry supplies purchased here and thus might drag the United States into the war.

On the other hand, various Senators have advocated more aid to Britain, without commenting specifically on the question of convoys.

The proposal to make some or all of the 134 foreign-flag cargo ships now tied up in American ports available to Great Britain, it was stated, would require legislation to enable the United States government to take over the vessels from their present owners. They then could be sold to the British by the government.

The ships flying foreign flags, fearful of leaving American ports because their questionable status makes them probable victims of British seizure or German submarining, include ninety vessels of Danish registration and fifty-three under registration of other nations

The British have taken over several hundred vessels which were tied up elsewhere under the Dutch, Norwegian, French, Polish and Belgian flags, but British authorities, it was understood, have been unable to come to mutually acceptable terms with owners of the ships in American ports.

General Warns Limit Of Defense To Coasts Would Imperil Cities

New York, Dec. 14 (AP)—Lieut. Gen. Hugh A. Drum, commander of the First Army, declared today that limitation of defense to the nation's shore and land frontiers would "expose our coastal cities and industries to bombardment and our people to large losses" in the event of war.

Many persons, "prompted by a desire for peace at all honorable costs," he said at a discussion meeting of the National Republican Club, "conceive our sole defense mission to be to keep war out of the Continental United States."

"They believe," he said, "that this can be accomplished by limiting our defense measures along our shore and land frontiers, failing to recognize the ever-increasing range and power of aviation."

General Drum asserted that "in the final analysis, the decision as to what we are to defend rests with the American people and not alone with the military establishment."

Army to Call All Reserves By Feb. 15

Lists Totals 28,739; Will Help Train Draftee Force

WASHINGTON, Dec. 14 (AP).—The War Department announced today that all 28,739 members of the Regular Army Reserve who do not have dependents would be ordered into active service, probably by Feb. 15.

The reserve is composed of former enlisted men who volunteered to remain subject to orders. Those not available for active duty because of dependents or because they hold key positions in essential industries will be discharged from the reserve, the War Department said.

The reservists will be ordered out, it was explained, to help "carry the load of training the new army."

At the same time the Army completed major preliminaries for an immediate start on constructing the eight Atlantic naval and air bases acquired from Great Britain.

Engineers already have sailed to prepare the base on the Caribbean island of Jamaica, the War Department disclosed, announcing that advanced parties would be sent before the year's end to other islands and to British Guiana, on the South American mainland.

Work already is progressing in Newfoundland and Bermuda, which did not figure directly in the exchange of 50 American naval destroyers for base sites.

EXPLAINS STATE DRAFT QUOTAS

Officer Tells How the Army Determines Them

THEY'RE LIKE BANK ACCOUNTS

Each Reduced by Number of Men Contributed to Services.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 14 (A. P.).—Some apparent discrepancies in the number of men to be furnished for the draft by States of approximately equal population are due, officials said today, to the requirement that each State provide proportionately equal shares of the armed forces.

Thus it was explained, a State which has contributed a large number of men to the army, navy and Marine Corps exclusive of the operation of the draft law naturally has a smaller draft quota than that of another State in the same population bracket which was not so well represented in the military forces.

Massachusetts and Michigan were cited as typifying how the rule works.

Massachusetts, with a smaller population than Michigan, was credited with having contributed approximately 41,000 men to the armed forces, in contrast to Michigan's 29,941. As a result, officials explained, Michigan's net draft quota—the number of men it will be called upon to draft by next June 15—was fixed tentatively at 47,282. The Massachusetts quota was 20,556—less than half that of Michigan.

Discussing the quota question in a broadcast address last night, Major Ben Howell, chief of the selective service system's man power division, likened each local draft board's gross quota to a bank account made up of men in the area under a board's supervision who are eligible for military service.

Each account, Major Howell said, is reduced by the number of men which that area already has furnished to the armed services. The balance is known as the net quota.

Explaining that the army's successive calls for draftees are determined chiefly by the availability of housing and other facilities, officials emphasized that such "calls" should not be confused with the quotas.

Major Howell said that when the 800,000 men to be called by June 15, 1941, have been inducted, the draft system will open a new "bank account" which will be made up of the men whose draft numbers were not reached in the conscription of the first 800,000.

Senator Holt Sees Drive For Labor Conscription

Charges Efforts to 'Discredit' Workers on Defense

WASHINGTON, Dec. 14 (AP).—Senator Rush D. Holt, Democrat, West Virginia, charged today that "a propaganda campaign is under way to discredit labor and finally to force its conscription."

Asserting in a statement that labor's right might be "a possible casualty of war hysteria," the West Virginia Democrat predicted that "if this campaign continues to gain ground, there will be conscription of labor."

"Talk about labor interfering with defense!" he continued. "Why, there were certain manufacturers who refused to take government orders until they were assured large profits and certain tax legislation.

"Certain industrialists would not move until Congress gave them what they wanted and wiped out the law that limited profits to 7 per cent. Mr. Eaton (Frederick M. Eaton), counsel for Mr. Knudsen (William

S. Knudsen, of the Defense Commission), appeared before the Naval Affairs Committee of the Senate, of which I am a member, and opposed limitation of profits on defense orders.

"Let's give the people the whole story."

FIVE-DAY WEEK IN U. S. PLANTS STIRS KNUDSEN

Tells N. A. M. That Output Is Cut 20 Per Cent by Present Scale.

SERIOUS SHORTAGES REVEALED

Industry and Labor Depicted as Not Yet Convinced of Necessities.

The organization meeting of the new board of directors of the National Association of Manufacturers marks the conclusion today of its 1941 Congress of American industry, which ended three days of public sessions at the Waldorf-Astoria last night with a banquet, at which William S. Knudsen of the advisory commission to the Council on National Defense said that the defense effort to date is not satisfactory and urged that production be placed on a war basis now. Mr. Knudsen questioned whether industry and labor are fully sold on the serious side of the defense job, revealed that airplane production is behind schedule and virtually begged the manufacturers to speed up their work.

"When we consider the addition to the regular production of the United States," Mr. Knudsen said, "and realize that the larger percentage of this load lies in the heavy goods industries, we are confronted, due to the time element involved, with the greatest production problem of any country in modern times.

Three Factors Involved.

"The three factors involved in this problem are the Government, as the customer, and industry and labor as the sellers. Behind the Government is the all-powerful force of the country's will and the all-important public opinion which must guide our actions in order to accomplish a successful result. The defense job to my mind, has not been sufficiently sold to industry and labor as yet.

"The public generally is sold on defense—letters that I get and word-of-mouth information that I get clearly indicate that the man in the street is for defense 100 per cent and wants to see a lot of material turned out before he feels secure, but have the two most important elements, industry and labor, been fully sold on the serious side of the job?

"I think that the best and the only thing the United States can do, and must do under the circumstances, is to prepare swiftly and well to protect ourselves—for by doing that I feel that we have the only insurance policy against attack. It is our responsibility to see that this is done in record time.

Black Fridays.

"Friday night has become the big night in most of our industrial picture. It used to be Saturday night—we have cut 20 per cent off our machine time. Can we afford to do this? Can't we stop this blackout, this lack of production, from Friday to Monday and get more use out of the equipment?

"Isn't it possible to put the defense job on a war basis, even if we are at peace? When I think of the seriousness of the whole world situation, where the Americas are the only spot where freedom and law still have a foothold, I wonder if we are not justified in doing just that.

"The aircraft industry is still in the expanding stage, in fact it will be in the expansion stage until spring. Most heavy combat planes are new models not heretofore in production and this has slowed the job up.

Equipment Is Needed.

"The engine companies need equipment, in fact 29 per cent of all unfilled machine tool orders are for the aviation industry, 37 per cent is for the army and navy and other defense jobs, 28 per cent is for foreign customers and the balance covers miscellaneous. There is one question in aircraft which I think should be realized and that is that one plane is recorded as one plane, whether it weighs 4,000 pounds or 40,000 pounds and whether it has a 350-horse-power training engine or four 1,250-horse-power fighting engines.

"There is no use worrying about the light planes—we can get them. On fighting planes we are in pretty fair shape, but bombing planes, from 16,000 pounds up to the heaviest, take time and they must be worked out for real production before we can get quantities.

"Frankly, we are not doing anything compared to the forecast by the manufacturers and the commission in July and our hoped for production figures for January 1, 1941, of 1,000 planes a month, have to be scaled down by 30 per cent to be correct.

Labor's Misunderstanding.

"Guns and machine guns are still in the tooling stage, except for such capacity as was ready before we started. Light tanks are being produced now at the rate of four a day and the larger so-called medium tanks will be available from three different plants by midsummer.

"I don't know whether we have done a job yet in helping labor to get the proper understanding of what this defense job means to their future and their country's future. When I look over the trend in the occupied countries in Europe, America is about the only spot left where law prevails and where the man at the bench has a chance to make his way without clicking his heels.

"We all seem to be worrying about how we are going to divide the profits without giving consideration to the fact that we ourselves have to furnish the price to buy the materials with. It is my sincere hope that we will, as far as humanly possible, try to wipe out whatever differences there may be that do not depart from principles guaranteed us by the law of the land.

Not Painting Lily.

"The only way to get this program going is to get a concerted effort and a co-operative effort—an incentive fired with the spirit of sacrifice from everybody from the bench to the manager's desk. If we can accomplish this our program is finished.

"We are, to my mind, 'way beyond worrying about the cost; the laws we think we ought to have and the way we are going to live when this is all over. The important thing now is to get this job done, or as much more of the job done as is required to protect our standard of living and our institutions, our freedom and individual opportunities.

"I have not tried to paint the lily in this talk. I have tried to make it clear to you that I consider the defense effort to date not satisfactory enough to warrant hopes that everything is all well. Maybe I haven't made it strong enough.

Production Step-up.

"I feel that when you made your delivery schedules there was probably some cushion in them for contingencies strikes and acts of God. I am going to ask you to forget the delivery schedules and give us whatever you can in the way of advanced deliveries.

"I would not be surprised if they could be advanced 20 per cent. The first half of 1941 is crucial; after that we are sure to be under way; but if you gentlemen can help us better the deliveries so that we could be in swing in the second quarter you will have done your country an outstanding service of protection, both of its shores and its institutions; and those of you who are tooled up now, please give us of your quantities as much more as is humanly possible.

"I would estimate very roughly that we are 20 to 25 per cent tooled up now, using the quantities as a base. I forecast that with your help we could be 80 per cent tooled up by April 1 and the balance by May 31."

Will Durant's Philosophy.

The other speaker at the dinner was the philosopher, Will Durant, who said that America should attain a self-disciplined freedom and recommended ten steps toward this end, the first of them being this:

"A healthier birthrate, through State bonuses for each child born to parents who have passed a test of freedom from serious and transmissible defect of body or mind; through the prohibition of parentage in those who cannot pass these tests; through a higher and longer income-tax exemption for children in school or college; through a rise in salary to any governmental employee for any legitimate child born to him and, if this should prove successful, through the application of this principle by corporations to their salaried employees."

LOUISVILLE, KY., DEC 14-(AP)-HERBERT AGAR, EDITOR OF THE COURIER-JOURNAL, SAID TONIGHT IT WAS "QUITE CORRECT" THAT HE HAD ADVOCATED AN AMERICAN DECLARATION OF WAR SINCE JUNE 10 BUT THAT "IT IS SILLY TO ASCRIBE MY OPINIONS TO THE WHITE COMMITTEE."

COMMENTING ON AN ASSERTION BY GENERAL THOMAS S. HAMMOND OF THE CHICAGO CHAPTER OF THE AMERICA FIRST COMMITTEE THAT THE WILLIAM ALLEN WHITE COMMITTEE TO DEFEND AMERICA BY AIDING THE ALLIES IS TRYING TO PREPARE THE PUBLIC MIND FOR A WAR DECLARATION, AGAR SAID:

"I THINK THAT BOTH GENERAL HAMMOND AND THE WILLIAM ALLEN WHITE COMMITTEE ARE IN ERROR IN THINKING WE ARE NOT NOW AT WAR. I THINK THE WHITE COMMITTEE IS FOOLISH NOT TO RECOGNIZE PUBLICLY THAT WE ARE AT WAR, BUT I DON'T THINK THEY ARE ANY MORE FOOLISH THAN GENERAL HAMMOND IN REFUSING TO RECOGNIZE THAT FACT."

AGAR SAID THE WHITE COMMITTEE INVITED HIM TO SPEAK IN CHICAGO MONDAY BECAUSE OF AN EDITORIAL, REPRINTED IN THE CHICAGO DAILY NEWS, OUTLINING PROPOSED STEPS SHORT OF WAR.

"IT IS TO DEVELOP THESE STEPS THAT I AM TO SPEAK," HE SAID.

"IT IS QUITE CORRECT THAT I HAVE ADVOCATED A DECLARATION OF WAR SINCE JUNE10, BUT IT IS SILLY TO ASCRIBE MY OPINIONS TO THE WHITE COMMITTEE, WHICH QUITE SINCERELY BELIEVES IT IS POSSIBLE TO AID BRITAIN TO WIN HER WAR WITHOUT BEING INVOLVED. NEW YORK, DEC.14-(AP)-AN ARMY OF AMERICAN LEGIONNAIRES, ACTING AS ANTI-ESPIONAGE AGENTS IN COOPERATION WITH THE FEDERAL BUREAU OF INVESTIGATION TO PROTECT AMERICA'S VITAL DEFENSE INDUSTRIES AND UTILITIES, IS RAPIDLY BEING FORMED, STATE COMMANDER EDWARD A.VOSSELER DISCLOSED TODAY.

ORGANIZATION WAS STARTED THREE MONTHS AGO IN NEW YORK STATE, VOSSELER SAID, AND ALREADY HAS RESULTED IN DISCOVERY OF SEVERAL PLOTS AND THE SUBSEQUENT BLOCKING OF THEM.

EVENTUALLY THE CORPS, THROUGHOUT THE COUNTRY, MAY INCLUDE 50,000 LEGIONNAIRES, VOSSELER ESTIMATED, WITH THE MEN OPERATING IN AIRPLANE FACTORIES, SHIPYARDS, MUNITIONS INDUSTRIES, POWER, WATER AND COMMUNICATIONS, UTILITIES AND RAILROADS.

MORE THAN 2,000 LEGION MEN ALREADY ARE FUNCTIONING IN THE SETUP IN NEW YORK STATE. THIS NUMBER WILL ULTIMATELY GROW TO SOME 10,000 MEN, FROM 917 POSTS, VOSSELER SAID.

HE ADDED THAT WHILE THE PLAN WAS DESIGNED PRIMARILY TO PREVENT SABOTAGE, IT ALSO WOULD AID THE FBI INVESTIGATORS AFTER COMMISSION OF SUCH ACTS.

MOST OF THE MEN ARE THOSE OF GERMAN, ITALIAN OR RUSSIAN EXTRACTION WHO SERVED IN AMERICAN MILITARY FORCES DURING THE WORLD WAR.

NO LEGIONNAIRE KNOWS THE IDENTITY OF A FELLOW LEGION MEMBER ENGAGED IN ESPIONAGE WORK.

IN LINE WITH THE PROGRAM, VOSSELER SAID EACH AMERICAN LEGION POST WAS ACTING AS A CLEARING HOUSE FOR THE FBI ON INFORMATION FROM INDIVIDUALS REGARDING SABOTAGE.

RHEIN TORPEDOED BY BRITISH SHIP

U. S. Naval Officer Tells of Sinking.

KEY WEST, Fla., Dec. 14 (A. P.).—A United States naval officer's eyewitness account of the sinking of the German ship Rhein shed new light today on the fate of the tanker intercepted by Dutch and British warships in the American neutrality zone.

Shells fired broadside from the British cruiser Caradoc, the officer said, sent the Rhein to the bottom after flames started by her German crew had raged for fifteen hours.

The British Admiralty previously reported the crew of the Dutch training ship Van Kingsbergen had put out the fire and taken the tanker as a prize of war.

The United States officer, who asked that his name not be used, was aboard the destroyer MacLeish, flagship of the Key West neutrality fleet. He reported that the American ship arrived on the scene in time for those on board to see the Dutch warship close behind the Rhein.

"Suddenly flames shot from forward and stern and the German ship was a blazing inferno," he continued. "Lifeboats were lowered and the crew abandoned ship."

The Dutch crew boarded the Rhein, he said, "but they did not remain on board long."

NEW YORK, DEC 14-(AP)-THE 4,798-TON GREEK STEAMER ORION SENT OUT URGENT DISTRESS SIGNALS TONIGHT, INTERCEPTED BY MACKAY RADIO, WHICH SAID SHE HAD A BROKEN STEERING GEAR IN A NORTH ATLANTIC STORM.

THE ORION REPORTED AT 7:28 P.M. (EST) THAT SHE NEEDED HELP IMMEDIATELY, MACKAY SAID. THE SHIP'S POSITION WAS ABOUT 700 MILES NORTHEAST OF ST.JOHN'S, NFLD.

LLOYD'S REGISTER LISTS THE ORION'S HOME PORT AS PIRAEUS, GREECE. BEFORE THE START OF THE WAR, THE ORION, BUILT IN 1909, TRADED REGULARLY BETWEEN EUROPE AND SOUTH AMERICA.

HER LATEST REPORTED PORT OF CALL WAS GALVESTON, TEX., WHICH SHE LEFT LAST AUG. 15.

NEW YORK, DEC. 14-(AP)-THE NAVY IS CONSIDERING A PLAN FOR DAILY VIGIL RANGING 75 MILES OUT TO SEA BY U.S.NAVY SEAPLANES TO GUARD THE APPROACHES TO NEW YORK HARBOR. IF THE PLAN IS CARRIED OUT, PLANES WILL BEGIN THEIR FLIGHTS WITHIN THE NEXT FEW MONTHS.

DESIGNATED AS THE SEAPLANE INSHORE PATROL, THE PLANES would SUPPLEMENT WORK OF THE COAST GUARD AND THE NEUTRALITY PATROL, LT. COMMDR.DON F.SMITH, NAVAL AVIATION COMMANDER AT FLOYD BENNETT FIELD, ANNOUNCED YESTERDAY.

THE PLANES would KEEP IN TOUCH WITH SHORE AND COMMUNICATE WITH SHIPS BY RADIO, HE SAID, ASKING ANY VESSELS OF FOREIGN REGISTRY WHICH MAY APPEAR SUSPICIOUS TO TELL THEIR DESTINATION AND PURPOSE.

Fascist End of Berlin-Rome Axis Shows Increasingly Dangerous Wabble

By DEWITT MACKENZIE.

The wabble of the Fascist end of the Berlin-Rome Axis is increasing dangerously.

A fortnight ago when the British signaled a major offensive against Mussolini, I reported in this column that many military experts found it difficult to see how Italy could escape disaster unless Germany was able to save her. What was true then in the midst of the Albanian debacle is doubly true now in view of the Italian rout in western Egypt.

Graziani's army of invasion is definitely smashed, with huge loss in prisoners and materials. His main forces still remain intact in Libya, but their heritage is a doubtful one.

The Italian Humpty Dumpty of Egyptian conquest has had his fall, and it will take more than the king's horses and men to put him together again.

Unconfirmed rumors that Hitler and Mussolini are about to meet are not surprising. This is the greatest military crisis the Axis has encountered thus far.

The British, after their initial success in the desert battle, said that the question of whether they could capitalize their smashing victory by an immediate invasion of Libya would depend on air supremacy—a very sound observation. It begins to look, however, as though the Anglo-Allied forces might be drawn in some distance on the swirling wake of the fast-retreating Fascists.

Temptation to Chase.

A slowing down of the advance in the immediate future, though would be the normal procedure. The temptation to chase a beaten enemy right into his own dugout is almost irresistible, but it is fraught with grave dange for the pursuer. He may find that he has drawn his communications out too thin and is cut off from supplies and re-enforcements.

This threat is the greater in the blazing desert wastes, where every drop of water has to be transported. Terrible death lurks in an empty canteen.

We may assume, I think, that the desert-wise British won't allow themselves to outrun their communications. Considerable will depend, of course, on the degree of enemy demoralization.

As a matter of historic fact the British Navy by a curious circumstance has been enabled to do a mighty good job of assisting the Royal Air Force, and may also be able to help provide those all-important new bases for the advancing infantry. The story is fascinating.

The military highway along which the Fascists are retreating runs close to the sea in both Egypt and Libya. That's the only motor road there is, and the armies are largely dependent on motor transport.

British warships are nosing in close to this highway and are blasting the unhappy Italians and their supply trains as neatly as any warplane could do. They also are bombarding Italian coastal bases, and there would seem to be no reason why they shouldn't be able to assist the quick transport of essential supplies to keep up with the progress of the British vanguard.

(WX)--T
INTERPRETING THE WAR NEWS
BY KIRKE L.SIMPSON

DEC 15 1941

TREMENDOUS STIMULATION OF BRITISH PUBLIC MORALE HAS RESULTED FROM GREEK AND BRITISH VICTORIES OVER ITALIAN FORCES IN THE EAST.

THERE ARE OTHER FACTORS, HOWEVER, THAN THE SMASHING BLOWS STRUCK AT ITALY TO ACCOUNT FOR BRITISH CONFIDENCE IN THE ULTIMATE OUTCOME OF THE WAR. THE FULL FURY OF HITLER'S BOASTED AIR POWER HAS BEEN TESTED AND PROVED INEFFECTIVE TO END THE WAR QUICKLY IN A BRITISH DEFEAT.

PRIME MINISTER CHURCHILL TOLD HIS PEOPLE SIX MONTHS AGO, WHEN FRANCE FELL, THAT THE CRUX OF THE WAR LAY IN BRITAIN'S POWER TO "BREAK HITLER'S AIR WEAPON." IT HAS NOT BEEN BROKEN; BUT ITS EDGE HAS BEEN DULLED. IT HAS FAILED TO CRACK BRITISH MORALE, FAILED TO OPEN THE WAY FOR NAZI INVASION OF ENGLAND; FAILED AS YET TO BRING A REAL STARVATION SPECTER BEFORE ENGLISH EYES IN THE WAR AT SEA.

ENGLISH SKIES STILL ARE DOMINATED IN DAYLIGHT BY BRITAIN'S FIGHTER PILOTS. ONLY AT NIGHT DO THE HEAVY BLOWS FALL WHICH HITLER SAID WOULD LAY ENGLAND IN RUINS. WITHIN SIX MONTHS THE GERMAN ATTACK HAS BEEN DEFLECTED FROM ENGLAND WEAKEST FLANK, THE AIR, TO HER STRONGEST, THE SEA. NAZI AIR-SUBMARINE-SURFACE CRAFT ASSAULT ON ENGLAND'S SEA LIFE LINES NOW HOLDS THE GREATEST MENACE TO BRITAIN.

BRITISH HOPES OF ATTAINING VICTORY YEARS SOONER THAN HER LEADERS HAD RECKONED POSSIBLE SIX MONTHS AGO ARE CLEARLY INDICATED. THE LATE LORD LOTHIAN, AMBASSADOR TO WASHINGTON, IN HIS LAST MESSAGE URGING EXPEDITED AMERICAN HELP, FORESAW POSSIBILITIES OF SMASHING GERMANY NEXT YEAR OR IN 1942. HE DID NOT LIVE TO LEARN THE FULL-SCOPE OF ITALIAN DISASTERS ON TWO FAR FRONTS.

30.24-6421

THERE IS A DOUBLE MYSTERY IN THIS WAR. IT INVOLVES BOTH GERMAN AND ITALIAN AIR POWER, THE PRIME ELEMENT ON WHICH THE AXIS MATES RELIEF IN CHALLENGING BRITISH SEA POWER.

ITALY'S BOASTED AIR FORCE SIGNALLY FAILED HER IN GREECE, ALBANIA AND EGYPT. JUST WHY IS KNOWN ONLY IN ITALY. IF LONDON KNEW, IT MIGHT HAVE THE FINAL ANSWER TO THE WAR'S OUTCOME.

GERMANY HAS NOT ONLY FAILED TO CRUSH ENGLAND THROUGH THE AIR, BUT ALSO TO REACH THE CRESCENDO OF AIR ATTACK HER AIR SUPERIORITY SEEMED TO MAKE POSSIBLE. JUST WHY NAZI BOMBERS HAVE NOT COME OVER ENGLAND IN THOUSANDS NIGHT AFTER NIGHT INSTEAD OF HUNDREDS AND WHY THERE ARE LAPSES BETWEEN MASS ATTACKS IS KNOWN ONLY IN GERMANY.

A3WX

WEEKS AGO, CHURCHILL TOLD PARLIAMENT THAT APPROXIMATELY 500 PLANES WITHIN A 24-HOUR PERIOD HAD BEEN THE MAXIMUM GERMAN ATTACK BUT MIGHT BE ONLY A FRACTION OF WHAT WOULD BE ATTAINED. IT HAS NOT SINCE BEEN EXCEEDED, EVEN BY BERLIN WAR ACCOUNTING.

LONDON RECENTLY KNEW TWO FULL DAYS AND NIGHTS OF BOMBING SURCEASE IN THE WAKE OF A GREAT MASS NIGHT ATTACK. OTHER ENGLISH CITIES HAD LIKE EXPERIENCES. THEY HAVE COME TO EXPECT A DAY OR SO OF BREATHING SPELL AFTER EACH AIR BLOW.

THERE IS OBVIOUSLY SOME SUPPLY OR TRANSPORTATION BOTTLE-NECK LIMITING FULL EMPLOYMENT OF BOTH ITALIAN AND GERMAN AIR POWER. IT MAY BE GASOLINE, OR MERELY THE DIFFICULTIES OF ORGANIZATION AND SUPPLY TRANSPORTATION. THE GERMAN AIR ATTACK ON ENGLAND IS BASED ALONG 2,000 MILES OF THE GERMAN-HELD CONTINENTAL COASTAL AREA OF EUROPE.

A 500-PLANE DAILY ATTACK BURNS UP A HUGE QUANTITY OF FUEL. IF GERMANY IS RAIDING HER WAR RESERVE STOCKS NOW TO SUPPLY IT AND LACK OF FUEL HAS GROUNDED ITALIAN PLANES MUCH NEEDED IN ALBANIA AND EGYPT, BRITAIN'S VICTORY HOPES ARE JUSTIFIED. IF IT IS NOT LACK OF FUEL HAMPERING AXIS AIR POWER AT BOTH ENDS, WHAT IS IT?

BY C.A.FARNSWORTH

(ADVANCE)..NEW YORK, DEC. 12-(AP)-TURKEY IS AN ANSWER TO THE QUEST OF GERMAN STRATEGISTS FOR A ROUTE TO THE OIL RICHES OF THE MIDDLE EAST AND TO THE WISHES OF BRITISH PLANNERS FOR A GREAT BATTLE-FIELD ON WHICH THE FUTURE OF THE EUROPEAN WAR WELL MAY BE DECIDED.

TURKEY IS MANY THINGS.

TURKEY IS A BRIDGE BETWEEN CONTINENTS, BETWEEN ASIA AND EUROPE.

TURKEY IS A LINK BETWEEN RELIGIOUS WORLDS, ISLAM AND CHRISTIANITY.

TURKEY IS A CONGLOMERATE OF THE OLD AND NEW, THE PAST AND PRESENT, THE STREAMLINED AND THE ARCHAIC.

TURKEY IS A MELANGE OF CULTURES IN WHICH THE MUEZZIN FROM HIS MINARET MAY CALL THE FAITHFUL TO THEIR PRAYERS TO ALLAH WHILE THE SIFTS ARE CHANGING AT THE LOCAL STEEL WORKS, IN WHICH FREIGHT-CARRYING DONKEYS JOG ALONGSIDE SLEEK AMERICAN AUTOMOBILES (ALTHOUGH DONKEYS ARE BARRED IN ISTANBUL), AND IN WHICH THE SNAP-BRIM FELT HAT OF WESTNERS STILL IS CHALLENGED BY THE TURBAN, BANNED A CENTURY AGO, AND THE FEZ, TABOOED 17 YEARS AGO.

TURKEY, AS THEY SAY IN THE TRAVELOGUES, IS A LAND OF CURIOUS CONTRASTS.

BUT, ABOVE ALL, NOW IN A WORLD MOSTLY AT WAR, SHE HOLDS ONE OF

DEC 15 1940

THE GREAT KEYS TO THE SETTLEMENT THAT SOME DAY WILL BE WRITTEN INTO TREATIES FOR THE CONQUERORS AND CONQUERED TO SIGN AT SOME DISTANT CONFERENCE TABLE.

FOR TURKEY, THOUGH POOR IN OIL HERSELF, IS THE GATEWAY TO THE FIELDS OF IRAQ (MESOPOTAMIA) AND IRAN (PERSIA) WHICH GERMANY AND HER AXIS PARTNER, ITALY, MUST TAP TO HELP KEEP THEIR WAR MACHINE FUELED AND OILED FOR A LONG-TERM CONFLICT.

THESE FIELDS WITH THOSE OF THE ADJOINING PENINSULA OF ARABIA ARE UNSURPASSED IN THE WORLD OUTSIDE THE UNITED STATES, NETHERLANDS EAST INDIES AND RUSSIA.

TURKEY, AS A NON-BELLIGERENT ALLY OF THE BRITISH, BLOCKS THE NAZI PATHWAY TO THE MIDDLE EAST AND TURKEY ONCE DECLARED THAT "A MILLION BAYONETS" WOULD KEEP IT BLOCKED.

SO LONG AS TURKEY STANDS AS A BARRIER TO THE NAZIS AT THE BACK DOOR TO THE MIDDLE EAST SO LONG AS ITALY'S DESERT LEGIONS CAN BE KEPT AT A DISTANCE FROM THE SUEZ FRONT DOOR AND SO LONG AS THE BRITISH FLEET CONTROLS THE MEDITERRANEAN, THE OIL IS BRITAIN'S TO USE.

THE BRITISH HAVE ACCESS IN THE MIDDLE EAST TO A TOTAL ANNUAL PRODUCTION OF 17,500,000 TONS OF PETROLEUM--ENOUGH TO SUPPLY THEIR NEEDS IN THE MIDDLE EAST WITH A SURPLUS FOR EXPORT TO THE BRITISH ISLES AND THE COMINIONS.

THIS FIGURE INCLUDES THE PRODUCTION OF FIELDS ALONG THE PERSIAN GULF IN ARABIA, AND BAHREIN ISLAND WHICH ALSO MIGHT BECOME THE GOAL OF AN AXIS DRIVE OR AT LEAST THE BARRING OF THEM TO THE BRITISH.

THE MOST IMMEDIATE TARGET OF ANY GERMAN DIPLOMATIC COUP OR MILITARY THRUST WOULD BE ENTRY TO THE MOSUL FIELDS OF IRAQ WHOSE ANNUAL PRODUCTION IS 4,400,000 TONS. THESE LIE ALONG THE SOUTHEASTERN BORDER OF TURKEY. ALL OF TURKEY WOULD HAVE TO BE CROSSED TO REACH THEM OVERLAND FROM EUROPE.

ALSO A PRIMARY TARGET WOULD BE THE FIELDS OF IRAN, IRAQ'S NEIGHBOR TO THE EAST, WHICH PRODUCE 11,000,000 TONS. IRAN IS STRONGLY UNDER BRITISH INFLUENCE; IRAQ A BRITISH MANDATE.

THE GERMAN SITUATION WITH TURKEY APPROACHED UNDER THE IMPETUS, FROM THE AXIS SIDE, OF A DEMAND FOR OIL GREATER THAN THE SUPPLY TO BE HAD FROM RUMANIA AND ELSEWHERE IN EUROPE. IT WAS A MATTER OF SIMPLE ARITHMETIC.

GERMANY AND OCCUPIED TERRITORIES NEEDED, IT IS ESTIMATED, 7,000,000 TONS ANNUALLY.

ITALY NEEDED 2,000,000.

DISREGARDING TRANSPORT HANDICAPS FOR RUMANIAN OIL, RUMANIA'S CAPACITY PRODUCTION WAS ESTIMATED AT 6,000,000 TONS.

THUS THE AXIS FACED AN OIL DEFICIT ESTIMATED AT 3,000,000 TONS. THE FIELDS OF IRAN AND IRAQ BECKONED.

D97

GERMANY STILL WOULD FACE A TREMENDOUS PROBLEM OF TRANSPORT WITH THE MIDDLEASTERN OIL FIELDS IN HER GRASP UNLESS, MEANWHILE, THE ITALIANS GAINED CONTROL OF SHIPPING IN THE MEDITERRANEAN. RUMANIA'S OIL HELP TO THE AXIS IS A CASE IN POINT.

OF RUMANIA'S ESTIMATED ANNUAL PRODUCTION IT WAS PREDICTED BY OIL MEN, NO MORE THAN 2,000,000 TONS COULD BE TRANSPORTED OVERLAND AND UP THE DANUBE. THUS THE GERMAN SITUATION ON OIL WAS EVEN MORE STRINGENT THAN INDICATED BY THE SIMPLE MATHEMATICAL PROBLEM ABOVE.

A GERMAN THRUST THROUGH TURKEY PROBABLY WOULD NOT BE AN INDEPENDENT VENTURE. IT WOULD BE TIMED WITH OR FOLLOWED BY A RENEWED FASCIST DRIVE TO TAKE THE SUEZ CANAL AND ALEXANDRIA, BASTIONS OF BRITISH NAVAL POWER IN THE EASTERN MEDITERRANEAN.

BUT THESE WOULD NOT BE AS EASILY EXECUTED AS IT MIGHT SEEM FROM COLORED PINS ON MILITARY MAPS, FOR BRITAIN, BY JOINING GREECE IN WAR AGAINST ITALY, WON AIR AND NAVAL BASES IN GREEK TERRITORY FROM WHICH TO HARASS ITALIAN SEA FORCES. AND SHE HELD AN IMMENSE ARMY IN THE MIDDLE EAST, CONCENTRATED CHIEFLY IN PALESTINE, TO OPPOSE THE GERMAN "DRANG NACH OSTEN," EITHER INDEPENDENTLY OR IN COOPERATION WITH TURKEY'S OWN WELL-TRAINED MODERN ARMY.

WISHFUL ALLIED ESTIMATES HAVE PLACED THE TURKISH ARMY AS HIGH AS 1,000,000 MEN WITH A POTENTIAL RESERVE OF 7,000,000. THE LATTER IS AN OPTIMISTIC RECKONING ON THE SERVICES OF VIRTUALLY ALL THE ADULT POPULATION.

TO HALVE THE FIGURES PROBABLY WOULD BE CLOSER TO THE TRUTH. IN 1938 THE ACTIVE FORCE NUMBERED 20,000 OFFICERS AND 174,000 MEN.

THUS TURKEY, ONCE CENTER OF THE OTTOMAN EMPIRE WHICH HELD SOUTHEASTERN EUROPE AS VASSAL STATES AND WHICH FINALLY FELL APART UNDER THE STRESS OF WORLD WAR ALLIANCE WITH GERMANY, TODAY MOVES ON THE EUROPEAN WAR STAGE, FRONT AND CENTER.

RUSSIAN INFLUENCE
REMAINS STRONG NO. 2. (1100)

BY C.A.FARNSWORTH

(ADVANCE) NEW YORK, DEC. 13-(AP)-TURKEY WAS A WORLD WAR LOSER AND YET A WINNER.

OUT OF THAT CONFLICT EMERGED A GLOWING NATIONALISM, UNDER THE LEADERSHIP OF THE LATE GAZI MUSTAPHA KAMAL PASHA, WHO CHANGED HIS NAME AND TURKEY AT THE SAME TIME. HE DIED AS KAMAL ATATURK (FATHER OF THE TURKS OR CHIEF TURK) ON NOV. 10, 1938, AT THE AGE OF 58.

HIS REFORMS LITERALLY YANKED TURKEY OUT OF THE PAST.

WORSHIP OF THE STATE AND ATATURK FILLED THE GAP CAUSED BY THE DECAY OF ISLAMIC TRADITION AND LEADERSHIP WHICH ATATURK HIMSELF HELPED ALONG. ATATURK'S GOAL AND THE VISION OF HIS FOLLOWERS WERE THAT TURKEY SHOULD BECOME A SELF-SUFFICIENT, INDUSTRIALIZED STATE.

THE REFORMS ALMOST DESTROYED THE BASIC FABRIC OF TURKEY'S ORIENTAL CULTURE AS TURKEY BORROWED WHOLESALE FROM THE WEST.

IN ANKARA, WHERE IN AGES PAST CRUSADERS, PERSIANS, MONGOLS AND TARTARS HAD MARCHED IN A PROCESSION OF WARS AND CONQUEST, TURKEY BUILT A MODERN CAPITAL TO REPLACE ISTANBUL (CONSTANTINOPLE.)

A LATINIZED ALPHABET WAS SUBSTITUTED FOR ARABIC. FELT HATS TOOK THE PLACE OF THE FEZ. FAMILY NAMES WERE CHANGED. THE HAREM VANISHED.

WOMEN DROPPED THE VEIL AND SOME WENT TO CONGRESS. FACTORY CHIMNEYS RIVALED THE MINARETS.

FROM SWITZERLAND, THE TURKISH REPUBLIC BORROWED ITS CIVIL CODE TO SUPPLANT RELIGIOUS LAWS OF ISLAM AND JUDGES AND LAWYERS HAD TO CRAM FOR SIX MONTHS, THE PERIOD ALLOTTED TO FAMILIARIZE THEMSELVES WITH THE CHANGE.

FROM FRANCE, TURKEY BORROWED HER "SECOND LANGUAGE." FRENCH PLAYS DOMINATED THE TURKISH STAGE. THREE FRENCH NEWSPAPERS WERE ESTABLISHED IN ISTANBUL.

FROM GERMANY, TURKEY GOT THE MODEL FOR HER ARMY.

FROM BRITAIN, SHE LEARNED HOW TO BUILD HER SMALL NAVY.

FROM THE UNITED STATES AND OTHERS, SHE TOOK PLANES AND TIPS ON HOW TO FLY THEM.

FROM EVERY INDUSTRIAL COUNTRY, SHE BORROWED IDEAS ON HOW TO INDUSTRIALIZE TURKEY.

THE STRIDES TOWARD INDUSTRIALIZATION, OF COURSE, HAVE BEEN GREAT BUT NOT COMPLETE. TURKEY REMAINS ESSENTIALLY AN AGRICULTURAL COUNTRY.

THE STRIDES IN EDUCATION WERE AS GREAT BUT TURKEY STILL HAS A HIGH RATE OF ILLITERACY, ALTHOUGH REDUCED FROM 91 PER CENT TO 55 PER CENT OR LESS.

ADVANCES IN AGRICULTURE LIKEWISE WERE NOTABLE, BUT AS LATE AS 1932, WHEN THE REPUBLIC WAS 10 YEARS OLD, FOUR-FIFTHS OF THE PLOUGHS IN TURKEY WERE STILL WOODEN BLADES, PULLED THROUGH THE FIELDS BY OXEN AND BUFFALO.

OKEN AND BUFFALO.

EVEN SO, TURKEY, "THE SICK MAN OF EUROPE," HAD BECOME A VIGOROUS YOUNG REPUBLIC WHICH TURNED STRONGLY TO NATIONAL DEFENSE. EVERY MAN AND WOMAN BETWEEN 16 AND 60 IS SUBJECT TO MILITARY CALL AND A STANDING ARMY WAS ESTABLISHED. ONE THOUSAND PLANES BECAME TURKEY'S GOAL IN THE AIR.

THE ARMY IS OF GOOD FIGHTING MATERIAL. THESE ARE THE SONS OF THE MEN WHO TURNED THE BRITISH ATTEMPT TO FORCE THE DARDANELLES IN THE WORLD WAR INTO ONE OF THE MOST OUTSTANDING OF BRITAIN'S HISTORIC DEFEATS.

IN THE PRESENT WAR THE TOMMIES AND THE ANZACS, PERHAPS SONS OF THE MEN WHO PERISHED ON THE HILLS OF THE GALLIPOLI PENINSULA IN 1915, ARE THE PROMISED ALLIES OF THE TURKS. TURKISH LEADERS DECLARE THAT TURKISH YOUTH IS PREPARED TO DIE TO KEEP ALIVE THE PRINCIPLES OF ATATURK.

WITH ONE FOOT IN EUROPE AND THE OTHER IN ASIA MINOR, TURKEY STRADDLES THE STRAITS OF THE DARDANELLES WHICH, WITH THE SEA OF MARMARA AND THE BOSPORUS, LINK THE BLACK SEA TO THE MEDITERRANEAN --RUSSIA'S ONLY OUTLET TO THE MEDITERRANEAN, BY THE WAY.

CONTROL OF THE DARDANELLES HAS BEEN A STRATEGISTS' HEADACHE FOR CENTURIES. IT WAS A WORLD WAR PAWN AND IT IS THAT AGAIN. THE BRITISH WANTED TO GET THROUGH IN THE WORLD WAR TO BOLSTER IMPERIAL RUSSIA. NOW THE GERMANS WANT TO CROSS TO GET OIL.

(MORE) EJ924AES

TO GET OIL.

DEEP-SEATED IS THE GERMAN AND RUSSIAN RIVALRY OVER TURKEY'S DARDANELLES.

SO MUCH ARE THE TWO POWERS CONCERNED THAT TURKEY HAS BLANDLY PLAYED ONE AGAINST THE OTHER FOR PRESERVATION OF HER OWN HOLD.

NEITHER GERMANY NOR RUSSIA WANTS THE DARDANELLES TO BE CONTROLLED BY THE OTHER.

RUSSIA WOULD BE CUT OFF FROM THE WARM SEAS WITH THE DARDANELLES IN THE HANDS OF A HOSTILE POWER.

GERMANY'S VISION OF BERLIN-TO-BAGHDAD MIGHT BE SHATTERED IF RUSSIA HELD THEM.

THERE IS NO TELLING, OF COURSE, WHAT SORT OF A DEAL, IF ANY, RUSSIA AND GERMANY MIGHT NEGOTIATE.

TRADITIONALLY SOVIET RUSSIA IS TURKEY'S BIG FRIEND. THE RED REVOLUTIONISTS WHO TOPPLED IMPERIAL RUSSIA WHEN SHE WAS DEFEATED BY GERMANY IN THE WORLD WAR WOULD HAVE NOTHING TO DO WITH ALLIED PLANS FOR CARVING UP TURKEY AND THUS WON THE TURKS' FRIENDSHIP.

WHAT RUSSIA WILL DO IS A CONCOMITANT QUESTION IN ANY GERMAN-TURKISH SHOWDOWN. WILL RUSSIA COME TO TURKEY'S AID? OR WILL SHE STAND ASIDE, UNDER SOME COMMITMENT TO THE NAZIS, TO GIVE

30.24 - 6425

GERMANY A "RIGHT-OF-WAY" ACROSS THE DARDANELLES?

A POST-WORLD WAR AGREEMENT DEMILITARIZED THE DARDANELLES, BUT THE MONTREUX CONVENTION OF 1936 PUT FROWNING TURKISH LAND BATTERIES BACK IN THEIR OLD EMPLACEMENTS.

THE LONG MONTHS OF PRESENT WAR THAT LEFT TURKEY UNTOUCHED WHILE GERMANY WAS ON THE MARCH IN WESTERN EUROPE PERMITTED THE TURKS TO TURN THEIR LAND INTO AN ARMED CAMP. THEY WERE BOUND ORIGINALLY TO HELP FRANCE AND BRITAIN WITH ANY MEDITERRANEAN CONFLICT PROVIDED THEY DIDN'T HAVE TO FIGHT THEIR BIG, UNPREDICTABLE NEIGHBOR, THE SOVIET UNION.

FRANCE NO LONGER IS A PARTY TO THE RECIPROCAL COMMITMENT TO HELP TURKEY IN CASE HER INDEPENDENCE IS THREATENED, BUT BRITAIN STANDS STILL COMMITTED.

TURKEY'S PLEDGE TO AID BRITAIN RECEIVED WHAT SOME OBSERVERS REGARDED AS ITS FIRST TEST WHEN ITALY ATTACKED GREECE AND BRITAIN WENT TO GREECE'S SIDE, BUT THE TURKS DIDN'T FEEL THAT WAS SUFFICIENT CAUSE TO FIGHT.

HOWEVER, HINTS THAT GERMANY MIGHT GO TO ITALY'S AID AGAINST GREECE, BY WAY OF BULGARIA, DREW BELLICOSE UTTERANCES FROM THE TURKISH PRESS WHILE OFFICIALDOM KEPT ITS TONGUE.

NO ONE CAN SAY FOR SURE BEFOREHAND WHAT IT WOULD TAKE TO KNOCK THE RELUCTANT CHIP OFF TURKEY'S SHOULDER.

"JAPAN'S CASE AGAINST THE UNITED STATES."

MANY NIPPONESE BELIEVE WAR WITH US INEVITABLE

CONTEND TROUBLE CAUSES NOW TOO DEEP (NO.1.) 800

(EDITOR'S NOTE: JAPAN HAS MADE AN ALLIANCE WITH GERMANY AND ITALY. HER LEADERS ADMIT IT CONTEMPLATES THE POSSIBILITY OF WAR WITH THE UNITED STATES. WHY DO JAPANESE THINK THEY MIGHT BE FIGHTING US? WHAT ISSUES DO THEY FEEL ARE DRAWING THEM INTO SUCH A CONFLICT? HERE FOLLOWS THE FIRST OF TWO STORIES SUMMING UP THE JAPANESE STATE OF MIND AND THE FACTORS FROM WHICH IT HAS DEVELOPED, WRITTEN BY RELMAN MORIN, THREE YEARS CHIEF OF THE ASSOCIATED PRESS TOKYO BUREAU, WRITTEN FOR (NAME OF PAPER.) HIS SECOND STORY APPEARS TOMORROW, ON FRIDAY AND SATURDAY, WE SHALL PRESENT "THE UNITED STATES CASE AGAINST JAPAN," BY LLOYD LEHRBAS, FORMERLY A WAR CORRESPONDENT IN CHINA AND EUROPE, NOW ON THE AP'S WASHINGTON STAFF.)

BY RELMAN MORIN

(ADVANCE) TOKYO--(CORRESPONDENCE OF THE ASSOCIATED PRESS)--THE BELIEF IS WIDELY PREVALENT IN JAPAN TODAY THAT JAPAN AND THE UNITED STATES ARE ON THE ROAD TO WAR.

SOME JAPANESE BELIEVE IT WILL BE A DIRECT COLLISION BETWEEN THESE TWO NATIONS ALONE; OTHERS SEE IT AS A PART OF A VAST BRITISH-AMERICAN STRUGGLE AGAINST THE EXPANDING POWERS, JAPAN, GERMANY AND ITALY, NOW FORMALLY UNITED IN AN ALLIANCE.

IN EITHER CASE, THERE IS LITTLE QUESTION IN MANY JAPANESE MINDS THAT WAR WILL COME.

FOR THE AVERAGE MAN, THIS IS A DREADFUL THOUGHT. HE HAS THE SAME FEELING AS THE FOREIGN MINISTER, YOSUKE MATSUOKA, WHO SAYS HE "SHUDDERS AT THE PROSPECT."

THE CONVICTION IS STRONG, BOTH IN OFFICIAL AND PRIVATE CIRCLES, THAT THE SOURCES OF FRICTION ARE TOO MANY, THE ROOT-CAUSES TOO DEEP, TO MAKE EASY THE AVOIDANCE OF WAR.

WHAT ARE THE CAUSES?

JAPANESE DO NOT ALWAYS SPEAK FRANKLY TO FOREIGNERS, BUT WHEN THEY DO, IT IS A SURPRISING EXPERIENCE FOR AN AMERICAN. THE JAPANESE FEEL THEY CAN WRITE A LONG INDICTMENT OF AMERICA, WITH A HILL OF PARTICULARS. IT CONTAINS NOT ONLY TREATIES, CONFERENCES AND THE 1924 EXCLUSION ACT, BUT RIOTS IN SAN FRANCISCO, BOMBINGS IN ARIZONA, AND SO ON UP TO THE PRESIDENT'S "QUARANTINE SPEECH" IN CHICAGO.

ALL THIS, THE JAPANESE THINK, COMES UNDER THE HEADING OF SHEER ANTIPATHY. IT IS HISTORY. BUT IT IS SIGNIFICANT, IN JAPAN TODAY, TO DISCOVER THAT THE JAPANESE ARE RE-EXAMINING THE HISTORY OF THEIR RELATIONS WITH THE UNITED STATES, AND ARE NOT SO PRONE AS THEY ONCE WERE, TO LET BY-GONES BE BY-GONES.

THIS BACKGROUND, HOWEVER, HELPS A JAPANESE TO EXPLAIN TO HIMSELF SOMETHING MUCH MORE IMPORTANT, NAMELY, THE PRESENT POLICIES OF THE UNITED STATES.

JAPANESE INSIST THAT THE UNITED STATES IS UNALTERABLY OPPOSED TO JAPAN'S COURSE OF ACTION. THEY BELIEVE THAT AMERICA IS PREPARED TO CHALLENGE NEARLY EVERY JAPANESE MOVE, DETERMINED TO VITIATE AND NULLIFY JAPANESE AMBITIONS. IN A WORD, THAT THE UNITED STATES DENIES JAPAN HER RIGHT TO LIVE.

THEY SAY THE ONLY MEANS OF AVOIDING THIS LARGE, INCLUSIVE POINT OF FRICTION WOULD BE FOR JAPAN TO SURRENDER HER GOALS, GET OUT OF CHINA AND THE SOUTH SEAS, AND RENOUNCE THE ENTIRE PROGRAM. TO MANY HERE EVEN A SUICIDAL WAR SEEMS PREFERABLE.

THEY CAN UNDERSTAND WHY AMERICAN PUBLIC OPINION, DURING THE PAST THREE YEARS OF THE CHINA CONFLICT, HAS BEEN INFLAMED BY THE EXPERIENCES OF AMERICAN NATIONALS IN THE WAR-ZONES--THE BOMBINGS OF PROPERTY, THE SLOW STRANGULATION OF AMERICAN BUSINESS, AND THE INDIGNITIES SUFFERED AT THE HANDS OF JAPANESE SOLDIERS.

BUT THEIR CONTENTION HAS BEEN THAT SUCH EVENTS ARE INEVITABLE ACCIDENTS OF WAR, AND BESIDES, TO PUT IT INTO AMERICAN:

"YOU HIT ME FIRST."

THEY ARGUE THAT LONG BEFORE THE CHINA CONFLICT, THE UNITED STATES WAS AGGRESSIVELY AND ACTIVELY HOSTILE TO JAPANESE OBJECTIVES, AND THE MEANS FOR ACHIEVING THEM. TODAY'S DANGEROUS SITUATION, AS THEY SEE IT, IS NOT A RESULT OF ANY ISOLATED EPISODE IN THE LAST THREE, NOR EVEN IN THE LAST TEN YEARS. THE STORY OF "AMERICAN OPPRESSION" GOES BACK MORE THAN A THIRD OF A CENTURY.

TO SUPPORT THE BRIEF, JAPANESE INSIST THAT:

THE UNITED STATES ALONE NULLIFIED THE NOTORIOUS "TWENTY-ONE DEMANDS" ON CHINA, AND EXCISED THE VALUE FROM THE CHINESE-JAPANESE TREATIES OF

30.24 6427

1915 AT THE VERSAILLES CONFERENCE.

AT THE INSTANCE OF AMERICA, GREAT BRITAIN BROKE HER ALLIANCE WITH JAPAN, AND THE TWO TOGETHER IMPOSED THE "HUMILIATING" 5-5-3 NAVAL RATIO ON JAPAN.

AMERICAN OPPOSITION FORCED JAPAN OUT OF SHANTUNG PROVINCE, AFTER JAPAN, AS ONE OF THE ALLIES, HAD SPENT BLOOD AND MONEY THERE TO EXPEL THE GERMANS.

THEN IN 1924, THE EXCLUSION ACT. "THE JAPANESE GOVERNMENT CONSIDER IT THEIR MORAL DUTY TO PLACE ON RECORD AND TO MAINTAIN THEIR SOLEMN PROTEST AGAINST THE DISCRIMINATORY CLAUSE." TO THIS DAY, THE PROTEST LIVES. THE UNCONSCIOUS EFFECT OF THE IMMIGRATION LAW ON JAPAN'S ATTITUDE TOWARD THE UNITED STATES IS INCALCULABLE.

REFER TO THE "OPEN DOOR" PRINCIPLE, AND THE INSTANT JAPANESE REACTION IS A REFERENCE TO THE EXCLUSION ACT.

AND SO UP TO THE INTENSE DISPUTE BEGINNING IN 1931 WHEN JAPAN SEIZED MANCHURIA, AND THE LATEST EXCHANGES OF BITTERNESS OVER THE WAR IN CHINA, AND THE PROGRAM OF EXPANSION TO THE SOUTH SEAS.

THEY GO FURTHER AND ASSERT THAT THE JAPANESE, AS AN INDIVIDUAL, OFTEN HAS BEEN A TARGET OF PERSONAL ANIMOSITY AND VIOLENCE IN AMERICA. THEY REMIND ONE THAT, ON THE PACIFIC COAST, THERE HAVE BEEN ACTUAL RIOTS AGAINST THE JAPANESE (SOME 35 YEARS AGO), THAT JAPANESE BUSINESS FIRMS WERE BOYCOTTED IN SAN FRANCISCO, AND THAT CALIFORNIA ONCE REFUSED TO PERMIT JAPANESE CHILDREN TO ATTEND ORDINARY PUBLIC SCHOOLS. THEY CITE THE RECORD, A COMMUNICATION FROM THEODORE ROOSEVELT, THEN PRESIDENT, TO A NAVY OFFICIAL: "I MAY HAVE TO USE THE ARMY IN CONNECTION WITH BOYCOTTING OR THE SUPPRESSION OF MOB VIOLENCE."

DEC 1 1941

THAT WAS IN CALIFORNIA. JAPANESE ALSO REMEMBER THAT, ONLY A FEW YEARS AGO, NIGHT-RIDERS IN ARIZONA WERE THROWING BOMBS AT THE HOMES OF JAPANESE FARMERS.

JAPANESE ASK "IS THERE ANYTHING TO COMPARE WITH THIS IN OUR TREATMENT OF AMERICANS IN CHINA, MUCH LESS IN JAPAN?"

THESE ARE SOME OF THE REASONS ADVANCED BY THE JAPANESE AS THE BASIS FOR THEIR BELIEF THAT WAR IS INEVITABLE.

(TOMORROW: THE NIPPONESE ACCUSE THE UNITED STATES OF MEDDLING.)

DEC 15 1941

(EDITOR'S NOTE: MANY JAPANESE BELIEVE WAR WITH THE UNITED STATES CANNOT BE AVOIDED. THIS IS THE SECOND OF TWO SIGNIFICANT STORIES OUTLINING THEIR REASONS FOR SUCH A BELIEF. TOMORROW (THE NAME OF YOUR NEWSPAPER) PRESENTS THE FIRST OF A SERIES OF TWO STORIES ON "THE UNITED STATES) CASE AGAINST JAPAN." WRITTEN BY LLOYD LEHRBAS. EXPERIENCED FOREIGN AFFAIRS CORRESPONDENT. NOW ON THE ASSOCIATED PRESS' WASHINGTON STAFF.)

BY RELMAN MORIN

(ADVANCE) TOKYO--(CORRESPONDENCE OF THE ASSOCIATED PRESS)--TO MUCH OF JAPAN THE UNITED STATES GOVERNMENT HAS BECOME A KIND OF SELF-APPOINTED VILLAGE CONSTABLE, BUSY WITH AFFAIRS AND TERRITORIES 10,000 MILES FROM WASHINGTON, AND EVEN FURTHER FROM IMMEDIATE OR VITAL AMERICAN INTERESTS.

THEY ACCUSE THE UNITED STATES OF MEDDLING.

AND THIS FACTOR--THE PRESUMABLY UNWARRANTED INTERFERENCE--HAS ASSUMED EXTREME IMPORTANCE IN THE JAPANESE BELIEF THAT IT IS DIFFICULT IF NOT IMPOSSIBLE ~~TO REACH~~ TO PEACEFUL CONCLUSIONS WITH THE UNITED STATES. JAPANESE CONSIDER IT FRUITLESS TO SETTLE INDIVIDUAL ISSUES AS LONG AS AMERICA RETAINS WHAT THEY CONSIDER A FIXED INTENTION TO INTERFERE IN FAR EASTERN EVENTS.

JAPAN'S POLICIES ARE BOLDLY REALISTIC.

THEY ARE ANCHORED TO CONCRETE JAPANESE INTERESTS, TO TRADE, COLONIES, AND POINTS OF STRATEGIC URGENCY. JAPANESE, ON THEIR PART, UNDERSTAND AND ACTUALLY SYMPATHIZE WITH SUCH CONCERN, EVEN WHEN THEY FIND IT MOTIVATING OTHER NATIONS AGAINST THEMSELVES.

THEREFORE, DESPITE THE OUTBURST AGAINST BRITAIN THAT APPEARS FREQUENTLY IN JAPAN, THE JAPANESE PEOPLE REALIZE THAT BRITAIN HAS A HUGE STAKE IN CHINA, COLONIES, NAVAL BASES AND VITAL LINES OF COMMUNICATION.

MOREOVER, THEY KNOW THAT JAPANESE EXPANSION IS THREATENING THIS SEGMENT OF THE BRITISH EMPIRE. SO THEY CAN COMPREHEND BRITISH OPPOSITION. THE FRICTION THERE IS NATURAL.

BUT NO SUCH EASY ANSWER APPEARS WHEN THEY COME TO EXAMINE THE POSITION OF THE UNITED STATES IN THE FAR EAST. ALL THE THINGS THAT BRITAIN HAS, AND MAY BE EXPECTED TO PROTECT, THE JAPANESE CONTEND, THE UNITED STATES LACKS.

THEY ARGUE THAT AMERICAN INVESTMENTS ARE VERY SMALL, AND THAT AMERICAN TRADE WITH THE ORIENT IS A FRACTIONAL SLIVER OF THE TOTAL OVERSEAS COMMERCE. IN FACT, THE ANNUAL $200,000,000, EXPORT TO JAPAN IS THE BIGGEST PORTION OF IT.

SINCE THE AMERICAN FLAG IS TO BE WITHDRAWN FROM THE PHILIPPINES, JAPANESE ASSUME THAT AMERICA DOES NOT CONSIDER THE ISLANDS AS A COLONY. THERE ARE NO OTHER LARGE AREAS IN THE ORIENT UNDER AMERICAN DOMINION.

WITH MORE THAN 4,000 MILES OF WATER BETWEEN YOKOHAMA AND THE AMERICAN MAINLAND, JAPANESE NAVAL EXPERTS PROFESS PERPLEXITY, AND GROW POLITELY SARCASTIC, WHEN THEY HEAR THAT THE UNITED STATES NEEDS FAR EASTERN BASES FOR DEFENSE.

IN SHORT, JAPANESE SAY THEY FAIL ENTIRELY TO UNDERSTAND AMERICAN CONCERN WITH EVENTS IN THE ORIENT. ACCUSTOMED TO THINKING IN TERMS OF VITAL PRACTICAL INTEREST, THEY LOOK AROUND FOR THOSE OF

30.24 - 6429

THE UNITED STATES. AND, OF COURSE, CLAIM TO FIND NONE.

NOT LONG AGO, HACHIRO ARITA, THEN FOREIGN MINISTER, PHRASED THE JAPANESE POINT OF VIEW WITH THE WORDS:

"JAPAN HAS AS MUCH CONCERN IN THE AFFAIRS OF ASIATIC COUNTRIES AS THE UNITED STATES HAS IN THOSE OF, SAY, VENEZUELA, OR ANY LATIN AMERICAN COUNTRY." JAPANESE LIKE TO POINT OUT THAT JAPAN WAS NEVER CONSULTED, NOR DID SHE ASK TO BE, ABOUT ANY MOVES IN NORTH OR SOUTH AMERICA.

AMERICAN INSISTENCE ON PRINCIPLES--THE OPEN DOOR, THE RIGHT OF EQUAL OPPORTUNITY, THE SANCTITY OF TREATIES, THE RENUNCIATION OF FORCE AS AN INSTRUMENT OF NATIONAL POLICY--THESE IDEAS LEAVE THE JAPANESE COLD AND UNRESPONSIVE, BECAUSE, AS THEY PUT IT:

"FIRST, YOU HAVE TO BE SUFFICIENTLY WEALTHY AND POWERFUL TO AFFORD THEM."

JAPANESE ARE WHOLLY SOLD ON THE THEORY OF "HAVE" AND "HAVE NOT" NATIONS.

MANY JAPANESE APPEAR TO ENJOY PICTURING THEMSELVES AS THE TYPICAL UNDER-PRIVILEGED STATE, NAKED AND HUNGRY, POOR IN RESOURCES, AND SURROUNDED BY GIANTS WHO BAR THE WAY TO MARKETS AND MATERIALS.

TO SOME EXTENT, THE PICTURE IS TRUE. BUT THE JAPANESE COLORS GENERALLY ARE MORE VIVID THAN THE FACTS.

THE GIANTS IN THE CASE FORMERLY WERE CHINA AND RUSSIA.

JAPANESE BELIEVE THE ONE HAS BEEN PRETTY WELL ELIMINATED, AND JUST NOW, FOR AXIS REASONS, THE OTHER IS BEING KNOWN AS "OUR NORTHERN NEIGHBOR."

BRITAIN AND THE UNITED STATES HAVE FALLEN HEIR TO THE OLD CHINESE AND RUSSIAN ROLES. PARTICULARLY THE UNITED STATES.

THUS, RECENTLY, A SPEECH BY FOREIGN MINISTER MATSUOKA BEFORE THE INSTITUTE OF THE PACIFIC, AN ORGANIZATION OF HIGHLY-PLACED JAPANESE:

"IMAGINE TWO DIFFERENT NATIONS, ONE SMALL IN AREA, POOR IN NATURAL RESOURCES AND HEAVILY POPULATED; THE OTHER LARGE IN AREA, BLESSED WITH GOOD RESOURCES, AND THINLY POPULATED. SUPPOSE, FURTHER, THAT A SITUATION DEVELOPS WHEREIN THE NORMAL FLOW OF GOODS BETWEEN THEM IS IMPEDED SERIOUSLY BY TARIFF WALLS, IMMIGRATION RESTRICTIONS AND OTHER BARRIERS.

"WE CAN HARDLY EXPECT THE ABSENCE OF CONFLICT BETWEEN SUCH COUNTRIES. I AM AFRAID THAT NOT A FEW SO-CALLED PACIFIC QUESTIONS MAY BE TRACED TO JUST SUCH CONTRADICTIONS AND INJUSTICES."

NOTE THAT THE FOREIGN MINISTER NAMED NO NAMES AND GAVE NO STREET-NUMBERS. THEY WERE NOT NECESSARY FOR HIS AUDIENCE.

NEVERTHELESS, WITH THESE WORDS, HE TOUCHED THE MAIN-SPRING OF JAPAN'S POLICIES AND ACTIONS.

JAPANESE EFFORTS, ALMOST SINCE THE COUNTRY WAS OPENED, HAVE BEEN DIRECTED TOWARD OBTAINING A GREATER SHARE IN THE WORLD'S WEALTH. THIS URGE HAS ACTUATED THE WARS AND THE POLITICAL MANEUVERING.

IT IS THE TRUE MEANING BENEATH THE PHRASE, "THE NEW ORDER IN EAST ASIA."

IT IS THE REASON FOR THE ALLIANCE WITH GERMANY AND ITALY, WHO CLAIM THEY ARE FIGHTING FOR THE SAME PRINCIPLE IN THEIR CORNERS OF THE WORLD.

JAPANESE INSIST THEIR DRIVE TOWARD THE "HAVE" NATION STATUS DOES NOT AFFECT THE UNITED STATES DIRECTLY. THEY BELIEVE THE TWO PATHS NEED NOT INTERSECT. THEIR EXPANSION, THEY SAY, IS NOT IN ANY WAY, AT THE EXPENSE OF THE UNITED STATES.

THEY WILL ADMIT IT MUST BE AT THE EXPENSE OF CHINA, THE BRITISH EMPIRE, AND, PERHAPS, ULTIMATELY OF SOVIET RUSSIA. BUT THEY CANNOT UNDERSTAND HOW THE FAVORABLE (TO THEM) RE-DISTRIBUTION OF TERRITORIES IN THE FAR EAST CAN CONCERN THE UNITED STATES.

JAPAN'S CONCEPTION OF THE "BRITISH-AMERICAN COLOSSUS" SPRINGS FROM THE SUPPOSED AMERICAN DESIRE TO MAINTAIN THE STATUS QUO THROUGHOUT THE WORLD, FOR THE PERMANENT BENEFIT OF THE "HAVE" NATIONS, AND AT THE PERMANENT EXPENSE OF THE "HAVE NOTS."

THE JAPANESE DO NOT EXPECT THE "NEW ORDER IN EAST ASIA" TO RECEIVE THE BRITISH-AMERICAN BLESSING. SO, THEY REASON, THEY MAY AS WELL SINK OR SWIM WITH THE AXIS.

"THE UNITED STATES' CASE AGAINST JAPAN"

(EDITOR'S NOTE: ARTICLES WERE PUBLISHED HERE WEDNESDAY AND THURSDAY SUMMING UP THE JAPANESE VIEW OF THE TROUBLED RELATIONS BETWEEN THEIR NATION AND THE UNITED STATES. THIS IS THE FIRST OF TWO ARTICLES PRESENTING VIEWS EXPRESSED IN OFFICIAL WASHINGTON.)

BY LLOYD LEHRBAS

DEC 15 1941

(ADVANCE) WASHINGTON,DEC.12-(AP)-CONQUERING HORDES ARE "ON THE MARCH WITH GREAT ARMIES, AIR FLEETS, AND NAVIES TO TAKE BY FORCE WHAT THEY SAY THEY NEED OR WANT" AND THE UNITED STATES--DESPITE ITS GEOGRAPHICAL POSITION--IS GRAVELY THREATENED BY THE SWEEPING TIDE OF THEIR LIMITLESS INVASIONS.

THAT PICTURE OF THE WORLD TODAY--IN THE WORDS OF CORDELL HULL, SECRETARY OF STATE--SUMS UP A WIDESPREAD AMERICAN OPINION ON THE DIRECTION, OBJECTIVES AND METHODS OF THE AXIS POWERS, AND GRAPHICALLY EXPLAINS WHY THE UNITED STATES LOOKS ASKANCE AT JAPAN'S MARTIAL MANEUVERS IN THE FAR EAST.

YOSUKE MATSUOKA, JAPAN'S FOREIGN MINISTER, DECLARED IN AN INTERVIEW WITH AMERICAN NEWSPAPER CORRESPONDENTS ON MONDAY THAT THE GERMAN-ITALIAN-JAPANESE AXIS WAS THE "KEYSTONE" OF JAPANESE FOREIGN POLICY. THE JAPANESE, HE SAID, WOULD NOT "QUIBBLE" IN GOING TO THE DEFENSE OF GERMANY AND ITALY SHOULD OCCASION ARISE.

THE MINISTER'S FRANK DECLARATION REINFORCED THE OPINION LONG HELD BY AMERICAN OFFICIALS THAT JAPANESE POLICIES AND ACTS MUST BE EVALUATED AS PART OF THE AXIS POWERS' "NEW WORLD ORDER" SCHEME,

30.24 - 6431

AND NOT AS RELATING ONLY TO ISOLATED ACTION IN CHINA OR ELSEWHERE IN THE FAR EAST.

THE AXIS; AND ESPECIALLY REICHSFUEHRER HITLER, MOST AMERICAN OFFICIALS BELIEVE, PLAYS A DOMINATING ROLE IN CHARTING JAPAN'S PRESENT POLICIES. MUCH DEPENDS ON WHEN AND HOW HITLER DEMANDS REINFORCING ACTION FROM HIS JAPANESE PARTNERS.

"THE JAPANESE," ONE HIGHLY-PLACED PERSON SAID, "ARE JUST AS MUCH THE TAIL OF HITLER'S KITE AS ARE THE ITALIANS."

IF ONE CIRCULATES IN GOVERNMENT CIRCLES HERE, ONE HEARS SUCH PICTURESQUE COMMENTS AS THIS:

"THE PAGES OF HISTORY HAVE BEEN TURNED BACK TO THE ROBBER-BARON DAYS OF THE MIDDLE AGES IN THIS WAR. GENGHIS KHAN AND HIS HORDE ARE RIDING AGAIN (IN KIMONAS) IN ASIA, AND ATTILA IS AGAIN LEADING HIS HUNS TO CONQUESTS IN EUROPE UNDER THE SWASTIKA BANNER.

"THERE'S NO CHANGE IN THEIR RUTHLESS INVASIONS EXCEPT THAT, AS A RESULT OF SPEEDY COMMUNICATIONS, GENGHIS AND ATTILA ARE SYNCHRONIZING THEIR PILLAGING EXPEDITIONS."

WILL THE UNITED STATES AND JAPAN GO TO WAR?

THAT DEPENDS--ACCORDING TO A SURVEY OF SOURCES HERE--ON THE JAPANESE OR, MORE CONCISELY, ON THE PATH FINALLY CHOSEN BY THE MILITARISTIC GROUPS NOW DOMINATING THE JAPANESE GOVERNMENT.

IF THE TWO NATIONS DO CLASH, IT IS CONTENDED, IT WILL BE A WAR INSTIGATED BY THE JAPANESE (WITH "EGGING ON" BY HITLER) AND ACTIVATED BY JAPAN'S DREAM OF BECOMING THE ONE, ALL-POWERFUL RULER OF THE PACIFIC, AND AT THE SAME TIME AIDING THE AXIS TO CONQUER BRITAIN.

ONE OFFICIAL SAID THAT JAPANESE JINGOISTS, COMPLETELY MISUNDERSTANDING AMERICAN PHYSCHOLOGY, ARE "SHOOTING OFF THEIR MOUTHS" WITH TWO OBJECTIVES IN VIEW:

1.-A DELIBERATE EFFORT TO WHIP THE JAPANESE INTO A CRUSADING FRENZY TO EXPAND THE JAPANESE EMPIRE AT WHAT APPEARS TO BE A PROPITIOUS MOMENT AT THE EXPENSE OF DEFEATED FRANCE (INDO-CHINA), THE NETHERLANDS (DUTCH EAST INDIES), AND BRITAIN (HONGKONG, BURMA AND MALAYA, INCLUDING SINGAPORE.)

2.-AN ATTEMPT TO BLUFF THE UNITED STATES INTO FRIGHTENED INACTIVITY OR NEUTRALITY WHILE JAPAN'S ARMED FORCES MARCH SOUTHWARD.

THE FUNDAMENTAL ISSUES INVOLVED, SO THE ARGUMENT HERE RUNS, ARE AS FOLLOWS:

JAPAN, AMBITIOUS TO EXCLUDE THE UNITED STATES AND ALL OTHER POWERS FROM THE PACIFIC AND ACHIEVE UNQUESTIONED MASTERY OF THE FAR EAST, IS MANEUVERING TO SEIZE THE BRITISH, DUTCH AND FRENCH POSSESSIONS--AND PERHAPS THE PHILIPPINES--JUST AS SHE ALREADY HAS CONQUERED AND EXPLOITED FORMOSA, KOREA, MANCHURIA AND HALF OF CHINA.

JAPAN'S INVASION OF CHINA ALREADY HAS GRAVELY ENDANGERED A HUGE BRITISH STAKE IN THAT SPRAWLING NATION, INCLUDING COLONIES, NAVAL BASES, VITAL LINES OF COMMUNICATIONS, AND INVESTMENTS IN CHINESE INDUSTRY.

AMERICAN FINANCIAL, EDUCATIONAL, TRADE AND MISSIONARY INTERESTS ALSO HAVE SUFFERED SEVERELY FROM THE WAR ITSELF, FROM BOMBINGS, AND FROM THE JAPANESE IMPOSED RESTRICTIONS WHICH HAVE QUICKLY FOLLOWED THE OCCUPYING TROOPS.

DEC 15 1940

THE JAPANESE, ACCORDING TO ALL AVAILABLE REPORTS, ARE NOW ENGAGED IN A SIMILAR OCCUPATION AND EXPLOITATION IN SECTIONS OF FRENCH INDO-CHINA.

ONE AUTHORITY SUMMED UP THE SITUATION THUS:

"THE JAPANESE KNOW WE KNOW WHAT HAPPENED TO OUR INTERESTS IN MANCHURIA AND CHINA.

"THEY KNOW WE KNOW THAT THE SAME THING WILL HAPPEN TO OUR INTERESTS ELSEWHERE IN THE FAR EAST IF AND WHEN THEY PUSH THEIR BAYONETS SOUTH-WARD.

"THEY KNOW WE KNOW JAPANESE INVASION OF FRENCH INDO-CHINA, BURMA, THE EAST INDIES, SINGAPORE, THE PHILIPPINES WOULD BE A DEATH BLOW TO BRITAIN, FRANCE, THE NETHERLANDS AND THE UNITED STATES--TO EVERYONE EXCEPT THE JAPANESE--AS FAR AS THE ENTIRE PACIFIC OCEAN AREA IS CONCERNED, AND MIGHT BE A BIG AID TO HITLER IN WINNING THE WAR.

"AND THEN THEY CHARGE US WITH MEDDLING AND UNWARRANTED INTERFERENCE IN THEIR AFFAIRS AND THREATEN WAR!"

TOMORROW: AMERICAN POLICY IN THE FAR EAST AS OPPOSED TO JAPANESE POLICY.

"THE UNITED STATES' CASE AGAINST JAPAN"

(EDITOR'S NOTE: THIS IS THE SECOND AND LAST OF TWO ARTICLES SETTING FORTH OFFICIAL AMERICAN VIEWS ON JAPANESE-AMERICAN RELATIONS, IN CONTRAST TO THE JAPANESE VIEWPOINT PRESENTED IN TWO PREVIOUS ARTICLES.)

BY LLOYD LEHRBAS

(ADVANCE) WASHINGTON,DEC.13-(AP)-THE CLASH BETWEEN AMERICAN AND JAPANESE POLICIES IN THE FAR EAST--WHICH CAUSES SOME JAPANESE TO FEAR THE TWO NATIONS ARE "ON THE ROAD TO WAR"--RESULTS NOT FROM ISOLATED INCIDENTS, BUT FROM FUNDAMENTAL, DEEP-SEATED DIFFERENCES.

AMERICAN POLICY (AS SET FORTH IN NUMEROUS TREATIES GOVERNING RELATIONS WITH OTHER NATIONS) CALLS FOR FREEDOM, THE SANCTITY OF AGREEMENTS, RENUNCIATION OF WAR AS AN INSTRUMENT OF NATIONAL POLICY, AND EVOLUTION THROUGH PEACEFUL MEANS.

BUT JAPANES SPOKESMEN CHARGE THAT THE UNITED STATES "DENIES JAPAN HER RIGHT TO LIVE." AMONG THE MAJOR JAPANESE "CHARGES" AGAINST THE UNITED STATES ARE:

OPPOSITION BY THE UNITED STATES WAS CHIEFLY RESPONSIBLE FOR NULLI-FICATION OF JAPAN'S "21 DEMANDS" ON CHINA.

OPPOSITION BY THE UNITED STATES FORCED JAPAN TO WITHDRAW FROM SHANTUNG, CHINA'S "SACRED PROVINCE," AFTER THE WORLD WAR.

THE UNITED STATES HAS REFUSED TO RECOGNIZE THE "EMPIRE OF MANCHUKUO" CREATED BY JAPAN OUT OF CHINA'S THREE NORTHERN PROVINCES.

THE UNITED STATES HAS LOANED FUNDS TO CHINA TO HELP IN DEFENDING ITSELF.

THE UNITED STATES OPPOSES JAPAN'S PLANS TO EXPAND THE EMPIRE BY ARMS AND TO SET UP A "NEW ORDER IN ASIA" WHICH PRESUMABLY INCLUDES FRENCH INDO-CHINA, THE DUTCH EAST INDIES, SOME BRITISH COLONIES,

DEC 15 1941

30.24- 6433

30.24 - 6433

AND PERHAPS THE PHILIPPINES, ALL STOREHOUSES OF RAW MATERIALS.

UNITED STATES OFFICIALS MAKE NO DENIAL THAT THE UNITED STATES HAS DONE THOSE THINGS, AND DOES OPPOSE ANY "AGGRESSION" AGAINST OTHER NATIONS AND PEOPLES AND THEIR "ENFORCED EXPLOITATION."

THESE OFFICIALS HERE FORESEE NO CHANGE IN THE AMERICAN ATTITUDE TOWARD JAPAN--OR TOWARD GERMANY AND ITALY--UNLESS AND UNTIL THOSE NATIONS STOP "THE INVASION AND SUBJUGATION OF OTHER NATIONS."

SECRETARY HULL, IN A DENUNCIATION OF "WOULD-BE CONQUERORS" (WHICH WAS INTERPRETED AS INCLUDING JAPAN, GERMANY AND ITALY) SAID:

"THE RULERS OF THESE NATIONS HAVE REPUDIATED AND VIOLATED IN EVERY ESSENTIAL RESPECT THE LONG-ACCEPTED PRINCIPLES OF PEACEFUL AND ORDERLY INTERNATIONAL RELATIONS. MERCILESS ARMED ATTACK; UNRESTRAINED TERRORIZATION THROUGH SLAUGHTER OF NON-COMBATANT MEN, WOMEN, AND CHILDREN; DECEIT, FRAUD AND GUILE; FORCED LABOR; CONFISCATION OF PROPERTY; IMPOSED STARVATION--ALL THESE ARE WEAPONS CONSTANTLY USED BY THE CONQUERORS FOR THE INVASION AND SUBJUGATION OF OTHER PEOPLES.

"BY DEED AND BY UTTERANCE, THE WOULD-BE CONQUERORS HAVE MADE IT ABUNDANTLY CLEAR THAT THEY ARE ENGAGED UPON A RELENTLESS ATTEMPT TO TRANSFORM THE CIVILIZED WORLD AS WE HAVE KNOWN IT INTO A WORLD IN WHICH MANKIND WILL BE REDUCED AGAIN TO THE DEGREDATION OF A MASTER-AND-SLAVE RELATIONSHIP AMONG NATIONS AND AMONG INDIVIDUALS, MAINTAINED BY BRUTE FORCE".

SPECIFICALLY DEALING WITH JAPAN'S ACTIVITIES IN IMPOSING A "NEW ORDER IN ASIA" BY ARMS, AMBASSADOR GREW TOLD THE JAPANESE THAT:

DEC 5 1940

"THE AMERICAN PEOPLE HAVE GOOD REASON TO BELIEVE THAT AN EFFORT IS BEING MADE TO ESTABLISH CONTROL, IN JAPAN'S OWN INTEREST, OF LARGE AREAS ON THE CONTINENT OF ASIA AND TO IMPOSE UPON THOSE AREAS A SYSTEM OF CLOSED ECONOMY. IT IS THAT THOUGHT, ADDED TO THE EFFECT OF THE BOMBINGS, THE INDIGNITIES, THE MANIFOLD INTERFERENCE WITH AMERICAN RIGHTS, THAT ACCOUNTS FOR THE ATTITUDE OF THE AMERICAN PEOPLE TOWARD JAPAN TODAY."

IN 1934 FOREIGN MINISTER HIROTA DECLARED THAT NO QUESTION EXISTED BETWEEN THE TWO COUNTRIES "THAT IS FUNDAMENTALLY INCAPABLE OF AMICABLE SOLUTION" AND THAT JAPAN HAD "NO INTENTION WHATEVER TO PROVOKE AND MAKE TROUBLE WITH ANY OTHER POWER."

THE ONLY CHANGES THAT HAVE OCCURED IN THE FAR EASTERN SITUATION SINCE THAT TIME--IN THE OPINION OF AMERICAN OFFICIALS--HAVE BEEN CHANGES THAT RESULTED SOLELY FROM JAPAN'S OWN ACTIONS.

JAPAN ABROGATED THE 1922 NAVAL LIMITATION TREATY.

JAPAN INVADED CHINA IN VIOLATION OF THE NINE POWER TREATY AND THE KELLOGG-BRIAND PACT.

JAPAN VIOLATED THE "OPEN DOOR" POLICY, UNDER WHICH EQUAL TRADE AND COMMERCIAL OPPORTUNITIES WERE DECLARED OPEN TO ALL NATIONS, BY TAKING RESTRICTIVE MEASURES WHICH HAVE PRACTICALLY WIPED OUT AMERICAN TRADE IN CHINA AND "MANCHUKUO."

JAPANESE PLANES BOMBED AMERICAN PROPERTY (INCLUDING THE U.S.S. PANAY) INFLICTING HEAVY DAMAGES, MOST OF WHICH REMAIN UNPAID.

JAPANESE TROOPS DROVE AMERICAN MISSIONARIES OUT OF THE INTERIOR OF CHINA, INFLICTED NUMEROUS INDIGINITIES ON AMERICAN CITIZENS, DESTROYED AND SEIZED AMERICAN PROPERTY AND GOODS.

AND--THESE OFFICIALS ADD--IF JAPAN SEIZED FRENCH, DUTCH AND BRITISH COLONIES IN THE FAR EAST (NOT TO MENTION THE PHILIPPINES) IT WOULD IMPERIL OR CUT OFF RUBBER, TIN, AND OTHER RAW MATERIALS VITALLY NEEDED IN AMERICAN INDUSTRY, AND PARTICULARLY IN THE NATIONAL DEFENSE PROGRAM.

WHEN AND IF THE BRITISH INVASION OF GERMANY COMES

HOLLAND OR BALKANS
MAY BE ENTRANCE
POINTS (1350)

(EDITOR'S NOTE: THE BRITISH ARE TALKING OF AND BUILDING AND TRAINING FOR AN INVASION OF GERMANY. HITLER HIMSELF REFERRED TO THE POSSIBILITY IN HIS SPEECH THIS WEEK. IF THAT BLOW IS STRUCK, WHERE AND HOW WILL IT COME? FRED VANDERSCHMIDT, WHO HAS BEEN IN ENGLAND, THE NETHERLANDS AND FRANCE DURING THE WAR AS AN ASSOCIATED PRESS CORRESPONDENT, DISCUSSES THE POSSIBILITIES IN THE FOLLOWING STORY FOR (NAME OF YOUR NEWSPAPER)

BY FRED VANDERSCHMIDT

(ADVANCE) NEW YORK, DEC 14-(AP)-"IF SHE (ENGLAND) WANTS TO GAIN A FOOTHOLD SOMEWHERE ON THE CONTINENT, THEN WE SHALL MEET AGAIN....AND I HOPE WE HAVEN'T FORGOTTEN ANYTHING, AND THE BRITISH WILL REMEMBER EVERYTHING."

DEC 15 1941

THAT IS ADOLF HITLER SPEAKING, THIS WEEK. IT IS FURTHER EVIDENCE THAT NOT ONLY THE BRITISH ARE THINKING ABOUT THE DAY WHEN BRITAIN WILL STRIKE BACK IN THE WEST, NOT PROBABLY, IN 1941, BUT IN 1942 OR 1943.

BARRING THE MIRACLE OF UTTER GERMAN COLLAPSE, THE BRITISH CAN'T WIN THIS WAR WITHOUT A FAIRLY SUCCESSFUL CONTINENTAL OFFENSIVE.

BUT WHERE?

FRANCE IS NOT LIKELY, FOR THERE THE BRITISH WOULD FIND A HOSTILE GOVERNMENT IN THE UNOCCUPIED ZONE, A HEARTBROKEN, DISILLUSIONED PEOPLE, A TREMENDOUS ARMY OF OCCUPATION OPERATING FROM WELL-PREPARED BASES, AND WIDE OPEN FLANKS FROM WHICH THEIR EXPEDITIONARY FORCE MIGHT BE SQUEEZED MERCILESSLY.

BELGIUM?

AGAIN NO PROTECTION ON THE FLANKS, A DOUBTFUL RECEPTION FROM THE PEOPLE AND AN UNFRIENDLY KING TO DEAL WITH: A KING WHO, UNDOUBTEDLY, STILL COMMANDS THE RESPECT AND CONFIDENCE OF MILLIONS OF HIS PEOPLE, DESPITE HIS CAPITULATION IN THE THICK OF THE FLANDERS DEFEAT.

THE BRITISH TRIED TO FIND A BATTLEFIELD IN NORWAY. THE RESULT WAS DISASTROUS. EVEN WITH AIR SUPERIORITY, THE RESULT MIGHT NOT BE DIFFERENT, FOR NORWAY IS DEEP IN THE GERMAN SPHERE OF DEFENSE AND ITS COASTS ARE NATURALLY HOSTILE TO AN INVADER BY SEA.

IF THE COMBINATION OF BRITISH OFFENSIVE SUCCESSES IN THE MEDITERRANEAN--HAND-IN-HAND WITH THE GREEKS IN ALBANIA, AND IN THE WESTERN DESERT OF EGYPT--SHOULD KNOCK ITALY OUT OF THE WAR, THE BRITISH MIGHT GO BACK TO THE CONTINENT FROM THE SOUTH, THROUGH THE BALKANS OR EVEN THROUGH ITALY.

THE TURKS PROBABLY COULD BE COUNTED ON TO HELP. BUT SUCH AN OFFENSIVE WOULD ENTAIL TREMENDOUS MOVEMENTS OF MEN, MATERIEL AND SUPPLIES OVER GREAT STRETCHES OF LAND AND WATER. 'TWOULD BE "FAR FROM 'ONE," AS THE BRITISH TOMMY PUTS IT, AND, MOREOVER, THE WORLD WAR LESSON OF GALLIPOLI STILL IS A MIGHTY DETERRENT TO WINSTON CHURCHILL IN THAT CORNER OF THE GLOBE.

EVEN BY THE PROCESS OF ELIMINATION, AND FOR OTHER REASONS AS WELL--THAT LEAVES THE NETHERLANDS AS THE MOST LOGICAL BRIDGEHEAD FOR THE "CAMPAIGNS OF 1942 AND 1943" WHICH ARE CONSTANTLY IN THE BACK OF WINSTON CHURCHILL'S BRILLIANT, UNPREDICTABLE BRAIN.

IS THIS FANTASTIC, WITH GERMANY HOLDING TIGHTLY TO EVERY INCH OF CONTINENTAL COASTLINE FROM THE NORTH CAPE TO THE BAY OF BISCAY?

HOLLAND FORMS THE CURVING, NORTHWEST CORNER OF THE CONTINENT PROPER. GIVEN AIR SUPERIORITY IN AN OFFENSIVE SENSE, OPERATING FROM BRITISH BASES SCARCELY 100 MILES AWAY, GIVEN CONTINUED PROTECTION ON ALL SIDES BY THE HOME FLEET, A BRITISH EXPEDITIONARY FORCE MIGHT STRIKE AT TWO OR MORE POINTS ON THE WEST COAST OF THE PROVINCE OF NORTH HOLLAND, ABOVE AMSTERDAM, AND GAIN A FOOTHOLD.

THE NORTH SEA ISLANDS OF TEXEL, VLIELAND, AMELAND AND SCHIERMONIKOOG MIGHT BE OCCUPIED BY THE FLEET ALONE, THEY LIE IN A PROTECTIVE CURVE ABOVE THE WADDENZEE AND THE STRANGE BLUE IJSSELMEER (ZUIDER ZEE), WHICH MAKES A BROAD, DEEP POCKET INTO THE NORTHERN NETHERLANDS.

THESE ISLANDS AND WATERS WOULD PROTECT THE BRITISH LEFT FLANK. ONE GREAT DIKE BRIDGES THE TOP OF THE IJSSELMEER, OR DID IF IT ISN'T ALREADY BLOWN UP, IT WOULD BE A SET-UP FOR BRITISH DIVE BOMBERS TO DEMOLISH IT AND IMPEDE ANY GERMAN COUNTERTHRUST FROM FRIESLAND TO THE EAST, ACROSS THE INLAND LAKE.

ONCE THE FOOTHOLD WERE CONSOLIDATED, IT PROBABLY WOULD BE THE BRITISH STRATEGY TO CUT EAST AND SOUTH IN A WIDE ARC, IN THE REVERSE DIRECTION OF THE GERMAN SCYTHE WHICH DESCENDED THROUGH THE LOWLANDS AT THE BEGINNING OF LAST SPRING'S INVASION.

THAT WOULD BE A QUESTION OF PLANES, OF MANY MEN, OF MUCH EQUIPMENT, OF ENGINEERING SKILL AND OF COOPERATION FROM THE PEOPLE ON THE GROUND.

BRITAIN IS TRAINING THE MEN AND AMASSING THE EQUIPMENT. SHE CAN NOT EXPECT TO RAISE TROOPS IN NUMBERS TO EQUAL THOSE OF THE GERMANS; HENCE, THEIR EQUIPMENT MUST BE SUPERIOR. WITH AMERICAN HELP, THE BRITISH ARE CONFIDENT OF EVENTUALLY HAVING AIR SUPERIORITY IN ANY OFFENSIVE PUNCH.

30.24-6437

30.24—6437

BRITAIN HAS LOST FEW BOMBERS IN THIS WAR, AND THEY ARE COMING OFF THE ASSEMBLY LINES FOR HER ON BOTH SIDES OF THE ATLANTIC.

IT MUST NOT BE FORGOTTEN, ALSO, THAT THE NETHERLANDS IS A COUNTRY WHICH RISES OUT OF THE SEA LARGELY BY GRACE OF SUPERB FEATS OF ENGINEERING. THE DIKES, CANALS AND POULDERS OF HOLLAND CONTROL WATERS WHICH CAN HELP OR HINDER A MILITARY FORCE.

IT SEEMS LOGICAL TO SUPPOSE THAT MANY OF THE SECRETS OF THIS COMPLICATED CONTROL OVER THE INLAND WATERWAYS OF THE NETHERLANDS STILL ARE IN THE HANDS OF THE DUTCH EMIGRE GOVERNMENT AND QUEEN IN LONDON.

THE DUTCH WATER LINE, A SERIES OF FLOOD DEFENSES EXTENDING FROM THE LOWER SHORES OF THE IJSSELMEER DOWN THROUGH THE MIDDLE OF THE COUNTRY, FAILED TO STOP THE GERMAN INVADERS LAST MAY BECAUSE THESE DEFENSES WERE SABOTAGED BY TREACHERY.

FIFTH COLUMNISTS AND THE PARACHUTE TROOPS PREVENTED THE DEMOLITION OF VITAL BRIDGES AND DAMS.

BUT HOLLAND IS SUCH A MAZE OF INTEGRATED CANALS THAT EVEN A LAYMAN CAN SEE HOW THE WATERS THAT COURSE THROUGH ANY PART OF IT MIGHT, WITH ENOUGH SKILL AND LUCK, BE TURNED TO THE ADVANTAGE OF AN EXPEDITIONARY FORCE.

ON THE OTHER HAND THE GERMANS MIGHT, OF COURSE, TURN THESE WATERS EFFECTIVELY AGAINST THE INVADER. BUT THE GERMANS DO NOT KNOW THEM AS TO THE DUTCH.

DEC 15 1941

THE STRICT AND UNDERSTANDABLE NEUTRALITY OF THE NETHERLANDS PREVENTED ANY SORT OF DEFENSIVE COOPERATION WITH THE BRITISH, THE FRENCH OR EVEN THE BELGIANS PRIOR TO THE GERMAN INVASION OF MAY 10.

THUS THIS NEUTRALITY WAS A POWERFUL WEAPON IN THE HANDS OF THE GERMAN INVADER, FOR THE BRITISH SCARCELY KNEW HOW TO HELP; THE BELGIANS AND THE FRENCH WERE UNABLE TO DO SO.

NOW THE BRITISH AND THE DUTCH GOVERNMENT ARE IN ALLIANCE TO THE FINISH; THEIR RESOURCES, SKILL AND KNOWLEDGE ARE IN A COMMON POOL.

IT MAY BE THE DUTCH PEOPLE THEMSELVES UPON WHOM THE BRITISH ARE COUNTING THE MOST.

IT IS CLEAR THAT THE DUTCH ARE NOT COOPERATING WITH THE INVADER.

THE GERMANS HAVE HAD TO ADOPT THE MOST STRINGENT MEASURES, UP TO THE DEATH PENALTY, TO PREVENT DUTCHMEN FROM AIDING THE BRITISH, EVEN THOUGH THE BRITISH HAVE DROPPED MANY BOMBS ON OCCUPIED MILITARY CENTERS OF HOLLAND.

DEC 15 1941

BRITISH PILOTS ACTUALLY HAVE LANDED IN THE NETHERLANDS AT NIGHT TO OBTAIN INFORMATION--THE GERMANS ACKNOWLEDGE THIS FACT.

THE DUTCH ARE A VERY LOGICAL PEOPLE. THEY HAD PEACE AND PLENTY FOR A CENTURY, THE HIGHEST STANDARD OF LIVING IN EUROPE. THEY BELIEVED IN NEUTRALITY AND FAIR, ALOOF DEALINGS WITH BOTH BELLIGERENTS--UNTIL MAY 10.

NOW THERE IS SCARCELY ANY MEAT TO EAT IN HOLLAND; ONLY A WEEK AGO, DOG-MEAT SAUSAGES HAD TO BE CONFISCATED IN THE HAGUE BECAUSE THEY WERE TAINTED. HOLLAND'S IMMENSELY RICH DAIRY BUSINESS IS IN RUINS. MUCH OF THE LIVESTOCK HAD TO BE SLAUGHTERED BECAUSE THERE WAS NOTHING TO FEED IT. MOST OF HOLLAND'S FODDER CAME FROM ENGLAND.

HOLLAND IS A COUNTRY OF YOUNG MEN--UNIQUE IN WESTERN EUROPE. PEACE THROUGHOUT THE WORLD WAR TOOK NO TRAGIC TOLL OF FATHERS. NOW THESE YOUNG MEN, OR THOSE OF THEM WHO ARE FREE, ARE DISARMED; STRIPPED OF THE FINE EQUIPMENT OF THEIR NEW, SKETCHILY TRAINED ARMY.

MOST OF THEM NEVER SAW A BATTLE BEFORE THEIR COUNTRY FELL. UNQUESTIONABLY THEY ARE RESTLESS, LARGELY UNEMPLOYED, AND PROFOUNDLY YEARNING FOR THE REAL FREEDOM THAT WAS THEIRS.

THIS MAY BE BRITAIN'S "FIFTH COLUMN" WHEN THE DAY COMES TO STRIKE.

FISHERMEN DODGE

UNSEEN FANGERS

IN SMALL CRAFT (700)

(EDITOR'S NOTE -- EDWIN STOUT, WHO HAS DODGED NAZI BOMBS ASHORE AS A MEMBER OF THE ASSOCIATED PRESS STAFF IN LONDON, WENT TO SEA ON A BOBBING LITTLE FISHING BOAT TO LEARN HOW BRITAIN'S FISHERMEN DODGE GERMAN MINES AFLOAT AND TELL ABOUT IT IN THIS EXCLUSIVE STORY BY A LANDLUBBER FROM WINTERSET, IOWA.)

BY EDWIN STOUT

(ADVANCE) ABOARD THE BRITISH FISHING TRAWLER EFFICIENT-(CORRESPONDENCE OF THE ASSOCIATED PRESS)-IRON-HEARTED FISHERMEN WITH LEATHER HANDS AND EYES THAT SEE IN THE DARK ARE THUMBING THEIR FROSTY NOSES AT BOMBS, MINES AND SHELL FIRE TO BRING BRITAIN FOOD FROM THE SEA.

TO REACH THE FISHING GROUNDS AND HAUL IN A CATCH, THEY TAKE CHANCES WITH AXIS WARCRAFT ON THE SEA, ABOVE AND BELOW IT. THEN, ON WINTRY NIGHTS SO BLACK THE LAND MAKES ONLY THE DIMMEST BLUR ON THE HORIZON, THEY FEEL, LISTEN AND SMELL THEIR WAY THROUGH UNMARKED MINEFIELDS AND PAST DANGEROUS, UNLIGHTED ROCKS TO GET THEIR FISH TO PORT FOR THE MORNING MARKET.

BUT THERE IS COMPENSATION. BECAUSE OF INCREASED DEMAND FOR SEAFOOD TO SUPPLEMENT RATIONED MEATS, THE FISHERMEN NOW ARE EARNING THEIR BEST PAY IN YEARS.

WHILE I WATCHED FROM THE CHILLY DECK, SKIPPER JOE CARR AND HIS CREW OF SIX MEN AND A BOY DOCKED THE 35-TON TRAWLER EFFICIENT IN PRE-DAWN DARKNESS WITH A HOLD FULL OF HERRING-LIKE PILCHARDS HAULED IN FROM DRIFT NETS.

CARR, A BLUE-EYED, SQUARE-JAWED VETERAN OF THE NORTH SEA HERRING INDUSTRY, WAS ONE OF THE FIRST FISHERMEN TO PILOT HIS CRAFT FROM THE GUARDED BRITISH PORT FOR THE FISHING GROUNDS EARLY IN THE AFTERNOON.

AFTER CLEARING THE HARBOR, HE JANGLED THE ENGINEROOM TELEGRAPH FOR FULL SPEED AHEAD AND WARNED, "THIS IS NOT A PARTY . . . THERE ARE SOME BACK THERE AFRAID TO GO OUT NOW THAT IT'S WARTIME."

THE DIESEL PUFFED AS JOE EXPLAINED THE COURSE OF THE SMALL BOAT WAS NOT THE REGULAR CHANNEL.

"SHE'S FULL OF MINES FROM THERE TO THERE," HE SAID, POINTING. "AND FROM THERE TO THERE. THEY LEAVE US FISHERMEN THIS TRACK."

IT DIDN'T LOOK TO BE MUCH WIDER THAN THE EFFICIENT HERSELF.

BEFORE 5 P.M., THE EFFICIENT HAD REACHED THE SPOT JOE THOUGHT WOULD BE GOOD, AND THE CREW HEAVED OUT 57 NETS WHICH MADE A

30,24-6439
30.24-6439

WALL A MILE AND A HALF LONG AND 30 FEET DEEP ASTERN.

IN THE WHEELHOUSE, JOE WATCHED AND TOLD OF A RECENT SURPRISE ATTACK ON A TRAWLER FLEET BY A GERMAN WARSHIP. ONE OF THE UNARMED, UNESCORTED FLEET WAS SUNK AND ANOTHER BADLY DAMAGED BY SHELLS.

THE SKIPPER POINTED TO SAM SPALL, 250-POUND, 64-YEAR-OLD GIANT WHO WAS TOSSING A NET WITH HANDS SO BIG HIS THUMB LOOKED AS THOUGH IT WERE CUT OUT OF A BOXING GLOVE.

"SAM WAS IN ONE THAT GOT HIT BY SHELLS BUT DIDN'T SINK," SAID JOE. "SHE WAS SMASHED UP, THOUGH, AND SAM WANTED TO KEEP WORKING, SO HE JOINED UP WITH ME NEXT DAY.

"WHEN THE GERMAN STARTED SHOOTING WE SCATTERED IN A HURRY. I CUT LOOSE THE NETS AND RAN FOR HOME."

FOR THREE HOURS, WHILE THE NETS DRIFTED, THE SKIPPER, THE CREW AND I HAD TEA AND FISHED WITH HAND LINES FOR WHITING AND DOGFISH FOR "BEER MONEY." OWNERS DON'T TAKE A SHARE OF THE HAND LINE CATCH.

AT SUPPER, THE FISHERMEN STOWED AWAY MAN-SIZED HELPINGS OF BREAD, MARGARINE, CHEESE, PASTRIES, CUPCAKES AND BOWLS OF SLICED TANGERINES WASHED DOWN WITH PINT CUPS OF SCALDING TEA. ABOVE OUR HEADS WERE SIX BUNKS. AT THE END OF THE SNUG, SMALL CABIN WAS A TINY STOVE WHICH, WITH A SMOKING OIL LAMP, MADE THINGS WARM INSIDE DESPITE THE COLD OUTSIDE.

AFTER SUPPER, THE SKIPPER AND CREW RIGGED TWO SHADED LIGHTS OVER THE HOLD WHERE THE NETS ARE STORED AND SET UP A LONG ROLLER OVER WHICH THE NET WAS DRAWN IN SPECKLED WITH FISH.

ONCE DURING THE FIVE-HOUR, BACK-BREAKING JOB, HAROLD CARR, THE SKIPPER'S 15-YEAR-OLD SON AND SIX-FOOT "BOY" OF THE CREW, SHOUTED: "LIGHTS OUT . . . PLANE OVERHEAD!"

THE SHIP WAS BLACKED OUT INSTANTLY. THE PLANE'S MOTORS ROARED OMINOUSLY, THEN FADED AWAY. THE LIGHTS WERE TURNED ON AGAIN, AND DIM FLASHES ACROSS THE DARK WAVES MARKED THE POSITIONS OF OTHER FISHERMEN RESUMING THEIR WORK.

WHEN THE NETS WERE IN, THE EFFICIENT TURNED HOMEWARD. AFTER CHANGING THEIR WET CLOTHES, THE FISHERMEN WENT ON DECK FOR LOOK-OUT DUTY. [illegible]EDED EVERY PAIR OF EYES TO GET HOME SAFE. [illegible]R POINTED INTO THE BLACKNESS.

"SEE THOSE ROCKS AHEAD?" HE ASKED. I COULDN'T SEE A THING.

"ONCE WE GET AROUND THEM WE HAVE IT FAIRLY EASY."

AT SNAIL'S SPEED, THE EFFICIENT SLIPPED BEYOND THE DANGER. SEVERAL TIMES, THE ENGINES STOPPED ALTOGETHER WHILE THE CREW STUDIED THE DIM SHORELINE FOR LANDMARKS AND LISTENED TO THE SPLASH OF WAVES ON ROCKS TO BE SURE OF THEIR LOCATION.

"JUST LOOK AT US SLIPPING AROUND HERE IN THE DARK LIKE BLOOMIN' QUAY RATS," SAID JOE.

"THAT'S WHAT MAKES IT SO TERRIBLE HARD. STILL, A MAN OUGHT TO BE SATISFIED IF HE CAN MAKE SIX POUNDS (ABOUT $24)."

(ADVANCE)--ABOARD A BRITISH DESTROYER IN THE NORTH ATLANTIC-(CORRESPONDENCE OF THE ASSOCIATED PRESS)-A PINPOINT OF LIGHT WINKED ON THE HORIZON. THE LOOKOUT BELLOWED. THE CAPTAIN MUTTERED INTO THE SPEAKING TUBE TO THE ENGINE ROOM.

THE LIGHT BRITISH DESTROYER ON WHICH I WAS TAKEN FOR A NORTH ATLANTIC SUBMARINE HUNT SWUNG OVER TO PORT AND VIBRATED WITH NEW LIFE AS HER ENGINES DROVE HER AHEAD AT 25 KNOTS WHILE WAVES BROKE OVER HER BOW AND SPRAY SPLATTERED THE BRIDGE, THE FUNNELS AND THE GUN DECK CREWS.

THE CAPTAIN, IN WADDED JACKET AND OIL-SKINS, PUT DOWN HIS GLASS AND SAID WEARILY:

"MORE SURVIVORS."

THERE WERE NINE OF THEM IN THE TINY LIFEBOAT WHICH HAD BEEN SIGHTED. THREE MEN WORKED THE OARS FEEBLY. ONE SAT STOLIDLY AT THE TILLER. FIVE SPRAWLED LIMP. ONE MAN'S ARM WAS BANDAGED CRUDELY.

"GREEKS," THE BOATSWAIN'S MATE SHOUTED TO THE BRIDGE AS THEY CAME ABOARD. "BEEN IN THE BOAT ABOUT TWO DAYS."

THE GREEK CAPTAIN, HIS FACE WHITE IN THE STARLIGHT, CAME ONTO THE BRIDGE. HE WORE SLIPPERS, COTTON PANTS, AN UNDERSHIRT, A FUR CAP AND A LIFE PRESERVER.

HIS STEAMER, HE SAID, FELL BEHIND A CONVOY AND WAS TORPEDOED BY A SUBMARINE.

"THE GERMAN," THE GREEK SAID, "HE SHELLED US AS WE GET AWAY."

THERE WERE 19 OTHERS IN HIS CREW. WHERE WERE THEY? THE CAPTAIN SHRUGGED AND SPAT EXPRESSIVELY INTO THE SEA.

THEN HE BRIGHTENED AND ASKED SUDDENLY:

"WHAT ARE WE DOING TO THE ITALIANS NOW?"

AS HE WENT BELOW, THE DESTROYER TURNED AGAIN TO THE UNENDING CHASE OF THE ELUSIVE UNDERSEA RAIDERS STRIKING FROM AXIS BASES FROM THE ARCTIC CIRCLE TO THE BAY OF BISCAY IN A DRIVE TO BREAK THE BRITISH LIFELINE.

THE PRIME DUTY OF THE DESTROYER IS TO CONVOY MERCHANTMEN. SHE HAD JUST GUARDED ONE HUGE CONVOY FAR OUT INTO THE NORTHERN ATLANTIC AND BROUGHT ANOTHER, EQUALLY LARGE, SAFE TO PORT.

AS THESE CONVOYS PLOW THROUGH THE SEA, DESTROYERS COURSE LIKE

THEY TELL HOW DURING A THREE-DAY BLOW THEY COULD EAT NOTHING EXCEPT SANDWICHES BECAUSE THE SEAS RAN SO HIGH THE COOK COULDN'T USE THE GALLEY TO PREPARE FOOD. THE SHIP'S DOCTOR TELLS OF TYING HIMSELF TO A PIPE AND LASHING A PATIENT TO ANOTHER TO SET A SAILOR'S BROKEN ARM DURING A STORM.

JOHN, WHO WORKS THE ANTI-AIRCRAFT RANGE FINDER, IS TYPICAL OF THE CREW. HE'S 19, LOOKS LIKE A HIGH SCHOOL BOY--BUT HE WORKED 33 HOURS WITHOUT SLEEP T DUNKERQUE.

THE CAPTAIN LOOKS LIKE BUCK NEWSOM, THE DETROIT BASEBALL PITCHER; WON THE DISTINGUISHED SERVICE CROSS AT DUNKERQUE; NEVER QUITS THE BRIDGE WHILE HIS SHIP IS AT SEA; GRABS AN HOUR OR TWO OF SLEEP WHEN HE CAN, DOESN'T TAKE TIME TO SHAVE, AND LIVES ON SANDWICHES AND TEA.

ITALIANS FEAR LIBYA'S FATE IS AT STAKE; AID FROM NAZIS REPORTED BLOCKED BY PETAIN

Duce's Desert Legions Draw On Reserves To Stem British Drive

Main Fighting, Land, Sea And Air, Centers On Fascist Territory

[By the Associated Press]

Rome, Dec. 15—Italy's desert legions, beaten back into Libya in the bloodiest hand-to-hand and mechanized fighting they have known since the World War, drew today on reserves to stem Britain's Egyptian counter-offensive.

Observers in Rome, analyzing official reports of the Italian withdrawal, believed that the fate of the Fascist African empire hung by the outcome of the war in the wastelands—a week-old struggle between land, air and sea forces.

Official communiques indicated that the three-month-old Italian invasion of Egypt had been turned into a stubborn defense of Italian-held Libya at the sandstorm-swept northern junction of the Egyptian-Libyan frontiers.

R. A. F. Bombs Warships At Naples

From other sectors of Italy's war, at home, in Albania and at sea along the African battle front, came these reports:

That an Italian warship of "medium tonnage" had been hit by R. A. F. bombs in one of three pounding raids last night on populous Naples, with "unimportant damage," but death or injury to fifty crewmen and injury to eight civilians.

That the Italian submarine Neghelli had sunk a British cruiser of the Southampton (9,100-ton) class off the Egyptian coast.

That Greek attacks "in various sectors" of Albania had been thrown back by Italian counter-attacks with "heavy losses" while Fascist airmen bombed Greek troop concentrations and other objectives, including a viaduct on the Salonika-Athens railway line.

The candor and detail of the high command's communiques were unusual. The introduction of the main report of the war was an acknowledgment that Sidi Barrani, once the advance base of the Italian expedition into Egypt, had been abandoned.

Fighting On Libyan Soil

A supplement said that "as always our war bulletins tell the entire truth in good as well as bad fortune."

The two reviews placed the main fighting on and within Libyan territory, told of unslackened British pressure, of "bloody combat from dawn to sunset" on a battlefield "strewn with groups of burning enemy tanks and armored cars" and of unceasing Italian opposition to the British in the air.

"Aviation worked feverishly with the admirable spirit of sacrifice which distinguishes it, bombing and fighting ceaselessly," said one communique.

Eleven British planes were reported shot down in flames by Italian fighters yesterday and twelve the day before, as against a loss of six Italian bombers.

Tripoli And Bardia Raids

Two British planes were said to have been shot down over Tripoli, Libya, 700 miles west of the border battle zone, in connection with a raid there, and at Bardia, Italian coastal base near the Egyptian border.

The high command said the maelstrom of land attack and defense centered on the zone of Salum, Bardia and Fort Capuzzo. Of the three only Salum is in Egypt.

The high command said that "all speculations, enemy propaganda and guesses regarding the great battle in course on the Cirenaican border (Cirenaica is part of Libya)" would "seem premature."

Says Battle May Last Week

"This battle will last several days yet, maybe even more than a week. It, therefore, is necessary that calm, impartial observers reserve their judgment for the final outcome.

"Italian forces in Libya, aided by faithful Libyan troops, are fighting with extreme courage, contending the ground with the enemy hand to hand and contributing effectively to the wearing down of his mechanized and human forces.

"Truthfulness" Stressed

"It is believed that Italian forces actually engaged in fighting and those large numbers which are in reserve are more than enough to meet the situation.

"With special reference to today's war bulletin there is emphasized again the truthfulness of our communiques, which mention even heavy damage suffered."

Plan To Use France As Path For Troops Declared Upset

Germans Said To Shun Italy Lest Fascist Morale Be Shaken

[By the Associated Press]

London, Monday, Dec. 16—Italian prisoners are telling their Greek captors that "the German army is on its way to Italy," Reuters reported in a dispatch early today from the Yugoslav-Albanian frontier.

These newly captured Fascists also reported "great food and ammunition shortages and peace propaganda in Italy," the dispatch said.

[By the Associated Press]

Bern, Switzerland, Monday, Dec. 16. A reported German attempt to send Nazi troops through France to Libya and Greece to help Italy without disturbing the Italian home morale was declared today to have been rebuffed by France with a flat "No" from Marshal Henri Philippe Petain, chief of state.

Petain and a majority of his ministers were said in advices from Vichy to diplomatic sources here to have considered the German move, reportedly made through Pierre Laval before he was ousted last week from the French Government, as an Axis attempt to gain a foothold on the French Mediterranean bases.

Nazis Sounded Out Laval

The Germans, it was reported, sounded out Laval while he still was "No. 2 man" in France, as Vice-Premier, in an effort to find means of getting aid to the Italians, hard pressed by the British and Greeks, without passing through Italy.

It was feared, these reports said, that passage of troops through Premier Mussolini's country to bulwark Italian forces in Greece and Africa would have a bad effect on Italian morale.

Wanted French Port

Germany, it was reported, wanted to send troops through unoccupied France to a French Mediterranean port, where they would be picked up —apparently—by Italian transports.

The reports to diplomatic sources here said Marshal Petain refused the request on the grounds that the only port through which such troops could board Italian transports secretly would be the Toulon naval base.

It was said the marshal previously had refused a suggestion by Laval that France's naval bases, including Toulon, be made available for Axis use.

BRITISH CARRY DESERT WAR TO LIBYAN SOIL

Mobile Forces Battle Remnants Of Graziani's Troops On Border

Italian Submarine Sunk, Tripoli Bombed From Air, London Reports

---

[By the Associated Press]

Cairo, Dec. 15—British forces were reported tonight to have carried their lightning desert offensive over the Egyptian frontier into Libya.

"It is well nigh impossible to give an accurate idea where the front line is," a military spokesman said, "but it can be assumed that some British forces already have crossed the border."

Bitter winds fouled the air with clouds of dust as the British mobile forces—tanks and armored cars and trucks carrying infantry and machine-gun units—battled the remnants of Marshal Rodolfo Graziani's Egyptian forces in the Salum (Egypt) and Fort Capuzzo areas on the border.

[Associated Press Editor's Note—British warships poured shells into Italian positions along the coast all night long, a Reuters dispatch from Cairo received early Monday morning in London said. Under this incessant bombardment the Italians were "frantically" trying to consolidate defenses in an attempt to withstand an onslaught by British land troops, the dispatch said.]

26 Fascist Planes Day's Toll

Information from the fighting area was scarce, but a communique indicated the situation was "satisfactory."

The Royal Air Force was still pounding Italian airdromes and troops, and a communique said the R. A. F. shot down twenty-four Fascist planes yesterday and destroyed two others on the ground—the largest number destroyed in a single day since the war in Africa began six months ago.

One British squadron of eight-gun planes alone was credited with shooting down fourteen big tri-motored Savoia bombers and four fast Fiat fighters. Three British planes were reported missing, but at least one was believed safe behind the British lines.

Defending Main Supply Bases

Some Italians were believed holding out in small forts in the coastal sector.

British headquarters were unprepared to say whether Graziani was sending up any reinforcements from the large army he is supposed to have in Libya, but the Italians were reported doing their utmost to stay any strong British advance into Libya.

The Italians were making a determined stand to protect their main supply bases in eastern Libya, one of which is the important port of Bardia, now only thirty miles from the fighting zone.

Big Fires At Bardia And Tobruk

R. A. F. planes which bombed the harbor and military buildings at Bardia last night reported they encountered at least fifty Fiat fighters. The bombing was carried out in spite of the opposition, and large fires were seen.

Returning pilots said fires which they started in Bardia and Tobruk Friday night were still ablaze.

Reports reaching here said countless Italian units, dispersed and wandering in the desert after the British attacks, surrendered gladly.

British airmen reported one Italian column waited forlornly to be captured rather than continue its march after having been severely bombed.

Italian Submarine Added To Battle Of Egypt Toll

London, Dec. 15 (AP)—The sinking of an Italian submarine by British destroyers in operations off the Sidi Barrani-Bardia battle zone in Africa was announced tonight by the Admiralty.

The communique said that the Italian submarine Naiade "attempted to interfere" with a night warship bombardment of Bardia, Italian coastal base in Libya, and was immediately sunk by British destroyers.

The Naiade displaces 590 tons at the surface and carries forty-one men normally.

Navy Backs Libyan Thrust

The naval operations were support for the army driving against Italy's Libyan defenses.

Earlier British warships were said to have dispersed an attack by Italian "mosquito" torpedo boats.

[Associated Press Editor's Note—The Italian high command reported that a British cruiser of the Southampton class had been torpedoed and sunk in the sea phase of the battle of Egypt.]

Aircraft of the fleet air arm—apparently operating from a carrier—"successfully attacked" Tripoli Friday night, where four tons of bombs were dropped and three direct hits scored on ships, the Admiralty said.

Captive Italian Terms British Offensive 'Hell'

Surprise Drive at Nibeiwa So Fast That Fascists' Tanks Were Out of Action

By Edward Kennedy

WITH THE BRITISH FORCES AT NIBEIWA IN THE WESTERN DESERT, Egypt, Dec. 15 (AP).—An Italian officer, captured here last week when the British opened their offensive, told me today the battle which raged for an hour around Nibeiwa was "the nearest thing to hell ever seen on this earth."

Nibeiwa is a strong desert fortress from which the Italians had intended loosing their first thunderbolt against the British lines in Egypt.

It was taken by surprise and, from what I hear, the battle, while not the greatest in Great Britain's smashing assault against the Fascist troops in Egypt, was perhaps the most decisive. For if the attack on Nibeiwa had failed it is doubtful whether the offensive would have gone on.

It was absolutely necessary to reduce that fortress in order to permit the British forces to move on to Sidi Barrani on the coast, the main Italian advance base.

Nibeiwa stands on a circular plateau, about one mile in diameter, fifteen miles due south of Sidi Barrani, and was selected as the base from which Gen. Pietro Maletti's crack troops, specially organized last July as the vanguard of the Italian push, were to make a dash for the Nile and Suez.

Surprise Attack

But so great was the surprise when the British struck at dawn last Monday that the tanks which formed an important part of the Maletti group never even got into action.

The British opened with a barrage of sixty-pound shells from the east, where the Italians had their strongest fortifications. Tanks, field artillery and truckloads of infantry then moved swiftly in from the west.

The Italians turned their guns in that direction and tried vainly to halt the onward sweep of the British, but the tanks already were charging up the embankment with guns barking, while the artillery fired over them and the infantry in the rear dismounted from the trucks and prepared for a bayonet charge.

Gen. Maletti, my informant told me, rallied his men for a counter-attack on the British right flank, but fell with a bullet through his chest and died within a few minutes after the British reached him.

The British fire was so heavy that Italian tank crews were unable to get from their tents to their tanks a short distance away, and as the British tanks took their deadly toll, the Italian tanks stood empty and idle. This apparently was one of the main reasons for the quick British victory.

Livestock Stampedes

The confusion of the Italians increased as sixty horses and mules terrified by the noise of the firing, stampeded through the fort.

Despite the gallant attempt to hold the fortress, first by Gen. Maletti and then by his second in command, Col. Carmelo Giuffrida, with British tanks tearing around inside the place and infantry following them with machine guns and rifle fire and bayonets, Italian surrender was inevitable.

Once the British was inside, the Italians had only the protection of their tents and trenches and a few dugouts.

"Many of the men jumped into the refuse trenches," an Italian surgeon, who is still here caring for the wounded, told me. "They didn't know it but there were jumping into their own graves because the shells came pouring into the trenches after them.

"Shapnel hit the medicine tent and when a vat of creosote burst the men thought it was poison gas."

None Escaped

A considerable number of Italians were killed here, 300 wounded and 2,000 captured. Not a man escaped. The full Maletti crack unit, which comprised two battalions of Libyans, tank corps, motor transport corps, armored car corps, artillery and engineers, all Italians, were in the fortress at the time of the attack.

Leaving a small detachment behind, the British moved northward ten miles to the east and west forts at Tummar, where the Italians, now aware of the British drive, offered longer but no more effective resistance than the men at Nibeiwa. The way to Sidi Barrani was then open.

Other British units, meanwhile, had gone along the coastline and were battling at Maktila, ten miles east of Sidi Barrani, and still others had shot clear through to the sea west of Sidi Barrani.

Two Blackshirt legions and a Libyan division in Sidi Barrani thus were encircled by Monday night, some twelve hours after the fighting began.

At Habsa, the British tanks sent a message to the Italians before attacking, demanding their surrender. The reply was that they would resist.

"They must have had white rags ready, however, as they waved them after we had fired only a few shots," a British officer told me.

Nibeiwa's 2,000 prisoners were moved behind the lines in a seemingly endless procession of trucks, many of them Italian. In many cases the Italians drove to prison camps without guards. There was little danger of their escaping, as escape into this desert would have meant only death.

Some of the prisoners, especially the Fascist blackshirts, were crestfallen over their defeat and said bitterly they wished they had died fighting. But many others, including practically all the Libyans, seemed glad the war was over for them.

The British moved the wounded in ambulances, leaving others in Nibeiwa's tent hospital, where British and Italian surgeons worked together.

Vast stocks of food, including several tons of spaghetti, stored at Nibeiwa were taken over to feed the prisoners.

The refuse trenches provided graves for the dead. Gen. Maletti was laid out in state before his tent before burial.

All over the fortress were strewn the personal effects of officers and men, including countless trinkets and letters from home. British casualties were small. Only one tank was destroyed and several which went through a minefield were so little damaged that they resumed fighting after quick repairs.

GAYDA HINTS WAR ON ENGLISH NAVY

Says Axis Will Carry Attack Against British Sea Power Next Year

Writer Asserts Germany Will Soon Have Two 35,000-Ton Battleships

---

[By the Associated Press]

London, Monday, Dec. 16—The authoritative Press Association said today "a formidable addition" to the British Royal Navy was launched recently.

The ship was reported to be a fast vessel, but its exact speed was not disclosed.

[By the Associated Press]

Rome, Dec. 15—Virginio Gayda, editor of the Rome newspaper Il Giornale d'Italia and often regarded as Premier Mussolini's spokesman, indicated today the Rome-Berlin Axis would carry the war against Britain to the sea in 1941 with "growing naval forces."

Gayda said the German navy shortly would be enlarged with the addition of two 35,000-ton battleships "capable of meeting and defeating the corresponding British colossi."

Italian Navy "Strong"

"But the Italian navy, too, remains strong and ready and on the increase," Gayda wrote. "Italy's two great battleships which the hasty and facile Churchill (Prime Minister Churchill of Britain) wanted to pass off as lost soon will be in perfect shape again to go against similar British battleships.

"Other Italian warships, among them not a few submarines, are also ready to speak their piece in conflict."

Gayda declared England does not have enough units to follow the "growing" Axis naval forces.

Cites Blows On Britain

"Bombings, torpedoings and mines already have sunk many of her ships," he said. "Construction of her new vessels is going slowly under the methodical distruction of the British industrial system by German bombers with Italian flyers at their side."

Gayda extended the olive branch toward the United States with the assertion that the Berlin-Rome-Tokyo tri-partite alliance was no menace to that country. He said an intensely developed Europe would heighten trade and exchange with America.

Launched Two Battleships

The authoritative Jane's Fighting Ships says Germany launched her first two 35,000-ton battleships, the Bismarck and Tirpitz, last year and two others are under construction. Presumably one of the pair will be called Deutschland, since that name was taken last January from the raiding pocket battleship and reserved, the Germans said, for a mightier fighting ship.

Only Three Left

Prime Minister Churchill announced to the British House of Commons on November 13 a British naval bomber attack on the main Italian naval base at Taranto and said "only three of the Italian battleships now remain effective."

The British Admiralty said one battleship of the new Littorio class, 35,000 tons, was left badly down by the bows; another battleship of the 23,622-ton Conte Di Cavour class was beached, and it appeared a second battleship of that class was damaged. Two cruisers and two fleet auxiliaries also were hit, the British said.

30.24-6443

30.24-6443

Premier Mussolini acknowledged three ships were hit, but said only one was so badly damaged that its repair would take some time.

Blockade Won't Slow War Effort, British Say

London, Dec. 15—The Axis blockade is costing Britain approximately 62,000 tons of shipping weekly, a maritime source said tonight, adding "this is not going to slow down our war effort, although we may have to tighten our belts."

If an answer to the shipping raiders is not found in more destroyers for convoy duty or in permission to use Irish ports, this source said, Britain would simply "put guns before butter."

An unspecified number of destroyers is under construction, and the effort to persuade the Irish to permit Britain to use her seaports is continuing.

Haven't Felt Pinch Yet

"We really haven't felt any pinch from rationing yet," the source said. "We have stocks on hand in quantities we never had in the World War. If the shipping situation worsens we can decrease luxury imports in proportion to the ships lost so that the flow of war materials won't suffer and we can make ends meet for a mighty long time."

Several factors contribute to the British shipping difficulties which have already led to a reduction in meat rations and fruit imports as well as official warnings of possibly stricter future rationing.

Axis Controls Biscays

One of the foremost factors, the maritime source said, is the Axis control of convenient Biscay Bay ports of France, giving the Axis a wider scope of operations than Germany had in the World War. This has given rise to a greater activity by submarines and surface raiders by supplying Britain's opponents with advance bases for attack and havens in case of damage or pursuit.

Britain also feels need for the Irish ports, which she held in the last war and which Prime Minister Churchill would like to use now.

West Ireland ports, the source declared, besides having certain technical advantages, would put English destroyers approximately a half a day nearer to the Atlantic trouble area.

GREEK ADVANCE REPORTED BACK IN HIGH GEAR

Gains All Along Line Claimed As Snow And Rainstorms Abate

Italian Resistance Said To Be Crumbling Despite Its Stubbornness

[By the Associated Press]

Athens, Dec. 15—Hampered for almost a week by snow and rain, the Greek counter-invasion of Albania is back in high gear under clearing skies, with gains all along the line, dispatches from the front reported tonight.

The largest Greek advances appeared to be on the northern front, beyond Pogradetz, where the Italian line runs along the Yugoslavia-Albanian frontier.

"In the northern sector, as soon as the weather improved and snowstorms subsided," one dispatch said, "our units launched new attacks and made gains equal to one entire week's activity.

General Advance Claimed

"On the northern front, Greek troops succeeded in making a general advance over a wide area in a mountainous region held by the enemy above Pogradetz where the Italians had concentrated all their reserves.

"Greek artillery, firing unceasingly for three days, has succeeded in its main objective, particularly in regard to permanent enemy fortifications along the Yugoslav-Albanian frontier and has smashed them.

"In this manner the way was opened for stormy charges by Greek infantry in this direction."

Air Forces Active

Air forces of both sides were active. Extensive Italian raids over the battle zone were acknowledged, but reports from the front said Italian flyers avoided engaging Greek warplanes.

A British Royal Air Force communique reported two raids yesterday on Valona, Albania's chief port. "In a fierce attack," it said, "bombs fell among military stores in a motor transport park. A column of black smoke was seen to rise from the motor transport concentration and, although clouds prevented full observation of the effects of the bombing, army barracks were seen to be hit.

Airdrome Bombed

"In a second attack an airdrome was bombed, all bombs falling in the target area, and enemy aircraft about to take off spun around on their wingtips and stopped. From all operations our aircraft returned safely."

Italian resistance on the northern front, admittedly stubborn, was said to be giving way gradually in the face of a hurried Greek flanking operation.

"The Italians attempted to counter-attack," this report said, "but have been repelled and dispersed in such a way as to lose contact with bases from which they started.

Greek Camps Attacked

"Italian bomber formations tried repeatedly to bomb Greek camps. Their bombs, however, exploded in fields. Greek airmen took off immediately and, taking advantage of exceptional visibility, gave chase to the enemy planes. However, in all these attacks, Italian bombers refused to engage them and fled."

No exact locations were permitted to be mentioned in reports of Greek advances on the southern and central fronts.

Greek forces are "constantly" pushing toward Valona, one report said, and are converging into a single line in order to mop up and hold captured territory. "Farther to the north," it said, Greek attacks are aimed at "strategically important heights still held by the enemy."

Another dispatch from the coastal sector said a large battle area has been "ablaze for several days" from "artillery, mortar and machine-gun fire, and the ground has been shaking from the salvos of Greek and enemy heavy artillery."

temperatures have become more of a factor in the Greek drive here than fierce Italian resistance from mountain redoubts.

Tractors, mules and horses crawl over snow-blocked roads at a snail's pace between 6,000-foot mountain peaks. Over such a terrain I have seen the Greek foot soldiers doggedly pushing onward without the aid of snowshoes or skis.

Italian planes are heard overhead occasionally, but in more than 150 miles of travel in strategic sectors and twenty air raids I have yet to see a military objective destroyed by Fascist bombs.

Greek transports move in an unending stream over narrow roads and bridges where one well-placed hit would cause long delays, but those hits have not been made in the areas I've seen.

I saw scores of women labor gangs on this trip, and the sight of them prompted a cavalry sergeant to tell of the part the women played in the capture of Premeti in the Pindus Mountains.

"There were times," he said, "when every man was needed for fighting. Then it fell to the women to bring supplies and ammunition up the mountainsides. Many of them carried seventy and eighty pound packs on their backs up 3,000-foot peaks.

"When they dumped their loads they told the troops: 'Push those macaronis into the sea.'"

NAZIS REPORT R. A. F. LEAFLET RAID ON BERLIN

Claim Most Of British Planes Were Routed By Ground Fire

German Bombers Fan Out Over England, But Attacks Are Light

[By the Associated Press]

Sheffield, England, Monday, Dec. 16—Persons buried alive in wrecked homes and debris-covered raid shelters in last Thursday's heavy German air bombardment of Sheffield still were being extricated by rescue workers early today.

Many of those trapped had sought refuge in the Anderson shelters, it was learned.

[By the Associated Press]

Berlin, Monday, Dec. 16—British planes attempted to attack Berlin overnight, a communique reported early today, but most were driven off by heavy anti-aircraft fire.

Only a few planes managed to fly over a suburb of the capital where they dropped propaganda leaflets, the communique said.

Informed sources said the Germans, meanwhile, had effectively bombed an important city in the English Midlands all yesterday evening.

The attack was carried out by several squadrons of German airplanes, these sources said. Clouds favored the approach of the raiders and protected them from the British defenses.

30 Big Fires Reported

Through holes in the clouds, the Germans dropped bombs with good results, it was claimed. The first of the returning pilots said he could see more than thirty large fires brightly illuminating the sky.

In one of the few raids over England Saturday night a factory at Stoke-on-Trent was bombed by a single German plane and set on fire, authorized sources reported.

The German high command said "one middle England industrial plant was effectively hit by heavier caliber bombs."

Factory Reported Hit

The high command gave no further indication of the town where the raid occurred, but DNB reported the factory bombing at Stoke-on-Trent. DNB said the raider left the factory shrouded in smoke.

Bad weather hampered the German air force mining operations in British harbors, the high command said. It also reported that British planes yesterday bombed two places in German-occupied territory "without damage."

Nazis Set Large Fires In East Midlands Town

London, Monday, Dec. 16—Brilliant moonlight showed the way for widespread Nazi air raids over Britain last night, but they never reached the "Blitz" proportions of earlier provincial attacks and petered out before midnight.

It was believed that mist in France cut the Nazi air activity short.

During the attacks, gunfire was almost incessant in one Midlands town. Watchers in an East Midlands town reported hearing sounds of aerial combat, and air-raid wardens said they believed machine-gun tracer bullets seen in the sky were from a British fighter plane chasing a raider.

Bad Fires In One Town

Serious fires were caused in the East Midland town in a raid concentrated on industrial quarters.

The bombers withdrew after pounding the town several hours despite a s' ong anti-aircraft barrage.

Many incendiary bombs dropped on neighboring villages.

Flying in with the rise of the moon, waves of raiders followed their usual tactics. In the Midlands, two towns were bombed with heavy explosives and hostile planes were reported over Liverpool and a northwest town.

London heard anti-aircraft fire in the first raid in nearly twenty-four hours, but the firing subsided and the all-clear sounded after prolonged quiet.

Defense Guns Roar

Anti-aircraft fire rumbled when many planes were heard going over a southeast coast town toward the interior.

The raiders also were reported to have dropped a number of bombs in the northern Midlands despite anti-aircraft fire.

Other raiders were reported over East Anglia and towns in southwestern and western England.

Some of the attackers came in across the Kent coast, dodging searchlights.

An early evening Air Ministry communique said that not a bomb had been dropped on England through the daylight hours yesterday and another reported attacks on the German-occupied naval bases of Brest and Lorient, on the French coast.

"Last night small formations of coastal command aircraft attacked the enemy-occupied ports of Brest and Lorient," according to the communique. "All our aircraft returned safely."

Queens Boy, 5½, Is Safe in Berlin En Route Home

Arrives From Norway in Blackout, Disappointed There Isn't a Raid On BERLIN, Dec. 15 (AP).—Axel Gorm Andersen, an American boy who is on his way alone from Norway to New York, arrived here safely tonight in the midst of a blackout and was disappointed not to find a lively air raid going on.

There was a ticket around his neck when he reached the Stettiner railroad station so that any one could read where he was going in case he forgot, but he had not forgotten. "I'm headed for Long Island," he said, and the ticket amplified: "To Axel Anderson, 4137 Seventieth Street, Woodside," in Queens, New York.

Caught by the war while visiting his grandparents in the Trondheim district of Norway, Axel, who is five and a half years old, missed the transport American Legion when that ship left Petsamo, Finland, last August. Now he is on his way again. He will be placed on a Barcelona-bound plane Tuesday. From Barcelona he'll take another plane to Lisbon, when the American Red Cross is to put him on the steamship Siboney.

Axel came equipped with ration tickets, a ski suit and a stocking cap. At the Kaiserhof Hotel, he proceeded to pack away a stew and milk pudding which Frau Schmoelder, of the German Familien Dienst, affiliated with the International Migration Service, had waiting for him.

Frau Schmoelder pronounced the youngster, whose blond hair kept getting into his blue eyes, "munter"—an altogether complimentary word meaning alert.

"Where are the animals?" Axel wanted to know. He had been promised a trip to the zoo.

Went to Norway In 1939

Axel [illegible] Andersen, young son of Mr. and Mrs. Axel Andersen, of 41-37 Seventieth Street, Woodside Queens, went to Trondheim with his mother in August, 1939, the boy's father said last night at his home.

Mother and son visited the boy's aunt, Mrs. Emma Schewik, and after a short time the mother returned to this country alone, expecting her [illegible] son and his aunt to follow in May, 1940. The Nazi invasion of Norway disrupted their plans.

Mr. Andersen said he had tried to arrange for the boy's return through the Travelers' Aid Society and the New York chapter, American Red Cross, and that finally the Red Cross had completed arrangements. He said he gave the Red Cross $305 to finance the journey.

Mr. Andersen has been employed during the last six years as a clerk with the Marblette Company in Long Island City. He said his son was born in Woodside.

Nazis Return L'Aiglon's Body To Paris Amid Torchlit Rites

Hitler's Envoy, In Solemn Ceremony, Turns Remains Of Napoleon's Son Over To Admiral Darlan

[By the Associated Press]

Paris (Via Berlin), Dec. 15—L'Aiglon, "the little eagle," only son of Napoleon Bonaparte, came home today amidst torchlit ceremonies indicating his present political importance, although he has been dead more than a century and his father's great empire is only a memory.

Dignitaries of Germany and France solemnly accompanied the remains of L'Aiglon, once known as the boy King of Rome and later as the Duke of Reichstadt, to Les Invalides, where they will lie beside those of his father under the great dome of the museum.

Hitler's Personal Wish

It was Hitler's personal wish that L'Aiglon be brought back to Paris from his resting place in Vienna on the one hundredth anniversary of the return of Napoleon's ashes from St. Helena.

Otto Abetz, Hitler's Ambassador in Paris, officially turned over the coffin to Admiral Jean Darlan, French Naval Secretary and personal representative of the French Chief of State, Marshal Henri Philippe Petain, who remained in Vichy.

Admiral Darlan laid a wreath upon the coffin as it rested before the altar of the parish church in Les Invalides.

Fernand de Brinon, French Ambassador, thanked Abetz for the gesture by Hitler, which de Brinon said was the act of a great leader.

Body Reaches Paris

The body reached Paris shortly after midnight.

By the light of torches German officers who brought it from the old Austrian capital turned it over to a detachment of German soldiers at the

Guard Of Honor Posted

After a short prayer by a priest gendarmes stationed a guard of honor for the night.

At a press conference before the body arrived Abetz declared Napoleon was the "precursor of the present revolution." He remarked that France might adapt herself to conditions in the new Europe and that the Duke of Reichstadt was a victim of the reactionary spirit which, although still powerful, would be ended by being conquered.

The return of the Duke's body gave reality to a dream of Frenchmen since his death.

Boy Taken To Vienna

When Napoleon abdicated in favor of his son, then 3 years old, the boy was taken by his mother, Marie Louise, to Vienna. Bonaparte escaped from Elba and, during the one hundred days leading up to Waterloo, an attempt to kidnap the Prince and take him to his father failed.

Napoleon once said he would rather the heir he long despaired of having be strangled than brought up as a Hapsburg prince.

But in the power politics following the Vienna Congress, Metternich frequently dangled the return of the heir as bait to the Bonapartists and as foil to the Bourbons, but the prince ultimately was deprived by his mother's house of title to her Duchy of Parma.

Made Duke Of Reichstadt

As compensation, he was made Duke of Reichstadt. He died in 1832 at the

BERN, SWITZERLAND, DEC. 15-(AP)-ANXIOUS FRENCH LEADERS ACTED QUICKLY TODAY TO CONSOLIDATE THEIR NEW LAVAL-LESS GOVERNMENT WITH SOME APPARENTLY FEARFUL THAT GERMANY EVENTUALLY MAY OCCUPY ALL FRANCE.

TO OBSERVERS OUTSIDE, HOWEVER, SUCH ACTION SEEMED UNLIKELY, FOR THE PRESENT AT LEAST.

(HEAVILY CENSORED REPORTS FROM VICHY ANNOUNCED THAT CHIEF OF STATE MARSHAL PETAIN, AFTER DISMISSING FORMER VICE PREMIER AND FOREIGN MINISTER PIERRE LAVAL, HAD ANNOUNCED PLANS FOR ORGANIZING A CONSULTATIVE ASSEMBLY TO ADVISE ON FUTURE REFORMS.)

RETURN TO PARIS OF THE REMAINS OF "L'AIGLON," NAPOLEON'S SON WHO DIED MORE THAN A CENTURY AGO IN VIENNA, APPEARED TO HOLD THE SPARK OF DISSENSION NOT ONLY BETWEEN LAVAL AND PETAIN BUT, POSSIBLY, BETWEEN THE VICHY GOVERNMENT AND GERMANY AS WELL.

LAVAL WAS SAID TO HAVE WARNED THE VICHY CABINET FRIDAY THAT ADOLF HITLER, PERSONALLY HAVING ORDERED THAT "L'AIGLON'S" REMAINS BE SENT TO PARIS TO LIE BESIDE THE BODY OF HIS FATHER UNDER THE GREAT GILDED DOME OF LES INVALIDES, CONSIDERED IT A GREAT GESTURE OF FRIENDSHIP TO THE FRENCH.

LAVAL, ACCORDING TO THESE REPORTS, HAD INDICATED TO THE GERMANS THAT PETAIN WOULD ATTEND TODAY'S CEREMONIES IN PARIS IN PERSON. HIS INSISTENCE ON THAT POINT WAS SAID TO HAVE BEEN THE INCIDENT WHICH

EXPLODED PETAIN'S PATIENCE AND, WITH THE HELP OF INTERIOR MINISTE
MARCEL PEYROUTON'S POLICE, BLASTED LAVAL OUT OF THE GOVERNMENT.
AS A RESULT, THE BUILD-UP FOR THE CER[illegible] WAS SWAMPED, NOT O[illegible]

VICHY, DEC. 15---CONTINUING THE OVERHAULING WHICH BEGAN WITH THE OUSTER OF PIERRE LAVAL AS VICE-PREMIER AND FOREIGN MINISTER, THE VICHY GOVERNMENT ANNOUNCED TODAY IT SOON WOULD ORGANIZE A CONSULTATIVE ASSEMBLY TO SHARE "CERTAIN RESPONSIBILITIES" WITH CHIEF OF STATE MARSHAL PETAIN AND HIS MINISTERS.

THE MARSHAL'S OWN CREATION, THE ASSEMBLY WILL ACT SOLELY AS AN ADVISORY BODY AND ONLY WHEN HE ASKS FOR ITS COUNSEL.

PETAIN, IT WAS ANNOUNCED, EXPRESSED THE THOUGHT THAT THE MOMENT HAD COME TO SUBMIT MANY OF THE NEW STATE'S REFORMS, ALREADY MADE, TO THE PEOPLE. A STATEMENT CREATING THE NEW BODY IS EXPECTED TO APPEAR SHORTLY IN THE OFFICIAL JOURNAL.

NOW THAT THE MOST ESSENTIAL REFORMS, "WHICH BY REASON OF CIRSUMSTANCE COULD NOT EASILY HAVE BEEN SUBMITTED TO PROLONGED DISCUSSION," HAVE BEEN MADE BY DECREE, IT WAS SAID FUTURE PROBLEMS WILL BE TAKEN UP WITH THE ASSEMBLY.

DEC 16 1940

IT WILL FUNCTION AT LEAST UNTIL A DEFINITE CONSTITUTION HAS BEEN DRAFTED FOR FRANCE.

INTERIOR MINISTER MARCEL PEYROUTON, WHO MADE THE ANNOUNCEMENT AFTER A CABINET MEETING, TOLD NEWSPAPERMEN HE COULD GIVE NO DETAILS OF THE MAKE-UP OF THE NEW ASSEMBLY BEYOND REPRESENTATION IN IT OF "POLITICAL BODIES WHICH GROUP LEADERS OF ALL ORDERS."

HE WARNED THEM TO BE CAREFUL SINCE, HE SAID, THE PRESENT SITUATION IS CONSIDERED DELICATE.

REORGANIZATION ALSO HIT THE COMPAGNIE GENERALE TRANSATLANTIQUE WHICH, AS THE FRENCH LINE, OPERATED NORTH ATLANTIC LINERS.

THE PRESIDENT OF THE LINE WILL BE NAMED BY THE FINANCE AND NAVAL MINISTERS WHO ALSO WILL APPROVE SELECTION OF ITS GENERAL DIRECTOR AND HIS ASSISTANT.

TEN MEMBERS WILL FORM THE ADMINISTRATIVE COUNCIL OF THE LINE, EIGHT APPOINTED BY THE TWO MINISTERS AND TWO BY STOCKHOLDERS. ALL THOSE CHOSEN BY THE GOVERNMENT MUST BE EMPLOYES OF THE TWO MINISTRIES AND NATIVE FRENCHMEN.

ANOTHER DECREE PROVIDED THAT FIRMS HIRING LABOR MUST TAKE ON A PERCENTAGE OF DEMOBILIZED SOLDIERS FIXED IN EACH CASE BY A LABOR INSPECTOR.

VICHY'S POLITICAL TEMPERATURE HAD COOLED DOWN AFTER THE EMOTIONAL CRISIS FRIDAY WHICH EDGED LAVAL OUT OF THE GOVERNMENT. ALTHOUGH IT HAD A DRAMATIC SETTING, THE SHAKE-UP WAS JUST A GOVERNMENT CHANGE MADE WITH PRECAUTIONS.

(AT THIS POINT THE REST OF THE DISPATCH WAS CENSORED.)

Glasgow, Scotland, Dec. 15 (AP)—Ernest Bevin, Minister of Labor, speaking here after being interrupted on two previous nights by hecklers who gave the Communist salute, declared tonight that the British Government has "to teach Russia that that method of carrying on her foreign policy does not pay in this country."

Bevin declared the Government has to face the issue as a matter of war strategy. His thrust at Russia was the sharpest public comment delivered in this country by a Government official since the German-Russian non-aggression pact was signed and the war began last year.

Japanese Flyers Blast Chinese Power Plant And Burma Road Bridge

[By the Associated Press]

Hanoi, French Indo-China, Monday, Dec. 16—Thailand (Siam) is continuing military operations against French Indo-China on a larger scale and has made air and artillery attacks on three principal towns along the Thai-Indo-China border, it was reported here today.

French officials said they expected that Indo-China was preparing greater reprisals for the attacks. "As there are no diplomatic contacts with Bangkok, therefore Indo-China must make representations with bombs and shells. However, we still are willing to negotiate with Bangkok if and when a peace mission is invited there."

Town Bombed Twice

Officials said that in addition to the latest attacks yesterday, Thai planes bombed Thakhek twice last Saturday.

One Frenchman was killed and two injured in an attack by Thai bombers on Vientiane. Air raiders also attacked Savannakhet yesterday and the planes dropped more than thirty bombs on the two frontier towns after nearly two peaceful days.

The third town attacked yesterday, Saravane, was bombed.

Besides the air bombing, Thai forces were said to have fired five artillery shells across the Mekong river into Savannahket.

SHANGHAI, Dec. 15 (AP)—United States missionaries in Japanese-occupied parts of China, who have been leaving or preparing to leave on the advice of the State Department in Washington, have received an offer from the Chinese Central Government at Chungking to pay their expenses to West China if they wish to continue their work there.

The offer from Chungking, which had Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek's approval, said free transportation from the borders of free China and other assistance would be provided.

Mission authorities here indicated they would like to accept the offer. It was disclosed, however, that the United States Government makes no distinction between Japanese-occupied territory and free China, and American consuls in China are granting no permits or passport visas to missionaries for travel into the interior of China.

Son of Dallin, Sculptor, Died in Battle of France

Fell in June, Father Hears; Was Stained-Glass Artist

ARLINGTON, Mass., Dec. 15 (AP).—Cyrus Dallin, seventy-nine-year-old sculptor of the widely known Indian statue, "Appeal to the Great Spirit," was notified by the State Department tonight that his son Arthur, a French Foreign Legion officer unreported since the Battle of France, died at Luzancy-sur-Marne on June 12. The message said only that Second Lieut. Dallin, who was forty-three and famous in his own right as a stained glass artist, had "died for France." It originated in the American Embassy at Vichy.

The younger Dallin, born in France, served with the French army during the World War, joining an ambulance unit at eighteen and later graduating from Fontainebleau military school with a second lieutenancy. He won a Croix de Guerre in that conflict.

In the interval between his military services, Lieut. Dallin lived in Boston and made stained glass windows for more than fifty churches in the United States.

Pact in Making To Link U.S. to Mexico Closely

Mutual Defense Plan May Be Effective in Year; Both Move 'Cautiously'

MEXICO CITY, Dec. 15 (AP).—A mutual-defense understanding between Mexico and the United States, expected to shape into a far-reaching program of military and economic collaboration within the next year, was reported unofficially today to be under discussion between Mexico City and Washington.

A source close to the administration of President Manuel Avila Camacho described the two governments as moving "cautiously" toward an understanding under which:

Financial assistance from the United States might be accepted for improvement of existing naval bases, which would be at the disposal of the United States Navy for servicing, refueling and repairs.

Mexican air bases might be enlarged and made available for American short-range fighter planes operating between the United States and the Panama Canal Zone, or for naval planes in support of the fleet in the event of actual warfare off Mexico's Pacific Coast, in the Gulf of Mexico or in the Caribbean Sea.

Linked with these discussions, this source disclosed, further conversations are under way contemplating: A border agreement patterned after that between the United States and Canada; possible transfer of four American destroyers to Mexico; limited mechanization of the Mexican Army with American financial aid; exchange of naval, air and army officers for a better understanding of defense problems, and Mexican guaranties to American capital for investment in Mexico.

It was emphasized that no concrete agreement has been reached so far on any phase of the discussions, and, this source declared, no United States Administration, control, construction or leasing of bases in Mexico was contemplated.

The discussions were said to be centering in Washington in a relay of opinions between the State Department and Avila Camacho through Francisco Castillo Nájera, Mexican Ambassador at Washington.

It was said that distrust of the United States still was deep-seated among some Mexicans, and that neither government wished to act in haste.

Mexican naval bases, which this source said might be improved with American financial help, probably would be [illegible] at Puerto Magdalena, Lower [illegible]rnia, and at Acapulco, on the Pacific Coast of the State of Guerrero.

Air base facilities, it was said, might be expanded at Hermosillo, Guaymas, Mazatlan and Tapachula, forming a chain across Mexico from the United States to Guatemala.

An anchorage for light naval craft and air bases for naval planes has been suggested at the Islas Mujeres, just off the Yucatan Peninsula.

Red Cross Plans Aid To France and Spain

By LLOYD LEHRBAS.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 16 (Monday) (AP).—The American Red Cross has made tentative arrangements to send food ships to Europe—one to Spain and the other to unoccupied France—it was learned authoritatively today.

Actual departure of the ships depends on a successful outcome of negotiations in progress between the United States and British Governments, and the prospects are considered good.

Norman H. Davis

While unwilling to exert pressure on the British Government for a general lifting of the blockade, the State Department, it was learned, is seeking permission for an American ship to proceed to Marseilles with a cargo of condensed milk and concentrated vitamin products for under-nourished children in unoccupied France.

Seeking a continuance of Spain's neutrality, however, Britain has granted permits for some food shipments from South America to Spain, where need already is acute, and is understood to be willing to sanction the projected $1,000,000 shipload of foodstuffs from the United States.

Spain Hungry Already.

Since the American Red Cross is a neutral humanitarian organization Norman H. Davis, its chairman, is reported in informed quarters to be insisting that any Red Cross help must go "to all who are suffering in Europe."

(An authoritative American survey of food conditions in Europe, now before the State Department, reported that none of the German-invaded countries would face actual starvation for another five to six months. The State Department, it was said, would therefore defer any action on the relief plans for those countries two or three months.

(The same survey emphasized, however, that Spaniards already were going hungry, with the situation daily growing worse, and that there was an urgent need for milk and vitamin products for children in unoccupied France.)

The Red Cross has in this war rendered assistance to Great Britain, Norway, Belgium, France, the Netherlands, Poland, Finland, Greece, Switzerland and Canada, it was pointed out, and offered assistance to Germany, which replied it needed no help.

An Associated Press dispatch from Petsamo, Finland, last night said that 13 "American" ships were unloading supplies there. The State Department, however, denied there were any U. S. ships in that Arctic port.

ROOSEVELT HINTS OF GRAVE CRISIS IN TALK

Return In March "If World Survives," He Tells Warm Springs Group

President Makes Statement After Hull Report. Leaves For Capital

[By the Associated Press]

Warm Springs, Ga., Dec. 15—President Roosevelt had a long telephone conversation with Secretary Hull in Washington today and later told patients at the Foundation for Infantile Paralysis Victims here he would spend two weeks with them in March "if the world survives."

The remark was made extemporaneously in a short talk at a luncheon, with no amplification to indicate whether any special significance should be attached to it.

Three hours later the President departed for the national Capital by special train. At the station he told the crowd he hoped to get back for a couple of weeks in March "if things go all right." He also told a personal friend a moment before leaving, commenting on international conditions, that he was "trying to keep things steady."

1939 Statement Recalled

Leaving Warm Springs for Washington in the spring of 1939 Mr. Roosevelt spoke somewhat prophetically when he asserted he would be back in the fall if there were no war. A few months later European nations were battling, but the President came to Warm Springs anyway.

Hull made his first verbal report to the Chief Executive in two weeks in this morning's conference by telephone. What phases of international conditions and diplomatic problems they discussed were not disclosed.

A special train brought the Chief Executive here at 9 A. M. from Charleston, S. C., where he ended yesterday a 4,000-mile inspection cruise of Caribbean and Atlantic defense outposts.

Faces Busy Time

His talk with Hull was a prelude to Mr. Roosevelt's consideration of numerous items of Government business upon his return to Washington tomorrow afternoon.

It will be so late when the President reaches Washington that aides said he probably would have no engagements tomorrow, unless he saw Hull, but that he expected to buckle down to work on a heavy schedule Tuesday.

Waving to friends and villagers as he left the train this morning, Mr. Roosevelt entered his own specially equipped auto, its Georgia license plates bearing the initials F. D. R. as their only inscription, and drove to the Warm Springs Foundation.

Patients Greet Him

It was anything but warm at Warm Springs, but patients were assembled on the porch of Georgia Hall, the foundation's administration building, to greet the President.

Accompanying him were Basil O'Connor, of New York, his former law partner, who is vice-president of the National Foundation for Control of Infantile Paralysis; L. C. Haughey, manager of the foundation here, and members of his secretarial staff.

After driving out to the Little White House on Pine Mountain, he toured the foundation grounds and returned to Georgia Hall for the lunch with the patients.

Shakes Hands With All

Mr. Roosevelt's afternoon schedule included a visit to his farm, several miles from the foundation, and a meeting with the foundation's trustees.

He had skipped his usual Thanksgiving visit to Warm Springs because at the time he still was adhering to his self-imposed rule of getting no farther than twelve hours by train from the Capital.

That rule was broken when he took the cruise, but the President said he could fly back to Washington if an emergency arose.

Foreign Trade Zone Declared Successful

Mayor LaGuardia Gets Report Of Ten-Month Survey On Benefits to New York

New York, Dec. 15 (AP)—America's foreign-trade zone No. 1 "has demonstrated definitely its value as a stimulant to trade and commerce," declared a report on its administration submitted today to Mayor F. H. LaGuardia.

"This is no longer a matter of prophesy; it is the record of accomplishment," said William B. Herlands, Commissioner of Investigation, and John McKenzie, Commissioner of Docks, who conducted a ten-month survey of the free-port system in New York.

Under foreign-trade zone laws, importers are allowed to enter goods into a specified area without paying customs duties, provided the goods are not brought into domestic commerce. New York's four-year-old foreign-trade zone on Staten Island, long an object of controversy by shipping men and warehousing concerns, is the only one in the United States.

British

CAIRO, Egypt, Dec. 15 (AP)—The Royal Air Force issued this communiqué today:

Our bombing aircraft have heavily raided all Italian landing grounds and airdromes in the advanced area in the Middle East, and in addition Bardia [in Libya] was selected for a particularly heavy attack. About fifty CR-42's [Italian planes] were on patrol over Bardia but our bombers persisted in their attacks, causing heavy damage.

Two enemy aircraft were destroyed on the ground at Derna and others were severely damaged. One fighter squadron with our advanced troops alone accounted for fourteen S-79's and four CR-42's. Three more S-79's and three CR-42's were shot down by other squadrons.

From these operations only three of our aircraft failed to return safely, but it is probable that at least one is safe on our side of the lines.

Cotrone Harbor [in Italy] was raided for the first time by our bombers on the night of Dec. 13-14. On the same night aircraft of the Fleet Air Arm made a successful attack on Tripoli [in Libya], securing direct hits on two ships.

British Army Headquarters issued this communique:

Operations are proceeding on the Libyan frontier, where our troops continue to press the enemy. A dust storm is raging and visibility is bad.

Other fronts: No change in the situation.

LONDON, Dec. 15 (AP)—The text of an Admiralty communiqué:

The following has been received from the Commander in Chief in the Mediterranean:

Our naval forces have been continuing operations along the [African] coast in support of the army between Sidi Barrani and Bardia. A night bombardment of Bardia was carried out with successful results. An abortive attack was made on a naval unit by E-boats and was driven off.

The submarine Naiade, which attempted to interfere with these operations, was immediately sunk by our destroyers.

Fleet Air Arm aircraft successfully attacked Tripoli the night of Dec. 13-14. Four tons of bombs were dropped and three direct hits on ships alongside were observed, as well as explosions and damage to warehouses. Ships in the harbor were also well bombed.

Units of the Fleet Air Arm have also been operating with the Royal Air Force in attacks on the Libyan coast.

The Air and Home Security Ministries issued this communiqué:

Enemy activity over this country last night was slight. In the early evening bombs were dropped in a town on the Thames Estuary. Several houses were damaged and a few people were killed and others injured. Elsewhere very little damage was done and very few casualties have been reported.

Another communiqué issued by the two Ministries:

No bombs have been dropped in any part of the country during daylight today.

The Air Ministry issued this communiqué:

Last night small formations of Coastal Command aircraft attacked the enemy-occupied ports of Brest and Lorient. All our aircraft returned safely.

ATHENS, Dec. 15 (AP)—The British Royal Air Force issued this communiqué today:

The Albanian port of Valona was raided by Royal Air Force aircraft twice yesterday. In a fierce attack bombs fell among military stores and in a motor transport park. A column of black smoke was seen to rise from the motor-transport concentration and, although clouds prevented full observation on the effects of bombing, army barracks were seen to be hit.

In a second attack an airdrome was bombed, all bombs falling in the target area, and enemy aircraft about to take off spun around on their wing tips and stopped.

From all operations our aircraft returned safely.

Greek

ATHENS, Dec. 15 (AP)—The Greek High Command issued this communiqué today:

Successful local fighting occurred at the front and new heights were occupied. The number of prisoners was considerable, and a number of machine guns and mortars have fallen into our hands.

The Ministry of Home Security issued this communiqué:

No raids on Greece today.

Italian

ROME, Dec. 15 (AP)—A communiqué issued by the Italian High Command:

After the evacuation of Sidi Barrani, Italian and English troops yesterday, the sixth day of a great battle, fought a bloody combat from dawn to sunset in the desert zone of Fort Capuzzo, Solum and Bardia. Attacks and counter-attacks were carried out without stops. The battlefield was strewn with groups of burning enemy tanks and armored cars.

But enemy pressure is not yet lessened.

Aviation worked feverishly with an admirable spirit of sacrifice that distinguished it, bombing and fighting ceaselessly. In yesterday's fighting eleven enemy planes were shot down in flames by our chasers. A survey of figures shows that twelve enemy planes were shot down the day before. Six of our bombers failed to return. The enemy made bombing raids on Bardia and Tripoli. Two enemy planes were downed over the latter city.

On the Greek front enemy attacks in various sectors were thrown back by our counter-attacks, during which the enemy suffered heavy losses. Our air formations carried out bombings with continuous efficiency against concentrations of Greek troops, supply lines and motor columns cooperating with land troops. Our picchiatelli [bombers] broke up road connections and bombed and machine-gunned enemy troops. Other squadrons hit a viaduct on the Salonika-Athens Railway line.

In East Africa our airmen bombed enemy military objectives in the Gallabat zone. On the Sudan border there was patrol and artillery activity. The enemy made air raids on some places in Eritrea without causing victims or notable damages.

The submarine Neghelli, under the command of Captain Carlo Ferraguti, torpedoed and sank an enemy cruiser of the Southampton type off the Egyptian coast.

Last night Naples was subjected to three air raids, with bombs being dropped on the port and incendiary bombs on the city. In the port a warship of medium tonnage was hit. Damages were not important, but some fifty of the crew are dead and wounded. A small motor sailboat was hit by another bomb and was sunk.

Fires in the upper stories of some dwellings were immediately put out through prompt intervention of firemen. Eight civilians were injured. The conduct of the population was exemplary.

A supplementary communiqué stated:

Today's war bulletin discloses that hard, bloody fighting is going on on the Cyrenaican [Libyan] frontier. As always, our war bulletins tell the entire truth in good as well as bad fortune. All speculations, enemy propaganda and guesses made regarding the great battle in progress on the Cyrenaican border therefore seem premature. This battle will last several days yet, maybe even more than a week. It therefore is necessary that calm, impartial observers reserve their judgment for the final outcome.

Italian forces in Libya, aided by faithful Libyan troops, are fighting with extreme courage, contending the ground with the enemy hand to hand and contributing effectively to the wearing down of his mechanized and human forces.

It is believed that the Italian forces actually engaged in fighting and those large numbers that are in reserve are more than enough to meet the situation.

With special reference to today's war bulletin, there is emphasized again the truthfulness of our communiqués, which mention even heavy damages suffered.

German

BERLIN, Dec. 16 (AP)—Today's German High Command communiqué:

Unfavorable weather hampered the activity of the German Air Force in mining British harbors.

On Saturday individual planes attacked several war-important objectives in South and Middle England, some flying especially low. One Middle England industrial plant was effectively hit by heavier caliber bombs.

No enemy planes flew over German territory. The enemy threw bombs at two places in occupied territory, without damage.

BERLIN, Monday, Dec. 16 (AP)—A communiqué said today:

During the evening of Dec. 15 a number of British planes, making use of a weather situation that provided cloud coverage, sought to attack the German capital.

Owing to the strong anti-aircraft defense, they were compelled to turn off northward and southward. Only a few planes managed to fly over one Berlin suburb, where only leaflets were dropped.

British Ask U.S. Cash Aid

EXACT NATURE OF REQUEST IS NOT DISCLOSED

Morgenthau Says Official News on It Must Come From White House.

NOT DEFINED AS A LOAN

Treasury Head Repeats an Earlier Statement That Congress Must Approve Any Aid.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 16 (A. P.).—The British Government, it was learned today from official quarters, has made a formal request to the United States for financial assistance.

The information came from highly placed persons who declined to be quoted by name.

The amount and the exact nature of the request were not disclosed, except that it was hinted the request could not be defined as an application for a "loan."

Reporters immediately asked Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau about the request. While he would not make a direct reply for quotation, he hinted broadly that the reporters had received correct information.

In recent weeks the Secretary had engaged in repeated by-play with newspaper men about the British not having asked for loans up to certain hours.

His 'Clock Has Stopped.'

Asked again today whether a loan request had been made up to 4 P. M., Eastern standard time, he replied: "My clock has stopped."

The implication of the statement was pointed out to him, and he said again: "All I can say is my clock stopped."

Mr. Morgenthau indicated that any official statement about the question of financial aid to Great Britain would have to come from the White House.

He said he had not talked to any congressional leaders and reiterated a statement of last week that no aid could be given without congressional approval.

Mr. Morgenthau told reporters last week that he had relayed to a group of high defense and fiscal officials secret data on British financial resources given him by Sir Frederick Phillips, Under-Secretary of the British Treasury.

No Comment on Outright Gift.

Mr. Morgenthau was asked today what the reaction of the other officials was to the report.

"Nobody fainted," the Secretary replied.

Asked about proposals to give money to the British, rather than lending it, Mr. Morgenthau said: "I have no comment on that."

Britain's need for airplanes, ships, munitions and other materials which Britain must buy in the United States for successful prosecution of the war.

"Such supplies will be needed at a constantly increasing pace and the British government is naturally anxious to make as full use as possible of the vast resources of the United States.

"This desire to make the greatest possible use of United States, as well as British, production inevitably raises the problem of dollar exchange which Sir Frederick Phillips has come over to discuss.

"His conversations involve the presentation of data enabling the United States Treasury to compare Britain's existing resources with her estimated needs."

Financial experts explained that dollar exchange maneuvers might involve purchase by the United States of British-owned American securities, thereby giving Britain dollars with which to pay for its purchase of United States war materiels.

It was said that if such purchases reach large proportions, Britain might find it difficult to buy sufficient dollars—either in exchange for pounds or British-owned American securities—without depressing either the British pound or American securities.

British Agency Reports Dollar Exchange Is Need

Outlines Problem of Obtaining Planes, Ships and Arms

By The Associated Press

A statement issued in New York last night by the British press services said that British official circles pointed out that the problem of United States financial aid to Great Britain is one of dollar exchange, closely linked with the need for airplanes, ships and other war materials. The press service statement said:

"British official circles, when asked for their reaction on reports received in London from Washington stating that 'formal application for financial assistance, had been made to the United States government and that this assistance would not necessarily take the form of a loan, pointed out that the whole question was one of dollar exchange.

"This was not an independent question but flowed directly from

Fate of Vichy in Balance.

BERNE, Dec. 16 (A. P.).—The fate of conquered France's Vichy government and possibly even total Nazi occupation of her soil was believed here today to depend on how the Axis takes the week end upheaval in the Cabinet of Chief of State Philippe Petain.

Reichsfuehrer Hitler's representative in Paris, Otto Abetz, arrived in Vichy today to talk to Petain. Berlin's approval of the ouster of Pierre Laval as Vice-Premier and Foreign Minister, observers said, may hinge on what the French Chief of State tells Abetz.

Diplomatic reports reaching here said that Laval, at first reported under guard in his own home, now was rumored to be a prisoner in Chateau de Pellevoison, along with the Republican leaders who face war guilt charges in the impending Riom trials which Laval himself advocated.

Authorized spokesmen in Berlin said that the Laval dismissal came as a surprise and that until the German Government has been fully informed of what it means the German press will not even report that Laval is out, succeeded as Foreign Minister by Pierre-Etienne Flandin. A special reason for Germany's reserve, they said, is that France has made only a truce with Germany and peace has not yet been re-established.

Banned German Troops

Fears that Germany eventually might occupy all of France stemmed from Petain's reported refusal to let Germany send troops through unoccupied France to aid Italian forces in Libya and Greece. Nazi preference for a route through France, instead of through Italy, was said to be to protect Italian home morale.

Although France is a beaten nation, informed persons here pointed out, transit of troops through the unoccupied zone without Vichy's consent would involve elaborate precautions both to maintain secrecy and to protect the Nazi column from sabotage. While railroads in the occupied zone are closely watched and partly operated by Germany, army railroads and all naval bases and ports in unoccupied France are completely in the hands of Frenchmen.

Diplomatic advices from Vichy said that Marshal Petain and his Ministers considered but turned down the German request on letting the troops pass because they looked upon it as an Axis attempt to obtain a hold on the French Mediterranean bases.

The new Minister of the Interior, Marcel Peyrouton, used the word "delicate" to describe the country's position in warning newspapers to be careful in their handling of a swift-moving series of events today.

These events included:

1. The announcement from Vichy that Marshal Petain intended to establish a consultative assembly to share what he described as "certain responsibilities" with him and his ministers.

2. The long awaited return of the remains of Napoleon Bonaparte's only son from Vienna to Paris which was said by informed spokesmen at Vichy to have been an important factor in the crisis which led to Laval's ouster last Saturday.

Dignitaries of France and Germany solemnly accompanied the remains of "L'Aiglon"—the Little Eagle—to Les Invalides in Paris, to lie beside the ashes of his father, placed beneath the great dome of the museum just 100 years ago.

Admiral Jean Darlan, French naval secretary, represented Petain, and received the coffin from Abetz. The body was returned at Hitler's personal direction, and French Ambassador Fernand de Brinon expressed gratitude, terming it the four hours. Her condition was not considered serious.

Despite the developments, it was announced by Capt. Vyvyam Drury, the Duke's aide-de-camp, that the Duke and Duchess and their party would sail for Nassau Tuesday afternoon on the Southern Cross, yacht owned by Axel Wenner-Gren, Swedish industrialist. They came here from Nassau last Tuesday on the same vessel.

A press representative of the Duke issued the following statement regarding the Duchess:

"Due, doubtless, to the activities attendant upon the move from St. Francis Hospital to the hotel, further slight complications developed late yesterday afternoon in the condition of the jawbone.

"As a result the Duchess of Windsor was ordered by Dr. Cartee to her bed. Later that evening, Dr. Cartee visited the Duchess and advised a full twenty-four-hours' complete rest."

Excitement Of Leaving Hospital For Hotel Results In Development Of Slight Complication

[By the Associated Press]

Miami, Dec. 15—The Duchess of Windsor, who underwent a major dental operation last Tuesday, has returned to bed on her doctor's instructions.

It was understood that the excitement of leaving St. Francis Hospital at Miami Beach yesterday and moving to a Coral Gables hotel caused a loosening of a blood clot which forms after such operations.

Considerable pain resulted and Dr. Horace L. Cartee instructed her last night to remain in bed at least twenty-

Hitler Speeds Envoy to Vichy to See Petain

Abetz Hastens From Paris as Fate of France Hangs in Balance—Nazi Press Shuns Any Mention of Laval's Ouster.

VICHY, Dec. 16 (A. P.).—Otto Abetz, Adolf Hitler's Ambassador in Paris, arrived here today with his staff, receiving military honors from a French detachment as they crossed the Allier River bridge.

Expressing belief that Abetz's visit had an extremely important bearing on future negotiations between Germany and France, observers said that they expected him to inform the French Government of Germany's attitude toward the dismissal of Pierre Laval as Vice-Premier and Foreign Minister.

Abetz is the first important German official to visit Vichy since the armistice.

gesture of a great leader.

The French press, giving prominence to the ceremony today, said that Hitler "invited Marshal Petain to attend the solemn ceremony" but that "circumstances prevented" the French leader from doing so.

GUNS AT READY, NAZIS ESCORT ABETZ TO VICHY

Troops Guard Envoy As He Visits Petain In Wake Of Laval Ouster

[By the Associated Press]

Vichy, France, Dec. 16—Rigidly disciplined Nazi troops, clicking heels and with sub-machine guns at the ready, swept into this little provisional capital tonight to guard Ambassador Otto Abetz on a visit that may set France on a new course dictated by the Axis.

[Associated Press Editor's Note—Some observers outside of France suggested that the Abetz visit might foreshadow total German occupation of France.]

It was the first time since France capitulated last June that such an official German party of military bearing had arrived from across the demarcation line in occupied France, although German officers have been seen about Vichy in the past.

Expected To See Petain

As Adolf Hitler's personal agent in Paris, Abetz was expected shortly to see Marshal Henri Philippe Petain, chief of state. It was believed that Petain would learn from him the German attitude toward the French Cabinet shakeup that ousted Pierre Laval as Vice-Premier and successor-designate to Petain.

The French Government maintained official silence on Abetz's visit, and officials said there probably would be no communique tonight.

The censorship generally, however, was considerably relaxed for the first time since Laval's resignation last week end.

Arrive In Four Cars

Abetz and his party of soldiers arrived in four automobiles which slid to a halt in front of a hotel near the French "capitol," the Hotel Du Parc.

Germans, guns in hand, mounted guard at the doorway, and the splendidly uniformed Abetz stepped down.

There also were French guards and French officers at the door, and the surrounding streets were filled with French policemen and plain-clothes men.

German journalists stiffly gave the Nazi salute, to which Abetz responded. The German guards gave the saluto to the French soldiers, who stood at rigid attention.

Civilians Look On

A silent little knot of French civilians hung about, watching, but drifted away when the German automobiles were driven elsewhere for the night. No attempt was made to disperse the small crowd.

Although there was silence concerning the nature of the visit, some French officials privately expressed the opinion that the conversations would be highly important for the future of German-conquered France.

Others suggested that Abetz might merely be seeking orientation concerning the new makeup of the Government, in which Pierre-Etienne Flandin succeeded Laval as Foreign Minister, and the post of Vice-Premier was abolished.

It was recalled also that Abetz was one of the principal negotiators with Laval in his recent Paris conversations concerning closer collaboration with Germany.

Fate Of Vichy Believed To Hang On Conference

Bern, Switzerland, Dec. 16 (AP)—Adolf Hitler sent Otto Abetz, his Paris representative, to Vichy today for conferences with Marshal Henri Philippe Petain, chief of state, and foreign observers here believed the visit might mean life or death for the reorganized French Government—possibly even total Nazi occupation of France.

What the future holds for the old marshal's regime, these observers said, hinges on what explanation he gives Abetz, sometimes called the "unofficial king of France," regarding the sudden dismissal of Pierre Laval as Vice-Premier and Foreign Minister.

[Editor's Note—A New York Times dispatch from Bern says Abetz went to Vichy because Petain refused to send a representative to see the Germans in Paris.]

Germany Surprised

Authorized sources in Berlin said the Cabinet upheaval at Vichy came as a surprise. They said also that not until Germany has obtained full information concerning the purpose, intentions and effects of the change, would the Nazi press even be permitted to publish the news of Laval's dismissal.

The special reason for Germany's reserve, these informants said, lies in the fact that France has merely reached a truce with Germany and that peace has not yet been established. They said also that France is a country largely occupied by German troops and that any change in the Vichy Foreign Ministry "naturally constitutes a milestone in French contemporary history.

Speculation Useless

German-French relations may or may not be affected decisively by Petain's action, the Berlin officials said, and added that any speculation is useless.

Berlin reports indicated the Germans are unconvinced that France, minus Laval, remained a likely recruit for the Axis-projected "new order in Europe."

Abetz, the first important German official to visit Vichy since the armistice, presumably was to determine whether Petain's assurance that nothing is changed in French-German relations could be taken at face value.

Action Predicted

The belief was expressed in some diplomatic quarters here that to reassure the Germans, the marshal would have to follow his statement with action. This might include giving Pierre-Etienne Flandin, Laval's successor as Foreign Minister, the same power in the Government previously enjoyed by the ousted Minister as Vice-Premier.

If Abetz's report to the Nazi Führer should be unsatisfactory, diplomats in Bern believed that Germany, to keep France in line, might threaten:

Complete occupation of France.

Harsher peace terms than the relatively moderate settlement reported offered Laval in return for French "collaboration" with the Axis.

Hitler May Hesitate

With Gen. Maxime Weygand still the unchallenged boss of French Africa, diplomatic observers reasoned Hitler might hesitate actually to impose either penalty.

Occupation of all France would increase Germany's administrative headaches without giving her any important advantage, it was said.

Possession of France's southern ports might provide bases for German aid to Italy in the Mediterranean, but it was pointed out Hitler still would face the problem of sending troops to Africa through the British fleet.

The other side of the picture, as viewed here, is that either total occupation of France or the threat of a harsher settlement to replace the existing armistice arrangement would lead to the total collapse of the Vichy Government.

Weygand A Factor

In such event, it is believed the Nazis would be compelled to weigh the possibilities of Weygand cutting the French African empire loose from the mother country and following an independent policy, backed by his still-intact colonial forces.

Italy would find Weygand's army behind her back in Libya—an eventuality she would consider with particular disfavor.

Laval was reported to have advanced the proposal—flatly refused by Petain — for the passage of German troops through unoccupied France instead of directly through Italy to protect Italian morale at home.

Since his ouster Saturday, Laval is rumored held a prisoner in Chateau de Pellevoison, along with the Republican leaders who face "war guilt" charges in the impending Riom trials.

It was Laval himself who advocated the trials.

Reich Holds Back News

BERLIN, Dec. 16 (AP).—Until the German government has full information concerning the purpose, intentions and effect of the change in France's foreign ministry, the German press will not even carry the news of Vice-Premier Laval's resignation, authorized sources here said today.

They reported that the French Cabinet change came as a surprise, and asserted that a special reason for Germany's reserve lay in the fact that France had made a truce with Germany but peace had not yet been established.

Authorized German spokesmen were silent tonight on the mission at Vichy of Ambassador Otto Abetz, and they declined to indicate whether his purpose was to obtain information on the political developments in the French capital or to present some German viewpoint. His presence at Vichy was not officially disclosed here.

Italian Version of Ouster

ROME, Dec. 16 (AP).—The newspaper "Il Messaggero" suggested today that royalist opposition to Pierre Laval might have caused his dismissal last week by Chief of State Petain. The paper reported that serious differences among the ministers had split Petain's Cabinet in recent weeks, while the royalist party, Action Francaise, was particularly hostile to Laval.

Former War Minister Louis Felix Maurin, closely associated with Petain, campaigned against Laval, "Il Messaggero" said, and Paul Baudouin, who had given up the Foreign Ministry to Laval, was a member of Action Francaise.

The newspaper said other French Cabinet changes were expected.

Francois-Poncet Called

BERNE, Dec. 16 (AP).—The Swiss press carried reports from Vichy today saying that Andre Francois-Poncet, a former French Ambassador at Rome and a leading figure in pre-war diplomacy, has been called from his Grenoble home to Vichy by Paul Baudouin, Secretary of State for the Office of State and supervisor of press, radio and motion pictures. There was no indication, however, as to whether Francois-Poncet would be assigned to a special diplomatic or other mission or would serve in a consulting capacity.

Spaniards Hint Reich Reaction on Laval Shift

Say Germany Can't Remain Neutral on Policy

MADRID, Dec. 16 (AP).—The Spanish newspaper "Informaciones," in a dispatch from Berlin, said today that the ousting of Vice-Premier Pierre Laval by Marshal Henri Petain "could provoke repercussions in future Franco-German relations," since Germany "cannot maintain a neutral position respecting Vichy's foreign policy."

Great prominence was given here to Vichy political news and many newspapers printed long articles from Berlin correspondents.

"The more critical the hour in the Mediterranean, the more important to the whole Continent are these unexpected changes in the French political stage," the "Alcazar's" Berlin correspondent wrote.

Swiss Line to France Reopens

VICHY, Dec. 16 (AP).—German authorities permitted resumption yesterday of passenger traffic on the Bellegarde-Geneva Railroad line—only direct rail connection between Switzerland and unoccupied France. The line passes through a narrow strip of German-occupied territory. The line had been reopened after the end of the fighting in France but service was suspended a few weeks later.

BRITISH TAKE CAPUZZO, FASCIST FORT IN LIBYA, AND PUSH ON FOR BARDIA

Capture Stronghold And Crush Last Important Opposition Inside Egypt By Overwhelming Bitterly Fighting Italian Garrison At Salum

[By the Associated Press]

Cairo, Egypt, Dec. 16—Britain's army of the Nile claimed its first big victory on Italian colonial soil today and simultaneously crushed the last important Fascist threat inside Egypt's borders by capturing Fort Capuzzo, just within Libya, and overwhelming the bitterly fighting Italian garrison at Salum, five miles from the Libyan border.

DEC 17 1940

Thus with one stroke reported in a bare announcement at British headquarters, troops of General Sir Archibald P. Wavell, Middle East commander, seized two points of a triangle of Fascist resistance in the western desert and on the Libyan frontier.

British advance guards were reported sweeping on into Libya and the next probable objective of the advancing British apparently was Bardia, Libyan port and key Fascist base.

Back To Where They Started 3 Months Ago

The British spearheads of motorized desert troops were reported to have set the Italians back at some points to where they started from more than three months ago.

Marshal Rodolfo Graziani, Italian commander in Libya, had been reported strongly intrenched in Salum and his men put up what the British said was a terrific battle before their pocket of resistance was taken.

While fighting was going on around Salum and Fort Capuzzo, British units were reported to have swept around them into Libya.

R. A. F. Hammers At Italian Bases

At the same time, the Royal Air Force was reported hammering Italian bases without letup.

R. A. F. bombers delivered a smashing attack upon Bardia and their planes were said to be penetrating farther into the Italian colony.

When the British began their surprise offensive across the western desert a week ago today, the Italians were authorita-

British Report Warships Hit in Naples Raid; Rain Slows Troops Driving Deeper Into Libya

Severe Fighting Rages in Rain From Salum to Bardia Across the Border—Rome Admits Pressure Is Unrelieved.

CAIRO, Dec. 16 (A. P.).—Five direct hits on a concentration of cruisers and destroyers in a British air raid on the Italian port of Naples on Saturday night were reported today by an R. A. F. communique.

It said that two Italian battleships also were attacked in the raid, but did not claim any direct hits on them. The five hits on the smaller war vessels, the communique said, resulted in four large explosions.

[An Italian communique admitted yesterday that one warship of medium tonnage had been damaged and fifty of its crew killed or injured and that a small motor sailboat had been sunk in three British air attacks on Naples on Saturday night.]

The R. A. F. communique said that one British bomber had dumped its entire load close to a battleship, and that bomb bursts caused fires on the jetty to which the big vessels were moored.

Bardia Also Is Attacked.

British planes also attacked Italian airdromes in the western desert of Egypt yesterday and caused "considerable damage in a raid on Bardia," the communique said.

Vanguards of Britain's army are well across the border into Libya, a General Headquarters communique reported today at the start of the second week of the British drive.

The Italians, however, were admitted still to be holding strongly defended positions about Salum, Egyptian port five miles east of the frontier in the coast sector, where heavy fighting has been going on for three days and three nights.

After fightin gyesterday almost blindly through dust storms, British forces were said to be forging ahead today in rain in the Salum—Fort Capuzzo—Bardia sector. The communique said that bad weather still was causing poor visibility.

[The Italian High Command reported bitter fighting in Libya, with heavy casualties inflicted on the British attackers by Italian warplanes.]

Rain Handicaps Attack.

Military sources said that the British wanted to keep the Italians on the run and that the desert rain might cause some delay. The advance is expected to slow down in any case, however, because of mopping-up operations and the extended communications lines.

It is mid-winter and the rainy season in North Africa now. Normally, rain falls for three or four days and is followed by three weeks of bright sunshine.

The Italian troops, battered almost incessantly by the big guns of British warships ranging along the coast, were said to be fighting desperately in an effort to halt the British drive near the Libyan frontier.

Fight for Bardia Expected.

British headquarters did not disclose whether Marshal Rodolfo Graziani had re-enforced his frontier stand from his large reservoir of Libyan reserves. The belief was expressed, however, that the Italian commander would make a determined effort to save Bardia.

Salum, military observers said, would be a valuable prize to the British. It offers a deep water port to which the British Mediterranean fleet could ferry troops and supplies, saving the long haul across the desert from Matruh.

Salum an Important Base.

These spokesmen said that if Salum fell to the British they would probably consolidate their position there to safeguard their gangplank to the sea before attempting another major thrust to the west.

Pilots returning from Bardia said they had had to fight their way through at least fifty Italian fighter planes. A communique yesterday said that twenty-four Italian planes had been shot down and two destroyed on the ground. One British squadron alone was credited with downing fourteen tri-motored Savoia bombers and four Fiat fighters.

Three British planes were reported missing.

Italians Admit Bitter Fighting.

ROME, Dec. 16 (A. P.).—Bitter fighting in Libya was reported by the Italian High Command today.

The British, it was acknowledged, "have continued pressure" along the Egyptian-Libyan frontier, but their attacks were stated to have been made under bombardment of Italian planes, which inflicted heavy casualties.

The Italian people, notified only yesterday that their North African forces had been driven back to Libya, still awaited word whether Marshal Rodolfo Graziani's reserves were able to stem the British advance. The High Command told them yesterday that the battle, the fiercest for Italian troops since the world war, "will last several days yet—maybe even more than a week."

tively reported to have 250,000 men, all told, in the Libyan army.

Of these, the British believe that less than 100,000 were involved in the present fighting, with the remainder scattered along the length and breadth of the vast Libyan desert.

Upward of 30,000 must be deducted as prisoners in the week's fighting, not including any prisoners captured at Salum and Fort Capuzzo and a large number of casualties.

Britain's air command in the Middle East also reported sharp blows against Italy.

Bomb Ships At Naples

Bucking bad weather Saturday night, an R. A. F. communique said, British bombers stabbed at the Italian west coast port of Naples and scored five square hits on a concentration of cruisers and destroyers. Four "large explosions" resulted, it said.

Two battleships also were attacked at Naples, the communique added. While making no claims of having hit either of them, it asserted that one plane dumped its whole load close to one and that bomb hits set fire to a jetty to which both were moored.

Bad weather apparently has dogged the British offensive, but good weather or bad, the British are expected to slow down their pace to mop up and protect their lengthened communication lines.

Midwinter Rainy Season

Other military sources said Sunday's sandstorms had become rain today in the Salum-Fort Capuzzo-Bardia sector.

This is the desert's midwinter rainy season, when downpours of three or four days can be expected, followed by weeks of bright sunshine.

Despite the bad weather, British planes backed up the land forces. Among objectives reported bombed in Africa were said to have been Bardia, Tobruk and Derna. Italy's chain of ports in Libya. Fierce fires visible for sixty miles were declared left blazing at Bardia.

The British vanguard consists mostly of tanks, armored cars and trucks carrying troops and artillery.

News Satisfactory

News of its progress was scant but what came through was satisfactory, military sources said.

One wounded soldier back from the front said it was a remarkable sight to see long columns of trucks carrying prisoners to the rear.

"We all had the impression that the Italians had no heart for the fight," he said.

Two soldiers taking thirty Italian officers and men to the British base became separated from the convoy in a sandstorm. They were only lightly armed but the Italian officers produced maps and compasses and helped navigate the trucks safely to Matruh.

Rome Navy Considerable Force Yet, British Admit

London, Dec. 16 (AP)—British naval circles commenting on Saturday night's R. A. F. raid on Italian warships at Naples, acknowledged tonight that the Italian fleet "remains a not inconsiderable force" capable of doing great damage if properly handled.

This frank admission of an enemy's sea strength was made as the Air Ministry and Admiralty claimed at least forty-five "casualties" inflicted on the Italian fleet in attacks up to, but not including, the Naples foray.

List Of Italian "Casualties"

The joint Air Ministry-Admiralty list of Italian "casualties" prior to the Naples raid was:

Four battleships damaged.
One cruiser sunk, four damaged.
Ten destroyers sunk, four damaged.
Twenty-four submarines sunk, others probably damaged.

This leaves, the British say, a "not inconsiderable" and presumably undamaged fleet as follows:

Two battleships.
Sixteen cruisers.
About 119 destroyers.
Eighty submarines.

Although the British respect the strength of this fleet, they are eager to bring it into action, naval circles added, but the Italians "have proved experts at keeping out of corners."

Huge Supplies Left by Fascists At Sidi Barrani

Writer There Says British Got Double the Material Used in Ousting Italians

By Edward Kennedy

WITH THE BRITISH FORCES AT SIDI BARRANI, Egypt, Dec. 16 (AP).—Here lies the wreckage of Premier Benito Mussolini's plan for the conquest of Egypt.

In this village—where the desert meets the sea and where the Italians had made their main stronghold in the strip of Egypt they occupied as a starting point for their invasion—and for miles around it are strewn enormous quantities of Italian supplies.

Vehicles, from carts to five-ton trucks, some of them intact and some wrecked, stand on all sides in the desert. Guns of all sizes, tanks, armored cars, countless cases of munitions and machinery, vast food stocks—everything a modern army needs—are here and in British hands.

[The British government announced capture of Sidi Barrani last Wednesday night after three days of fighting.]

British officers said they were astonished at the amount of supplies the Italians had brought in. It greatly exceeded the British estimates.

British Are Using Loot

The total war material captured in Egypt is more than double what was used by the British in driving the Fascists out of the country, the officers said.

Much of the material captured has already been put into service by the British, mainly for the staggering job of feeding and transporting the endless lines of prisoners (of which the British said Saturday there were more than 26,000). The rest of it is being sorted out.

On the shore here are two plants for distilling seawater, housed in tents big enough to cover a three-ring circus. In the three months while they occupied the region, the Italians planted water pipelines along the seventy-mile strip of desert and built roads, fortifications and camps. All this was labor lost, for the strip now has been wrested from them by numerically weaker British forces.

Nibeiwa, fifteen miles south of Sidi Barrani, fell to the British in an hour of fighting last Monday morning, and that was the key to victory. The British went on to take the east and west forts at Tummar, where stronger resistance, including a counter-attack by twelve tanks, was encountered but overcome. That night the tired British fighters bivouacked in the desert between here and Tummar.

While they rested, the British fleet shelled Sidi Barrani throughout the night, giving the Italians a preview of what was to come.

With the dawn the British column, made up entirely of English and Scottish regiments—started for Sidi Barrani, with tanks leading the way. Two-thirds of a mile south of here they came under fire from Italians entrenched on a ridge. The Fascist forces—two legions of Blackshirts and a division of Libyans—outnumbered the attacking British about four to one.

Battle Seven Hours for Ridge

Sidi Barrani was encircled at the time, since another unit had cut through to the coast west of the town, and another had just taken Maktila, on the coast ten miles to the east—but the attacking troops did not know that.

After seven hours of hard fighting, in which, the British said, the Blackshirts fought well and inflicted considerable casualties, the British drove them back and took the ridge at 2 p. m.

"When we got on the ridge, we saw the town and the blue sea behind it, and this gave us confidence," an officer said. "But the tanks left us to make a flank attack on the Italians, so we had less protection.

"We owe a lot to the R. A. F. They kept enemy planes off us for most of the time.

"Then a terrible dust storm came up, and it was a blessing, as the dust made us invisible to the enemy at 200 yards."

Outfought and weary, various Italian detachments began to give in, and by nightfall Sidi Barrani was in the hands of the British, though many groups remained to be rounded up. The final clean-up came Wednesday, when a British column marching westward along the coast arrived after having taken Maktila against strong resistance.

On Wednesday, Gen. Gallino, Italian Corps commander for Egypt, captured with his staff, asked permission to address his troops, and, in a pathetic speech, thanked his men for their struggle.

As Lively on Ground As in Egypt's Skies

LONDON, Dec. 16 (A. P.).—This log was reported by the Air Ministry News Service today for a British pilot of an eight-gun Royal Air Force fighter:

He shot down six Italian CR 42's in fifteen minutes over the western desert;

Then he was forced to land in British-occupied territory;

The next day, the truck on which he was returning to his base ran safely over a land mine, but the next car in line was blown up.

The following day the pilot was back fighting with his squadron.

GREEKS REPORT NEW GAINS ON BOTH FLANKS

Italian General And Colonel Killed In Defense Of Key Hill

Hellenic Forces Battle Through Snow In Drive On Elbasani

[By the Associated Press]

Athens, Dec. 16—Smashing new advances on both ends of the Albanian battlefront were reported tonight by the men of Greece battling retreating Italians in near Arctic conditions.

An Italian general and a colonel were killed, military dispatches from the southern front said, when Greek forces driving toward Valona, one of the three remaining ports held by the Italians, stormed and captured a bitterly contested height.

"These two officers," a dispatch said, "with revolvers in hand, induced their men to defend the position. However, both officers were hit in the breast and died. That was the sign for a wholesale Italian retreat and abandonment of the height."

Fascists Leave Many Dead

The Greeks said the fleeing Fascists left many dead, including other senior officers.

A Government spokesman announced the capture of 200 prisoners and 1 senior officer when the Italians were driven from a position in the Dvinos river valley, and said the Italians suffered heavy losses in that sector.

"The Italian army always retreats toward the sea," the spokesman said. "I would like to add as we are now entering the eighth week of war that the initiative always belongs to us and, in spite of the rough winter, the morale of our troops is excellent."

Counter-Attacks Fail

Referring to Italian claims of counter-attacks, the spokesman said: "In fact, the Italians have counter-attacked with choice troops, but all their attacks have failed in the southern sector. Choice troops have tried to capture the Skivovik heights which have been occupied and are being held by our troops."

Battling through snow three to four feet deep, tough Greek mountaineers thrusting toward Elbasani from Pogradetz, on the northern front, were said to have battered down massed Italian reinforcements to win important new heights and large numbers of prisoners.

Daniel de Luce, Associated Press correspondent with the Greek army, said reports to the headquarters where he is located pointed to imminent Greek successes, possibly surpassing those registered with the capture of Koritza and Argirocastro, main bases of the reversed Italian invasion.

Valona's Docks Ruined

His dispatch said that the steady pounding of Valona by Greek and British planes had ruined the regular docks and that the Italians now were having to disembark reinforcements in small boats from transports anchored two miles offshore. Greeks said not a single piece of Italian fighting equipment was known to have entered Albania in recent days.

With the weather becoming worse, Greeks said their transportation agencies still were operating efficiently.

Movements Hampered

Captured Italian prisoners indicated that the weather was seriously impeding Fascist supply trains. They were quoted as saying that hundreds of their fellow Italians had fallen out of action due to frostbite and pneumonia.

The Greeks said that many of the prisoners told of proceeding for several days without food and ammunition. So difficult had the going become, that retreating Italians were said to have abandoned all heavy equipment and even their wounded.

The Greeks themselves burrowed into the hard-crusted earth and sought relief from the bitter cold in straw-covered pits.

Despite the bad weather the Greek Air Force was declared to have kept active both in reconnaissance and surprise attacks on Italian troop concenrations.

Flanking Movement Attempted.

The Greeks said that the Italians, attempting to counter-attack, were "repelled and dispersed in such a way as to lose contact with the bases from which they started."

There were indications that the Greek drive beyond Pogradetz, along the Albanian-Yugoslav frontier, included an effort to flank the Italians by smashing them back from their border forts and leaving their left wing "in the air."

A dispatch from the front said that "Greek troops succeeded in making a general advance over a wide area in the mountainous region held by the enemy above Pogradetz, where the Italians had concentrated all their reserves."

This report said that Greek artillery smashed "permanent enemy fortifications along the Yugoslav-Albanian frontier" in a three-day bombardment, clearing the way for "stormy charges by Greek infantry."

Women Toil to Aid Troops.

An Associated Press correspondent in that region said Greek peasant women toiled in the cold to keep communications open and to spare men for actual fighting. Their faces wrapped in shawls against the biting cold, the women were said to have shoveled the way for troops through four-foot snowdrifts in the passes.

One Greek cavalry sergeant said that women had played a similar part in the Greek capture of Premet earlier in the push into Albania.

"There were times," he said, "when every man was needed for fighting. Then it fell to the women to bring supplies and ammunition up the mountain sides. Many of them carried seventy and eighty-pound packs on their backs up 3,000-foot peaks.

Claims to Have Repelled Attacks.

ROME, Dec. 16 (A. P.).—The Italian High Command today reported bitter fighting in Albania, where, it said, Greek attacks were repulsed with considerable losses on both sides.

DEC 17 1940

Fall of Tepeleni Expected Soon.

LONDON, Dec. 16 (A. P.).—British military spokesmen declared today that information from Greece indicated that the advancing Greek forces were expected soon to take Tepeleni, the Albanian crossroads town midway between Argykastron and the Port of Valona.

in small boats launched from transports anchored two miles from the regular docks.

Not a single piece of Italian fighting equipment is known to have been landed in the past few days, the Greeks declared.

Entire Battalion Captured

Italian prisoners stream day and night through Ioannina, Greek lakeside industrial town thirty miles from the Albanian border. Last night's arrivals included an entire battalion and its chaplain. Some prisoners cheerfully went to work cleaning Greek barracks.

Captured Italian trucks, motorcycles and bicycles now are doing duty for the Greeks, augmenting the kingdom's transport system over icy, rutted roads deep into Albania.

Although the Italian air force no longer menaces Ioannina, one of the early objectives of the Fascists, the townspeople are completing air-raid shelters within the walls of a Turkish fortress, remnant of Ottoman rule existing here until the Balkan war of 1912.

Civilians' Morale High

Civilian morale is high and the town is bustling like a mid-Western county seat in the United States on fair day.

Greek volunteers from Istanbul, Turkey, now have reached the southern sector and are keeping pace with Greece's famed mountain troops in the Arctic type of warfare.

Shepherds who brought their flocks to foothill pasturages, which now have become battle grounds, watch this modern military activity with awe.

Their sheep bolt across the fields in panic as army vehicles rumble past.

The news of British victories in Egypt has become a topic of discussion of greater interest in these parts even than the recent Greek gains.

"I guess we showed them how," remarked a corporal who used to work in a Boston (Mass.) shipping agency.

Greeks Advancing

DEC 17 1940

By Daniel De Luce

Associated Press Foreign Correspondent

With the Greek Army on the Southern Albanian Front, Dec. 16—Against odds of freezing weather and bitter Italian rearguard resistance, Greece's fighters reported today they had pushed their lines forward on a snowy front running half the length of Albania.

Tough Greek infantrymen, swathed in khaki woolens, carried the brunt of the attack, it was reported in front-line military dispatches reaching this base.

Italians Unable To Land

The Italians continued throwing reserves into the scattered mountain battles, but all reports pointed to imminent Greek successes possibly surpassing those gained in the capture of Koritza and Argirocastro, main bases of the thwarted Fascist invasion of Greece.

Constant aerial pounding of Valona harbor has hampered Italian efforts to land troops and they now are having to disembark reinforcements

Battle-Weary Greek Troops Slog On In Chest-Deep Snow

Observer Describes Hardships Endured By Hellenic Infantry In Treacherous Mountains Of Albania

By J. WES. GALLAGHER

DEC 17 1940

With the Greek Army on the Albanian Northern Front, Dec. 16—Greek artillery hurled captured Italian shells into Italian emplacements high on a mountain northeast of Pogradetz today while Greek infantrymen struggled forward in four-foot snows.

I stood on a snowy mountain pass 2,000 feet above the southern tip of Lake Ochrida while the Greek cannon lobbed shells over my head across the end of the lake and into the mountains several kilometers beyond.

Italian batteries replied, stirring up clouds of smoke in a village below.

Italians Aided By Weather

The Greek forces have advanced beyond Pogradetz, but one Italian stronghold remains on a small mountain-top plateau several thousand feet above the lake. The Italian position there is aided by the weather, for Greek foot soldiers have to flounder through snowdrifts armpit deep in many places.

A bearded young captain explained the situation as he tinkered with a trench mortar in a near-by farmhouse.

"We must do everything on foot," he said, "and that takes time, particularly with weather conditions as they are now."

I obtained a personal glimpse of these "conditions" in driving a battered American-made station wagon along mountain roads which would have offered a challenge even to a goat.

Roads Glazed With Ice

Snow-packed and glazed with ice, these roads hugged towering peaks, with rock walls on one side and sheer drops on the other.

Winding over them were ceaseless strings of donkeys and the small horses typical of this region, with huge packs of munitions and food for mountain troops.

Occasionally the red-eyed drivers, with tents strapped around their shoulders to keep out the bitter wind, would lighten their animals' loads by packing part on their own backs as the horses slipped on the ice.

Weary Greeks Push On

Even in darkness, these weary lines pushed onward.

Here and there were grim reminders of the cost—spots where horses had slipped over the brink or had been hit by shell fragments.

One tractor with a large flatbed wagon could have carried as much as a whole train of such beasts.

Despite such terrific handicaps, the Greek infantry never has given up harassing the Italians, never has allowed them a chance to dig in and construct new fortifications.

Fighting Three Weeks

One grimy infantryman, trudging up the mountain in the snow, said he had been fighting on this front almost three weeks and in some places had found is so rough that he had to use his bayoneted rifle as a walking stick to advance up the craggy slopes.

The Greeks admit they are not accustomed to the terrific snow and cold being encountered here, but there has been no apparent slackening of their morale.

The colonel of one regiment walked into a first-aid station with a four-day-old wound over one eye. He refused to consider the doctor's order that he go back to a hospital, but got an emergency dressing and left on foot to rejoin his troops.

While the infantry presses on, the Greek artillery is keeping up a steady fire on the Italian positions One artillery officer told me four-fifths of the shells being fired by his battery were captured from the Italians.

Italy Battling To Lift Morale On Home Front

Serena Orders More Aid to Poor, Says Black Shirts Will Quell Dissenters

ROME, Dec. 16 (AP).—An intensive campaign to reinforce morale in industrial north Italy began today as the high command announced bitter fighting in Albania and Libya against strong Greek and British attacks.

"Considerable" losses for both sides resulted, a communique said, when Italians repulsed Greeks on the Albanian battlefront. Italian planes bombing British units engaged in the Egyptian-Libyan frontier offensive were said to have caused heavy casualties.

Meanwhile the Italian people, who were told officially only yesterday of the fall of Sidi Barrani (which the British captured on Wednesday) and of the retreat by the Italians into Libya were declared in high Fascist circles to be "unshakably decided to face any events."

This assertion came from Adelchi Serena, the Fascist party's secretary, as he announced a winter "battle on the internal front" following a conference held by him and provincial Fascist chiefs at Premier Benito Mussolini's home city of Forli.

Serena reported to Mussolini "assurance that Black Shirts and the Italian people are unshakably decided to face any events," declaring: "Absurd hopes of the enemy so far as the Italian people's resistance is concerned are and will be still more bitterly disappointed by facts."

Intensified aid for the needy, with local Fascist headquarters to be kept open twenty-four hours a day, was ordered by Serena. Fascist women are to visit military hospitals and fighters' families. Fascist officials are to watch over supplies, rationing and prices.

ALBANIAN LEADER KILLED

Bomb Ends Life Of Xhafer Ypi, Ex-Minister Of Justice

Rome, Dec. 16 (AP)—The Albanian news agency reported tonight from Tirana that Xhafer Ypi, 60, Albanian Minister of Justice and chief of the provisional government which turned Albania over to Italy in April, 1939, had been killed by an aerial bomb.

He came to Rome to present the crown of Albania to Italy's King.

BRITISH ANNOUNCE FAST NEW WARSHIP

Gayda Says Axis Will Attack With Navies in 1941.

LONDON, Dec. 16 (A. P.).—Strengthening their forces at sea, the British have launched "a formidable addition" to the Royal Navy, the Press Association announced today. She was said to be a fast vesseel, but nothing else about her was made public.

Earlier, a maritime expert, estimating that the Axis blockade was costing Britain 62,000 tons of shipping a week, said that an unspecified number of destroyers were being built for convoy duty and that the effort to persuade Ireland to let Britain use her seaports was continuing.

He added, however, that if these efforts did not meet the challenge posed by the blockade, then Britain would simply "put guns before butter."

ROME, Dec. 16 (A. P.).—Virginio Gayda, editor of Il Giornale d'Italia, said yesterday that with growing naval forces the Axis would carry the war against Britain to the sea in 1941.

The German Navy would be enlarged soon with the addition of two powerful 35,000-ton battleships, and "the Italian Navy, too, remains strong and ready and on the increase," he declared.

Italy's two "great battleships," which the British Prime Minister, Winston Churchill, "wanted to pass off as lost," would soon be "in perfect shape again," he added.

Charcoal-Burning Plane Reported in Italy Flight

Paper Describes Successful Test Near Milan

ROME, Dec. 16 (AP).—A flight by a charcoal-burning airplane, said to have been the first ever made, was reported today by "Il Messaggero."

The newspaper said the flight was made by Constantino Mazza in a Breda plane powered by a "gasogene" motor yesterday near Milan.

A special apparatus said to have supplanted the plane's gasoline tanks was described as weighing 176 pounds—ninety-nine pounds of charcoal and a low temperature furnace to convert the charcoal into gas.

4 SWISS KILLED AS TEN BOMBS DROP ON BASEL

Widespread Damage Done—Mistake By British Raiders Suspected

Movie Patrons In English Town Die When Nazi "Crump" Hits Theater

[By the Associated Press]

Basel, Switzerland, Tuesday, Dec. 17

Four persons were killed and widespread damage done when ten aerial bombs exploded in the heart of Basel just before last midnight.

The bombs were believed to have been dropped by British raiders mistaking this blacked-out city on the German border for one of their objectives in Germany.

One bomb ripped through the central railway station, but exploded without casualties.

Another fell in Winkelried Square, behind the station, killing a woman who was running for shelter.

Three Killed In Suburb

Three persons were killed in the suburb of Dininger, a mile from the center of the city, second largest in Switzerland.

The bombs caught Basel completely by surprise. The sudden drone of airplane motors was followed immediately by the blasting high explosives and a spatter of anti-aircraft fire from German guns across the Rhine.

Several minutes later an alarm sounded, and the all clear did not come for more than an hour afterward.

Some of the streets where the bombs fell were littered with debris.

Germans Dump Death On Theater In Britain

London, Dec. 16 (AP)—Bad flying weather handicapped German raids on Britain tonight following the R. A. F.'s heavy overnight assault on Berlin and three other Reich war centers.

One bomb struck a theater in a northwest town, killing or injuring an undetermined number of persons, and high explosives shattered six homes in one western Midlands town. Several persons were believed trapped in the wreckage.

Sheffield Raided Again

Sheffield was heavily raided again last night, but the number of dead was said to be fewer than expected from the proportions of the attack.

Two bombs fell in London before midnight, one near a nurses' home, but damage was said to be slight.

Although London had only two brief air alarms tonight, many in the capital had been expecting far worse, as reprisal for the R. A. F. raids on Berlin the night before.

One explanation for the lull was the heavy mist and a southwest wind over the Dover Strait.

The alarm did not sound in London until one raider swooped on the metropolitan area, dropped a stick of bombs and was greeted with a blast of anti-aircraft fire.

The first attack on Berlin, at 9 o'clock last night, was hampered by clouds, the Air Ministry news service reported, but it said the bombers were able to drop explosives on "factories and railway stations" and start "a big fire."

Raid Kept Up For Hour

Some raiders had to seek alternate targets, but the second wave of attackers, roaring over at 3 A. M. today, had clear visibility and was said to have maintained the raid for more than an hour.

The R. A. F. missiles hit railroad junctions, freight yards, a power station and a railway siding, the Air Ministry said, with one rack of bombs in the center of a junction starting a fire which was "still increasing" as the bombers left for home.

Other forces of the R. A. F. bombed Frankfurt-on-the-Main, important inland port. Also attacked were the Kiel shipyards and the port of Bremen.

The Germans flew sporadically against Britain during the daylight hours and were over East Anglia and a west Midland town as night fell.

Nazis Machine-Gun Town

While Sheffield marshaled all available food stocks and electrical cooking apparatus to feed the homeless from last night's raid, the Nazis threatened Liverpool for a short while; dropped a dozen bombs on the outskirts of London and machine-gunned a town and a passenger train in East Anglia.

The train crew and passengers plunged into a ditch and the only casualty was a fireman wounded by a bullet.

One bomber dropped a stick of high explosives outside a south coastal town. Most of the day raids were said to have been carried out by "lone wolf" planes.

The British permitted disclosure of the fact that the American Club in Piccadilly was damaged during a recent air raid. Its president said the club would continue.

4 Killed In British Aid Raids On Berlin

Berlin, Dec. 16 (AP)—Four persons were killed and twelve wounded in British air raids on Berlin last night, the German high command reported today, acknowledging some damage.

A communique said some houses were damaged and two hospitals hit, while a suburban rail line was "temporarily disturbed."

A church was reported destroyed at Herford, in eastern Germany, while one bomb was said to have started a fire in a central German factory. The high command said the fire was extinguished quickly, entailing no production disturbance.

One raiding plane was reported shot down by a German ship. The communique said there were no Nazi plane losses during the night.

U-boat Skipper Claims Quarter-million Tons

BERLIN, Dec. 16 (A. P.).—The German High Command announced in a special communique today that Lieut.-Commander Otto Kretschmer had become the first German submarine commander to sink more than 250,000 tons of shipping.

Kretschmer, who had just returned from a cruise, reported the sinking of 34,935 tons for a total of 252,000 tons thus far.

"Included in this total tonnage are three auxiliary cruisers and the British destroyer Daring," the High Command said.

The British Admiralty announced the loss of the 1,375-ton Daring with 157 men on February 19 last.

Sheffield Food Stocks Gathered for Homeless

Sightseers Add to Troubles After Second Big Raid

SHEFFIELD, England, Dec. 16 (AP).—All available food stocks and electrical cooking apparatus were commandeered today for canteens feeding Sheffield's homeless after last night's air attack, the second of large proportions on this heart of Great Britain's steel industry.

The number of persons killed was described as fewer than might have been expected, but destruction of many houses added to the lists of the homeless. Mobile canteens circulated through the battered areas supplying meals.

Sightseers added to the difficulties. Chief Constable Maj. F. S. James appealed to the curious to stay away to avoid putting extra burdens on traffic control.

BEAVERBROOK IS BOOSTED FOR POST AS ENVOY

Press Association Says His Qualities Would Have Appeal In U. S.

Doubt Expressed Lloyd George Will Be Appointed Ambassador

[By the Associated Press]

London, Dec. 16—The qualities and career of Lord Beaverbrook, newspaper owner and Minister for Aircraft Production, were cited today by the Parliamentary correspondent of the British Press Association as ones which would help him if he were named Ambassador to the United States.

He described them as "of a kind which many think would have strong appeal in the States and should he go on a special ambassadorial mission the resulting reshuffle of the war Cabinet might create a vacancy which Lloyd George could be prevailed upon to fill."

The correspondent expressed the opinion that David Lloyd George would not be appointed and added, "It is asking too much of a man just before his seventy-eighth birthday to expect him to cross the Atlantic and undertake so onerous a responsibility."

Nazis Inquire Into Neutrality Of U. S. Patrol

Ask What Destroyers Are Supposed to Do if They See 'Warlike Actions'

BERLIN, Dec. 16 (AP).—The official news agency, D. N. B., commenting on statements it said the United States Navy Department gave out in connection with the sinking of the Nazi freighter Idarwald and an attempt on the merchant ship Rhein by the British, said today: "It would be interesting to know what instructions American destroyers have in the event they are witnesses to war-like actions within the security zone patrolled by themselves."

"The American Navy Department gave out these two items of news without saying anything about the role of American destroyers which the two German vessels met soon after leaving harbor," the news agency said. "The Idarwald's captain, on inquiry, was told that American ships were ordered to accompany the German vessels to the limits of the American security zone."

The Idarwald was sunk off Cuba on Dec. 8 after she left Tampico, Mexico, in an apparent attempt to slip through the British blockade. The Rhein, which left Tampico at the same time, last was heard from after radioing on Dec. 1 that she was being followed by a warship.

[An account of the Idarwald incident, which occurred within the American neutrality belt, was given out by the Navy Department in Washington to the effect that the Idarwald's crew set her afire when a British cruiser approached.

[The Navy Department announced on Dec. 11 that the Rhein on that date was "in possession of the Dutch destroyer Van Kinsbergen" off the coast of Cuba, apparently in the vicinity where British cruiser Diomede had taken the Idarwald.]

Brazilian Cases Settled

RIO DE JANEIRO, Dec. 16 (AP).—Three cases of British action against Brazilian merchant ships apparently were settled satisfactorily today. An official announcement said the Siqueira Campos case had been settled, and informed sources reported the Buarque and Itape cases also were closed.

Ships Were Detained

The Siqueira Campos, 6,456-ton cargo-passenger ship, was halted recently off Portugal and escorted to Gibraltar, a contraband control station, by British warships.

Capt. Juan Joaquin Moura, of the 5,152-ton Buarque, charged on Dec. 7 that thirty-two cases of cloth and thirty-eight cases of perfumed alcohol were removed from the ship's cargo at Trinidad because the consignees, two Venezuelan firms, were on Britain's blacklist for having traded with Germany.

On Dec. 2 the British auxiliary cruiser Carnarvon Castle halted the Itape, 4,978-ton coastal steamer, eighteen miles off the Brazilian coast and removed twenty-two Germans over the protests of the Itape's master.

'We Are Not Downhearted!' Bristol Crowds Shout To King

Woman Tells Monarch How She, Baby And Daughters Were Buried In Ruins Of Home

[By the Associated Press]

Bristol, England, Dec. 16—King George VI drove through crowds of cheering townspeople today on a tour of several miles of destruction inflicted on the city by German bombers.

The King stood on a heap of blackened ruins which once had been the home of Mrs. Beatrice Herbert while she told him how she and her baby and three other daughters were buried under tons of rubble in a recent air raid.

"I thought none of us would ever come out alive, your Majesty," the woman said. "It seemed days rather than hours before we were dug out."

"You are a brave woman," the King told her as they walked together through the debris-littered section.

The King talked with many survivors, and at several points his car was slowed by crowds shouting:

"We're not downhearted!"

In one area the King saw how nearly every building for a quarter of a mile had been reduced to twisted girders and a few scarred walls.

Canadian Hard-Rock Miners Boring Tunnels In Gibraltar

Sappers Working Night And Day On Defenses—The "One Thing We Can Do Well"

[By the Associated Press]

London, Tuesday, Dec. 17—Hard-rock miners representing every province in Canada are engaging night and day in extensive tunneling operations on the Rock of Gibraltar, Britain's vital defense bastion guarding the Mediterranean entrance, it was disclosed today.

Major Colin Campbell, former Ontario Public Works Minister, who heads heads the detachment of the Royal Canadian Engineers, has just returned from Gibraltar after seeing his sappers get under way with their work.

Capt. Perry Hall, of Vancouver, who was working at Uort Arthur, Ont., before he poined the engineers, returned with Major Campbell.

"This is one thing we can do well and the British are glad to have us there," Major Campbell said.

The vast tunnels being bored into the big Rock will bear the names of Canadian Provinces, he said.

To Control Apple Price

London, Dec. 16 (AP)—The Ministry of Food today announced the price of apples grown in the United Kingdom would be controlled after December 26.

Tobacco 'Paid' to London

Turkish and Greek Leaf Arrives As Interest on Debts

LONDON, Dec. 16 (AP). — Three thousand tons of Turkish tobacco and ninety tons of Greek tobacco, the first of a consignment valued at £800,000 ($3,200,000) which Great Britain is taking in payment of interest on British loans to her two Near Eastern friends, has arrived in England.

This tobacco is to be "mixed" with stocks of American leaf on hand to produce a new blend to British smokers early next year. To conserve dollar exchange, purchases of American tobacco have been stopped and a change to Turkish is being made gradually.

Oldham Mills To Work Overtime In Britain

Two And A Half Hours Weekly To Be Added For Two Months Starting December 30

London, Dec. 16 (AP)—Two and one-half hours' weekly overtime in the Oldham Mills, in the heart of Britain's cotton spinning area, will start December 30 for two months' duration as "an immediate measure to maintain essential production."

The decision was reached at Manchester in a meeting today of representatives of a number of cotton spinning mills and employers' and operatives' organizations.

Rumania Bars Poultry Exports

BERLIN, Dec. 16 (A. P.).—A Bucharest dispatch to DNB, the official German news agency, said today that the Rumanian Government had forbidden the export of poultry, eggs, peas and oilcake, on the ground that existing stocks are barely enough for Rumania's needs.

British Troops Help Move Christmas Mail

LONDON, Dec. 16 (AP).—Several thousand soldiers today began helping the railroads dispatch Christmas cards and packages—their help sought because of public response to a "mail early" plea. The soldiers will work eight-hour shifts at all main terminals and railway stations until the night before Christmas.

Besides, thousands of volunteer wives and sweethearts of postal employees are helping sort the mail.

BRITAIN ON OFFENSIVE

Labor Chief Sees Nation 'Handing It Out.'

LONDON, Dec. 16 (A. P.).—Great Britain is shifting from a purely defensive policy to a general offensive in all theaters of war, George Gibson, chairman of the Trades Union Council, broadcast tonight.

"From now on," he declared, "our blows will grow heavier and the internal problem of the dictators will become more and more acute. From now on we shall be handing it out as well as taking it."

BEVIN WARNS SOVIET

British Minister of Labor Critical of Russia.

LONDON, Dec. 16 (A. P.).—The British Minister of Labor, Ernest Bevin, speaking in Glasgow, Scotland, made the sharpest public thrust at Russia last night that any official has made here since the war began.

The British Government, he declared—after having been interrupted on two previous nights by hecklers giving the Communist salute—has got "to teach Russia that that method of carrying on her foreign policy does not pay in this country."

DONOVAN IN LONDON

U. S. Emissary Arrives by Air on Secret Mission.

LONDON, Dec. 16 (A. P.).—Col. William J. Donovan, former Assistant United States Attorney-General, arrived here today, but kept his mission a closely guarded secret.

"I can't say anything about why I am here," he declared, "but please don't make me either mysterious or important."

He arrived soon after the nightly blackout and said he thought London was taking the war "in swell shape."

The trip by automobile from a south coast town where the plane from Lisbon landed him was uneventful, he said.

PATRIARCH NOT HELD

Vatican Denies British Curb Bishop of Jerusalem.

VATICAN CITY, Dec. 16 (A. P.).—L'Osservatore Romano, the Vatican newspaper, declared today that the Italian-born Patriarch of Jerusalem, Mgr. Luigi Barlassina, "continues to go freely about his duties" contradicting reports that he was being held in his Patriarchal palace.

"Information has been received here," l'Osservatore said, "that the Patriarch continues to go freely about his duties and to carry on his mission in the field with that zeal and that charity for which he is much esteemed by the authorities and venerated by all classes of the populace."

Reports that the British authorities in Palestine had imposed restrictions on the movements of the Patriarch were denied in Jerusalem by both the Patriarchate and the British officials.

Four Freighters Unload At Ice-Free Petsamo

Truck Moves Cargoes From Port To Southern Finland, Norway, Sweden And Germany

Petsamo, Finland, Dec. 16 (AP)—Four Finnish merchantmen unloaded cargoes today in this port, cold but ice-free and sent heavily laden trucks down the highway into southern Finland an dtoward Norway, Sweden and Germany.

Some of the imports are Finland's own and are said to include purchases made in England and foodstuffs and manufactured goods from the United States.

Among the others, for instance, were 10,000 ten-pound packages—Christmas gifts of coffee, tea and soap from Americans to Swedes—which arrived yesterday on the Finnish freighter Mathilda Thorden from New York.

Will Not Award 1940 Nobel Peace Prize

Cancellation Is Announced in Nazi-Occupied Capital

OSLO (via Berlin), Dec. 16 (AP).—The Nobel Peace Prize will not be awarded this year, it was announced today.

DEC 17 1940

Last Awarded in 1938

Before the war Nobel peace award winners were selected by a committee of five named by the Storting (Parliament) of Norway, now Nazi-occupied.

The last individual to win it was Viscount Cecil of Chelwood, of Great Britain, in 1937. It went to the Nansen International Office for Refugees at Geneva in 1938, and was not conferred last year.

There were no Nobel Peace Prizes from 1914 until 1919, when Woodrow Wilson won it, except for an award in 1917 to the International Red Cross.

HUNGARIAN ENVOY STRICKEN ON TRIP

Illness of Count Csaky Is Laid to Bad Meat.

BUDAPEST, Dec. 16 (A. P.).—Stricken with influenza, the Hungarian Foreign Minister, Count Istvan Csaky, arrived here by special train from Belgrade today after signing the friendship pact between Hungary and Yugoslavia.

He had spent two days on a hunting and fishing trip in Slovenia en route home and was taken to a hospital at Ljubljana, Yugoslavia, last night, after he fell unconscious. He recovered sufficiently in a few hours to resume his trip.

His collapse was not reported in the Hungarian press.

Influenza was the official announcement, published in the official newspaper, Pester Lloyd, but the Government newspaper, Magjarorszag, quoted Premier Count Pal Teleki as telling the Government party that "Count Csaky, while on his Slovenia hunting trip, became ill from heat poisoning and is now confined to bed."

It was learned that Countess Csaky also is slightly ill, as well as the Hungarian Minister to Belgrade.

Wreckage Of Vessel Points To Shelling

Disappearance Of Steamer Holmwood In South Seas Now May Be Solved

Auckland, New Zealand, Dec. 16 (AP). Wreckage believed to be that of the small steamer Holmwood has been found on the shore of Chatham Island, 350 miles east of New Zealand, with indications that the ship was shelled, Prime Minister Peter Fraser announced today.

DEC 17 1940

The Holmwood is long overdue on a voyage from the Chatham islands. There have been indications of a German raider operating in that area of the South Pacific.

(Lloyds Register does not list the Holmwood.)

Viceroy Denies India Backs Anti-war Group

CALCUTTA, Dec. 16 (A. P.).—Lord Linlithgow, Viceroy of India, declared today that he had found it impossible to acquiesce in the anti-war position of the Indian Congress party, which failed, he said, to correspond "in the least degree to the true feelings of the country."

Lord Linlithgow urged at a meeting of the Associated Chambers of Commerce that Indian parties reconcile their conflicting aims under Britain's pledge to "lead India to the proclaimed goal of dominion status."

CLIPPERS PUT BACK

Two Had Left Lisbon for United States Today.

LISBON, Dec. 16 (A. P.)—The Atlantic and Dixie Clippers, both of which had taken off for the United States today, returned here on receipt of word of bad weather out over the Atlantic.

The Atlantic Clipper, carrying eleven passengers, left at 9 A. M. and the Dixie Clipper, with thirteen passengers, took off an hour later.

Those on the Atlantic Clipper included Arthur B. Purvis, British purchasing agent in the United States, and his secretary; also Capt. H. G. Kirk, the American naval attache at London.

The Dixie Clipper's passengers included Ben Smith, New York Stock Market speculator, who had been at Vichy on business, and Rene Doynel de St. Quentin, the former French Ambassador to the United States, who said he intended to spend several days in Washington and New York before going on to his new post as Ambassador to Brazil.

Tokio Foreign Minister Gets Nazi Grand Cross

Major-Gen. Eugene Ott, German Ambassador, made the presentation.

China Wants To Abolish Its "Unequal" Treaties

Minister Says Nation Plans To Seek Abolition Of Extra-territorial Rights

Chungking, China, Dec. 16 (AP)—Wang Chung Hui, announced today China would seek abolition of the treaties granting Britain and the United States extraterritorial right in China.

The Foreign Minister said his government would take such action after the Chinese-Japanese war only through legal means and declared it would refrain from anti-foreign agitations.

Speaking at a meeting of Government leaders, he cited numerous Anglo-American references of willingness to negotiate for elimination of what he called the "unequal" treaties.

He described the treaty elimination as one of China's war aims. Others, he said, were "maintenance of her racial existence and national independenre," and international justice preservation.

Kungkum Bridge Bombed

Tokio Reports Attack on Span Halted Burma Road Traffic

TOKIO, Dec. 16 (AP).—A Domei (Japanese news agency) dispatch from "somewhere in Indo-China" said today that Japanese naval planes had bombed the new Kungkum Bridge spanning the Mekong River on the Burma Road, halting traffic. It was the second attack in two days on the road.

[A Domei report in Shanghai on Sunday told of a Japanese air attack on a bridge along the Burma Road, Chinese supply artery between Kumming and the British port of Rangoon, but Chinese sources said the bridge was not damaged.]

French Official Killed In Shanghai By Assassin

Eduard D'Hooghe Was Legal Adviser To Municipal Council In Concession

Shanghai, Dec. 16 (AP)—Eduard D'Hooghe, legal adviser to the municipal council of Shanghai's French concession, was shot dead in front of his residence in the concession tonight by an unidentified assassin who escaped.

D'Hooghe recently had been bitterly criticized by Chinese adherents of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek's Chungking Government because he had represented the French in negotiations which resulted recently in the handing over of Chinese courts in the concession to the Japanese-supported Nanking regime.

This shooting followed by a few hours another in which a Japanese medical sergeant was the victim.

JAPANESE SHOT DEAD

Sergeant Is Assassinated in Hongkew, China.

SHANGHAI, Dec. 16 (A. P.).—A Japanese medical sergeant was shot in the back and killed today by a Chinese in the heart of Japanese-controlled Hongkew. The Japanese military immediately cordoned the district, but the killer was believed to have escaped.

The sergeant was vaccinating another Chinese as a part of the Japanese Army's compulsory health measures in that area.

The shooting occurred only forty-eight hours after the Japanese had lifted a fifteen-day blockade of the western district which followed the assassination of a gendarme.

New Peace Hint In French-Siam Dispute Heard

DEC 17 1940

Bombing Raids Conducted by Both Sides Continue on Indo-China Frontier

HANOI, French Indo-China, Dec. 16 (AP).—New hints of peace moves reached here today, simultaneously with reports of severe bombing raids by French and Thai (Siamese) planes along the disputed Indo-China-Thailand frontier.

Thai bombers were said to have swung closer to the southern Indo-China city of Saigon, with attacks last night on Cheomkhsan, in northwestern Cambodia. The French said they hit back with "heavy reprisal" bombings of the Thai towns of Lakhon, Kemmarat and Bmouk. Three towns in Indo-China, Savannakhet, Vientiane and Saravane, were reported bombed the day before.

French officials said the French Minister at Bangkok had reported to Hanoi that the chances for peaceable consideration of the border difficulties seemed slightly better.

Vichy Calls Situation "Intolerable"

VICHY, Dec. 16 (AP).—The French Ministry of Colonies declared today that actions by Thailand forces against "persons and property" along the Thailand-French Indo-China frontier were "intolerable." France "intends to maintain the integrity of Indo-China rigorously intact," the ministry said in a communique. It asserted that the Thai government should take the frontier disorders in hand if it wished to "maintain normal relations with our great Far Eastern possession."

DEC 17 1940

BANGKOK, THAILAND, DEC 16-(AP)-A HALF-HOUR SKIRMISH BETWEEN THAI (SIAMESE) TROOPS AND FRENCH IRREGULARS ALONG THE THAILAND-INDO CHINA BORDER WAS REPORTED HERE TODAY.

MEANWHILE THE THAI GOVERNMENT DECLARED IT WAS READY TO NEGOTIATE WITH FRANCE FOR A PEACEFUL SETTLEMENT OF THE FRONTIER DISPUTE AND URGED THAT FRENCH INDO-CHINA SEND A DELEGATION TO BANGKOK TO DISCUSS THE SITUATION.

CANADA BARS ALL LUXURIES

Pulp Magazines From U. S. Head Formidable List.

BAN ON FOR WAR'S DURATION

Dominion Also Imposes Heavy Excise on Own Products.

OTTAWA, Dec. 14 (Correspondence of the Associated Press).—The hard necessities of war are squeezing Canada's living standard; a Spartan existence lies ahead.

Caught in this squeeze are many periodicals on which Canada's reading public has been spending millions every year—detective and western story magazines, magazines of confession stories and strange adventures, paper-bound books of comics and the like—all imported from the United States.

The pulp magazine however, is only one of a long list of items which the Government has barred from this country.

Lots of Other Things Too.

Other items on the list of non-essentials formerly imported from the United States and henceforth barred for the duration of the war include such luxuries as:

Passenger automobiles, motorcycles, bicycles, trailers, pleasure boats of all kinds, cigars, cigarettes, pipe tobacco, picture post cards and greetings, cocoa, chocolate and chocolate candy, breakfast foods, rose bushes, bird cages, canned salmon, nuts, canned fruits and vegetables, paper towels, napkins and other paper products, including confetti;

Electric light fixtures, vacuum cleaners, electric razors, radio sets, phonographs and other musical instruments, including brass band instruments; billiard tables, fishing rods, cameras, fountain pens, dolls and toys, umbrellas, jewelry, soaps and perfumes.

To Save $6,000,000 a Month.

The object of this ban is not merely to reduce drastically the consumption of luxuries imported from the United States, although it is estimated that around $6,000,000 a month will be kept at home this way. The ban is only part of a restrictive program designed to restrict any kind of luxury purchases, whether of imported articles or Canadian goods.

Therefore, stiff excise taxes have been placed on Canadian made article-class classfied, as luxuries—automobiles, cameras, electric appliances and the like. The tax on cars valued at $900 or less is 20 per cent; for the higher-priced cars it ranges from 30 to 80 per cent. On radios, phonographs, cameras and most electric appliances, such as refrigerators, washing machines, vacuum cleaners, waffle irons, toasters, grinders, mixers and the like, it is 25 per cent.

Canada Puts in a Claim On Incomes of Citizens

Ilsley Says Cash Can't Be Spent on Non-Essentials

TORONTO, Dec. 16 (AP).—Finance Minister James L. Ilsley asserted in a speech today before the Canadian Club here that Canadians should regard their incomes as received in trust, and that though incomes could legitimately be used for meeting personal needs, "we should not regard them as our own to spend as we choose."

Speaking on the war savings campaign and the responsibilities it involved, he said the nation had a claim upon incomes "which ranks ahead of our personal claims for non-essential purposes. The liberty we enjoy in the spending of our incomes increases our responsibility for their proper disposition."

He warned that the government would need to borrow next year a sum close to $1,000,000,000, and that a greater demand would be made on war savings.

3 Or 4 Raiders Roam South Pacific, Tar Says

Member Of Crew Of U. S. Ship Sunk Off Australia Expresses Opinion

Honolulu, Dec. 16 (AP)—A belief that "three or four" German surface raiders are operating in the South Pacific was expressed today by a member of the crew of the City of Rayville, American steamship sunk off Australia, apparently by a mine.

Twenty-one survivors, led by Capt. Arthur Cronin, arrived on the steamship Aorangi en route from Australia to New York. Captain Cronin declined to discuss the sinking.

The one crew member who would express an opinion said:

"One German raider could not do the damage the British credit the raider with. I believe there were three or four."

ASHES OF LOTHIAN PUT IN ARLINGTON

Urn Is Placed in Vault Under Maine Memorial.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 16 (A. P.).—The ashes of the Marquess of Lothian, late British Ambassador to the United States, were placed today in a vault in Arlington National Cemetery, there to remain indefinitely while his homeland continues at war with Germany. The United States, in making available a vault underneath the memorial to the dead of the battleship Maine, gave another expression of America's esteem of the man who had served Britain here since the war began, until his sudden death on Thursday.

Japan Reported Drafting American-Born Nationals

Corean Leader Here Sends a Protest to Hull

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 16 (AP).—Kilsoo K. Haan, Washington representative of the Chino-Corean People's League, said today he had written to Secretary of State Cordell Hull protesting the asserted military conscription by Japan of American-born Japanese.

"There are about 120,000 persons of Japanese ancestry in Hawaii and about 96,000 more here on the Pacific Coast, most of them in California," Haan said in a newspaper statement.

"We estimate that two-thirds of them have a dual citizenship standing and through pressure may be made a huge espionage agency for Japanese militarists if the United States does not make them abandon the conscription program."

He explained that many American-born Japanese also have the status of citizens of Japan because their parents have registered them there.

P. G. Wodehouse Held In German Internment Camp, Daughter Says

New York, Dec. 16 (AP)—P. G. Wodehouse, 60, British humorist and writer, is "in an internment camp in Silesia," according to a letter received here today from his daughter, Mrs. Leonora Cazelet, of Tonbridge, Kent, England.

Wodehouse was captured by the advancing German forces last June near his villa at Le Touquet, France.

Mrs. Cazelet wrote Guy Bolton, a Wodehouse collaborator, that she was trying to ascertain the exact location of the southeast German camp in an effort to send Wodehouse Christmas parcels.

Italian Ship Asks Help Between Jamaica, Cuba

New York, Dec. 16 (AP)—Mackay radio said the 5,416-ton Italian freighter Istria called for "urgent assistance" near Kingston, Jamaica, late today.

The Mackay station at Amagansett, N. Y., reported fifteen minutes later, at 5.30 P. M., that it was still in contact with the Istria which gave her position as between Jamaica and Cuba.

No details of the cause of distress were immediately available.

The Istria is owned by the Italian Line and traded between Italy, United States ports and the West Indies before the war. She reached Italian waters three days before Italy entered the conflict.

Her distress message was the first indication that she had left the Mediterranean although shipping circles here had heard that she was scheduled to sail from Lisbon, Portugal, to Cuba.

Italian Line officials said they had received no information from Italy on recent movements of their vessels and that "there must be a mistake some place."

An official at the Italian Consulate said, "I did not know we had any ships moving in these waters."

Reports Floating Mines On Way To Melbourne

Japanese Ship "Presumes" Explosives Were Intended For Liner Queen Mary

New York, Dec. 16 (AP)—The Japanese radio, in a broadcast heard tonight by C. B. S., said the Japanese liner Canberra Maru, just returned from Australia, had sighted German floating mines "on the way to Melbourne," which were "presumably intended for the Queen Mary."

It said the Queen Mary, big British liner, was seen at Sydney.

How the mines were identified as German was not mentioned.

Part Payment By Hunagry Only Return On War Debts

Finland, Absent From Roll For First Time, Allowed To Skip Because Of Losses.

[By the Associated Press]

Washington, Dec. 16—The World War debts came due again today, but only Hungary paid, and she did not pay in full.

For the first time, Finland was absent from the pay window, availing herself of a special act of Congress authorizing her to skip the payment in view of her heavy war losses.

Great Britain not only failed to pay the $127,670,765 principal and interest installment due today, but was dickering with the cashier with a view to obtaining more money. Sir Frederick Phillips, Under Secretary of the British Treasury, was in town, presenting the facts of British financial resources to Secretary Morgenthau.

Hungary Pays $9,828

Hungary, which has made a practice in recent years of paying only a portion of the installments due, transmitted $9,828 of the $52,770 due today. Only one other country currently is paying. Greece makes token remittances, but her bill does not come due until January 1.

The United States, it was disclosed at the State Department, did not send the usual duns this month to Estonia, Latvia and Lithuania, Baltic countries which have come under the domination of Soviet Russia. The omission was attributed to "current governmental conditions" in those countries. Similarly, Czecho-Slovakia has been omitted from the dunning letter list for sometime, because she has been occupied by Germany.

Debts Of Countries

Altogether, $186,834,588 was due today from thirteen nations. The amounts due on this semi-annual payment date, and the total debts of the countries follow:

Belgium, $4,642,453 due today, and $461,781,161 owed altogether; Czecho-Slovakia, $1,682,812 and $165,815,132; Estonia, $468,850 and $21,612,594; Finland, $235,398 and $8,126,622; France, $41,569,744 and $4,220,036,473; Great Britain, $127,670,765 and $5,651,792,208; Hungary, $52,770 and $2,436,670; Italy, $3,387,030 and $2,026,901,552; Latvia, $194,883 and $8,912,019; Lithuania, $121,466 and $7,980,148; Poland, $5,698,039 and $270,464,503; Rumania, $956,309 and $65,828,752, and Yugoslavia, $154,062 and $61,865,093.

Not counted in these figures, however, were $30,000,000 that Finland owes the Export-Import Bank because of loans in the last year, the debt of Russia, and German obligations on account of the American Army of Occupation and Austria.

Altogether, direct debts of all foreign governments to the United States Treasury, not counting debts owed the Export-Import Bank, were $14,732,841,239.

LIMITED FOOD RELIEF LIKELY

Washington, D. C., Dec. 16 (AP).—President Roosevelt received a report from Secretary Hull today on the foreign situation and discussed European relief measures with Hull and Norman Davis, chairman of the American Red Cross.

Informed sources intimated afterward that there might be developments soon on proposals for limited food relief in Spain and unoccupied France.

The Red Cross and the State Department were said to have formulated plans for sending a shipload of foodstuffs to Spain and a shipment of condensed milk and vitamin products for undernourished children in unoccupied France.

British permission for this limited aid was expected, although the British Government has made it plain that it would not relax the blockade for food supplies to German-occupied countries.

Windsor Has Golf Match With Snead and Sarazen

Game Precedes His Departure With Duchess Today

MIAMI, Fla., Dec. 16 (AP).—The Duke of Windsor, relieved over improvement in the duchess's condition, relaxed in a golf match today and saw Sam Snead score a six-under-par 65.

With the duchess recuperating favorably from a major dental operation, the Windsors planned to sail tomorrow afternoon for Nassau, where the duke will resume his duties as Governor of the Bahamas.

Snead, Hot Springs, Va., professional, amazed the duke with his par-shattering exhibition over the Miami Biltmore course.

"He is one of the greatest golfers I have ever seen," commented the duke.

Windsor, himself an enthusiastic golfer, scored an 88, taking time out between shots for instructions from Gene Sarazen, former British and United States open champion.

The duke teamed with Sarazen in a best-ball and aggregate match against Snead, who had as alternate partners Capt. Vyvyan Drury, an aide, and Capt. Alistair Mackintosh, one of Windsor's close friends.

War-Risk Insurance Renewed After Mediterranean Victories

Rates On Limited Types Of Cargoes Going To And From The Area Are Resumed

[By the Associated Press]

New York, Dec. 16—British and Greek victories in the Mediterranean area brought resumption today of war risk insurance rates on limited types of cargoes going to or coming from a number of southern European and North African destinations.

Marine underwriters announced that on shipments not in excess of $500,000 per vessel they were prepared to cover under open policies the risks of capture except by the British authorities or their allies.

Shipments on which such coverage now will be written include those to or from Greece, Turkey, Egypt, Syria, Palestine and Black Sea ports, excluding Russian ports where shipments are via Suez.

The "possibility of improved shipping conditions in the Mediterranean, due to the recent Italian reverses on both land and sea," was given as the reason for resumption of policies.

Underwriters also announced sharp reductions in rates on shipments via Suez to and from the eastern end of the Mediterranean and the Black Sea.

Rates on direct shipments to and from the eastern end of the Mediterranean (Greece, Syria, Palestine and Turkish Mediterranean ports via Suez) which have been quoted at 12½ per cent. "free of all capture" and 15 per cent. "free of British capture," have been reduced to 10 per cent. "free of British capture."

Direct shipments to or from the Black Sea, excluding shipments to or from Russian ports have been reduced from 17½ per cent. to 12½ per cent. "free of all capture."

Shortly after the entrance of Italy into the war, underwriters here excluded from open policies all risks of capture on shipments to, from and via the Mediterranean.

War Powers' Communiques

British

CAIRO, Dec. 16 (AP).—A British general headquarters communique tonight:

Our troops today occupied Sollum and Fort Capuzzo, capturing a number of aircraft on the ground. Further details are not known.

An earlier British headquarters communique:

EGYPT: The enemy is still holding strongly defended positions about Sollum. Meanwhile, our advanced forces are well across the Libyan frontier, where fighting continues. Bad weather conditions are still interfering with visibility.

On the Sudan frontier our patrols had another successful day.

A Royal Air Force headquarters communique:

Despite bad weather, the R. A. F. continued to attack enemy landing grounds and airdromes in the western desert yesterday. Our fighters maintained a protective patrol for our advanced troops.

During the nights of Dec. 14-15 and 15-16, raids were carried out on Bardia, Tmimi, Gazala, Tobruk, Gubbi and El Adem. At Bardia fierce fires visible from a distance of sixty miles were caused. The jetty was hit and considerable damage was done.

Yesterday Bomba, Apollonia, Derna and Benina were visited by our bombers.

R. A. F. fighter aircraft carried out offensive patrols over a wide area reaching as far as Tobruk. During these operations two CR-42's were shot down and one other enemy fighter was probably destroyed.

Throughout these intensive operations no R. A. F. aircraft was lost.

A very heavy and successful raid was carried out by long-range bombers on Naples during the night of Dec. 14-15. Bombs burst on the jetty to which two battleships were moored, causing fires which burned for a considerable time.

Five direct hits were made on a concentration of cruisers and destroyers, resulting in four large explosions. One of our aircraft dropped an entire bomb load close to a battleship.

At the same time the airdrome was raided and fires were started. The railway station and junctions were attacked, resulting in three large explosions, followed by a number of fires. All our aircraft returned safely.

In Italian East Africa, a night attack was made on Gura, bombs falling on the airdrome and hangars and near aircraft parked at one end of the airdrome.

On the same night Zula, Gondar, Assab and Bahardar were also raided. Fires were caused among buildings in the barrack area at Assab airdrome, and Gondar was heavily bombarded and large fires started in a nearby camp, while at Bahardar bombs fell within the target area. The full extent of the damage was not observed.

The enemy attempted to raid Malta on the night of Dec. 14-15 and again yesterday. No damage or casualties resulted from either raid.

LONDON, Dec. 16 (AP).—An Air Ministry communique:

Last night the Royal Air Force carried out an attack on a number of important targets in the Berlin area, including railways, factories and public utility services.

Smaller forces of our aircraft bombed the inland port of Frankfurt am Main and other targets near that city, the Kiel shipyards and the port of Bremen.

In the course of other operations our bombers, observing enemy merchant vessels off the coast of France, attacked two of them and scored direct hits on both.

From all these operations three of our aircraft are missing.

An Air Ministry-Home Security Ministry communique:

Enemy activity during today has been confined to a small number of single aircraft. Some of these penetrated into East Anglia and southeast England. A few bombs are reported in these areas, but they caused litle damage and few casualties.

An earlier Air and Home Security Ministries communique:

Yesterday evening bombers attacked an industrial region in the north of England where damage was caused to houses and other property. Reports so far received indicate, however, that casualties were not very heavy. In one town, particularly, a number of fires were started, but the fire services dealt with them promptly and they were all soon under control.

A small scale attack was made upon parts of the London area, but little damage was done and there were few casualties.

Bombs were also dropped in some other parts of the country. The damage caused was slight and the number of casualties was extremely small.

Italian

ROME, Dec. 16 (AP).—The Italian high command communique:

Enemy forces have continued pressure in the frontier zone in Cyrenaica (Libya) under bombardments of our air force, which has inflicted many losses on armored formations.

On the Greek front new enemy attacks have been repulsed. In bitter fighting enemy losses and ours have been considerable.

In east Africa an enemy air raid on Assab caused damage to some buildings of the city.

Greek

ATHENS, Dec. 16 (AP).—The Greek high command communique:

At various points on the front local operations carried out on a reduced scale all turned in our favor and resulted in pushing our lines forward.

The Greek Ministry of Home Security communique:

No air raids were made on Greece today.

German

BERLIN, Dec. 16 (AP).—The German high command communique:

In the night of Dec. 15 combat planes attacked London as well as other war-essential and military objectives in southeast England. One English port was mined anew.

In the course of the day the air force made only reconnaissance flights, due to weather conditions.

Last night British planes dropped a number of explosives and incendiaries on the Reich's territory. In Berlin several attic fires were quickly quenched. Several houses, including two hospitals, were damaged and one suburban rail line temporarily disturbed. There was only slight damage to buildings at other places. At Herford a church was destroyed by a bomb. Fire in a central German plant was quenched at the start. Production was not disturbed.

Losses among the civilian population were four killed and twelve wounded.

One enemy plane was downed by a night chaser. There were no German plane losses.

Italy's Chances Fade of Breaking Grip Of Great Britain on Mediterranean

DEC 17 1940

By DEWITT MACKENZIE.

The Anglo-allied forces both in Libya and Albania were smashing the Italians back today in a defeat which, if continued, is likely to kill the chances of the Axis Powers to break Britain's control of the vital Mediterranean zone.

From the British standpoint this strategic area is second in importance only to the British Isles themselves. As the battle of the Mediterranean goes, so may go the whole conflict.

Fighting in northern Africa has reached Italy's Libyan soil in the vicinity of the important port of Salum. Possession of this harbor would enable the British to rush supplies forward, thereby permitting continuance of the drive into enemy territory.

The British fleet continues to do yeoman's service by shelling Fascist forces, communications and bases from the neighboring sea. It is an ironic circumstance for the Italians that this navy, which is the keystone of the British control of the Mediterranean, should be all but running ashore into the desert to beat the unhappy Fascists.

Gayda Paints Silver Lining.

Virginio Gayda, authoritative Fascist writer, in using a wide brush to paint a silver lining into the Greek and Egyptian clouds of defeat, declares that they "are only episodes in the entire picture of the war."

"They are not Italy's whole war," he adds, "nor do they embody all Italy's offensive possibilities."

By way of emphasis Signor Gayda remarks resentfully that "Britain is carrying on her war with the vast means permitted by her riches."

Those are very astute observations by one of Europe's most brilliant commentators. However, he presumably is writing to quiet the concern of an uneasy Italian public, and doesn't carry out an analysis of the position. Had he done so he must have arrived at this point:

War of Strangulation.

It is precisely because of Britain's tremendous resources, plus her control of the seas, that she is banking on winning the war in the long run, —that is, with the material assistance of America. The conflict is likely to be decided by economic strangulation and starvation, and the side which has the reserves is the side which will win.

It is true that Greece and Libya aren't "Italy's whole war." Britain took a far worse beating in Flanders than those to which Italy thus far has been subjected—and Britain is far stronger today than she was at that time.

Italy may come through, too, but there is a vast difference between Italy and Britain. That difference lies in those resources.

Mussolini is in grave danger of being strangled by the blockade. He is in a bad way economically, and is short of many essential supplies, including food.

The Fascist campaigns against Greece and Egypt were undertaken for the express purpose of breaking Britain's naval control of the Mediterranean—of smashing that ever-tightening blockade. The two operations were to be synchronized, and their success meant Britain's probable downfall.

Both these operations have produced Fascist debacles—and the end is not yet. Italy's danger is that she has muffed the strategical operations which would have freed her from the strangulation of the blockade. There is a great question whether she has the power of resistance which will enable her to recover as Britain did.

STOCKHOLM, DEC.16-AP-SWEDEN CONCLUDED AN AGREEMENT WITH GERMANY FOR A TRADE OVERTURN OF ABOUT 2,000,000,000 CROWNS (APPROXIMATELY $480,000,000) IN 1941, A SUBSTANTIAL INCREASE OVER THIS YEAR'S TRADE AND APPARENTLY ON TERMS FAVORABLE TO SWEDEN, IT WAS ANNOUNCED TONIGHT.

GERMANY WILL GET MUCH WOOD PULP AND PAPER, BIG SWEDISH EXPORT ITEMS, AND WEDEN WIQL GET 5,700,000 TONS OF MUCH NEEDED COAL AND COKE ALONG WITH PROCESSED STEEL AND SYNTHETIC CLOTH.

AN INFORMED ECONOMIST HERE SAID THE COAL WAS TO BE OBTAINED WITHOUT AN INCREASE IN PRICES, INDICATING SWEDEN WAS IN A GOOD BARGAINING POSITION.

THE TRADE THIS YEAR WILL APPROXIMATE 1,400,000,000CROWNS.

A TWO-MONTHS CONTRACT WITH NORWAY FOR JANUARY AND FEBRUARY, APPROXIMATING 25,000,000 CROWNS, ALSO WAS ANNOUNCED, WITH SWEDEN OBTAINING FERTILIZERS AND HERRING. ----

(ADVANCE FOR SUNDAY DEC. 15)

TOKYO, JANAN (CORRESPONDENCE OF THE ASSOCIATED PRESS)--THE JAPANESE NAVY IS DRAWING ON ITS CHARTS A HUGE "DEFENSIVE TRIANGLE" TO SECURE THE EMPIRE'S HOLD ON THE RICHES OF "GREATER EAST ASIA" AND PREVENT ANY AMERICAN OR BRITISH INTERFERENCE WITH ITS EXPANSION PROGRAM IN THAT PART OF THE WORLD.

HIGH OFFICIALS MAKE NO SECRET OF A PLAN TO COMPLETE THE TRIANGLE BY ACQUISITION OF CAMRANH BAY, ON FRENCH INDO-CHINA'S EASTERN COAST, WHICH JAPANESE BELIEVE THEY CAN MAKE ONE OF THE GREAT NAVAL FORTRESSES OF HISTORY.

THE OTHER CORNERS OF THE TRIANGLE, EACH SIDE OF WHICH WOULD BE MORE THAN 2,000, MILES WOULD BE THE BASES OF THE JAPANESE HOMELAND AND THE ISLAND CHAINS OF EQUATORIAL PACIFIC WHICH JAPAN GOT FRM GERMANY AS WORLD WAR SPOILS.

ENCLOSED WITHIN--AND THEREBY, THE JAPANESE HOPE, MADE STRATEGI ALLY USELESS--WOULD BE THE PHILIPPINE ISLANDS AND OF GUAM.

HIGH OFFICIAL SOURCES PLACED AN OUTLINE OF THIS STRATEGY AT THE DISPOSAL OF THIS CORRESPONDENT IN AN APPARENT ATTEMPT TO CONVINCE THE AMERICAN PUBLIC THAT JAPAN'S NAVAL POSITION IS SO STRONG AS TO BE CHALLENGED ONLY AT GREAT COST.

ITS ADMITTED PURPOSES ARE TWO: TO PREVENT ANY THRUST FROM BRITAIN'S NAVAL BASE AT SINGAPORE INTO THE WESTERN PACIFIC OR THE CHINA SEAS--WHICH JAPAN CONSIDERS HER OWN PRESERVES; TO PREVENT ANY MOVE BY THE UNITED STATES TO JOIN HANDS WITH THE BRITISH AT SINGAPORE AND CONFRONT JAPAN WITH JOINT OPPOSITION TO HER IMPERIAL PLANS.

A THIRD PURPOSE, NOT OPENLY AVOWED BUT STRONGLY SUGGESTED BY THE MAP, IS TO PROVIDE PROTECTION FOR THE MOVE MANY JAPANESE ADVOCATE, SEIZURE OF THE NETHERLANDS EAST INDIES, RICHEST OF ALL FAR EASTERN COLONIES, ESPECIALLY IN OIL, WHICH JAPAN SORELY NEEDS.

(JAPANESE STRATEGISTS BELIEVE BRITAIN WOULD HAVE TO OPPOSE SUCH A MOVE AND THEY CONSIDER UNITED STATES INTERVENTION ALMOST AS LIKELY AS BRITISH. THEY HAVE MADE AN ALLIANCE WITH GERMANY AND ITALY PROVIDING FOR A COMMON FRONT AGAINST SUCH INTERVENTION.)

ANY UNITED STATES UNITS RASH ENOUGH TO VENTURE TO SINGAPORE WOULD BE ISOLATED, THE INFORMANTS SAID, ADDING, "IT WOULD BE A GREAT MISTAKE IF THE UNITED STARES SENT SHIPS THERE."

THE TRIANGLE LIES ATHWART ALL DIRECT ROUTES FROM CONTINENTAL UNITED STATES, THE PANAMA CANAL AND HAWAII TO THE POSSIBLE CONFLICT AREA IN THE SOUTH CHINA SEA.

DEC 17 1940

CAMRANH, 1,200 MILES DUE NORTH OF BATAVIA, CAPITAL OF THE INDIES, AND 800 MILES NORTHEAST OF SINGAPORE, WOULD BE THE NATURAL JUMP-OFF POINT FOR A MOVE AGAINST THE DUTCH ISLANDS.

(THE JAPANESE STRATEGISTS APPARENTLY BELIEVE THAT THE GHREATS TO THEIR OWN NAVAL LINES OF COMMUNICATIONS WHICH WOULD PERSIST AS LONG AS THE BRITISH HELD SINGAPORE, THE UNITED STATES HELD MANILA AND THE DUTCH HELD THEIR BASE ON THE NORTH JAVA COAST, COULD BE NULLIFIED BY BOLD, SWIFT SEIZURE OF THE INITIATIVE.)

THE FRENCH ALREADY HAVE BEGUN DEVELOPMENT OF CAMRANH. THE JAPANESE BELIEVE THEY CAN MAKE IT CAPABLE OF DOCKING CAPITAL SHIPS AS WELL AS SMALLER RAIDING AND SCOUTING UNITS. THEY SAY THAT FOR THE PRESENT AT LEAST THEY WILL SEEK ONLY BY DIPLOMATIC METHODS TO OBTAIN USE OF IT FROM THE FRENCH. ALREADY THEY HAVE SUCCEEDED IN OBTAINING ARMY AND AIR BASES IN NORTHERN INDO-CHINA.

IN ANY ACTION CENTERING AROUND THE DUTCH INDIES--THE JAPANESE NAVY WOULD USE MOBILE, FAST-STRIKING UNITS BEHIND A FAN OF BLOCKADES AND RAIDERS, THE INFORMANTS INDICATED.

MINES AND SMALL RAIDERS COULD BLOCKADE THE DUTCH ISLANDS, WHILE ANY FORCES AT SINGAPORE COULD BE HELD OFF. BEHIND SUCH A SCREEN, PRESUMABLY, HEAVIER SHIPS COULD DEAL WITH THE SMALL DUTCH EAST INDIES FLEET. NAVAL PLANES AND GUNS THEN COULD SOFTEN UP THE ISLANDS FOR INVASION, WHICH PROBABLY WOULD BEGIN WITH BORNEO, MOST EXPOSED OF THE ISLANDS.

THE INFORMANTS ADMITTED THAT THE ISLANDS ARE EQUIPPED WITH ADVANCE SEAPLANE AND SUBMARINE BASES(IN POSSIBLE VIOLATION OF THE LEAGUE OF NATIONS MANDATE UNDER WHICH THEY ARE HELD) PLUS CERTAIN LIGHT DEFENSIVE EQUIPMENT. HEAVY FORTIFICATIONS HAVE NOT BEEN CONSTRUCTED, THEY SAID,

30.24-6459

BECAUSE THE COST WOULD BE FAR [illegible]CESS OF THEIR VALUE.

THEY REMARKED THAT HOPES OF IMPROVING UNITED STATES-JAPNESE RELATIONS WOULD NOT DIE AS LONG AS THE UNITED STATES FLEET REMAINED EAST OF THE 180 MERIDIAN--SOME 1,400 MILES WEST OF HAWAII. THEY INDICATED THE JAPANESE NAVY PLANNED QUICK ACITON IF THE UNITED STATES NAVY MOVED IN FORCE TOWARD SINGAPORE OR THE PHILIPPINES.

FOR THE PRESENT IT WAS INDICATED THAT JAPAN'S BATTLE FLEET, THE WORLD'S THIRD STRONGEST, WOULD CONTINUE TO BE BASED ON THE HOME PORTS. FEAR OF RUSSIA KEEPS THEM THERE. ONLY THE MOST IRONCLAD NON-AGRESSION PACT WITH THE SOGIET WOULD RELEASE THEM.

BUT THE JAPANESE FEEL THAT NEITHER THE UNITED STATES OR X BRITAIN COULD SPARE LARGE CAPITAL SHIP FORCES FOR ANY PACIFIC CONFLICT, THEY COUNT ON THEIR AXIS ALLIES TO KEEP THE BATTLESHIPS OCCUPIED ELSEWHERE.

THUS THEY CONCEIVE OF A PACIFIC CONFLICT AS NAVAL GUERILLA WARFARE IN WHICH THEIR TRIANGLE, ESPECIALLY THE CAMRANH,BASE, WOULD G VE THEM A GREAT ADVANTAGE.

DEC 17 1940

THAT JAPAN MIGHT RUN GRAVE RISKS IN SUCH A CONFLICT IS ADMITTED. ONE ELEMENT ALONE MIGHT BE DECISIVE, OIL. AN OUTBREAK OF HOSTILITIES PRESUMABLY WOULD CUT OFF JAAN'S NORMAL SUPPLIES FROM THE UNITED STATES AND THE DUTCH INDIES. THE NAVY WOULD HAVE TO OPERATE LARGELY ON RESERVES. LONG RANGE FIGHTING W ULD CUT RAPIDLY INTO AVAILABLE STOCKS. CHINA MIGHT STRIKE WITH REDOUBLED VIGOR AGAINST HER JAPANESE INVADERS TO CREATE A DIVERSION.

EVEN A W QUICK JAPANESE CONQUEST OF THE DUTCH ISLANDS WOULD NOT NECESSARILY MEAN IMMEDIATE OIL RICHES, FOR THE DUTCH ARE KNOWN TO HAVE PREPARED TO DEMOLISH THEIR WELLS AND REFINERIES AND SIX MONTHS OR A YEAR WOULD BE REQUIRED TO RESTORE PRODUCTION.

WASHINGTON,DEC 16-(AP)-MRS.FRANKLIN D.ROOSEVELT CAME OUT TODAY FOR OUTRIGHT CASH GIFTS TO GREAT BRITAIN RATHER THAN LOANS, SAYING SHE BELIEVED THAT FORM OF FINANCIAL AID WOULD BE LESS LIKELY TO DRAW THIS COUNTRY INTO THE EUROPEAN WAR.

ASKED AT HER PRESS CONFERENCE FOR HER OPINION ON THE LOAN QUESTION, MRS.ROOSEVELT REPLIED SPIRITEDLY; "I THINK IT IS ABOUT TIME WE STARTED TO GIVE SOMETHING.

DEC 17 1940

"A CERTAIN NUMBER OF PEOPLE ARE UNDER THE IMPRESSION THAT WE ARE GIVING AID TO ENGLAND, BUT WE MUST FACE THE REALITY THAT WE ARE BEING PAID."

SELLING SUPPLIES TO ENGLAND, SHE SAID, HAD NOT ONLY RESULTED IN A MATERIAL GAIN FOR THE UNITED STATES, BUT HAD STIMULATED INDUSTRY IN THE INTEREST OF THIS COUNTRY'S NATIONAL DEFENSE.

OUTRIGHT GIFTS OF CASH WOULD BE LESS LIKELY TO INVOLVE THIS COUNTRY IN THE CONFLICT, SHE SAID, BECAUSE A LOAN MAKES THE LENDER CONCERNED IN THE OUTCOME.

DISCUSSING REPORTS OF INCREASED COST OF LIVING AS A RESULT OF THE DEFENSE PROGRAM, MRS.ROOSEVELT SAID SHE FAVORED A "CEILING" ON RENTS AND MORE LOW-COST HOUSING.

ESPECIALLY, SHE SAID, SHE DID NOT WANT TO SEE A REPETITION OF THE SITUATION IN WASHINGTON IN 1917 AND 1918 WHEN THE CAPITAL, OVERCROWDED BY WAR WORKERS, EXPERIENCED A LANDLORD'S BOOM.

MRS.ROOSEVELT ALSO SAID SHE HOPED TO SEE SOME SORT OF PLAN ADOPTED BY CONGRESS TO UTILIZE WOMEN IN THE NATIONAL DEFENSE PROGRAM. WOMEN WANT TO DO THEIR PART, SHE SAID, AND THERE IS A GREAT DEAL OF WOMAN POWER NOT BEING USED. HOWEVER, SHE ADVANCED NO SPECIFIC PLAN.

WASHINGTON,DEC. 16-(AP)-PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT RETURNED FROM A CARIBBEAN CRUISE TODAY TO TACKLE THE PROBLEM OF SPEEDING UP REARMAMENT IN A SITUATION DESCRIBED BY WILLIAM S.KNUDSEN AS ONE OF "TERRIBLE URGENCY."

DEC 17 1940

THE CHIEF EXECUTIVE CAME HOME TO FIND THE CAPITAL ABSORBED IN SPECULATION AS TO WHETHER HE MIGHT GIVE THE CHAIRMANSHIP OF THE DEFENSE COMMISSION, AND WITH IT SUBSTANTIAL POWERS OVER INDUSTRY, TO KNUDSEN. MANY PERSONS CLOSE TO THE DEFENSE PROGRAM ADVOCATED SUCH A STEP; OTHER HIGH OFFICIALS WERE AS FIRMLY OPPOSED TO ANY FUNDAMENTAL CHANGE IN THE SETUP OF THE COMMISSION, WHICH NOW HAS NO CHAIRMAN.

TO MANY ANALYSTS, SOME MAJOR PRESIDENTIAL MOVE SEEMED FORE-SHADOWED BY MR.ROOSEVELT'S STATEMENT YESTERDAY THAT HE HOPED TO VISIT WARM SPRINGS, GA., AGAIN NEXT SPRING "IF THE WORLD SUR-VIVES."

KNUDSEN, FORMER PRESIDENT OF GENERAL MOTORS CORPORATION AND NOW PRODUCTION CHIEF FOR THE DEFENSE COMMISSION, SPOKE GRIMLY IN LETTERS MADE PUBLIC TODAY TO MACHINE TOOL MANUFACTURERS AND THEIR EMPLOYES.
